

Eleventh Canto

General History

Çrémad-Bhāgavatam Canto 11: "General History"

(1)1. The Curse Upon the Yadu Dynasty

- Translations 1-24(2)

(3)2. Mahārāja Nimi Meets the Nine Yogendras

- Translations 1-55(4)

(5)3. Liberation from the Illusory Energy

- Translations 1-55(6)

(7)4. Drumila Explains the Incarnations of Godhead to King Nimi

- Translations 1-23(8)

(9)5. Nārada Concludes His Teachings to Vasudeva

- Translations 1-52(10)

(11)6. The Yadu Dynasty Retires to Prabhāsa

- Translations 1-50(12)

(13)7. Lord Kāṇḍya Instructs Uddhava

- Translations 1-74(14)

(15)8. The Story of Piṅgalā

- Translations 1-44(16)

(17)9. Detachment from All that Is Material

- Translations 1-33(18)

(19)10. (20)The Nature of Fruitive Activity

- Translations 1-37(21)

(22)11. (23)The Symptoms of Conditioned and Liberated Living Entities

- Translations 1-49(24)

(25)12. (26)	Beyond Renunciation and Knowledge
• Translations 1-24(27)
(28)13. (29)	The Haṇṣa-avatāra Answers the Questions of the Sons of Brāhmā
• Translations 1-42(30)
(31)14. (32)	Lord Kāṇḁa Explains the Yoga System to Çré Uddhava
• Translations 1-46(33)
(34)15. (35)	Lord Kāṇḁa's Description of Mystic Yoga Perfections
• Translations 1-36(36)
(37)16. (38)	The Lord's Opulence
• Translations 1-44(39)
(40)17. (41)	Lord Kāṇḁa's Description of the Varēāçrama System
• Translations 1-58(42)
(43)18. (44)	Description of Varēāçrama-dharma
• Translations 1-48(45)
(46)19. (47)	The Perfection of Spiritual Knowledge
• Translations 1-45(48)
(49)20. (50)	Pure Devotional Service Surpasses Knowledge and Detachment
• Translations 1-37(51)
(52)21. (53)	Lord Kāṇḁa's Explanation of the Vedic Path
• Translations 1-43(54)
(55)22. (56)	Enumeration of the Elements of Material Creation
• Translations 1-61(57)
(58)23. (59)	The Song of the Avanté Brāhmaēa
• Translations 1-61(60)
(61)24. (62)	The Philosophy of Sāi khyā
• Translations 1-29(63)
(64)25. (65)	The Three Modes of Nature and Beyond

• Translations 1-36(66)
(67)26. (68) The Aila-gētā
• Translations 1-35(69)
(70)27. (71)Lord Kāñëa's Instructions on the Process of Deity Worship
• Translations 1-55(72)
(73)28. (74) Ji' äna-yoga
• Translations 1-44(75)
(76)29. (77)Bhakti-yoga
• Translations 1-49(78)
(79)30. (80) The Disappearance of the Yadu Dynasty
• Translations 1-50(81)
(82)31. (83)The Disappearance of Lord Çré Kāñëa
• Translations 1-28(84)
Appendix

1. The Curse Upon the Yadu Dynasty

This chapter gives a hint of the destruction of the Yadu dynasty, which took place owing to the appearance of an iron club. Hearing this narration is a great impetus for becoming detached from the material world.

Lord Çré Kāñëa expertly arranged the great Kurukñetra battle between the Kurus and the Pāëðavas and thus removed to a great extent the earth's burden. But the Supreme Lord, whose influence is inconceivable, was not yet satisfied, because of the continued presence of the undefeatable Yadu family. The Lord desired to bring about the destruction of the Yadu dynasty so that He could completely wind up His pastimes on the earth and go back to His own abode. Using the pretense of a curse by an assembly of brāhmaëas, He withdrew His entire dynasty from the surface of the earth.

By Çré Kāñëa's desire, many great sages, headed by Nārada and Viçvämitra, assembled at the holy place named Piëòäraka, near the city of Dvārakä. The young boys of the Yadu family, absorbed in a playful mood, also arrived there. These boys dressed Säm̐ba in the guise of a pregnant woman about to give birth and inquired from the sages about the fruitfulness of Säm̐ba's so-called pregnancy. The sages cursed the mocking boys by saying, "She will give birth to a club that will destroy your family." The Yadus, frightened by this curse, immediately lifted the garment from Säm̐ba's abdomen and found a club. Hurrying to the assembly of Ugrasena, the King of the Yadus, they offered a report of everything that had taken place. Fearing the brāhmaëas' curse, Yaduräja Ugrasena ordered the club ground to powder and thrown into the ocean. Within the ocean, a fish swallowed the last remaining lump of iron, and the waves carried all the bits of ground powder to the shore, where they were implanted and eventually grew into a grove of canes. Fishermen caught the fish, and a hunter named Jarä used the iron lump found in its belly to fashion an arrow. Although the Supersoul, Lord Çré Kāñëa, understood what was happening, He did not wish to do anything to counteract it. Rather, in the form of time He sanctioned these events.

TEXT 1

™alzAuk(ovaAca
k{(tvaA dE"tyavaDaM k{(SNA:
s$ar"AmaAe yaäu"iBava{Rta: BauvaAe'vataAr"yaà"ArM" jaivaiM" janayana, k(ilama,

çré-çuka uväca
kâtvä daitya-vadhaà kãñëau sa-rämo yadubhir vätau bhuvo 'vatärayad bhäraà

javiññaà janayan kalim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çuka said; kātvā—having performed; daitya—of the demons; vadham—the killing; kāññeaù—Lord Kāññea; sa-rāmaù—accompanied by Balarāma; yadubhiù—by the Yadus; vātaù—surrounded; bhuvaù—of the earth; avatārayat—caused to be lessened; bhāram—the burden; javiññham—most sudden, leading to violence; janayan—raising; kalim—a state of quarrel.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: Lord Çré Kāññea, accompanied by Balarāma and surrounded by the Yadu dynasty, executed the killing of many demons. Then, further to remove the burden of the earth, the Lord arranged for the great Battle of Kurukñetra, which suddenly erupted in violence between the Kurus and the Pāñdavas.

PURPORT

The Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam begins with a reference to the pastimes executed by Lord Çré Kāññea in the Tenth Canto. The beginning of the Tenth Canto describes that when the earth was overburdened by demoniac rulers, the personified earth, Bhūmi, approached Lord Brahmā with tears in her eyes, begging for relief, and Brahmā immediately went with the demigods to approach the Supreme Lord in His form of Kñérodakaçyē Viññeu. As the demigods waited respectfully on the shore of the milk ocean, the Supreme Lord announced through Brahmā that He would soon incarnate on earth and that the demigods should also descend to assist in His pastimes. Thus from the very beginning of Lord Kāññea's appearance it was understood that He would descend to the earth to remove the demons.

As Çréla Prabhupāda states in his commentary to Bhagavad-gētā (16.6), those who agree to obey the injunctions of revealed scriptures are known as demigods, whereas those who defy the orders of Vedic scriptures are known as asuras, or demons. The Vedic literatures are presented within the universe for the guidance of the conditioned souls, who are trapped under the three modes of material nature and who are therefore rotating in a continuous cycle of birth and death. By strictly adhering to the Vedic injunctions, we can easily satisfy our material needs and at the same time make tangible progress on the path back home, back to Godhead. Thus we can achieve an eternal life of bliss and knowledge in the Lord's own abode simply by obeying the Lord's instructions as they are presented in Vedic literatures such as Bhagavad-gētā and Çrémad-Bhāgavatam. The demons, however, minimize or even mock the absolute authority of the Supreme Lord and His teachings. Because these asuras envy the sovereign status of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they minimize the importance of the Vedic scriptures, which emanate directly from the breathing of the Lord. The demons establish a society governed by their own concocted whims and inevitably create chaos and misery, especially for pious living entities who sincerely desire to follow the will of God.

Lord Çré Kāñëa states in Bhagavad-gētā that when there is a predominance of such chaotic, irreligious societies on the earth, He personally descends to rectify the imbalance. Thus from the very beginning of His transcendental infancy, Kāñëa systematically killed the powerful asuras, or demons, who were an intolerable burden for the earth. Lord Çré Kāñëa was assisted by His brother, Balarāma, who is also the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Although God is one, He can expand Himself to enjoy in many forms at once. That is His omnipotence. And the first such expansion is Balarāma, or Baladeva. Balarāma killed many noteworthy demons, including Dhenukāsura, Dvidida and the envious Rukmé. Kāñëa was also accompanied by the members of the Yadu dynasty, many of whom were demigods who had descended to assist the Lord.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura, however, has revealed that although many demigods had taken birth in the Yadu dynasty to assist the Lord, some members of the Yadu dynasty were actually inimical toward Kāñëa. Because of their mundane vision of the Lord, they considered themselves to be on the same level as Kāñëa. Having taken birth in the family of the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself, they had inconceivable strength, and thus they misunderstood Kāñëa's supreme position. Having forgotten that Kāñëa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they would constitute a great burden, and consequently it was necessary for Kāñëa to remove them from the earth. There is a popular saying that familiarity breeds contempt. To destroy the contemptuous members of His own dynasty, the Lord caused a quarrel among them. For this purpose, He arranged for Nārada and other sages to display anger against the Kāñëas, the members of His family. Although many Yadus who were devoted to Kāñëa were apparently killed in this fratricidal war, Lord Kāñëa actually returned them to their original positions as universal directors, or demigods. It is the Lord's promise in Bhagavad-gētā that He will always protect those who are favorable to His service.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, in his commentary on this verse, has given a summary of the entire Eleventh Canto as follows. Chapter One describes the beginning of the maññala-lélä, or the prelude to the destruction of the Yadu dynasty. Chapters Two through Five describe the conversations between the nine Yogendras and King Nimi. Chapter Six describes the prayers of Brahmä, Çiva and other residents of heaven. Chapters Seven through Twenty-nine present the conversation between Kāñëa and Uddhava that is known as the Uddhava-gētā. Chapter Thirty describes the withdrawal of the Yadu dynasty from the earth. The final chapter describes the disappearance of Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 2

yae k(AeipataA: s$aubà" paANx"]s$autaA: s$apa¥aEr," äu"âURtahe"lanak(cafaH"NAAid"iBastaAna, k{(tvaA inaimaÔaimatare"tar"ta: s$amaetaAna, h"tvaA na{paAi²ar"h"r"it°aitaBaAr"malzA:

ye kopitäu su-bahu päëòu-sutäu sapatnair durdyüta-helana-kaca-grahaëädibhis tñ kâtvä nimittam itaretarataù sametñ

hatvā nâpân niraharat kñiti-bhāram éçaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ye—they who; kopitāù—were angered; su-bahu—excessively, time and time again; päëòu-sutāù—the sons of Päëòu; sapatnaiù—by their enemies; duù-dyüta—by duplicitous gambling; helana—insults; kaca-grahaëa—grabbing the hair (of Draupadé); ädibhiù—and other impetuses; tân—them (the Päëòavas); kâtvä—making; nimittam—the immediate cause; itara-itarataù—confronting one another on opposite sides; sametân—all assembled; hatvā—killing; nâpân—the kings; niraharat—took away once and for all; kñiti—of the earth; bhāram—the burden; éçaù—the Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Because the sons of Päëòu were enraged by the numerous offenses of their enemies, such as duplicitous gambling, verbal insults, the seizing of Draupadé's hair, and many other cruel transgressions, the Supreme Lord engaged those Päëòavas as the immediate cause to execute His will. On the pretext of the Battle of Kurukñetra, Lord Kâñëa arranged for all the kings who were burdening the earth to assemble with their armies on opposite sides of the battlefield, and when the Lord killed them through the agency of war, the earth was relieved of its burden.

PURPORT

The Päëòavas were repeatedly harassed by their enemies, such as Duryodhana and Duùçäsana. As innocent young princes, the Päëòavas had no enemy, but Duryodhana was constantly plotting against his helpless cousins. The Päëòavas were sent to a house of lac, which was later burned to the ground. They were administered poison, and their chaste wife Draupadé was publicly insulted when her hair was pulled and an attempt was made to strip her naked. Throughout these dangers, Lord Çré Kâñëa constantly protected the Päëòavas, who were fully surrendered to Him and who knew no shelter other than Him.

In this verse the word itaretarataù is significant. Previous to the Battle of Kurukñetra, Kāñëa had personally killed many demons, including Pütanä, Keçé, Aghäsura and Kaàsa. Now, Kāñëa wanted to complete His mission of removing the earth's burden by killing the remaining impious persons. But as stated here, kåtvä nimittam: the Lord did not personally kill, but empowered His devotees Arjuna and the other Pääòavas to remove the impious kings. Thus acting personally and through His immediate expansion Balaräma, as well as by empowering His pure devotees such as the Pääòavas, Kāñëa fully displayed the pastimes of the yugävatära by reestablishing religious principles and ridding the world of demons. Although the general purpose of the Kurukñetra battle was to kill the demons, by Kāñëa's arrangement some great devotees such as Bhéñma also appeared to be inimical toward the Lord. But as described in the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam (1.9.39) by the words *hatä gatäù svarüpa*m, many great devotees played with the Lord as enemies and upon being killed by Kāñëa returned immediately to His abode in the spiritual sky in their original spiritual bodies. Because God is absolute, by His killing He simultaneously removes the demons from the earth and encourages His pure devotees.

TEXT 3

BaUBaAr"r"Ajapa{tanaA yaäu"iBainaRr"sya gAuæaE: svabaAò"iBar"icantayad""amaeya: manyae'vanaenaRnau gAtaAe'pyagAtaM ih" BaArM" yaâAd"vaM ku(lamah"Ae @ivaSa÷maAstae

bhü-bhära-räja-pâtanä yadubhir nirasya guptaiù sva-bāhubhir acintayad aprameyaù manyè 'vaner nanu gato 'py agataà hi bhäraà yad yādavaà kulam aho aviñahyam äste

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhü-bhära—existing as the burden of the earth; räja—of the kings;

pātanāu—the armies; yadubhiu—by the Yadus; nirasya—eliminating; guptaiu—protected; sva-bahubhiu—by His own arms; acintayat—He considered; aprameya—the unfathomable Lord; manye—I think; avaneu—of the earth; nanu—one may say; gatau—it is gone; api—but; agatam—it is not gone; hi—indeed; bhāram—the burden; yat—because; yādavam—of Yadus; kulam—the dynasty; aho—ah; aviñāhyam—intolerable; āste—remains.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead used the Yadu dynasty, which was protected by His own arms, to eliminate the kings who with their armies had been the burden of this earth. Then the unfathomable Lord thought to Himself, "Although some may say that the earth's burden is now gone, in My opinion it is not yet gone, because there still remains the Yādava dynasty itself, whose strength is unbearable for the earth."

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura has remarked in this regard that although ordinary people might think that the Lord had now removed the burden of the earth by killing the demons, reestablishing dharma, and so on, Lord Çré Kāñëa Himself could detect that there was further danger from the irreligious activities of His own family members who were acting improperly. It is stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam that a just king will refuse to punish his own enemy if his enemy is innocent but will punish his own son if his son actually deserves punishment. Thus although in the eyes of the world the members of the Lord's own dynasty are always worshipable, Lord Kāñëa detected that by their intimate association with Him some members of the Yadu dynasty had become indifferent to His will. Since such whimsical members of the Yadu dynasty could act freely, being relatives of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they would surely cause great misfortune for the world, and foolish persons would take such whimsical behavior to be the will of Kāñëa. Thus the Lord, whose desires are inconceivable, began to consider the need to annihilate the indifferent, contemptuous members of the Yadu family.

From the viewpoint of ordinary persons, all the demons had been killed by the Supreme Lord's pastimes in Dvārakā and Mathurā, as well as by the Battle of Kurukṣetra, and the earth was now free of its burden. Nevertheless, to free the earth from the remaining burden of His own puffed-up family members, Lord Ṣré Kāṇḁa transferred them away from the earth by causing a fratricidal quarrel among them. In this way He prepared for His own disappearance from the earth.

Ṣrédhara Svāmé has pointed out that the word bāhubhiù, "by His arms," is used in the plural (rather than the dual) to indicate that the Lord caused the destruction of the Yadu dynasty in His four-armed form. The original form of Kāṇḁa as Govinda is two-armed, but it was by the plenary portion of the four-armed Nārāyaḁa that the Lord killed all the demons on the earth and ultimately removed the burdensome members of His own family. It may be asked, If certain members of the Yadu family had become indifferent to the will of the Lord, why didn't they oppose the Lord in His plan to remove them from the earth? Therefore the word aprameyaù is used, which indicates that it is impossible for anyone, even the Lord's own family members, to understand His will completely.

Ṣréla Jéva Gosvāmé has given another reason for the destruction of the Yadu dynasty. He emphasizes that the activities of the Supreme Personality of Godhead should never be taken to be ordinary material activities. Nor are the Lord's associates ordinary persons. Although Lord Kāṇḁa apparently incarnates within this world for some time and then goes away, it should be understood that the Supreme Lord is eternally situated with His entourage in His various abodes in the spiritual sky, such as Ṣré Gokula, Mathurā and Dvārakā. The members of the Yadu dynasty are eternal associates of the Lord, and therefore they cannot bear to be separated from the Lord. Since Kāṇḁa was preparing to give up His earthly pastimes, if He were to leave the Yadu dynasty on the earth they would surely become so disturbed by His absence that in their highly agitated state of mind they would trample and destroy the earth. Therefore, Kāṇḁa arranged the disappearance of the Yadu dynasty prior to His own disappearance.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé concludes that ultimately the members of the Yadu dynasty are never to be considered irreligious. Vaiñëava äcäryas have mentioned that the story of the disappearance of the Yadu dynasty is especially meant to help the conditioned souls achieve liberation from the bondage of materialistic life. Within the three worlds there were none as powerful and opulent as the Yadu dynasty. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the possessor of unlimited opulences—beauty, strength, knowledge, fame and so on—and the members of the Yadu dynasty, being the personal associates of the Lord, were also endowed with inconceivable opulences. Therefore, when we see how a fratricidal war suddenly deprived the members of the Yadu dynasty of all of their earthly possessions and even their lives, we can understand that there is no permanent position within this material world. In other words, although the members of the Yadu dynasty are eternal associates of the Lord and were immediately transferred to another planet where the Lord was appearing, their sudden disappearance through fratricidal war is meant to impress upon the conditioned souls the temporary nature of this world. Therefore, the apparent indifference or enmity of certain members of the Yadu dynasty toward Kâñëa should not be taken to be actual irreligion on their part. The entire situation was arranged by Lord Kâñëa to teach a lesson to the conditioned souls. In this connection Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has cited several verses from the Bhägavatam to prove that the members of the Yadu dynasty achieved their exalted birth in the Lord's own family by innumerable pious activities and by complete absorption in thought of Lord Kâñëa. In fact it is said that in sleeping, sitting, walking and speaking, they were unable to remember their own selves, because they were simply thinking of Kâñëa.

In the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam (1.15.33), Çréla Prabhupäda has commented as follows on the disappearance of the Yadu dynasty: "The setting of the sun does not mean the end of the sun. It means that the sun is out of our sight. Similarly, the end of the mission of the Lord on a particular planet or universe only means that He is out of our sight. The end of the Yadu dynasty also does not mean that it is annihilated. It disappears along with the Lord, out of our sight."

TEXT 4

naEvaAnyata: pair"BavaAe'sya Bavaetk(TaiÂana, mats$aM™ayasya ivaBavaAeªah"nasya inatyama, @nta: k(ilaM yaäu"ku(lasya ivaDaAya vaeNAustambasya vai¶"imava zAAintamaupaEima DaAma naivänyataù paribhavo 'sya bhavet kathai' cin mat-saàçrayasya vibhavonnahanasya nityam antaù kalià yadu-kulasya vidhäya veëustambasya vahnim iva çäntim upaimi dhäma

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; eva—certainly; anyataù—from another cause; paribhavaù—defeat; asya—of this (dynasty); bhavet—there can be; kathai' cin—by any means; mat-saàçrayasya—which has fully taken shelter of Me; vibhava—with its power; unnahanasya—unrestricted; nityam—always; antaù—within; kalim—a quarrel; yadu-kulasya—the Yadu dynasty; vidhäya—inspiring; veëu-stambasya—of a clump of bamboo plants; vahnim—a fire; iva—as; çäntim—peace; upaimi—I shall achieve; dhäma—My eternal personal abode.

TRANSLATION

Lord Kåñëa thought, "No outside force could ever bring about the defeat of this family, the Yadu dynasty, whose members have always been fully surrendered to Me and are unrestricted in their opulence. But if I inspire a quarrel within the dynasty, that quarrel will act just like a fire created from the friction of bamboo in a grove, and then I shall achieve My real purpose and return to My eternal abode."

PURPORT

Even though Lord Kåñëa wanted to arrange for the disappearance of the members of the Yadu dynasty, He could not personally kill them, as He had killed many demons, because the Yadu dynasty was His own family. One might ask why Lord Kāṇḍa did not arrange for them to be killed by others. Therefore it is stated in this verse, naivānyatau paribhavo 'sya bhavet kathaicit: because the Yadu dynasty was the Lord's own family, no one within the universe was capable of killing them, not even the demigods. In fact, Viṣvanātha Cakravartī Ōhākura points out that no one within the universe was capable of even insulting the members of the Yadu dynasty, what to speak of defeating or killing them. The reason is given here by the words mat-saṅgāyasya. The members of the Yadu dynasty had fully taken shelter of Kāṇḍa, and therefore they were always under the personal protection of the Lord. It is stated, māre kāṇḍa rākhe ke, rākhe kāṇḍa māre ke: If Kāṇḍa protects someone, no one can kill him, and if Kāṇḍa wants to kill someone, no one can save him. Kāṇḍa had originally requested all of His associates, along with the demigods, to appear on the earth to assist Him in His pastimes. Now that His pastimes were coming to an end on this particular planet and would be transferred to another planet in another universe, Kāṇḍa wanted to remove all of His associates from the earth so that in His absence they would not constitute a burden. Since the powerful Yadu dynasty, being the Lord's personal family and army, could not possibly be defeated by anyone, Kāṇḍa arranged an internal quarrel, just as the wind in a bamboo forest sometimes rubs the bamboos together and creates a fire that consumes the entire forest.

Ṣrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī has pointed out that ordinary people, hearing of the adventures of the Yadu family, might think that the heroes of the Yadu dynasty are as worshipable as Kāṇḍa or that they are independent controllers. In other words, people polluted by Māyāvāda philosophy might see the Yadu dynasty as being on the same level as Kāṇḍa. Therefore, to establish that even the most powerful living entity can never equal or surpass the Supreme Lord, Kāṇḍa arranged for the destruction of the Yadu dynasty.

TEXT 5

WvaM vyavais$ataAe r"Ajana, s$atyas$aÆyīpa wRīr":

zAApavyaAjaena iva'aANAAM s$aÃaoēe" svaku(laM ivaBau:

evaà vyavasito rājan satya-saī kalpa éçvaraù çāpa-vyājena viprāëää saī jahre sva-kulaà vibhuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—in this way; vyavasitaù—deciding for certain; rājan—O King; satya-saī kalpaù—whose desire always proves true; éçvaraù—the Supreme Lord; çāpa-vyājena—by the pretext of a curse; viprāëää—of brāhmaëas; saī jahre—withdrew; sva-kulam—His own family; vibhuù—the Almighty.

TRANSLATION

My dear King Parékiit, when the supreme almighty Lord, whose desire always comes to pass, had thus made up His mind, He withdrew His own family on the pretext of a curse spoken by an assembly of brāhmaëas.

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has made a very important comment on this verse. He states that since the intentions of the Supreme Lord, Kāñëacandra, are always perfect, it was certainly in consideration of the greatest benefit for the entire world that He destroyed His own family on the pretext of a curse by brāhmaëas. In this connection, Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has shown a parallel in the pastimes of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is Kāñëa Himself appearing as His own devotee.

Lord Caitanya appeared along with His first plenary expansion, known as Lord Nityānanda Prabhu, and with Lord Advaita Prabhu. All three personalities—Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Nityānanda Prabhu and Advaita Prabhu—are accepted by Vaiñëava ācāryas to be in the category of viñëu-tattva, the full status of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. These three Personalities of Godhead perceived that in the future Their so-called seminal descendants would get undue recognition and thus, being puffed up, would commit grave offenses against those who were actually Vaiñëava gurus or representatives of the Lord.

Every living being is part and parcel of the Supreme Lord, as stated in the Bhagavad-gëtä (mamaivâñçaù). Every living entity is originally a son of God, yet to execute His pastimes the Lord selects certain highly qualified living entities whom He allows to take birth as His personal relatives. But those living entities who appear as descendants of the Lord's personal family may undoubtedly become proud of such a position and thus abuse the great adulation they receive from ordinary people. In this way such persons may artificially get undue attention and divert people from the actual principle of spiritual advancement, which is to surrender to the pure devotee who represents the Lord. The last eight verses (85) of the Twelfth Chapter of Bhagavad-gëtä give a description of the pure devotees the Lord permits to act as äcäryas, or spiritual leaders of mankind. In other words, simply to take birth in the personal family of Kânëa is not the qualification for being a spiritual master, since according to Bhagavad-gëtä, pitäham asya jagataù: every living entity is eternally a member of the Lord's family. Kânëa says in Bhagavad-gëtä, samo 'hañ sarva-bhüteñu na me dveñyo 'sti na priyaù: [Bg. 9.29] "I am equal to everyone. No one is My enemy, and no one is My special friend." If the Supreme Personality of Godhead appears to have a special family, such as the Yadu dynasty, such a so-called family is a special arrangement of the Lord's pastimes in order to attract the conditioned souls. When Kânëa descends, He acts as if He were an ordinary person in order to attract the living entities to His pastimes. Therefore Kânëa acted as though the Yadu dynasty was His personal family, although in fact every living entity is a member of His family.

Ordinary people, however, not understanding the higher principles of spiritual knowledge, easily forget the actual qualifications of a bona fide spiritual master and instead give undue importance to people born in the Lord's so-called family. Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu, therefore, avoided this impediment on the path of spiritual enlightenment by leaving behind no children. Although Caitanya Mahāprabhu married twice, He was childless. Nityānanda Prabhu, who is also the Supreme Personality of Godhead, did not accept any of the natural sons born of His own son, Çré Vêrabhadra. Similarly, Lord Advaita Ācārya divested of His association all of His sons except Acyutānanda and two others. Acyutānanda, the chief faithful son of Advaita Ācārya, had no seminal progeny, and the remaining three of the six sons of Lord Advaita fell from the path of devotion to the Lord and are known as rejected sons. In other words, the appearance of Caitanya Mahāprabhu allowed little facility for continuing a so-called seminal family to create confusion. The respect shown to the conception of seminal lineage in deference to the ideas of the smārtas is unfit to be accepted by one who actually understands the supreme truth from Vedic authority.

Other ācāryas, or spiritual masters, have also demonstrated this point in their own families. His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda, our own beloved spiritual master, who is the mighty author of this Çrémad-Bhāgavatam series, was born in a family of pure devotees, and he himself exhibited all the symptoms of pure devotional service from his very childhood. Çréla Prabhupāda eventually came to the Western countries and exhibited unprecedented spiritual potency in establishing the Kāñëa consciousness movement all over the world. In a few short years, he translated more than fifty large volumes of Vedic philosophy. By his practical activities he is certainly understood to be a most empowered representative of the Lord. Nonetheless, his own family members, although devotees of Kāñëa, did not at all come up to the proper standard of devotional service and are therefore not given attention by the members of ISKCON. The natural tendency for the members of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness would be to offer all reverence and worship to the members of Çréla Prabhupāda's immediate family. But since by Kāñëa's arrangement these family members are not at all on the platform of pure devotional service, the members of ISKCON give them hardly any attention but instead worship those who actually exhibit the qualities of highly advanced Vaiñëavas, regardless of their so-called birth. In other words, birth cannot constitute the qualification for a respectable person, even when one is born in the Lord's own family or in the ācārya's family, what to speak of an ordinary wealthy or learned family.

In India there is a class of men known as nityānanda-vaṅṇa, who claim to be direct descendants of Lord Nityānanda and therefore worthy of the highest respect for their position in devotional service. In this regard, Çrēla Prabhupāda has written in The Nectar of Devotion, "In the Middle Ages, after the disappearance of Lord Caitanya's great associate Lord Nityānanda, a class of priestly persons claimed to be the descendants of Nityānanda, calling themselves the gosvāmī caste. They further claimed that the practice and spreading of devotional service belonged only to their particular class, which was known as nityānanda-vaṅṇa. In this way they exercised their artificial power for some time, until Çrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura, the powerful ācārya of the Gauḍeya Vaiṇēava sampradāya, completely smashed their idea. There was a great hard struggle for some time, but it has turned out successful, and it is now correctly and practically established that devotional service is not restricted to a particular class of men. Besides that, anyone who is engaged in devotional service is already a high-class brāhmaṇa. So Çrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura's struggle for this movement has come out successful. It is on the basis of his position that anyone, from any part of the universe, can become a Gauḍeya Vaiṇēava."

In other words, the essence of spiritual knowledge is that every living being, regardless of his present status in life, is originally a servant of the Supreme Lord, and it is the mission of the Lord to reclaim all of these fallen living entities. Despite his past situation, any living being who is willing to surrender again at the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord or His bona fide representative can purify himself by strictly adhering to the rules and regulations of bhakti-yoga and thus act as a high-class brāhmaṇa. Nonetheless, the seminal descendants of the Lord think themselves to have acquired their ancestor's character and position. Thus the Supreme Lord, who is the well-wisher of the entire universe and especially of His devotees, bewilders the discriminatory power of His own descendants in such a contradictory way that these seminal descendants become recognized as deviant and the actual qualification to be a representative of the Lord, namely unalloyed surrender to the will of Kāñëa, remains prominent.

TEXTS 6-7

svamaUtyaAR laAek(laAvaNyainamauRftyaA laAecanaM na{NAAMA, gAliBaRstaA: smar"taAM icaÔaM padE"staAnal^oataAM i,(yaA:

@AicC$â k(Lita< s$auëAek(AM ivatatya ÷Ãas$aA nau k(AE tamaAe'nayaA tair"Syantaltya, @gAAtsvaM pad"malir":

sva-mürtyä loka-lävaëya-nirmuktyä locanaà nãëäm gérbhis tãu smaratãà cittaà padais tãn ékñatãà kriyãu äcchidya kértià su-çlokãà vitatya hy ai'jasã nu kau tamo 'nayã tariñyantéty agät svaà padam éçvaraù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sva-mürtyä—by His own form; loka—of all the material worlds; lävaëya—the beauty; nirmuktyä—which takes away; locanam—(He attracted) the eyes; nãëäm—of men; gérbhiu—by His words; tãu smaratãm—of those who remembered them; cittam—the mind; padaiu—by His feet; tãn ékñatãm—of those who saw them; kriyãu—the physical activities (walking, etc.); äcchidya—having attracted; kértim—His glories; su-çlokãm—praised by the best verses; vitatya—having spread; hi—certainly; ai'jasã—easily; nu—indeed; kau—upon the earth; tamau—ignorance; anayã—by those (glories); tariñyanti—people will cross over; iti—thus thinking; agät—He obtained; svam padam—His own desired position; ēçvaraù—the Lord.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kâñëa, is the reservoir of all beauty. All beautiful things emanate from Him, and His personal form is so attractive that it steals the eyes away from all other objects, which then seem devoid of beauty in comparison to Him. When Lord Kâñëa was on the earth, He attracted the eyes of all people. When Kâñëa spoke, His words attracted the minds of all who remembered them. By seeing the footsteps of Lord Kâñëa, people became attracted to Him, and thus they wanted to offer their bodily activities to the Lord as His followers. In this way Kâñëa very easily spread His glories, which are sung throughout the world by the most sublime and essential Vedic verses. Lord Kâñëa considered that simply by hearing and chanting those glories, conditioned souls born in the future would cross beyond the darkness of ignorance. Being satisfied with this arrangement, He left for His desired destination.

PURPORT

According to Çrédhara Svämé, these two verses indicate that Lord Kâñëa, having achieved all the purposes for which He had descended, went back to His spiritual kingdom. It is natural that people in the material world hanker to see a beautiful object. In materialistic life, however, our consciousness is polluted by the influence of the three modes of nature, and therefore we hanker for material objects of beauty and pleasure. The materialistic process of sense gratification is imperfect, because the laws of material nature will not allow us to be happy or satisfied in materialistic life. The living entity is constitutionally an eternal servant of God and is meant to appreciate the infinite beauty and pleasure of the Supreme Lord. Lord Kâñëa is the Absolute Truth and the reservoir of all beauty and pleasure. By serving Kâñëa we can also share in His ocean of beauty and pleasure, and thus our desire to see beautiful things and enjoy life will be fully satisfied. The example is given that the hand cannot enjoy food independently but can assimilate it indirectly by giving it to the stomach. Similarly, by serving Lord Kâñëa the living entity, who is part and parcel of the Lord, will derive unlimited happiness.

The inconceivable Supreme Lord, Çré Kâñëa, by displaying His own true form, freed the living entities from falsely seeking forms of beauty other than His form, which is itself the source of all beautiful things. Simply by seeing His lotus feet, fortunate living beings could distinguish between the ungodly endeavors of the karmés, who seek gross enjoyment for their own sense gratification, and the practice of dovetailing one's activities with the service of the Lord. Although philosophers perpetually speculate about the nature of God, Lord Kâñëa directly liberated the jéva souls from all speculative misunderstandings about Him by displaying His actual transcendental form and activities. Superficially, Kâñëa's personal form, words and activities resemble those of ordinary conditioned souls. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura explains that this apparent resemblance between the Lord's activities and those of the living entities is a merciful concession by the Lord so that the conditioned souls will be attracted to Him and become eligible to return to His kingdom for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. By showing His own spiritual form and kingdom to the living entities in a way tangible for them, Lord Kâñëa drove away their false enjoying attitude and removed their long-standing indifference to His personality. As stated in Bhagavad-gétā, if one can understand the position of Çré Kâñëa as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one will never again fall into the network of material illusion. Such a falldown can be avoided if one constantly hears about the unique transcendental form and beauty of the Lord from authorized Vedic literatures.

As explained in Bhagavad-gétā (2.42-43):

yām imāà puñpitāà vācaà pravadanty avipaçcitaù veda-vāda-ratāù pārtha nānyad astēti vādinaù

*kāmātmānaù svarga-parā
janma-karma-phala-pradām*

kriyā-viçeṇā-bahulāḥ
bhogaic̣varya-gatiḥ prati

"Men of small knowledge are very much attached to the flowery words of the Vedas, which recommend various fruitive activities for elevation to heavenly planets, resultant good birth, power, and so forth. Being desirous of sense gratification and opulent life, they say that there is nothing more than this."

On the other hand, certain parts of Vedic literature are specifically meant to award material sense gratification to the conditioned soul and at the same time gradually condition him to obey the Vedic injunctions. The portions of the Vedas that recommend fruitive activities for regulated sense gratification are themselves dangerous, because the living being who engages in such activities becomes easily entangled in the material enjoyment offered and neglects the ultimate purpose of the Vedas. The ultimate purpose of Vedic literature is to bring the living entity back to his original consciousness, in which he acts as an eternal servant of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. By rendering service to the Lord, the living entity can enjoy unlimited spiritual bliss in the association of the Lord in His own kingdom. Thus, one who seriously desires to advance in Kāñēa consciousness should specifically hear the Vedic literature that deals with pure devotional service to the Lord. One should hear from those who are highly advanced in Kāñēa consciousness and avoid interpretations that stimulate materialistic desires for enjoyment.

When the tiny living entity is finally able to see the difference between the temporary affairs of this world and the transcendental activities of Lord Trivikrama, Kāñēa, he devotes himself to the Lord and removes from his heart the dark covering of matter, no longer desiring sense gratification, which is enjoyed under the two headings sin and piety. In other words, although people within this world are considered sinful or pious, on the material platform both sin and piety are performed for one's personal gratification. If one can understand that his real happiness lies in giving pleasure to Kāñēa, Lord Kāñēa takes such a fortunate living being back to His own abode, which is called Goloka Vāndāvana. According to Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura, the Lord first gives a sincere soul the opportunity to hear about His pastimes. When the devotee has advanced in his spontaneous attraction to such narrations, the Lord gives him the opportunity to take part in His spiritual pastimes as they appear within this world. By taking part in the pastimes of the Lord within a particular universe, the living being becomes completely detached from the material world, and ultimately the Lord brings him to His personal abode in the spiritual sky.

Foolish people cannot understand this substantial benefit offered by the Lord, but Lord Kāṇḍa acts for the benefit of such foolish people by saving them from their absorption in the temporary world of false enjoyment. The Lord does this by personally displaying His own superlative transcendental beauty, transcendental words and transcendental activities. Ṣṛēla Jēva Gosvāmē has pointed out that the words tamo 'nayā tariṇyanti indicate that although Lord Kāṇḍa appeared five thousand years ago, one who hears and chants about the activities, form and words of the Lord will get exactly the same benefit as those who personally experienced these things as contemporaries of Lord Kāṇḍa. In other words, he will also cross over the darkness of material existence and achieve the Lord's abode. Thus Ṣṛēla Jēva Gosvāmē concludes that if such an exalted destination is available to all living beings, it must certainly have been awarded to the Yādavas, who were personal associates of the Lord.

It is stated in this verse that by His beauty Kāṇḍa stole away the vision of people who saw Him. Kāṇḍa's speaking was so attractive that those who heard Him became speechless. Since generally those who cannot speak are also deaf, the Lord's words also stole away the ears of those who heard Him, since they were no longer interested in hearing sounds other than the Lord's speaking. By displaying the beauty of His footsteps, Kāṇḍa stole away from those who saw them the power to perform materialistic activities. Thus by His appearance in this world Kāṇḍa took away the senses of mankind. In other words, He made people blind, dumb, deaf, mad and otherwise invalid. Therefore Viṣvanātha Cakravartī Ōhākura asks, "Since He took away everything people possessed, who would properly call Him merciful? Rather, He is just a thief." In this way, he indirectly offers the highest praise to the beauty of the Lord. Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura also points out that although Kāñëa gave liberation to the demons by destroying them, to those who were attracted to Him, Kāñëa gave pure love of God and drowned them in the ocean of His own beauty. Thus Kāñëa is not like a person who gives charity without discrimination. And Kāñëa is so merciful that not only did He give the highest benediction to the inhabitants of the earth, but He empowered great saintly persons such as Vyāsadeva to describe His pastimes with beautiful poetic verses. Thus people born on the earth in the future could easily cross over the ocean of birth and death by those glories, which are compared to a strong boat. In fact, those of us who are now enjoying the glories of Kāñëa through the transparent medium of the Bhaktivedanta purports to Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, by the mercy of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda, are the fortunate recipients of the mercy of Kāñëa, who was merciful even to persons yet to be born.

Quoting from the Amara-koça dictionary, Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté has also stated, padaà vyavasita-trāëa-sthāna-lakñmy-aì ghri-vastuñu: the possible definitions for padam are "that which has been decided," "place of deliverance," "fortune," "foot" or "object." Thus he translates the word padam as also meaning vyavasita, "that which has been decided." In other words, the statement agāt svam padam éçvaraù indicates not only that Kāñëa went to His abode, but that Kāñëa realized His determined desire. If we say that Kāñëa returned to His eternal abode, we imply that Kāñëa had been absent from His abode and was now returning. Therefore, Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura points out that it is incorrect to say in a normal sense that Kāñëa "went back to His abode." According to the Brahma-saàhitā, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, is always present in His eternal abode in the spiritual sky. Yet by His causeless mercy He also manifests Himself from time to time within the material world. In other words, God is all-pervading. Even when present before us He is simultaneously in His abode. The ordinary soul, or jéva, is not all-pervading like the Supersoul, and therefore by his presence in the material world he is absent from the spiritual world. In fact, we are suffering due to that absence from the spiritual world, or Vaikuëha. The Supreme Personality of Godhead, however, is all-pervading, and therefore Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura translates the words agāt svaà padam to mean that Kāñëa achieved exactly what He desired. The Lord is all-pervading and self-sufficient in fulfilling His perfect desires. His appearance and disappearance in this world should never be compared to ordinary material activities.

Viçvanātha Cakravarté has quoted a statement by Uddhava at the beginning of the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (3.2.7) wherein Uddhava compares the disappearance of Lord Kāñëa to the setting of the sun. In his purport to this verse, Çréla Prabhupāda has written, "The comparison of Kāñëa to the sun is very appropriate. As soon as the sun sets, darkness automatically appears. But the darkness experienced by the common man does not affect the sun itself either at the time of sunrise or at sunset. Lord Kāñëa's appearance and disappearance are exactly like that of the sun. He appears and disappears in innumerable universes, and as long as He is present in a particular universe there is all transcendental light in that universe, but the universe from which He passes away is put into darkness. His pastimes, however, are everlasting. The Lord is always present in some universe, just as the sun is present in either the eastern or western hemisphere. The sun is always present either in India or America, but when the sun is present in India the American land is in darkness, and when the sun is present in America the Indian hemisphere is in darkness."

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has quoted a verse from the end of the Eleventh Canto that further clarifies that the abode of the Lord is as eternal as the Lord Himself: "The ocean immediately swallowed Dvārakā, O Mahārāja, taking away the Lord's personal abode, which the Lord had abandoned. The Supreme Lord, Madhusūdāna, is always present in Dvārakā, which merely by being remembered takes away everything unfavorable. It is the most auspicious of auspicious places." (SB 11.31.23-24) Just as the sun appears to be swallowed by the night, Kāñëa or His abode or His dynasty seems to disappear, but actually the Lord and all of His paraphernalia, including His abode and dynasty, are eternal, in the same way as the sun is always in the sky. Çréla Prabhupāda says in this connection, "As the sun appears in the morning and gradually rises to the meridian and then again sets in one hemisphere while simultaneously rising in the other, so Lord Kāñëa's disappearance in one universe and the beginning of His different pastimes in another take place simultaneously. As soon as one pastime is finished here, it is manifested in another universe. And thus His nitya-lēlā, or eternal pastimes, are going on without ending."

TEXT 8

™alr"AjaAevaAca
"aöNyaAnaAM vad"AnyanaAM inatyaM va{Ü"Aepas$aeivanaAma, iva'azAapa: k(TamaBaUä," va{SNAInaAM k{(SNAcaetas$aAma,

çré-rājavāca
brahmaëyānāà vadānyānāà nityaà vāddhopasevinām vipra-çāpaù katham abhūd vāñēnāà kāñēa-cetasām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; brahmaëyānām—of them who were respectful to the brāhmaëas; vadānyānām—charitable; nityam—always; vāddha-upasevinām—engaged in serving elders; vipra-çāpaù—the brāhmaëas' curse; katham—how; abhūt—did it come about; vāñēnām—of the Vāñëis; kāñēa-cetasām—whose minds were totally absorbed in thought of Lord Kāñëa.

TRANSLATION

King Parékñit inquired: How could the brāhmaëas curse the Vāñëis, who were always respectful to the brāhmaëas, charitable, and inclined to serve senior and exalted personalities and whose minds were always fully absorbed in thought of Lord Kāñëa?

PURPORT

Brāhmaëas generally become angry at persons who disrespect the brahminical class, who are uncharitable and who decline to serve senior, respectable personalities. The Vāñëis, however, were not like that, and thus they are described here by King Parékñit as brahmaëyänäm, or sincere followers of brahminical culture. Further, even if the brāhmaëas became angry, why would they curse members of Kāñëa's own family? Since the brāhmaëas were well learned, they must have known that it is offensive to oppose personal associates of the Supreme Lord. The Yadu dynasty is specifically described here as vāñëñäm and kāñëa-cetasām. In other words, they were Lord Kāñëa's own men, and they were always absorbed in thinking of Kāñëa. Therefore, even if somehow or other the brāhmaëas had cursed them, how could that curse have had any effect?

These are the questions of Parékñit Mahārāja.

Although the Vāñëis are described in this verse as kāñëa-cetasām, always absorbed in thinking of Kāñëa, it is clearly indicated that Kāñëa desired that the brāhmaëas become angry and curse the Yadu dynasty. The Supreme Lord desired to remove His personal dynasty from the earth, and therefore uncustomary offensive behavior was exhibited by the young boys of Kāñëa's own family.

It is to be understood from this incident that when a man displays envy and ridicule of devotees of Viñëu, his brahmaëyatä, or high spiritual qualifications, along with his reverence for Çré Kāñëa, are all destroyed. Contempt and ridicule directed toward respectable persons and true brāhmaëas vanquish all good qualities. If there is a break in etiquette toward His devotees, the Supreme Lord will become ill-disposed even to His own relatives and friends and thus arrange to destroy those who oppose His devotees. If foolish persons in the guise of members of Kāñëa's personal family express enmity toward Vaiñëavas, such offenders cannot properly be called offspring of Lord Kāñëa's dynasty. That is the supreme equality of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 9

yai^aaimaÔa: s$a vaE zAApaAe yaAä{"zAAe iã"jas$aÔama k(Tamaek(AtmanaAM Baed" Wtats$ava< vad"sva mae

*yan-nimittaù sa vai çäpo yädâçao dvija-sattama katham ekätmanäà bheda
etat sarvaà vadasva me*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yat-nimittaù—arising by what cause; saù—that; vai—indeed; çäpaù—curse; yädâçau—what kind; dvija-sat-tama—O purest of twice-born brähmaëas; katham—how; eka-ätmanäm—of those who shared the same soul (Çré Kânëa); bhedaù—the disagreement; etat—this; sarvam—all; vadasva—please tell; me—to me.

TRANSLATION

King Parékñit continued inquiring: What was the motive for this curse? What did it consist of, O purest of the twice-born? And how could such a disagreement have arisen among the Yadus, who all shared the same goal of life? Please tell me all these things.

PURPORT

Ekätmanäm means that the Yadus all shared the same opinion, namely that Kânëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, was the goal of their life. Therefore, Parékñit Mahäräja could not see any obvious reason for such a destructive quarrel among the members of the Yadu dynasty, and he was anxious to know the actual cause.

TEXT 10

™albaAd"r"AyaiNAç&vaAca
iba"ã"pau: s$ak(las$aund"r"s$aiªavaezAM k(maARcar"na, Bauiva s$aumaËylamaAæak(Ama: @AsTaAya DaAma r"mamaANA od"Ar"k(L[%ita:
s$aMh"tauR"maEcC$ta ku(laM isTatak{(tyazAeSa:

çré-bādarāyaëir uvāca
bibhrat vapuù sakala-sundara-sanniveçaà karmācaran bhuvi su-maì galam āpta-kāmaù āsthāya dhāma ramamāëa udāra-kéatiù saàhartum aicchata kulaà sthita-kātya-çeñaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bādarāyaëiù—Çukadeva Gosvāmé, the son of Bādarāyaëa; uvāca—said; bibhrat—bearing; vapuù—a divine body; sakala—of all; sundara—beautiful things; sanniveçam—the amalgamation; karma—activities; ācaran—performing; bhuvi—on the earth; su-maì galam—very auspicious; āpta-kāmaù—being satisfied in all His desires; āsthāya—residing; dhāma—in His abode (Dvārakā); ramamāëaù—enjoying life; udāra-kétiù—He whose glories are very magnanimous in themselves; saàhartum—to destroy; aicchata—He wanted; kulam—His dynasty; sthita—there remaining; kātya—of His business; çeñaù—some remnant.

TRANSLATION

Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: The Lord, who bore His body as the amalgamation of everything beautiful, dutifully executed the most auspicious activities while on the earth, although He was, in fact, without any endeavor already satisfied in all desires. Residing in His abode and enjoying life, the Lord, whose glorification is in itself magnanimous, now wanted to annihilate His dynasty, as there still remained some small part of His duty to be carried out.

PURPORT

This verse answers Parékñit Mahārāja's question as to how the powerful members of the Yadu dynasty could be cursed by the brāhmaëas and thus destroy themselves in a fratricidal war. By the words saàhartum aicchata kulam it is clearly stated that Lord Kāñëa Himself desired to withdraw His dynasty and therefore engaged the brāhmaëas as His agent. Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura remarks here that Kāñëa had clearly demonstrated the insurpassable beauty and strength of His personal form, pastimes and pleasures to all the residents of the earth. Thus His incarnation to kill the demons, save the devotees and reestablish religious principles had been completely successful. When Lord Kāñëa noticed that His mission was now complete, everything having been done perfectly, He desired to return to His transcendental abode, along with the Vāñëis. Thus the Lord personally arranged for the Yadu dynasty to be cursed by the brāhmaëas.

According to Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, äpta-kāmaù means that Kāñëa is always self-satisfied, and yet in order to execute His transcendental pastimes He arranged to destroy His own dynasty for three specific purposes, namely, to reestablish in the heavenly planets those demigods who had taken birth among the Yadus to assist Him, to reestablish His plenary Viñëu expansions in Their abodes, such as Vaikuëöha, Çvetadvépa and Badarikāçrama, and to remove Himself from the vision of the material world, along with His eternal associates.

In this connection, Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté has made several important remarks about the destruction of the Yadu dynasty. He states that many so-called religious persons have fallen down by committing the second offense against chanting the holy name, namely viñëau sarveçvareçe tad-itara-sama-dhéù, considering another living entity to be equal to Lord Viñëu, who is the Lord of lords. One who is captured by the impersonal tendency of Mäyävāda philosophy falsely thinks that the external, material energy of the Lord is equal to His internal, spiritual potency. In this way, one equates ordinary living entities with the Supreme Personality of Godhead, taking Kāñëa to be another aspect of mäyā. This is a most unfortunate misconception, for it spoils one's opportunity to understand God as He actually is.

Persons inclined toward this illusory conception of life would undoubtedly consider the members of the Yadu dynasty equal in all respects to Kāṇḍea and worship the future descendants of Kāṇḍea's family as being equal to Kāṇḍea Himself. Thus the continued presence of the Yadu dynasty on the earth would certainly constitute a great impediment on the path of spiritual understanding and a great burden on the earth. To counteract the danger to the world from the offense of equating Viṇḍeu with the family of Viṇḍeu, the Lord decided to crush the Yadu family.

The Supreme Lord, Çré Kāṇḍea, is always affectionate to His devotees, but whenever the familial descendants of Lord Kāṇḍea become inimical or indifferent to Him, not loving His pure devotees or making friendship with His servants, such so-called family members of the Lord become impediments to His will. There is a tangible danger that ignorant living beings will worship such inimical persons, revering them as close associates of Kāṇḍea. For example, to consider Kaṇḍasa the maternal uncle of Kāṇḍea and therefore a faithful servant of Kāṇḍea would be a completely erroneous conclusion. By such a misconception, evil men who oppose the Lord may be accepted as His intimate associates, and persons inimical to Kāṇḍea may be thought of as His surrendered dependents appearing in His own family. The purpose of the destruction of the Yadu dynasty was to eradicate the false logic of the Mâyāvādés who desire to see everything as one in all respects and who therefore improperly reason that the enemies of Kāṇḍea's devotees can be His intimate family members.

TEXTS 11-12

k(maARina pauNyainavah"Aina s$maEÿlaAina gAAyaÀagAtk(ilamalaApah"r"AiNA k{(tvaA k(AlaAtmanaA inavas$ataA yaäu"de"vagAehe" ipaNx"Ar"kM(s$amagAmanmaunayaAe inas$a{í"A: ivaìAimaṭaAe'is$ata: k(NvaAe äu"vaARs$aA Ba{gAur"iËÿr"A: k(zyapaAe vaAmade"vaAe'iṭar," vais$aï"Ae naAr"d"Ad"ya:

karmāni puëya-nivahāni su-maī galāni gāyaj-jagat-kali-malāpaharāëi kâtvā kālātmanā nivasatā yadu-deva-gehe piëòärakaà samagaman munayo nisāñöäü viçvämitro 'sitaù kaëvo durväsä bhâgur aī giräü kaçyapo vāmadevo 'trir vasiñöho nāradādayaü

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

karmāëi—fruitive rituals; puëya—piety; nivahāni—which bestow; su-maī galāni—most auspicious; gāyat—chanting (about which); jagat—for the whole world; kali—of the current, degraded age; mala—the impurities; apaharāëi—which take away; kâtvā—having performed; kāla-ātmanā—by Him who is the very personification of time; nivasatā—residing; yadu-deva—of the lord of the Yadus (King Vasudeva); gehe—in the home; piëòärakam—to the pilgrimage site known as Piëòäraka; sagaman—they went; munayaü—the sages; nisāñöäü—being let out; viçvämitraù asitaù kaëvaü—the sages Viçvämitra, Asita and Kaëva; durväsäù bhâguù aī giräü—Durväsä, Bhâgu and Aī girä; kaçyapaù vāmadevaù atriù—Kaçyapa, Vāmadeva and Atri; vasiñöhaù nārada-ādayaü—Vasiñöha, Nārada and others.

TRANSLATION

The sages Viçvämitra, Asita, Kaëva, Durväsä, Bhâgu, Aī girä, Kaçyapa, Vāmadeva, Atri and Vasiñöha, along with Nārada and others, once performed fruitive rituals that award abundant pious results, bring great happiness and take away the sins of Kali-yuga for the whole world by merely being recounted. The sages duly executed these rituals in the home of the chief of the Yadus, Vasudeva, the father of Lord Kāñëa. After Lord Kāñëa, who was staying in Vasudeva's house as time personified, respectfully sent the sages off at the conclusion of the ceremonies, they went to the holy place called Piëöäraka.

PURPORT

In this verse, Çukadeva Gosvämé begins to narrate the story of the brahminical curse that arose against the Yadu dynasty by the Lord's desire. According to Çrédhara Svämé, certain religious rituals, such as the açvamedha-yajña, generate pious reactions. On the other hand, activities such as caring for one's children give immediate pleasure in the present only, whereas rituals performed as atonement take away sinful reactions. But the religious activities mentioned in verse 11, which are indicated by the words karmäëi puëya-nivahäni su-maì galäni gäyaj-jagat-kali-maläpaharäëi, were pious in all respects. They produced abundant pious results and great joy and were so potent that merely glorifying these rituals relieves one from all the sinful reactions of Kali-yuga.

The sages called to Vasudeva's house to perform such auspicious religious activities were satisfied with proper gifts and then sent by Kânëa to Piëöäraka, a nearby holy place situated about two miles from the Arabian Sea on the coast of Gujarat. Its current name is still Piëöäraka.

Significantly, Lord Kânëa is mentioned here as kälätmanä, the form of time, or the Supersoul. In the Eleventh Chapter of Bhagavad-gētä the Supreme Personality of Godhead reveals Himself to Arjuna as time personified, appearing on the Battlefield of Kurukñetra to destroy all the kings and armies who constitute a burden to the earth. Similarly, kälätmanä nivasatä yadu-deva-gehe: Kânëa was staying in the home of His father Vasudeva as time personified, thus indicating that the time was approaching for the destruction of His own dynasty according to His desire.

TEXTS 13-15

,(Lx"ntastaAnaupa~ajya ku(maAr"A yaäu"nand"naA:

opas$ax.~gA{÷ pa'acC]$, @ivanaltaA ivanaltavata, tae vaeSaiyatvaA ñlvaeSaE:

s$aAmbaM jaAmbavataIs$autama, WSaA pa{cC$ita vaAe iva'aA @ntavaRtnyais$atae°aNAA

'aí]M" ivalaÀatal s$aA°aAta,
'a"aUtaAmaAeGad"zARnaA:
'as$aAeSyantal pauṭak(AmaA ikM(isvats$aĀanaiyaSyaita

krèòantas tñn upavrajya kumärä yadu-nandanäu upasaì gāhya papracchur avinétä vinéta-vat

te veñayitvä stré-veñaiù sämbaà jämbavaté-sutam eñä pācchatī vo viprā antarvatny asitekñāëä

*prañōuà vilajjaté sākñāt prabrütāmogha-darṣanäu prasoñyanté putra-kāmā
kià svit sai janayīñyati*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

krèòantaù—playing; tñn—them (the sages); upavrajya—approaching; kumäräù—the young boys; yadu-nandanäu—the sons of the Yadu dynasty; upasaì gāhya—taking hold of the sages' feet; papracchuù—they asked;
avinétäù—not humble; vinéta-vat—acting as if humble; te—they;
veñayitvä—dressing; stré-veñaiù—in a woman's clothes and ornaments;
sämbam jämbavaté-sutam—Sämba, the son of Jämbavaté; eñä—this woman;
pācchatī—is asking; vaù—you; vipräu—O learned brähmaëas;

antarvatnē—pregnant; asita-ékñānā—black-eyed; prañūm—to ask; vilajjatē—embarrassed; sākñāt—directly herself; prabrūta—please speak; amogha-darṇāṇū—O you whose vision is never bewildered; prasoṇyantē—she who is just about to give birth; putra-kāmā—and desirous of getting a son; kim svit—what indeed (a son or daughter?); sai janayīṇyati—will she give birth to.

TRANSLATION

To that holy place, the young boys of the Yadu dynasty had brought Sāmba, son of Jāmbavatē, dressed in woman's garb. Playfully approaching the great sages gathered there, the boys grabbed hold of the sages' feet and impudently asked them with feigned humility, "O learned brāhmaēas, this black-eyed pregnant woman has something to ask you. She is too embarrassed to inquire for herself. She is just about to give birth and is very desirous of having a son. Since all of you are great sages with infallible vision, please tell us whether her child will be a boy or a girl."

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē has made the following comment: "The impudent behavior of the young Yadus toward the sages headed by Nārada, who were all brāhmaēas and devotees of the Lord, was a display of deviation from the path of Lord Kāṇēa. Similarly, although the prākāta-sahajiyās think of themselves as intimate associates of Kāṇēa, the supremely merciful Lord's determination is perfectly correct in working to finish such false devotees. Such impostors actually never accept real service to Kāṇēa. The yadu-kumāras' deception is termed 'seemingly humble,' meaning that in fact they were anything but humble. Therefore, the ridiculing of Vaiṇēavas by the Lord's family resulted in a great offense against the devotees of the Lord."

A similar incident occurred during the pastimes of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu when His own mother offended Çré Advaita Ācārya. Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu personally rectified this offense against a great Vaiñëava, and thus the Lord showed His magnanimity. Lord Kāñëa's pastime of destroying the Yadu dynasty is also a demonstration of His mercy to His devotees.

Believing the brähmaëas, Vaiñëavas and āñis to be foolishly lacking knowledge in material affairs of sense gratification, the yadu-kumāras dressed Sāmba, the son of Jāmbavatê, as a woman and tried to mock the saintly assembly. Lord Kāñëa wanted to teach that such an offense committed against great devotees by His associate Sāmba would be the cause of the Yadu dynasty's destruction, all as part of His lêlâ.

In modern times such misbehavior has also manifested itself within the Gauḍëya Vaiñëava community. Unauthorized persons have initiated the process of deceitfully bestowing a woman's dress on their followers. This process is to be counted as a variety of aparādha, or offense against Kāñëa. Such an attempt to cheapen and ridicule devotional service to Kāñëa is certainly caused by envy toward the real Vaiñëavas, who are faithfully engaged in devotional service according to the rules and regulations of the Vedic literature. Thus Rūpa Gosvāmë has said:

*çruti-smâti-puräëädi-
paï carätra-vidhià vinä aikäntiké harer bhaktir utpätäyaiva kalpate
[Brs. 1.2.101(86)]*

"If one wants to demonstrate his great devotion to the Supreme Lord but his process of devotional service violates the standard rules of revealed scriptures such as çruti, smâti, Puräëas and Nārada Paï carätra, then his alleged love of Godhead will simply disturb society by misleading people from the auspicious path of spiritual advancement." (Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.2.101) The taking of a woman's clothing by a man in kāñëa-lêlâ was intended to point out this fact. Such an act amounts to cheating and ridicule of the devotees of Kāñëa. Sāmba is a personal associate of the Lord, but acting as a harbinger of the future misfortune to be created in Kali-yuga by bogus followers of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Sāmba displayed this didactic pastime to help the living entities be blessed on the correct path of devotional service.

The boys said to the sages, "O āñis, O brāhmaëas, O Nārada and other great personalities, can you tell us whether it will be a son or a daughter that will be born from this pregnant woman's womb?" By addressing pure Vaiñëavas in this way, they anticipated the fraudulent sampradāyas of the modern age in their practice of sakhé-bheka, or dressing men as female associates of the gopés. This unauthorized activity constitutes contempt and mockery of the pure devotees of the Lord.

Many false yogés, imagining they are distributing first-class devotion on the liberated platform, attempt to award the status of "pure devotee" to candidates totally ignorant of the transcendental tastes of madhura-rati, or the Lord's conjugal love in the spiritual world. Even though they know that the general populace is unfit to imitate the liberated associates of the Lord, they artificially decorate ordinary persons with the ornaments of spiritual perfection, such as tears, a melted heart, and the standing on end of the bodily hairs. Thus these bogus yogés introduce a process that misleads the world. Because Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu understood that the great misfortune caused by such false yogés, or kuyogés, was impossible to forestall in the Kali-yuga, He infected them with insane desires for material objects of lust so that ordinary persons can easily identify such false yogés as deviated from the path of pure devotional service.

The mockery of the brāhmaëas and Vaiñëavas by the young boys of the Yadu dynasty who dressed Sāmba in woman's garb, and the resultant destruction of the Yadu dynasty, conclusively demonstrate the uselessness of the sahajiyā-sampradāyas.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has confirmed that the lack of humility shown by the sons of the Yadu dynasty was an arrangement by the Lord Himself. In other words, the members of the Yadu dynasty are ultimately associates of Lord Kāñëa, and to facilitate the instructive pastimes of the Lord they acted in apparently unethical ways.

TEXT 16

WvaM 'alabDaA maunayas$a, taAnaUcau: ku(ipataA na{pa janaiyaSyaita vaAe mand"A mauSalaM ku(lanaAzAnama,

*evaà pralabdhā munayas tān ūcuù kupitā nāpa janayiṇyati vo mandā
muñalaà kula-nāçanam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; pralabdhāu—tricked; munyayaù—the sages; tān—to those boys; ūcuù—they spoke; kupitāu—angered; nāpa—O King Parékñit; janayiṇyati—she will give birth; vaù—for you; mandāu—O fools; muñalam—to a club; kula-nāçanam—which will destroy the dynasty.

TRANSLATION

Thus ridiculed by deceit, the sages became angry, O King, and told the boys, "Fools! She will bear you an iron club that will destroy your entire dynasty."

PURPORT

The four defects of the conditioned soul, namely the tendency to commit mistakes (bhrama), illusion (pramāda), imperfect senses (karaëäpääava) and the tendency to cheat (vipralipsä), are not found in pure devotees of the Lord. Lord Kāñëa, however, arranged for the young members of His own family, the Yadu dynasty, to exhibit the dangerous lower propensities of mankind. Thus the Yädava boys imitated the activities of the followers of a pseudodevotional cult.

Just before His disappearance, Kāñëa desired that the sages become angry at the young members of the Yadu dynasty, in order to teach that Vaiñëavas cannot be thought of as foolish, ignorant or mundane and to reduce the false pride of His own family members. Sometimes misguided persons assume the roles of pseudodevotees and blaspheme the actual process of pure devotional service and the pure devotees who are surrendered to preaching the mission of the Lord. Such foolish pseudodevotees think that their hatred or envy of the actual preaching mission of the Lord constitutes bhakti, but in fact it constitutes the cause of all trouble both for them and for the unfortunate people who follow them. The preachers of pure devotional service expose the pernicious attempts of pseudodevotees, and similarly the sages headed by Nārada, who were all exalted devotees of the Lord, addressed the young boys of the Yadu dynasty as bewildered fools and told them, "Within this false womb or false dress of a sādhū, a club will take birth that will be the source of your dynasty's destruction."

Especially in India, but now also in the Western countries, there is a class of polluted sense enjoyers who also call themselves Gauḍeya Vaiṣṇavas and pretend to exhibit the highest state of prema-bhakti. They declare that they are on the highest stage of devotion and therefore concerned only with the most intimate affairs of mādhurya-līlā, as exhibited in Vāndāvana. Sometimes they even dress as gopīs, making a false show of entering into the pastimes of Kāṇḍa without actually following the standard regulations. In the name of prema-bhakti, they sometimes commit grievous offenses against the pure devotees of Kāṇḍa. By this incident concerning the iron club from the so-called womb of Sāmba, Lord Kāṇḍa Himself taught the dangerous results of such pseudodevotion.

TEXT 17

tacC_ $tvaA tae'itas$anṭastaA ivamaucya s$ah"s$Aed"r"ma, s$AAmbasya d"ä{"zAustaismana, mauSalaM Kalvayasmayama,

tac chrutvā te 'ti-santrastā vimucya sahasodaram sāmbasya dadāṇus tasmin

muñalaà khalv ayasmayam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—that; çrutvā—having heard; te—they; ati-santrastāu—extremely afraid; vimucya—uncovering; sahasā—hastily; udaram—the belly; sāmbasya—of Sāmba; dadāçuù—they saw; tasmin—within it; muñalam—a club; khalu—indeed; ayaù-mayam—made of iron.

TRANSLATION

Upon hearing the curse of the sages, the terrified boys quickly uncovered the belly of Sāmba, and indeed they observed that therein was an iron club.

PURPORT

Upon hearing the words of the Vaiñëavas, headed by Nārada, the Yadu boys lifted the garment covering Sāmba's abdomen and saw the fruit of the offense they had committed against Vaiñëavas by their deceit: an actual club was there to destroy their dynasty. This example shows that in a polluted society the club of duplicity can never bring the peace found in the society of devotees. Rather, such duplicity smashes all the nondevotional activities and whimsical doctrines of the pseudodevotees. The Yadu boys were wary about jeopardizing their advanced position and indeed had been thinking that as long as they kept their trickery concealed, others would never be able to detect such sophisticated cheating. Nonetheless, they were unable to protect their family from the reaction of their grievous offense against the devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 18

ikM(k{(taM mand"BaAgyaEnaR: ikM(vaid"Syainta naAe janaA:
wita ivaù"ilataA gAeh"Ana,

@Ad"Aya mauSalaM yayau:

*kià kâtaà manda-bhāgyair naù kià vadiñyanti no janäù iti vihvalitā gehän
ädäya muñalaà yayuù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kim—what; kâtam—has been done; manda-bhāgyaiù—who are very unfortunate; naù—by us; kim—what; vadiñyanti—will they say; naù—to us; janäù—the family; iti—thus speaking; vihvalitā—overwhelmed; gehän—to their homes; ädäya—taking; muñalam—the club; yayuù—they went.

TRANSLATION

The young men of the Yadu dynasty said, "Oh, what have we done? We are so unfortunate! What will our family members say to us?" Speaking thus and being very disturbed, they returned to their homes, taking the club with them.

TEXT 19

ta»aAepanalya s$ad"is$a pair"mlaAnamauKai™aya:
r"AÁa @Avaed"yaAM ca,u(: s$avaRyaAd"vas$aiªaDaAE

*tac copanéya sadasi parimlāna-mukha-çriyaù räji a ävedayäà cakruù
sarva-yādava-sannidhau*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—that club; ca—and; upanéya—bringing; sadasi—into the assembly;

parimlāna—completely faded; mukha—of their faces; çréyaù—the beauty; rāji'e—the King; āvedayām cakruù—they informed; sarva-yādava—of all the Yadus; sannidhau—in the presence.

TRANSLATION

The Yadu boys, the luster of their faces completely faded, brought the club into the royal assembly, and in the presence of all the Yādavas they told King Ugrasena what had happened.

PURPORT

Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura points out that the word rāji'e refers to King Ugrasena and not to Çré Kāñëa. Because of their shame and fear, the boys did not approach the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa.

TEXT 20

™autvaAmaAeGaM iva'azAApaM ä{"î"A ca mauSalaM na{pa ivaismataA Bayas$anḥastaA baBaUvauã"ARr"k(AEk(s$a:

çrutvāmoghaà vipra-çāpaà dāñōvā ca muñalaà nāpa vismitā bhaya-santrastā babhūvur dvāraukasaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çrutvā—hearing about; amogham—infallible; vipra-çāpam—the curse of the brāhmaëas; dāñōvā—seeing; ca—and; muñalam—the club; nāpa—O King; vismitāù—amazed; bhaya—with fear; santrastāù—distraught; babhūvuù—they became; dvārakā-okasaù—the inhabitants of Dvārakā.

TRANSLATION

O King Parékñit, when the inhabitants of Dvārakā heard of the infallible curse of the brāhmaëas and saw the club, they were astonished and distraught with fear.

TEXT 21

ta»aUNARiyatvaA mauSalaM yaäu"r"Aja: s$a @Aò"k(:
s$amau"%o"s$ailalae 'aAsyala, laAehM" caAsyaAvazAeiSatama,

*tac cürëayitvä muñalaà yadu-rājaù sa āhukaù samudra-salile prāsyat
lohaà cāsyāvaçeñitam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—that; cürëayitvä—having ground to bits; muñalam—club; yadu-rājaù—the King of the Yadus; saù—he; āhukaù—Āhuka (Ugrasena); samudra—of the ocean; salile—in the water; prāsyat—he threw; loham—the iron; ca—and; asya—of the club; avaçeñitam—the remnant.

TRANSLATION

After having the club ground to bits, King Āhuka [Ugrasena] of the Yadus personally threw the pieces, along with the remaining lump of iron, into the water of the ocean.

PURPORT

King Ugrasena thought, "Sāmba and the others should not feel any shame or fear," and thus without even consulting Çré Kāñëa he ordered the club ground to bits and thrown into the water, along with a small iron lump that remained, which he considered insignificant.

TEXT 22

k(iên matsya Ae' f as $aléa AehM" caUNAARina tar"laEstata:
o÷maAnaAina vaelaAyaAM laçaAnyas$ana, ik(laEr"k(A:

*kaçcin matsyo 'grasél lohaà cürëäni taralais tataù uhyamänäni veläyää
lagnäny äsan kilairakäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kaçcit—a certain; matsyaù—fish; agrasét—swallowed; loham—the iron; cürëäni—the bits of powder; taralaiù—by the waves; tataù—from that place; uhyamänäni—being carried; veläyäm—on the shore; lagnäni—becoming stuck; äsan—they became; kilu—indeed; erakäù—a particular species of grass with long, sharp-edged blades.

TRANSLATION

A certain fish swallowed the iron lump, and the bits of iron, carried back to the shore by the waves, implanted themselves there and grew into tall, sharp canes.

TEXT 23

matsyaAe gA{h"ltaAe matsya£aEr," jaAlaenaAnyasE: s$ah"ANAR"vae tasyaAed"r" gAtaM laAehM"

s$a zAlyae laubDak(Ae'k(r"Aeta, matsyo gâhêto matsya-ghnair jâlenânyaiù sahârêave tasyodara-gataà lohaà

sa çalye lubdhako 'karot

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

matsyaù—the fish; gâhêtaù—being seized; matsya-ghnaiù—by fishermen; jâlena—with a net; anyaiù saha—along with other fish; arêave—within the ocean; tasya—of the fish; udara-gatam—contained in the stomach; loham—lump of iron; saù—he (Jarä); çalye—on his arrow; lubdhakaù—a hunter; akarot—placed.

TRANSLATION

The fish was caught in the ocean along with other fish in a fisherman's net. The iron lump in the fish's stomach was taken by the hunter Jarä, who fixed it as an arrowhead at the end of his shaft.

TEXT 24

BagAvaAna, ÁaAtas$avaARTaR wRìr"Ae'ipa tad"nyaTaA
k(tau< naEcC$îã"azAApaM k(Alaè&pyanvamaAed"ta

bhagavän jî äta-sarvârtha êçvaro 'pi tad-anyathä kartuà naicchad vipra-çäpaà käla-rüpy anvamodata

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhagavän—the Supreme Lord; jî äta—knowing; sarva-arthau—the meaning of everything; éçvaraù—quite capable; api—although; tat-anyathä—otherwise; kartum—to make; na aicchat—He did not desire; vipra-çäpam—the brähmaëas' curse; käla-rüpé—exhibiting His form of time; anvamodata—He gladly sanctioned.

TRANSLATION

Knowing fully the significance of all these events, the Supreme Lord, though capable of reversing the brähmaëas' curse, did not wish to do so. Rather, in His form of time, He gladly sanctioned the events.

PURPORT

Ordinary persons may be surprised or bewildered that the Lord gladly sanctioned the cursing and destruction of His own dynasty. The word anvamodata used here indicates taking pleasure in something, or giving sanction or approval. It is also mentioned, käla-rüpé: Kãñëa gladly gave His sanction to the brähmaëas' curse in the form of time. Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Prabhupäda has commented that the Supreme Lord, Kãñëacandra, decided to maintain the curse intact in order to protect the actual principles of religion and destroy the unbecoming offense of the deceitful members of the Kãñëa dynasty. It is clearly explained in Bhagavad-gétä that the whole purpose of the Lord's descent into the material world is to reestablish the authentic principles of religion by which the conditioned souls who are suffering intensely under the laws of material nature can regain their original existential status as eternally liberated servants of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kãñëa. The living entity comes to this material world with a desire to lord it over material nature, although the living entity is in fact not a lord but an eternal servant. Due to this perverted tendency to exploit the entire world for his sense gratification, the living entity is also prone to try to pervert the principles of spiritual life so that the eternal religious principles become appropriate to his own material sense gratification. Religion, however, is meant for pleasing the Supreme Lord by obeying His laws. And therefore Lord Kãñëa Himself personally comes from time to time to revive and enliven the correct method of devotional service to His lotus feet. In the Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam it is clearly stated that Lord Kāṇḍea had completed the vast majority of His pastimes on the earth and was now making the final arrangements for His departure. Therefore, He wished to leave behind a vivid lesson for the living entities of this age that any so-called religious person, even if he is so exalted as to take birth in the Lord's personal family, cannot violate the respect and reverence which is due to the pure devotees of the Lord, such as Nārada Muni. The principle of serving the pure devotee of Kāṇḍea is so essential for spiritual advancement that the Lord exhibited the inconceivable pastime of causing the destruction of His entire dynasty just to impress this point upon the conditioned souls of Kali-yuga.

Çrémad-Bhāgavatam hints at the great misfortunes that would come after the disappearance of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Such misfortunes also occurred after the disappearance of Lord Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is accepted by Gauḍeya Vaiṇēavas as Kāṇḍea Himself. Through various instructions, the Bhāgavatam provides for eliminating the cheating pseudoreligion that comes forth in human society after the departure of the Lord.

Lord Caitanya, exhibiting His magnanimous pastimes, drove away from South India all the false doctrines of the apasampradāyas, or so-called disciplic traditions of pseudodevotees, who had gained great influence by resorting to the atheistic theories of the Buddhists and Jains. Thus He turned all of India toward the devotional service of Lord Kāṇḍea, so that due to the extensive preaching of Lord Caitanya Mahāprabhu and His followers there remained no topic of discussion in the world other than devotional service to the Supreme Lord. Tridaēōipāda Prabodhānanda Sarasvatē has elaborated on this in his verse strē-putrādi-kathāà jahur viñayīēau.

Çré Narahari Sarakāra Ōhākura, in his book Kāṇḍea-bhajanāmāta, has corrected the improper statements of the gaurāi ga-nāgarē-vādēs, sakhēbhēka-vādēs, and others of the eleven pseudodisciplic chains that claim to follow Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu. These unauthorized persons present cheating in the guise of religion and advertise their duplicity as kathā, or pure worship of the Lord. Just as Kāṇḍea brought about a furious quarrel to destroy His own family, Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu arranged for the world to be flooded by varieties of Māyāvāda and karma-vāda philosophies just after His disappearance. He did this to destroy persons who belonged to the eleven apasampradāyas, or unauthorized disciplic traditions, as well as the many other apasampradāyas that would appear in the future and presume to call themselves devotees of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu or pretend to be descendants in His family line. At the same time, Caitanya Mahāprabhu arranged for His own men to be kept away from the pseudodevotion of these cheaters. The devotees of Lord Gaurasundara, Caitanya Mahāprabhu, can discern the mysteries of His pastimes that manifest in the pastimes of Lord Kāñëa. The activities of the transcendental body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead cannot be understood in any ordinary mundane way. That is the essential meaning of this chapter.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, First Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Curse Upon the Yadu Dynasty."

2. Mahārāja Nimi Meets the Nine Yogendras

In this chapter Nārada gives instructions in bhāgavata-dharma to the faithful and inquisitive Vasudeva by recounting a conversation between Mahārāja Nimi and the nine Yogendras.

Greatly eager to see Lord Kāñëa, Devarñi Nārada resided almost exclusively in Dvārakā. Vasudeva, bewildered by the Lord's illusory potency, had previously offered worship to the Supreme Lord Ananta for the purpose of getting a son, but had failed to worship Him for liberation.

Once Nārada arrived at the home of Vasudeva, who worshiped him according to proper etiquette, greeted him respectfully and requested to hear about pure devotional service, which frees one from all kinds of fear. Nārada praised Vasudeva's fixed intelligence and then related the ancient history of the conversation between the nine Yogendras, who were sons of Lord Āṇabhadeva, and Nimi, the King of Videha.

Svāyambhuva Manu's son was Priyavrata. His son was Āgnédhra, whose son was Nābhi. Lord Āṇabhadeva, the plenary portion of Vāsudeva, incarnated as the son of Nābhi. The oldest of Āṇabhadeva's one hundred sons was Bharata, an exalted devotee of Nārāyaṇa by whose name this earth, previously called Ajanābha-varṇa, became famous as Bhārata-varṇa. Nine other sons of Āṇabhadeva were widely known as the nava-yogendras: Kavi, Havir, Antarekṇa, Prabuddha, Pippalāyana, Āvirhotra, Drumila, Camasa and Karabhājana. They were well versed in knowledge of the self, fixed in their goal and always striving for perfection. Nine other sons of Āṇabhadeva took on the duty of kṇātriyas and became masters of the nine dvēpas comprising Bhārata-varṇa. His other eighty-one sons became brāhmaṇas expert in smṛti doctrines who propagated the path of fruitive sacrifice.

The nine Yogendras, free to move without impediment, traveled everywhere as they wished. They were direct associates of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Madhusūdana, and wandered freely to give protection to the various planets in the universe. The human body can be lost at any moment, but it is still a very rare attainment. Still rarer is to get the association of the confidential devotees of the Lord of Vaikuṇṭha while in this very human body. The association of such saintly persons, even for a fraction of a second, bestows all benefits on a living being. Therefore King Nimi offered the nine Yogendras suitable seats, worshiped them, humbled himself with obeisances and joyfully inquired from them about bhāgavata-dharma. Bhāgavata-dharma, or pure devotional service to the Lord, is the only means of ultimate good fortune for the soul. The Supreme Lord, being pleased by such service, offers His own self to the devotee.

In answer to the King's question, one of the nine Yogendras, Kavi, spoke as follows: "Those means of advancement which are described by the Personality of Godhead Himself and which enable even foolish persons easily to achieve perfect self-realization are called bhāgavata-dharma. This bhāgavata-dharma, manifested as service to the lotus feet of the infallible Supreme Lord, eradicates all fear for the living being. By abiding in bhāgavata-dharma one will never stumble or fall, even while running with both eyes closed. Whatever one does with his body, mind, words, intelligence, consciousness, senses and natural proclivities should all be offered to Lord Nārāyaṇa. Living entities averse to the Lord's lotus feet come under the control of the Lord's illusory energy, māyā. They forget the Lord's identity and are trapped by the illusion of identifying with the temporary body. Under the sway of material attraction, they become greatly fearful. Thus the best thing for them is to surrender their very life energy to a qualified guru and execute worship of the Supreme Lord, the absolute controller of māyā, with pure devotion. Just as by eating one gradually appeases his hunger and with every bite feels more and more satisfied and nourished, a surrendered devotee achieves detachment from all objects other than Kāṇḍa, gains direct personal experience of the Lord and relishes pure love for the Lord, all simultaneously."

Next Havir spoke, describing the different characteristics of first-class, second-class and third-class devotees: "One who offers prescribed worship with faith to the Deity of Lord Viṇḍu but has no devotion for Vaiṇḍavas and things related to Viṇḍu is a materialistic devotee. One who shows love for the Lord, friendship for the Lord's devotees, mercy for the ignorant and indifference for the enemies of Viṇḍu and the Vaiṇḍavas is an intermediate devotee. And one who sees the presence of the Supreme Lord in everything and sees everything within the Lord is the topmost devotee." The first-class devotees are described in eight verses, which conclude by stating that the first-class devotee keeps the Supreme Lord perpetually fastened to his own heart with ropes of affection. Lord Hari never leaves the heart of such a devotee.

TEXT 1

™alzAuk(ovaAca
gAAeivand"BaujagAuæaAyaAM ã"Ar"vatyaAM ku(è&ã"h"

@vaAts$al^aaAr"d"Ae'Bal°NAM k{(SNAAepaAs$analaAlas$a:

çré-çuka uvāca
govinda-bhuja-guptāyā dvāravatyā kurūdvaha avātsén nārado 'bhékñēa kñēopāsana-lālasa

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çuka—Çré Çuka said; govinda—of Lord Govinda; bhuja—by the arms; guptāyā—protected; dvāravatyā—in the capital Dvāravatī; kuru-udvaha—O best of the Kurus; avātsét—dwelled; nārada—Nārada Muni; abhékñēam—constantly; kñēa-upāsana—to engage in the worship of Kñēa; lālasa—who had great eagerness.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: Eager to engage in the worship of Lord Kñēa, O best of the Kurus, Nārada Muni stayed for some time in Dvārakā, which was always protected by the arms of Govinda.

PURPORT

In the Second Chapter of this canto, bhāgavata-dharma, or pure devotional service to Kñēa, is explained by Nārada Muni to Vasudeva, who had inquired with devotion. Nārada Muni cites a conversation between King Nimi and the Jāyanteyas. According to Jēva Gosvāmé, the word abhékñēam indicates that although Nārada Muni was frequently sent by Lord Kñēa here and there for various pastimes, such as inquiring about the affairs of the world, Nārada continuously returned to reside in Dvārakā. The word kñēopāsana-lālasa indicates that Nārada was very eager to be near Kñēa and worship Him. Because of the curse of Dakñā, Nārada is never allowed to live continuously in one place. Çrédhara Svāmé, however, has pointed out, na tasyāṅ çāpādeṁ prabhāvaṁ: in Dvārakā there is no influence of curses or other such evils, because Dvārakā is the abode of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and is always protected by His arms, as shown by the word govinda-bhuja-guptāyām. The conditioned souls are struggling within the kingdom of māyā against the cruel laws of material nature, such as birth, death, old age and disease, but if such conditioned souls have the good fortune to enter the city of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, whether Dvārakā, Mathurā or Vāndāvana, and live there under the direct protection of the omnipotent arms of the Supreme Lord, Kāṇḍa, they will experience the unlimited transcendental bliss of real life, which is eternal and which is meant to be lived in the personal company of God.

TEXT 2

k(Ae nau r"Ajai³ain%"yavaAna, mauku(nd"car"NAAmbaujama, na Bajaets$avaRtaAema{tyaur," opaAsyamamar"AeÔamaE:

ko nu rājann indriyavān mukunda-caraṇāmbujam na bhajet sarvato-mātyur upāśyam amarottamaiḥ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kaḁ—who; nu—indeed; rājan—O King; indriya-vān—possessed of senses; mukunda-caraṇa-ambujam—the lotus feet of Lord Mukunda; na bhajet—would not worship; sarvataḁ-mātyuḁ—being faced by death on all sides; upāśyam—worshipable; amara-uttamaiḁ—by the best of liberated personalities.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, in the material world the conditioned souls are confronted by death at every step of life. Therefore, who among the conditioned souls would not render service to the lotus feet of Lord Mukunda, who is worshipable even for the greatest of liberated souls?

PURPORT

The word indriyavān is significant in this verse. Indriyavān means "possessing senses." Although we are conditioned within the material world, by the mercy of the Supreme Lord we are awarded a human body, which possesses distinct senses, such as the eyes, ears, tongue, nose and skin. Generally the conditioned souls use these senses in a false attempt to exploit the material nature for sense gratification. But our material senses and their objects are temporary, and it is not possible to become peaceful or happy in the attempt to gratify our temporary senses with the temporary sense objects offered by māyā, the illusory energy of the Lord. In fact, our strenuous endeavor to satisfy the material senses inevitably brings exactly the opposite result, namely material suffering. A man is attracted to a woman. Being sexually aroused he marries her, and soon there is a family that requires ever-increasing support. In this way his innocent and simple life is ended, and he spends the major portion of his life working hard like an ass to support the demands of his family. In the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Lord Kapila describes very clearly that in spite of the exhausting work a man performs throughout his life, his family is ultimately dissatisfied, and when the exhausted father reaches old age, the irritated family members look upon him just as farmers look upon an old and useless ox. Sometimes the sons dream of receiving their father's money as an inheritance and secretly wish for him to die. Nowadays people strongly resent the trouble of caring for elderly parents and therefore send them to an institution, where they die lonely and neglected after a life of hard work for their so-called loved ones. One doctor in England is seriously proposing euthanasia for elderly persons who are no longer productive.

Nowadays some people, desiring material sense gratification but hoping to avoid the inconvenience of family life, try to enjoy "free" sexual relations with women, without the trouble of marriage. Through birth control and abortion they eliminate the disturbance of caring for children. In this way they hope to enjoy material sense gratification without any material impediment. By the laws of nature, however, such persons become bound in a network of sinful reactions by avoiding their real duty to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and by thoughtlessly causing violence and suffering to others for increasing their own sense gratification. Caught in a network of impious activities, they drift further and further away from their original pure consciousness and gradually lose all power to understand the laws of nature. Therefore it is stated here, sarvato-mātyuù. Mātyu means "death." Death suddenly appears, startling such confident sense gratifiers, and destroys their entire program of so-called material happiness. Often such persons are afflicted with ghastly diseases and undergo inconceivable suffering, which ends in death. If a sincere well-wisher points these facts out to them, trying to inform them of the reality, they become angry and accuse him of being a pessimist or a religious fanatic. In this way they blindly ignore the laws of nature until these laws inevitably smash them down and drag them out of their fool's paradise. Because of an excessive accumulation of sinful results, they are forced into situations of great distress by the laws of karma. Sinking down into the lower species of life, they lose all awareness of that which lies beyond their gross material senses.

Sometimes a living being is able to understand the miserable result of materialistic sense gratification. Being frustrated by the pain and suffering of materialistic life and being ignorant of any superior life, he adopts a neo-Buddhist philosophy and seeks shelter in so-called nothingness. But there is no actual void within the kingdom of God. The desire to merge into nothingness is a reaction against material pain; it is not a tangible concept of the Supreme. For example, if I feel unbearable pain in my leg and the pain cannot be cured, I may finally agree to have my leg amputated. But it is far better to remove the pain and keep my leg. Similarly, because of false ego we think, "I am everything. I am the most important person. No one is as intelligent as me." Thinking in this way, we suffer constantly and experience intense anxiety. But as soon as we purify the ego by admitting that we are insignificant eternal servants of Kāñëa, our ego will give us great pleasure.

Çré Kâñëa, the Lord of the blissfully variegated spiritual sky, called Vaikuëöha, is always absorbed in transcendental enjoyment. In fact, Çré Kâñëa is the reservoir of all pleasure. People absorbed in materialistic enjoyment are bound by the laws of omnipresent death, but if we endeavor instead to serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead, we can immediately be connected to His hlādiné çakti, or blissful potency. If we serve Kâñëa under the guidance of His authorized representative, the spiritual master, we can immediately get relief from material distress. Then we shall not yearn after nothing, but instead we shall be able to relish unlimited spiritual bliss in the service of the Supreme Lord.

Sarvato-mātyuù also indicates that birth and death occur on every planet in the universe. Therefore our so-called space travel and cosmic consciousness are useless, since there is no eternal life anywhere within the material cosmos. In conclusion, to understand the futility of engaging in the service of anything other than Kâñëa and to engage instead in serving that which is eternal and full of bliss is the highest possible development of intelligence. Although our present intelligence is narrow, being conditioned by the laws of nature, we can create unlimited good fortune for ourselves by taking shelter of the lotus feet of Mukunda, learning to discriminate between that which is temporary and useless and that which is eternal and real.

TEXT 3

tamaek(d"A tau de"vaiSa< vas$au de"vaAe gA{h"AgAtama, @icaRtaM s$auKamaAs$alna, @iBavaAâed"ma“avalta,

*tam ekadā tu devarīiā vasudevo gāhāgatam
 arcitā sukham āśanam abhivādyedam abravēt*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tam—him; ekadā—once; tu—and; deva-āṇim—the sage among the demigods, Nārada; vasudevaṁ—Vasudeva, the father of Lord Kāṇḍea; gāha-āgatam—who had come to his house; arcitam—worshiped with paraphernalia; sukham āsēnam—comfortably seated; abhivādya—respectfully greeting him; idam—this; abravēt—said.

TRANSLATION

One day the sage among the demigods, Nārada, came to the house of Vasudeva. After worshiping Nārada with suitable paraphernalia, seating him comfortably and respectfully bowing down to him, Vasudeva spoke as follows.

TEXT 4

™alvas$auḍeva ovaAca
BagAvana, BavataAe yaAṭaA svastayae s$avaR$de"ih"naAma, k{(paNAAnaAM yaTaA ipaṭaAer," oÔamaëAek(vatmaRnaAma,

çré-vasudeva uvāca
bhagavan bhavato yātrā svastaye sarva-dehinām kāpaëänāṁ yathā pitroṁ uttama-çloka-vartmanām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-vasudevaṁ uvāca—Çré Vasudeva said; bhagavan—O lord; bhavataṁ—of your good self; yātrā—the coming; svastaye—for the benefit; sarva-dehinām—of all embodied beings; kāpaëänām—of the most wretched; yathā—as; pitroṁ—that of a father; uttama-çloka—the Supreme Lord, who is praised by excellent verses; vartmanām—of those who are fixed on the path toward.

TRANSLATION

Çré Vasudeva said: My lord, your visit, like that of a father to his children, is for the benefit of all living beings. You especially help the most wretched among them, as well as those who are advanced on the path toward the Supreme Lord, Uttamaçloka.

PURPORT

Vasudeva herein describes the glories of Nārada Muni. The words kāpaëñāà yathā pitror uttama-çloka-vartmanām are significant. Kāpaëñām refers to the most wretched persons, whereas uttama-çloka-vartmanām refers to the most fortunate, those who are advanced in Kāñëa consciousness. Çrédhara Svāmë has stated, tathā bhagavad-rūpasya bhavato yātrā sarva-dehinām svastaya iti. The word bhagavad-rūpasya indicates that Nārada Muni is an expansion of the Supreme Lord and that his activities therefore bring immense benefit for all living beings. In the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Nārada Muni is described as a manifestation of the mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. There it is stated that Nārada is especially empowered to give instructions in the art of devotional service to Kāñëa. Nārada is especially able to advise the conditioned souls as to how they can dovetail their present activities with the devotional service of Kāñëa without unnecessarily disrupting their present life.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté has defined the word kāpaëa by quoting from the Bāhad-āraëyaka Upaniñad (3.9.10). Etad akñaraà gārgi aviditvāsmāl lokāt praiti sa kāpaëaù: "O daughter of Gargäcārya, he who leaves this world without learning about the infallible Supreme is a kāpaëa, or miser." In other words, we are awarded the human form of life so that we may understand our eternal, blissful relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As indicated in verse 2 of this chapter by the word indriyavān, the human body is specifically awarded so that we may serve the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa. This human form of body is the greatest fortune because the highly evolved intelligence of human life enables us to understand Kāñëa, the Absolute Truth. If we are unable to understand our eternal relationship with God, we shall derive no permanent benefit whatsoever in this present life, nor can we ultimately benefit others. One who receives a great treasure but can neither use it himself nor dedicate it to the happiness of others is called a miser. Therefore, a person who leaves this world without having understood his actual position as servant of God is called a kāpaëa, or miser.

This verse states that Nārada Muni is so empowered in the devotional service of Kāñëa that he can lift even miserly rascals out of their illusion, just as a kind father goes to his child and wakes him from a distressing nightmare. Our present materialistic life is just like a troublesome dream, from which great souls such as Nārada can wake us. Nārada Muni is so powerful that even those already advanced in devotional service to Kāñëa can greatly enhance their spiritual position by hearing his instructions, as they will be given here in the Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam. Therefore Çré Nārada is the guru and father of all living beings, who are originally devotees of the Lord but who are now artificially attempting to enjoy the material world in the material bodies of human beings, animals, and so on.

TEXT 5

BaUtaAnaAM de"vacair"taM äu":KaAya ca s$auKaAya ca s$auKaAyaEva ih" s$ADaUnaAM tvaAä{"zAAmacyautaAtmanaAma,

*bhütänäà deva-caritaà duùkhäya ca sukhäya ca sukhäyaiva hi sädhünäà
 tvädâçäm acyutätmanäm*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhütänäm—of the living beings; deva-caritam—the activities of demigods;

duùkhäya—result in the misery; ca—also; sukhäya—in happiness; ca—as well; sukhäya—in happiness; eva—only; hi—indeed; sādhünām—that of saints; tvādāçām—like you; acyuta—the infallible Supreme Lord; ātmanām—who have accepted as their very soul.

TRANSLATION

The activities of demigods lead to both misery and happiness for living beings, but the activities of great saints like you, who have accepted the infallible Lord as their very soul, result only in the happiness of all beings.

PURPORT

This verse clearly states that the pure devotees of the Lord such as Nārada Muni are saintly persons, to be considered superior even to the demigods, the living beings empowered by the Supreme Lord to administer the entire universe. In Bhagavad-gētā (3.12) it is stated:

iññān bhogān hi vo devā dāsyante yajī a-bhāvitāu tair dattān apradāyaibhyo yo bhuī kte stena eva saù

"The demigods in charge of the various necessities of life, being satisfied by the performance of yajī a [sacrifice], supply all necessities to man. But one who enjoys these gifts without offering them in return to the demigods is certainly a thief." In this connection Çréla Prabhupāda has made the following comment regarding the demigods: "The demigods are empowered administrators of material affairs. The supply of air, light, water and other blessings for maintaining the body and the soul of all living entities are entrusted to the demigods, who are innumerable assistants in the different parts of the body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Their pleasure and displeasure depend on the performance of yajī as by the human being." In other words, by the Lord's arrangement, material prosperity depends upon the satisfaction of the demigods. If the demigods are dissatisfied due to nonperformance or improper performance of sacrifice, they are empowered to impose various types of suffering upon human beings. Usually this suffering takes the form of either excessive or insufficient supply of material necessities. For example, sunshine is necessary for life, but if there is excessive heat or insufficient heat from the sun, we suffer. Excessive or insufficient rain is also a cause of suffering. Thus the demigods bestow either happiness or suffering upon human beings, in accordance with the performance of sacrifice.

As stated here, however, great saintly persons such as Nārada Muni are always merciful to all living beings.

titikñavaù kăruëikăù
suhâdaù sarva-dehinām
ajāta-çatravaù çāntăù
sādhavaù sādhu-bhūñāëăù

"The symptoms of a sādhu are that he is tolerant, merciful and friendly to all living entities, he has no enemies, he is peaceful, he abides by the scriptures, and all his characteristics are sublime." (SB 3.25.21) Çréla Prabhupāda, in his commentary on this verse, has portrayed the sādhu as follows: "A sādhu as described above is a devotee of the Lord. His concern, therefore, is to enlighten people in devotional service to the Lord. That is his mercy. He knows that without devotional service to the Lord, human life is spoiled. A devotee travels all over the country door to door preaching, 'Be Kāñëa conscious. Be a devotee of Lord Kāñëa. Don't spoil your life in simply fulfilling your animal propensities. Human life is meant for self-realization, or Kāñëa consciousness.' These are the preachings of a sādhu. He is not satisfied with his own liberation. He always thinks about others. He is the most compassionate personality toward all the fallen souls. One of his qualifications, therefore, is kăruëika, great mercy to the fallen souls. While engaged in preaching work he has to meet with so many opposing elements, and therefore the sādhu, or devotee of the Lord, has to be very tolerant. Someone may ill-treat him, because the conditioned souls are not prepared to receive the transcendental knowledge of devotional service. They do not like it; that is their disease. The sādhū has the thankless task of impressing upon them the importance of devotional service. Sometimes devotees are personally attacked with violence. Lord Jesus Christ was crucified. Haridāsa Ōhākura was caned in twenty-two marketplaces, and Lord Caitanya's principal assistant, Nityānanda, was violently attacked by Jagāi and Mādhāi. But still they were tolerant because their mission was to deliver the fallen souls. One of the qualifications of a sādhū is that he is very tolerant and is merciful to all fallen souls. He is merciful because he is a well-wisher of all living entities. He is not only a well-wisher of human society, but a well-wisher of animal society as well. It is said here, sarva-dehinām, which indicates all living entities who have accepted material bodies. Not only does a human being have a material body, but other living entities, such as cats and dogs, also have material bodies. The devotee of the Lord is merciful to everyone—the cats, dogs, trees, etc. He treats all living entities in such a way that they can ultimately get salvation from this material entanglement. Çivānanda Sena, one of the disciples of Lord Caitanya, gave liberation to a dog by treating the dog transcendently. There are many instances where a dog got salvation by association with a sādhū, because a sādhū engages in the highest philanthropic activities for the benediction of all living entities. Although the sādhū is not inimical toward anyone, the world is so ungrateful that even a sādhū has many enemies.

"What is the difference between an enemy and a friend? It is a difference in behavior. A sādhū behaves with all conditioned souls for their ultimate relief from material entanglement. Therefore, no one can be more friendly than the sādhū in relieving a conditioned soul. A sādhū is calm, and he quietly and peacefully follows the principles of scripture and at the same time is a devotee of the Lord. One who actually follows the principles of scripture must be a devotee of God because all the çāstras instruct us to obey the orders of the Personality of Godhead. Sādhū, therefore, means a follower of the scriptural injunctions and a devotee of the Lord. All these characteristics are prominent in a devotee. A devotee develops all the good qualities of the demigods, whereas a nondevotee, even though academically qualified, has no actual good qualifications or good characteristics according to the standards of transcendental realization."

Vasudeva, therefore, has used the word sādhū to describe Nārada Muni, indicating that the position of the devotee of the Lord is superior even to that of the demigods.

TEXT 6

Bajainta yae yaTaA de"vaAna, de"vaA @ipa taTaEva taAna, C$Ayaeva k(maRs$aicavaA:
s$SaADavaAe d"lnavats$alaA:

bhajanti ye yathā devān devā api tathāiva tām chāyeva karma-sacivāu sādhavo dēna-vatsalāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhajanti—worship; ye—they who; yathā—in which way; devān—the demigods; devāu—the demigods; api—also; tathā eva—just in that way; tām—them; chāyā—in a shadow; iva—as if; karma—of material work and its reactions; sacivāu—the attendants; sādhavau—saintly persons; dēna-vatsalāu—merciful to the fallen.

TRANSLATION

Those who worship the demigods receive reciprocation from the demigods in a way just corresponding to the offering. The demigods are attendants of karma, like a person's shadow, but *sādhū*s are actually merciful to the fallen.

PURPORT

The words chāyeva karma-sacivāu are significant here. Chāyā means "shadow." The shadow of the body precisely follows the movements of the body. The shadow has no power to move in a way different from the movement of the body. Similarly, as stated here, bhajanti ye yathā devān devā api tathāiva tāt: the results the demigods award to living beings correspond exactly to the living beings' actions. The demigods are empowered by the Lord to follow precisely the particular karma of a living entity in awarding him happiness and distress. Just as a shadow cannot move independently, the demigods cannot punish or reward a living being independently. Although the demigods are millions of times more powerful than the human beings on earth, they are ultimately tiny servants of God whom the Lord allows to play as the controllers of the universe. In the Fourth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Pāthu Mahārāja, an empowered incarnation of the Lord, states that even the demigods are subject to punishment by the Lord if they deviate from His laws. On the other hand, devotees of the Lord such as Nārada Muni, by their potent preaching, can interfere in the karma of a living being by persuading him to give up his fruitive activity and mental speculation and surrender to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In material existence, one works hard under the bondage of ignorance. But if one becomes enlightened by association with a pure devotee of the Lord, one can understand one's actual position as an eternal servant of God. By rendering such service, one dissolves his attachment to the material world and the reactions of his previous activities, and as a surrendered soul he is endowed with unlimited spiritual freedom in the service of the Lord. In this regard, the Brahma-saṁhitā (5.54) states:

yas tv indragopam athavendram aho sva-karma-bandhānurūpa-phala-bhājanam ātanoti karmāṇi nirdahati kintu ca bhakti-bhājā govindam ādi-puruṣaṁ tam ahaṁ bhajāmi

"I adore the primeval Lord, Govinda, who burns to the root all the fruitive activities of those imbued with devotion. For those who walk the path of work—no less for Indra, king of the demigods, than for the tiny insect indragopa—He impartially ordains the due enjoyments of the fruits of activities in accordance with the chain of works previously performed." Even the demigods are bound to the laws of karma, whereas a pure devotee of the Lord, having completely given up the desire for material enjoyment, successfully burns to ashes all traces of karma.

In this regard, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has commented that unless one is engaged as a surrendered soul in the devotional service of the Lord, he cannot actually be considered nīṅkāma, or free from all personal desire. Sometimes a materialistic person will engage in charity or altruistic activities and in this way consider himself a selfless worker. Similarly, those who engage in mental speculation with the ultimate goal of merging into the impersonal Brahman aspect of the Lord also advertise themselves as being selfless or desireless. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté, however, such karmés and jī ānés, while busy in their so-called "selflessness," are in fact servants of lusty desires. In other words, they have not perfectly understood their position as eternal servants of God. The altruistic karmé falsely considers himself the best friend of humanity, although he is unable to give actual benefit to others because he is ignorant of the eternal life of bliss and knowledge beyond the temporary hallucination of material existence. Similarly, although the jī āné proudly declares himself God and invites others to become God also, he neglects to explain how the so-called gods have come to be bound by the laws of material nature. Actually, the attempt to become God is based not on love of God but on the desire to take the same status as God. In other words, the desire to be equal in all respects to the Supreme is simply another materialistic desire. Therefore the karmés and jī ānés, because of their dissatisfaction in artificially trying to fulfill their own desires, can show no actual mercy to the fallen souls. In this regard, Çré Madhvācārya has quoted the Uddāma-saàhitā:

sukham icchanti bhütānāà prāyo duùkhāsahā nāëām tathāpi tebhyaù pravarā devā eva hareù priyāù

"Āñis want happiness for all beings and are almost always incapable of tolerating the unhappiness of men. Nevertheless, the demigods are superior because they are very dear to Lord Hari." But although Çréla Madhvācārya has placed the demigods in a higher position than the merciful āñis, Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has stated, sādhavas tu na karmānugatāu: the sādhus are actually better than the demigods because the sādhus are merciful regardless of the pious or impious acts of the conditioned souls. This apparent disagreement between Madhvācārya and Jēva Gosvāmé is resolved by Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura, who points out that in the statement by Çrēḷa Madhvācārya, the word āñī, or "sage," indicates the so-called sādhus or saintly persons among the karmés and jī ānés. Ordinary fruitive workers and speculative philosophers certainly consider themselves to be at the summit of pious morality and altruism. However, since they are ignorant of the supreme position of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they cannot be considered equal to the demigods, who are all devotees of the Lord and aware that all living beings are eternal servants of the Lord. Even such demigods, however, cannot be compared to the pure devotees such as Nārada. Such pure devotees are empowered to award the highest perfection of life to both pious and impious living beings, who have only to follow the orders of such pure devotees.

TEXT 7

“aöMstaTaAipa pa{cC$AmaAe DamaARna, BaAgAvataAMstava yaAna, TMautvaA TMaÜ"yaA matyaAeR maucyatae s$avaRtaAe BayaAta, brahmaàs tathäpi pācchāmo dharmān bhāgavatāàs tava yān çrutvā çraddhayā martyo mucyate sarvato bhayāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

brahman—O brāhmaëa; tathä api—nevertheless (although I am completely satisfied just by seeing you); pācchāmau—I am inquiring about; dharmān—religious duties; bhāgavatān—which are specifically meant for pleasing the Supreme Lord; tava—from you; yān—which; çrutvā—hearing; çraddhayä—with faith; martyaù—one destined to die; mucyate—he is freed; sarvataù—from all; bhayät—fear.

TRANSLATION

O brähmaëa, although I am satisfied simply by seeing you, I still wish to inquire about those duties which give pleasure to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Any mortal who faithfully hears about them is freed from all kinds of fear.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, Närada Muni might have been reluctant to instruct Vasudeva because of natural respect for Vasudeva's exalted position as the father of Kåñëa. Närada might have thought that since Vasudeva was already perfect in Kåñëa consciousness there was no need to instruct him in the process of devotional service. Therefore, anticipating Närada's possible reluctance, Vasudeva specifically requested Närada to preach to him about devotional service to Kåñëa. This is the symptom of a pure devotee. A pure devotee of Kåñëa never considers himself exalted. To the contrary, he meekly feels that his devotional service is most imperfect but that somehow or other Lord Kåñëa, out of His causeless mercy, is accepting such imperfect service. Caitanya Mahäprabhu has stated in this regard,

*täëäd api sunécena
taror api sahiñëunä
amäninä mänadena
kértanéyaù sadä hariù
[Cc. Ädi 17.31]*

"One can chant the holy name of the Lord in a humble state of mind, feeling himself lower than the straw in the street. One should be more tolerant than a tree, devoid of all sense of false prestige, and ready to offer all respect to others." (Çikñäñöaka 3) The conditioned souls in this material world become falsely proud of their so-called family lineage. This pride is false because one who has taken birth in the material world is in a fallen situation, even in the best of cases. Vasudeva, however, was certainly not fallen, since he had taken birth in the family of Kāṇḍea. Since he was Kāṇḍea's father, his position was most exalted, yet because he was a pure devotee he did not become proud of his special relationship with Kāṇḍea. Instead, considering himself deficient in spiritual understanding, he took advantage of the appearance of Nārada Muni, a great preacher of Kāṇḍea consciousness, by immediately inquiring from him about devotional service. This incomparable humility of a pure devotee of Kāṇḍea is far superior to the false humility of the impersonalist, who actually maintains a desire to be equal to God though adopting the external behavior of a meek and saintly person.

Bhayam, or fear, is caused by seeing something other than Kāṇḍea (dvitēyābhiniveçatau). Everything is actually an emanation from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as stated in Vedānta-sūtra (janmādy asya yatau [SB 1.1.1]) and as confirmed in Bhagavad-gītā (ahaṁ sarvasya prabhavau [Bg. 10.8], vāsudevau sarvam iti, etc. [Bg. 7.19]). Kāṇḍea is the well-wishing friend of every living entity (suhādam sarva-bhūtānām [Bg. 5.29]). If a living being gives up his misguided attempt to defy the Supreme Personality of Godhead and surrenders to the Lord, certainly he becomes confident in his eternal relationship with Kāṇḍea. A surrendered soul can actually experience that Kāṇḍea is his well-wishing friend, and since that friend is the supreme absolute controller of all existence, there is certainly no cause for fear. The son of a rich man certainly feels confident while touring the estate of his father. Similarly, an empowered representative of the government feels confident in the discharge of his duty. In the same way, a devotee of Kāṇḍea, acting as a representative of the Supreme Lord, feels confident because he can understand at every moment that the entire material and spiritual creation is strictly under the control of his benevolent master. The nondevotee, however, denies the supreme position of Kāṇḍea and therefore imagines that something is different from Kāṇḍea. For example, if a servant of the government thinks that there is some dangerous obstacle that cannot be controlled by the government's power, he becomes fearful. If a child feels that there is some power that cannot be subdued by his father, then he becomes fearful. Similarly, because we artificially think that there is something within existence that is not under the strict control of the benevolent Lord, we become fearful. Such a concept of a second thing (something other than Kāñëa) is called dvitēyābhiniveça, and it immediately creates a foreign atmosphere of bhayam, or fear. Kāñëa is called abhayaî kara, which means that He destroys all fear in the heart of His devotee.

Sometimes so-called scholars, distraught after many years of impersonal speculation and enjoyment of materialistic life, become fearful and anxious. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté compares such disturbed philosophers to the bound vulture in the Chāndogya Upaniṣad. Desiring liberation from fear, such speculators unfortunately concoct an imaginary liberation (vimukta-māninaù) and try to take shelter of impersonal spiritual existence or voidness. But the Bhāgavatam (10.2.32) states, āruhya kâcchreëa paraà padaà tataù/ patanty adho 'nâdâta-yuñmad-aî ghrayaù: because such speculators have not rectified their original mistake of rejecting their eternal relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they fall from their concocted liberation and thus remain in a fearful condition. Vasudeva, however, is openly eager to hear more and more about devotional service to Kāñëa, and therefore he states, yân çrutvâ çraddhayâ martyo mucyate sarvato bhayät: simply by hearing about pure devotional service to Kāñëa, a conditioned soul can easily free himself from all types of fear, and this transcendental freedom is certainly eternal.

TEXT 8

@hM" ik(la paur"AnantaM 'ajaATaAeR Bauiva maui-(d"ma, @paUjayaM na maAe°aAya maAeih"taAe de"vamaAyayaA

ahaà kila purānantaà prajārtho bhuvi mukti-dam apūjayaà na mokīāya mohito deva-māyayā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I; kila—indeed; pura—long ago; anantam—the Supreme Lord, who is unlimited; prajā-arthaù—wanting a child; bhuvi—on the earth; mukti-dam—the Lord, who awards liberation; apūjayam—I worshiped; na mokñāya—not for liberation; mohitaù—bewildered; deva-māyayā—by the illusory energy of the Lord.

TRANSLATION

In a previous birth on this earth, I worshiped the Supreme Lord, Ananta, who alone can award liberation, but because I desired to have a child, I did not worship Him for liberation. Thus I was bewildered by the Lord's illusory energy.

PURPORT

According to Çrédhara Svāmé the word kila (meaning "indeed, it is true," "it is said" or "as is well known") indicates that Vasudeva was remembering the words the Lord had spoken to him when the Lord had appeared as four-armed Viñëu in the prison of Kaàsa. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé states that from the anxiety of Vasudeva, which is expressed in this verse by the words apūjayaà na mokñāya mohito deva-māyayā, it is to be discerned that Vasudeva had heard of the curse of the brāhmaëas at Piëðäraka against the Yadu dynasty and that he could understand from this curse that the Lord's disappearance from the earth was imminent. Vasudeva understood that the Lord's manifest pastimes within this universe were coming to an end, and he now lamented that he had not directly taken advantage of the opportunity to worship Kânëa to go back home, back to Godhead.

Significantly, Vasudeva has used the word mukti-dam to describe the Lord. Mukti-dam is a synonym of Mukunda, or that personality who can give liberation from the cycle of birth and death. It is stated in Vedic literature that even the demigods are bound to the cycle of birth and death, although their life span is inconceivably long by earthly calculations. It is the almighty God alone who can free the conditioned soul from the reactions to his previous sinful activities and award him an eternal life of bliss and knowledge.

Vasudeva lamented that he had desired Kāñëa to come to him as a son instead of desiring to go back to Kāñëa, back to Godhead, to serve the Lord in the spiritual sky. Commenting on this incident in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Çréla Prabhupāda has emphasized that we should desire to go back home, back to Godhead, rather than try to bring the Lord to this world as our son. Nor can we artificially imitate the severe penances Vasudeva and Devaké performed for thousands of heavenly years in their previous births as Sutapā and Pāñni. In this connection Çréla Prabhupāda states, "If we want to get the Supreme Personality of Godhead to become one of us in this material world, this requires great penance, but if we want to go back to Kāñëa (tyaktvā dehaà punar janma naiti mām eti so 'rjuna [Bg. 4.9]), we need only understand Him and love Him. Through love only we can very easily go back home, back to Godhead." Çréla Prabhupāda goes on to explain that Caitanya Mahāprabhu freely bestows the benediction of love of Kāñëa, which allows one to return to Kāñëa's abode, through the chanting of the Hare Kāñëa mantra. This chanting process is far more effective in this age than artificial attempts to perform severe penances and austerities. Çréla Prabhupāda concludes, "Therefore, one need not undergo severe penances for many thousands of years. One need only learn how to love Kāñëa and be always engaged in His service (sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaù [Brs. 1.2.234(87)]). Then one can very easily go back home, back to Godhead. Instead of bringing the Lord here for some material purpose, to have a son or whatever else, if we go back home, back to Godhead, our real relationship with the Lord is revealed, and we eternally engage in our eternal relationship. By chanting the Hare Kāñëa mantra, we gradually develop our eternal relationship with the Supreme Person and thus attain the perfection called svarūpa-siddhi(88). We should take advantage of this benediction and go back home, back to Godhead." (SB 10.3.38 purport)

Although Vasudeva and Devaké desired that Kāñëa become their son, it should be understood that they are devotees eternally situated in love of Kāñëa. As stated by the Lord Himself (SB 10.3.39), mohitau devamāyayā:

Vasudeva and Devaké, His pure devotees, were covered by His internal potency. In the Fourth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (4.1.20) the great sage Atri Muni prayed to the Lord, prajāṁ ātma-samāṇa mahyāṇa prayacchatu: "Kindly be pleased to offer me a son exactly like You." Atri Muni said he wanted a son exactly like the Lord, and therefore he was not a pure devotee, because he had a desire to be fulfilled and that desire was material. If he had desired the Supreme Personality of Godhead as his child, he would have been completely free of material desires because he would have wanted the Supreme Absolute Truth, but because he wanted a similar child, his desire was material. Thus Atri Muni cannot be counted among the pure devotees. Vasudeva and Devaké, however, did want the Lord Himself, and therefore they were pure devotees of the Lord. In this verse, therefore, Vasudeva's statement apūjyāṇa na mokṣāya mohito deva-māyayā should be taken to mean that Kāṇḍa's internal potency bewildered Vasudeva so that he would desire Kāṇḍa as his son. This paved the way for the Lord's appearance as the son of His loving devotees.

TEXT 9

yaTaA ivaicaṭavyas$anaAä," Bavaià"ivaRitaAeBayaAta, maucyaema ÷Āas$EvaAÜ"A taTaA na: zAAiDa s$au~ata

yathā vicitra-vyasanād bhavadbhir viçvato-bhayāt mucyema hy ai jasaivāddhā tathā naù çādhi su-vrata

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathā—so that; vicitra-vyasanāt—which is full of various dangers; bhavadbhiù—because of you; viçvataù-bhayāt—(from this material world) which is fearful everywhere; mucyema—I may be liberated; hi—indeed; ai jāsā—easily; eva—even; addhā—directly; tathā—thus; naù—us;

çädhī—please instruct; su-vrata—O you who are always true to your vow.

TRANSLATION

My dear lord, you are always true to your vow. Please instruct me clearly, so that by your mercy I may easily free myself from material existence, which is full of many dangers and keeps us constantly bound in fear.

PURPORT

The word mucyema is significant here. In the previous verse Vasudeva stated that because he had been bewildered by the illusory energy of the Lord he could not achieve from the Supreme Personality of Godhead the boon of liberation. Therefore he is now approaching the pure devotee of the Lord, confident that by the mercy of the Lord's devotee he will certainly achieve liberation from material bondage.

In this connection the words ai'jasä, "easily," and addhä, "directly," are very important. Although foolish persons proudly want to jump up directly to the Supreme Personality of Godhead without accepting His pure devotee as spiritual master, those who are experienced in spiritual science know that by submission and service at the lotus feet of a pure devotee one directly contacts the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In the Çrémad-Bhägavatam (11.17.27) Lord Kåñëa has stated, äcäryaà mäà vijänyän nävamanyeta karhicit. Thus one should understand that the pure devotee of Kåñëa stands on the same spiritual level as the Lord Himself. This does not mean that a pure devotee is also God, but because of his intimate loving connection with the Lord, he is accepted by the Lord as being the Lord's very soul. In other words, Kåñëa is always in the heart of His pure devotee, and the pure devotee is always in the heart of Kåñëa. Although Çré Kåñëa is eternally the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one without a second, the Lord is more pleased to see His pure devotee worshiped. Therefore the Lord says, äcäryaà mäà vijänyät. One must offer the same respect to the Vaiñëava spiritual master as one would offer to the Lord. Therefore as soon as one pleases the Vaiñëava spiritual master, one immediately pleases Kåñëa and makes spiritual advancement. The word ai'jasā means that this bona fide process is the easiest method of achieving spiritual perfection. And because the pure devotee is a transparent medium, the word addhā, "directly," is used, indicating that service rendered to the pure devotee goes directly to the lotus feet of Kāñëa, whereas service one whimsically offers to Kāñëa directly, bypassing the bona fide spiritual master, is not actually accepted and is therefore useless.

Those who actually desire the highest perfection, that of going back home, back to the eternal, blissful kingdom of Kāñëa, should study very carefully the example shown by Çré Vasudeva in these two verses. He indicates that although one cannot achieve liberation by directly worshipping the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one can very easily achieve the perfection of life simply by a moment's association with a pure devotee of Lord Kāñëa such as Nārada Muni, the exalted Vaiñëava saint among the demigods.

According to Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē, the word viçvato-bhayāt indicates that Vasudeva very much feared the curse of the brāhmaëas. As one can become perfect by worshipping the Vaiñëavas, by displeasing the Vaiñëavas one can bring about all misfortune. Thus Vasudeva feared the curse delivered by the brāhmaëas at Piëöäraka-tërtha.

TEXT 10

™alzAuk(ovaAca
r"Aja^aaevaM k{(ta'a'aAe vas$au^ede"vaena DalmataA
'altastamaAh" de"vaiSaRr," h"re": s$aMsmaAir"taAe gAuNAE:

çré-çuka uvāca
rājann evaà kâta-praṇo vasudevena dhēmatā
prētas tam āha devarñir hareù saàsmārīto guëaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; rājan—O King; evam—thus; kāta-praṇaù—questioned; vasudevena—by Vasudeva; dhématā—the intelligent; prētaù—pleased; tam—to him; āha—spoke; deva-āñiù—the sage among the demigods; hareù—of Lord Hari; saàsmāritaù—made to remember; guëaiù—by the qualities.

TRANSLATION

Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: O King, Devarñi Nārada was pleased by the questions of the highly intelligent Vasudeva. Because they suggested the transcendental qualities of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they reminded Nārada of Lord Kāñëa. Thus Nārada replied to Vasudeva as follows.

TEXT 11

™alnaAr"d" ovaAca
s$amyagAetaã"Yavais$ataM BavataA s$aAtvataSaRBa yatpa{cC$s$ae BaAgAvataAna, DamaA<stvaM ivaìBaAvanaAna,

çré-nārada uvāca
samyag etad vyavasitaà bhavatā sātvatariṇabha yat pācchase bhāgavatān dharmāàs tvaà viçva-bhāvanān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-nāradaù uvāca—Nārada Muni said; samyak—correctly; etat—this; vyavasitam—determined; bhavatā—by you; sātвата-āñabha—O best of the Sātвата clan; yat—because; pācchase—you are asking about; bhāgavatān dharmān—duties toward the Supreme Lord; tvam—you; viçva-bhāvanān—which can purify the entire universe.

TRANSLATION

Çré Nārada said: O best of the Sātvatas, you have quite correctly asked about the eternal duty of the living entity toward the Supreme Lord. Such devotional service to the Lord is so potent that its performance can purify the entire universe.

PURPORT

A similar statement was made by Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmī in the first verse of the Second Canto when he congratulated Parékñit Mahārāja for asking about Kāñēa.

varéyān eña te praçnau kāto loka-hitaà nāpa ātmavit-sammatau puàsāà çrotavyādiñu yaù paraù
[SB 2.1.1]

"My dear King, your question is glorious because it is very beneficial to all kinds of people. The answer to this question is the prime subject matter for hearing, and it is approved by all transcendentalists."

Similarly, Çréla Sūta Gosvāmī congratulated the inquiring sages of Naimiñāraēya in the following words:

munayaù sādhu pāñño 'haà bhavadbhir loka-maì galam yat kātāu kāñēa-sampraçno yenātmā suprasēdati

"O sages, I have been justly questioned by you. Your questions are worthy because they relate to Lord Kāñēa and so are of relevance to the world's welfare. Only questions of this sort are capable of completely satisfying the self." (SB 1.2.5)

Nārada will now answer Vasudeva's inquiry about the process of devotional service. Later, at the end of their conversation, he will reply to Vasudeva's comments about Vasudeva's own faulty intentions.

TEXT 12

™autaAe'naupaiQ&taAe DyaAta @Aä{"taAe vaAnaumaAeid"ta:
s$â: paunaAita s$aÜ"maAeR de"vaivaiaû"h"Ae'ipa ih"

çruto 'nupaõhito dhyāta ādāto vānumoditaù sadyaù punāti sad-dharmo deva-viçva-druho 'pi hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çrutaù—heard; anupaõhitaù—subsequently chanted; dhyātaù—meditated on; ādātaù—faithfully accepted; vā—or; anumoditaù—praised when performed by others; sadyaù—immediately; punāti—purifies; sat-dharmaù—pure devotional service; deva—to the demigods; viçva—and to the universe; druhaù—those who are hateful; api hi—even.

TRANSLATION

Pure devotional service rendered to the Supreme Lord is spiritually so potent that simply by hearing about such transcendental service, by chanting its glories in response, by meditating on it, by respectfully and faithfully accepting it, or by praising the devotional service of others, even persons who hate the demigods and all other living beings can be immediately purified.

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has commented that the word sad-dharma refers to bhāgavata-dharma. This is also confirmed by Çrédhara Svāmé. Bhāgavata-dharma is spiritually so powerful that even those who by worldly standards are implicated in various ways in sinful behavior can easily be purified by adopting any of the processes mentioned in this verse. In the practice of ordinary piety, one worships God with the expectation of receiving something in return for one's service. Similarly, the impersonalist aspires for his own liberation, wishfully thinking that he will become equal to God. In bhāgavata-dharma, however, there is no such impurity. Bhāgavata-dharma is devotional service to the Lord in which the only objective is the satisfaction of the Lord. If one rejects this process and instead wants to hear about, teach or meditate upon another process, the chance for immediate purification is lost.

Neither ordinary materialistic yoga processes meant for achieving mystic powers nor impersonal processes based on speculation have the power to purify immediately those who have fallen into sinful behavior. Sad-dharma, or bhāgavata-dharma, pure devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is unique in that even the most fallen souls can immediately rise to the highest perfectional stage by surrendering at the lotus feet of Kāṇēa or His pure devotee. This was vividly demonstrated in the preaching work of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, especially in the case of the sinful brothers Jagāi and Mādhāi.

TEXT 13

tvayaA par"mak(lyAANA:
pauNya™avaNAk(LtaRna:
smaAir"taAe BagAvaAnaâ de"vaAe naAr"AyaNA Ae mama

tvayā parama-kalyāṇaù puṇya-çravaṇa-kīrtanaù

smārīto bhagavān adya devo nārāyaëo mama

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvayä—by you; parama—supremely; kalyäëaù—blissful; puëya—very pious; çravaëa—hearing; kértanaù—and chanting (about whom); smārītaù—brought to memory; bhagavān—the Supreme Lord; adya—today; devaù nārāyaëaù—Lord Nārāyaëa; mama—my.

TRANSLATION

Today you have made me remember my Lord, the supremely blissful Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa. The Supreme Lord is so auspicious that whoever hears and chants about Him becomes completely pious.

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has stated, nārāyaëas tädâça-dharme madéya-guru-rüpo nārāyaëarniù. The word nārāyaëa in this verse refers to the incarnation of Godhead Nārāyaëa Āñi, who acted as Nārada's spiritual master in this dharma. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has also pointed out, smārīta iti kânëopäsanäveçena tasyäpi vismaraëät. The word smārīta, "he is brought back to memory," indicates that because of Nārada's absorption in the worship of Kânëa he had forgotten Lord Nara-Nārāyaëa. In other words, if intense engagement in devotional service makes one sometimes forget the Personality of Godhead, by Kânëa's arrangement such a sincere servitor will again be reminded of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 14

@ṣaApyaud"Ah"r"ntalmama, wītah"As$am paura"Ātanama, @ASaRBaANAAM ca s$amvaAdM" ivade"h"sya mah"Atmana:

*aträpy udäharantémam
itihäsaà purätanam ärñabhäëää ca saävädaà
videhasya mahätmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atra api—in this very matter (of describing bhāgavata-dharma); udāharanti—is given as an example; imam—this; itihāsam—historical account; purātanam—ancient; ärñabhäëäm—of the sons of Āñabha; ca—and; saävādam—the conversation; videhasya—with Janaka, King of Videha; mahā-ātmanaù—who was a great broad-minded soul.

TRANSLATION

To explain the devotional service of the Lord, sages have related the ancient history of the conversation between the great soul King Videha and the sons of Āñabha.

PURPORT

The words itihāsam purātanam, meaning "ancient historical account," are significant here. Çrémad-Bhāgavatam is nigama-kalpa-taror galitam phalam [SB 1.1.3], the ripe fruit of the desire tree of Vedic knowledge. In the pages of the Bhāgavatam we find true historical narrations relating to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the liberation of the conditioned souls. These historical accounts are not fiction or mythology, but describe the wonderful activities of the Lord and His devotees that took place in yugas previous to the advent of this puny age. Although mundane scholars have foolishly tried to depict the Bhāgavatam as a mythological work or a recent creation, the actual fact is that Çrémad-Bhāgavatam is a perfect transcendental literature describing not only the entire situation of this universe but also that which lies far beyond this universe, in both the material and spiritual skies. If one seriously studies the Çrémad-Bhägavatam he becomes the most learned intellectual man. Caitanya Mahāprabhu desires that all pious persons become highly learned by hearing Çrémad-Bhägavatam and then preach the glories of the Lord in a scientific way all over the world. It is essential that we hear these historical narrations, such as the conversation between the nava-yogendras and King Videha, with complete faith and submission. Then, as stated in verse 12 of this chapter, even if our former life is filled with abominable activities, simply by hearing Çrémad-Bhägavatam we shall be promoted to the same transcendental status as the Lord and His pure devotees. This is the extraordinary power of bhägavata history, as contrasted with useless, mundane historical accounts, which ultimately serve no purpose. Although mundane historians justify their work on the plea that we have to learn from history, we can practically see that the world situation is now rapidly deteriorating into unbearable conflict and chaos while so-called historians stand helplessly by. But the bhägavata historians who have faithfully heard Çrémad-Bhägavatam can give perfect and potent instructions for the restoration of a peaceful and blissful world. Therefore those who are inclined to enrich their intellectual life through the study of history should educate themselves in the historical narrations of Çrémad-Bhägavatam. This will bring them the perfection of intellectual and spiritual life.

TEXT 15

i'aya~ataAe naAma s$autaAe manaAe: svaAyamBauvasya ya: tasyaAçal'astataAe naAiBar," [%SaBastats$auta: sma{ta:

priyavrato nāma suto manoù svāyambhuvasya yaù tasyāgnédhras tato nābhir āñabhas tat-sutaù smātaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

priyavratau—Mahārāja Priyavrata; nāma—by name; sutau—the son; manoù svâyambhuvasya—of Svâyambhuva Manu; yaù—who; tasya—his; ägnédhrau—(son was) Ägnédhra; tataù—from him (Ägnédhra); näbhiù—King Nābhi; āñabhaù—Lord Āñabhadeva; tat-sutau—his son; smātaù—is so remembered.

TRANSLATION

Svâyambhuva Manu had a son named Mahārāja Priyavrata, and among Priyavrata's sons was Ägnédhra. From Ägnédhra was born Nābhi, whose son was known as Āñabhadeva.

PURPORT

The genealogical background of the sons of Āñabhadeva is given in this verse.

TEXT 16

tamaAò"vaARs$au"vaAMzAM maAe°aDamaRivava°ayaA @vataINA< s$autazAtaM tasyaAs$alä," "aöpaAr"gAma, tam āhur vāsudevā-aṇṇam mokṇā-dharma-vivakṇayā avatérē-aṇṇam suta-ṇṇam tasyāséd brahma-pāragam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tam—Him; āhuù—they call; vāsudeva-aṇṇam—a plenary expansion of the Supreme Lord, Vāsudeva; mokṇā-dharma—the process of attaining liberation; vivakñayä—with the desire to teach; avatérëam—appeared in this world; suta—sons; çatam—one hundred; tasya—His; äsét—there were; brahma—the Vedas; pära-gam—who perfectly assimilated.

TRANSLATION

Çré Āñabhadeva is accepted as an expansion of the Supreme Lord, Väsudeva. He incarnated in this world to propagate those religious principles that lead living entities to ultimate liberation. He had one hundred sons, all perfect in Vedic knowledge.

TEXT 17

taeSaAM vaE Bar"taAe jyaëi"Ae naAr"AyaNApar"AyaNA: ivaKyaAtaM vaSaRmaetaâna,- naA°aA BaAr"tamaàu"tama, teñäà vai bharato jyeñõho näräyaëa-paräyaëàu vikhyätaà varñam etad yan-nämnä bhäratam adbhutam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

teñäm—of them; vai—indeed; bharatau—Bharata; jyeñõhaù—the oldest; näräyaëa-paräyaëàu—completely devoted to Lord Näräyaëa; vikhyätam—is famous; varñam—the planet; etat—this; yat-nämnä—by whose name; bhāratam—Bhārata-varña; adbhutam—wonderful.

TRANSLATION

Of the one hundred sons of Lord Āñabhadeva, the eldest, Bharata, was completely devoted to Lord Näräyaëa. It is because of Bharata's fame that this planet is now celebrated as the great Bhārata-varña.

TEXT 18

s$a Bau·(BaAegAAM tyaftvaemaAM inagARtastapas$aA h"ir"ma, opaAs$alnastatpad"val%M laeBae vaE jana{naiBaiñiBa:

sa bhukta-bhogāṇ tyaktvemaṇ nirgatas tapasā harim upāsēnas tat-padavēṇ lebhe vai janānabhis tribhiṇ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saṇ—he; bhukta—used up; bhogām—all the pleasures; tyaktvā—rejecting;
imām—of this (earth); nirgataṇ—having left home; tapasā—by austerities;
harim—the Supreme Lord, Hari; upāsēnaṇ—having worshiped;
tat-padavēm—His destination; lebhe—he achieved; vai—indeed;
janmabhiṇ—in births; tribhiṇ—three.

TRANSLATION

King Bharata rejected this material world, considering all types of material pleasure temporary and useless. Leaving his beautiful young wife and family, he worshiped Lord Hari by severe austerities and attained the abode of the Lord after three lifetimes.

PURPORT

The complete narration of the three lives of Bharata—as a king, as a deer and as an exalted paramahaṇsa devotee of the Lord—is given in the Fifth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam.

TEXT 19

taeSaAM nava navaā"lpapatayaAe'sya s$amantata:
k(maRtanṭa'aNAetaAr" Wk(AzAlitaiāR"jaAtaya:

teñāà nava nava-dvépapatayo 'sya samantataù karma-tantra-praëetära ekäçetir dvijätayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

teñām—of them (the one hundred sons of Āñabhadeva); nava—nine; nava-dvépa—of the nine islands (comprising Bhārata-varña); patayaù—the masters; asya—of this varña; samantataù—covering it entirely; karma-tantra—of the path of fruitive Vedic sacrifices; praëetäraù—initiators; ekäçetiù—eighty-one; dvi-jätayaù—twice-born brähmaëas.

TRANSLATION

Nine of the remaining sons of Āñabhadeva became the rulers of the nine islands of Bhārata-varña, and they exercised complete sovereignty over this planet. Eighty-one sons became twice-born brähmaëas and helped initiate the Vedic path of fruitive sacrifices [karma-käëòà].

PURPORT

The nine dvépas, or islands, ruled by nine sons of Āñabhadeva are the nine varñas of Jambüdvépa, namely Bhārata, Kinnara, Hari, Kuru, Hiraëmaya, Ramyaka, Ilävâta, Bhadrâçva and Ketumâla.

TEXTS 20-21

navaABavanmah"ABaAgAA maunayaAe ÷TaRzAMis$ana:

™amaNAA vaAtar"s$anaA @AtmaivaâAivazAAr"d"A:

k(ivahR"ivar"ntar"l°a:
'abauÜ": ipappalaAyana: @Aivah"AeRṭaAe'Ta âu"imalazA, camas$a: k(r"BaAjana:

*navābhavan mahā-bhāgā munayo hy artha-çāṣinau çramaëä vāta-rasanā
ātma-vidyā-viçāradāu
kavir havir antarékñau prabuddhaù pippalāyanaù āvirhotro 'tha drumilaç camasaù karabhājanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nava—nine; abhavan—there were; mahā-bhāgāu—greatly fortunate souls; munayaù—sages; hi—indeed; artha-çāṣinau—engaged in explaining the Absolute Truth; çramaëäu—thus exerting great endeavor; vāta-rasanāu—dressed by the wind (naked); ātma-vidyā—in spiritual science; viçāradāu—learned; kaviù haviù antarékñau—Kavi, Havir and Antarékñā; prabuddhaù pippalāyanaù—Prabuddha and Pippalāyana; āvirhotraù—Āvirhotra; atha—also; drumilaù—Drumila; camasaù karabhājanaù—Camasa and Karabhājana.

TRANSLATION

The nine remaining sons of Āñabha were greatly fortunate sages who worked vigorously to spread knowledge of the Absolute Truth. They wandered about naked and were very well versed in spiritual science. Their names were Kavi, Havir, Antarékñā, Prabuddha, Pippalāyana, Āvirhotra, Drumila, Camasa and Karabhājana.

PURPORT

Nimi, the King of Videha, asked the following nine questions of the nine Yogendras, the saintly sons of Āṇabha. (1) What is the highest good? (Chapter Two, verse 30); (2) What are the religious principles (dharma), natural proclivities (svabhāva), behavior (ācāra), speech (vākya) and outward symptoms (lakṣaṇa) of a bhāgavata, a Vaiṣṇava devotee of the Lord? (2.44); (3) What is the external energy of Viṣṇu, the Supreme Lord? (3.1); (4) How can one become dissociated from this māyā? (3.17); (5) What is the true identity of Brahman? (3.34); (6) What are the three types of karma, namely karma based on the enjoyment of the fruits of work, karma offered to the Supreme Lord, and naiṣkarma? (3.41); (7) What are the various pastimes of the various incarnations of God? (4.1); (8) What is the aim or destination of one who is against the Supreme Lord and devoid of bhakti (in other words, a nondevotee)? (5.1); and (9) What are the respective colors, forms and names of the four yugāvatāras, the four incarnations of the Supreme Lord who appear in the four ages, and what is the process of worshiping each of Them? (5.19).

The transcendental answers to these inquiries were given by the great devotees Kavi, Havir, Antarekṣā, Prabuddha, Pippalāyana, Āvirhotra, Drumila, Camasa and Karabhājana. These nine paramahāṣas answered the nine questions, each in turn, in the following verses: (1) 2.33-43; (2) 2.45-55; (3) 3.3-16; (4) 3.18-33; (5) 3.35-40; (6) 3.43-55; (7) 4.2-23; (8) 5.2-18; and (9) 5.20-42.

TEXT 22

ta Wtae BagAvaāU"paM ivaīM s$ad"s$ad"Atmak(ma, @AtmanaAe'vyaitare"ke(NA pazyantaAe vyacar"nmah"Ima, ta ete bhagavad-rūpaā

*viçvaà sad-asad-ätmakam ätmano 'vyatirekeëa
paçyanto vyacaran mahém*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

te ete—these (nine Yogendras); bhagavat—of the Supreme Lord; rüpam—a form; viçvam—the entire universe; sat-asat-ätmakam—consisting of both gross and subtle objects; ätmanaù—from the self; avyatirekeëa—as nondifferent; paçyantaù—seeing; vyacaran—they wandered; mahém—the earth.

TRANSLATION

These sages wandered the earth seeing the entire universe, with all its gross and subtle objects, as a manifestation of the Supreme Lord and as nondifferent from the self.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, it is clearly demonstrated in this and the following verse that the nine saintly sons of Āṇabhadeva known as the nava-yogendras were situated in the highest stage of spiritual perfection, called pāramahaṣya-caritam, or "having fully developed the character of paramahaṣas." In other words, they were pure devotees of the Lord. According to Çrédhara Svämé and Jéva Gosvämé, the words ätmano 'vyatirekeëa indicate that the nine sages saw the universe as being nondifferent from themselves as well as nondifferent from the Supreme Soul, Lord Kāṇëa. Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has additionally commented, ätmanaù paramätmanaù sakäçäd avyatirekeëa, viçvasya tac-chakti-mayatväd iti bhävaù: "Ätmanaù indicates the Supersoul. This universe is not different from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Paramätmä, since the entire universe is composed of His energy."

Although it is stated here that the cosmic manifestation is nondifferent from both the living entity and the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one should not think that either the living entity or the Supreme Lord is material. A Vedic aphorism states, asaṁ go hy ayaṁ puruṣaḥ: "The living entity and the Supreme Personality of Godhead have nothing to do with the material world." Furthermore, Bhagavad-gītā says that the entire universe, consisting of eight gross and subtle elements, constitutes the bhinnā prakāṭi, or aparā prakāṭi—the separated, inferior energy—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Lord Kāṇḍea clearly states in Bhagavad-gītā that He has eternally established His own abode in the kingdom of God, where life is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge, and that the living entity, being part and parcel of God, is also eternal (mamaivāṁśo jēva-loke jēva-bhūtaḥ sanātanaḥ [Bg. 15.7]). Furthermore, once having gone to that eternal abode of the Lord the living entity never returns to this temporary manifestation (yaṁ prāpya na nivartante tad dhāma paramaṁ mama).

One may therefore ask why the living entity and the Supreme Lord are stated to be nondifferent from the material universe. The question is very nicely answered by Ṣṛēla Nārada Muni in the First Canto of Ṣṛēmad-Bhāgavatam (1.5.20). Idaṁ hi viṣvaṁ bhagavān ivetaro yato jagat-sthāna-nirodha-sambhavaḥ: "The Supreme Lord Personality of Godhead is Himself this cosmos, and still He is aloof from it. From Him only has this cosmic manifestation emanated, in Him it rests, and unto Him it enters after annihilation." Commenting on Nārada's statement, Ṣṛēla Prabhupāda has very nicely explained this delicate philosophical point: "For a pure devotee, the conception of Mukunda, Lord Ṣṛē Kāṇḍea, is both personal and impersonal. The impersonal cosmic situation is also Mukunda because it is the emanation of the energy of Mukunda. For example, a tree is a complete unit, whereas the leaves and branches of the tree are emanated parts and parcels of the tree. The leaves and branches of the tree are also the tree, but the tree itself is neither the leaves nor the branches. The Vedic version that the whole cosmic creation is nothing but Brahman means that since everything is emanating from the Supreme Brahman, nothing is apart from Him. Similarly, the part-and-parcel hands and legs are called the body, but the body as the whole unit is neither the hands nor the legs. The Lord is the transcendental form of eternity, cognition and beauty. And thus the creation of the energy of the Lord appears to be partially eternal, full of knowledge and beautiful also....

"According to the Vedic version, the Lord is naturally fully powerful, and thus His supreme energies are always perfect and identical with Him. Both the spiritual and the material skies and their paraphernalia are emanations of the internal and external energies of the Lord. External energy is comparatively inferior, whereas the internal potency is superior. The superior energy is living force, and therefore she is completely identical [with the Lord], but the external energy, being inert, is partially identical. But both the energies are neither equal to nor greater than the Lord, who is the generator of all energies; such energies are always under His control, exactly as electrical energy, however powerful it may be, is always under the control of the engineer.

"The human being and all other living beings are products of His internal energies. Thus the living being is also identical with the Lord. But he is never equal or superior to the Personality of Godhead."

Çréla Prabhupāda has clearly explained here that both the cosmic manifestation and the living entities are emanations from the Supreme Lord, as confirmed both in Vedānta-sūtra and in the opening statement of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam. Janmādy asya yataù: [SB 1.1.1] "The Absolute Truth is that from which everything emanates." Similarly, the Ēcopaniṣad states:

*oà pürëam adaù pürëam idaà pürëät pürëam udacyate pürëasya pürëam ädäya pürëam evävaçinīyate
[Ēço Invocation]*

The Supreme Lord, the Absolute Truth, is pürëa, or complete in Himself. And since this cosmic world is a manifestation of His potency, it also appears to be pürëa. In other words, because this material world is an emanation from the Supreme Lord, it is nondifferent from Him, exactly as the sun's rays are nondifferent from the sun globe, which is the source of their emanation. Similarly the living beings, who are expansions of the superior, or conscious, energy of the Supreme Lord, are also nondifferent from Kāñēa, although this nondifference is qualitative and not quantitative. The gold found in golden ornaments such as rings and bracelets is qualitatively identical with the gold in a mine, but the gold in the mine is quantitatively far superior to the tiny quantity of gold in a bracelet or ring. Similarly, although we are qualitatively one with God, being spiritual emanations of His unlimited potency, we are quantitatively infinitesimal and eternally subordinate to His supreme power. Therefore the Lord is called vibhu, or infinitely potent, and we are aëu, or infinitesimal and dependent. This is further confirmed in the Vedic literature by the statement nityo nityänäà cetanaç cetanänäm/ eko bahünäà yo vidadhāti kāmān (Kaõha Upaniñad 2.2.13). There are innumerable eternal living entities who are eternally and totally dependent upon the supreme singular living entity, the Supreme Lord. That dependence is not an illusion created by material existence, as stated by the impersonalist philosophers, but is an eternal relationship in which the Lord is eternally superior and we are eternally inferior. The Lord is eternally independent, and we are eternally dependent. The Lord is eternally absolute in Himself, and we are eternally relative to His supreme personality.

Although the Lord is infinitely greater than any other living being, or than all of them combined, every living being is qualitatively nondifferent from the Lord, because all living beings are parts and parcels emanating from Him (mamaiväàço jéva-loke jéva-bhütaù sanātanaù [Bg. 15.7]). Therefore, in one sense, the living entity is also not different from the material cosmic manifestation, which is an inferior sister energy of the Lord. Both the living entity and the material nature are prakāti, or feminine, dependent expansions of the supreme puruñā. The difference is that the living entity is the superior energy of the Lord, because the living entity is conscious and eternal like the Lord, whereas material energy is the inferior energy of the Lord, lacking consciousness and eternal form.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has emphasized in this regard that the absolute substance is one and is called Paramātmā, or the Supersoul. When one has achieved but a partial vision of the Paramātmā, one's understanding of life is called ätma-darçana, or self-realization. And when even this partial understanding is lacking, one's existential condition is called anātma-darçana, or ignorance of the self. In the state of partial realization of the Supersoul, without recognition of the Paramātmā's distinction from the individual soul, the living entity tends to become puffed up by his spiritual achievement, be carried away by mental concoction, and consider himself equal in all respects with God. On the other hand, the living entity situated in anātma-darçana, or material ignorance, feels that he is completely different from the Supreme Lord; and since everyone in this material world is interested in himself, the living entity forgets about God, thinking that God is completely different from him and that there is therefore no substantial relationship between him and God. In this way the impersonal transcendentalists emphasize only the oneness between God and the living entity, whereas the ordinary materialists overemphasize the difference between God and the living entity. But Caitanya Mahāprabhu has clearly revealed that the Ultimate Truth is simultaneous oneness and difference (acintya-bhedābheda-tattva(89)). Actually we are eternally different from God. Because the living entity and God are eternally separate individual entities, there exists the possibility of an eternal relationship. And because every living entity is qualitatively one with the Supreme Lord, that relationship constitutes the essence of the ultimate reality for every living being. As stated in the Caitanya-caritāmāta (Madhya 20.108), jēvera 'svarūpa' haya-kāñēera 'nitya-dāsa.' The ultimate essential identity of every living entity is his relationship with the Supreme Lord as a servitor of the Lord.

If one can understand that he is an eternal servant of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one can correctly understand that both the living entity and the material universe are identical with Kāñēa, being emanations from Him, and that they are therefore nondifferent from each other. Çrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī has stated, "The material world is a manifestation of simultaneous difference and nondifference, and it is a form of the Supreme Lord. Thus the temporary, perishable and ever-changing material world is different from Vaikuṇṭha, the eternal world."

It should be noted that in this verse the word sad-asad-ātmakam, or "made up of gross and subtle objects," does not refer to material and spiritual objects. This universe is stated to be composed of sat and asat, gross and subtle material objects. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté, "The very subtle state within the manifest world is known as 'the unmanifest,' and the realm beyond the manifest world is called 'transcendental.' Within the coverings surrounding the manifest, in the region of the time factor, is the phase of material existence experienced by the controlling deities; in this phase exist the two functions cause (asat) and effect (sat). In the universe, which is a third tattva, or reality (apart from and containing both sat and asat), and which is a form of the Supreme Lord, it is impossible to produce any contradiction to the nondual Absolute Truth." In other words, although ignorant, materialistic scientists may zealously carry out research to find a material principle that can negate or render unnecessary the existence of God, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté clearly states that since the universe is an emanation from the Lord and therefore spiritually identical with Him, there cannot possibly exist anywhere within the universe a material law, principle or phenomenon that in any way contradicts the supremacy of the Personality of Godhead. In fact, the entire universe, along with the spiritual sky, exists as eternal testimony to the unlimited glory of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. With this understanding, the nine Yogendras were traveling about the earth in transcendental bliss.

TEXT 23

@vyaAh"taeí"gaTaya: s$aur"is$aÜ"s$aADyagAnDavaRya⁰anar"ik(^aar"naAgAlaAek(Ana, mau·(Aêr"inta mauinacaAr"NABaUtanaATa-ivaâADar"iã"jagAvaAM BauvanaAina k(Amama, avyähateñña-gatayaù sura-siddha-sādhya-gandharva-yakña-nara-kinnara-nāga-lokān muktāṇ caranti muni-cāraëa-bhūtanātha-vidyādhara-dvija-gaväà bhuvanāni kāmam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

avyähata—unimpeded; iñña-gatayaù—in moving as they please; sura—of the demigods; siddha—perfected mystics; sādhya—Sādhyas; gandharva—heavenly musicians; yakñā—associates of Kuvera; nara—human beings; kinnara—minor demigods who can change their form at will; nāga—and serpents; lokān—the worlds; muktāu—free; caranti—they travel; muni—of the sages; cāraëa—angels; bhūta-nātha—ghostly followers of Lord Çiva; vidyādhara—Vidyādharas; dvija—brāhmaëas; gavām—and of the cows; bhuvanāni—the worlds; kāmam—however they want.

TRANSLATION

The nine Yogendras are liberated souls who travel freely to the planets of the demigods, the perfected mystics, the Sādhyas, the heavenly musicians, the Yakñas, the human beings, and the minor demigods such as the Kinnaras and the serpents. No mundane force can check their free movement, and exactly as they wish they can travel as well to the worlds of the sages, the angels, the ghostly followers of Lord Çiva, the Vidyādharas, the brāhmaëas and the cows.

TEXT 24

ta Wk(d"A inamae: s$āṭama, opajagmauyaRä{"cC$yaA ivataAyamaAnama{iSaiBar," @janaABae mah"Atmana:

*ta ekadā nimeu satram upajagmur yadācchayā vitāyamānam āñibhir
ajanābhe mahātmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

te—they; ekadā—once; nimeu—of King Nimi; satram—the soma sacrifice; upajagmuu—they approached; yadācchayā—as they wished;

vitāyamānam—being carried out; āñibhiù—by sages; ajanābhe—in Ajanābha (the old name for Bhārata-varṇa); mahā-ātmanaù—of the great soul.

TRANSLATION

Once in Ajanābha [the former name of the earth], they came upon the sacrificial performance of the great soul Mahārāja Nimi, which was being carried out under the direction of elevated sages.

TEXT 25

taAnä{"î"A s$aUyaRs$aÆyAzAAna, mah"ABaAgAvataA^aa{pa
yajamaAnaAe'çayaAe iva'aA:
s$avaR WvaAepataisTare"

tān dāñvā sūrya-saì kāçān mahā-bhāgavatān nāpa yajamāno 'gnayo viprāù
sarva evopatasthire

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tān—them; dāñvā—seeing; sūrya—the sun; saì kāçān—who rivaled in brilliance; mahā-bhāgavatān—the pure devotees of the Lord; nāpa—O King (Vasudeva); yajamānaù—the performer of the sacrifice (Nimi Mahārāja); agnayaù—the fires; viprāù—the brāhmaëas; sarve—everyone; eva—even; upatasthire—stood in respect.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, seeing those pure devotees of the Lord, who rival the sun in brilliance, everyone present—the performer of the sacrifice, the brāhmaëas and even the sacrificial fires—stood in respect.

TEXT 26

ivade"h"staAnaiBa'aetya
naAr"AyaNApar"AyaNAAAna,
'alta: s$ampaUjayaAM ca,e( @As$anasTaAna, yaTaAhR"ta:

*videhas tñ abhipretya nārāyāēa-parāyāēñ
prētaù sampūjayāc cakra āsana-sthñ yathārhatāù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

videhaù—Nimi Mahārāja; tñ—them; abhipretya—recognizing;
nārāyāēa-parāyāēñ—as devotees whose only goal was Nārāyāēa;
prētaù—satisfied; sampūjayām cakra—he fully worshiped them;
āsana-sthñ—who had been seated; yathā-arhatāù—as they deserved.

TRANSLATION

King Videha [Nimi] understood that the nine sages were exalted devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore, overjoyed at their auspicious arrival, he offered them suitable sitting places and worshiped them in a proper way, just as one would worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

The word yathārhatāù is significant here. According to Viçvanātha Cakravartē the word yathārhatāù means yathocitam, or "according to the proper etiquette." It is clearly mentioned here that the nava-yogendras are nārāyāēa-parāyāēñ, exalted devotees of the Supreme Lord, Nārāyāēa, or Kāñēa. Therefore, the word yathārhatāù indicates that the King worshiped the nine sages according to the standard Vaiñēava etiquette. The etiquette for worshiping exalted Vaiñēavas is expressed by Viçvanātha Cakravartē Öhäkura with the words säkñäd-dharitvena samasta-çästraiù: an exalted Vaiñëava, being totally surrendered to the will of the Supreme Lord, is taken to be a transparent medium for the Lord's will. In the Caitanya-caritämåta it is stated that even by a moment's association with the pure devotees of the Lord one can achieve all perfection in life. Therefore, as indicated by the word prëtaù, King Nimi was overjoyed by the auspicious arrival of the sages, and therefore he worshiped them just as one would worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Although impersonalist philosophers claim that every living entity is equal to God, they callously step over the heads of their so-called spiritual masters and freely speculate on the nature of the Absolute, giving their own whimsical opinions in defiance of the impersonal whims of their so-called gurus. In other words, although Mäyävädë impersonalists claim that everyone is God, they ultimately show an offensive mentality toward the Supreme Personality of Godhead in rejecting the reality of His eternal form and pastimes. Thus, they unwittingly belittle the eternal position of all living beings by denying their eternal personality and activities in the kingdom of God. The impersonalists, through their mental concoctions, try to minimize the position of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the living entities who are part of Him, reducing them theoretically to a formless, nameless light, which by their concoction they claim to be the Absolute God. The Vaiñëavas, however, welcome the Supreme Personality of Godhead and easily understand that the unlimited Supreme Personality has nothing to do with the conditioned, limited, mundane personalities we find in the material world. The impersonalists arrogantly assume that there could not be any transcendental or unlimited personality beyond our present experience. But the Vaiñëavas intelligently understand that there are many wonderful things far beyond our limited experience. Therefore they accept the words of Kñëä, who states in Bhagavad-gëtä (15.19):

*yo mäm evam asammüòho
jänäti puruñottamam
sa sarva-vid bhajati mää sarva-bhävena bhärata*

"Whoever knows Me as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, without doubting, is the knower of everything, and he therefore engages himself in full devotional service, O son of Bharata." In this connection Çrëla Prabhupäda states, "There are many philosophical speculations about the constitutional position of the living entities and the Supreme Absolute Truth. Now in this verse the Supreme Personality of Godhead clearly explains that anyone who knows Lord Kânëa as the Supreme Person is actually the knower of everything. The imperfect knower goes on simply speculating about the Absolute Truth, but the perfect knower, without wasting his valuable time, engages directly in Kânëa consciousness, the devotional service of the Supreme Lord.... It is not that one should simply speculate academically. One should submissively hear from Bhagavad-gëtä that these living entities are always subordinate to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Anyone who is able to understand this, according to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Çré Kânëa, knows the purpose of the Vedas; no one else knows the purpose of the Vedas." Therefore, exalted devotees such as the nine Yogendras always accept the supremacy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as expressed here by the word näräyaëa-paräyaëän.

King Nimi was a Vaiñëava, and therefore he worshiped the great sages with the same respect with which he would worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as shown by the word yathärhataù. Although impersonalists falsely claim that every living entity is equal to God, they cannot properly respect any living being, because of their original offense at the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality. Their so-called worship, even of their own gurus, is ultimately self-serving and opportunistic. When an impersonalist imagines that he has become God, he has no further need for his so-called guru. The Vaiñëava, however, because he accepts the supremacy of the eternal Personality of Godhead, is ready and willing to offer eternal respect to all living beings, especially to those most fortunate living beings who have achieved shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord. A Vaiñëava's worship of the Lord's representative is not self-serving or opportunistic, but is an expression of eternal love for the Lord and His representatives, as indicated here by the word prëtaù. Therefore it is clear from this verse that not only the nine exalted sons of Āṇabhadeva but also King Nimi himself were all great devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, in defiance of the artificial and limited concept of impersonalism.

TEXT 27

taAna, r"AecamaAnaAna, svaç&caA
"aöpauṭaAepamaA^aava pa'acC$ par"ma'alta:
'aTMayaAvanataAe na{pa:

tān rocamānān sva-rucā brahma-putropamān nava papraccha parama-prētaù praçrayāvanato nāpaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tān—them; rocamānān—glowing; sva-rucā—by their own effulgence; brahma-putra-upamān—just like the sons of Brahmā; nava—nine; papraccha—he asked; parama-prētaù—transcendentally overjoyed; praçraya—with humility; avanataù—bowed down; nāpaù—the King.

TRANSLATION

Overwhelmed by transcendental joy, the King humbly bowed his head and then proceeded to question the nine sages. These nine great souls glowed with their own effulgence and thus appeared equal to the four Kumāras, the sons of Lord Brahmā.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has pointed out that the word sva-rucā indicates that the nava-yogendras glowed from their own spiritual effulgence and not due to their ornaments or any other cause. The Supreme Soul, Lord Kāñëa, is the original source of all light. His brilliantly glowing body is the source of the all-pervading brahma-jyotir, the immeasurable spiritual light that is the resting place of innumerable universes (yasya prabhā prabhavato jagad-aëòà-koïi [Bs. 5.40]). The individual soul, being part and parcel of the Lord, is also self-effulgent. In fact, everything in the kingdom of God is self-effulgent, as described in Bhagavad-gétä (15.6):

na tad bhäsayate süryo na çaçai ko na pävakaù yad gatvä na nivartante tad dhäma paramaà mama

It has already been described in many ways that the nava-yogendras were pure devotees of the Lord. Being completely Kânëa conscious souls, they naturally radiated the intense effulgence of the soul, as indicated here by the word sva-rucä. Çréla Çrédhara Svämé has also pointed out that the word brahma-putropamän, meaning "equal to the sons of Brahmä," indicates that the nava-yogendras were on the same spiritual platform as the four exalted Kumära brothers. It has been described in the Fourth Canto that Mahäräja Päthu received the four Kumäras with great love and reverence, and here King Nimi is similarly receiving the nine sons of Lord Āñabhadeva. Receiving exalted Vaiñëavas with love and reverence is standard spiritual etiquette for those who desire progress and happiness in life.

TEXT 28

™alivade" h" ovaAca manyae BagAvata: s$aA°aAta, paASaRd"Ana, vaAe maDauĩ"s$a: ivaSNAAeBaURtaAina laAek(AnaAM paAvanaAya car"inta ih"

*çré-videha uväca
manye bhagavataù säkñät päriädän vo madhu-dvīsaù*

viñëor bhütäni lokänäà pävanäya caranti hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-videhaù uväca—King Videha said; manyë—I consider; bhagavataù—of the Supreme Lord; säkñät—directly; pärñadän—personal associates; vaù—you; madhu-dviñäù—of the enemy of Madhu; visëoù—of Lord Viñëu; bhütäni—the servants; lokänäm—of all the worlds; pävanäya—for the purification; caranti—they move about; hi—indeed.

TRANSLATION

King Videha said: I think that you must be direct associates of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is famous as the enemy of the demon Madhu. Indeed, the pure devotees of Lord Viñëu wander throughout the universe not for their personal, selfish interest, but to purify all the conditioned souls.

PURPORT

King Nimi here welcomes the great sages by glorifying their transcendental activities. It is well known that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is transcendental to the three modes of material nature, as stated in Bhagavad-gētä (7.13): mäm ebhyaù param avyayam. Similarly, His pure devotees are also on the transcendental platform. One may ask how such transcendental living beings as the associates of Lord Viñëu could be seen within the material world. Therefore it is stated here, pävanäya caranti hi: the associates of Lord Viñëu travel throughout the universe to reclaim the fallen, conditioned souls on behalf of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. A representative of the governor may be seen moving within the prison house, but that does not mean that the governor's representative has become a conditioned prisoner. It is understood that he is within the prison to negotiate the possible release of those prisoners who have rectified their criminal propensity. Similarly, the devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead called parivrājakācāryas wander throughout the universe inviting everyone to surrender to Lord Kāñëa and go back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge.

In the Sixth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam the mercy of the associates of Lord Viñëu has been described in connection with the salvation of Ajāmila. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has pointed out that the associates of Lord Viñëu are as merciful as the Lord Himself. Even though the ignorant members of human society are not interested in approaching the servants of Lord Viñëu, the devotees of the Lord, without any false prestige, act to liberate the conditioned souls from their perpetual misfortune.

TEXT 29

äü"laRBaAe maAnauSaAe de"h"Ae de"ih"naAM °aNABaÿr":
taḥaAipa äü"laRBaM manyae vaEku(NQ&i'ayad"zARnama,

durlabho mānuño deho dehinäà kñäëa-bhaì guraù taträpi durlabhaà manye vaikuëöha-priya-darçanam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

durlabhaù—difficult to achieve; mānuñaù—human; dehaù—body; dehinäm—for embodied beings; kñäëa-bhaì guraù—prone to be destroyed at any moment; tatra—in that human body; api—even; durlabham—more difficult to achieve; manye—I consider; vaikuëöhapriya—of those who are dear to the Supreme Lord, Vaikuëöha; darçanam—the vision.

TRANSLATION

For the conditioned souls, the human body is most difficult to achieve, and it can be lost at any moment. But I think that even those who have achieved human life rarely gain the association of pure devotees, who are dear to the Lord of Vaikuṇṭha.

PURPORT

According to Ṣrēla Ṣrēdhara Svāmē, the word dehinām means bahavo dehā bhavantē yeñāà te, "the conditioned souls, who accept innumerable material bodies." According to some wishful thinkers a living entity in the human form of life will never be degraded to a lower form such as that of an animal or plant. But despite this wishful thinking, it is a fact that according to our activities at the present, we will be elevated or degraded by the laws of God. At the present time in human society there is no clear or precise understanding of the nature of life. Foolish scientists have invented highly sophisticated terminologies and theories to bluff innocent people into believing that life comes from chemical reactions. His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda has exposed this bluff in his book Life Comes From Life, which points out that although scientists claim that life comes from chemicals, they cannot produce so much as an insect, even from unlimited quantities of chemicals. Actually, life and consciousness are symptoms of the spirit soul.

In Life Comes From Life (page 43), Ṣrēla Prabhupāda has stated, "Living beings move from one bodily form to another. The forms already exist. The living entity simply transfers himself, just as a man transfers himself from one apartment to another. One apartment is first class, another is second class, and another is third class. Suppose a person comes from a lower-class apartment to a first-class apartment. The person is the same. But now, according to his capacity for payment, or karma, he is able to occupy a higher-class apartment. Real evolution does not mean physical development, but development of consciousness." Within every species of life there is consciousness, and that consciousness is the symptom of the living entity, who is the superior energy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Without understanding this essential point of the transmigration of the conscious living entity throughout 8,400,000 species of life, one cannot possibly understand the words durlabho mānuño dehaù, "the human body is very rarely achieved."

People are now being cheated of this essential understanding. They are completely unaware of the danger of slipping back into the eight million species that lie below the human species. It is natural that a human being think in terms of progress. We want to feel that our life is progressing and that we are advancing and improving the quality of our life. Therefore, it is urgent that people be informed of the great danger of misusing the valuable human life and that they know of the great opportunity the human life affords, the opportunity to take to Kânëa consciousness. Just as on earth different residential areas are divided into high class, middle class and low class, within the universe there are upper-class, middle-class and lower-class planets. By practice of the yoga system, or by meticulous execution of religious rituals, one can transfer himself to the higher planets within this universe. On the other hand, by neglecting religious principles one will degrade himself to a lower planet. But the Supreme Lord, Kânëa, declares in Bhagavad-gētā (8.16), ābrahma-bhuvanāl lokāu punar āvartino 'rjuna. Thus the final conclusion is that every planet within the material universe is an unsuitable and inappropriate residence, because on each planet there are the primal defects old age and death. The Lord assures us, however, that in His transcendental abode, which lies far beyond the material cosmos, life is everlasting, blissful and absolutely cognizant. The material world is temporary, troublesome and rife with ignorance, but the spiritual world, called Vaikuëöha, is eternal, blissful and full of perfect knowledge.

The highly evolved human brain is a gift given by God so that we may use our intelligence to distinguish between that which is eternal and that which is temporary. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (2.16), näsato vidyate bhävo näbhävo vidyate sataù ubhayor api dāñño 'ntas tv anayos tattva-darçibhiù

"Those who are seers of the truth have concluded that matter has no permanent existence whereas the spirit soul never ceases to exist. Learned seers have concluded this by studying the nature of both."

Those who have accepted the Supreme Lord and His abode as the ultimate goal of life are called vaikuṇṭha-priya. Here King Nimi states that to have the personal association of such learned transcendentalists is certainly the perfection of human life. In this connection Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura suggests that we consider the following verse:

nā-deham ādyaà su-labhaà su-durlabhaà plavaà su-kalpaà guru-karēadhāram mayānukūlena nabhasvateritaà pumān bhavābdhià na taret sa ātma-hā

"[The Supreme Lord said:] The best of bodies, a human body, is a great attainment, rarely achieved, and may be compared to a boat. The guru is an expert captain for this boat, and I have sent favorable winds (the Vedas). Thus I have given all facilities for crossing over the ocean of material existence. Any human being who has achieved these excellent facilities of human life but does not cross over the material ocean is to be considered the killer of his own self." (SB 11.20.17)

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī, the eternal servants of the Supreme Lord, being controlled by powerful feelings of mercy, descend into the material world as Vaiṇēavas to deliver the conditioned souls who are bound by the results of their own mundane work. Such Vaiṇēavas also distribute their mercy to those who are laboriously searching after the impersonal Absolute. Çré Nārada Muni has stated that without ecstatic love of Godhead such laborious, impersonal contemplation of the Absolute is certainly troublesome (naiṅkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitam), and what to speak of the innumerable problems of ordinary gross materialistic life. We have practical experience that in the Western countries most people are working hard to get money, laboring under heavenly dreams of sense gratification. Others, having become frustrated with ordinary materialistic life, are trying to negate their personal existence and merge into the existence of God through so-called yoga and meditation. Both classes of unhappy people are receiving the mercy of the Kāṇēa consciousness movement, putting aside their dreams of sense gratification as well as their troublesome impersonal speculation. They are learning to chant the holy names of God, dance in ecstasy, and feast on the holy food offered to the Lord. They become enlivened by the transcendental knowledge spoken by the Lord Himself in the Bhagavad-gētā. As the Lord states in Bhagavad-gētā (9.2), susukhaà kartum avyayam. The actual process of spiritual freedom is joyful to perform and has nothing to do with fruitive activities aimed at sense gratification or with dry impersonal speculation. More and more people are taking to the process of Kāñëa consciousness, becoming joyful, and eagerly distributing Kāñëa's mercy to others. Thus the whole world will be enlivened and inspired by the Kāñëa consciousness movement, which is the practical demonstration of the mercy of the Vaiñëavas.

TEXT 30

sat-saigaù çe@ta @AtyaintakM(°aemaM pa{cC$AmaAe BavataAe'naGaA:
 s$AMs$aAre""ismana, °aNAADaAeR'ipa
 s$ats$aËÿ: zAevaiDana{RNAAma,vadhir nâëäm

ata ätyantikaà kñëmaà pâcchämo bhavato 'naghäù saàsäre 'smin kñäëärdho 'pi sat-saì gaù çevadhir nâëäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ataù—therefore; ätyantikam—supreme; kñëmam—good; pâcchämaù—I am asking; bhavataù—from you; anaghäù—O sinless ones; saàsäre—in the cycle of birth and death; asmin—this; kñäëa-ardhaù—lasting only half of one moment; api—even; sat-saì gaù—the association of devotees of the Lord; çevadhiù—a great treasure; nâëäm—for human beings.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, O completely sinless ones, I ask you to kindly tell me what the supreme good is. After all, even half a moment's association with pure devotees within this world of birth and death is a priceless treasure for any man.

PURPORT

The word çevadhiù, or "a great treasure," is significant in this verse. Just as an ordinary man is overjoyed to discover an unexpected treasure, one who is actually intelligent is overjoyed to gain the association of a pure devotee of the Lord, by which one's life can easily be perfected. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé the words ätyantikaà kñemam, or "the supreme good," indicate that situation in which one cannot be touched by even the slightest fear. Now we are entangled in the cycle of birth, old age, disease and death (saàsäre). Because our entire situation can be devastated in a single moment, we are constantly in fear. But the pure devotees of the Lord can teach us the practical way to free ourselves from material existence and thus to abolish all types of fear.

According to Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, normal etiquette would dictate that a host immediately ask a guest who has arrived about his well-being. But such an inquiry is unsuitable to place before self-satisfied devotees of the Lord, who are themselves the bestowers of all well-being. According to Çréla Viçvanätha, the King knew that it would be useless to ask the sages about their business affairs, since the only business of the pure devotees of the Lord is the achievement of the supreme goal of life. According to Bhagavad-gétä, the goal of life is to free oneself from the cycle of birth and death and reinstate oneself as an eternal servant of God on the platform of spiritual bliss. Pure devotees of the Lord do not waste their time with ordinary mundane affairs. Sometimes foolish relatives of a Vaiñëava preacher lament that such a transcendental preacher has not used his life for material business and that so much money has therefore been lost by the practice of spiritual life. Such ignorant persons cannot imagine the unlimited prosperity available on the spiritual platform to those who have surrendered heart and soul to the mission of the Lord. King Nimi was himself a learned Vaiñëava, and therefore he did not foolishly ask the sages about ordinary worldly affairs. He immediately inquired about ätyantikaà kñemam, the highest, most perfect goal of life.

According to Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the word anaghäù, "O sinless ones," has two meanings. Anaghäù indicates that the nine Yogendras were themselves completely free of sins. It also indicates that merely by the great fortune of seeing them and hearing from them submissively, an ordinary, sinful man could also be freed of his sins and achieve everything he desired.

One might object that since the great sages had just arrived, the King should not have been so impatient as to inquire from them about the perfection of life. Perhaps the King should have waited until the sages themselves invited his inquiry. Such a hypothetical objection is answered by the words kñäëärdho pi. Even a single moment's association with pure devotees, or even half a moment's association, is sufficient to give one the perfection of life. An ordinary person who is offered a great treasure will immediately desire to claim such a treasure. Similarly, King Nimi was thinking, "Why should I consider myself fortunate enough to have such great sages stay here for a long time? Because I am an ordinary person, undoubtedly you will soon be leaving. Therefore, let me immediately take advantage of your holy association."

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté, in this world there are different varieties of mercy. But ordinary mercy cannot bring about the cessation of all unhappiness. In other words, there are many humanitarians, altruists and social reformers who certainly work for the betterment of humanity. Such persons are universally considered merciful. But in spite of their mercy, humanity continues to suffer in the grip of birth, old age, disease and death. I may distribute free food to the needy, but even after eating my merciful gift, the recipient will again become hungry, or he will suffer in some other way. In other words, by mere humanitarianism or altruism, people do not actually become free from unhappiness. Their unhappiness is merely postponed or altered. King Nimi was joyful upon seeing the nava-yogendras because he knew that they were eternally perfect associates of the Supreme Lord. Therefore he thought, "You are not prone to sinful activities like unfortunate mundane people such as me. Thus the words you speak carry no deception or exploitation."

The materially conditioned souls spend their days and nights discussing various topics of sense gratification. They never find time to hear about transcendental knowledge. But if even only briefly or accidentally they hear hari-kathā, topics of Kāñëa, in the association of pure devotees of the Lord, their propensity to suffer in material existence will slacken. When one sees liberated persons, hears about Kāñëa from them, remembers their saintly behavior and so on, one's tendency to bind himself in the illusion of sense gratification is diminished, and he becomes eager to serve the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 31

DamaARna, BaAgAvataAna, "aUta yaid" na: TMautayae °amama, yaE: 'as$a^a: 'apa^aAya d"AsyatyaAtmaAnamapyaja:

dharmān bhāgavatān brūta yadi naù çrutaye kīamam yaiù prasannaù prapannāya dāsyaty ātmānam apy ajaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmān bhāgavatān—the science of devotional service; brūta—please speak; yadi—if; naù—of us; çrutaye—to hear properly; kīamam—there is the capacity; yaiù—by which (devotional service); prasannaù—being satisfied; prapannāya—to one who has taken shelter; dāsyati—He will give; ātmānam—Himself; api—even; ajaù—the unborn Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Please speak about how one engages in the devotional service of the Supreme Lord, if you consider me capable of properly hearing these topics. When a living entity offers loving service to the Supreme Lord, the Lord is immediately satisfied, and in return He will give even His own self to the surrendered soul.

PURPORT

Within the material world there are two classes of mundane philosophers who present their opinions about the Supreme Lord. Some so-called theologians claim that we are infinitely different from God, and therefore they tend to look upon the Lord as something far beyond our power to understand. Such extreme dualistic philosophers outwardly or officially claim to be pious and religious believers in God, but they consider God so much different from that which is within our experience that according to them there is little profit in even trying to discuss the personality or attributes of the Supreme Lord. Such outwardly faithful persons generally take to fruitive activities and gross materialistic sense gratification, being infatuated with the mundane relationships of the material world, which appear under the headings society, friendship and love.

The advaita-vādés, or nondualistic philosophers, claim that there is no difference between God and the living entity and that the highest goal of life is to give up our personal existence, which is due to illusion, and merge into the impersonal Brahman effulgence, which is devoid of name, form, paraphernalia and personality. Thus neither class of speculative philosopher is able to understand the transcendental Personality of Godhead.

Caitanya Mahāprabhu, in His sublime teaching of acintya-bhedābheda-tattva, or simultaneous oneness and difference, has clearly demonstrated that we are qualitatively one with God but quantitatively different. God is personal consciousness, and He has His personal form. Similarly we are also personal consciousness, and ultimately, when liberated, we also have eternal forms. The difference is that the eternal form and personality of the Supreme Lord contain unlimited potency and opulence whereas our potency and opulence are infinitesimal. We are conscious of our personal body, whereas Lord Kāñëa, the Absolute Truth, is conscious of everyone's body, as stated in Bhagavad-gētā (kñetra-jī aà cāpi mää viddhi sarva-kñetreñu bhārata [Bg. 13.3]). But although God is infinitely greater than the living entity, both God and the living entities are eternal personalities with form, activities and feelings.

The Supreme Lord, Kāñëa, expands Himself into innumerable living entities to enjoy rasas, or ecstatic relationships, with them. The living entities are part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa, and they are meant to serve Him with love. Although the Supreme Lord is eternally the predominator and the living entity is eternally the predominated, when the living entity surrenders unto the Lord with a sincere loving attitude, desiring to serve the Lord eternally without the slightest expectation of personal reward for such service, the Lord immediately is pleased, as expressed here by the word prasannaù. Kāñëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is so unlimitedly merciful and magnanimous that in His gratitude to such a surrendered and loving servitor, He is immediately inclined to offer anything, even Himself, to His surrendered devotee.

There are numerous practical, historical examples of this loving propensity of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Because of the love of Mother Yaçodä, child Kāñëa, in His form as Dämodara, surrendered Himself to His loving mother and allowed Himself to be bound with ropes as a childhood punishment. Similarly, feeling indebted to the Pääòavas for their intense love for Him, Kāñëa in His form as Pärtha-särathi happily agreed to drive the chariot of Arjuna on the Battlefield of Kurukñetra. Similarly, Kāñëa in Vändävana is always thinking of ways to satisfy the gopés, who are universally recognized as the most exalted loving devotees of the Lord.

Such intense loving feelings exchanged between the Lord and His pure devotees would not be possible were the living entities not qualitatively one with the Supreme Personality of Godhead and indeed inseparable parts and parcels of the Lord. On the other hand, because both the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the living entities are eternally individuals, each with his own eternal individual consciousness, such loving exchanges are a perpetual reality in the kingdom of God. In other words, absolute oneness with God and absolute difference from God are theoretical imaginations of different schools of speculative philosophy. The perfection of spiritual love, as described in this verse, is based on simultaneous oneness and difference, and this absolute reality was elaborately presented by Lord Kāñëa Himself in His brahminical incarnation as Caitanya Mahāprabhu. The followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu have expounded this perfect doctrine in innumerable books, culminating in the teachings of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda, who has most perfectly presented this knowledge in a way that is understandable not only in India but to all the people of the world. Our present insignificant attempt is simply to complete his translation and commentary on Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, and we are constantly praying for his guidance so that this work can simply be completed exactly as he would have desired. If one can understand these teachings of Caitanya Mahāprabhu as they are being presented in Western languages, surely the Lord will be satisfied with such a sincere seeker of spiritual truth.

TEXT 32

™alnaAr"d" ovaAca
WvaM tae inaimanaA pa{í"A vas$auDe"va mah"ÔamaA: ‘aitapaUjyaA“auvana, ‘altyaA s$as$ad"syaitvaRjaM na{pama,

çré-nārada uvāca
evaà te niminā pāññā vasudeva mahattamāu pratipūjyābruvan prētyā sa-sadasyartvijaà nāpam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-nāradaù uvāca—Çré Nārada said; evam—thus; te—they; niminā—by King Nimi; pāññāù—questioned; vasudeva—O Vasudeva; mahat-tamāù—those best of saints; pratipūjya—offering him words of respect in return; abruvan—they spoke; prétyā—affectionately; sa-sadasya—who was accompanied by the members of the sacrificial assembly; ātvijam—and by the priests; nāpam—to the King.

TRANSLATION

Çré Nārada said: O Vasudeva, when Mahārāja Nimi had thus inquired from the nine Yogendras about devotional service to the Lord, those best of saintly persons sincerely thanked the King for his questions and spoke to him with affection in the presence of the members of the sacrificial assembly and the brähmaëa priests.

PURPORT

According to Çrédhara Svämé, not only the King but also the members of the assembly and the priests conducting the sacrifice were all devoted to hearing and chanting the glories of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The sages, beginning with Kavi, will now each speak in turn, answering the questions of the King.

TEXT 33

™alk(ivaç&vaAca manyae'ku(taiêà"yamacyautasya paAd"AmbaujaAepaAs$anamaṭa inatyama, oiã"çabauÜe"r"s$ad"AtmaBaAvaAä," ivaìAtmanaA yaṭa inavataRtae Bal:

çré-kavir uvāca
manye 'kutaçcid-bhayam acyutasya pädāmbujopāsanam atra nityam udvigna-buddher asad-ātma-bhävād viçvätmanä yatra nivartate bhéù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-kaviù uväca—Çré Kavi said; manyé—I consider;
akutaçcit-bhayam—fearlessness; acyutasya—of the infallible Lord;
päda-ambuja—of the lotus feet; upäsanam—the worship; atra—in this world; nityam—constantly; udvigna-buddheù—of one whose intelligence is disturbed; asat—that which is only temporary; ätma-bhävät—by thinking to be the self; viçva-ätmanä—thoroughly; yatra—in which (service to the Lord); nivartate—ceases; bhéù—fear.

TRANSLATION

Çré Kavi said: I consider that one whose intelligence is constantly disturbed by his falsely identifying himself with the temporary material world can achieve real freedom from fear only by worshiping the lotus feet of the infallible Supreme Lord. In such devotional service, all fear ceases entirely.

PURPORT

In the opinion of Çréla Çrédhara Svämé the word asad-ätma-bhävät in this verse indicates that the living entity is constantly disturbed by fear because he identifies his eternal self with the temporary material body and its paraphernalia. Similarly, Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated, bhakti-pratiküla-deha-gehädiñv äsaktim. Because of one's attachment to one's temporary body and so-called home, family, friends and so on, one's intelligence is always disturbed by fear, and one is unable to appreciate or practice pure devotional service to the Supreme Lord. So-called religious activities executed in the bodily conception of life are always accompanied by fear and anxiety about the ultimate result. But pure devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead frees one from fear and anxiety because it is executed on the platform of Vaikuëöha, or the spiritual plane, where there is no fear or anxiety. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the process of bhakti-yoga is so powerful that even in the stage of sādhana-bhakti, in which one is practicing devotional service through rules and regulations, the neophyte can have a direct experience of fearlessness by the mercy of the Lord. As one's devotional service becomes mature, the Lord reveals Himself to the devotee, and all fear is totally vanquished forever.

Every living entity has a natural propensity to serve God, but because of false identification with the temporary body one loses touch with this pure, constitutional propensity and instead inauspiciously becomes attached to temporary sense gratification in the form of body, home, family and so on. The result of such false attachment is continuing distress, which can be eradicated only by devotional service to the Supreme Lord.

In this connection, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī has quoted the following verse:

tāvad bhayaà draviëa-deha-suhân-nimittaà çokaù spâhâ paribhavo vipulaç ca lobhaù tāvan mamety asad-avagraha ärti-mûlaà yāvan na te 'i ghrim abhayaà pravâëëta lokaù

"O my Lord, the people of the world are embarrassed by all material anxieties—they are always afraid. They always try to protect wealth, body and friends, they are filled with lamentation and unlawful desires and paraphernalia, and they avariciously base their undertakings on the perishable conceptions of 'I' and 'mine.' As long as they do not take shelter of Your safe lotus feet, they are full of such anxieties." (SB 3.9.6)

TEXT 34

yae vaE BagAvataA 'aAe.(A opaAyaA ÷AtmalabDayae @Ãa: pauMs$aAmaivaäu"SaAM ivaiÜ" BaAgAvataAna, ih" taAna, ye vai bhagavatä proktä

upäyā hy ātma-labdhaye ai jaù puàsām aviduñāà viddhi bhāgavatān hi tām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ye—which; vai—indeed; bhagavatā—by the Supreme Personality of Godhead; proktaù—spoken; upäyāù—means; hi—indeed; ātma-labdhaye—for realizing the Supreme Soul; ai jaù—easily; puàsām—by persons; aviduñām—less intelligent; viddhi—know; bhāgavatān—to be bhāgavata-dharma; hi—certainly; tām—these.

TRANSLATION

Even ignorant living entities can very easily come to know the Supreme Lord if they adopt those means prescribed by the Supreme Lord Himself. The process recommended by the Lord is to be known as bhāgavata-dharma, or devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

There are many Vedic scriptures, such as Manu-saàhitā, that present standard injunctions for the peaceful management of human society. Such Vedic knowledge is based on the varëāçrama system, which scientifically divides human society into four occupational divisions as well as four spiritual divisions. According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, however, knowledge that can bring one directly in contact with the Supreme Personality of Godhead is called ati-rahasyam, or the most confidential knowledge (ati-rahasyatvāt sva-mukhenaiva bhagavatāviduñām api puàsām ai jaù sukhenaivātma-labdhaye).

Bhāgavata-dharma is so confidential that it is spoken by the Lord Himself. The essence of bhāgavata-dharma is given in Bhagavad-gétā, wherein Kāñëa personally instructs Arjuna. Yet in the Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam the Lord will give instructions to Uddhava that surpass even the teachings given to Arjuna in Bhagavad-gétā. As Çréla Prabhupāda has stated, "Undoubtedly Bhagavad-gétä was spoken by the Lord on the Battlefield of Kurukñetra just to encourage Arjuna to fight, and yet to complete the transcendental knowledge of Bhagavad-gétä the Lord instructed Uddhava. The Lord wanted Uddhava to fulfill His mission and disseminate knowledge which He had not spoken even in Bhagavad-gétä." (SB 3.4.32 purport) Similarly, it is understood that the knowledge that will be presented here by the nine Yogendras is not their personal concoction but is authorized knowledge originally spoken by the Lord Himself.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté, the living entities, in the course of their wanderings throughout the cycle of birth and death, lose all trace of the Personality of Godhead. But when they hear the eternally auspicious topics spoken by the Supreme Lord for their benefit and understand their eternal identities as spirit souls, the realized experience of being an eternal servant of Kāñëa becomes the basis of bhāgavata-dharma. In the soul's experience as a pure Vaiñëava, or servant of God, there is no consideration of being different from God or the same as God, nor is one interested in the kingdom of material sense gratification. The pure devotee simply perceives his particular devotional service to the Supreme Lord and sees himself as an individual part and parcel of the ultimate shelter. A pure devotee experiences that his very being is tied, by ropes of loving devotion, to the ultimate shelter Himself in one of His direct personal expansions. And in such a perfect state of consciousness, the devotee can perceive the all-pervading variegated forms of the Absolute Truth.

TEXT 35

yaAnaAsTaAya nar"Ae r"Ajana, na 'amaAâeta k(ihR"icata, DaAvai^aamallya vaA naeḥae na sKalae^aa pataeid"h"

yān āsthāya naro rājan na pramādyeta karhicit dhāvan nimēlya vā netre

na skhalen na pated iha

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yān—which (means); āsthāya—accepting; naraù—a man; rājan—O King; na pramādyeta—is not bewildered; karhicit—ever; dhāvan—running; nimēlya—closing; vā—or; netre—his eyes; na skhalet—will not trip; na patet—will not fall; iha—on this path.

TRANSLATION

O King, one who accepts this process of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead will never blunder on his path in this world. Even while running with eyes closed, he will never trip or fall.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, the word ai'jaù ("easily"), which is used in the previous verse, is explained in this verse. He states, ai'jaù-padenoktaà su-karatvaà vivâëoti: "By the word ai'jaù the ease of performing bhakti-yoga is established, and this will be elaborated in the present verse." In Bhagavad-gétâ (9.2) the Lord Himself states, pratyakiävagamaà dharmyaà susukhaà kartum avyayam: "The process of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead is eternal, and it is very joyfully and naturally performed." Çréla Prabhupāda comments, "The process of devotional service is a very happy one. Why? Devotional service consists of çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23], so one can simply hear the chanting of the glories of the Lord or can attend philosophical lectures on transcendental knowledge given by authorized ācāryas. Simply by sitting, one can learn; then one can eat the remnants of the food offered to God, nice palatable dishes. In every state devotional service is joyful. One can execute devotional service even in the most poverty-stricken condition. The Lord says, patraà puīpaà phalam: He is ready to accept from the devotee any kind of offering, never mind what. Even a leaf, a flower, a bit of fruit or a little water, which are all available in every part of the world, can be offered by any person, regardless of social position, and will be accepted if offered with love. There are many instances of this in history. Simply by tasting the tulasī leaves offered to the lotus feet of the Lord, great sages like Sanat-kumāra became great devotees. Therefore the devotional process is very nice, and it can be executed in a happy mood. God accepts only the love with which things are offered to Him."

The essential point to be understood here is that when a living entity surrenders to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, he tells the Lord, "My dear Lord, although I am most sinful and unqualified and for so long have been trying to forget You, now I am taking shelter at Your lotus feet. From this day on I am Yours. Whatever I possess—my body, mind, words, family, riches—I am now offering at Your lotus feet. Please do with me as You like." The Supreme Lord, Kāñēa, has repeatedly given assurance in Bhagavad-gētā that He will protect and redeem such a surrendered living entity, bringing him back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life in the Lord's own kingdom. Thus the qualification of surrendering to the Lord is so great and spiritually potent that even if a surrendered soul is deficient in other aspects of pious life, his elevated status is protected by the Lord Himself. In other processes, however, such as yoga, because one depends upon his own determination and intelligence and does not actually seek shelter of the Lord, one is subject to fall at any moment, being protected only by one's own flimsy, limited potency. Therefore, as stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (10.2.32), āruhya kâcchreēa paraà padaà tataù/ patanty adho 'nādâta-yuīmad-aī ghrayaù: if one gives up the shelter of the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord and instead tries to advance in the yoga process by one's own determination, or if one tries to make progress in knowledge by one's own speculative power, surely one will eventually fall again to a mediocre material platform, having no protection other than one's own fallible strength. Therefore the Vaiñēava âcāryas, in their commentaries on this verse, have illustrated in various ways the vast superiority of bhakti-yoga, or pure devotional service. In this connection, Çrédhara Svāmē states, nimēlya netre dhāvann api iha eñu bhāgavata-dharmeñu na skhalet. nimēlanaà nāmāji ānaà, yathāhuù- 'çruti-smâtē ubhe netre viprāēāà parikértite/ ekena vikalaù kâēo dvābhyām andhaù prakértitaù' iti. "Even if running with both eyes closed, a devotee on this path of bhāgavata-dharma will not stumble. 'Closing one's eyes' refers to being in ignorance [of standard Vedic literatures]. As it is said, 'The ṣruti and smṛti scriptures are the two eyes of the brāhmaëas. Lacking one of them, a brāhmaëa is half blind, and deprived of both he is considered completely blind.' "

In Bhagavad-gētā (10.10-11) the Lord has clearly stated that even if a devotee is lacking in Vedic knowledge or ignorant of Vaiñëava literature, the Lord personally enlightens him from within his heart if the devotee is actually engaged in loving service to the Lord. In this connection, Çréla Prabhupāda states, "When Lord Caitanya was in Benares promulgating the chanting of Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare, thousands of people were following Him. Prakāçananda, a very influential and learned scholar in Benares at that time, derided Lord Caitanya for being a sentimentalist. Sometimes philosophers criticize the devotees because they think that most of the devotees are in the darkness of ignorance and are philosophically naive sentimentalists. Actually that is not the fact. There are very, very learned scholars who have put forward the philosophy of devotion, but even if a devotee does not take advantage of their literatures or of his spiritual master, if he is sincere in his devotional service he is helped by Kāñëa Himself within his heart. So the sincere devotee engaged in Kāñëa consciousness cannot be without knowledge. The only qualification is that one carry out devotional service in full Kāñëa consciousness."

Yet this facility given by the Lord cannot justify unauthorized concoctions put forward about the process of devotional service in the name of spontaneous devotion. In this connection Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated, bhagavat-prāpty-arthaà pāthāi -mārga-karaëaà tv ati-düñaëävaham eva: "If one manufactures his own process of devotional service for the sake of attaining the Supreme Lord, such a concoction will cause total ruination." Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura goes on to quote:

*ṣruti-smṛti-puräëädi-
pai carātra-vidhià vinä*

aikāntiké harer bhaktir
utpätäyaiva kalpate
[Brs. 1.2.101(90)]

"If one's so-called unalloyed devotion to Lord Hari does not take into account the regulations of the çruti, smâti, Puräëas and Paï carätra, it is nothing more than a disturbance to society." In other words, even if one is not learned in the Vedic literatures, if he is engaged in the loving service of the Lord he is to be accepted as a pure devotee; nonetheless, such loving devotion cannot in any way contradict the injunctions of revealed scriptures.

Such groups as the präkâta-sahajiyäs ignore the standard regulations of Vaiñëava dharma and engage in illicit, degraded activities, dressing as Rädhä and Kânëa in the name of spontaneous devotion. They claim that because such spontaneous devotion is revealed by the Lord Himself, they need not refer to standard scriptures. Similarly, all over the world there are pseudoreligionists who manufacture their own processes and claim they are receiving knowledge from the Lord Himself within their hearts. Therefore it is very important to understand, as stated here, that spontaneous revelation by the Lord within the heart is meant not to alter the eternal process of devotional service to the Lord, but to give a supplementary facility to a sincere devotee who is ignorant of revealed scriptures. In other words, the revealed scriptures describe the eternal process of service to the Lord. Since the Lord is eternal and the living entity is eternal, the process of their loving relationship is also eternal. The Lord never changes His essential nature, nor does the living entity. Therefore there is no need to change the essential process of loving service to the Lord. Special revelation by the Lord is meant to give scriptural knowledge by another means, and not to contradict scriptural knowledge.

On the other hand, Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated that if a devotee is executing all the basic principles of bhakti-yoga and advancing in devotional service, such a Vaiñëava should not be criticized for neglecting the secondary procedures. For example, His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda established hundreds of spiritual communities in the Western countries for practicing Kāñëa consciousness. The devotees in these communities give up all illicit sex, gambling, intoxication and meat-eating and constantly engage in service to Kāñëa. Such followers of Çréla Prabhupāda are able to make wonderful spiritual advancement and convert many thousands of people to the process of devotional service. In fact, all the faithful members of ISKCON who follow the standard regulations remain free from material contamination and make visible progress in going back home, back to Godhead. Such members of ISKCON cannot possibly execute all the details of the varëäçrama-dharma system. In fact, many Western devotees can barely pronounce Sanskrit words and are not very expert in performing elaborate sacrifices based on chanting of mantras and offering of oblations. But because they are executing all the essential principles of bhakti-yoga by giving up material sense gratification and constantly engaging in loving service to Kāñëa, their position is guaranteed both in this life and in the next.

We have seen many sophisticated Sanskrit scholars and learned experts in the details of Vedic sacrifice who can hardly even follow the basic principles of human life, namely no illicit sex, no meat-eating, no gambling and no intoxication. Such brilliant scholars and ritualistic performers are generally seen to be attached to a materialistic conception of life and are fond of mental speculation. Although in Bhagavad-gétä the Lord Himself has given perfect knowledge for all time, such so-called scholars consider themselves more intelligent than the Lord and thus speculate on the meaning of Vedic literature. Such speculation certainly constitutes a fall from perfect spiritual life, and what then is to be said of materialistic fruitive activities, which are illusory in every sense of the term. The transcendental devotees are able to remain aloof from the pollution of fruitive activity and mental speculation, and that is the essential purport of this verse.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravartë Öhäkura has warned that the words yän ästhäya indicate that the exalted status of a Vainëava can never be accorded to one who is not following the basic regulations of bhakti-yoga. Nor can it apply to one who is sometimes serving Kāñëa and sometimes serving the illusory energy, mäyä, by mental speculation or fruitive activities. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura has concluded, "In all *dharma*s other than bhāgavata-dharma one must consider the conditioned soul's qualification. But a soul surrendered to the Lord is never confounded by error, even if unqualified in all other respects. His feet never stumble, and he never falls. Even though wandering in the world at whim, he always resides in an auspicious place by the influence of his unswerving worship. The unique potency of bhāgavata-dharma does not appear in any of the other *dharma*s of the world. There is no comparison between a surrendered individual who has taken shelter of bhāgavata-dharma and the practitioner of any other dharma."

TEXT 36

k(Ayaena vaAcaA manas$aein%o"yaEvaAR bauÜ"YaAtmanaA vaAnaus$a{tasvaBaAvaAta, k(r"Aeita yaâts$ak(laM par"smaE naAr"AyaNAAyaeita s$amapaRyaeÔata, kāyena vācā manasendriyair vā buddhyātmanā vānusāta-svabhāvāt karoti yad yat sakalam̐ parasmai nārāyaēāyeti samarpayet tat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kāyena—with the body; vācā—speech; manasā—mind; indriyaiḥ—senses; vā—or; buddhyā—with the intelligence; ātmanā—the purified consciousness; vā—or; anusāta—followed; svabhāvāt—according to one's conditioned nature; karoti—one does; yad yat—whatever; sakalam—all; parasmai—to the Supreme; nārāyaēāya iti—thinking, "This is for Nārāyaṇa"; samarpayet—he should offer; tat—that.

TRANSLATION

In accordance with the particular nature one has acquired in conditioned life, whatever one does with body, words, mind, senses, intelligence or purified consciousness one should offer to the Supreme, thinking, "This is for the pleasure of Lord Nārāyaṇa."

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has commented in this regard that a person who engages all the sensory activities of his body, mind, words, intelligence, ego and consciousness in the service of the Supreme Lord cannot be considered to be on the same level as a karmī working for his personal sense gratification. Although apparently still a conditioned soul, one who offers the fruits of all his activities to the Lord can no longer be touched by the countless miseries that arise from the reactions to materialistic activities.

Because of enmity against the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His omnipotent authority, the conditioned living entity performs activities against the order of the Lord. Yet self-realized souls continue to perform all types of work within this world to carry out the mission of the Supreme Lord. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura, those karmīs who are sufficiently pious follow the example of the self-realized souls by trying to offer the fruits of their own duties at the lotus feet of the Lord. Although this is counted as karma-miçrā bhakti, or devotional service mixed with the desire to execute fruitive activities, such mixed devotional service is gradually transformed into pure devotional service. As the pious fruitive workers disengage themselves, step by step, from the bogus philosophy of "enjoyment of one's hard-earned rewards," pure devotional service rewards them with complete good fortune.

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has commented, ātmanā cittenāhaṁ kareëa vā anusāto yaù svabhāvas tasmāt: although one may still be in the bodily concept of life, he should offer the fruit of his work to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Those with a primitive, materialistic concept of the Supreme Lord consider the Lord present only in a temple or church. They make some offering to the Lord in the place of worship, but in their normal activities they claim proprietorship, not thinking that God is present everywhere and within everyone. We have practical experience of many so-called religious men who become very offended if their children try to become servants of the Supreme Lord. They feel, "God should be pleased with whatever humble offering I give Him, but my family and ordinary business affairs belong to me and are under my control." The perception of anything as separate from the Supreme Personality of Godhead or His proprietorship is called māyā, or illusion. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has quoted, na kevalaà vidhitaù kâtam eveti niyamaù; svabhävânusâri laukikam api: "The regulation that one should serve the Supreme Lord does not refer only to prescribed religious paths, ceremonies and regulations; rather, all the activities one performs in this world according to one's personal nature should be dedicated to the Supreme Personality of Godhead."

The words karoti yad yat sakalaà parasmai nâräyaëäyeti samarpayet tat in this verse are very significant. A similar verse is found in Bhagavad-gétä (9.27):

*yat karoñi yad açnäsi
yaj juhoñi dadäsi yat
yat tapasyasi kaunteya
tat kuruñiva mad-arpaëam*

"O son of Kunté, all that you do, all that you eat, all that you offer and give away, and all the austerities that you perform should be done as an offering unto Me." The objection may be raised, Since our ordinary activities are performed with a material body and material mind, not by the spirit soul, how can such activities be offered to the Supreme Lord, who is completely transcendental to the material world? How can such activities be considered spiritual? In answer to this it is stated in the Vinëu Puräëa (3.8.8):

*varëäçramäcära-vatä
puruñëëa paraù pumän
vinëur ärädhyate panthä nänyat tat-toña-käraëam
[Cc. Madhya 8.58]*

One who wants to satisfy the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, must accept the system of varëäçrama-dharma and worship the Lord through the execution of his prescribed duties. In Bhagavad-gëtä (4.13) the Supreme Lord has personally taken credit for establishing the system of varëäçrama-dharma: cätur-varëyaà mayä säññaà guëa-karma-vibhagaçaù. Therefore if one offers his work within the varëäçrama-dharma system to the Supreme Lord, such work is counted as devotional service. According to one's svabhäva, or nature, one may work as an intellectual or priest, as an administrator or military man, as an agriculturist or mercantile man, or as a laborer or craftsman. And while working, everyone should meditate on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, thinking, yat sakalaà parasmai nārāyaëäya: "I am working for the Supreme Lord. Whatever result comes from my work, I shall accept the bare minimum for my personal maintenance, and the rest I shall offer for the glorification of Lord Nārāyaëa."

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has pointed out, käminäà tu sarvathaiva na duñkarmärpaëam: one cannot offer duñkarma, or sinful, wicked activities, to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The four pillars of sinful life are illicit sex, meat-eating, gambling and intoxication. Such activities are never acceptable as offerings to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The example may be given that although in a free society each person is allowed to choose his own occupation, even a democratic government will not allow a citizen to choose the occupation of thief or murderer. In the same way, according to the laws of God one is invited to work according to his own nature in the varëäçrama system, but one is forbidden to adopt a criminal life of sinful activities violating the laws of God.

Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has given a nice description of how one should offer one's ordinary activities to the Supreme Lord. He says that an ordinary sense gratifier begins his activities in the morning by passing stool and urine, cleaning his mouth, brushing his teeth, bathing, meeting his friends and family members and discussing with them the day's business. In this way one has so many activities during the day, and a sense gratifier executes all these activities for his personal material enjoyment. A karmé, on the other hand, working under the jurisdiction of the karma-kāṇḍa section of the Vedas, will perform the same activities for the pleasure of the demigods and his forefathers. Thus, according to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura, a devotee of the Supreme Lord, Nārāyaṇa, should similarly perform all of his daily activities for the pleasure of the Supreme Lord. In this way everything we do throughout the day will become bhakti-aṅga, or a supplementary aspect of our devotional service to Kāṇḍa.

It should be understood that as long as one identifies oneself in terms of the varṇāśrama-dharma system rather than as part and parcel of Kāṇḍa one is still on the platform of ahaṁkāra, or false ego, because the varṇāśrama system is designed according to the modes of nature acquired by the living entity through his material body. But the ācāryas have emphasized in their commentaries on this verse that such a false ego, by which one identifies oneself as a brāhmaṇa, kṣatriya, vaiçya, çūdra, sannyāsi, gṛhastha and so on, should also be offered to the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, when one becomes very much attracted to hearing and chanting about the Supreme Lord and not merely offering Him the fruits of one's work, one has attained the stage called svarūpa-siddhā bhakti, or the stage in which actual devotion becomes visible. The example may be given that although any good citizen will pay his taxes to the government, he may not necessarily love the government or its leaders. Similarly a pious living entity can understand that he is working under the laws of God, and therefore in accordance with Vedic injunctions or the injunctions of other scriptures he offers a portion of his assets to the Supreme Lord in religious ceremonies. But when such a pious person actually becomes attached to chanting and hearing about the personal qualities of the Lord and when love thus becomes visible, he is considered to be reaching the mature stage of life. In this regard, Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has quoted several verses that very nicely show the development of love for Godhead. Anena durvāsanā-duḥkha-darśanena sa karuṇā-mayaṁ karuṇāṁ karotu: "May the merciful Lord show mercy on me by demonstrating the misery created by sinful desires." Yā prētiṁ avivekānāṁ viśayēṇv anapāyiniṁ tvāṁ anusmarataṁ sā me hṛdayān nāpasarpatu: "Unintelligent persons have unflinching affection for the objects of sense gratification. Similarly, may I always remember You, so that that same attachment, applied to You, never leaves my heart." (Viñëu Puräëa 1.20.19) Yuvaténää yathä yüni yünää ca yuvatau yathä/ mano 'bhiramate tadvan mano me ramatää tvayi: "As the minds of young girls take pleasure in thinking of a young boy and those of young boys take pleasure in thinking of a young girl, may my mind take pleasure in You." Mama sukarmaëi duñkarmaëi ca yad räga-sämānyam, tad sarvato-bhāvena bhagavad-viñayam eva bhavatu: "Whatever attraction I have for pious or sinful activities, let that attraction be wholeheartedly invested in You."

TEXT 37

BayaM iā"talyaAiBainavaezAta: syaAä," wRzAAAd"paetasya ivapayaRyaAe'sma{ita:
tanmaAyayaAtaAe bauDa @ABajaeÔaM BaftyaEk(yaezAM gAuç&de"vataAtmaA

bhayaà dvitéyābhiniveçataù syād éçād apetasya viparyayo 'smātiù tan-māyayāto budha ābhajet taà bhaktyaikayeçaà guru-devatātmā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhayam—fear; dvitéya—in something seeming to be other than the Lord; abhiniveçataù—because of absorption; syāt—it will arise; éçāt—from the Supreme Lord; apetasya—for one who has turned away; viparyayaù—misidentification; asmātiù—forgetfulness; tat—of the Lord; māyayā—by the illusory energy; ataù—therefore; budhaù—an intelligent person; ābhajet—should worship fully; tam—Him; bhaktyā—with devotion; ekayā—unalloyed; éçam—the Lord; guru-devatā-ātmā—one who sees his own spiritual master as his lord and very soul.

TRANSLATION

Fear arises when a living entity misidentifies himself as the material body because of absorption in the external, illusory energy of the Lord. When the living entity thus turns away from the Supreme Lord, he also forgets his own constitutional position as a servant of the Lord. This bewildering, fearful condition is effected by the potency for illusion, called māyā. Therefore, an intelligent person should engage unflinchingly in the unalloyed devotional service of the Lord, under the guidance of a bona fide spiritual master, whom he should accept as his worshipable deity and as his very life and soul.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé the objection may be raised that since fear is caused by ignorance, it can be dispelled by knowledge and there is no need to worship the Supreme Lord. The living entity falsely identifies with his material body, family, society and so on, and he simply has to give up this false identification. Then what will māyā be able to do?

In reply to this argument, Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has quoted the following verse from Bhagavad-gētā (7.14):

*daivé hy eñā guëa-mayē mama māyā duratyayā
mām eva ye prapadyante
māyām etāà taranti te*

"This divine energy of Mine consisting of the three modes of material nature is difficult to overcome. But those who have surrendered unto Me can easily cross beyond it." The living entity, called jéva-tattva, is one of the potencies of the Supreme Lord, but the constitutional position of the living entity is taōa-stha, or marginal. Being minute, every living entity is eternally dependent upon the supreme living entity, Kāñëa. This is confirmed in the Vedic literature as follows: nityo nityānāà cetanaç cetanānāà/ eko bahünāà yo vidadhāti kāmān. "Among all the eternally conscious beings there is one supreme eternal living being who is supplying the needs of all the innumerable others." (Kaōha Upaniñad 2.1.12) Kāñëadāsa Kavirāja has stated, ekale éçvara kāñëa, āra saba bhātya: "Kāñëa is the only independent controller; all other living entities depend upon Him." (Cc. Ādi 5.142) Just as the finger is part and parcel of the body and therefore must always be engaged in bodily service, we as parts and parcels of Kāñëa (mamaivāàço jēva-loke jēva-bhūtaù sanātanaù [Bg. 15.7]) have the eternal duty (sanātana-dharma) of engaging in the unalloyed service of the Lord.

The potency of the Lord that enlightens us in the Lord's service is called cit-çakti. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura comments that when the living entity develops a spirit of independence he is forced to come to the material world, where he enters into various types of petty and undesirable behavior that create a fearful situation for him. The bahiraì gā-çakti, the illusory potency of the Supreme Lord, covers all trace of the cit-çakti and imposes one material body after another upon the living entity for his gross sinful enjoyment. As further punishment, the living entity who has given up his loving relationship with Kāñëa loses all power to perceive the eternal, blissful form of the Supreme Lord, who is his actual shelter. Instead the living entity becomes attached to many temporary, phantasmagorical forms, such as his personal body, the bodies of his family members and friends, his nation, his city, with its buildings and cars, and innumerable types of ephemeral material scenery. In such a state of gross ignorance the idea of returning to one's original identity no longer even crosses the mind.

By the laws of God the three modes of material nature are constantly in conflict, as stated in the Bhagavad-gētā. This conflict is described in many places in the Bhāgavatam as guëa-vyatikaram. When the living entity is bewildered by the interactions of the modes of material nature, he comes to the conclusion of relativity and assumes that God and worship of God are simply by-products of the relative, contradictory interactions of nature's modes. In the name of anthropological, sociological or psychological perspective, the living entity falls deeper and deeper into the darkness of materialistic ignorance, dedicating himself to mundane piety, economic development, sense gratification, or speculation in which he regards the Absolute as lacking variety and personality, which he assumes to be products of the interactions of nature's modes.

The illusory potency of the Supreme Lord is duratyayā; it is impossible to escape without the direct mercy of Kāñëa (mām eva ye prapadyante mām eva etāñ taranti te [Bg. 7.14]). The example may be given that when the sun is covered by clouds, no man-made apparatus can remove them from the sky, but the sun itself, which created the clouds, can immediately burn away the cloudy covering and reveal itself. Similarly, when we become covered by the illusory potency of the Lord we identify with our temporary material body, and thus we are always in fear and anxiety. But when we surrender to the Lord Himself, He can immediately free us from this illusion. The material world is padañ padañ yad vipadām; [SB 10.14.58] it is dangerous at every step. When a living entity understands that he is not the material body but an eternal servant of God, his fear is vanquished. As stated by Çrëla Viçvanātha Cakravartë Öhäkura, atra bhaktaiù sañsära-bandhän na bheta ya sa hi bhaktau pravartamānasya svata evāpayāti: "In this bhāgavata-dharma devotees have no need to fear the bondage of material existence. That fear goes away of its own accord for one who engages in devotional service."

It is important to make clear that bhayam, or fear, cannot ultimately be vanquished simply by impersonal self-realization as expressed by the words ahañ brahmāsmi (91), "I am spirit soul." In Çrëmad-Bhāgavatam (1.5.12) Nārada Muni says to Vyāsadeva, naiñkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitañ na çobhate: mere naiñkarmyam, or cessation of material activities and repudiation of the bodily concept of life, cannot ultimately save one. The living entity must find a superior shelter on the spiritual platform; otherwise he will come back to the fearful situation of material existence. That is stated in çāstra: āruhya kaccchreëa parañ padañ tataù patanty adho 'nādāta-yuñmad-añ ghrayaù (SB 10.2.32). Although one may with great labor and effort struggle up to the Brahman platform (kleçö 'dhikataras teñäm avyaktāsakta-cetasām [Bg. 12.5]), if he does not find a suitable shelter he will come back to the material platform. His so-called liberation is vimukta-māna, liberation by imagination.

The living entity is by nature pleasure-seeking, ānanda-maya. Now we are suffering because we are falsely seeking pleasure on the material platform and as a result we are becoming entangled in the painful complexities of material existence. But if we try to give up the pleasure-seeking propensity altogether, we shall eventually become frustrated and return to the platform of material pleasure-seeking. Although there is eternal existence on the Brahman platform of impersonal realization, there is no ānanda. Variety is the mother of enjoyment. In the Vaikuṇṭha planets there is actual, spiritual ānanda. Kāṇḍa is there in His ecstatic, spiritual form, surrounded by His blissful associates, all of them eternally full of bliss and knowledge. They have nothing to do with material existence. In the spiritual planets even the scenery and birds and animals are fully conscious of Kāṇḍa and are absorbed in transcendental bliss. Yad gatvā na nivartante tad dhāma paramaṁ mama (Bg. 15.6). One who goes to the blissful, spiritual planet of Kāṇḍa will be fully satisfied and never come back to the material platform. Therefore Viṣvanātha Cakravartī Ōhākura has said, kiṁ cātra bhaktaiḥ saṁsāra-bandhān na bhavatyam. Only the bhakta actually becomes free from fear.

In this connection Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura has emphasized the necessity of accepting a bona fide spiritual master who is vrajendranandana-preṣṇa, the dearmost servitor of the son of Nanda Mahārāja, Kāṇḍa. The bona fide spiritual master is completely free from envy of other living entities, and therefore he freely distributes knowledge of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. When the living entities who are inimical to the service of the Lord somehow hear this knowledge submissively, they become free from the illusory potency of the Lord, which has covered them and thrown them into various miserable species of life. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura, by the mercy of the spiritual master the faithful disciple gradually realizes the transcendental position of Lord Nārāyaṇa, who is served with great awe and reverence by hundreds and thousands of goddesses of fortune. As the disciple's transcendental knowledge gradually increases, even the paramaiçvarya, or supreme opulence, of the Lord of Vaikuṇṭha becomes pale in the light of the beauty of Govinda, Kāṇḍa. Govinda has inconceivable potency to enchant and give pleasure, and by the mercy of the spiritual master the disciple gradually develops his own blissful relationship (rasa) with Govinda. Having understood the blissful pastimes of Lakṣmī-Nārāyaṇa, Çré Sētā-Rāma, Rukmīṇī-Dvārakādhīra and finally Lord Kāṇḍa Himself, the purified living entity is given the unique privilege of participating directly in the devotional service of Kāñëa, who becomes his only object and shelter.

TEXT 38

@ivaâmaAnaAe'pyavaBaAita ih" ã"yaAe DyaAtauiDaRyaA sva«amanaAer"TaAE yaTaA tatk(maRs$aÆÿlpaivak(lpakM(manaAe bauDaAe inaç&nDyaAd"BayaM tata: syaAta, avidyamāno 'py avabhāti hi dvayo dhyātur dhyā svapna-manorathau yathā tat karma-saī kalpa-vikalpakaà mano budho nirundhyād abhayaà tataù syāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

avidyamānaù—not present in reality; api—although; avabhāti—is manifest; hi—indeed; dvayaù—duality; dhyātuù—of the person experiencing; dhyā—by the intelligence; svapna—a dream; manaù-rathau—or the conceiving of a desire; yathā—as; tat—therefore; karma—of material activities; saī kalpa-vikalpakam—having the functions of forming positive and negative desires; manaù—the mind; budhaù—an intelligent person; nirundhyāt—should bring under control; abhayam—fearlessness; tataù—in this way; syāt—there may be.

TRANSLATION

Although the duality of the material world does not ultimately exist, the conditioned soul experiences it as real under the influence of his own conditioned intelligence. This imaginary experience of a world separate from Kāñëa can be compared to the acts of dreaming and desiring. When the conditioned soul dreams at night of something desirable or horrible, or when he daydreams of what he would like to have or avoid, he creates a reality that has no existence beyond his own imagination. The tendency of the mind is to accept and reject various activities based on sense gratification. Therefore an intelligent person should control the mind, restricting it from the illusion of seeing things separate from Kåñëa, and when the mind is thus controlled he will experience actual fearlessness.

PURPORT

Although the conditioned mind is bewildered by the objects of sense gratification offered by mâyä, illusion, if one takes to the unalloyed devotional service of the Lord such material sense gratification gradually dissipates, for it is merely a mental concoction of the conditioned soul. Çréla Çrédhara Svämé has emphasized by the words avyabhicäriëë bhakti that one cannot dissipate the illusion of material sense gratification unless one takes to the unalloyed devotional service of the Lord. As Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé has stated:

*anyäbhiläñitā-çünyaà
jī āna-karmādy-anāvātam ānukūlyena kāñëānu-
çēlanaà bhaktir uttamā*

[Cc. Madhya 19.167]

[Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.1.11(92)]

Unalloyed devotional service cannot be mixed with material sense gratification or mental speculation. The servant must act only for the satisfaction of the master. Similarly, Lord Kåñëa states in Bhagavad-gētā, mām ekaà çaraëaà vraja. One must see only Kåñëa everywhere and must act exclusively for the satisfaction of Lord Kåñëa, the eternal master of every living entity.

Çréla Madhväcärya has quoted several verses from the Hari-vaëça illustrating that the living entity bewildered by identifying with his material body, home, family, friends and so on and thus entangled in the cycle of birth and death accepts phantasmagoria as reality. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, çravaëa-kértanädi-lakñäëa-mātratvaà yato na vyāhanyeta: if one seriously desires to vanquish the duality of material illusion, one must adopt the process of chanting and hearing the glories of the Supreme Lord. Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu also cited the following Vedic reference:

*harer nāma harer nāma
harer nāmaiva kevalam
kalau nāsty eva nāsty eva
nāsty eva gatir anyathā
[Cc. Ādi 17.21]
(Bāhan-nāradéya Purāëa)*

According to Vedic literatures the living entities of this Kali-yuga are very feeble in their power to understand spiritual knowledge (mandāu sumanda-matayo manda-bhāgyā hy upadrutāu [SB 1.1.10]). Their minds are always disturbed, and they are lazy and misguided by so many bogus leaders. They are further described in the Bhāgavatam as niūsattvān (impatient and impious), durmedhān (possessed of weak intelligence) and hrasitāyūñāu (very short lived). Therefore one who seriously wants to overcome the ignorance of material life must surrender to the process of chanting and hearing the holy name of the Lord—Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare—as well as reciting and rendering submissive aural reception to the transcendental literatures presented by the Lord, such as Bhagavad-gētā, Çrémad-Bhāgavatam and Caitanya-caritāmāta. It should be understood that the living entity is completely spiritual and never actually becomes mixed with material energy (asāñ go hy ayañ puruñāu). According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, tasmin çuddhe 'pi kalpyate: although the living entity is çuddha, pure spirit soul, he imagines that he is a material creation and thus entangles himself in the network of illusion called dehāpatya-kalatrādi [SB 2.1.4].

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura has used the word mānasa-pratyakñā to describe the experience of material life. Mānasa-pratyakñā means "that which is experienced only within the mind." The actual pratyakñā is described in Bhagavad-gētā (9.2):

rāja-vidyā rāja-guhyañ pavitram idam uttamam

pratyakñāvagamaà dharmyaà susukhaà kartum avyayam

When one submissively hears the instructions given by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gētā, which constitute the king of all knowledge (rāja-vidyā) and the most confidential of all information (rāja-guhyam), by associating with such spotless spiritual knowledge (pavitram idam uttamam) one can directly experience one's eternal nature (pratyakñāvagamam). By experiencing one's eternal nature, one becomes thoroughly religious (dharmyam), blissful (susukham) and eternally engaged in the devotional service of the Lord (kartum avyayam).

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has quoted the following çruti-mantra in this connection: vijita-hāñēka-vāyubhir adānta-manas turagam. "By the very senses and life air one has conquered, the uncurbed mind will again drag one away." According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura the meaning of this verse is samavahāya guroç caraëam: if one rejects the lotus feet of one's spiritual master, all of one's previous spiritual advancement becomes null and void. This has already been indicated in the previous verse by the words guru-devatātmā. Unless one accepts a bona fide spiritual master in the authorized paramparā as one's worshipable deity and life and soul, there is no question of overcoming the duality of material life.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has made the following comments on this verse. "Control of the mind is a result of living a life of devotional service to the Lord. By the influence of fixed devotional service, the accepting and rejecting mind can stop its thirst for sensory enjoyment apart from Kāñēa. In transcendental Kāñēa consciousness there is no contradiction, pettiness or lack of ecstasy. In other words, it is not like a material object, which always proves temporary and constantly miserable. Having forgotten Kāñēa, the conditioned living entity is suffering the misdirection and perversion of his own so-called intelligence. The living entities are fragmental parts of the supreme shelter, Kāñēa, but have fallen from Kāñēa's kingdom of spiritual pastimes. Because of forgetting the Supreme Lord, they become prone to sinful life and turn their attention to dangerous material objects, which fill them with constant fear. If one desires to subdue the mind, which is constantly engaged in the duality of mental concoction, one must take to the devotional service of Lord Kāñëa."

TEXT 39

Za{Nvana, s$auBa%"AiNA r"TaAËÿpaANAer," janmaAina k(maARiNA ca yaAina laAeke( gAltaAina naAmaAina tad"TaRk(Aina gAAyana, ivalaÀaAe ivacare"d"s$aËÿ:

çâëvan su-bhadräëi rathâi ga-päëer janmäni karmäëi ca yäni loke gétäni nāmāni tad-arthakāni gāyan vilajjo vicared asaì gaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çâëvan—hearing; su-bhadräëi—all-auspicious; ratha-aì ga-päëeù—of the Supreme Lord, who holds a chariot wheel in His hand (in His pastime of fighting with grandfather Bhéñma); janmäni—the appearances; karmäëi—activities; ca—and; yäni—which; loke—in this world; gétäni—are chanted; nāmāni—names; tat-arthakāni—signifying these appearances and activities; gāyan—singing; vilajjaù—free from embarrassment; vicaret—one should wander; asaì gaù—without material association.

TRANSLATION

An intelligent person who has controlled his mind and conquered fear should give up all attachment to material objects such as wife, family and nation and should wander freely without embarrassment, hearing and chanting the holy names of the Lord, the bearer of the chariot wheel. The holy names of Kāñëa are all-auspicious because they describe His transcendental birth and activities, which He performs within this world for the salvation of the conditioned souls. Thus the holy names of the Lord are sung throughout the world.

PURPORT

Since the holy names, forms and pastimes of the Supreme Personality of Godhead are unlimited, no one can hear or chant about all of them. Therefore the word loke indicates that one should chant the holy names of the Lord that are well known on this particular planet. Within this world, Lord Rāma and Lord Kāñëa are very famous. Their books, Rāmāyaëa and Bhagavad-gétä, are studied and relished all over the world. Similarly, Caitanya Mahāprabhu is gradually becoming famous all over the world, as He Himself predicted. Pāthivëte äche yata nagarädi grāma/ sarvatra pracära haibe mora nāma: "In every town and village on this earth the glories of My name will be chanted." [CB Antya-khaëòa 4.126] Therefore in conformity with the authorized statement of this verse of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, the Kāñëa consciousness movement emphasizes the mahä-mantra—Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare—along with the Paï ca-tattva mahä-mantra—çré-kāñëa-caitanya prabhu-nityänanda çré-advaita gadädhara çréväsädi-gaura-bhakta-vānda.

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, this blissful process of chanting the holy names of the Lord without any material conception is called sugamaà mārgam, a very enjoyable path. Similarly, Lord Kāñëa has described the process of bhakti-yoga as susukhaà kartum, very joyfully performed, and Çréla Locana dāsa Öhäkura has sung, saba avatära sära çiromaëi kevala ānanda-käëòa. Caitanya Mahāprabhu's process for worshiping Kāñëa is kevala ānanda-käëòa, simply joyful. In this connection Çréla Prabhupāda has stated that people in any part of the world can assemble, chant the Hare Kāñëa mantra, read from authorized books such as Bhagavad-gétä As It Is, and accept kāñëa-prasādam sumptuously, just as Caitanya Mahāprabhu did in Navadvépa.

To be successful in this program, however, Locana dāsa Öhäkura has warned, viñaya chäòiyä: one must give up material sense gratification. If one indulges in material sense gratification, surely he will be in the bodily concept of life. One who is in the bodily concept of life will undoubtedly have a materialistic understanding of the pastimes of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus, by considering the Lord's pastimes mundane, one will come within the category of Mâyāvāda, or impersonalism, in which one considers the transcendental body of the Lord to be a creation of material nature. Therefore the word asaṁ gaṇ in this verse is very significant. One must chant the holy name of the Lord without mental speculation. One must accept Lord Kāṇḍea as He presents Himself in Bhagavad-gētā, wherein He states that He alone is Puruṣottama, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and that His transcendental form is eternal (ajo 'pi sann avyayātmā).

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has emphasized, yāni çāstra-dvārā sat-paramparā-dvārā ca loke gētāni janmāni karmāṇi ca, tāni çāḍvan gāyaḇ ca: if one wants to be successful in chanting and hearing the holy name of the Lord, one must adopt the process as it is coming down in the sat-paramparā, the transcendental disciplic succession. And the sat-paramparā can be identified by reference to bona fide Vedic scriptures. Contrary to the opinion of uninformed critics, the followers of Kāṇḍea consciousness are not mindless or fanatical. They intelligently follow the system of checks and balances called guru, *sādh*u and çāstra. That is, one must accept a bona fide spiritual master, who must in turn be confirmed by the opinion of great saintly persons and revealed scriptures. If one accepts a bona fide spiritual master, follows the example of great saintly persons and becomes conversant with authorized literature such as Bhagavad-gētā As It Is and Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, one's program of chanting the holy names of the Lord and hearing about the Lord's pastimes will be completely successful. As Kāṇḍea states in Bhagavad-gētā (4.9):

janma karma ca me divyam evaḇ yo vetti tattvataḇ tyaktvā dehaḇ punar janma naiti mām eti so 'rjuna

"One who knows the transcendental nature of My appearance and activities does not, upon leaving the body, take his birth again in the material world, but attains My eternal abode, O Arjuna."

Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated that throughout the world the Supreme Lord is known by many names, some of them expressed in vernacular language, but any name used to indicate the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is one without a second, beyond the influence of material nature, can be accepted as a holy name of God, according to this verse. That is indicated by the word loke.

One should not misinterpret the word vicaret, "one should wander," to mean that while chanting the holy names of Kâñëa one may go anywhere or engage in any activity without discrimination. Therefore it is stated, vicared asaì gaù: one may wander freely, but at the same time one must strictly avoid the association of those who are not interested in Kâñëa consciousness or who are engaged in sinful life. Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu has stated, asat-saì ga-tyäga-ei vaiñëava äcära (Cc. Madhya 22.87): a Vaiñëava is known by his complete avoidance of all mundane association. If in the course of traveling and chanting the glories of the Lord a Vaiñëava preacher finds a submissive nondevotee who is willing to hear about Kâñëa, the preacher will always give his merciful association to such a person. But a Vaiñëava should strictly avoid those who are not interested in hearing about Kâñëa.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, those who do not engage in hearing the astonishing pastimes and holy names of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and who do not relish the Lord's pastimes are simply executing mundane, illusory activities or indulging in false, materialistic renunciation. Frustrated living entities sometimes take to dry impersonalism and avoid the descriptions of the Supreme Lord's eternal name, form, qualities, entourage and pastimes. But if one gains the association of a pure devotee, one gives up the path of dry speculative argument and becomes situated on the actual Vedic path of devotional service to the Lord.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura says that the word dvaita, or "duality," expresses the false understanding that some object has a substantial existence independent of Kâñëa. The Mäyäväda conception of advaita, which lacks any spiritual distinctions, is simply another manifestation of the mind's function of acceptance and rejection. The eternal appearance and pastimes of the Supreme Personality of Godhead never contradict the concept of advaya-jī āna, or transcendental knowledge beyond duality.

TEXT 40

WvaM̃ata: svai'ayanaAmak(LtyaAR jaAtaAnaur"AgAAe āu"taicaÔa o»aE: h"s$atyaTaAe r"Aeid"ita r"AEita gAAyatya, onmaAd"va^aa{tyaita laAek(baA÷:

eva-à-vrataù sva-priya-nāma-kértyā jätānurāgo druta-citta uccaiù hasaty atho roditi rauti gāyaty unmāda-van nātyati loka-bāhyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam-vrataù—when one thus engages in the vow to chant and dance;
sva—own; priya—very dear; nāma—holy name; kértya—by chanting; jāta—in this way develops; anurāgaù—attachment; druta-cittaù—with a melted heart; uccaiù—loudly; hasati—laughs; atho—also; roditi—cries; rauti—becomes agitated; gāyati—chants; unmāda-vat—like a madman;
nātyati—dancing; loka-bāhyaù—without caring for outsiders.

TRANSLATION

By chanting the holy name of the Supreme Lord, one comes to the stage of love of Godhead. Then the devotee is fixed in his vow as an eternal servant of the Lord, and he gradually becomes very much attached to a particular name and form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As his heart melts with ecstatic love, he laughs very loudly or cries or shouts. Sometimes he sings and dances like a madman, for he is indifferent to public opinion.

PURPORT

In this verse, pure love of God is being described. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has described this spiritual situation as samprāpta-prema-lakṣaṇa-bhakti-yogasya saṁsāra-dharmātetaṁ gatim, or the perfectional stage of life in which one's devotional service to the Supreme Lord is enriched by ecstatic love. At that time, one's spiritual duties are entirely beyond the scope of worldly affairs.

In Çré Caitanya-caritāmṛta (Ādi 7.78), there is the following statement by Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu:

dhairya dharite nāri, hailāma unmatta hāsi, kāṇḍi, nāci, gāi, yaiche mada-matta

"While chanting the holy name of the Lord in pure ecstasy, I lose myself, and thus I laugh, cry, dance and sing just like a madman." Caitanya Mahāprabhu immediately approached His spiritual master to ask him why He had apparently become mad by chanting the holy name of Kāṇḍa. His guru replied:

kāṇḍa-nāma-mahā-mantrera ei ta 'svabhāva yei jape, tāra kāṇḍe upajaye bhāva

"It is the nature of the Hare Kāṇḍa mahā-mantra that anyone who chants it immediately develops his loving ecstasy for Kāṇḍa." (Cc. Ādi 7.83) In this connection Çréla Prabhupāda has commented, "These symptoms are very prominently manifest in the body of a pure devotee. Sometimes when our students of the Kāṇḍa consciousness movement chant and dance, even in India people are astonished to see how these foreigners have learned to chant and dance in this ecstatic fashion. As explained by Caitanya Mahāprabhu, however, actually this is not due to practice, for without extra endeavor these symptoms become manifest in anyone who sincerely chants the Hare Kāṇḍa mahā-mantra."

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has warned us in this regard about the ungodly sahajiyās who imitate the pastimes of the Supreme Lord in an unauthorized way, neglecting the standard injunctions of Vedic scriptures, foolishly trying to take the position of Kāṇḍa as Puruṣottama, and thus making a cheap farce of the exalted pastimes of the Lord. Their so-called ecstatic symptoms like crying, shivering and falling on the ground are not to be confused with the advanced features of devotional service described by Çrédhara Svāmé as samprāpta-prema-lakṣaṇa-bhakti-yoga. Çréla Prabhupāda comments in this regard, "One who has attained this bhāva stage is no longer under the clutches of the illusory energy." Similarly, Kāṇēadāsa Kavirāja states:

*paṇi cama puruṣārtha-premanandamāta-sindhu
mukhādi ānanda yāra nahe eka bindu*

"For a devotee who has actually developed bhāva [love of Godhead], the pleasure derived from dharma, artha, kāma and mukha appears like a drop in the presence of the sea." (Cc. Ādi 7.85) As already stated in the previous verse of this chapter, gāyan vilajjo vicared asaṇ gaṇ: one exhibits the ecstatic symptoms of love of Godhead when he is asaṇ gaṇ, free from all attachment to material sense gratification.

The word loka-bāhyaṇ in this verse indicates that a pure devotee on the platform of prema, love of Godhead, is not at all concerned with ridicule, praise, respect or criticism from ordinary people in the bodily concept of life. Kāṇēa is the Absolute Truth, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and when He reveals Himself to a surrendered servant, all doubt and speculation about the nature of the Absolute are vanquished forever.

In this connection Çrēpāda Madhvācārya has quoted a verse from the Varāha Purāṇa:

kecid unmāda-vad bhaktā bāhya-liṇ ga-pradarṣakāṇ kecid āntara-bhaktāṇ syuṇ kecid caivobhayātmakāṇ mukha-prasādād dārōhyāc ca bhaktir jī eyā na cānyatāṇ

"Some devotees of the Lord exhibit external symptoms, acting like madmen, others are introspective devotees, and still others partake of both natures. It is by one's steadfastness and by the merciful vibrations emanating from one's mouth that one's devotion can be judged, not otherwise."

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has given a very nice example to illustrate ecstatic laughing and other symptoms of love of Godhead: 'Oh, that thief Kāñëa, the son of Yaçodä, has entered the house to steal the fresh butter. Grab Him! Keep Him away!' Hearing these menacing words spoken by the elderly gopë Jaraté, Kāñëa immediately prepares to leave the house. The devotee to whom this transcendental pastime is revealed laughs in ecstasy. But suddenly he can no longer see Kāñëa. He then cries in great lamentation, 'Oh! I achieved the greatest fortune in the world, and now it has suddenly slipped from my hands!' Thus the devotee cries loudly, 'So my Lord! Where are You? Give me Your answer!' The Lord answers, 'My dear devotee, I heard your loud complaint, and so I have again come before you.' Upon seeing Lord Kāñëa again, the devotee begins to sing, 'Today my life has become perfect.' Thus overwhelmed with transcendental bliss, he begins to dance like a madman."

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura also notes that the word druta-cittaù or "with a melted heart," indicates that one's heart, melted by the fire of anxiety to see the Lord, becomes like Jambünadé, a river of roseapple juice. The ācārya further points out, nāma-kértanasya sarvotkarīam: the present and previous verse clearly distinguish the exalted position of çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23], chanting and hearing the name and glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Caitanya Mahāprabhu also emphasized this by quoting:

*harer nāma harer nāma
harer nāmaiva kevalam
kalau nāsty eva nāsty eva
nāsty eva gatir anyathā*
[Cc. Ādi 17.21]

"In this age of Kali there is no alternative, there is no alternative, there is no alternative for spiritual progress but the holy name, the holy name, the holy name of the Lord." In his purports to Caitanya-caritāmāta (Ādi 7.76), Çréla

Prabhupāda has given an elaborate explanation of this verse.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura recommends that we study the following verse in this connection:

parivadatu jano yathā tathā vā nanu mukharo na vayaà vicārayāmaù hari-rasa-madirā-madāti-mattā bhuvī viluōhāmo naōāmo nirviçāmaù

"Let the garrulous populace say whatever they like; we shall pay them no regard. Thoroughly maddened by the ecstasy of the intoxicating beverage of love for Kāñëa, we shall enjoy life running about, rolling on the ground and dancing in ecstasy." (Padyāvalī 73)

TEXT 41

KaM vaAyaumaiçam s$ailalam mah"l%M ca jyaAetal%MiSa s$aÔvaAina id"zAAe âu"maAd"lIna, s$air"ts$amau"% "AMê h"re": zAr"lrM" yaitkM(ca BaUtaM 'aNAMaed"nanya:

khaà vāyum agnià salilā mahéà ca jyotéàñi sattvāni diço drumādén sarit-samudrāàç ca hareù çaréraà yat kià ca bhūtaà praëamed ananyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kham—ether; vāyum—air; agnim—fire; salilam—water; mahém—earth; ca—and; jyotéàñi—the sun, moon and other celestial luminaries; sattvāni—all living beings; diçau—the directions; druma-ädén—trees and other immovable creatures; sarit—the rivers; samudrān—and oceans; ca—also; hareù—of the Supreme Lord, Hari; çaréram—the body; yat kim ca—whatever; bhūtam—in created existence; praëamet—one should bow to; ananyaù—thinking nothing to be separate from the Lord.

TRANSLATION

A devotee should not see anything as being separate from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. Ether, fire, air, water, earth, the sun and other luminaries, all living beings, the directions, trees and other plants, the rivers and oceans—whatever a devotee experiences he should consider to be an expansion of Kāñëa. Thus seeing everything that exists within creation as the body of the Supreme Lord, Hari, the devotee should offer his sincere respects to the entire expansion of the Lord's body.

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has given this example from the Purāëas: yat paçyati, tat tv anurāgātiçayena "jagad dhana-mayaà lubdhāu kāmukāu kāmīnē-mayam" iti-vat hareù çaréram. "Because of a greedy person's obsession with money, wherever he goes he sees an opportunity for acquiring wealth. Similarly a very lusty man notices women everywhere." In the same way, a pure devotee should see the transcendental form of the Lord within everything, since everything is an expansion of the Lord. It is our practical experience that a greedy man will see money everywhere. If he goes to the forest he will immediately consider whether it would be profitable to purchase the forest land and sell the trees to a paper mill. Similarly, if a lusty man goes to the same forest he will look everywhere for beautiful women tourists who might happen to be there. And if a devotee goes to the same forest he will see Kāñëa there, knowing correctly that the entire forest, as well as the sky canopy above, is the inferior energy of the Lord. Kāñëa is supremely sacred, being the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and since everything that exists expands directly or indirectly from the body of the Lord, everything is sacred when seen through the eyes of a self-realized person. Therefore as stated in this verse, praëamet: one should offer one's sincere respects to everything. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has mentioned that we should see the personal form of Kāñëa everywhere.

This verse does not approve of the impersonal, atheistic philosophy that everything is God. In this regard, Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from the

Hari-vaàça:

*sarvaà harer vaçatvena çaréraà tasya bhaëyate ananyädhpatitväc ca
tad ananyam udéryate na cäpy abhedo jagatäà
viñëoù pürëa-guëasya tu*

"Because everything is under the control of the Supreme Lord, Hari, everything is considered to be His body. He is the original source and master of everything, and therefore nothing should be seen as different from Him. Nonetheless, one should not foolishly conclude that there is absolutely no difference between the material universe and Lord Viñëu, who is full of His own unique spiritual qualities."

The example is often given of the sun and the sun's rays. The sunshine is nothing but an expansion of the sun globe, and therefore there is no qualitative difference between the sun and its rays. But although the sunshine is situated everywhere and although everything is a transformation of the sun's energy, the sun globe itself, the source of the sunshine, is not everywhere, but is situated in a particular place in the vast sky and has its own specific form.

If we penetrate further into the sun globe we shall find the sun-god, Vivasvân. Although pseudointellectuals of the modern age who are incapable of even counting the hairs on their own heads will consider the sun-god a mythological figure, it is actually the foolish mythology of modern men to think that such a sophisticated apparatus as the sun, which provides heat and light for the entire universe, can function without intelligent administration. Transformations of solar energy make life possible on earth, and thus the earth can be understood to consist of an endless variety of secondary manifestations of all-pervading solar energy.

So within the sun planet is the personality Vivasvân, the chief administrator of the solar functions; the sun globe itself is localized; and the sun's rays expand everywhere. Similarly Çré Kâñëa, Çyämasundara, is the original Personality of Godhead (bhagavān svayam); He expands Himself as the localized Supersoul (Paramātmā) in everyone's heart; and finally He expands His potency by His personal bodily glow, the all-pervading spiritual effulgence called the brahma-jyotir. The entire material manifestation floats within the rays of this brahma-jyotir. Just as all life on earth is a transformation of the all-pervading rays of the sun, the entire cosmic manifestation is a transformation of the spiritual rays of the brahma-jyotir. As stated in the Brahma-saṁhitā (5.40):

*yasya prabhā prabhavato jagad-aṅga-koṭi-koṭīṁv aṅga-vasudhādi vibhūti-bhinnam tad brahma nīkalam anantam aṅga-bhūtaṁ
govindam ādi-puruṣaṁ tam ahaṁ bhajāmi*

"I worship Govinda, the primeval Lord, who is endowed with great power. The glowing effulgence of His transcendental form is the impersonal Brahman, which is absolute, complete and unlimited and which displays the varieties of countless planets, with their different opulences, in millions and millions of universes." Therefore, the brahma-jyotir is the spiritual light that emanates directly from the body of the Lord. This universe is a transformation of that spiritual energy, and therefore everything that exists is in one sense connected directly with the personal body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

It is emphasized here that we should offer respect to everything that exists, recognizing it to be the energy of the Lord. The example may be given that if a man is important his property is also important. The president of a country is the most important person in the country, and therefore everyone must respect his property. Similarly, everything that exists is an expansion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and should be respected accordingly. If we fail to see everything that exists as the energy of the Lord, we risk the danger of drifting into the Māyāvāda philosophy, which according to Caitanya Mahāprabhu is the most deadly poison for one trying to advance in actual spiritual life. Māyāvādi-bhāṇya ṣunile haya sarva-nāṣa (Cc. Madhya 6.169). If we try to understand Kāṇḍa alone, without the expansion of His potency, we shall not understand such statements in Bhagavad-gētā as vāsudevaù sarvam and ahaà sarvasya prabhavaù [Bg. 10.8].

As already explained in this chapter, bhayaà dvitiyābhiniveçataù syāt: fear or illusion arises from thinking that there is something not dependent upon the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Now, in this verse, the specific process for overcoming this fearful illusion is given. One must train one's mind to see everything that exists as an expansion of the potency of the Supreme Lord. By offering respects to everything and meditating upon everything as part of the body of the Lord, one will become free from fear. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (5.29), suhādaà sarva-bhütānām: Kāñëa is the well-wishing friend of every living being. As soon as one understands that everything that exists is under the powerful control of one's most beloved friend, one comes to the stage in which the whole universe becomes a blissful abode (viçvaà pürëa-sukhäyate), because he sees Kāñëa everywhere.

If Kāñëa's personality were not the source of everything and if everything were not connected to Kāñëa, one might be proper in concluding that Kāñëa's personality is a material manifestation of some impersonal truth. As stated in Vedānta-sūtra, janmādy asya yataù: [SB 1.1.1] the Absolute Truth is that from which everything emanates. Similarly, Kāñëa says, ahaà sarvasya prabhavaù: [Bg. 10.8] "I am the source of everything." If we see anything totally disconnected from the personal body of Kāñëa, we may doubt whether Kāñëa's personality is actually the absolute source described in Vedānta-sūtra. As soon as one feels this way, he becomes fearful and should be understood to be under the control of the Lord's illusory energy.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has warned us that if we do not see everything as a manifestation of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, we shall become victims of phalgu-vairāgya, or immature renunciation. Whatever we see as disconnected from Kāñëa will have in our mind no relationship to Kāñëa's service. But if we see everything as connected to Kāñëa, we shall use everything for Kāñëa's satisfaction. This is called yukta-vairāgya. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, "One who has experienced his own true identity understands that all things exist as paraphernalia for giving ecstatic pleasure to the Supreme Lord. Thus one becomes free from the separatist vision in which one sees the world as existing for one's own enjoyment. In the transcendental state, whatever a devotee sees reminds him of Kāñëa, and thus his transcendental knowledge and bliss increase." Because the impersonalist philosophers fail to see everything as belonging to the personal form of Kāñëa, they reject this world as having no true existence (jagan mithyā). But since the material world is an emanation from the supreme reality, Kāñëa, it does in fact exist. Its nonexistence is simply a creation of the imagination, and one cannot possibly act on such an imaginary platform. Therefore, having proposed an illusory theory and being unable actually to live on such a platform, the impersonalist comes back to the material platform for altruistic or gross sense gratificatory activities. Since the impersonalist does not accept the personal proprietorship of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, he does not know how or for whom to engage the things of this world, and since it is impossible to reject this world totally while living within it, he runs the risk of again becoming entangled in material fruitive activities. Therefore as stated in Bhagavad-gētā (12.5), kleṣo 'dhikataras teñām: the impersonal path of imaginary philosophy is very painful to follow.

The conclusion is that this verse is spoken to help the devotee of the Supreme Lord advance in Kāñëa consciousness. It can be understood from the previous verses of this chapter that the ultimate goal is pure devotional service to Lord Kāñëa. If one falsely interprets this verse to sanction the imaginary Mäyävāda philosophy that everything is God, one will simply become bewildered and fall from the path of spiritual advancement.

TEXT 42

Bai-(: pare"zAAnauBavaAe ivar"i-(r," @nyaṭa caESa iṭak(Wk(k(Ala: 'apaâmaAnasya yaTaA'ata: syaus$a, tauii": pauii": °aud"paAyaAe'nauGaAs$ama,

bhaktiù pareṇubhavo viraktir anyatra caiña trika eka-kālaù prapadyamānasya yathāçnataù syus tuññiù puññiù kñud-apāyo 'nu-ghāsam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhaktiù—devotion; para-éça—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead; anubhavaù—direct perception; viraktiù—detachment; anyatra—from everything else; ca—and; eñau—this; trikaù—group of three; eka-kālaù—simultaneously; prapadyamānasya—for one in the process of taking shelter of the Supreme Lord; yathā—in the same way as; açnataù—for one engaged in eating; syuù—they occur; tuññiù—satisfaction; puññiù—nourishment; kñut-apāyaù—eradication of hunger; anu-ghāsam—increasingly with each morsel.

TRANSLATION

Devotion, direct experience of the Supreme Lord, and detachment from other things—these three occur simultaneously for one who has taken shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, in the same way that pleasure, nourishment and relief from hunger come simultaneously and increasingly, with each bite, for a person engaged in eating.

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has explained this analogy as follows: Bhakti, or devotion, may be compared to tuññi (satisfaction) because they both take the form of pleasure. Pareçānubhava (experience of the Supreme Lord) and puññi (nourishment) are analogous because both sustain one's life. Finally, virakti (detachment) and kñud-apāya (cessation of hunger) may be compared because both free one from further hankering so that one may experience çānti, or peace.

A person who is eating not only becomes uninterested in other activities but increasingly becomes uninterested in the food itself, according to his satisfaction. On the other hand, according to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, although one who is experiencing the blissful Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, becomes uninterested in anything other than Kāñëa, his attachment to Kāñëa increases at every moment. Therefore it is to be understood that the transcendental beauty and qualities of the Supreme Lord are not material, since one never becomes satiated by relishing the bliss of the Supreme Lord.

The word viraktiù is very significant in this verse. Virakti means "detachment," whereas tyäga means "renunciation." According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, the word renunciation can be used in a situation in which one considers giving up an enjoyable object. But by considering everything to be potential paraphernalia in the service of Lord Kāñëa, as described in the previous verse, one need not give thought to renunciation, for one uses everything in the proper way in the service of the Lord. Yukta-vairägyam ucyate.

The very pleasant analogy of a good meal is given in this verse. A hungry man busily consuming a sumptuous plate of food is not interested in anything else happening around him. In fact, he considers any other topic or activity a disturbance to his concentration on the delicious meal. Similarly, as one advances in Kāñëa consciousness one considers anything unrelated to the devotional service of Kāñëa an obnoxious disturbance. Such concentrated love of Godhead has been described in the Second Canto of the Bhägavatam by the words tévreëa bhakti-yogena yajeta puruñäà param (SB 2.3.10). One should not make an artificial show of renouncing the material world; rather, one should systematically train the mind to see everything as an expansion of the opulence of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Just as a hungry materialistic man, upon seeing sumptuous food, immediately desires to put it in his mouth, an advanced devotee of Kāñëa, upon seeing a material object, immediately becomes eager to use it for the pleasure of Kāñëa. Without the spontaneous hunger to engage everything in the service of Kāñëa and to dive deeper and deeper into the ocean of love of Kāñëa, so-called realization of God or loose talk about so-called religious life is irrelevant to the actual experience of entering the kingdom of God.

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the path of bhakti-yoga is so joyful and practical that even in the stage of sädhana-bhakti, in which one follows rules and regulations without an advanced understanding, one can perceive the ultimate result. As stated by Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé (Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.2.187), *éhä yasya harer däsye

karmaëä manasä girä
nikhiläsv apy avasthäsu
jévan-muktaù sa ucyate*

As soon as one surrenders to the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa (prapadyamānasya), giving up all other activities (viraktir anyatra ca), one is immediately to be considered a liberated soul (jévan-muktaù). The Supreme Lord, Kāñëa, is so merciful that when a living entity understands that the personality Kāñëa is the source of everything and surrenders to the Lord, Kāñëa personally takes charge of him and reveals to him within his heart that he is under the Lord's full protection. Thus devotion, direct experience of the Personality of Godhead, and detachment from other objects become manifest even in the beginning stage of bhakti-yoga, since bhakti-yoga begins at the point of liberation. Other processes have as their final goal salvation or liberation, but according to Bhagavad-gétä (18.66), sarva-dharmän parityajya mäm ekaà çaraëaà vraja ahaà tväà sarva-päpebhyo mokñayiñyämi mä çucaù

If one surrenders to Kāñëa one is immediately liberated and thus begins his career as a transcendental devotee with complete confidence in the Lord's protection.

TEXT 43

wtacyautaAx.~i.,aM BajataAe'nauva{ÔyaA Bai-(ivaRr"i-(BaRgAvat'abaAeDa: Bavainta vaE BaAgAvatasya r"AjaMs$a, tata: par"AM zAAintamaupaEita s$A°aAta,

ity acyutài ghrià bhajato 'nuvâttyä bhaktir viraktir bhagavat-prabodhaù bhavanti vai bhägavatasya räjäàs tataù paräà çäntim upaiti säkñät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; acyuta—of the infallible Supreme Lord; aìghrim—the feet; bhajataù—for one who is worshipping; anuvâttyä—by constant practice; bhaktiù—devotion; viraktiù—detachment; bhagavat-prabodhaù—knowledge of the Personality of Godhead; bhavanti—they manifest; vai—indeed; bhägavatasya—for the devotee; räjan—O King Nimi; tataù—then; paräm çäntim—supreme peace; upaiti—he attains; säkñät—directly.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, the devotee who worships the lotus feet of the infallible Personality of Godhead with constant endeavor thus achieves unflinching devotion, detachment and experienced knowledge of the Personality of Godhead. In this way the successful devotee of the Lord achieves supreme spiritual peace.

PURPORT

As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (2.71):

*vihäya kämän yaù sarväm pumäàç carati niùspåhaù nirmamo nirahaì käraù
sa çäntim adhigacchati*

"A person who has given up all desires for sense gratification, who lives free from desires, who has given up all sense of proprietorship and who is devoid of false ego—he alone can attain real peace." Çréla Prabhupäda comments,

"To become desireless means not to desire anything for sense gratification. In other words, desire for becoming Kāñëa conscious is actually desirelessness." There is a similar statement in the Caitanya-caritāmāta (Madhya 19.149):

kāñëa-bhakta-niñkāma, ataeva 'çänta'
bhukti-mukti-siddhi-kāmé sakali 'açänta'

"Because a devotee of Lord Kāñëa is desireless, he is peaceful. Fruitive workers desire material enjoyment, jī'ānēs desire liberation, and yogés desire material opulence; therefore they are all lusty and cannot be peaceful."

Generally there are three classes of living entities afflicted with selfish desire. These are the bhukti-kāmé, mukti-kāmé and siddhi-kāmi. Bhukti-kāmé refers to those ordinary persons who desire money and everything money can buy. Such a primitive mentality is based on the desire to enjoy money, sex and social prestige. When a living being becomes frustrated with this hallucination, he takes to the path of speculative philosophy and analytically tries to track down the source of illusion. Such a person is called mukti-kāmé because he desires to negate material illusion and merge into an impersonal spiritual state, free from anxiety. The mukti-kāmé is also motivated by personal desire, although the desire is somewhat more elevated. Similarly the siddhi-kāmé, or the mystic yogé who desires the spectacular powers of mystic yoga, such as reaching one's hand across the world or making oneself smaller than the smallest or lighter than the lightest, is also infected by material or selfish desire. Therefore it is said, sakali 'açänta.' If one has any personal desire, whether it be material, philosophical or mystic, he will be açänta, or ultimately frustrated, because he will see himself as the central object of satisfaction. This egocentric concept is in itself illusory and therefore ultimately frustrating.

On the other hand, kāñëa-bhakta niñkāma, ataeva 'çänta': [Cc. Madhya 19.149] a devotee of Lord Kāñëa is niñkāma; he has no personal desire. His only desire is to please Kāñëa. Lord Çiva himself has praised this outstanding quality of the pure devotees of the Lord by stating,

*nārāyaëa-paräù sarve
na kutaçcana bibhyati
svargäpavarga-narakeñv
api tulyārtha-darçinaù*

"A person who is devoted to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa, is not afraid of anything. Elevation to the heavenly kingdom, condemnation to hell and liberation from material bondage all appear the same to a devotee." (SB 6.17.28) Although the impersonalist philosopher proposes that everything is one, the devotee of the Lord is actually tulyārtha-darçé, or empowered with the vision of oneness. The devotee sees everything as the potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and therefore desires to engage everything in the service of the Lord, for the Lord's satisfaction. Since the devotee does not see anything as dvitéya, or outside the scope of the Lord's potency, he is happy in any situation. Having no personal desire, the devotee of Kāñëa is actually çānta, or peaceful, because he has achieved the perfection of life, love of Kāñëa. He is actually situated in his eternal constitutional position under the direct shelter and protection of the omnipotent Parameçvara, Kāñëa.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, this verse ends the answer given by the first of the nine Yogendras, Kavi, to Mahārāja Nimi's first question, "What is the highest good?"

TEXT 44

™alr"AjaAevaAca
@Ta BaAgAvataM "aUta
yaÜ"maAeR yaAä{"zAAe na{NAAma, yaTaAcar"ita yaä," "aUtae yaEilaR$ËËyBaRgAvait'aya:

*çré-räjoväca
atha bhägavataà brüta yad-dharmo yädâço näëäm*

yathācarati yad brūte yair lii gair bhagavat-priyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King spoke; atha—next; bhāgavatam—about the devotee of the Personality of Godhead; brūta—please tell me; yat-dharmaù—having what duties; yādāçaù—having what nature; nāëām—among men; yathā—how; ācarati—he behaves; yat—what; brūte—he speaks; yaiù—by which; lii gaiù—visible symptoms; bhagavat-priyaù—(he is known as) one dear to the Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Mahārāja Nimi said: Now please tell me in greater detail about the devotees of the Supreme Lord. What are the natural symptoms by which I can distinguish between the most advanced devotees, those on the middle level and those who are neophytes? What are the typical religious activities of a Vaiñëava, and how does he speak? Specifically, please describe those symptoms and characteristics by which Vaiñëavas become dear to the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

The great sage Kavi has informed King Nimi about the general external symptoms of a devotee of the Lord, namely his appearance, personal qualities and activities. But now King Nimi asks how to make further distinctions among the servants of the Supreme Personality of Godhead so that the first-class, second-class and lower-class Vaiñëavas can be clearly identified.

According to Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé, kāñëeti yasya giri taà manasādriyeta: "One should mentally honor any devotee who chants the holy name of Lord Kāñëa." (Upadeçāmāta 5) Any living entity who is faithfully chanting the holy name of Kāñëa is to be considered a Vaiñëava and at least within the mind is to be offered respect. But for practical advancement in Kāñëa consciousness one should associate at least with a second-class devotee. And if one can receive the mercy of a first-class devotee of the Lord, one's perfection is very easily guaranteed. Thus Nimi Mahārāja is humbly inquiring, "What are the character, behavior and speech of devotees?" The King wants to know the particular symptoms of body, mind and speech by which the different categories uttama-adhikārī, madhyama-adhikārī and kaniñōha-adhikārī are clearly identified. In response to the King's inquiry, another of the nava-yogendras, namely Havir, will give a further elaboration of the science of Kāñēa consciousness.

TEXT 45

™alh"ivaç&vaAca
s$avaR BaUtaeSau ya: pazyaeä," BagAvaà"AvamaAtmana:
BaUtaAina BagAvatyaAtmanya, WSa BaAgAvataAeÔama:

çré-havir uvāca
sarva-bhūteṇu yaù paçyed bhagavad-bhāvam ātmanaù bhūtāni bhagavaty ātmany eṇa bhāgavatottamaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-haviù uvāca—Çré Havir said; sarva-bhūteṇu—in all objects (in matter, spirit, and combinations of matter and spirit); yaù—anyone who; paçyet—sees; bhagavat-bhāvam—the ability to be engaged in the service of the Lord; ātmanaù—of the supreme spirit soul, or the transcendence beyond the material concept of life; bhūtāni—all beings; bhagavati—in the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ātmani—the basic principle of all existence; eṇaù—this; bhāgavata-uttamaù—a person advanced in devotional service.

TRANSLATION

Çré Havir said: The most advanced devotee sees within everything the soul of all souls, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Çré Kâñëa. Consequently he sees systematically everything in relation to the Supreme Lord and understands that everything that exists is eternally situated within the Lord.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gētā (6.30) the Lord says, *yo mää paçyati sarvatra sarvaà ca mayi paçyati tasyähaà na praëaçyämi

sa ca me na praëaçyati*

"For one who sees Me everywhere and sees everything in Me, I am never lost, nor is he ever lost to Me." Çréla Prabhupäda comments, "A person in Kâñëa consciousness certainly sees Lord Kâñëa everywhere, and he sees everything in Kâñëa. Such a person may appear to see all separate manifestations of the material nature, but in each and every instance he is conscious of Kâñëa, knowing that everything is the manifestation of Kâñëa's energy. Nothing can exist without Kâñëa, and Kâñëa is the Lord of everything-this is the basic principle of Kâñëa consciousness."

The qualification for seeing Kâñëa everywhere is stated in the Brahma-saàhitä (5.38):

premäi jana-cchurita-bhakti-vilocanena santaù sadaiva hãdayeñu vilokayanti yaà çyämasundaram acintya-guëa-svarüpaà govindam ädi-puruñaà tam ahaà bhajämi

"I worship the primeval Lord, Govinda, who is always seen by the devotee whose eyes are anointed with the pulp of love. He is seen in His eternal form of Çyāmasundara, situated within the heart of the devotee." A devotee of the highest level of spiritual qualification is glorified for the expansiveness of his spiritual vision. For example, when the stalwart demon Hiraëyakaçipu questioned his self-realized son Prahläda Mahäräja as to the whereabouts of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Prahläda, being a mahä-bhägavata, or pure devotee, answered straightforwardly that the Supreme Lord is everywhere. The demoniac father then asked if God was in the pillar of the palace. When Prahläda answered yes, Hiraëyakaçipu, being a bona fide demon, struck the pillar with his sword, trying to kill God, or at least disprove His existence. Then Lord Näsäha-deva, the most ferocious form of the Supreme Lord, immediately appeared and finished forever the illicit program of Hiraëyakaçipu. Thus Prahläda Mahäräja can be accepted as an uttama-adhikärë devotee.

A pure devotee is completely free from the tendency to enjoy things separately from the Lord's service. He does not see anything in the universe as unfavorable, because he sees everything as the expanded potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Such a devotee's purpose in existing is to give pleasure somehow or other to the Supreme Lord. Thus everything that a pure devotee experiences, moment by moment, increases his ecstatic loving desire to satisfy the transcendental senses of the Lord.

The three modes of material nature torment the conditioned soul, who absorbs his mind in the separated, material energy of the Lord. The function of this separated energy, bhinnä prakäti, is to take the living entity away from the reality, which is that everything is within Kāñëa and Kāñëa is within everything. Being covered by gross ignorance, the bewildered conditioned soul believes that only the objects of his own limited vision actually exist. Sometimes such foolish persons speculate that if a tree falls in a forest with no one to hear it, there will actually be no sound. The conditioned souls do not consider that since the Supreme Personality of Godhead is all-pervading, there is no question of no one's hearing; the Lord always hears. As stated in the Thirteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gëtä (13.14), sarvataù çrutimal loke: the Supreme Lord hears everything. He is upadrañña, the witness of everything (Bg. 13.23).

In this verse the word *bhāgavatottama*ù, "the most advanced devotee," indicates that there are those who are not gross materialists but who are not the highest devotees. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, those who cannot properly distinguish between devotees and nondevotees and who therefore never worship the pure devotees of the Lord are to be known as kaniñña-adhikāris, devotees on the lowest stage of devotional service. Such kaniñña-adhikāris engage in worship of the Supreme Lord, especially in the temple, but are indifferent to the Lord's devotees. Thus they misunderstand this statement by Lord Çiva in the Padma Purāṇa:

*ārāḍhanāṇā sarveṇā
viññeor ārāḍhanaṇā param
tasmād parataraṇā devī tadēyāṇā samarcanam*

"O Devé, the most exalted system of worship is the worship of Lord Viññeu. Greater than that is the worship of tadēya, or anything belonging to Viññeu." Çréla Prabhupāda comments on this verse, "Çré Viññeu is sac-cid-ānanda-vigraha [Bs. 5.1]. Similarly the most confidential servant of Kāñṇea, the spiritual master, and all devotees of Viññeu are tadēya. The sac-cid-ānanda-vigraha, guru, Vaiññeavas and things used by them must be considered tadēya, and without a doubt worshipable by all living beings." (Cc. Madhya 12.38 purport)

Typically the kaniñña-adhikāre is eager to engage his materialistic qualifications in the service of the Lord, mistaking such material expertise to be the sign of advanced devotion. But by continuing to serve the Supreme Lord and the devotees engaged in propagating the Lord's mission, the kaniñña-adhikāre also advances in his realization and comes to the stage of dedicating his activities to helping more advanced Vaiññeavas. Even such kaniñña-adhikāres can help ordinary living entities by their association, since at least the kaniñña-adhikāres have faith that Kāñṇea is the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Because of this faith, the kaniñña-adhikāre gradually becomes inimical to those who are opposed to the Lord. As he gradually becomes more and more inimical to those who hate the supremacy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and becomes more attracted to friendship with other faithful servants of the Lord, the kaniñña-adhikāre approaches the second-class stage, called madhyama. In the madhyama stage the Vaiñëava sees the Lord as the cause of all causes and the chief goal of everyone's loving propensity. He sees the Vaiñëavas as his only friends within this morbid world and is eager to bring innocent people within the shelter of Vaiñëava society. Also, a madhyama-adhikāre strictly avoids associating with the self-proclaimed enemies of God. When such an intermediate qualification becomes mature, the concept of supreme qualification begins to present itself; that is, one comes to the stage of uttama-adhikāre.

A kaniñña-adhikāre guru, one who is simply attached to performing religious ceremonies and worshiping the Deity, without appreciation for other Vaiñëavas, especially those who are preaching the message of the Lord, will especially appeal to persons interested in the dry cultivation of knowledge. As a living entity develops mundane piety, he proudly devotes himself to regulated work and nobly tries to detach himself from the fruits of his work. Through such regulated detached work, knowledge or wisdom gradually arises. As knowledge or wisdom becomes prominent, the pious materialist becomes attracted to altruistic and charitable work and gives up gross sinful activities. If he is fortunate, he then becomes favorable to the transcendental devotional service of the Lord. Desiring a mere intellectual understanding of devotional service, such a pious materialist may seek shelter at the feet of a kaniñña-adhikāre. If able to advance to the madhyama qualification, he then becomes attracted to a Vaiñëava actively engaged in preaching Kāñëa consciousness. And when fully mature on the platform of intermediate devotion, he becomes attracted to the mahā-bhāgavata level and is awarded a glimpse of the exalted position of the mahā-bhāgavata spiritual master by the grace of Kāñëa within his heart. If one gradually goes on in the devotional service of the Lord, one becomes established as a paramahañsa mahā-bhāgavata. At this stage all of his actions, movements and engagements in preaching are dedicated solely to the satisfaction of Kāñëa. The illusory potency, māyā, has no power to throw or cover such a purified living entity. In Upadeṣāmāta (5) Ṣṛēla Rūpa Gosvāmē has described this stage of life as bhajana-vijī am ananyam anya-nindādi-ṣūnya-hādam.

A mahā-bhāgavata, being empowered by the Supreme Lord, Yogeṣvara, is endowed with the supernatural power to inspire and give success to the madhyama-adhikārē who follows in his footsteps and to elevate a kaniñōha-adhikārē gradually to the intermediate platform. Such devotional power springs automatically from the ocean of mercy found within the heart of a pure devotee. Ṣṛēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura points out that a mahā-bhāgavata has no desire to inflict punishment on the enemies of the Lord. Rather, he engages the madhyama-adhikārēs and kaniñōha-adhikārēs in preaching work to purify the polluted mentality of the inimical souls, who are falsely imagining the material world to be separate from Kāñēa.

There are unfortunate living entities who are unable to understand the glory of a kaniñōha-adhikārē within the realm of devotional service, have no praise for the more advanced state of intermediate devotion and cannot even begin to understand the most exalted stage, that of the uttama-adhikārē. Such unfortunate souls, attracted to impersonal Māyāvāda speculation, follow faithfully in the footsteps of Kaṁsa, Agha, Baka and Pūtanā and are thus killed by Ṣṛē Hari. In this way the community of sense gratifiers remains uninterested in service at the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord, and according to the individual perverted vision of so-called self-interest, each materialist chooses his own misfortune in the form of repeated birth and death in various types of material bodies. There are 8,400,000 species of material forms, and the materialistic living entities select the particular flavors of birth, old age, disease and death they wish to inflict upon themselves under the hallucinations of so-called material progress.

The analogy is given that a lusty man, being agitated by sexual desire, sees the whole world as filled with sensuous women. In a similar way, a pure devotee of Kāñēa sees Kāñēa consciousness everywhere, although it may be temporarily covered. Thus one sees the world just as one sees himself (ātmavan manyate jagat). On this basis one may argue that the vision of the mahā-bhāgavata is also illusioned, since the Bhāgavatam has already stated throughout that those conditioned by the three modes of material nature are not at all Kāñëa conscious but in fact are inimical to Kāñëa. But although the conditioned living entity may appear inimical to the Lord, the eternal, unalterable fact is that every living being is part and parcel of Kāñëa. Although one's ecstatic love for Kāñëa may now be covered by the influence of māyā, by the causeless mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead the conditioned soul will gradually be promoted to the stage of Kāñëa consciousness.

In fact, everyone is suffering the pangs of separation from Kāñëa. Because the conditioned soul imagines that he has no eternal relationship with Kāñëa, he is unable to ascertain that all his miseries are due to this separation. This is māyā, or "that which is not." Actually, to think that misery arises from anything other than separation from Kāñëa is to be in illusion. So when a pure devotee sees living entities suffering within this world, he correctly feels that just as he is suffering because of separation from Kāñëa, all other living beings are also suffering from separation from Kāñëa. The difference is that a pure devotee correctly ascertains the cause of his heartbreak whereas the conditioned soul, bewildered by māyā, is unable to understand his eternal relationship with Kāñëa and the unlimited pain arising from neglect of that relationship.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has quoted the following verses, which illustrate the ecstatic feelings of the topmost devotees of the Lord. In the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (10.35.9) the goddesses of Vraja speak as follows:

vana-latās tarava ātmani viñëuà vyai jayantya iva puñpa-phalāòhyäù praëata-bhāra-viöapā madhu-dhäräù prema-hāñña-tanavo vavāñuù sma

"The creepers and trees of the forest, their branches weighed down by rich coverings of flowers and fruits, seemed to manifest Lord Viñëu within their hearts. Exhibiting eruptions of ecstatic love upon their bodies, they poured down rains of honey." Elsewhere in the Tenth Canto (SB 10.21.15) it is said:

nadyas tadä tad upadhärya mukunda-gétam ävarta-lakñita-mano-bhava-bhagna-vegäù äliì gana-sthagitam ürmi-bhujair murärer gähëanti päda-yugalaà kamalopahäräù

"Hearing the song of Lord Mukunda's flute, the rivers then stopped their currents, although the minds of the rivers could still be ascertained from the presence of whirlpools. With the arms of their waves the rivers seized the two lotus feet of Muräri, taking help from the lotus plants, and thus He became trapped in their embrace." And in the last chapter of the Tenth Canto (10.90.15), the queens of Dväarakä pray:

kurari vilapasi tvaà véta-nidrä na çeñe svapiti jagati rätryäm eçvaro gupta-bodhaù vayam iva sakhi kaccid gäðha-nirviddha-cetä nalina-nayana-häsodära-lélekñitena

"Dear kuraré, now it is very late at night. Everyone is sleeping. The whole world is now calm and peaceful. At this time, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is sleeping, although His knowledge is undisturbed by any circumstance. Then why are you not sleeping? Why are you lamenting like this throughout the whole night? Dear friend, is it that you are also attracted by the lotus eyes of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and by His sweet smiling and attractive words, exactly as we are? Do those dealings of the Supreme Personality of Godhead pinch your heart as they do ours?" Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has also given mother Yaçodä as an example of an uttama-adhikäre, for mother Yaçodä actually saw all living beings within the mouth of Kânëa during the Lord's Vändävana lälä.

Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura also points out in his commentary, atra paçyed iti tathä darçana-yogyataiva vivakñitā, na tu tathä darçanasya sārva-kālikatā. "In this verse the word paçyet, or 'one must see,' does not mean that at every moment one is visualizing the form of Kânëa; rather, it means that one has reached the exalted platform of devotional service on which he is fit to see or is capable of seeing Kânëa's form." If only those who constantly see the form of Kânëa are to be considered uttama-adhikärés, then Nārada, Vyāsa and Çukadeva cannot be considered topmost devotees, since they do not always see the Lord everywhere. Of course, Nārada, Vyāsa and Çukadeva are considered to be on the highest standard of pure devotional service, and therefore the real qualification is tad-didākñādhikya, or having an overwhelming desire to see the Lord. Therefore the statement of Bhagavad-gētā that a devotee should see Kāñëa everywhere (yo mää paçyati sarvatra) can be understood in terms of the example of a lusty man's thinking that the world is full of beautiful women. Similarly, one should become transcendently so desirous of seeing the Lord that one can perceive within the entire universe nothing but Kāñëa and His potency. Väsudevaù sarvam iti [Bg. 7.19]. In Çréla Prabhupāda's correspondence in 1969 with Professor J. F. Staal of the University of California, Çréla Prabhupāda claimed that all of his disciples who were strictly following the intense program of Kāñëa consciousness were in fact sudurlabha-mahātmās who were seeing väsudevaù sarvam. In other words, if one is constantly engaged in Kāñëa consciousness with an intense desire to please the Lord and one day gain His association, it is to be understood that in one's life there is nothing but Kāñëa. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has warned us, however, that a mere theoretical or academic understanding that Kāñëa is everything does not qualify one as a first-class devotee. One must actually have developed love for Kāñëa. Therefore it can be practically understood that anyone who enthusiastically adopts the Kāñëa consciousness program and eagerly participates in the preaching activities of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness is acting on the platform of a madhyama-adhikäre devotee. When such a devotee becomes overwhelmed by his desire to serve Kāñëa and associate with the Lord, so much so that he is not attracted to anything else within the universe, he should be understood to be an uttama-adhikäre Vaiñëava, as mentioned in this verse.

TEXT 46

wRsvare" tad"DalnaeSau baAilazAeSau iã"Sats$au ca
'aemamaE†alk{(paAepae°aA ya: k(r"Aeita s$a maDyama:

éçvare tad-adhèneñu
bäliçeñu dviñatsu ca
prema-maitré-kâpokeñä
yaù karoti sa madhyamaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

éçvare—unto the Supreme Personality of Godhead; tat-adhèneñu—to persons who have taken fully to Kâñëa consciousness; bäliçeñu—unto the neophytes or the ignorant; dviñatsu—to persons envious of Kâñëa and Kâñëa's devotees; ca—and; prema—love; maitré—friendship; kâpä—mercy; upekñäù—negligence; yaù—anyone who; karoti—does; saù—he; madhyamaù—a second-class devotee.

TRANSLATION

An intermediate or second-class devotee, called madhyama-adhikäre, offers his love to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is a sincere friend to all the devotees of the Lord, shows mercy to ignorant people who are innocent and disregards those who are envious of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

According to Bhagavad-gētä, every living entity within the material world is eternally a minute fragmental portion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Mamaiväàço jéva-loke jéva-bhütaù sanätanaù (Bg. 15.7). But because of the influence of mäyä the puffed-up conditioned souls become inimical to the service of the Lord and the Lord's devotees, choose leaders among the materialistic sense gratifiers, and thus engage busily in a useless society of the cheaters and the cheated, a society of the blind leading the blind into a ditch. Although the community of Vaiñëavas is sincerely eager to serve the conditioned souls by bringing them back to their constitutional position, by mäyä's influence the materialistic living entity becomes hardhearted and rejects the mercy of the Lord's devotees.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, although a second-class devotee is eager to preach to the innocent conditioned souls, he should avoid the atheistic class of men so that he will not become disturbed or polluted by their association. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has confirmed that a Vaiñëava should be indifferent to those who are envious of the Supreme Lord. It is practically seen that when such persons are informed of the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they attempt to ridicule the Supreme Lord, thus further deteriorating their polluted existence. In this connection Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has quoted from the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (10.20.36):

*girayo mumucus toyaà kvacin na mumucuù çivam yathä jì änämâtaà kâle
jì änino dadate na vä*

"Sometimes in autumn the water falls down from the tops of the hills to supply clean water, and sometimes the water stops. Similarly, sometimes great saintly persons distribute clear knowledge, and sometimes they are silent."

In this regard, Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has mentioned that although the first-class devotee of the Lord may at times exhibit apparent hatred toward the demons because of entering the mood of the Lord's pastimes, the intermediate devotees should avoid such feelings. Furthermore, the intermediate devotee should not in any way associate with the powerful atheistic class of men, because there is danger that his mind will become bewildered by such association. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, if a Vaiñëava preacher encounters one who is envious of him, the preacher should remain far away from such an envious person. But the Vaiñëava preacher may meditate upon ways to save the envious class of men. Such meditation is called sad-äcära, or saintly behavior. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has mentioned Prahlāda Mahārāja as an example of a saintly person. In Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (7.9.43) there is the following statement by Prahlāda:

naivodvije para duratyaya-vaitaraëyäs tvad-vërya-gäyana-mahämâta-magna-cittau çoce tato vimukha-cetasa indriyārtha-māyā-sukhāya bharam udvahato vimüòhān

"O best of the great personalities, I am not at all afraid of material existence, for wherever I stay I am fully absorbed in thought of Your glories and activities. My concern is only for the fools and rascals who are making elaborate plans for material happiness and maintaining their families, societies and countries. I am simply concerned with love for them." Although a Vaiñëava preacher constantly meditates on the welfare of all living entities, he will not associate with those who are unreceptive to the message of the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa. In this regard Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura states that even Bharata Mahārāja, Vyāsadeva and Çukadeva Gosvāmé do not exhibit their mercy indiscriminately.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has given an elaborate explanation to prove that the discrimination employed by a madhyama-adhikāre preacher does not at all show a lack of mercy. He states that upekñā, or neglect, as mentioned in this verse, is the proper medicine for those who are inimical to the Supreme Lord and His devotees. Indifference from the preacher checks feelings of hostility on both sides. Although there is a Vedic injunction that one should cut out the tongue of a person who offends the Supreme Lord and His devotees, in this age it is best simply to avoid potential offenders and thus prevent them from committing further sinful activities against the Vaiñëavas. It is the duty of a Vaiñëava preacher to point out the futility of any process besides surrendering to the Supreme Lord. An envious person, however, will resent such strong preaching by a Vaiñëava and disrespect him, considering the devotee to be unnecessarily criticizing others. Such a person, who cannot appreciate the mercy of Vaiñëavas, should be neglected. Otherwise, according to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, his cheating mentality will increase day by day.

Those who are not attracted to the saì kértana movement of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu and who disrespect the faithful servants of Lord Caitanya, considering their strong statements about the saì kértana movement to be obstacles to their own worship of the Lord, will never be able to fix their minds on Kāñëa, but will gradually fall down from the path of devotion by confusing the external activities of the material world with the actual worship of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. Such bewilderment has been expressed by the words bhayaà dvitëyābhiniveçatau syāt.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has strongly rejected those foolish persons who, under a plea of mercy and equal vision, perceive that a faithless person is also a devotee of the Supreme Lord and who thus try to thrust the hari-nāma, or holy name of God, upon such offensive people. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta has stated, "When childish people think themselves mahā-bhāgavatas and act in defiance of the Vaiñëava spiritual master, such behavior simply holds them back from receiving the mercy of the Vaiñëava guru. Bewildered by false ego, these self-proclaimed devotees gradually become fit to be ignored by pure devotees on the intermediate platform and are cheated of the mercy that comes from the devotees' satisfaction. Thus they become asādhū by constantly committing offenses against the devotees who preach the holy name of Kāñëa. Pure devotees, therefore, in all circumstances display indifference to those who falsely imagine themselves to be viçuddha-bhaktas, or pure devotees of the Lord. This indifference is an excellent manifestation of their mercy." In other words, those who criticize the Vaiñëava preachers on the second-class platform for discriminating between those who are fit to receive the Lord's mercy and those who are simply envious are misunderstanding the mission of the Lord. Kāñëa Himself states in Bhagavad-gētā (4.8):

*pariträëäya sādhunāà
vinäçäya ca duñkātām dharma-saàsthāpanārthāya sambhavāmi yuge yuge*

"To deliver the pious and to annihilate the miscreants, as well as to reestablish the principles of religion, I advent Myself millennium after millennium." Even such a great Vaiñëava as Çukadeva Gosvāmé, one of the twelve mahājanas in this universe, expressed his contempt for the evil Kaàsa.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has pointed out that even though the mahā-bhāgavata devotee may act on the second-class platform for preaching, his rejection of the envious living entities does not obstruct his vision of the Lord as all-pervading. Rather, when a first-class devotee or even a second-class devotee rejects the atheistic class of men, he is expressing the mission of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. A first-class or second-class Vaiñëava never actually becomes envious of another living entity, but out of intense love for the Supreme Lord he becomes angry when the Lord is offended. Also, understanding the Lord's mission, he discriminates according to the position of a particular living entity. To consider such a Vaiñëava preacher an ordinary, envious person, or to consider him sectarian because of his proclamation of pure devotional service as the most exalted of all methods of spiritual advancement, reflects a materialistic vision called vaiñëave jāti-buddhiù or guruñu nara-matiù. Such an offense drags the offender down to a hellish condition of life by the laws of nature.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, although a mahā-bhāgavata sees every living entity as a pure spirit soul, such a mahā-bhāgavata still experiences special ecstasies and other symptoms upon meeting another Vaiñëava. This is not contradictory to his vision as a topmost devotee; rather, it is a symptom of his love for Kāñëa. A pure devotee sees every living entity as part and parcel of Kāñëa and therefore expresses his love for Kāñëa through love for all the expansions and creations of Kāñëa. Still, such a mahā-bhāgavata feels special ecstatic love upon seeing another living entity directly pleasing the senses of the Supreme Lord. Such feelings are manifest in the statement of Lord Çiva to the Pracetäs:

*kñäëärdhenäpi tulaye
na svargaà näpunar-bhavam bhagavat-saì gi-saì gasya martyänäà kim utäçinäu*

"If one by chance associates with a devotee, even for a fraction of a moment, he no longer is subject to attraction by the results of karma or jì äna. What interest then can he have in the benedictions of the demigods, who are subject to the laws of birth and death?" (SB 4.24.57) Similarly, Lord Çiva also stated:

*atha bhāgavatā yūyaṁ priyāu stha bhagavān yathā na mad bhāgavatānāṁ ca
preyān anyo 'sti karhicit*

"You are all devotees of the Lord, and as such I appreciate that you are as respectable as the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself. I know that in this way the devotees also respect me and that I am dear to them. Thus no one can be as dear to the devotees as I am." (SB 4.24.30) Similarly, in the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.7.11) Çréla Çukadeva Gosvāmé is mentioned as nityaṁ viññeu-jana-priyāu, especially dear to the pure devotees of the Lord.

The wonderful loving dealings between Vaiññeavas on the topmost platform are demonstrated in the pastimes of Caitanya-caritāmāta. In other words, although a Vaiññeava sees every living entity as part and parcel of Kāññeā, he must discriminate in his external behavior so as not to interfere with the original purpose of the Lord's creation, which is to reform the living entities so that they can gradually come back home, back to Godhead. A pure devotee does not foolishly pretend equal vision and approach envious persons; rather, he respects the mission of the Lord, as stated in Bhagavad-gētā (4.11) by the words ye yathā māṁ prapadyante tāṁs tathaiva bhajāmy aham.

On the other hand, if it is the Lord's desire, a pure devotee can offer his respects to all living beings. For example, Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé mentions that Uddhava and other pure devotees of the Lord were always prepared to offer respectful obeisances even to such persons as Duryodhana. Madhyama-adhikārés, however, should not imitate such uttama-adhikāré behavior. In this connection, the distinction between madhyama-adhikāré and uttama-adhikāré is stated by Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura as follows: atra sarva-bhüteñu bhagavad-darçana-yogyatā yasya kadācid api na dāññä. A madhyama-adhikāré cannot at any time perceive the presence of the Supreme Lord within all living beings, whereas an uttama-adhikāre, however he acts on the second-class platform to carry out the Lord's mission, is aware that every living entity is ultimately a forgetful Kāñëa conscious living entity. Therefore, although a devotee may externally engage four different types of behavior, as mentioned in this verse—namely, worship of the Lord, friendship with the devotees, preaching to the innocent and rejection of the demons—he is not necessarily on the second-class platform, since an uttama-adhikāre also may exhibit these symptoms to carry out the Lord's mission. In this regard, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura mentions that it is the duty of the madhyama-adhikāre to extend himself as the right hand of the uttama-adhikāre, vowing to work for the benefit of others and offering to help in distributing love of Kāñëa.

Finally, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has given a nice explanation of the difference between arcana and bhajana. Arcana refers to the platform of sādhana-bhakti, in which one serves the Lord to carry out the rules and regulations of the process. One who has achieved the shelter of the Lord's holy name and is totally engaged in the attempt to serve the Lord should be considered to be on the platform of bhajana, even though his external activities may sometimes be less strict than those of the neophyte engaged in arcana. This apparent lack of strictness, however, refers to laxity not in the basic principles of sane behavior and renunciation of sense gratification, but rather in the details of Vaiñëava ceremonies.

TEXT 47

@caARyaAmaeva h"r"yae paUjaAM ya: T^maÜ"yaeh"tae na taà".e(Sau caAnyaeSau
 s$a Ba·(: 'aAk{(ta: sma{ta:

*arcäyäm eva haraye
 püjäà yaù çraddhayehate na tad-bhakteñu cānyeñu sa bhaktaù prākātaù smātaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

arcāyām—Deity; eva—certainly; haraye—to Lord Hari; pūjām—worship; yaù—who; çraddhayä—faithfully; éhate—engages; na—not; tat—of Kāñëa; bhakteñu—toward the devotees; ca—and; anyeñu—toward people in general; saù—he; bhaktaù prākātaù—materialistic devotee; smātaù—is called.

TRANSLATION

A devotee who faithfully engages in the worship of the Deity in the temple but does not behave properly toward other devotees or people in general is called a prākāta-bhakta, a materialistic devotee, and is considered to be in the lowest position.

PURPORT

Çréla Madhvācārya comments that one in the lowest stage of devotional service faithfully worships the Deity in the temple but is not aware that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is actually all-pervading. This same mentality can be seen in the Western countries, where people commit all types of sinful activities in their homes and in the street but then piously go to a church and pray to God for mercy. Actually, God is in our home, God is in the street, God is in our office, God is in the forest, God is everywhere, and therefore God should be worshiped everywhere by the process of devotional service at His lotus feet. As stated in verse 41 of this chapter, khaà väyum agnià salilaà mahéà ca jyotéàñi sattväni diço drumädén sarit-samudrààç ca hareù çaréà yat kià ca bhütaà praëamed ananyaù

"A devotee should not see anything as being separate from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. Ether, fire, air, water, earth, the sun and other luminaries, all living beings, the directions, trees and other plants, the rivers and oceans—whatever a devotee experiences he should consider to be an expansion of Kâñëa. Thus seeing everything that exists within creation as the body of the Supreme Lord, Hari, the devotee should offer his sincere respects to the entire expansion of the Lord's body." This is the vision of the mahā-bhagavata devotee of the Lord.

Çréla Madhvācārya states that a madhyama-adhikārē, a devotee in the intermediate stage, sees the Supreme Personality of Godhead as the cause of all causes and therefore offers his love to the Lord. Such a devotee is a sincere friend of other devotees, is merciful to the ignorant and avoids the atheists. Nonetheless, tad-vaçatvaà na jänäti sarvasya jagato 'pi tu: his realization of the all-pervading feature of the Supreme Lord is imperfect. Although he does have a general sense that everyone is ultimately meant to be a devotee of the Supreme Lord and he tries to use everything in the service of Kâñëa, aware that everything belongs to the Lord, he may be bewildered by association with atheistic men.

Çréla Madhvācārya states, arcäyäm eva saàsthitam/ viñëum jiätvä tad-anyatra naiva jänäti yaù pumän. A kaniñöha-adhikārē has no idea that the Supreme Lord has the power to exist outside a church or temple. Furthermore, being puffed up by his own ceremonial worship (ätmano bhakti-darpataù), a kaniñöha-adhikārē cannot imagine that anyone is more pious or religious than he, and he is not even aware that other devotees are more advanced. Thus he cannot understand the madhyama or uttama standard of devotional service, and sometimes, because of his false pride, he criticizes the more advanced devotees of the Lord, neglects them or simply has no understanding of their exalted position as preachers or completely self-realized souls.

Another symptom of the kaniñöha-adhikārē is that he is infatuated by the material qualifications of so-called great materialistic persons. Having a bodily concept of life himself, he is attracted by material opulence and thus minimizes the position of the Supreme Lord, Viñëu. Such a kaniñöha-adhikārē, therefore, is disturbed if a second-class devotee criticizes the nondevotees of the Lord. In the name of compassion or kindness, a kaniñöha-adhikārē approves of the nondevotional activities of such materialistic men. Because the kaniñöha-adhikārē is ignorant of the higher realms of devotional service and the unlimited transcendental bliss of Kāñëa consciousness, he sees devotional service merely as the religious aspect of life but thinks that life has many enjoyable and worthwhile nondevotional aspects. Therefore he becomes angry when second-class devotees, who are experiencing that Kāñëa is everything, criticize the nondevotees. Madhvācārya says that such a person, because of his rudimentary faith in Kāñëa, is considered a devotee, but he is bhaktādhama, a devotee on the lowest standard. If such materialistic devotees follow the rules and regulations of Deity worship, they will gradually be elevated to a higher standard and eventually become pure devotees of the Lord, unless they commit offenses against other devotees, in which case their advancement will be checked.

Çréla Madhvācārya states, tad-bhaktānām upekāakāu kuryur viñëäv api dveñam. Those who neglect or show indifference to the devotees of the Lord are to be considered offenders at the lotus feet of Viñëu. Similarly, those who disrespect the demigods will become bereft of devotional service and be forced to rotate again and again within saàsāra, the cycle of birth and death. Pūjyā devās tataù sadä: the demigods are always to be offered respect, since they are devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. If someone is envious of the demigods, he is to be considered envious of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Similarly, one who offers sincere respect to the demigods is considered to be respecting the will of the Supreme Lord. A Vaiñëava does not foolishly think that there are many gods. He knows that there is one Supreme Personality of Godhead. But as stated many times in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, the Lord has a mission within this material world, which is to reform the conditioned living entities through the cruel laws of nature. In the Lord's mission within this world, the demigods are to be considered limbs of the Lord's body. It is stated in Bhagavad-gētä (7.20):

kāmais tais tair hāta-jī ānāu prapadyante 'nya-devatāu taà taà niyamam āsthāya prakātyā niyatāu svayā

"Those whose minds are distorted by material desires surrender unto demigods and follow the particular rules and regulations of worship according to their own natures." But there are many examples of devotees who worshiped the demigods to get benedictions for serving Lord Kāṇḍea. The gopés worshiped the demigods to achieve Kāṇḍea, and similarly Rukmiḍēdevé, on the day of her marriage, engaged in such demigod worship, her only goal being Kāṇḍea. Even today the preachers of the Kāṇḍea consciousness movement cultivate important people with all kindness and diplomacy so that such wealthy or influential people will engage their resources in the devotional service of Kāṇḍea to glorify Kāṇḍea all over the world. Similarly, offering all respects to the demigods so that they will give facility for the devotional service of Kāṇḍea is not against the bhakti-mārga, although nowadays such demigod worship has also deteriorated. Therefore, Caitanya Mahāprabhu has recommended hari-nāma saḍ kērtana, chanting the holy names of Kāṇḍea, as the only realistic process for this age. Nonetheless, a devotee of the Lord should not misinterpret Bhagavad-gētā's injunctions against demigod worship as a license to offend the demigods, who are bona fide Vaiṇḍavas.

Çréla Madhvācārya notes,

*viṇḍeor upekṇakaà sarve vidviṇanty adhikaà surāu pataty avaçyaà tamasi
hariḍā taiç ca pātitaù*

"All the demigods are extremely inimical to one who does not respect Lord Viṇḍeu. Such a person is pushed into the darkest regions by the Lord, as well as by the demigods." From this statement by Çréla Madhvācārya, the devotional sentiments of the demigods can be understood. It is stated that in the supreme liberation achieved by an uttama-adhikāre, the most exalted devotee of the Lord, the devotee enjoys transcendental bliss in the direct association of the Supreme Lord and the demigods.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, since a kaniṇḍha-adhikāre who cannot properly respect other devotees will certainly fail to offer respects to ordinary living entities who are not even devotees, a kaniñña-adhikāre is useless for practical preaching work unless he comes to a higher platform of understanding. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé says, iyaà ca çraddhā na çāstrārthāvadhāraëa-jātā. Because the kaniñña-adhikāre's faith is not actually based on the statements of Vedic literature, he cannot understand the exalted position of the Supreme Personality of Godhead within everyone's heart. Therefore he cannot actually manifest love of Godhead, nor can he understand the exalted position of the devotees of the Lord. Kāñëa is so glorious that Kāñëa's intimate associates must also be glorious. But this is unknown to a kaniñña-adhikāre. Similarly, the essential qualification of a Vaiñëava, which is to offer all respects to others (amāninā māna-dena kērtanēyaù sadā hariù [Cc. Ādi 17.31] is also conspicuous by its absence in a kaniñña-adhikāre. If such a person, however, has faith in the Vedic literatures and tries to understand the statements of Bhagavad-gētā and Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, he will gradually be elevated to the second—and first-class stages of devotional service.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, a kaniñña-adhikāre should very seriously engage in regulated worship of the Deity. The Deity is a particular incarnation of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Lord Kāñëa can present Himself before the worshiper in five different manifestations, namely His original form as Kāñëa (para), His quadruple expansions (vyūha), His pastime incarnations (vaibhava), the Supersoul (antaryāmé) and the Deity (arcā). Within the Deity form (arcā) is the Supersoul, who in turn is included within the Lord's pastime forms (vaibhava). The Supreme Lord's vaibhava-prakāça is an emanation from the catur-vyūha. This quadruple expansion of the Lord is situated within the supreme truth, Vāsudeva, who Himself is situated within the svayaà-prakāça-tattva. This svayaà-prakāça consists of expansions of the ultimate svayaà-rūpa-tattva, the original form of Kāñëa within Goloka Våndāvana in the spiritual sky. This hierarchy of the expansions of the Supreme Lord in the spiritual world is realized even within the material world in terms of one's eagerness to render service to the Lord. A beginner in the lowest stage of devotional service should try to dedicate all his activities to the satisfaction of the Lord and cultivate the worship of Kāñëa in the temple.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, all the plenary expansions of the Supreme Lord mentioned above descend into this world and enter within the Deity, who exhibits the function of the Supersoul by accompanying the daily life of the Vaiñëava. Although the vaibhava, or pastime expansions, of the Lord incarnate at specific times (rāmādi-mūrtiṇu kalā-niyamena tiñōhan [Bs. 5.39]), the Supersoul and Deity forms are constantly available for the spiritual advancement of the devotees in this world. As one comes to the madhyama-adhikāre platform, one is able to understand the expansions of the Supreme Lord, whereas the kaniñōha-adhikāre's entire knowledge of the Lord is limited to the Deity. Nonetheless, Kāñëa is so kind that to encourage even the lowest class of Vaiñëavas He condenses all of His various forms into the Deity so that by worshiping the Deity the kaniñōha-adhikāre devotee is worshiping all the forms of the Lord. As the devotee makes advancement, he can understand these forms as they appear in their own way, both within this world and in the spiritual sky.

As long as one remains on the third-class platform, one has no transcendental appreciation of the blissful reality of the Supreme Lord's paraphernalia and entourage. Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu was very pleased with King Pratāparudra when the King, upon receiving an outer cloth from the Lord, immediately installed it as a Deity and began to worship it as being as good as the Lord Himself. Lord Çiva himself has stated, tasmād parataraṁ devi tadēyānāṁ samarcanam. Worship of the paraphernalia, entourage or devotees of the Lord is even better than worship of the Lord, because the Lord is more pleased by worship of His devotees and entourage than by worship of Himself personally.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, the inability of the kaniñōha-adhikāre to appreciate the Lord's devotees, entourage and paraphernalia indicates that such a materialistic Vaiñëava is still affected by the speculative understanding of the karma-vadēs and Māyāvādēs, those who are dedicated to sense gratification and impersonal speculation about the Absolute. Çréla Prabhupāda often said that only the impersonalist desires to see Kāñëa alone; we desire to see Kāñëa with His cows, His friends, His parents, His gopés, His flute, jewelry, forest scenery and so on. Kāñëa is gorgeous in the setting of Vāndāvana. It is in the land of Vāndāvana that Lord Kāñëa, surrounded by so many beautiful associates, manifests His exalted indescribable beauty. Similarly, the unique mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead is exhibited in the activities of His pure devotees who selflessly travel around the universe distributing the dust particles from Kāñëa's lotus feet on the heads of the conditioned souls. One who is uninterested in the Lord's paraphernalia, entourage and devotees has a stunted conception of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. This must be due to contamination from the impersonal and sensuous understandings of life.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura states that after hundreds of lifetimes of faithfully worshiping the Deity of Lord Vāsudeva with external paraphernalia, one realizes the true nature of His transcendental name and mantras, and the bondage of one's materialistic mentality slackens. In this way, as a kaniñha-adhikäre gradually comes to perceive the mental activities of a devotee and tries seriously to advance to a higher stage, his materialistic conceptions will go away of their own accord. He then exhibits loving service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and makes friendship with the devotees who are the dearest sons of the Lord, and by appreciating the universal quality of devotional service to Kāñëa he becomes very much eager to engage other innocent people in the service of the Lord. Further, as he begins to make significant advancement he becomes inimical to anything or anyone that hinders the progress of his devotional life, and thus he avoids atheistic people who cannot benefit by good instruction.

The International Society for Krishna Consciousness, founded by His Divine Grace Öa Viñëupāda Paramahañsa Parivrajakācārya 108 Çré Çrémad Bhaktivedānta Swami Prabhupāda, is so nice that anyone who helps this society immediately engages in preaching work for the Lord. Thus there is great facility for the members of this society to come quickly to the second-class stage of devotional service. If in the name of Kāñëa consciousness one gives up preaching and instead becomes interested simply in collecting funds for maintenance, he is showing a type of envy of other living entities. This is a symptom of the third-class platform. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, verses 45 through 47 constitute the answer to King Nimi's two questions "What is the nature of devotional service to the Lord?" and "What are the specific duties of the Vaiñëavas?"

TEXT 48

gA{h"ltvaApalin%"yaEr"TaARna, yaAe na ãe"ii" na ô$Syaita ivaSNAAemaARyaAimadM" pazyana,
s$a vaE BaAgAvataAeÔama:

*gâhétvâpëndriyair arthän yo na dveñöi na hãñyati viñëor mâyäm idaà paçyan
sa vai bhägavatottamaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gâhétvâ—accepting; api—even though; indriyaiù—with his senses; arthän—objects of the senses; yaù—who; na dveñöi—does not hate; na hãñyati—does not rejoice; viñëou—of the Supreme Lord, Viñëu; mâyäm—the illusory potency; idam—this material universe; paçyan—seeing as; saù—he; vai—indeed; bhägavata-uttamaù—a first-class devotee.

TRANSLATION

Even while engaging his senses in contact with their objects, one who sees this whole world as the energy of Lord Viñëu is neither repelled nor elated. He is indeed the greatest among devotees.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the position of the uttama-adhikäré, or first-class devotee of the Lord, is so worshipable that additional symptoms are now given in eight verses. It should be understood that unless one comes in contact with the lotus feet of a pure devotee of the Lord, the path of freedom from material illusion is very difficult to understand. In the fifth verse of Çré Upadeçämâta Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé has stated, çuçrũñayä bhajana-vijñam ananyam anya-nindädi-çünya-hådam épsita-saiga-labdhyä: "One should associate with and faithfully serve that pure devotee who is advanced in undeviated devotional service and whose heart is completely devoid of the propensity to criticize others." Çréla Prabhupäda comments, "In this verse Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé advises the devotee to be intelligent enough to distinguish between the kaniñña-adhikäre, madhyama-adhikäre and uttama-adhikäre. A neophyte Vaiñëava or a Vaiñëava situated on the intermediate platform can also accept disciples, but such disciples must be on the same platform, and it should be understood that they cannot advance very well toward the ultimate goal of life under his insufficient guidance. Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikäre as a spiritual master." Therefore additional symptoms will now be given so that the conditioned soul who desires to go back home, back to Godhead, can properly identify the bona fide spiritual master.

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé and Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, associating with a pure devotee of the Lord is so important that now that the various categories of devotional service have been defined, eight additional verses are given concerning the qualifications of a pure devotee, so that students of Çrémad-Bhägavatam will make no mistake in this connection. Similarly, in the Second Chapter of Bhagavad-gétä Arjuna asked Kåñëa about the symptoms of a completely Kåñëa conscious person, and Kåñëa elaborately explained the symptoms of one who is prajñä pratññhitä, or established in Kåñëa consciousness.

The particular qualification mentioned in this verse is viñëor mäyäm idaà paçyan: one should see the entire material universe as a product of the illusory energy of the Lord. There is no question of lamenting or rejoicing for that which is the property of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Within this world one generally laments upon losing something desirable and rejoices upon acquiring the object of his wish. But since a pure devotee has no personal desire whatsoever (kåñëa-bhakta niñkåma-ataeva 'çänta' [Cc. Madhya 19.149]), there is no question of gain or loss. As the Lord says in Bhagavad-gētā (18.54):

*brahma-bhūtaù prasannātmā na çocati na kâi kñati samaù sarveñu bhūteñu
mad-bhaktià labhate parām*

"One who is transcendently situated at once realizes the Supreme Brahman and becomes fully joyful. He never laments nor desires to have anything; he is equally disposed to every living entity. In that state he attains pure devotional service unto Me." Similarly, Lord Çiva says to his wife, Pārvaté, while glorifying the character of King Citraketu, *nārāyaëa-paräù sarve

na kutaçcana bibhyati
svargāpavarga-narakeñv
api tulyārtha-darçinaù*

"Devotees solely engaged in the devotional service of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa, never fear any condition of life. For them the heavenly planets, liberation and the hellish planets are all the same, for such devotees are interested only in the service of the Lord." (SB 6.17.28)

This state of complete satisfaction in the devotional service of Kāñëa is not a mental concoction achieved by artificial meditation, but is a result of having experienced the superior nature of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is a reservoir of transcendental bliss. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (2.59), rasa-varjaà raso 'py asya paraà dāññvā nivartate. When impersonalists and voidists artificially try to push material things out of their minds, they undergo great hardships and ordeals in their artificial meditation.

*kleçò 'dhikataras teñām
avyaktāsakta-cetasām avyaktā hi gatiṛ duùkhaà*

dehavadbhir aväpyate
(Bg. 12.5)

According to Lord Kåñëa, it is only with great inconvenience and suffering that one can achieve impersonal liberation, because every living being is eternally a person, being part and parcel of the Supreme Person, Kåñëa. The concept of giving up one's personal identity is a reaction to the terrible frustration of material egotism. It is not a positive program. If one is suffering unbearable pain in his hand, he may agree to have the hand amputated, but the real solution is to remove the infection so that the healthy hand may become a source of pleasure. Similarly ego, or the sense that "I am," is a source of unlimited happiness when we understand what we are, namely servants of Kåñëa. Impersonal meditation is dry and troublesome. A pure devotee realizes that he is an eternal person, part and parcel of the Supreme Person, Lord Kåñëa, and that he has the privilege as the son of God to participate in the ecstatic eternal pastimes of the Supreme Lord, loving Kåñëa and playing with Him forever. For such a devotee the pale material nature, which is but a perverted reflection of the spiritual world, becomes totally unattractive. Therefore, one who is completely attached to Kåñëa and uninterested in the manifestations of mâyä can be considered bhägavatottamaù, a pure devotee of the Lord, as described in a previous verse (bhaktiù pareçänubhavo viraktir anyatra ca [SB 11.2.42]).

Çréla Madhväcärya has stated, viñëor mâyäà viñëv-icchädhënam: "The words viñëor mâyäm in this verse indicate that the illusory energy always remains dependent upon the will of Lord Viñëu." Similarly the Brahma-saàhitä (5.44) says, sânõi-sthiti-pralaya-sädhana-çaktir ekä chäyeva yasya bhuvanäni bibharti durgä. Mâyä is like a shadow of the Supreme Personality of Godhead who serves Him in the creation, maintenance and annihilation of this world. Just as a shadow has no independent power of movement but follows the substance that casts the shadow, the illusory energy of the Lord has no independent power, but bewilders the living entities according to the Lord's desire. One of Kåñëa's opulences is that He is supremely detached; when a living entity wants to forget Him, Kåñëa immediately employs His illusory energy to facilitate the foolishness of the conditioned soul.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé the words gâhétvâpéndriyair arthän indicate that the pure devotee of the Lord does not cease acting within this world; rather, he uses his senses in the service of the Lord of the senses, Hânékeça. Hânékeëa hânékeça-sevanaà bhaktir ucyate [Cc. Madhya 19.170]. Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé has stated that if one gives up those material things which are favorable for serving Kânëa, considering them material and therefore an impediment to his spiritual advancement, his renunciation is merely phalgu-vairägya, or immature and imperfect renunciation. On the other hand, one who accepts all material things for the service of Kânëa without any personal desire for sense gratification is actually renounced (yuktaà vairägyam ucyate).

Çréla Bhaktisiddhânta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has warned in his commentary on this verse that by envying any of the three classes of devotees—uttama-adhikäre, madhyama-adhikäre or kaniñöha-adhikäre—one falls down to the platform of impersonalism and loses all power to benefit others or even himself. Therefore those who are trying to advance in Kânëa consciousness should not endanger their transcendental experience by unnecessarily criticizing other Vaiñëavas. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhânta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, if one engages in phalgu-vairägya, or renouncing material things that are favorable to the service of Lord Kânëa, one runs the risk of being polluted by impersonal philosophy. On the other hand, by sticking to the principle of yukta-vairägya, engaging everything for Kânëa without personal desire, one can remain aloof from the danger of material sense gratification and gradually come to the mahä-bhägavata platform, as mentioned in this verse.

TEXT 49

de"he"in%"ya'aANAmAaAeiDayaAM yaAe janmaApyaya°auà"yataSaRk{(cC)E$: s$aMs$aAr"DamaE=r"ivamau÷maAna:
sma{tyaA h"re"BaARgAvata'aDaAna:

dehendriya-präëa-mano-dhiyää yo janmäpyaya-kñud-bhaya-tarñā-kācchraiù saäsāra-dharmair avimuhyamānaù smātyä harer bhāgavata-pradhānaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deha—of the body; indriya—senses; präëa—life air; manaù—mind; dhiyäm—and intelligence; yaù—who; janma—by birth; apyaya—diminution; kñut—hunger; bhaya—fear; tarñā—thirst; kācchraiù—and the pain of exertion; saäsāra—of material life; dharmaiù—by the inseparable features; avimuhyamānaù—not bewildered; smātyä—because of remembrance; hareù—of Lord Hari; bhāgavata-pradhānaù—the foremost of devotees.

TRANSLATION

Within the material world, one's material body is always subject to birth and decay. Similarly, the life air [präëa] is harassed by hunger and thirst, the mind is always anxious, the intelligence hankers for that which cannot be obtained, and all of the senses are ultimately exhausted by constant struggle in the material nature. A person who is not bewildered by the inevitable miseries of material existence, and who remains aloof from them simply by remembering the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is to be considered bhāgavata-pradhāna, the foremost devotee of the Lord.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Madhvācārya there are three classes of intelligent living beings within this world, namely the demigods, ordinary human beings, and demons. A living being endowed with all auspicious qualities—in other words, a highly advanced devotee of the Lord—either on the earth or in the higher planetary systems is called a deva, or demigod. Ordinary human beings generally have good and bad qualities, and according to this mixture they enjoy and suffer on the earth. But those who are distinguished by their absence of good qualities and who are always inimical to pious life and the devotional service of the Lord are called asuras, or demons.

Of these three classes, the ordinary human beings and demons are terribly afflicted by birth, death and hunger, whereas the godly persons, the demigods, are aloof from such bodily distress. The demigods remain aloof from such distress because they are enjoying the results of their pious activities; by the laws of karma, they are unaware of the gross suffering of the material world. As the Lord says in Bhagavad-gētā (9.20), trai-vidyā māṇ soma-pāu pūta-pāpā yajī air iñvā svar-gatiṁ prārthyante te puṇyam āsādy surendra-lokam aṇanti divyān divi deva-bhogān

"Those who study the Vedas and drink the soma juice, seeking the heavenly planets, worship Me indirectly. They take birth on the planet of Indra, where they enjoy godly delights." But the next verse of Bhagavad-gētā says that when one uses up the results of these pious activities, one has to forfeit his status as a demigod, along with the pleasure of the heavenly kingdom, and return to earth as a nara, or ordinary human being (kñēē puṇye martya-lokaṁ viçanti [Bg. 9.21]). In fact the laws of nature are so subtle that one may not even return to earth as a human, but may take birth as an insect or tree, depending on the particular configuration of his karma.

The pure devotee of the Lord, however, does not experience material misery, because he has given up the bodily concept of life and identifies himself correctly as an eternal servitor of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāṇēa. As stated by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gētā (9.2), susukhaṁ kartum avyayam. Even in the stage of regulative practice, the process of bhakti-yoga is very joyful. Similarly, Locana dāsa Öhäkura, a near contemporary of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu, said, saba avatāra sara çiromaēi kevala ānanda-kāēōa. Although there are various kāēōas, or divisions, of Vedic discipline, such as karma-kāēōa (fruitive ceremonies) and jī āna-kāēōa (regulated speculation), Caitanya Mahāprabhu's hari-nāma saṁ kīrtana movement is kevala ānanda-kāñḍā, the pathway of pure bliss. Simply by chanting the holy names of Kāñḍā, eating the remnants of sumptuous food offered to the Supreme Lord and hearing the enchanting pastimes of the Personality of Godhead, one merges into an ocean of bliss called Kāñḍā consciousness.

Fortunately this blissful ocean is the eternal situation of every living entity, provided he gives up all of his bogus concepts of life. One should not identify himself as a gross material body, nor as a fickle mind, nor as speculative intelligence, nor should one foolishly identify himself with the so-called void of Buddhist imagination. Nor should one even identify himself with the ocean of impersonal spiritual life called the brahma-jyotiḥ, which illuminates the great outdoors of the spiritual sky beyond the covered universe. One should rather identify himself correctly as an eternal individual servant of the supreme individual Personality of Godhead. By this simple admission of one's constitutional position and by sincere engagement in the service of the lotus feet of the Lord, one is quickly promoted to direct participation in the eternal pastimes of Kāñḍā, just as Arjuna got the opportunity to play with Kāñḍā as a soldier on the Battlefield of Kurukṣetra.

Çréla Madhvācārya has given an elaborate description of the process by which material miseries arise. When a conditioned soul of demoniac mentality identifies himself with the gross material body, he undergoes miseries of constant drowsiness and unquenchable sexual desires that burn all mental peace and serenity to ashes. When a demoniac person identifies himself with prāṇa, the life air, he suffers from hunger, and by identifying himself with the mind he suffers panic, fear, and hankering that ends in disappointment. When he identifies himself with intelligence, he suffers profound existential bitterness and frustration deep within his heart. When he identifies himself with the false ego, he feels inferiority, thinking, "I am so low." And when he identifies himself with the process of consciousness, he is haunted by memories of the past. When a demon tries to impose himself as the ruler of all living beings, all of these miseries expand simultaneously.

According to Çrëpäda Madhväcärya, sinful life is the demoniac standard for happiness. We can observe that in demoniac societies the dark, late hours of night are considered most appropriate for recreational activity. When a demon hears that someone is rising at four o'clock in the morning to take advantage of the godly early-morning hours, he is astonished and bewildered. Therefore it is said in Bhagavad-gétä (2.69), *yä niçä sarva-bhütänäà tasyäà jägarti saàyamé yasyäà jägrati bhütäni

sä niçä paçyato muneù*

"What is night for all beings is the time of awakening for the self-controlled; and the time of awakening for all beings is night for the introspective sage." Çréla Prabhupäda has commented, "There are two classes of intelligent men. The one is intelligent in material activities for sense gratification, and the other is introspective and awake to the cultivation of self-realization." Thus the more one can increase illicit sex, intoxication, meat-eating and gambling, the more one advances his prestige in a demoniac society, whereas in a godly society based on Kåñëa consciousness these things are abolished completely. Similarly, as one becomes blissfully attached to the holy name and pastimes of Kåñëa, one becomes more and more alienated from the demoniac society.

The demons are self-proclaimed enemies of the Supreme Lord, and they mock His kingdom. Thus they are described by Çréla Madhväcärya as adho-gateù, or those who have purchased their tickets to the darkest regions of hell. On the other hand, if one is undisturbed by the miseries of material life, he is on the same spiritual level as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (2.15),

*yaà hi na vyathayanty ete puruñaà puruñariabha sama-duùkha-sukhaà dhëraà
so 'mâtatväya kalpate*

"O best among men [Arjuna], the person who is not disturbed by happiness and distress and is steady in both is certainly eligible for liberation." One can come to this transcendental stage only by the mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In the words of Çré Madhvācārya, sampūrēānugrahād viñēōū.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has described the process by which one becomes an uttama-adhikārē. If one is fortunate, he gradually becomes disgusted with the limited vision and activities of the kaniñōha-adhikārē and learns to appreciate the expanded vision of the madhyama-adhikārē, who is able to recognize that every living entity should become a devotee of Kāñēa and that one achieves the perfection of life by following in the footsteps of an uttama-adhikārē devotee of the Lord. As one's devotional service gradually intensifies and one repeatedly bathes in dust from the lotus feet of a pure devotee, the harassment of birth, death, hunger, thirst, fear and so on gradually cease disturbing the mind. As stated in Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu (1.2.114), *alabdhe vā vinañōe vā bhakñyācchādāna-sādhane aviklava-matir bhūtvā

harim eva dhiyā smaret*

"Even if a devotee is frustrated in his attempt to eat properly or clothe himself properly, he should not allow this material failure to disturb his mind; rather, he should use his intelligence to remember his master, Lord Kāñēa, and thus remain undisturbed." As one becomes mature in this process of remembering Kāñēa in all circumstances, he is awarded the title mahā-bhāgavata.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta gives the example that just as a child's ball may be fastened to the end of a rope so that it cannot bounce away, a devotee who surrenders to Kāñēa becomes tied to the rope of Vedic injunctions and is never lost in worldly affairs. In this connection Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has quoted from the Āg Veda (1.156.3) as follows: oà āsya jānanto nāma cid vivaktan mahas te viñēo su-matià bhajāmahe oà tat sat. "O Viñëu, Your name is completely transcendental. Thus it is self-manifest. Indeed, even without properly understanding the glories of chanting Your holy name, if we vibrate Your name with at least a small understanding of its glories—that is, if we simply repeat the syllables of Your holy name—gradually we shall understand it." The supreme entity indicated by the praëava oà is sat, or self-revealing. Therefore, even if one is disturbed by fear or envy, the transcendental form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead will become manifest to one who continues to chant the Lord's holy name. Further evidence is given in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (6.2.14):

sāi ketyam pärihäsyāà vä stobhāà helanam eva vä vaikuëöha-nāma-grahaëam açeñāgha-harāà viduù

"One who chants the holy name of the Lord is immediately freed from the reactions of unlimited sins, even if he chants indirectly (to indicate something else), jokingly, for musical entertainment, or even neglectfully. This is accepted by all the learned scholars of the scriptures."

TEXT 50

*na k(Amak(maRbaljaAnaAM yasya caetais$a s$amBava:
vaAs$aude"vaEk(inalaya:
s$a vaE BaAgAvataAeÔama:*

*na kāma-karma-béjānāà
yasya cetasi sambhavaù vāsudevaika-nilayaù
sa vai bhāgavatottamaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—never; kāma—of lust; karma—fruitive work; béjānām—or of material hankerings, which are the seeds of fruitive activity; yasya—of whom; cetasi—in the mind; sambhavaù—chance to arise; väsudeva-eka-nilayaù—one for whom the Supreme Lord, Väsudeva, is the only shelter; saù—he; vai—indeed; bhägavata-uttamaù—is a first-class devotee.

TRANSLATION

One who has taken exclusive shelter of the Supreme Lord, Väsudeva, becomes free from fruitive activities, which are based on material lust. In fact, one who has taken shelter of the lotus feet of the Lord is freed from even the desire to enjoy material sense gratification. Plans for enjoying sex life, social prestige and money cannot develop within his mind. Thus he is considered bhägatottama, a pure devotee of the Lord on the highest platform.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, this verse describes the behavior of a devotee of the Lord. The activities of a pure devotee are devoid of material envy, false elation, delusion and lust. According to the Vaiñëava commentators, the word béjänäm in this verse refers to väsanaù, or deeply rooted desires, which gradually fructify in the form of activities, for which the living entity becomes subject to reactions. Thus the compound word käma-karma-béjänäm indicates the deep-rooted desire to lord it over the material world through the enjoyment of sexual pleasure and the expansions of sexual pleasure mentioned in the Bhägavatam (5.5.8) as gäha-kñetra-sutäpta-vittaiù, that is, a beautiful residential building and ample land for producing sumptuous food to fill the belly, as well as children, friends, social contacts and a large bank balance. All of these material items are essential for completely forgetting that one is an eternal servant of the Supreme Lord. Therefore as stated in the Bhägavatam, janasya moho 'yam ahaà mameti: [SB 5.5.8] intoxicated by these objects of material illusion, the conditioned soul becomes madly convinced that he is the center of the universe and that everything in existence has been created only for his personal sense gratification. Whoever obstructs such illusory enjoyment becomes immediately his enemy and subject to be killed.

Because of this bodily concept of life and the shackles of illusion, the whole world is being violently shaken by conflict arising from envy and lust. The only possible solution is to accept the leadership of the Lord's pure devotees, who are described here. A popular expression used to justify democratic government is "Power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely." Such homilies may be valid on the material platform, but it is specifically mentioned here that a pure devotee of the Lord who has completely taken shelter of the Lord's lotus feet cannot even consider taking part in material envy and sense gratification. His mind remains perpetually clear and sober, and he is always aware of the ultimate good of every living entity. The Kāñëa consciousness movement is strenuously endeavoring to inform the earth's suffering living entities of the serious need for a brain in human society. A brain racked by fever cannot give proper direction, and if the so-called thinkers of society are burning with selfish desires, they are no better than feverish, delirious brains. Delirious governments are gradually destroying all traces of happiness in human society. Therefore it is the duty of Vaiñëava preachers to act on the platform of bhāgavatottama so that they can give clear guidance to humanity, without being corrupted or even slightly attracted by the material opulence that may be offered to a saintly person. All intelligent human beings who are unable to take directly to the process of bhakti-yoga should at least be sufficiently educated to recognize the first-class devotee of the Lord and accept his guidance. In this way human society can be very nicely organized so that not only all human beings but even the animals, birds and trees can make advancement in life and gradually go back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has emphasized that those seriously interested in achieving the perfection of Kāñëa consciousness must live in a community of Vaiñëavas. Çréla Prabhupāda has also mentioned several times in his literature that it is not possible to achieve the stage of perfect Kāñëa consciousness unless one accepts the shelter of the pure devotees by living in the Kāñëa conscious communities being established all over the world by the International Society for Krishna Consciousness. Çrëla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvatë Öhäkura has emphasized that this does not mean that spiritual life is restricted only to those celibate students who can live within a temple compound. Devotees in the gāhastha order, that of spiritual family life, can also take shelter of the Vaiñëava community by regularly attending temple functions. Those who are living in family life should daily see the Deity of the Supreme Lord, chant His holy names in His personal presence, accept the remnants of food offered to the Deity and hear learned discourses on Bhagavad-gētā and Çrémad-Bhāgavatam. Any householder who regularly takes advantage of these spiritual facilities and follows the regulative principles of spiritual life, namely no meat-eating, no illicit sex, no gambling and no intoxication, is to be considered a bona fide member of the Vaiñëava community. According to Çrëla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvatë Öhäkura, those who remain inimical to the devotional service of the Lord are to be considered lifeless puppets in the hands of the illusory energy of the Lord.

TEXT 51

na yasya janmak(maRByaAM na vaNAAR™amajaAitaiBa:
s$aÀatae'isma^ahM"BaAvaAe de"he" vaE s$a h"re": i'aya:

na yasya janma-karmabhyäà na varëäçrama-jätibhiù sajjate 'sminn ahaà-bhävo dehe vai sa hareù priyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—there is not; yasya—of whom; janma—by good birth; karmabhyäm—or meritorious acts; na—not; varëa-äçrama—by adherence to rules of occupational or religious duty; jätibhiù—or by belonging to a certain class of society; sajjate—attaches itself; asmin—in this (body);

aham-bhāvaù—egotistic sentiment; dehe—in the body; vai—indeed; saù—he; hareù—to Lord Hari; priyaù—is dear.

TRANSLATION

Birth in an aristocratic family and the execution of austere and pious activities certainly cause one to take pride in himself. Similarly, if one enjoys a prestigious position within society because his parents are highly respected members of the varëäçrama social system, one becomes even more infatuated with himself. But if despite these excellent material qualifications one does not feel even a tinge of pride within himself, he is to be considered the dearest servitor of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the word janma ("good birth") refers to such classes as the mürdhāvasiktas (children of brāhmaëa fathers and kñatriya mothers) and ambañōhas (children of brāhmaëa fathers and vaiçya mothers), both of which are considered anuloma since the father comes from a higher caste. Marriages in which the mother comes from a higher class than the father are called pratiloma. In any case, one who becomes proud of his so-called prestigious birth is certainly in the bodily concept of life. Birth in any material body is a serious problem, which one should solve by surrendering to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One can thereby release himself from the golden shackles of a so-called aristocratic material body.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, kaniñōha-adhikārëś think that karma-miçra bhakti, or devotional service mixed with material endeavor, is the ultimate in spiritual life. They become attached to verses such as this:

*varëäçramäcāra-vatā
puruñëëa paraù pumän
viñëur ārādhyate panthä nānyat tat-toña-kāraëam*

[Cc. Madhya 8.58]

"The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Viñëu, is worshiped by the proper execution of prescribed duties in the system of varëa and äçrama. There is no other way to satisfy the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One must be situated in the institution of the four varëas and äçramas." (Viñëu Puräëa 3.8.9) Thus they think that material work in which a portion of the fruits are offered to God forms the highest platform of human life. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, there are several smäti literatures that have encouraged such mixed devotional service. Such books are taken by materialistic devotees as facility for offending the holy name of the Lord because of egotistic attachment to the material body. Thus one thinks that a prestigious position in the varëäçrama system according to birth and so-called pious activities is a prerequisite for becoming successful in life.

But those who have actually taken shelter of the holy name of Kãñëa never boast about their birth in the material world, nor do they pride themselves on their so-called expertise in material work. As long as one's mentality is encumbered by the material designations of the varëäçrama system, one has very little chance of becoming free from material bondage and establishing himself as dear to the Lord. In this regard, Caitanya Mahäprabhu emphatically declared that He could not identify Himself with any varëäçrama designation, such as that of a great intellectual or priest, a courageous warrior in the Lord's army, a brilliant businessman making money for the Lord, or the hardest worker for the Lord. Nor could Caitanya Mahäprabhu identify Himself as a stalwart brahmacäre, a noble householder or an exalted sannyäse. These designations reflect the material pride that can infiltrate the execution of devotional service. Although a devotee may carry out the standard duties of varëäçrama, his only designation is gopë-bhartuù pada-kamalayor däsä-däsänudäsau [Cc. Madhya 13.80], the eternal servant of the servant of the servant of the Lord, the master of the gopës, Kãñëa.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, when a devotee understands that the process of bhakti-yoga is complete in itself and he becomes absorbed in hearing and chanting the glories of the Lord, the supremely merciful Personality of Godhead affectionately lifts such a first-class devotee onto His own lap. The Supreme Lord can be pleased only by unalloyed devotion, and not by any arrangement of the gross body, composed of five material elements, or the subtle body, composed of innumerable speculations and bogus pride. In other words, Lord Kâñëa can never be pleased by one's so-called aristocratic body, which is due to be devoured by worms or vultures. If one becomes proud of his material birth and so-called pious activities, by such false pride one gradually develops the impersonal mentality of merely renouncing the fruit of work or else the karmë mentality of enjoying the fruits of work. Neither the karmës nor the j'i äñë speculators are aware that the fruit of work actually belongs to Kâñëa. The conclusion is that one should carefully give up all false pride and always remember that he is a humble servant of Kâñëa. As stated by Caitanya Mahäprabhu, amäninä mänadena kértanéyaù sadä hariù [Cc. Ädi 17.31].

TEXT 52

na yasya sva: par" wita ivaÔaeSvaAtmaina vaA iBad"A s$avaRBaUtas$ama: zAAnta:
s$a vaE BaAgAvataAeÔama:

*na yasya svaù para iti vitteñv ätmani vä bhidä sarva-bhüta-samaù çäntaù
sa vai bhägavatottamaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—there is not; yasya—of whom; svaù paraù iti—"mine" and "someone else's"; vitteñu—about his property; ätmani—about his body; vä—or; bhidä—by thinking in terms of duality; sarva-bhüta—to all living beings; samaù—equal; çäntaù—peaceful; saù—he; vai—indeed;

bhāgavata-uttamaù—the best of devotees.

TRANSLATION

When a devotee gives up the selfish conception by which one thinks "This is my property, and that is his," and when he is no longer concerned with the pleasures of his own material body or indifferent to the discomforts of others, he becomes fully peaceful and satisfied. He considers himself simply one among all the living beings who are equally part and parcel of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Such a satisfied Vaiñëava is considered to be at the highest standard of devotional service.

PURPORT

The vision described by the phrase sarva-bhūta-samaù, "seeing all living entities equally," does not include one's vision of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In this connection Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from the Hari-vāṇa as follows:

na kvāpi jēvaà viñëutve saàsātau mokñā eva ca

"Under no circumstance should one consider the living entity equal to Lord Viñëu, either in conditional life or in liberation." The impersonal speculative philosophers are fond of imagining that although in our present illusion we appear to be individual entities, at liberation we shall all merge into God and be God. Such wishful thinkers cannot reasonably explain how the omnipotent God could arrive at the embarrassing position of having to enter a yoga studio, pay weekly fees, press His nose and chant mantras to regain His divinity. As stated in the Vedas, nityo nityānāà cetanaç cetanānām eko bahünāà yo vidadhāti kāmān (Kaōha Upaniñad 2.2.13). The individuality or plurality of living entities is not a product of material existence. The word nityānām, denoting the plurality of eternal entities, clearly indicates that the living entities are eternally individual parts and parcels of the Lord, who is the singular unique entity described here as ekaù.

In Bhagavad-gētā (1.21) Arjuna said to Kāñëa, rathaà sthāpaya me 'cyuta: "My dear Acyuta, please place my chariot between the armies." This body is also ratha, a vehicle, and therefore the best policy is to request the infallible Lord to take charge of our conditioned body and guide us on the path back to the kingdom of God. The word acyuta means "the infallible" or "one who never falls." Learned or sane human beings will not entertain the silly notion that the omnipotent, omniscient God has slipped and fallen because of māyā. No amount of wishful thinking can erase our eternal servitorship at the lotus feet of the Lord.

This fact is stated by the Lord Himself in the Varāha Purāëa:

naivaà tvayānumantavyaà jévātmāham iti kvacit sarvair guëair su-sampannaà daivaà mää ji'ätum arhasi

"You should never think Me one of the ordinary living entities in the jéva category. In fact I am the reservoir of all opulences and godly qualities, and therefore you should understand that I am the Supreme Lord."

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé and Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, this verse of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam does not forbid using a particular object in the Lord's service, since a devotee is free to use anything favorable for serving Lord Kāñëa. This acceptance of favorable objects in the service of Kāñëa is called yukta-vairāgya. As stated by Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé, nirbandhaù kāñëa-sambandhe: one should be attached for Kāñëa's sake, never for one's own sake. If one interprets this verse to indicate that one should not exercise control over any material object, even if it is favorable for serving Kāñëa, one falls into the bad understanding called phalgu-vairāgya, or immature renunciation. Great kings such as Mahārāja Yudhiñöhira and Mahārāja Parékñit engaged the entire earth, and other Vaiñëavas have engaged the entire universe in the service of Kāñëa. But they completely gave up the sense of their personal proprietorship. That is the point made in this verse. Just as one becomes very much concerned about any pain in one's own body, one should be concerned with bringing the conditioned souls to the platform of devotional service so that all of their suffering will be banished forever. That is the actual purport of not distinguishing between one body and another.

TEXT 53

iṭaBauvanaivaBavahe'tavae'pyaku(NQ&- sma{itar"ijataAtmas$aur"Aid"iBaivaRma{gyaAta, na calaita BagAvatpad"Ar"ivand"Ala, lavainaimaSaADaRmaipa ya: s$a vaESNAvaAfya:

tri-bhuvana-vibhava-hetave 'py akuëöha-smâtir ajitâtma-surâdibhir vimâgyât na calati bhagavat-padâravindâl lava-nimiñârdham api yaù sa vaiñëavâgryaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tri-bhuvana—of the three worlds comprising the material universe; vibhava-hetave—for the sake of the opulences; api—even; akuëöha-smâtiù—whose remembrance is undisturbed; ajita-âtma—of whom the unconquerable Lord is the very soul; sura-âdibhiù—by the demigods and others; vimâgyât—which are sought; na calati—he does not go away; bhagavat—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead; pada-aravindât—from the lotus feet; lava—of eight forty-fifths of one second; nimiña—or of three times that; ardham—one half; api—even; yaù—who; saù—he; vaiñëava-agryaù—the foremost of devotees of Lord Viñëu.

TRANSLATION

The lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead are sought even by the greatest of demigods, such as Brahmä and Çiva, who have all accepted the Supreme Personality of Godhead as their life and soul. A pure devotee of the Lord can never forget those lotus feet in any circumstance. He will not give up his shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord for a single moment—indeed, not for half a moment—even in exchange for the benediction of ruling and enjoying the opulence of the entire universe. Such a devotee of the Lord is to be considered the best of the Vaiñëavas.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé one may ask, "If one were able to gain the opulence of the entire universe in exchange for leaving the Lord's lotus feet for just half a moment, what would be the harm in leaving the Lord's lotus feet for such an insignificant amount of time?" The answer is given by the word akuëöha-smâti. It is simply impossible for a pure devotee to forget the lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead, since everything that exists is in fact an expansion of the Supreme Lord. Since nothing is separate from the Supreme Lord, a pure devotee of the Lord cannot think of anything but the Lord. Nor can a pure devotee contemplate ruling or enjoying universal opulence; even if given all the opulence of the universe, he would immediately offer it at the lotus feet of the Lord and return to his position of a humble servant of the Lord.

The words ajitâtma-surädibhir vimâgyât are very significant in this verse. The lotus feet of Lord Kânëa are so opulent that even the lords of all material opulence, namely Brahmä and Çiva, as well as the other demigods, are always searching for a glimpse of the Lord's lotus feet. The word vimâgyât indicates that the demigods are not actually able to see the lotus feet of the Lord, but are endeavoring to see them. An example of this is given in the Tenth Canto when Lord Brahmä offers prayers to Viñëu, begging the Lord to rectify the disturbances on the earth.

A similar verse is found elsewhere in Çrémad-Bhägavatam (11.14.14):

*na pärameñöhyaà na mahendra-dhiñëyaà
na särvabhaumaà na rasädhityam na yoga-siddhër apunar-bhavaà vä mayy arpitâtmeccati mad vinänyat*

"The devotee who has offered his soul to Me does not want anything if it is separate from Me—not the position of the supreme demigod of the universe, Brahmā, nor that of Lord Indra, nor kingship over the entire earth or over the lower planetary systems, nor the mystic perfections of yoga, nor even freedom from the cycle of rebirth."

According to Ṣṛēla Viṣvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura, the word ajitātmā can also be taken to mean ajitendriyāu, or "those whose senses are uncontrolled." Although the demigods are all to be respected as devotees of Lord Viñēu, the absence of gross material discomfort in the higher planetary systems makes them tend to become affected by the bodily concept of life, and sometimes they experience some spiritual difficulty due to the gorgeous material facilities available to them. Such disturbances, however, cannot exist within the mind of a pure devotee of the Lord, as indicated in this verse by the word akuēōha-smāti. According to Ṣṛēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura, we can understand from this verse that since none of the material facilities available in any of the universal planetary systems can distract a pure devotee of the Lord, such a devotee can never possibly fall or become inimical to the Lord's service.

TEXT 54

BagAvata oç&iva,(maAx.~i,,azAAKaA-naKamaiNAcain%o"k(yaA inar"stataApae ô$id" k(Tamaupas$ald"taAM pauna: s$a 'aBavaita can%o" wvaAeid"tae'kR(taApa:

bhagavata uru-vikramāi ghri-çākhā-nakha-maēi-candrikayā nirasta-tāpe hādi katham upasēdatāē punaū sa prabhavati candra ivodite 'rka-tāpaū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhagavataū—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead; uru-vikrama—which have performed great heroic deeds; aī ghri—of the lotus feet; çākhā—of the toes; nakha—of the nails; maēi—which are like jewels; candrikayā—by the moonshine; nirasta-tāpe—when the pain has been removed; hādi—in the hearts; katham—how indeed; upasédatām—of those who are worshiping; punaù—again; saù—that pain; prabhavati—can have its effect; candre—when the moon; iva—just as; udite—risen; arka—of the sun; tāpaù—the burning heat.

TRANSLATION

How can the fire of material suffering continue to burn the hearts of those who worship the Supreme Lord? The Lord's lotus feet have performed innumerable heroic deeds, and the beautiful nails on His toes resemble valuable jewels. The effulgence emanating from those nails resembles cooling moonshine, for it instantly relieves the suffering within the heart of the pure devotee, just as the appearance of the moon's cooling light relieves the burning heat of the sun.

PURPORT

When the moon rises, the expansion of its rays drives away the distress of the sun's fierce heat. Similarly, the cooling rays emanating from the lotus nails of the Personality of Godhead's lotus feet vanquish all distress for the Lord's pure devotee. According to the Vaiñëava commentators it is to be understood from this verse that material lust, exemplified by uncontrolled sexual desire, is exactly like a blazing fire. The flames of this fire burn to ashes the peace and happiness of the conditioned soul, who perpetually wanders in 8,400,000 species of life, vainly struggling to extinguish this intolerable fire. The pure devotees of the Lord place the Lord's cooling, jewellike lotus feet within their hearts, and thus all of the pain and suffering of material existence are extinguished.

The word uru-vikramāi ghri indicates that the Lord's lotus feet are quite heroic. Çré Kāñëa is famous for His incarnation as Vāmana, the dwarf brāhmaëa, who extended His beautiful toes up to the outer limits of the universe and perforated the universal shell, thus bringing the waters of the holy Ganges into the universe. Similarly, when Kāñëa was entering the city of Mathurā to challenge the demoniac King Kaàsa and His entrance was impeded by a ferocious elephant named Kuvalayāpēḍa, Lord Kāṇḍea kicked the elephant to death and peacefully entered the city gates. Lord Kāṇḍea's lotus feet are so exalted that the Vedic literatures state that the entire material manifestation rests beneath His lotus feet: samāçrītā ye pada-pallava-plavaḥ mahat padaḥ puṇya-yaço murāreu (SB 10.14.58).

TEXT 55

ivas$ajaita ô$d"yaM na yasya s$aA°aAä," Dair"r"vazAAiBaih"taAe'pyaGaAEGanaAzA:
'aNayar"s$anayaA Da{taAx.~i,,apaá:
s$a Bavaita BaAgAvata'aDaAna o-(:

visâjati hâdayaḥ na yasya sâkṇâd dharir avaçâbhihito 'py aghaughā-nâçaù praëaya-rasanayâ dhâtâi ghri-padmaù sa bhavati bhâgavata-pradhâna uktaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

visâjati—He leaves; hâdayam—the heart; na—never; yasya—of whom; sâkṇât—Himself; hariù—Lord Hari; avaça—accidentally; abhihitaù—called; api—even though; agha—of sins; ogha—heaps; nâçaù—who destroys; praëaya—of love; rasanayâ—by ropes; dhâtâ—held; aì ghri-padmaù—His lotus feet; saù—he; bhavati—is; bhâgavata-pradhânaù—the foremost devotee; uktaù—called.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is so kind to the conditioned souls that if they call upon Him by speaking His holy name, even unintentionally or unwillingly, the Lord is inclined to destroy innumerable sinful reactions in their hearts. Therefore, when a devotee who has taken shelter of the Lord's lotus feet chants the holy name of Kāṇḍea with genuine love, the Supreme Personality of Godhead can never give up the heart of such a devotee. One who has thus captured the Supreme Lord within his heart is to be known as bhāgavata-pradhāna, the most exalted devotee of the Lord.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, the essence of a pure devotee's qualifications is given in this verse. A pure devotee is one who has attracted the Lord by his love so that the Lord cannot give up the devotee's heart. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, the word sākṣāt in this verse indicates that a pure devotee has realized knowledge of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, having given his heart to the Supreme Lord, Kāṇḍea, who is all-attractive in six opulences, including beauty. A pure devotee can never be attracted by the fleshy bags of women's breasts or by the hallucinations of so-called society, friendship and love within the material world. Therefore his clean heart becomes a suitable abode for the Supreme Lord. A gentleman will live only in a clean place. He will not live in a polluted, contaminated place. Educated people in the Western countries are now greatly protesting the pollution of water and air by urban industrial enterprises. People are demanding the right to live in a clean place. Similarly, Lord Kāṇḍea is the supreme gentleman, and therefore He will not live in a polluted heart, nor will He appear within the polluted mind of a conditioned soul. When a devotee surrenders to Lord Kāṇḍea and becomes a lover of the Lord by direct realization of Kāṇḍea's all-attractive nature, the Lord makes His residence in the clean heart and mind of such a pure devotee.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, ya etādāṇa-praëayavāṇs tenānena tu sarvadā paramāvaçenaiva kërtyamānaù sutarām evam evāghaughā-nāçaù syāt. If a devotee is absorbed in the loving transcendental service of Kāṇḍea, directly or indirectly he is always glorifying the Lord by transcendental loving service. Therefore, even if he chants the holy name of Kāṇḍea with improper attention due to being absorbed in the Lord's service, the mercy of the Lord purifies his heart of all sinful reactions. As stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (2.1.11):

*etan nirvidyamānānām
icchatām akuto-bhayam
yogināṇā nāpa nirëetaṇā*

"O King, constant chanting of the holy name of the Lord after the ways of the great authorities is the doubtless and fearless way of success for all, including those who are free from all material desires, those who are desirous of all material enjoyment, and also those who are self-satisfied by dint of transcendental knowledge." Therefore if one who has not come to the platform of loving devotional service chants the holy name of Kāñëa, he will also be gradually freed from all sinful reactions. In the Sixth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, in the purports to the history of Ajāmila, Çréla Prabhupāda has elaborately explained the holy name's potency to purify even an ordinary person.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has nicely explained the process of bringing the Supreme Lord under control. Mother Yaçodā bound the child Kāñëa to a grinding mortar with a rope. Kāñëa, being attracted by the inconceivable love of His devotees, allowed Himself to be bound. Therefore, although Lord Kāñëa binds all the conditioned souls by the chains of His illusory potency, māyā, if those same conditioned souls become pure devotees of the Lord they can in turn bind Kāñëa by the chains of love of God.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, all the world's inauspicious conditions due to sinful activities can be immediately eradicated by the chanting of the Lord's holy name. The Supreme Personality of Godhead never leaves the hearts of those who give up all sinful behavior and chant His holy name. Even if such chanting is not yet perfect, devotee who always remains in the Lord's service will gradually come to the stage of prema-niñöhä, or steady love of Godhead. Then they are to be considered mahā-bhāgavatas, or pure devotees of the Lord.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Second Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Mahārāja Nimi Meets the Nine Yogendras."

3. Liberation from the Illusory Energy

In answer to four questions spoken by Mahārāja Nimi, this chapter describes the nature and activities of the illusory potency (māyā), the method of becoming free from māyā's insurmountable grip, the transcendental situation of the Supreme Lord Nārāyaṇa, and the process of karma-yoga, by which one becomes free from all material activities.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead, the original cause of all causes, created the five material elements, from which the material bodies of the conditioned souls are created so that the conditioned souls may cultivate either sense gratification or ultimate liberation. Appearing as the Supersoul, the Supreme Lord enters the material bodies of the created beings and activates the eleven senses of the conditioned souls. The conditioned soul misidentifies the created material body with his actual self and thus engages in various fruitive activities. Impelled by the reactions of his own activities, he repeatedly takes birth in various species of life and thus suffers greatly until the time of the cosmic annihilation. When the annihilation is imminent, the soul of the universal form withdraws the entire material creation within Himself, and then He Himself enters into the original cause of all causes. In this way the Lord empowers His illusory potency, consisting of the three modes of material nature, for the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material universe.

Accepting the roles of male and female in this material world, the conditioned souls unite in sexual relationships. Although these souls constantly make material endeavors to eliminate their unhappiness and unlimitedly increase their pleasure, they inevitably achieve exactly the opposite result.

Permanent happiness cannot be found in this world-either on the earthly planets or on the heavenly planets, which one can attain in the next life after performing ritualistic ceremonies and sacrifices. Both on earth and in heaven the living entity is harassed by the envy and rivalry of others.

Therefore any person who seriously desires to find permanent relief from the sufferings of material existence should take shelter of the lotus feet of a bona fide spiritual master. The qualification of the bona fide guru is that he has realized the conclusions of the Vedic scriptures by deliberation and is able to convince others of these conclusions. Such great personalities, who have taken shelter of the Supreme Godhead, leaving aside all material considerations, should be understood to be bona fide spiritual masters.

Accepting the bona fide spiritual master as one's life and soul, the submissive disciple should learn from him the process of pure devotional service, which satisfies the Supreme Lord. By thus following the path of devotional service, the disciple gradually develops all good qualities.

One should hear, glorify and meditate upon the wonderful transcendental activities, appearance, qualities and holy names of the Lord. Whatever one finds pleasing or enjoyable he should immediately offer to the Supreme Lord; even his wife, children, home and very life air should all be offered at the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One should serve others and also accept instructions from others. Especially, one should serve and learn from those who are pure devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

By chanting the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead in the association of devotees, one becomes satisfied and happy and develops a loving friendship with the devotees. In this way one becomes able to give up material sense gratification, which is the cause of all suffering. When a devotee attains the stage of pure love of Godhead, the hairs of his body stand on end, and he manifests various ecstatic symptoms; he personally meets the Supreme Lord and becomes full of transcendental bliss. By learning the science of devotional service and practically engaging in the devotional service of the Lord, the devotee comes to the stage of love of Godhead. When completely devoted to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaṇa, the devotee easily crosses over the illusory energy, māyā, which is extremely difficult to cross.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the cause of the creation, maintenance and destruction of the universe, yet He has no prior cause.

Situated within the temporary and constantly changing material world, the Supreme Lord remains eternal and unchanging. He cannot be understood by the unaided mind or senses, and He is transcendental to the manifestation of the material world, which takes place as the subtle cause and material effect visible in the appearance of gross material objects. Although He is originally one, by expanding His illusory potency (māyā) He appears in many different forms. He is always free from birth, growth, decay and death, and He is the Supersoul, the all-pervading witness who perceives the mentalities of all living entities. He is the Supreme Brahman and is known as Nārāyaṇa.

When one seriously engages in devotional service to the lotus feet of Lord Nārāyaṇa, the impure desires lodged within one's heart as a result of one's previous work within the three modes of material nature are destroyed. When the heart is thus purified, one can directly perceive both the Supreme Lord and one's self as transcendental entities.

Through authorized study of the transcendental Vedic literature, one can properly understand the meaning of prescribed duties, nonperformance of such duties, and forbidden activities. This difficult subject matter can never be understood by mundane speculation. Vedic injunctions indirectly lead one to the path of ultimate liberation by first prescribing fruitive religious activities, just as a father promises his child candy so that the child will take his medicine. If an ignorant person who has not conquered the material senses does not perform the Vedic injunctions, he will certainly engage in sinful and irreligious activities. Thus his reward will be repeated birth and death. On the other hand, if one executes the regulated activities prescribed in the Vedas, without attachment, and offers the result of such work to the Supreme Lord, one attains perfect freedom from the bondage of material work. The material fruitive results offered in the revealed scriptures are not the actual goal of Vedic knowledge, but are meant for stimulating the interest of the performer. If a conditioned soul worships the Supreme Lord Hari by following the regulations found in Vedic literatures such as the tantras, he will quickly become free from the bondage of false ego.

When a devotee obtains the mercy of his spiritual master, who reveals to him the injunctions of Vedic scriptures, he worships the Supreme Personality of Godhead in the particular personal form he finds most attractive. In this way the devotee quickly becomes liberated from all material bondage.

TEXT 1

™alr"AjaAevaAca
par"sya ivaSNAAer"IzAsya maAiyanaAmaipa maAeih"nalma, maAyaAM vaeid"tauimacC$AmaAe BagAvantaAe "auvantau na:

çré-rājavāca
parasya viñëor éçasya
māyinām api mohiném
māyāà veditum icchāmo bhagavanto bruvantu naù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; parasya—of the Supreme; viñëoù—Viñëu; éçasya—the Lord; māyinām—for the possessors of great mystic power; api—even; mohiném—which is bewildering; māyām—the illusory potency; veditum—to understand; icchāmaù—we desire; bhagavantaù—my lords; bruvantu—please tell this; naù—to us.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi said: Now we wish to learn about the illusory potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Çré Viñëu, which bewilders even great mystics. My lords, please speak to us about this subject.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, in this chapter various saintly sons of Āṇabhadeva will speak about the illusory energy (māyā), the means for crossing beyond it, the characteristics of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and prescribed duties for human beings. The forty-eighth verse of the previous chapter stated, viññeor māyām idaṁ paçyan: "A devotee of Kāṇḍea should see the entire universe to be the illusory potency of the Lord." Therefore King Nimi is now pursuing this subject matter by requesting more detailed information from the saintly Yogendras.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, the demigods, headed by Lord Brahmā, and the human beings of the earth are all driven by their particular desires for material sense gratification. Thus they direct their senses toward research for material knowledge. The subtle celestial senses of the demigods and the gross senses of human beings are all busy in ascertaining the measurements of material sense objects. To understand fully the actual nature of māyā, the illusory potency, which causes the conditioned souls to become averse to Kāṇḍea consciousness and surrender to bewildering material manifestations, King Nimi is inquiring from another of the nine Yogendras, Çré Antarékṇa.

TEXT 2

naAnauta{pyae jauSana, yauSmaä,"- vacaAe h"ir"k(TaAma{tama, s$aMs$aAr"taApainastaæaAe matyaRstaÔaApaBaeSajama,

nānutāpye juṇān yuṇmad-vaco hari-kathāmātam saṁsāra-tāpa-nistapto martyas tat-tāpa-bheṇajam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na anutāpye—I am not yet satiated; juñān—engaging; yuñmat—your; vacaù—in the words; hari-kathā—of the topics of the Supreme Lord, Hari; amātam—the nectar; saàsāra—of material existence; tāpa—by the misery; nistaptaù—tormented; martyaù—a mortal human; tat-tāpa—of that pain; bheñajam—the medical treatment.

TRANSLATION

Although I am drinking the nectar of your statements about the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, my thirst is not yet satiated. Such nectarean descriptions of the Lord and His devotees are the actual medicine for conditioned souls like me, who are tormented by the threefold miseries of material existence.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, one may argue that since the symptoms of a pure devotee of the Lord have already been elaborately described, one can perfect his life by advancing to the platform mentioned in the previous verse, and there is no need for further questions. But hari-kathāmātam, topics about the Lord and His devotees, are so pleasing and beautiful that one cannot give up hearing them, even after spiritual liberation. Caitanya Mahāprabhu, in this connection, has quoted the following verse:

*ātmārāmāç ca munayo
nirgranthā apy urukrame kurvanty ahaitukéà bhaktim ittham-bhūta-guëo hariù*

"Those who are self-satisfied and unattracted by external, material desires are also attracted to the loving service of Çré Kāñëa, whose qualities are transcendental and whose activities are wonderful. Hari, the Personality of Godhead, is called Kāñëa because He has such transcendently attractive features." (SB 1.7.10) Material medicine is not desirable once a disease has been cured, but on the absolute platform the means and the end are not different. So chanting and hearing the glories of Lord Kāñëa are both the means and the end of transcendental bliss.

King Nimi said to the sages, "You are all great saintly persons absorbed in love of Godhead. Therefore although you will speak about māyā, or illusion, the conclusion will undoubtedly be Kāñëa consciousness. Please don't think that you have already explained everything to me. The intoxicating nectar of your instructions has left me more eager than ever to hear about the Supreme Personality of Godhead."

King Nimi was also a great devotee of the Lord, otherwise there would have been no question of his personally conversing with such exalted living entities as the nine Yogendras. But as a humble Vaiñëava he considered himself an ordinary conditioned soul covered by material designations. Thus he showed his eagerness to understand the actual nature of māyā in order to be safe from her future attempts to place him in the burning fire of material existence.

TEXT 3

™al@ntar"l°a ovaAca
WiBaBaURtaAina BaUtaAtmaA
mah"ABaUtaEmaRh"ABauja
s$as$aAeR»aAvacaAnyaaAâ:
svamaAḥaAtma'ais$aÜ"yae

çré-antarékñā uvāca ebhir bhūtāni bhūtātmā mahā-bhūtair mahā-bhuja sasarjoccāvacāny ādyaù sva-mātrātma-prasiddhaye

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-antarékñäù uväca—Çré Antarékñä said; ebhiù—by these (material elements); bhütäni—creatures; bhüta-ätmä—the Soul of all creation; mahä-bhütaù—by the elements of the mahat-tattva; mahä-bhuja—O mighty-armed King; sasarja—He created; ucca-avacäni—both high and low; ädyäù—the original person; sva—of His own parts and parcels; mātrā—the sense gratification; ätma—and the self-realization; prasiddhaye—for facilitating.

TRANSLATION

Çré Antarékñä said: O mighty-armed King, by activating the material elements, the primeval Soul of all creation has sent forth all living beings in higher and lower species so that these conditioned souls can cultivate either sense gratification or ultimate liberation, according to their desire.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the illusory energy (mäyā) is explained in this verse through a description of her potencies, namely the modes of material nature. In Bhagavad-gétä Lord Kāñëa has described mäyā as guëamayé, "consisting of the material modes of nature." The material modes of nature are alluded to in this verse by the word uccävacäni, "high and low species of life." Various species of life become manifest, as do varieties of beauty, ugliness, strength, weakness and other characteristics within a particular species, according to the proportionate development of the modes of nature. As confirmed in Bhagavad-gétä (13.22), käraëaà guëa-saì go 'sya sad-asad-yoni-janmasu: "This is due to the living being's association with material nature in good and evil species." Similarly we find this statement:

ürdhvaà gacchanti sattva-sthä madhye tiñöhanti räjasäù jaghanya-guëa-vätti-sthä adho gacchanti tämasäù

"Those situated in the mode of goodness gradually go upward to the higher planets, those in the mode of passion live on the earthly planets, and those in the mode of ignorance go down to the hellish worlds." (Bg. 14.18)

The three general divisions of material life are called deva, tiryak and nara—that is, demigods subhuman creatures and human beings. In the various species of life there are various facilities for material sense gratification. Different species are distinguished by differently formed senses, such as the genitals, nostrils, tongue, ears and eyes. Pigeons, for example, are given the facility for almost unlimited sex. Bears have an ample opportunity for sleeping. Tigers and lions exhibit the propensities for fighting and meat-eating, horses are distinguished by their legs for swift running, vultures and eagles have keen eyesight, and so on. The human being is distinguished by his large brain, which is meant for understanding God.

The phrase sva-mātrātma-prasiddhaye is very significant in this verse. The word sva indicates possession. All living beings belong to the Supreme Lord (mamaivāṅgo jēva-loke jēva-bhūtaū sanātanaū [Bg. 15.7]). Therefore according to this verse they have two options—mātrā-prasiddhaye and ātma-prasiddhaye.

Mātrā refers to the material senses, and prasiddhaye refers to effective accomplishment. Therefore mātrā-prasiddhaye means "efficiently engaging in sense gratification."

On the other hand, ātma-prasiddhaye refers to Kāñēa consciousness. There are two categories of ātmā—the jēvātmā, or ordinary living entity, who is dependent, and the Paramātmā, the supreme living entity, who is independent. Some living entities desire to understand both categories of ātmā, and in this verse the word ātma-prasiddhaye indicates that the material world is created to give those living entities the opportunity to achieve such an understanding and thus return to the kingdom of God, where life is eternal and full of bliss and knowledge.

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé confirms this by quoting a verse from the veda-stuti of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (10.87.2):

buddhëndriya-manaù-präëän janänäm asâjat prabhuù mâtrârthaà ca bhavârthaà ca ätmane 'kalpanäya ca

"The Lord created the intelligence, senses, mind and vital air of the living beings for sense gratification, for performing sacrifices to attain higher births, and ultimately for offering sacrifices to the Supreme Soul."

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the actual purpose of the Lord's creation is only one: to facilitate the advancement of devotional service to the Lord Himself. Although it is stated that the Lord facilitates sense gratification, it should be understood that the Supreme Personality of Godhead does not ultimately condone the foolishness of the conditioned souls. The Lord facilitates sense gratification (mâtrâ-prasiddhaye) so that the living entities will gradually understand the futility of trying to enjoy without Him. Every living entity is part and parcel of Kâñëa. In the Vedic literature the Lord gives a regulative program so that the living beings can gradually exhaust their tendencies to be foolish and learn the value of surrender unto Him. The Lord is undoubtedly the reservoir of all beauty, bliss and satisfaction, and it is the duty of every living entity to engage in the loving service of the Lord. Although there are apparently two purposes for creation, it should be understood that ultimately the purpose is one. The arrangement for sense gratification is ultimately meant to bring the living entities to the single purpose of going back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 4

*WvaM s$a{í"Aina BaUtaAina
'aivaí": paÂaDaAtauiBa: Wk(DaA d"zADaAtmaAnaM ivaBajana, jauSatae gAuNAAna,*

evaà sâñöäni bhütäni praviñöaù pai ca-dhätubhiù

ekadhā daṣadhātmānāṁ vibhajan juṇate guḍān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—in the manner just described; sāñāni—created; bhūtāni—the living beings; praviñāu—having entered; pañca-dhātubhiḥ—(created) by the five gross elements (earth, water, fire, air and ether); ekadhā—onefold (as the overseer of the mind); daṣadhā—tenfold (as the overseer of the five senses of perception and five organs of action); ātmānam—Himself; vibhajan—dividing; juṇate—He engages (He causes the individual soul to engage); guḍān—with the material modes.

TRANSLATION

The Supersoul enters the material bodies of the created beings, activates the mind and senses, and thus causes the conditioned souls to approach the three modes of material nature for sense gratification.

PURPORT

The following is a summary of Ćṛela Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura's commentary on this verse.

The one Supersoul enters the gross material elements (earth, water, fire, air and ether) and uses the activated material mind to subtly divide the sensory activities of the conditioned souls among the five knowledge-acquiring senses (the eyes, ears, nose, tongue and skin) and, by a further gross division, the five working senses (the hands, legs, speech, genitals and anus). Because liberated souls have a strong tendency to serve the Lord, they are not attracted by the dualities of material good and evil. They derive their pleasure through devotion and love for the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who eternally enjoys His own transcendental pastimes beyond the material manifestation.

When the conditioned souls forget their loving relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead, they develop illicit desires. Therefore, unable to serve the form, taste, fragrance and other aspects of Lord Viñëu, these souls become bound to the bitter fruits of fruitive activities. But if their love of Godhead is somehow or other awakened, the conditioned souls can dovetail all their sensory activities in the service of the Lord's transcendental pastimes.

Actually, all materialistic activities are most undesirable. But the conditioned soul, under the influence of illusion, sees apparent distinctions between good and bad, pleasing and displeasing, and so on. The Lord, the Supersoul, having entered the collective and individual consciousness of the living entities, knows the heart of everyone. Therefore when a sincere soul aspires for spiritual perfection, the Lord frees him from material bondage and arouses his propensity to serve the Lord of Vaikuëöha. Love of Godhead flourishes in the variegated flavors of transcendental enjoyment. In ignorance, however, the conditioned soul considers himself the proper object of service and thus misunderstands the entire existential situation.

TEXT 5

gAuNAEgAuRNAAna, s$a BauÃaAna @Atma'aâAeitataE: 'aBau: manyamaAna wdM" s$a{"ma, @AtmaAnaimah" s$aÀatae

guëair guëän sa bhuï jâna ätma-pradyotitaiù prabhuù manyamâna idaà sâñöam ätmânam iha sajjate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëaiù—with the modes (the senses); guëän—the modes (the objects of the senses); saù—he (the individual living being); bhuï jânaù—enjoying; ätma—by the Supreme Soul; pradyotitaiù—enlivened; prabhuù—the master; manyamânaù—thinking; idam—this; sâñöam—created (body); ätmânam—as his own self; iha—in this; sajjate—he becomes entangled.

TRANSLATION

The individual living being, the master of the material body, uses his material senses, which have been activated by the Supersoul, to try to enjoy sense objects composed of the three modes of nature. Thus he misidentifies the created material body with the unborn eternal self and becomes entangled in the illusory energy of the Lord.

PURPORT

In this verse the living entity is called prabhuù, or "master," because he is a minute part and parcel of the supreme master, Kåñëa. Similarly, in Bhagavad-gētā (15.8) the Lord has described the living entity as ēçvaraù, "the controller."

*çarëraà yad aväpnoti yac cäpy utkrämatēçvaraù gähétvaitäni saàyäti
väyur gandhän iväçayät*

"The living entity in the material world carries his various conceptions of life from one body to another as the air carries aromas." Çréla Prabhupäda has commented in his purport, "Here the living entity is described as ēçvaraù, the controller of his own body. If he likes, he can change his body to a higher grade, and if he likes he can move to a lower class. Minute independence is there. The change his body undergoes depends upon him." This statement confirms the words sva-mäträ and ätma-prasiddhaye in text 3 of this chapter. If the Supreme Lord were to interfere with the minute independence of the living entity, there would be no question of the living entity's engaging in the loving service of the Lord, since love implies a spontaneous free choice by the lover. Here the word prabhuù indicates that just as a child, having received a toy car from his father, pedals on the sidewalk, imitating the father, who drives an actual car, the living entity pedals around the material universe in the innumerable material bodies selected for him by the Supreme Lord from an assortment of 8,400,000 species. Thus the living entity, infatuated with the false ego of the material body, creates a fearful situation in which he undergoes repeated birth and death, as described in the statement bhayaà dvitéyābhiniveçataù syāt (SB 11.2.37).

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has given another explanation for this verse. If the word prabhuù is taken to mean the Supreme Lord, the word guëaiù can be understood to mean "good qualities," since guëa can refer to the material modes of nature or to admirable qualities (as in the verse yasyāsti bhaktir bhagavaty akii canā sarvair guëais tatra samāsate suräù [SB 5.18.12]). This verse would then mean that the Lord, by His transcendental qualities (guëaiù), such as mercy, is able to relish the transcendental qualities (guëän) of His pure devotees. Ātma-pratyoditaiù would then indicate that by surrendering unto the Lord, who is the reservoir of all good qualities, the pure devotees become similarly endowed with godly qualities. The words manyamāna idaà sãññam ātmānam would indicate that the Lord accepts the body of His pure devotee to be on the same spiritual level as He Himself, as indicated in the verse ācāryaà mää vijānēyān nāvamanyeta karhicit [SB 11.17.27]. The Lord is attracted by the loving devotional service of His pure devotees and thus becomes entangled in the network of their loving relationship with Him. For example, after the Battle of Kurukñetra, when Kãñëa was leaving for His own city, Dvārakā, the loving appeal of Mahārāja Yudhiñöhira forced the Lord to remain for several more weeks in Hastināpura. Similarly, when the elderly gopés of Våndāvana clapped their hands, Kãñëa would dance like a puppet, keeping time to their rhythm. In relation to this subject matter, Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has quoted a verse from Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (9.4.68):

sādhavo hādayaà mahyaà sādhünää hādayaà tv aham mad-anyat te na jānanti nāhaà tebhyo manāg api

"The pure devotee is always within the core of My heart, and I am always in the heart of the pure devotee. My devotees do not know anything but Me, and I do not know anyone but them."

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura the word prabhu may also be understood as follows. The word pra indicates prakarñeëa, or "excessively," and bhü indicates bhavati, or "taking birth." Thus prabhu indicates prakarñeëa deva-tiryag-ädiñu bhavatéti saù, or repeatedly taking birth among the demigods, animals, human beings and other forms of life.

Confirming the statement by Çréla Jéva Gosvämé concerning the Lord's attachment to the spiritualized body of a pure devotee, Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has quoted the following verses from Caitanya-caritāmāta (Antya 4.192-93):

dékñä-käle bhakta kare ätma-samarpaëa sei-käle kññëa täre kare ätma-sama

"At the time of initiation, when a devotee fully surrenders unto the service of the Lord, Kññëa accepts him to be as good as Himself."

sei deha kare tära cid-änanda-maya apräkâta-dehe täi ra caraëa bhajaya

"When the devotee's body is thus transformed into spiritual existence, the devotee, in that transcendental body, renders service to the lotus feet of the Lord."

TEXT 6

k(maARiNA k(maRiBa: ku(vaRna, s$ainaimaÔaAina de"h"Ba{ta, taÔatk(maRP(laM gA{õ"na,
"amatalh" s$auKaetar"ma,

karmäëi karmabhiù kurvan sa-nimittäni deha-bhât

tat tat karma-phalaà gâhëan bhramatêha sukhetaram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

karmäëi—various kinds of fruitive work; karmabhiù—by the karmendriyas, the organs of action; kurvan—performing; sa-nimittäni—which are imbued with motivating desires; deha-bhât—the proprietor of the material body; tat tat—various; karma-phalam—results of work; gâhëan—accepting; bhramati—he wanders; iha—throughout this world; sukha—happiness; itaram—and otherwise.

TRANSLATION

Impelled by deep-rooted material desires, the embodied living entity engages his active sense organs in fruitive activities. He then experiences the results of his material actions by wandering throughout this world in so-called happiness and distress.

PURPORT

The argument may be given that if a living entity were subject to the results of his previous activities there would be no scope for free will; once having committed a sinful action, the living entity would be bound in an endless chain of suffering, being perpetually subject to previous reactions. According to this speculation there cannot be a just and omniscient God, since the living entity is forced to commit sinful activities by the reactions of his previous activities, which were reactions to still previous activities. Since even an ordinary gentleman will not unfairly punish an innocent person, how could there be a God witnessing the helpless suffering of the conditioned souls within this world?

This foolish argument can easily be refuted by a practical example. If I purchase a ticket for an airline flight, board the plane and commence the flight, once the plane has taken off my decision to board the plane forces me to continue flying until the plane lands. But although I am forced to accept the reaction of this decision, on board the plane I have many new decisions I can make. I may accept the food and drink from the stewardesses or reject it, I may read a magazine or newspaper, I may sleep, walk up and down the aisle, converse with other passengers and so on. In other words, although the general context—flying to a particular city—is forcibly imposed upon me as a reaction to my previous decision to board the plane, even within that situation I am constantly making new decisions and creating new reactions. For example, if I cause a disturbance on the airplane I may be arrested when the plane lands. On the other hand, if I make friends with a businessman sitting next to me on the plane, such a contact may lead to a favorable business transaction in the future.

Similarly, although the living entity is forced to accept a particular body by the laws of karma, within the human form of life there is always scope for free will and decision-making. Therefore the Supreme Personality of Godhead cannot be considered unjust for holding the living entity in human life responsible for his present activities despite the living entity's undergoing the reactions of his previous work.

According to Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura the influence of mâyä is so strong that even in a hellish condition the proud conditioned soul thinks that he is enjoying life.

TEXT 7

wtTaM k(maRgAtalgARcC$na, baù"Ba%"vah"A: paumaAna, @ABaUtas$amplavaAts$agAR-'alayaAva'atae'vazA:

itthaà karma-gatér gacchan bahv-abhadra-vahäù pumän äbhüta-samplavät sarga-pralayäv açnute 'vaçau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ittham—in this way; karma-gatêu—the destinations determined by his past activities; gacchan—obtaining; bahu-abhadra—much that is inauspicious; vahäù—which involve; pumän—the living being; äbhüta-samplavät—until the dissolution of the created universe; sarga-pralayau—birth and death; açnute—he experiences; avaçaù—helplessly.

TRANSLATION

Thus the conditioned living entity is forced to experience repeated birth and death. Impelled by the reactions of his own activities, he helplessly wanders from one inauspicious situation to another, suffering from the moment of creation until the time of cosmic annihilation.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Madhväcärya, after hearing that the living entity is repeatedly subjected to birth and death within the material world, if one still considers such a helpless entity equal to God in all respects one will surely fall into the darkest regions of the universe, from which it is difficult to rise.

TEXT 8

DaAtaUpaplava @As$a^aae vya·M(%"vyagAuNAAtmak(ma, @naAid"inaDana: k(AlaAe ÷vya·(AyaApak(SaRita

dhätüpaplava äsanne
vyaktaà dravya-guëätmakam anädi-nidhanaù kälo
hy avyaktäyäpakarīati

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhātu—of the material elements; upaplave—the dissolution; āsanne—when it has become imminent; vyaktam—the manifest cosmos; dravya—gross objects; guëa—and the subtle modes; ātmakam—consisting of; anādi—without beginning; nidhanaù—or end; kālaù—time; hi—indeed; avyaktäya—into the unmanifest; apakarñati—draws.

TRANSLATION

When the annihilation of the material elements is imminent, the Supreme Personality of Godhead in His form of eternal time withdraws the manifest cosmos, consisting of gross and subtle features, and the entire universe vanishes into nonmanifestation.

PURPORT

In the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam Lord Kapiladeva teaches that the material nature originally exists in an inert state of equilibrium called pradhāna. When Lord Viñëu casts His potent glance in the form of kāla, or time, material interactions take place, culminating in the variegated creation of the material cosmos. In this verse it is stated that at the end of universal time the same kāla that originally incited the female nature into manifestation again withdraws the cosmos into its original state of inert nonmanifestation. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, the time potency itself, kāla, is then withdrawn, and it merges into the Supreme Soul, who manifests Himself as the original cause of material nature (anādir ādir govindaù sarva-kāraëa-kāraëam [Bs. 5.1]).

Such technical arrangements for creation and annihilation, birth and death, do not exist in the eternal spiritual kingdom of God. In the spiritual sky the variegated spiritual enjoyment of the Lord and His devotees is not hampered by the inferior cycles of birth, maintenance and destruction found in the material world.

TEXT 9

zAtavaSaAR ÷naAva{ii"r," BaivaSyatyaulbaNAA Bauiva tatk(AlaAepaicataAeSNAAk(AeR laAek(AMñIna, 'ataipaSyaita

*çata-varñā hy anāvāññīr bhaviṇyaty ulbaëä bhuvi tat-kālopacitoñëärko
lokäàs trēn pratapiṇyati*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çata-varñā—lasting one hundred years; hi—indeed; anāvāññīr—drought; bhaviṇyati—there will be; ulbaëä—terrible; bhuvi—on the earth; tat-kāla—in that duration of time; upacita—accumulated; uñëa—whose heat; arka—the sun; lokān—the worlds; trēn—three; pratapiṇyati—will greatly burn.

TRANSLATION

As cosmic annihilation approaches, a terrible drought takes place on earth for one hundred years. For one hundred years the heat of the sun gradually increases, and its blazing heat begins to torment the three worlds.

TEXT 10

paAtaAlatalamaAr"Bya
s$aÆySaRNAmuKaAnala:
d"h"aUDvaRizAKaAe ivaSvagA, vaDaRtae vaAyaunaer"ta:

pätāla-talam ārabhya

saì karṇāëa-mukhānalaù dahann ürdhva-çikho viñvag vardhate väyuneritaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pätäla-talam—the planet Pätäla; ärabhya—beginning from; saì karṇāëa-mukha—from the mouth of the Supreme Lord in His form as Saì karṇāëa; analaù—the fire; dahan—burning; ürdhva-çikhaù—its flame going upward; viñvak—all the directions; vardhate—grows; väyunä—by winds; ëritaù—impelled.

TRANSLATION

Beginning from Pätälaloka, a fire grows, emanating from the mouth of Lord Saì karṇāëa. Its flames shooting upward, driven by great winds, it scorches everything in all directions.

TEXT 11

s$amvataRk(Ae maeGagANAAe vaSaRita sma zAtaM s$amaA: DaAr"AiBahR"istah"staAiBar," lalyatae s$ailalae ivar"Aq%.

saèavartako megha-gaëo varñati sma çataè samäù dhäräbhir hasti-hastäbhir léyate salile viräo

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saèavartakaù—of annihilation; megha-gaëaù—hoards of clouds; varñati—will rain; sma—indeed; çatam samäù—for one hundred years; dhäräbhiù—with torrents; hasti-hastäbhiù—(raindrops measuring the length of) elephant trunks; léyate—will merge; salile—in the water; viräo—the entire universe.

TRANSLATION

Hoard of clouds called Saṅvartaka pour torrents of rain for one hundred years. Flooding down in raindrops as long as the trunk of an elephant, the deadly rainfall submerges the entire universe in water.

TEXT 12

tataAe ivar"Ajamauts$a{jya, vaEr"Aja: pauc&SaAe na{pa @vya·M(ivazAtae s$aU°maM inair"nDana wvaAnala:

*tato virājam utsājya vairājaù puruṇo nāpa
avyaktaà viçate sūkṁmaà nirindhana ivānalaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tataù—then; virājam—the universe; utsājya—giving up (as his body); vairājaù puruṇaù—the personality of the universal form (Hiraëyagarbha Brahmä); nāpa—O King Nimi; avyaktam—unmanifest nature (the pradhāna); viçate—he enters; sūkṁmam—subtle; nirindhanaù—devoid of fuel; iva—like; analaù—a fire.

TRANSLATION

Then Vairāja Brahmä, the soul of the universal form, gives up his universal body, O King, and enters into the subtle unmanifest nature, like a fire that has run out of fuel.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura the word vairāja in this verse indicates the totality of the individual conditioned souls who originally take birth from Brahmā and are amalgamated back into him at the time of annihilation. By the manifestation of the virāṭ-puruṣa, the universal form of the Lord, there is a temporary display of forms, qualities and activities within the material creation. But the entire cosmic scene reverts to inert formlessness when the creation is withdrawn by the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore the Lord's universal form cannot be accepted as an eternal form of the Lord. It is merely the temporary imaginary resemblance of His personal form within the kingdom of māyā. In the First Canto of the Çrēmad-Bhāgavatam, as well as in the Second Canto, the universal form of the Lord is clearly explained to be an imaginary form offered to the neophyte for meditation on God. Those who are excessively materialistic are totally unable to understand that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is actually sac-cid-ānanda-vigraha [Bs. 5.1], or the eternal form of bliss and knowledge, transcendental to the exhibition of material energy. Therefore to encourage such gross materialists to become faithful theists, the Vedic literature instructs them to meditate upon the physical universe as the gigantic body of the Supreme Lord. This pantheistic conception does not reflect the ultimate reality of the Supreme Lord but is a technique to bring the mind gradually toward God.

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has quoted the following verse as evidence that Lord Brahmā is supposed to go back to Godhead at the time of annihilation:

brahmaëä saha te sarve samprāpte pratisai care parasyānte kātātmānaù praviçanti paraà padam

"At the time of final annihilation all self-realized souls enter with Brahmā into the supreme abode." Since Brahmā is sometimes considered the best devotee of the Supreme Lord, he surely should obtain liberation rather than merely entering into the unmanifest state of material nature called avyakta. In this connection Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé points out that there is a class of nondevotees who attain the planet of Brahmā by performing açvamedha-yaji as and other sacrifices, and in certain cases Brahmā himself may not be a devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. So the words avyaktaà viçate sūkīmam can be understood to indicate that such a nondevotee Brahmā cannot enter the spiritual sky, despite having achieved the ultimate universal status of material expertise. But when Brahmā is a devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead the word avyaktam can be taken to indicate the spiritual sky; since the spiritual sky is not manifest to the conditioned souls, it may also be considered avyakta. If even Lord Brahmā cannot enter the kingdom of God without surrendering to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, then what to speak of other so-called pious or expert nondevotees.

In this regard Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has pointed out that there are three categories within the status of Brahmā, namely those of karmé, jī ānē and devotee. A Brahmā who is the most exalted karmé of the universe will have to come back to the material world; a living entity who has achieved the post of Brahmā by being the greatest speculative philosopher within the universe may attain impersonal liberation; and a living entity who has been awarded the post of Brahma due to being a great devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead enters into the personal abode of the Lord. In the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (3.32.15) yet another case is described: a Brahmā who is a devotee of the Lord but who has the tendency to think himself independent of or equal to the Lord may achieve Mahā-viñēu's abode at the time of annihilation, but when creation begins again he has to return and again take the post of Brahma. The word used in this case is bheda-dāñōyā, which refers to the tendency to think oneself independently powerful. The various destinations possible for such an exalted living entity as a Lord Brahmā definitely prove that any material position is worthless for guaranteeing an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. In Bhagavad-gētā Lord Kāñēa promises that if one gives up all other so-called obligations and surrenders to the devotional service of the Lord, the Lord will personally protect him and bring him back to the supreme abode in the spiritual sky. It is futile and foolish to try to achieve perfection by one's own strenuous endeavor and not surrender to the lotus feet of Kāñëa. Such a blind attempt is described in the Eighteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gétä as bahuläyäsam, indicating that it is work in the material mode of passion. Brahmä is the lord of passion, and his creation and management of the entire universe are certainly bahuläyäsam, or strenuous endeavor, in the most exalted sense. But all such passionate work, even that of Lord Brahmä, is ultimately useless without surrender to the lotus feet of Kāñëa.

TEXT 13

vaAyaunaA ô$tagAnDaA BaU:
s$ailalatvaAya k(lpatae
s$ailalaM taä,"Da{tar"s$aM jyaAeitaî"AyaAepak(lpatae väyunä hâta-gandhä bhüù salilatväya kalpate salilaà tad-dhâta-rasaà jyotiñvâyopakalpate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

väyunä—by the wind; hâta—deprived; gandhä—of its quality of aroma; bhüù—the element earth; salilatväya kalpate—becomes water; salilam—water; tat—by that (the same element, wind); hâta-rasam—deprived of its quality of taste; jyotiñvâyopakalpate—becomes fire.

TRANSLATION

Deprived of its quality of aroma by the wind, the element earth is transformed into water; and water, deprived of its taste by that same wind, is merged into fire.

PURPORT

Çrémad-Bhāgavatam gives several descriptions of the material creation, by which air is expanded from ether, fire from air, water from fire, and earth from water. Now, in the reverse order, the creation is wound up. Thus earth merges back into the water from which it came, and water similarly merges into fire.

TEXT 14

ô$taè&paM tau tamas$aA vaAyaAE jyaAeita: 'alalyatae ô$tas$pazAAeR'vak(AzAena vaAyaunaRBais$a lalyatae k(AlaAtmanaA ô$tagAuNAM naBa @Atmaina lalyatae

*hâta-rûpaà tu tamasä väyau jyotiù praléyate
hâta-sparço 'vakäçena
väyur nabhasi léyate
kälätmanä hâta-guëaà
nabha ätmani léyate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

hâta-rûpam—deprived of its quality of form; tu—certainly; tamasä—by darkness; väyau—into air; jyotiù—fire; praléyate—merges; hâta-sparçaù—deprived of touch; avakäçena—by the element space; väyuù—air; nabhasi—into space; léyate—merges; käla-ätmana—by the Supreme Soul in the form of time; hâta-guëam—deprived of its tangible quality; nabhaù—space; ätmani—into false ego in the mode of ignorance; léyate—merges.

TRANSLATION

Fire, deprived of its form by darkness, dissolves into the element air. When the air loses its quality of touch by the influence of space, the air merges into that space. When space is deprived of its tangible quality by the Supreme Soul in the form of time, space merges into false ego in the mode of ignorance.

TEXT 15

win%o"yaAiNA manaAe bauiÜ": s$ah" vaEk(Air"kE(na{Rpa 'aivazAinta ÷h"ÆyArM" svagAuNAEr"h"maAtmaina

indriyāëi mano buddhiù saha vaikārikair nāpa praviçanti hy ahaì kâraà sva-guëair aham âtmani

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indriyāëi—the senses; manaù—the mind; buddhiù—intelligence; saha vaikārikaiù—along with the demigods, who are products of false ego in the mode of goodness; nāpa—O King; praviçanti—they enter; hi—indeed; ahaì kâram—the element ego; sta-guëaiù—along with its qualities (goodness, passion and ignorance); aham—ego; âtmani—into the mahat-tattva.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, the material senses and intelligence merge into false ego in the mode of passion, from which they arose; and the mind, along with the demigods, merges into false ego in the mode of goodness. Then the total false ego, along with all of its qualities, merges into the mahat-tattva.

TEXT 16

WSaA maAyaA BagAvata:
s$agARisTatyantak(Air"NAl iṭavaNAAR vaiNARtaAsmaAiBa: ikM(BaUya: TMaAetauimacC$is$sa eñä mäyā bhagavataù sarga-sthity-anta-kärië tri-varëä varëitäsmäbhiù kià bhüyaù çrotum icchasi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

eñä—this; mäyā—material energy; bhagavataù—of the Supreme Lord; sarga—of creation; sthiti—maintenance; anta—and dissolution (of this universe); kärië—the agent; tri-varëä—consisting of three modes (goodness, passion and ignorance); varëitä—has been described; asmäbhiù—by us; kim—what; bhüyaù—further; çrotum—to hear; icchasi—do you wish.

TRANSLATION

I have now described mäyā, the illusory energy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. This illusory potency, consisting of the three modes of material nature, is empowered by the Lord for the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material universe. Now, what more do you wish to hear?

PURPORT

King Nimi had expressed to the nava-yogendras his fear of the illusory potency of the Lord and had requested a detailed explanation of mäyā so that he could avoid becoming a victim at her hands. Now, Çré Antarékñā, having described the illusory potency, is suggesting that the King inquire about the means to become totally free of māyā's influence. Not waiting for the King to ask such a question, Çré Antarékñā himself is suggesting, "Now that you have heard about māyā's influence, you should inquire about the process of becoming free of such influence." According to Çrédhara Svāmé, that is the significance of Çré Antarékñā's question kiā bhūyaù çrotum icchasi, "What more do you wish to hear?"

The following is a summary of Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura's explanation of the process of annihilation described in the previous verses. Vāsudeva, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is the presiding Deity of consciousness, which becomes manifest within the mahat-tattva. By further transformations of the mahat-tattva the threefold false ego appears as follows. (1) From vaikārika, false ego in the mode of goodness, appears the eleventh sense, the mind, whose presiding Deity is Aniruddha. (2) From taijasa, false ego in the mode of passion, comes intelligence, whose presiding Deity is Pradyumna, and the five working senses and five knowledge-acquiring senses with their various presiding deities. (3) From false ego in the mode of ignorance arises the subtle form of sound, and from that sound, or çabda, all the material elements gradually become manifest, beginning with ether and the sense of hearing. The presiding Deity of these three divisions of false ego is Saī karīāëa. This description is taken from Chapter 26 of the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, verses 21, 27, 28, 30, 31, 32 and 35.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead's external potency, māyā, causes the birth, maintenance and destruction of the material world. She is tricolored red, white and black. In her red feature the material nature is created, in white it endures, and in black it is annihilated. The mahat-tattva arises from this māyā, and from the mahat-tattva come the three varieties of false ego mentioned above. At the time of annihilation the five great elements, namely earth, water, fire, air and ether, merge into false ego in the mode of ignorance, from which they were originally generated; the ten senses and intelligence merge into false ego in passion; and the mind, along with the demigods, merges into false ego in the mode of goodness, which then merges into mahat-tattva, which further takes shelter of the prakâti or unmanifest pradhâna.

As described above, each of the gross elements is wound up when its distinguishing quality is removed; the element then merges into the previous element. This can be understood as follows. In space or ether there is the quality of sound. In air there are the qualities of sound and touch. In fire there are sound, touch and form. In water there are sound, touch, form and taste. And in earth there are sound, touch, form, taste and aroma. Therefore from ether down to earth each element is distinguished by the addition of its own unique quality, called guëa-viçeñam. When that quality is removed, an element becomes nondifferent from its previous element and thus merges into it. For example, when great winds take aroma away from earth, earth contains only sound, touch, form and taste and thus becomes nondifferent from water, into which it merges. Similarly when water loses its rasa, or taste, it contains only sound, touch and form, thus becoming nondifferent from fire, which also contains those three qualities. So the wind takes away aroma to merge earth into water and takes away taste to merge water into fire. Then when the universal darkness removes form from fire, fire merges into air. Space then removes the sense of touch from air, and air merges into space. The Supreme Personality of Godhead as the time element removes sound from space, and space then merges into the false ego in the mode of ignorance, from which it arose. Finally, false ego is merged into the mahat-tattva, which is merged into the unmanifest pradhâna, and thus the universe is annihilated.

TEXT 17

™alr"AjaAevaAca
yaTaEtaAmaEir"I%M maAyaAM äu"star"Amak{(taAtmaiBa:
tar"ntyaÃa: sTaUlaiDayaAe mah"SaR wd"maucyataAma,

çré-räjoväca

yathaitäm aiçvaréà mäsäà dustaräm akâtätmabhiù taranty ai jaù sthüla-dhiyo maharña idam ucyatäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-räjä uväca—King Nimi said; yathä—how; etäm—this; aiçvarém—of the Supreme Lord; mäsäm—material energy; dustaräm—unsurpassable; akâta-ätmabhiù—by those who are not self-controlled; taranti—they may cross over; ai jaù—easily; sthüla-dhiyaù—persons whose intelligence is dulled by materialistic attachments; maha-âñe—O great sage; idam—this; ucyatäm—please tell.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi said: O great sage, please explain how even a foolish materialist can easily cross over the illusory energy of the Supreme Lord, which is always insurmountable for those who are not self-controlled.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, sthüla-dhiyaù indicates those who ignorantly identify themselves with the gross material body and who are therefore unable to analyze the subtle laws of nature by which the soul transmigrates in illusion. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé comments that sthüla-dhiyaù also indicates so-called pious persons who execute pompous religious ceremonies for material sense gratification rather than trying to prepare themselves to go back home, back to Godhead, by engaging in the loving devotional service of the Lord.

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, King Nimi was already an advanced devotee of the Lord and therefore knew that one can cross over the illusory energy, mäsä, by surrendering to the lotus feet of the Lord and pleasing Him by pure devotional service. Therefore the King was asking the question for the benefit of those who falsely consider themselves very much learned but in fact are addicted to materialistic fruitive activities, which increasingly entangle them in illusion. In this regard Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has quoted from the Amara-koça dictionary to show that akätätmabhiù indicates apürëatvam, or one whose life is empty.

Every living being has an eternal relationship with the supreme living being, Kânëa. One may love Kânëa by thinking of Him as one's eternal master, one's most intimate friend, one's beloved child or the object of one's conjugal attraction. Of course, such ecstasies should never be confused with ordinary, material emotions, which are perverted reflections of spiritual rasas, or relationships. In the material world we try to relish these same relationships of servitude, friendship, parental love and conjugal love, but the object of such feelings is a temporary material body, which is quickly devastated by the laws of nature. These loving feelings should be directed toward the spiritual body of the Supreme Personality, Kânëa, who is the reservoir of all beauty and transcendental bliss. One who has not learned the art of directing his love to Kânëa is apürëa, or one whose life is ultimately empty.

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, one whose life is empty can also be called manda-dhéù, or one whose intelligence is crippled by a lack of broad experience. King Nimi, a pure Vaiñëava, was so kind that he asked, "How can such cripple-minded people cross over mäyã in the easiest way possible, since by nature they are very lazy in spiritual matters?"

TEXT 18

™al'abauÜ" ovaAca k(maARNyaAr"BamaANAAAnaAM äu":Kah"tyaE s$auKaAya ca pazyatpaAk(ivapayaARs$SaM imaTaunalcaAir"NAAM na{NAAma, çré-prabuddha uväca

karmäëy ärabhamäëänäà duùkha-hatyai sukhäya ca

paçyet päka-viparyäsaà mithuné-cäriëää nâëäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-prabuddhaù uväca—Çré Prabuddha said; karmäëi—fruitive activities; ärabhamäëänäm—making endeavors in; duùkha-hatyai—for the elimination of distress; sukhäya ca—and for gaining happiness; paçyet—one should see; päka—of the result; viparyäsam—contrary outcome; mithuné-cäriëäm—who are coupled as men and women; nâëäm—of such persons.

TRANSLATION

Çré Prabuddha said: Accepting the roles of male and female in human society, the conditioned souls unite in sexual relationships. Thus they constantly make material endeavors to eliminate their unhappiness and unlimitedly increase their pleasure. But one should see that they inevitably achieve exactly the opposite result. In other words, their happiness inevitably vanishes, and as they grow older their material discomfort increases.

PURPORT

Without the mercy of a pure devotee it is exceedingly difficult to free oneself from the bodily concept of life, which is the illusory basis of sexual attraction.

TEXT 19

inatyaAitaR$de"na ivaÔaena äu"laRBaenaAtmama{tyaunaA gA{h"ApatyaAæapazAuiBa: k(A 'alita: s$aAiDataEêlaE:

nityärtidena vittena

*durlabhenātma-mātyunā gāhāpatyāpta-ṣaṇḍbhū
kā prētiṁ sādhitaiḥ calaiḥ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nitya—constantly; ārti-dena—giving pain; vittena—with wealth; durlabhena—hard to acquire; ātma-mātyunā—death for the self; gāha—with one's home; apatya—children; āpta—relatives; ṣaṇḍbhū—and domestic animals; kā—what; prētiṁ—happiness; sādhitaiḥ—which are gained (by that wealth); calaiḥ—unsteady.

TRANSLATION

Wealth is a perpetual source of distress, it is most difficult to acquire, and it is virtual death for the soul. What satisfaction does one actually gain from his wealth? Similarly, how can one gain ultimate or permanent happiness from one's so-called home, children, relatives and domestic animals, which are all maintained by one's hard-earned money?

TEXT 20

WvaM laAekM(par"imvaâAna, nairM" k(maRinaimaRtama,
s$ataulyaAitazAyaDvaMs$aM yaTaA maNx"lavaitaRnaAma, evaṁ lokaṁ param vidyān naçvaraṁ karma-nirmītam sa-tulyātiçaya-dhvaṁ sa yathā māyā-lā-vartinām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—in this way; lokam—the world; param—next (after this life); vidyāt—one should understand as; naçvaram—impermanent;

karma-nirmitam—created from fruitive work; sa-tulya—characterized by (the rivalry of) equals; atiçaya—and superiors; dhvaàsam—and by ruination; yathā—as; maëðala-vartinām—(the rivalries) of minor rulers.

TRANSLATION

One cannot find permanent happiness even on the heavenly planets, which one can attain in the next life by ritualistic ceremonies and sacrifices. Even in material heaven the living entity is disturbed by rivalry with his equals and envy of those superior to him. And since one's residence in heaven is finished with the exhaustion of pious fruitive activities, the denizens of heaven are afflicted by fear, anticipating the destruction of their heavenly life. Thus they resemble kings who, though enviously admired by ordinary citizens, are constantly harassed by enemy kings and who therefore never attain actual happiness.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has quoted the following text from the Chāndogya Upaniñad (8.1.6): tad yatheha karma-cito lokaù kñéyate, evam evāmutra puëya-cito lokaù kñéyate. "One's present status of material pleasure, the result of one's previous work, will eventually be vanquished by time. Similarly, although by executing pious activities one will be elevated to a higher status in the next life, that future situation will also be vanquished." The basis of material enjoyment is the particular body one has acquired. The material body is karma-citaù, the accumulated result of one's previous material activities. If one is awarded a body decorated with beauty, education, popularity, strength and so on, his standard of material enjoyment is certainly high class. On the other hand, if one is ugly, mentally retarded, crippled or repulsive to others, there is very little hope for his material happiness. In both cases, however, the situation is flickering and temporary. One who has acquired an attractive body should not rejoice, since death will quickly bring an end to such an intoxicating situation. Similarly, one who has taken birth in an obnoxious situation should not lament, since his suffering is also temporary. The beautiful man and the ugly man, the rich and the poor, the educated and the foolish should all endeavor to become Kāñëa conscious so that they can be elevated to their eternal constitutional situation, which is to reside in the planets beyond this material universe. Originally every living entity is unimaginably beautiful, intelligent, wealthy, and so strong that his spiritual body lives forever. But we foolishly give up this eternal, blissful situation because we are unwilling to meet the condition for eternal life. The condition is that one should be a lover of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. Although love of Kāñëa is the most exquisite ecstasy, surpassing by millions of times the most intense pleasure of the material universe, we foolishly break off our loving affair with the Supreme Lord and artificially try to become independent enjoyers in the material atmosphere of self-delusion and false pride.

Even if one reaches the exalted heavenly planets of this universe he will be afflicted by various types of suffering. Every conditioned soul in the material world wants to become the greatest person. Therefore one is constantly harassed by his equals who have a similar desire. This situation is commonly termed the "rat race" of material existence. Even on the heavenly planets there is a similar rat race for heavenly distinction. Since some persons inevitably excel our own achievements, our hearts burn with envy upon seeing others enjoying the very rewards we have strived for. And because our whole situation is temporary, we must undergo fear, anxiety and death even on the heavenly planets. The example given here is very nice. Minor kings may be enviously admired by ordinary citizens for their wealth, power and fame, but such kings themselves constantly burn with jealousy, resentment and fear due to rivalry and threats from other kings. Similarly, modern politicians are constantly harassed by envy and fear.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has pointed out that the conditioned souls, being eager to acquire material happiness and avoid distress, take shelter of sexual relationships and thus surrender to the hard labor of fruitive activities. Those who are enlightened, however, can perceive the ultimate futility of such gross materialistic endeavors. One's so-called wife, home, children, relatives, bank account and so on are all temporary phantasmagoria, and even while manifest they can never give real satisfaction to one's senses. To acquire wealth in this world one is practically forced to become the killer of his own soul. There is no possibility of acquiring pleasure from materialistic activities, since they are performed with temporary senses in the hot pursuit of temporary sense objects. When the conditioned soul achieves his goal he becomes proud and brags to others as if his achievements were permanent. And when defeated he is submerged in lamentation. Such a tendency to consider oneself the doer is a sign of weak intelligence, since in fact the living entity is merely desiring within the material body. The body itself is moved by the forces of material nature, under the control of God. The relationships of master and servant, father and son, husband and wife entail exchanges of well-wishing and service that give a sense of material gratification, but such ephemeral devotion can never bring about the eternal absolute benefit of the soul. By such temporary gratification, māyā induces the conditioned soul to wander throughout the material world, pursuing the relative rewards of material nature. According to the subtle laws of karma, the living entity achieves happiness and distress. One cannot obtain happiness by force, no matter how strenuously or how long one tries. Therefore those whose intelligence is uncontaminated should surrender at the lotus feet of Kāñëa and give up the ludicrous pursuit of permanent material happiness, a pursuit which can be compared to a dog's chasing its tail.

TEXT 21

tasmaAÖ"çM& 'apaâeta
ijaÁaAs$au: ™aeya oÔamama, zAAbde" pare" ca inaSNAAtaM “aöNyaupazAmaA™ayama,

*tasmäd guruà prapadyeta
jijì äsuù çreya uttamam
çäbde pare ca niñëätaà
brahmaëy upaçamäçrayam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmät—therefore; gurum—a spiritual master; prapadyeta—one should take shelter of; jiji' äsuù—being inquisitive; çreyaù uttamam—about the highest good; çäbde—in the Vedas; pare—in the Supreme; ca—and; ninñäätam—perfectly knowledgeable; brahmaëi—(in these two aspects) of the Absolute Truth; upaçama-äçrayam—fixed in detachment from material affairs.

TRANSLATION

Therefore any person who seriously desires real happiness must seek a bona fide spiritual master and take shelter of him by initiation. The qualification of the bona fide guru is that he has realized the conclusions of the scriptures by deliberation and is able to convince others of these conclusions. Such great personalities, who have taken shelter of the Supreme Godhead, leaving aside all material considerations, should be understood to be bona fide spiritual masters.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the word çäbde refers to the Vedic literature, and pare refers to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The bona fide spiritual master must be ninñäätam, deeply experienced in authorized Vedic literatures and in practical understanding of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Without scriptural knowledge and practical realization of the Personality of Godhead, a so-called guru will be unable to dissipate the doubts of his disciples and therefore unable to execute the function of bringing the sincere student back home, back to Godhead. The symptom of realized understanding of the Vedas and Kânñëa is upaçamäçrayam. In other words, the bona fide spiritual master is one who has retired from the glittering illusions of materialistic society, friendship and love.

Within the material world one is certainly attracted to becoming a great intellectual, a powerful politician, the loving father of many beautiful and affectionate little children, a most honored welfare worker or a highly admired and successful businessman. But none of these material positions have a permanent basis, nor do they afford permanent happiness, because they are all based on the primary misunderstanding by which one identifies himself with the material body.

Anyone can readily experience that he is not the body but consciousness. Even if one loses a limb of his body, he does not cease to exist as a conscious entity. Ultimately, the entire body is lost at the time of death, and the living entity acquires a new body. The preliminary understanding of one's identity as consciousness is called self-realization. But beyond this elementary knowledge is the elaborate subject matter of how the soul came to exist within the cycle of 8,400,000 material species of life. And if the living entity is not the material body but consciousness, he must ultimately have an original status on a higher platform.

Punishment implies reward also; a powerful man who can punish is also able to reward. Therefore, the existence of punishment for the living being, who is forced to take a miserable material body subject to birth, old age, disease and death, also logically implies the existence of a reward for him. Although we mistakenly consider material sense gratification the ultimate reward of life, material happiness is actually another type of punishment, since it entices one to continue rotating in the cycle of birth and death. In the Western countries violent prisoners are placed in solitary confinement whereas well-behaved prisoners are sometimes allowed to work in the warden's garden or library as a reward. But any position in prison is ultimately a punishment. Similarly, the existence of higher and lower categories of material sense gratification does not explain the living entity's ultimate reward, which must constitute the natural antithesis of the punishment of material existence. That actual reward is an eternal life of bliss and knowledge in the kingdom of God, where there is no punishment. The kingdom of God is Vaikuëöha, or unconditional pleasure. There is no punishment in the spiritual world; it is a place of ever-increasing pleasure.

A bona fide spiritual master is one who is expert in all of these subject matters, not by his personal imagination or speculation but by mature understanding of the authorized Vedic literatures, which are the literary manifestation of the causeless mercy of God. The Lord says in Bhagavad-gëtä

(9.3).

*açraddadhänäù puruñä
dharmasyäsya parantapa apräpya mäà nivartante
mâtyu-saàsära-vartmani*

"Those who are not faithful on the path of devotional service cannot attain Me, O conqueror of foes, but return to birth and death in this material world." Therefore the spiritual master must awaken the disciple to the eternal existence of devotional service. The example may be given that in the early morning a mother may enter her child's room to wake him up so that he can attend school. The child does not want to get up, but the loving mother forces him to get up and sends him off to school to be educated. Similarly, the bona fide spiritual master awakens the sleeping soul and sends him to the gurukula, or the āçrama of the spiritual master, where he can be trained in perfect knowledge.

If the disciple has doubts about the value of Kåñëa consciousness, the bona fide spiritual master must dissipate those doubts by superior knowledge. One who himself doubts the authority of Kåñëa or Vedic knowledge cannot become a bona fide spiritual master. On the other hand, kibä vipra, kibä nyäsé, çüdra kena naya/ yei kånëa-tattva-vettä, sei 'guru' haya: [Cc. Madhya 8.128] any human being from any social or economic status can become a bona fide spiritual master if he knows the science of Kåñëa. Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu said, yäre dekha, täre kaha 'kånëa'-upadeça ämära äji äya guru hai ä tära ei deça

"Instruct everyone to follow the orders of Lord Çré Kåñëa as they are given in Bhagavad-gétä and Çrémad-Bhägavatam. In this way become a spiritual master and try to liberate everyone in this land." (Cc. Madhya 7.128) Only by the order and authority of the Supreme Lord one can become a spiritual master, not by one's own so-called erudition.

The duty of the bona fide guru is to connect the disciple to Kåñëa. A scholar or meditator has no potency to connect another living being with Kāñëa if that scholar or meditator himself is not connected with Kāñëa. Although many sports fans attend gymnastic competitions and applaud at the exhibition of difficult calisthenic feats, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is not such a gymnastic spectator, and He does not applaud the calisthenics exhibited by foolish persons in the name of yoga. Nor is the Supreme Personality of Godhead impressed by mediocre attempts at philosophical speculation, since the Lord has already given His own opinion in Bhagavad-gētā (çåëu me paramaà vacaù). The word of Kāñëa is paramaà vacaù, the last word in knowledge. And Kāñëa says, yaj ji' ätvä neha bhüyo 'nyaj ji' ätavyam avaçinñyate: "When you know this knowledge there shall remain nothing further to be known." Kāñëa has also referred to His knowledge as räja-vidyā, the king of all knowledge.

If one does not become a lover of Kāñëa, his connection with Kāñëa takes place indirectly, through the illusory potency of the Lord. The idea that one can attract the Supreme Lord through mere gymnastics or foolish speculation on the Absolute Truth is certainly a product of māyā. One who is connected to Kāñëa through His external, illusory potency can serve only as a material master to connect his so-called disciples to the same illusory energy. On the other hand, in Bhagavad-gētā (9.13) it is said, mahātmānas tu mää pätha daivéà prakātim āçritäù bhajanty ananya-manaso ji' ätvä bhütādim avyayam

Those who are actually great souls have surrendered to the internal potency of the Lord and can similarly connect others to the internal pleasure-giving potency. A mahātmā is described in Bhagavad-gētā as follows: vāsudevaù sarvam iti sa mahātmā sudurlabhaù [Bg. 7.19]. "He knows Me to be the cause of all causes and all that is. Such a great soul is very rare." It is to such a spiritual master, who has reached the mature understanding that Vāsudeva is everything, that one must surrender. According to Çré Nārada Muni, yo vidvān sa gurur hariù: such a great soul is to be considered the external manifestation of Kāñëa Himself. Kāñëa states this also:

*äcäryaà mäà vijñëyän nävamanyeta karhicit
na martya-buddhyäsüyeta sarva-devamayo guruù*

"One should know the äcärya to be My self and never disrespect him in any way. One should not envy him, thinking him an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods." (SB 11.17.27)

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, if a spiritual master cannot destroy his disciple's doubts by superior knowledge, the disciple will gradually become despondent in spiritual life. Because a bogus guru cannot actually give Kāñëa to the disciple according to the principle of rasa-varjaà raso 'py asya, the disciple will again become attracted to material happiness, not having achieved the bliss of Kāñëa's association. Such a weak disciple of a weak spiritual master will gradually become hopeless and discouraged in his attempt at self-realization and will again become fascinated by the temptations of illusion, such as women, money and so-called intellectuality based on speculation and imagination.

Further symptoms of the bona fide spiritual master are given in the Upadeçämâta (1) as follows:

väco vegaà manasaù krodha-vegaà jihvä-vegam udaropastha-vegam etän vegän yo viñaheta dhëraù sarväm apémäà pâthivëà sa çinñyät

"A sober person who can tolerate the urge to speak, the mind's demands, the actions of anger and the urges of the tongue, belly and genitals is qualified to make disciples all over the world." Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated, upaçamäçrayaà krodha-lobhädy-avaçë-bhütam: a bona fide spiritual master cannot be under the control of ordinary anger, greed and lust.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, one who has understood the futility of material existence can approach a bona fide spiritual master. In the two previous verses the futility of earthly and heavenly sense gratification has been described. Now, the natural conclusion is that one who has understood this should approach a bona fide spiritual master. The bona fide spiritual master broadcasts the sound vibration from the spiritual planets called Vaikuṇṭha. The inhabitants of the spiritual planets, headed by the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself, are certainly not deaf and dumb; they are in constant communication through unlimited transcendental bliss and knowledge. And the bona fide spiritual master can transmit this sound vibration of bliss and knowledge to his disciple. Just as a radio broadcasts mundane news, the bona fide guru broadcasts the news from Vaikuṇṭha. This is confirmed by Narottama dāsa Ṗhākura: golokera prema-dhana, hari-nāma-saī kērtana. The spiritual master also transmits to the disciple the holy name of Kāṇṭha, which is nondifferent from Kāṇṭha Himself. The bona fide guru informs his disciple that every living entity is qualitatively one with the Supreme Lord but quantitatively different and thus engages the disciple in the loving service of the Lord. Because the living entity is qualitatively one with the Lord and is part of Him, there is an eternal loving relationship between them. And because the living entity is quantitatively different, that relationship is eternally one of service. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ṗhākura, even though one may have the good fortune to accept a bona fide, highly qualified guru, if one maintains a taste for fruitive activities or mental speculation one's advancement will be checked. But if a serious student surrenders to a bona fide spiritual master there is absolutely no impediment to the transmission of perfect knowledge and bliss in the devotional service of the Lord.

TEXT 22

taṭa BaAgAvataAnDamaARna, izA°aeÖ"vaARtmadE"vata: @maAyayaAnauva{ÔyaA yaEs$a, tauSyæd"AtmaAtmad"Ae h"ir":

tatra bhāgavatān dharmān çikñed gurv-ātma-daivataù amāyayānuvāṭṭyā yais tuñyed ātmātma-do hariù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tatra—there (in the association of the spiritual master); bhāgavatān dharmān—the science of devotional service; çikñet—should learn; guru-ātma-daivataù—he for whom the spiritual master is his very life and worshipable deity; amāyayā—without deceit; anuvāṭṭyā—by faithful service; yaiù—by which (devotional science); tuñyet—can be satisfied; ātmā—the Supreme Soul; ātma-daù—who bestows His own self; hariù—Lord Hari.

TRANSLATION

Accepting the bona fide spiritual master as one's life and soul and worshipable deity, the disciple should learn from him the process of pure devotional service. The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari, the soul of all souls, is inclined to give Himself to His pure devotees. Therefore, the disciple should learn from the spiritual master to serve the Lord without duplicity and in such a faithful and favorable way that the Supreme Lord, being satisfied, will offer Himself to the faithful disciple.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé the Lord's tendency to give Himself to His pure devotee is demonstrated in the case of Bali Mahārāja, who sacrificed his universal kingdom for the pleasure of Lord Vāmanadeva. Lord Vāmana was so pleased by the selfless surrender of Bali Mahārāja that the Lord became the doorman in the palace of Bali who was reinstalled as a great leader in the universe.

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé comments that the spiritual master is to be considered the ātmā, or the very life, of the disciple, since real life begins when one is initiated by a bona fide spiritual master. Although one may experience many seemingly wonderful or important events in a dream, one's real life begins when he wakes up. Similarly, since the spiritual master gives birth to the disciple by awakening him to spiritual life, a bona fide disciple understands that his spiritual master is the very basis of his life.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the reservoir of all pleasure, and thus the Lord's giving Himself to a pure devotee indicates that such a devotee becomes immersed in the highest possible ecstasy. In this connection there is the following çruti-mantra: ānandād dhémāni bhütāni jāyante. "Indeed, it is from the all-blissful Supreme that all these creatures have come into being." Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has further pointed out that when the Lord bestows His own self upon a pure devotee such a fortunate devotee can actually see the Lord, touch Him and directly engage in His service.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, one should never consider one's spiritual master to be mundane or on an equal level with one's self. One should see the spiritual master as being always under the shelter of the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord. One should never try to engage the spiritual master in one's personal service with the mentality of lording it over the spiritual master and attaining through him some material gain. One who is actually advancing will become more and more eager to serve the spiritual master, and thus such a disciple experiences the pleasure of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé has delineated four preliminary requisites for advancement for the sincere disciple:

guru-pādāçrayas tasmät kāñëa-dékñädi-çikñäëam viçrambheëa guroù sevä sädhuvartmānuvartanam

"[1] Accepting the shelter of the lotus feet of a bona fide spiritual master, [2] becoming initiated by the spiritual master and learning how to discharge devotional service from him, [3] obeying the orders of the spiritual master with faith and devotion, and [4] following in the footsteps of great ācāryas [teachers] under the direction of the spiritual master." (Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.2.74) One who has executed these preliminary duties is qualified to relish Çrémad-Bhāgavatam.

When one actually hears the sound vibration of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam as it is, he becomes free from the desire for sense gratification and mental speculation and is happy and satisfied in the service of Lord Kāñëa.

yasyäà vai çrüyamäëyääà kāñëe parama-pūruñe bhaktir utpadyate puàsaù çoka-moha-bhayāpahä

"Simply by giving aural reception to Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, the feeling for loving devotional service to Lord Kāñëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, sprouts up at once to extinguish the fire of lamentation, illusion and fearfulness." (SB 1.7.7) One should hear Çrémad-Bhāgavatam from a bona fide spiritual master who can expertly engage the propensity for loving Kāñëa that arises from hearing the transcendental sound of the Bhāgavatam. Such a transcendental, authorized engagement is called bhāgavata-dharma. Within the International Society for Krishna Consciousness there are many thousands of authorized engagements pertaining to the Society's missionary activities. And by hearing the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam and performing such engagements the Society's members feel relief from çoka (lamentation), moha (illusion) and bhaya (fear).

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, those who have achieved a mature understanding of the transcendental sound vibration of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam may adopt the order of tridaëòì-sannyäsa, as described in the Haàsa-gétä, the Thirteenth Chapter of this canto. A so-called Vaiñëava who whimsically neglects the strict control of the body, mind and speech cannot actually achieve shelter at the lotus feet of a bona fide spiritual master. Even if such a whimsical sense enjoyer makes a show of assuming the dress and daëòä of Vaiñëava sannyäsa, he will not attain the desired result, love of Kāñëa. A bona fide Vaiñëava should work earnestly to free himself from any tinge of sense gratification and mental speculation, and with a loving heart he should carry out the orders of his bona fide spiritual master. By always remembering the exalted position of the bona fide spiritual master, the disciple will achieve shelter at the lotus feet of Kāñëa.

TEXT 23

s$avaRtaAe manas$aAe's$aËÿma, @Ad"AE s$aËMÿ ca s$aADauSau d"yaAM maEḥal%M 'a™ayaM ca BaUtaeSvaÜ"A yaTaAeicatama, *sarvato manaso 'saì gam

ādau saì gaà ca sādhuñu dayäà maitréà praçrayaà ca bhüteñv addhā yathocitam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarvataù—everywhere; manasaù—of the mind; asaì gam—detachment; ādau—in the beginning; saì gam—association; ca—and; sādhuñu—with saintly persons; dayäm—mercy; maitrém—friendship; praçrayam—reverence; ca—and; bhüteñu—for all living beings; addhā—thus; yathā ucitam—as is suitable.

TRANSLATION

A sincere disciple should learn to dissociate the mind from everything material and positively cultivate association with his spiritual master and other saintly devotees. He should be merciful to those in an inferior position to him, cultivate friendship with those on an equal level and meekly serve those in a higher spiritual position. Thus he should learn to deal properly with all living beings.

PURPORT

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from the Garuḍa Purāṇa to demonstrate that within this universe those who take birth as demigods, great āñis or pious human beings are all considered santaù, or saintly persons. According to Bhagavad-gētā, traiguṇya-viñayā vedāù: the varëāçrama culture described in Vedic literature deals mostly with the living entities who are struggling within the three modes of nature. The Vedic literatures teach such conditioned souls that material happiness can be achieved only through pious works. In this sense, the demigods are to be considered the most pious living entities within the three modes of material nature. The āñis, or the great saintly mystics of the universe, who are able to travel at will to various planets and who cultivate mystic powers, are to be considered somewhat below the demigods. And those human beings on earth who perfectly execute the Vedic rituals are to be considered in the third or lowest category of santaù, or saintly persons. But a devotee of the Lord is beyond the three modes of material nature. Lord Kāṇëa says in Bhagavad-gētā (14.26), *māà ca yo 'vyabhicāreëa bhakti-yogena sevate

sa guëän samatētyaitān
brahma-bhüyāya kalpate*

"One who engages in full devotional service, who does not fall down in any circumstance, at once transcends the modes of material nature and thus comes to the level of Brahman." Thus Lord Kāṇëa clearly says that a Vaiñëava who does not fall down from the regulations of bhakti-yoga is beyond the three modes of nature. And Lord Kāṇëa advised Arjuna, a kāṇëa-bhakta, to transcend the three material qualities of the illusory creation of māyā (nistraiguṇyo bhavārjuna). But in the Eighteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gētā (18.40) the Lord says,

na tad asti pāthivyāà vā divi deveñu vā punaù sattvaà prakāti-jair muktaà

yad ebhiù syät tribhir guëaiù

"There is no being existing, either here or among the demigods in the higher planetary systems, who is free from the three modes of material nature." Thus the demigods are not exempt from the pollution of the three modes of material nature, whereas a pure devotee actually becomes guëätëta, or transcendental to the influence of mâyä.

Therefore, one should cultivate the association of the uttama-adhikäre, or pure devotee of the Lord, as stated previously (SB 11.3.21):

*tasmäd guruà prapadyeta
jijì äsuù çreya uttamam
çäbde pare ca niñëätaà
brahmaëy upaçamäçrayam*

"Therefore any person who seriously desires real happiness must seek a bona fide spiritual master and take shelter of him by initiation. The qualification of the bona fide guru is that he has realized the conclusions of the scriptures by deliberation and is able to convince others of these conclusions. Such great personalities, who have taken shelter of the Supreme Godhead, leaving aside all material considerations, should be understood to be bona fide spiritual masters."

On the other hand, one should avoid the association of a materialistic person even if such a person is outwardly chanting the holy names of Kåñëa. Çréla Rûpa Gosvämé has advised in this respect, kåñëeti yasya giri taà manasädriyeta dëkñästi cet praëatibhiç ca bhajantam éçam çuçrûñayä bhajana-vijì am ananyam anyanindädi-çünya-hâdam épsita-saì ga-labdhyä

One may mentally offer respect to any living entity who is chanting the holy name of Kåñëa, but one should avoid intimate association with materialistic persons, especially those attached to sex enjoyment. Tamo-dväraà yonitäà saì gi-saì gam. If one associates with a sensuous person who is attached to the company of women, by such association one will surely go to hell.

But if a materialistic person approaches a pure devotee with a sincere desire to hear from him about spiritual improvement, that first-class devotee may mercifully give his association, provided the purpose of such a meeting is advancement in the devotional service of Kåñëa. By such association even a materialistic person can gradually become a pure devotee of Kåñëa. If an advanced devotee is not able to engage a materialistic person in the devotional service of Kåñëa, such association is strictly forbidden.

In the Garuòa Puräëa it is stated,

*viçeñataù svottameñu
vinä saì gaà na mucyate sva-néceñu tu deveñu
vinä saì gaà na püryate*

"One cannot be liberated without association with a pure devotee of the Lord. And unless one shows mercy to those in an inferior position, one's life will be superficial." It is our practical experience in the Kåñëa consciousness movement that those who are expanding their mercy by preaching the message of Kåñëa are making rapid spiritual progress, and their life is filled with transcendental bliss. Those who neglect the quality of mercy, being uninterested in the missionary activities of the Kåñëa consciousness movement, are not filled with transcendental pleasure as described here by the word püryate. Not being filled with spiritual pleasure, surely such persons attempt to fill their lives with material pleasure through sense gratification and mental speculation, associating with women or reading innumerable mundane novels, newspapers, newsmagazines, and so on. According to Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu the preaching activities of the Kåñëa consciousness movement are änandämbudhi-vardhanam, the ever-increasing ocean of bliss. Missionary activities are based on the principle of dayäm, or mercy to those who are fallen. Those who are actually preaching become enlivened by associating with other preachers. This principle is called maitrêm, or friendship among equals. The power to carry out such preaching activities, as well as the proper guidance for distributing Kāñëa's message, comes through the principle of praçrayam, or humble service at the lotus feet of spiritual authorities such as the spiritual master. If one preaches Kāñëa consciousness sincerely under the guidance of a bona fide spiritual master and in the company of fellow preachers, one is perfectly fulfilling the statement of this verse of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, and thus he will come to the point of sarvato manaso 'saì gam, or complete detachment from the illusory energy of the Lord. Caitanya Mahāprabhu has stated, lava-mātra sādhu-saì ge sarva-siddhi haya [Cc. Madhya 22.54]. By becoming attached to the devotees of the Lord, one will achieve all perfection in life, going back home, back to Godhead.

If one neglects the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead by engaging in sinful life, he is certainly not merciful. One who ignores his eternal status as part and parcel of the Supreme Lord and who instead covers himself more and more with material illusions in the form of temporary designations—"I am American," "I am Russian," "I am Indian," "I am black," "I am white" and so on—is certainly a killer of his own soul and cannot be considered merciful. Similarly, those who support animal slaughter by eating meat, fish and eggs cannot be considered merciful. Sometimes the argument is given that if one does not harm others he is perfectly religious. But because we are now in a state of ignorance, we have no idea whatsoever of the future reactions to our present activities. Ignorantly boasting that one is not harming others, without an awareness of the subtle laws of nature, does not make one a religious person. One becomes religious by surrendering to the laws of God as they are stated by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gétä. As long as a living entity is infatuated with his own mental speculations, which carry him away like the waves of the ocean, he cannot understand the process of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Mental speculations based on our experience of the variegated creations of the Lord's illusory energy are incapable of bringing us to perfect knowledge. One must give up materialistic association and make company with pure devotees of the Lord, those who are engaged twenty-four hours a day in perfectly pleasing the Supreme Lord.

One should cultivate association with those who are more advanced than oneself in devotional service. One's advancement can be measured by one's detachment from sense gratification and his ability to distribute Kāñëa consciousness to others. In this connection Çrëla Narottama dāsa Öhäkura has said, chäöiyä vaiñëava-sevä, nistära päyechë kebä: "Who can attain salvation if he gives up the service of the Vaiñëavas?" By serving the lotus feet of pure devotees, one is immediately enlightened with spiritual knowledge. All of the so-called pleasures of the material world, culminating in many varieties of sexual fantasy and impersonal visions of oneself as God, become useless to one who has achieved the mercy of the lotus feet of a pure devotee of Kāñëa. The entire material creation is compared to an insignificant bubble in the ocean. The material universe rests on the spiritual potency of the Lord called brahma-jyotir, just as an insignificant bubble rests on the potency of the unlimited ocean. By serving the lotus feet of a pure devotee one can enter the ocean of eternal happiness and experience his constitutional position as a servant of Kāñëa. The mercy of the Vaiñëavas is unlimited, and one who has tasted that mercy becomes mad after the lotus feet of Kāñëa, not caring for the hallucinations of so-called material pleasure or mental speculation. The mercy of the Vaiñëavas is substantial and as powerful as Kāñëa Himself, whereas impersonal speculations and hopeless dreams of society, friendship and love merely constitute various means by which mäyä cheats the conditioned souls and keeps them in perpetual frustration.

TEXT 24

zAAEcaM tapaistaita⁰aAM ca maAEnaM svaADyaAyamaAjaRvama, "aöcayaRmaihM"s$aAM ca s$amatvaM ā"nā"s$aMÁayaAe:

çaucaà tapas titikñäà ca maunaà svädhyäyam ärjavam brahmacaryam ahiàsäà ca

samatvaà dvandva-saàjī ayò

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çaucam—cleanliness; tapaù—austerity; titikñām—tolerance; ca—and; maunam—silence; svādhyāyam—study of the Vedas; ārjavam—simplicity; brahmacaryam—celibacy; ahiàsām—nonviolence; ca—and; samatvam—equanimity; dvandva-saàjī ayò—in situations perceived in terms of duality.

TRANSLATION

To serve the spiritual master the disciple should learn cleanliness, austerity, tolerance, silence, study of Vedic knowledge, simplicity, celibacy, nonviolence, and equanimity in the face of material dualities such as heat and cold, happiness and distress.

PURPORT

Çaucam, or "cleanliness," refers to both internal and external purity. One should remain externally clean by bathing with soap and water at least once and, if possible, three times daily. One is considered internally pure when he is free from the pollution of false pride and egotism. Tapaù, or "austerity," means that despite the irrational impulses of the mind one should remain fixed in executing his proper duty in life. Specifically, one must control burning anger and the urge for wanton sex life. If a human being does not control the impulses of lust, anger and greed, he loses his power to understand his actual situation. Human life is a golden opportunity to solve the overwhelming problems of birth, death, old age and disease. According to the Viñëu Puräëa (3.8.9), *varëäçramäcära-vatä

puruñëëa paraù pumän
viñëur ärädhyate panthä
nänyat tat-toña-käraëam*

[Cc. Madhya 8.58]

Every human being can achieve spiritual perfection by dedicating the fruits of his prescribed work to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu. Similarly, in Bhagavad-gétä (18.45) Lord Kânëa clearly states, sve sve karmaëy abhirataù saàsiddhià labhate naraù. One does not have to adopt a monastic life or live in the forest as a yogé; one can achieve perfection by dedicating his occupational duties to the Supreme Lord. Similarly, Bhaktivinoda Öhäkura has said, nämäçraya kari' yatane tumi, thakaha äpana käje. If one sincerely takes shelter of the holy names of Kânëa by chanting Hare Kânëa, Hare Kânëa, Kânëa Kânëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Räma, Hare Räma, Räma Räma, Hare Hare, he will achieve spiritual perfection within the compass of his normal daily activities. Unfortunately, if a human being neglects the regulative principles of civilized life that prohibit illicit sex, meat-eating, intoxication and gambling, he will surely be overwhelmed by the waves of lust and anger, which completely cover one's consciousness of the reality of spiritual life and draw one to engage in the phantasmagoria of the temporary material body. As Lord Kânëa has stated in Bhagavad-gétä (3.39), *ävâtaà jì änam etena jì änino nitya-vairiëä

käma-rüpeëä kaunteya duñpüreëänalena ca*

"Thus a man's pure consciousness is covered by his eternal enemy in the form of lust, which is never satisfied and which burns like fire." Therefore, the word tapaù, or "austerity," in this verse indicates that one must remain in his prescribed duty and not become impatient or unregulated due to the waves of lust, anger and greed.

The word titikñäm, or "tolerance," indicates that a transcendentalist must be forgiving. The material world is full of embarrassing and irritating situations, and unless one is inclined to be very much forgiving he will become infected by a vindictive mentality, which spoils one's spiritual consciousness. Maunam, or "silence," means that one should not speak on worthless or frivolous topics, but should discuss the actual issues of human life such as going back home, back to Godhead. Remaining completely silent is a symptom of ignorance; a stone is silent due to a lack of consciousness. Since every material thing has its spiritual counterpart, the Vedic çāstras contain negative and positive injunctions. Corresponding to the negative injunction against speech is the positive injunction that one should always speak about Kāñëa. Satataà kértayanto mām [Bg. 9.14]. One should always speak about the Supreme Personality of Godhead, glorifying His holy name, fame, pastimes, entourage, and so on. In the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam also it is stated, çrotavyaù kértitavyaç ca dhyeyaù püjyaç ca nityadä. One should always hear about, glorify, meditate upon and worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa. In the twenty-first verse of this chapter it was stated, çäbde pare ca niñëätam. The bona fide spiritual master is expert in çäbde pare, or the transcendental sound vibration describing the spiritual world. One cannot artificially remain empty-headed or speechless, as advocated by foolish proponents of concocted systems of meditation and yoga. But one should be so absorbed in the loving service of Kāñëa, and so lovingly attracted to praising Kāñëa, that one has not a single moment free to speak nonsense. That is the purport of the word maunam.

Svädhyäyam means that one should study Vedic literature according to his individual ability and also teach others. In Bhagavad-gétä it is mentioned that a brähmaëa should have the qualities of jì äna and viñi äna, scriptural knowledge and practical realized application of knowledge. Specifically one should study those books which increase one's desire to serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead. His Divine Grace Oà Viñëupäda Paramahaàsa Parivräjakäcärya Añöottara-çata Çré Çrémad Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda has written in a few short years a veritable library of transcendental knowledge. It is being practically seen throughout the world that when the principle of svädhyäyam, or Vedic study, is applied to these books, such as Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Bhagavad-gétä As It Is, Caitanya-caritāmāta and The Nectar of Devotion, the sincere reader becomes infused with the ecstatic determination to serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The entire International Society for Krishna Consciousness is expanding all over the world on the basis of this transcendental literature. Svädhyäyam does not indicate speculative or imaginary interpretations of religious scriptures, nor should one try to read many books to increase his false prestige as a so-called scholar. One should read those books which inspire practical spiritual advancement in knowledge and renunciation, as exemplified by the books of Çréla Prabhupāda.

The word ārjavam indicates simplicity or straightforwardness. According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé svacchatām, or "clarity, transparency," is a synonym for straightforwardness. Unless one is pure in consciousness he will adopt many crooked means. Straightforwardness does not indicate that one should insult others in the name of honesty, but that one should speak the humble truth. The word brahmacaryam, or "celibacy," indicates either renouncing completely the association of women or following strictly the Vedic principles of householder life, which regulate sex life for the purpose of procreating saintly children. Ahiàsām indicates that one should not commit violence against any living entity. Unless one is aware of the subtle laws of karma, by which a living being enjoys and suffers, one cannot actually practice ahiàsā, or nonviolence. Ultimately the material world is full of violence, and the laws of nature, which impose old age, disease and death upon every living creature, are themselves filled with violence. Therefore, if somehow or other one can convince others to surrender to Kāñëa and thus release themselves from the violent laws of material nature, that is the perfection of ahiàsā.

Samatvaà dvandva-saàjì' ayoù indicates that one should keep a cool head even when disturbing material dualities become manifest. Kāñëa says in Bhagavad-gétā (2.14):

*mātrā-sparçās tu kaunteya çëtoñëa-sukha duùkha-däù āgamāpāyino 'nityās
täàs titikñasva bhārata*

"O son of Kunté, the nonpermanent appearance of happiness and distress, and their disappearance in due course, are like the appearance and disappearance of winter and summer seasons. They arise from sense perception, O scion of Bharata, and one must learn to tolerate them without being disturbed."

TEXT 25

s$avaRṣaAtmaeīr"Anval°aAM kE(valyamainake(tataAma, ivaiva·(calr"vas$anaM
s$antaAeSaM yaena ke(naicata, sarvatrātmeṣvarānvēkñāà kaivalyam aniketatām vivikta-cēra-vasanaà

santoīaà yena kenacit

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarvatra—everywhere; ātma—for one's true self; ēṣvara—and for the Supreme Personality of Godhead; anvēkñām—meditation by keeping continuously in view; kaivalyam—solitude; aniketatām—having no fixed residence; vivikta-cēra—scraps of cloth found in unfrequented places; vasanam—wearing; santoīam—satisfaction; yena kenacit—with anything.

TRANSLATION

One should practice meditation by constantly seeing oneself to be an eternal cognizant spirit soul and seeing the Lord to be the absolute controller of everything. To increase one's meditation, one should live in a secluded place and give up false attachment to one's home and household paraphernalia. Giving up the decorations of the temporary material body, one should dress himself with scraps of cloth found in rejected places, or with the bark of trees. In this way one should learn to be satisfied in any material situation.

PURPORT

Kaivalyam, or living in a secluded place, indicates a place free from material disturbances. Therefore, one should live in the association of Vaiñëavas, where the common goal is advancement in Kãñëa consciousness. Especially in the Kali-yuga, if one tries to remain physically isolated from all others the result will be degradation or insanity. Aniketatãm means that one should not be intoxicated by the ephemeral satisfaction of one's "home sweet home," which will vanish at any moment by the unforeseen circumstances produced by one's previous activities. In this age it is not actually possible to dress in tree bark in modern cities, nor to wear mere scraps of cloth. Previously, human culture accommodated those practicing tapasya, or penances in the interest of spiritual advancement. In this age, however, the most urgent necessity is for preaching the message of Bhagavad-gëtä throughout human society. Therefore, it is recommended that Vaiñëavas dress with clean and neat cloth, covering the body decently so that the conditioned souls will not be frightened or repulsed by the severe penances of the Vaiñëavas. In the Kali-yuga the conditioned souls are extremely attached to material sense gratification, and extreme austerities are not appreciated, but are instead considered abominable denials of the flesh. Of course, austerity is required for spiritual advancement, but the practical example set by Çréla Prabhupäda in successfully spreading the Kãñëa consciousness movement was that all material things should be used to attract people to Kãñëa consciousness. Therefore, Vaiñëavas may at times adopt ordinary dress to serve the higher principle of distributing Kãñëa consciousness. In any case, one should learn to be satisfied in any material situation so as to prepare for the moment of death. According to Bhagavad-gëtä, at the time of death the particular consciousness we have created in this life will carry us to our future situation. Therefore, human life can be seen as a type of practice for successfully fixing one's mind on the Absolute Truth during the severe trials of death.

TEXT 26

™aÜ"AM BaAgAvatae zAAñe
'inand"Amanyaṭa caAipa ih" manaAevaAfk(maRd"NxM" ca s$atyaM zAmad"maAvaipa

*çraddhâà bhāgavate çāstre
'nindām anyatra cāpi hi mano-vāk-karma-daēōaà ca satyaà çama-damāv api*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çraddhām—faith; bhāgavate—related to the Supreme Lord; çāstre—in scripture; anindām—not blaspheming; anyatra—others; ca—also; api hi—indeed; manaù—of the mind; vāk—speech; karma—and one's activities; daēōam—strict control; ca—and; satyam—truthfulness; çama—self-control of the mind; damau—and of the external senses; api—also.

TRANSLATION

One should have firm faith that he will achieve all success in life by following those scriptures that describe the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Bhagavān. At the same time, one should avoid blaspheming other scriptures. One should rigidly control his mind, speech and bodily activities, always speak the truth, and bring the mind and senses under full control.

PURPORT

The definition of çraddhā, or faith, is given as follows in Caitanya-caritāmāta (Madhya 22.62):

'çraddhā'-çabde-viçvāsa kahe sudāōha niçcaya kāñēe bhakti kaile sarva-karma kâta haya

"By rendering transcendental loving service to Kāñēa, one automatically performs all subsidiary activities. This confident, firm faith, favorable to the discharge of devotional service, is called "çraddhä." Thus a devotee should be confident that by carrying out the injunctions of bhāgavata-çāstra, or Vedic literature that directly, rather than indirectly, describes devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one will easily achieve all knowledge and the perfection of life.

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, mano-vāk-kāya-daëòam, or strict control of the mind, speech and bodily activities, means mānasa-vācika-kāyika-vikarma-rāhityam; that is, one should rigidly abandon all sinful activities with his mind, speech and body. As Çréla Prabhupāda has repeatedly pointed out, sense control does not mean stopping sensory activities, thus becoming like a dead body, but rather engaging one's mental, vocal and bodily activities in the service of Kāñëa. Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé has stated, *éhä yasya harer dāsye karmaëä manasā girā nikhilāsv apy avasthāsu

jévan-muktaù sa ucyate*

"A person acting in Kāñëa consciousness, in the service of Kāñëa, with his body, mind, intelligence and words is a liberated person, even within the material world, although he may be engaged in many so-called material activities." (Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.2.187) Thus one can achieve vikarma-rāhityam, or freedom from unauthorized, sinful activities, by engaging one's senses, mind, intelligence and speech twenty-four hours daily in the service of Kāñëa. In Bhagavad-gétā Lord Kāñëa says that only those pious living entities who are vikarma-rahita, completely free from sinful life, can achieve freedom from the illusory duality of material nature (samatvaà dvandva-saàji ayòù). The Lord says, yeñäà tv anta-gataà päpaà janänäà punya-karmaëäm te dvandva-moha-nirmuktā bhajante mäà dāòha-vratäù

"Persons who have acted piously in previous lives and in this life, whose sinful actions are completely eradicated and who are freed from the duality of delusion engage themselves in My service with determination." (Bg. 7.28) In his purport to this verse, His Divine Grace Çréla Prabhupāda has stated, "Those eligible for elevation to the transcendental position are mentioned in this verse. For those who are sinful, atheistic, foolish and deceitful, it is very difficult to transcend the duality of desire and hate. Only those who have passed their lives in practicing the regulative principles of religion, who have acted piously and have conquered sinful reactions can accept devotional service and gradually rise to the pure knowledge of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Then, gradually, they can meditate in trance on the Supreme Personality of Godhead. That is the process of being situated on the spiritual platform. This elevation is possible in Kāññā consciousness in the association of pure devotees who can deliver one from delusion."

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted the following statement from the Brahmāēda Purāēa: "One should have complete faith in transcendental literature such as Çrēmad-Bhāgavatam and other literature that directly glorifies the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One should also have faith in Vaiññāva tantras, the original Vedas, and Mahābhārata, which includes Bhagavad-gētā and which is considered the fifth Veda. The Vedic knowledge originally emanated from the breathing of Viññēu, and Vedic literature has been compiled in literary form by Çréla Vyāsadeva, the incarnation of Viññēu. Therefore, Lord Viññēu should be understood to be the personal speaker of all this Vedic literature.

"There are other Vedic literatures, called kalā-vidyā, which give instructions in material arts and sciences. Since all such Vedic arts and sciences are ultimately intended to be used to render devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Keçava, saintly persons in the renounced order of life should never blaspheme such apparently mundane literatures; because such literatures are indirectly connected with the Supreme Lord, one may go to hell for blaspheming these secondary literatures.

"Çraddhā indicates a faithful mentality, which can be analyzed in two sections. The first type of faith is a firm conviction that all the statements of the multifarious Vedic literatures are true. In other words, the understanding that Vedic knowledge in general is infallible is called çraddhā, or faith. A second type of faith is the belief that one must personally carry out a particular injunction of Vedic literature in order to achieve his goal in life. A devotee of the Supreme Lord should thus apply the first type of faith to the various kalā-vidyās, or Vedic material arts and sciences, but he should not accept such scriptures as pointing out his personal goal in life. Nor should he carry out any Vedic injunction that is contradictory to the injunctions of Vaiñëava scriptures such as the Pañcarātra.

"Thus one should faithfully accept all Vedic literature as directly or indirectly describing the Supreme Personality of Godhead and should not blaspheme any portion of it. Even for Lord Brahmā, as well as for other creatures, down to the insignificant unmoving species such as trees and stones, blasphemy of any Vedic literature causes one to merge into the darkness of ignorance. Thus the suras—the demigods, great sages and devotees of the Lord—should understand that the Pañcarātric literatures, as well as the four Vedas, the original Rāmāyaṇa, the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam and other Purāṇas, and the Mahābhārata, are Vedic literatures that establish the supremacy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the unique transcendental position of the Lord's devotees according to their status of spiritual advancement. Any other vision of Vedic literatures is to be considered an illusion. In all authorized religious scriptures the ultimate goal is to understand that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the controller of everything and everyone, and that the Lord's devotees are not different from Him, although such devotees are to be understood in terms of their level of spiritual advancement." Lord Kāṇëa has stated in Bhāgavad-gītā, vedaḥ ca sarvair aham eva vedyo/ vedānta-kāṇḍa veda-vid eva cāham: "By all the Vedas, I am to be known; indeed, I am the compiler of Vedānta, and I am the knower of the Vedas." Similarly, the Lord states:

yasmāt kīṇāram atēto 'ham akīṇarād api cottamaṁ

*ato 'smi loke vede ca
prathitaù puruñottamaù*

"Because I am transcendental, beyond both the fallible and the infallible, and because I am the greatest, I am celebrated both in the world and in the Vedas as the Supreme Person." (Bg. 15.18)

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura mentions that one cannot develop the godly qualities mentioned in the preceding verses unless one accepts the shelter of the lotus feet of a bona fide Vaiñëava spiritual master. Tasmäd guruà prapadyeta jijñäsuà çreya uttamam [SB 11.3.21]. In this connection, he has quoted the following statement:

arcayitvä tu govindaà tadéyän nārcayet tu yaù na sa bhāgavato jī'eyaù kevalaà dāmbhikaù smātaù

"One who performs worship of Lord Govinda but fails to worship His devotees should be understood to be not a devotee of the Lord but simply a victim of false pride." For one who has accepted shelter at the lotus feet of a pure devotee of Kāñëa, it is very easy to execute worship of the Lord Himself.

For such a surrendered soul there is no need of artificial penances and austerities. In this regard Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has quoted the following (from Nārada Pañcarātra):

ārādhito yadi haris tapasā tataù kià narādhito yadi haris tapasā tataù kim antar bahir yadi haris tapasā tataù kià nāntar bahir yadi haris tapasā tataù kim

"If one is worshiping Lord Hari, what is the use of performing extraneous penances? And if one is not worshiping Lord Hari, no such penances will save one. If one can understand that Lord Hari is all-pervading, within and without, what is the need of performing penances? And if one is not able to understand that Hari is all-pervading, all his penances are useless." A Vaiñëava is always absorbed in executing his devotional service to Kāñëa. If a devotee becomes falsely proud of executing severe penances and austerities and meditates on accepting and rejecting material objects instead of thinking of his service to Kāñëa, his so-called austerities become an impediment to devotional service.

A devotee should not be disturbed by the word jugglery of those who are against the devotional service of the Lord. Çrëla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvatë Öhäkura has emphatically pointed out that devotional service to the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord is the only means of achieving the final perfection of life. Therefore a Vaiñëava should practice maunam, or silence, by ignoring those literatures which are full of false arguments, such as those of the Mäyäväda school, and those karma-käëòa scriptures which promote sense gratification in the name of religious life. If one becomes overwhelmed by mundane unhappiness due to not achieving immediate success in self-realization, or if one becomes deluded by sense gratification and tries to take shelter of materialistic men and doctrines, one's devotional progress will immediately be checked. Similarly, if a devotee expresses love for things separate from Kāñëa or tries to find fault in the process of devotional service or the philosophy of Bhagavad-gëtä in order to justify absorbing himself in the sense gratification of seeing things separate from Kāñëa, his progress in spiritual enlightenment will be seriously disturbed. Such an illusory concept is called dvitëyäbhiniveça, or absorption in illusion. On the other hand, if one is attracted to the vibration of Vedic sound by the consensus of self-realized authorities called the vaiñëava-paramparä and thus engages enthusiastically in kāñëa-näma-kértana, or chanting the holy names of the Lord, then one's practice of mauna, or silence, is perfect.

One should avoid prajalpa, or whimsical conversations unrelated to devotional service. Merely restraining the senses artificially without chanting and hearing the glories of the Supreme Lord cannot be considered the spiritual perfection. The example is given that although many domestic animals in the barnyard are sometimes forced to practice celibacy when isolated from one another, such animals cannot be considered brahmacärés, or spiritual students. Similarly, one is not considered spiritually advanced simply because of dry speculative arguments or temporary austerities. One must submissively hear the message of the Vedic sound vibration, especially as it is summarized in Bhagavad-gētā by the Lord Himself. Vedaiḥ ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15].

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura has warned us that if one becomes attracted to nontheistic ethical philosophies, such as those of the Buddhists and Jains, which glorify such mundane principles as ahiṁsā, or nonviolence, one's mundane faith in godless ethics is spiritually suicidal. To restrict the senses by artificial austerities and to undertake huge social arrangements to facilitate mass sense gratification are both godless attempts to regulate human society in an artificial way that hides the eternal relationship of every living being with the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the natural leader of society. When so-called moral philosophers spoil the opportunity of human life, the opportunity to revive our eternal relationship with Kāñēa, in the name of ethics such foolish persons commit the greatest violence against human society. Therefore, Kāñēadāsa Kavirāja Gosvāmē has said, çré-kāñēa-caitanya-dayā karaha vicāra vicāra karile citte pābe camatkāra

"If you are indeed interested in logic and argument, kindly apply them to the mercy of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu. If you do so, you will find such mercy strikingly wonderful." (Cc. Ādi 8.15)

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura a mahā-bhāgavata, or pure devotee of the Lord, is one who sees that both the material and spiritual worlds are nondifferent from Lord Kāñēa, being expansions of His potency, but also sees that Vrajendranandana, Kāñēa, keeps Himself eternally distinct by His unique quality of all-attractiveness. Thus a pure devotee of the Lord is aniketana, without a fixed residence, meaning that he accepts neither the gross nor subtle body as his eternal residence. Since one's so-called home and family are expansions of his body, such material creations are also not to be considered one's actual residence. Caitanya Mahāprabhu said, ayi nanda-tanuja kiî karaà patitaà mām viñame bhavāmbudhau kāpayā tava pāda-paî kajasthita-dhūlé-sadāçaà vicintaya [Cc. Antya 20.32, Çikñāññaka 5]

"O Kāñëa, son of Mahārāja Nanda, I am Your eternal servitor, yet somehow or other I have fallen into the ocean of birth and death. Please pick me up from this ocean of death and place me as one of the atoms at Your lotus feet." (Çikñāññaka 5) Thus a devotee should understand that his eternal residence is fixed in the dust of the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. A Vaiñëava should reject the gross sense gratification of living in the forest in the mode of goodness, in the city in the mode of passion, or in the gambling house in ignorance. A pure devotee may travel all over the world distributing Kāñëa consciousness, but he should never consider any material place to be his actual residence. One who has become mature in this understanding may take the tridaëòà-sannyāsa order of life under the direct shelter of the Lord.

The impersonalist cannot understand how the devotee of the Lord, although fixed in the duality of seeing himself as eternally different from the Lord, sees all existence as nondifferent from the Lord. Those who attempt to acquire knowledge by impersonal speculation based on their tiny experience of the material cosmic manifestation cannot understand the transcendental reality of acintya-bhedābheda-tattva(93), the Absolute Truth's simultaneous oneness with and difference from His creation. The process of assimilating this transcendental knowledge is given in these verses, starting with tasmād guruà prapadyeta [SB 11.3.21]. One is recommended to accept a bona fide spiritual master and serve him according to the direction of these verses. The essence of such instructions is that one should abandon the association of Māyāvādé impersonalists, ritualistic fruitive workers and those who are whimsically indifferent to the ultimate purpose of life, and instead one should devote himself to associating with the devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. A falsely proud neophyte may imagine himself a great devotee of the Lord without taking to the company of the Lord's followers, but without such association it is not possible to become advanced in Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXTS 27-28

™avaNAM k(LtaRnaM DyaAnaM h"re"r"àu"tak(maRNA: janmak(maRgAuNAAnaAM ca
tad"TaeR'iKalacaei"tama, wíM" d"ÔaM tapaAe jaæaM va{ÔaM ya»aAtmana: i'ayama, d"Ar"Ana, s$autaAna, gA{h"Ana, 'aANAAAna, yatpar"smaE inavaed"nama,

*çravaëaà kértanaà dhyānaà harer adbhuta-karmaëaù janma-karma-guëänäà ca
tat-arthe 'khila-ceññitam*

iññaà dattaà tapo japtaà vāttaà yac cātmanaù priyam dārān sutān gāhān prāëān yat parasmai nivedanam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çravaëam—hearing; kértanam—chanting; dhyānam—and meditation; hareù—of the Supreme Lord, Hari; adbhuta-karmaëaù—whose activities are wonderful; janma—of His incarnations; karma—pastimes; guëänäm—transcendental qualities; ca—and; tat-arthe—for His sake; akhila—all; ceññitam—endeavors; iññaam—whatever worship one performs; dattam—whatever charity; tapau—penance; japtam—whatever mantras one chants; vāttam—pious activities performed; yat—what; ca—also; ātmanaù—to oneself; priyam—dear; dārān—wife; sutān—sons; gāhān—home; prāëān—vital air; yat—which; parasmai—unto the Supreme;

nivedanam—offering.

TRANSLATION

One should hear, glorify and meditate upon the wonderful transcendental activities of the Lord. One should specifically become absorbed in the appearance, activities, qualities and holy names of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus inspired, one should perform all of one's daily activities as an offering to the Lord. One should perform sacrifice, charity and penance exclusively for the Lord's satisfaction. Similarly, one should chant only those mantras which glorify the Supreme Personality of Godhead. And all one's religious activities should be performed as an offering to the Lord. Whatever one finds pleasing or enjoyable he should immediately offer to the Supreme Lord, and even his wife, children, home and very life air he should offer at the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gētā (9.27) Lord Kāṇḍeya has ordered, *yat karoṇi yad aṇāsi yaj juhoṇi dadāsi yat

yat tapasyasi kaunteya
tat kuruṇva mad-arpaḥam*

"O son of Kuntī, all that you do, all that you eat, all that you offer and give away, and all austerities that you perform should be done as an offering unto Me." Śrīla Prabhupāda has commented on this verse as follows: "Thus, it is the duty of everyone to mold his life in such a way that he will not forget Kāṇḍeya in any circumstance. Everyone has to work for maintenance of his body and soul together, and Kāṇḍeya recommends herein that one should work for Him. Everyone has to eat something to live; therefore he should accept the remnants of foodstuffs offered to Kāṇḍeya. Any civilized man has to perform some religious ritualistic ceremonies; therefore Kāṇḍeya recommends, 'Do it for Me,' and this is called arcanam. Everyone has a tendency to give something in charity; Kāñëa says, 'Give it to Me,' and this means that all surplus money accumulated should be utilized in furthering the Kāñëa consciousness movement. Nowadays people are very much inclined to the meditational process, which is not practical in this age, but if anyone practices meditating on Kāñëa twenty-four hours by chanting the Hare Kāñëa mantra round his beads, he is surely the greatest yogé, as substantiated by the Sixth Chapter of Bhagavad-gētä."

Many persons who become attracted to the devotional service of Kāñëa are bewildered by the material possessions, reputation or skills they have accumulated by their previous material activities. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé these two verses indicate that all such material opulences accumulated by one's previous karma should be used as an offering to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One's fame, education, wealth and so on should all be used to carry out the mission of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Sometimes envious materialists ask why one should waste one's wealth and education in the Lord's service when such things could be better used to gratify the temporary material body. Actually, however, whatever we possess, including this body, is ultimately the property of the Supreme Lord, who is the creator, maintainer and annihilator of all existence. Therefore, one should be blessed by dovetailing one's so-called opulences in the devotional service of the Lord. Otherwise, as stated in Bhagavad-gētä, mâtyuù sarva-haraç cāham: [Bg. 10.34] the Supreme Lord will appear before us at the time of death as mâtyu, death personified, and violently take away all of our possessions. Therefore, such possessions should be peacefully offered to the lotus feet of the Lord while we are still living and able to enjoy the pious result of such an offering.

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, tapaù, austerity, means that one should observe vows such as Ekädaçé-vrata, in which one fasts from grains and beans twice a month. The word japtam refers to chanting the holy names of the Lord, such as Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Räma, Hare Räma, Räma Räma, Hare Hare. Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has further pointed out that one can offer one's wife, children and home to the Lord by converting one's family into devotees of the Supreme Lord. Rather than becoming artificially puffed up in the pursuit of so-called status symbols, one's family should be trained to understand that they are eternal servants of the Supreme Lord. And when the entire family becomes dedicated to the Lord's service, a very beautiful situation is created.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has pointed out that if a human being is not initiated into the process of bhāgavata-dharma he must depend upon the uncertain knowledge derived from his gross material senses. Indifferent to the sublime descriptions of the Lord's eternal appearances, pastimes and innumerable transcendental qualities, the faithless materialist wanders about on the platform of mundane enjoyment. But if one can understand the reality of the Supreme Personality of Godhead as He is described in authorized Vedic literature, then one should accept the order of tridaēda-sannyāsa, or at least one should practice restraint of the body, mind and words and thus become self-controlled and fixed in the Absolute Truth. Then all of one's desires, all the charity he gives, and his penances and chanting of mantras—in other words, his entire personality, his home, his children, his wife and his very life air—become heartfelt offerings to the Supreme Lord. When a living entity constantly hears the authorized descriptions of the Supreme Lord and dovetails all of his activities in the Lord's service, avoiding other activities, he is considered to be fixed on the platform of bhāgavata-dharma.

TEXT 29

WvaM k{(SNAAtmanaATaeSau manauSyaeSau ca s$aAEô$d"ma, pair"cayaA< caAeBayaṭa mah"ts$au na{Sau s$aADauSau

*evaà kânēātma-nātheñu manuñyeñu ca sauhādam paricaryāà cobhayatra
mahatsu nāñu sādhuñu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; kāñëa-ätma-nätheñu—for those who take Lord Kāñëa as the Lord of their soul; manuñyeñu—humans; ca—and; sauhādam—friendship; paricaryām—service; ca—and; ubhayatra—rendered to both (moving and nonmoving creatures, or the Lord and His devotees); mahatsu—(especially) to the pure devotees of the Lord; nāñu—to human beings; sādhuñu—those who are fixed in saintly behavior.

TRANSLATION

One who desires his ultimate self-interest should cultivate friendship with those persons who have accepted Kāñëa as the Lord of their life. One should further develop an attitude of service toward all living beings. One should especially try to help those in the human form of life and, among them, especially those who accept the principles of religious behavior. Among religious persons, one should especially render service to the pure devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, the highest duty for devotees of the Supreme Lord is to establish friendship with those who have completely surrendered to Kāñëa and who have thus achieved çaraëägati, shelter at the Lord's lotus feet. One should render service to both the Lord and His devotees, since the Lord is more pleased by sincere service rendered to His pure devotees. One should not only officially offer respect to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, His devotees and His worshipful paraphernalia, but should actually render service to the representatives of the Lord, who are known as mahä-bhāgavatas.

TEXT 30

par"s$par"Anauk(TanaM

paAvaM BagAvaâzA: imaTaAe r"itaimaRTastauî"r," inava{iÔaimaRTa @Atmana:

*parasparānukathanaà
pāvanaà bhagavad-yaçaù mitho ratir mithas tuññir nivāttir mitha ātmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

paraspara—mutual; anukathanam—discussion; pāvanam—purifying; bhagavat—of the Supreme Lord; yaçaù—glories; mithaù—mutual;
ratìù—loving attraction; mithaù—mutual; tuññiù—satisfaction;
nivāttiù—cessation of material miseries; mithaù—mutual; ātmanaù—of the soul.

TRANSLATION

One should learn how to associate with the devotees of the Lord by gathering with them to chant the glories of the Lord. This process is most purifying. As devotees thus develop their loving friendship, they feel mutual happiness and satisfaction. And by thus encouraging one another they are able to give up material sense gratification, which is the cause of all suffering.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, those who are advanced in Kāñëa consciousness should not envy one another or quarrel among themselves. Giving up all such mundane feelings, they should gather together and chant the glories of the Supreme Lord for mutual purification. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has pointed out that glorification of the Supreme Lord is especially potent when performed in the association of pure devotees. When devotees engage in saì kértana, chanting the glories of the Lord together, they experience the highest transcendental bliss and satisfaction.

Thus they encourage one another to give up material sense gratification, which is based on illicit sexual connections with women. One devotee will say to another, "Oh, you have given up sense gratification. Starting today, I shall also give it up."

One should learn to increase one's love for the devotees, to satisfy them and to give up sense objects unfavorable to serving Kāñëa. And one should learn to view the entire universe as paraphernalia for the Lord's service. By engaging the objects of the senses in Kāñëa's service, one automatically becomes detached from them. And as one passes one's days in the association of the Lord's devotees, one's transcendental ecstasy increases more and more, through discussions about the topics of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam and Bhagavad-gétä. Therefore, one who wants to be free from the harassment of māyā in the form of sense gratification must constantly associate with pure devotees of the Lord who have no engagement other than chanting and hearing the glories of the Lord and carrying out His mission on earth.

Çréla Madhvācārya has pointed out that just as one should cultivate friendship with devotees, one must cultivate a spirit of friendship toward the demigods, who manage the universe on the Lord's behalf. Thus one should live peacefully within this world.

TEXT 31

smar"nta: smaAr"yantaê imaTaAe'GaAEGah"rM" h"ir"ma, BaftyaA s$AãAAtayaA BaftyaA iba"atyautpaulak(AM tanauma,

smarantaù smārayantaç ca mitho 'ghaughā-harāà harim bhaktyā sai jātayā bhaktyā bibhraty utpulkāà tanum

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

smarantaù—remembering; smārayantaù ca—and reminding; mithaù—one another; agha-ogha-haram—who takes away everything inauspicious from the devotee; harim—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; bhaktyä—by devotion; saijätayä—awakened; bhaktyä—by devotion; bibhrati—possess; utpulakäm—agitated by ecstasy; tanum—body.

TRANSLATION

The devotees of the Lord constantly discuss the glories of the Personality of Godhead among themselves. Thus they constantly remember the Lord and remind one another of His qualities and pastimes. In this way, by their devotion to the principles of bhakti-yoga, the devotees please the Personality of Godhead, who takes away from them everything inauspicious. Being purified of all impediments, the devotees awaken to pure love of Godhead, and thus, even within this world, their spiritualized bodies exhibit symptoms of transcendental ecstasy, such as standing of the bodily hairs on end.

PURPORT

The word aghaugha-haram is very significant in this verse. Agha refers to that which is inauspicious or sinful. The living entity is actually sac-cid-ānanda-vigraha [Bs. 5.1], or eternal and full of bliss and knowledge, but by neglecting his eternal relationship with Kāñëa, the Personality of Godhead, he commits sinful activities and undergoes the inauspicious result in the form of material suffering. The chain of sinful reactions is called ogha, or a relentless wave of suffering. Kāñëa is aghaugha-haraà harim; He takes away the sinful reactions of His devotees, who are thus entitled to experience the inconceivable bliss of the kingdom of God even while remaining in this world.

The words bhaktyä saijätayä bhaktyä indicate that there are two divisions of bhakti-yoga: sādhana-bhakti and rāgānuga-bhakti. Çrëla Prabhupāda has elaborately explained in his book The Nectar of Devotion the progress of the devotee from sādhana-bhakti, or the execution of regulative principles, to rāgānuga-bhakti, or service executed in love of Godhead. According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura, a liberated soul is always enthusiastic due to the appearance of transcendental ecstasy within his body. Thus he always aspires to remain overwhelmed in chanting the glories of the Personality of Godhead, Hari.

TEXT 32

ḥ(icaāu"d"ntyacyautācantayaA ḥ(icaā," Das$ainta nand"inta vad"ntyalaAEik(k(A: na{tyainta gAAyantyanauszAllayantyajaM Bavainta taUSNAI%M par"maetya inava{RtaA:

kvacit rudanty acyuta-cintayā kvacit dhasanti nandanti vadanty alaukikāu nātyanti gāyanty anuṣṭelayanty ajaà bhavanti tūñēēà param etya nirvātāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kvacit—sometimes; rudanti—they cry; acyuta—of the infallible Supreme Lord; cintayā—by the thought; kvacit—sometimes; hasanti—they laugh; nandanti—take great pleasure; vadanti—speak; alaukikāu—acting amazingly; nātyanti—they dance; gāyanti—sing; anuṣṭelayanti—and imitate; ajam—the unborn; bhavanti—they become; tūñēēm—silent; param—the Supreme; etya—obtaining; nirvātāu—freed from distress.

TRANSLATION

Having achieved love of Godhead, the devotees sometimes cry out loud, absorbed in thought of the infallible Lord. Sometimes they laugh, feel great pleasure, speak out loud to the Lord, dance or sing. Such devotees, having transcended material, conditioned life, sometimes imitate the unborn Supreme by acting out His pastimes. And sometimes, achieving His personal audience, they remain peaceful and silent.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has explained the symptoms of love of Godhead. Rudanti: The devotees cry, thinking, "Another day has passed, and still I could not obtain Kāñëa. Then what will I do, where will I go, from whom shall I inquire, and who can possibly help me reach Kāñëa?" Hasanti: It is late at night, the sky is dark, and Kāñëa is determined to steal from the house of one of the elderly gopés. He is hiding underneath a tree in the corner of the courtyard belonging to one of the cowherd men. Although Kāñëa thinks that He is completely concealed, He suddenly hears a voice from one of the elderly members of the family. "Who are You there? Who are You? I say." Thus Kāñëa has been caught, and He begins to flee the courtyard. When this humorous scene is revealed to the devotee, the devotee begins to laugh heartily. Nandanti: When Kāñëa actually reveals His transcendental form to the devotee, the devotee experiences the highest transcendental bliss. Vadanti: The devotee says to the Lord, "O Kāñëa, after so many days I have finally achieved You."

When all of the devotee's senses are absorbed in Çré Kāñëa, the devotee has successfully transcended the material condition of life. This is indicated by the word alaukikäù. Alaukikäù, or the transcendental platform, is explained by the Lord in Bhagavad-gētä (14.26):

*mām ca yo 'vyabhicāreëa
bhakti-yogena sevate
sa guëän samatētyaitān
brahma-bhüyāya kalpate*

"One who engages in full devotional service, who does not fall down in any circumstance, at once transcends the modes of material nature and thus comes to the level of Brahman."

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, ajaà harim, anuçélayanti tal-lélām abhinayanti: "Anuçélayanti indicates that out of extreme ecstasy the devotees sometimes imitate or act out the pastimes of the Supreme Lord." This ecstatic symptom was manifested by the gopés in Våndävana during Kåñëa's absence.

In the twenty-first verse of this chapter it was stated that one who has understood that there is no happiness either on earth or in material heaven must surrender at the lotus feet of a bona fide spiritual master. Tasmäd guruà prapadyeta jiji' äsuu çreya uttamam [SB 11.3.21]. The following verses gave many detailed instructions regarding the activities of a bona fide disciple. Now this verse is describing the mature fruit of devotional service, namely, pure love of Godhead. Everyone has the opportunity to come to this platform of transcendental bliss by taking the dust of the lotus feet of Kåñëa's representative on his head. One should give up the mentality of envy and false prestige and humbly take shelter of the mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The spiritual master is to be considered the incarnation of the Lord's mercy. There is absolutely no doubt that a sincere soul who serves a bona fide spiritual master will achieve the highest perfection of life (çreya uttamam). He will enjoy eternal bliss and knowledge in the personal abode of the Lord.

TEXT 33

wita BaAgAvataAnDamaARna, izA°ana, BaftyaA taäu"tTayaA naAr"AyaNApar"Ae maAyaAma, @Ãastar"ita äu"star"Ama,

*iti bhāgavatān dharmān çikñān bhaktyā tad-utthayā nārāyaëa-paro mayām
ai jas tarati dustarām*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; bhāgavatān dharmān—the science of devotional service; çikñān—studying; bhaktyā—by devotion; tad-utthayā—generated by it; nārāyaëa-paraù—completely devoted to the Supreme Lord, Nārāyaëa;

māyām—the illusory energy; ai'jaù—easily; tarati—crosses beyond; dustarām—impossible to cross.

TRANSLATION

Thus learning the science of devotional service and practically engaging in the devotional service of the Lord, the devotee comes to the stage of love of Godhead. And by complete devotion to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa, the devotee easily crosses over the illusory energy, māyā, which is extremely difficult to cross.

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has pointed out that mukti, or liberation, which is described in this verse by the words māyām ai'jas tarati dustarām, is actually a by-product or secondary result of pure love of Godhead. In the second verse of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam it is pointed out, dharmaù projjhita-kaitavo 'tra paramo nirmatsaräääà satäà/ vedyäà västavam atra vastu çivadaà täpa-trayonmülanam [SB 1.1.2]. Çrémad-Bhāgavatam teaches the science of devotional service, in which the ultimate goal is pure love of Godhead. According to the Vaiñëava äcäryas, mukti, or liberation, is a by-product of love of Godhead. Çivadaà täpa-trayonmülanam. One should not approach the Supreme Personality of Godhead for liberation, since one is automatically liberated by obeying the order of the Lord. Kânëa's order is given at the end of Bhagavad-gétä: sarva-dharmän parityajya mäm ekaà çaraëäà vraja [Bg. 18.66]. Every living being should give up his mundane conceptions of life and take full shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kânëa. If one carries out this order the Lord automatically provides liberation (mukti). Actual happiness comes from loving God without any tinge of mental speculation or fruitive desire.

*anyäbhiläñitä-çünyaà ji äna-karmädy-anävätam änukülyena kânëänu-
çélanaà bhaktir uttamä*

[Cc. Madhya 19.167]

"One should render transcendental loving service to Lord Kāñëa favorably and without desire for material profit or gain through fruitive activities or philosophical speculation. That is called pure devotional service." (Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu 1.1.11) So crossing over the insurmountable ocean of illusion, as described here, is not actually the principal result of bhāgavata-dharma, or devotional service to the Lord, but is a by-product of pure love of Godhead.

TEXT 34

™aIṛ" AjaAevaAca naAr" AyaNAAiBaDaAnasya
"aöNA: par"maAtmana:
inaĩ" AmahR"Ta naAe va-uM( yaUyaM ih" "aöivaÔamaA:

çré-rājavāca
nārāyaēābhidhānasya
brahmaēāu paramātmanaù nīñhām arhatha no vaktuà yüyaà hi brahma-vittamäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; nārāyaēā-abhidhānasya—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, named Nārāyaēā; brahmaēāu—of the Absolute Truth; parama-ātmanaù—of the Supersoul; nīñhām—the transcendental situation; arhatha—you may kindly; naù—to us; vaktum—speak; yüyam—all of you; hi—indeed; brahma-vit-tamäù—the most expert knowers of the Supreme.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi inquired: Please explain to me the transcendental situation of the Supreme Lord, Nārāyaëa, who is Himself the Absolute Truth and the Supersoul of everyone. You can explain this to me, because you are all most expert in transcendental knowledge.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, in the previous verse the sages informed the King, nārāyaëa-paro mayäm ai jas tarati dustaräm: simply by unalloyed devotion to Lord Nārāyaëa, one can very easily cross over the ocean of material illusion. Therefore, in this verse the King is requesting specific information about the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa. It is significant in this verse that the King refers to the Supreme Lord as Nārāyaëa, Brahman and Paramätmä. Although King Nimi is already understood to be a devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, by his question he wants to clarify that the Personality of Godhead is the highest transcendental truth. In the Bhāgavatam (1.2.11):

*vadanti tat tattva-vidas tattvaà yaj ji ānam advayam brahmeti paramātmēti
bhagavān iti çabdyate*

"Learned transcendentalists who know the Absolute Truth call this nondual substance Brahman, Paramätmä or Bhagavān." Therefore it is to be understood that the word nārāyaëa in this verse refers to the Bhagavān feature of the Supreme Lord in the spiritual world.

Generally the speculative philosophers become attracted to the impersonal Brahman feature of the Absolute Truth, whereas the mystic yogés meditate upon the Paramätmä, the Supersoul within everyone's heart. On the other hand, those who have achieved mature transcendental knowledge surrender directly to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Bhagavān, who is eternally situated in His own abode, called Vaikuëöha-dhāma. In Bhāgavad-gētā Lord Kāñëa clearly says, brahmaëo hi pratiñöhāham: "I am the source of the impersonal Brahman." Similarly, it is described in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam that the Supersoul, Kñērodakaçāyē Viñēu, is a secondary plenary expansion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñēa. King Nimi wants the sages to make clear that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the original feature of the Absolute Truth, and therefore he places his question before the next of the nine Yogendras, Pippalāyana.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura the word niñōhā can also be translated as "firm faith." In this sense, Nimi Mahārāja is inquiring about the process of developing perfect faith in the Supreme Lord (bhagavan-niñōhā).

TEXT 35

™alipappalaAyana ovaAca isTatyauà"va'alayahe"taur"he"taur"sya yatsva«ajaAgAr"s$auSauiæaSau s$aß"ih"ê de"he"in%"yaAs$auô$d"yaAina car"inta yaena s$aÃalivataAina tad"vaeih" parM" nare"n%" çré-pippalāyana uvāca sthity-udbhava-pralaya-hetur ahetur asya yat svapna-jāgara-suñuptiñu sad bahiç ca dehendriyāsu-hādayāni caranti yena sai jēvitāni tad avehi paraà narendra

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-pippalāyanaù uvāca—Çré Pippalāyana said; sthiti—of the creation; udbhava—maintenance; pralaya—and destruction; hetuù—the cause; ahetuù—itself without cause; asya—of this material universe; yat—which; svapna—in dream; jāgara—wakefulness; suñuptiñu—in deep sleep or unconsciousness; sat—which exists; bahiù ca—and external to them as well; deha—of the material bodies of the living entities; indriya—the senses; āsu—life airs; hādayāni—and minds; caranti—act; yena—by which; sai jēvitāni—given life; tat—that; avehi—please know; param—to be the Supreme; nara-indra—O King.

TRANSLATION

Çré Pippalāyana said: The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the cause of the creation, maintenance and destruction of this universe, yet He has no prior cause. He pervades the various states of wakefulness, dreaming and unconscious deep sleep and also exists beyond them. By entering the body of every living being as the Supersoul, He enlivens the body, senses, life airs and mental activities, and thus all the subtle and gross organs of the body begin their functions. My dear King, know that Personality of Godhead to be the Supreme.

PURPORT

In the previous verse King Nimi inquired about various aspects of the Absolute Truth, namely Nārāyaëa, Brahman and Paramātmā. Now the sage Çré Pippalāyana explains these three features of the Absolute Truth in the same order in which the King mentioned them. Sthity-udbhava-pralaya-hetuù refers to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who expands Himself as the triple puruña incarnations—Mahā-viñëu, Garbhodakaçāyë Viñëu and Kñërodakaçāyë Viñëu. As described in the Bhāgavatam (1.3.1):

*jagāhe pauruñaà rūpaà bhagavān mahad-ādibhiù sambhūtaà ñoðaçā-kalam
ādaù loka-sisākñāyā*

"In the beginning of the creation, the Lord first expanded Himself in the universal form of the puruña incarnation and manifested all the ingredients for the material creation. And thus at first there was the creation of the sixteen principles of material action. This was for the purpose of creating the material universe." Thus the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa, is mentioned here as hetuù, or the supreme cause of the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the cosmic situation. Still, there is no cause of the Lord Himself; He is ahetuù. As expressed in the Brahma-saàhitä, anädir ädir govindaù sarva-käraëa-käraëam [Bs. 5.1]. The Supreme Lord is the cause of all causes, and being the eternal Absolute Truth, He has no cause of Himself. The word ahetuù has also been explained by Çréla Jéva Gosvämé to indicate that the Supreme Lord has His original form as Kânëa in His own transcendental abode, called Kânëaloka. Since Kânëa is always engaged in His blissful pastimes in the company of His eternally liberated associates, He is aloof from the affairs of this world, which is created by His external potency, known as mäyä. Therefore it is stated, jagåhe pauruñäà rūpam. The Lord expands Himself as Näräyaëa and Viñëu to facilitate the gross illusion and gradual rectification of the conditioned souls. The Lord's aloofness from the material creation is also described in the Vedas: na tasya käryaà karaëaà ca vidyate. The Absolute Truth has nothing to do, since everything is done self-sufficiently by His multipotencies. Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has pointed out that even though the Supreme Lord Kânëa is ahetuù, or causeless and aloof from the cause of material creation, the Lord is also described in this verse as hetuù, or the ultimate cause of the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material manifestation, because He expands Himself as Paramätmä, or the Supersoul, who acts as the prime mover of the cosmic manifestation.

The word ahetuù may also be understood in another way. In Bhagavad-gétä (7.5) the Lord says,

*apareyam itas tv anyäà prakâtià viddhi me paräm jéva-bhütäà mahä-båho
yayedäà dhäryate jagat*

The conditioned living entities (jéva-bhüta) desire to engage in sense gratification with their material senses (manaù-ñäñöhänéndriyääi prakâti-sthäni karñati [Bg. 15.7]). Thus the creation of the material world becomes necessary. In fact, the material cosmic manifestation continues to exist because of the desires of the conditioned souls to exploit it (yayedaà dhäryate jagat [Bg. 7.5]). The government must create a prison to accommodate those citizens who are inclined to criminal activity. There is no need for any citizen to live in the obnoxious conditions of the prison, but because a certain portion of the population is inclined toward antisocial behavior, the prison becomes necessary. In a higher sense, the prisoners themselves can be considered the hetuù, or the cause, for the construction of the prison. Similarly, the Supreme Personality of Godhead expands His internal potency according to His own desire to increase the änanda, or transcendental bliss, of Himself and His pure devotees, but He manifests the material universe in response to the illicit desires of the conditioned souls to live a life of sense gratification in willful forgetfulness of Him. Therefore the conditioned living entities themselves can be considered the hetuù, or cause, of the material manifestation. The external potency of the Lord, mäyā, who is charged with the duty of material manifestation, is called chäyā, or the shadow of the Lord's internal potency. Sāññi-sthiti-pralaya-sādhana-çaktir eka/ chäyeva yasya bhuvanāni bibharti durgā [Bs. 5.44]. The Lord does not personally desire to manifest the shadow potency, called Durgā or mäyā. The blissful spiritual planets, eternally manifest, contain the best possible facilities for the living entities who are parts and parcels of the Lord. But the conditioned souls, rejecting the inconceivable, eternal living arrangements the Lord has kindly provided, prefer to seek their misfortune in the shadow kingdom called the material world. Thus, both Durgā and the conditioned living entities may be considered the hetuù, or cause, of the material manifestation. Since Lord Kāñēa is ultimately sarva-kāraëa-kāraëam [Bs. 5.1], the cause of all causes, He is to be known as the ultimate supreme cause. But how the Lord functions as the supreme cause of the material manifestation (sthity-udbhava-pralaya-hetuù) is described in the Thirteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gētā. Upadraññānumantā ca: the Lord acts as overseer and permitter. The actual desire of the Supreme Personality of Godhead is stated very clearly in Bhagavad-gētā: sarva-dharmān parityajya mām ekaà çaraëaà vraja [Bg. 18.66]. The Lord desires every living entity to give up the shadow potency mäyā and return to the actual substance (vāstavaà vastu), which is the eternal kingdom of God.

Although various aspects of the Absolute Truth are being described, the Absolute Truth is ultimately one, as stated in this verse (tad avehi paraà narendra). King Nimi inquired about Brahman, and now this verse says, yat svapna-jàgara-susuptiñu sad bahiç ca. The Lord's all-pervading feature within wakefulness, dreaming and deep sleep, and His existence beyond these three mental states, are understood to be manifestations of Brahman, the spiritual potency of the Lord. Finally, the statement dehendriyäsü-hådayäëi caranti yena sai'jêvitäni can be understood to refer to the Paramätmä feature of the Lord. When the Lord expands Himself as Kñérodakaçäyë Viñëu, the third of the three Viñëu features, and enters the heart of every living entity, the gross and subtle organs of the body become enlivened for continuing the chain of fruitive activity called karma.

According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura, the multifarious manifestations of the Supreme Personality of Godhead do not compromise His supremacy as one without a second. The Absolute Truth is paramavyoma-nätha, or the Lord of the spiritual sky, who appears as two-armed Çyāmasundara, as four-armed, as eight-armed or as having one thousand arms. In each aspect His body is eternal and full of bliss and knowledge (sac-cid-ānanda-mūrti). He appears on earth as Vāsudeva and within the Causal Ocean as Mahā-viñëu. He lies on the Milk Ocean as Kñérodakaçäyë Viñëu and rescues His helpless young devotee as Nāsiàha-deva. Appearing as Lord Rāmacandra, He acts as a perfect king. And appearing as Kāñëa He steals the heart of everyone, and especially of young beautiful women. All these features of the Lord are indicated by the word Nārāyaëa, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead, just as the word president indicates not only the official duties of the president but his personal family life and long intimate friendships as well. According to Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, kāñëas tu bhagavān svayam [SB 1.3.28]. When one transcends an official understanding of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and comes to the superior status of love of God, one can understand the Lord to be Kāñëa, the cause of all causes. The innumerable Viñëu expansions of the Lord are also understood to be plenary portions of Çré Kāñëa. Kāñëas tu bhagavān svayam. As the Lord Himself states in Bhagavad-gétä, ahaà sarvasya prabhavaù [Bg. 10.8]. These points have been explicitly clarified in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam as well as in the opening verse, oà namo bhagavate vāsudevāya, janmādy asya yato 'nvayād itarataç cārtheṇu [SB 1.1.1].

TEXT 36

naEtanmanaAe ivazAita vaAgAuta ca⁰aur"AtmaA
'aANAein%"yaAiNA ca yaTaAnalamaicaRSa: svaA: zAbd"Ae'ipa baAeDak(inaSaeDatayaAtmamaUlama, @TaAeR·(maAh" yaä{"tae na inaSaeDais$aiÜ":

naitan mano viçati vāg uta cakñur ātmā prāēendriyāēi ca yathānalam arcīñau svāu çabdo 'pi bodhaka-niñedhatayātma-mūlam arthoktam āha yad-āte na niñedha-siddhiu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—cannot; etat—this (Supreme Truth); manaū—the mind; viçati—enter; vāk—the function of speech; uta—nor; cakñuū—sight; ātmā—intelligence; prāēa—the subtle airs supporting life; indriyāēi—the senses; ca—or; yathā—just as; analam—a fire; arcīñau—its sparks; svāu—own; çabdaū—the authoritative sound of the Vedas; api—even; bodhaka—being able to indicate by verbal reference; niñedhatayā—because of denying such; ātma—of the Supreme Soul; mūlam—basic evidence; *artha-ukta*m—expressed indirectly; āha—does express; yad-āte—without which (Supreme); na—there is not; niñedha—of the negative statements of scripture; siddhiū—ultimate purpose.

TRANSLATION

Neither the mind nor the faculties of speech, sight, intelligence, the life air or any of the senses are capable of penetrating that Supreme Truth, any more than small sparks can affect the original fire from which they are generated. Not even the authoritative language of the Vedas can perfectly describe the Supreme Truth, since the Vedas themselves disclaim the possibility that the Truth can be expressed by words. But through indirect reference the Vedic sound does serve as evidence of the Supreme Truth, since without the existence of that Supreme Truth the various restrictions found in the Vedas would have no ultimate purpose.

PURPORT

The small sparks generated by a blazing fire have no power to illuminate the original fire, nor can they burn it. The quantity of heat and light in the original fire is always superior to the quantity found in the insignificant sparks. Similarly, the minute living entity is generated from the internal potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as stated in Vedānta-sūtra (janmādy asya yataù [SB 1.1.1]) and Bhagavad-gētā (ahaà sarvasya prabhavaù [Bg. 10.8], mamaivāàço jēva-loke jēva-bhūtaù sanātanaù [Bg. 15.7]). The minute living entities, being aàçaù, or sparks of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, can never equal the Supreme Godhead in the quantity of their potency. The quantity of knowledge and bliss in the Supreme Personality of Godhead is always superior. Therefore, when a foolish conditioned soul tries to illuminate the subject matter of the highest truth with his tiny brain, he merely illuminates his own foolishness. The Personality of Godhead has personally spoken Bhagavad-gētā, which is the blazing fire of perfect knowledge that burns to ashes the insignificant speculations and theories of so-called philosophers and scientists regarding the ultimate truth.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is called Hāñēkeça, or the Lord of everyone's senses. Because the Personality of Godhead has supreme seeing power, hearing power, touching power, smelling power and tasting power, the living entities in a limited sense can also see, hear, touch, smell and taste, by the mercy of Hāñēkeça. This idea is expressed in the Bāhad-āraēyaka Upaniñad (4.4.18): prāēasya prāēam uta cakñūñaç cakñur uta çrotrasya çrotram annasyānnaà manaso ye mano viduù. "The Supreme Truth is understood to be the life air sustaining everyone's life air, the vision of everyone's eyes, the hearing power of the ear, and the sustenance of food itself." The obvious conclusion is that the Supreme Truth can be known by His own causeless mercy, and not by our foolish attempts to bring the all-pervading truth within the insignificant boundaries of our intelligence. It is stated in the Taittiréya Upaniṣad (2.4.1), yato vāco nivartante aprāpya manasā saha: "The descriptive power of speech fails in the realm of the Supreme Truth, and the speculative power of the mind cannot achieve Him."

But because such statements of Vedic ṛutis are in themselves descriptions of the Absolute Truth, one may consider such Vedic statements contradictory. Therefore, in this connection it is stated, ṣabdo 'pi bodhaka-niñedhatayātma-mūlam arthoktam āha: although the Vedic ṛuti (ṣabda) forbids us to speculate upon the Absolute Truth, such restrictive injunctions indirectly constitute positive assertions of the existence of the supreme living entity. In fact, the Vedic restrictions are meant to save one from the false path of mental speculation and ultimately bring one to the point of devotional surrender. As Lord Kāṇḍea Himself states in Bhagavad-gītā, vedaiḥ ca sarvair aham eva vedyau: [Bg. 15.15] by all Vedic literatures the Supreme Personality of Godhead is to be known. The assertion that a particular process, such as mental speculation, is useless (yato vāco nivartante aprāpya manasā saha) constitutes an indirect assertion of the existence of a correct path of achieving the Supreme. As Ṣṛela Ṣṛédhara Svāmé has stated, sarvasya niñedhasya sāvadhitvāt: "Every negative injunction is understood to have a specific limit. Negative injunctions cannot be taken as applicable in all cases." For example, a negative injunction is that no living entity can be equal to or greater than the Supreme Personality of Godhead. But Ṣṛémad-Bhāgavatam clearly states that because of the intense love of the residents of Vāndāvana for Kāṇḍea, they sometimes assume a superior position. Thus mother Yaçodā binds Kāṇḍea with ropes, and the influential cowherd boys sometimes ride on the shoulders of Kāṇḍea or defeat Him in wrestling. Negative injunctions, therefore, may sometimes be adjusted according to the transcendental situation.

Although the Absolute Truth is transcendental to the material creation and therefore beyond the scope of material senses, when those same material senses are saturated with love of Godhead they become spiritualized and empowered to perceive the Absolute Truth. As stated in Brahma-saṅhitā (5.38),

*premāi jana-cchurita-bhakti-vilocanena santaṁ sadaiva hṛdayeṇu vilokayanti yaṁ ṣyāmasundaram acintya-guṇa-svarūpaṁ
govindam ādi-puruṣaṁ tam ahaṁ bhajāmi*

"I worship the primeval Lord, Govinda, who is always seen by the devotee whose eyes are anointed with the pulp of love. He is seen in His eternal form of Ṣyāmasundara within the heart of the devotee." In Bhagavad-gītā (11.8) Lord Kāṇḍa says to Arjuna,

na tu māṁ ṣakyase draṇūm anenava sva-cakṇuṇā divyaṁ dadāmi te cakṇuṁ paṣya me yogam aiṣvaram

"But you cannot see Me with your present eyes. Therefore I give you divine eyes by which you can behold My mystic opulence." Similarly, Ṣrēmad-Bhāgavatam describes many incidents in which the Supreme Absolute Truth revealed Himself to His devotee, as in the histories of Prahāda Mahārāja, Dhruva Mahārāja, Pāthu Mahārāja, Kardama Muni, the Pāḇḇavas and the gopēs. Therefore, the Vedic assertions that the Absolute Truth is beyond the power of the eyes refer to those who have not received transcendental eyes by the mercy of the Personality of Godhead. But the Lord's own transcendental senses, which are the source of our limited senses, are confirmed in the ṣrutī, as in the following statement from the Kena Upaniṣad (1.4): yad vācānabhyuditaṁ yena vāg abhyudyate tad eva brahma tvaṁ viddhi nedaṁ yad idam upāsate. "Brahman, the Absolute, should be understood to be that which cannot be ascertained by the material power of speech; speech itself is evinced by that Supreme Truth." By the statement yena vāg abhyudyate, "our power of speech is expressed by the Absolute Truth," it is clearly expressed that the Absolute Truth has His own transcendental senses. Therefore He is called Hāṇēkeṣa.

Ṣrēla Nārada Muni has stated, hāṇēkena hāṇēkeṣa-sevanaṁ bhaktir ucyate

[Cc. Madhya 19.170]. Our senses cannot approach the Absolute Truth by their own power, but when engaged in loving devotional service to satisfy the Lord of the senses, our limited senses must become connected with the Lord's unlimited senses, and thus by the Lord's mercy He can be understood.

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted the following statement from the Brahma-tarka:

*ānando nedācānanda
ity ukte lokataū param
pratibhāti na cābhāti
yathāvad darçanaà vinā*

"The transcendental bliss of the Absolute Truth cannot be compared to the ordinary happiness of the material world." Similarly, in the Vedānta-sūtra the Absolute Truth is described as ānandamaya, or full of bliss.

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura, in this verse Çré Pippalāyana is more or less describing the impersonal feature of the Absolute Truth. The nine Yogendras were themselves devotees of the personal feature of the Lord, so King Nimi asked his question about the different features of the Absolute Truth to clarify that the Personality of Godhead is the source of all the variegated aspects of the advaya-jī āna, or transcendental reality. This is also expressed by the following statement in çruti: taà tv aupaniñadaà puruñāà pācchāmi. "I am inquiring about that Supreme Person revealed in the Upaniñads."

If the Absolute Truth were actually inaccessible by words, there would be no meaning to the Vedic literature, which consists of collections of transcendental words. Since the Vedic descriptions of the truth are to be taken as infallible, it is impossible to maintain that the power of speech is in all cases unable to describe the truth. After all, the Vedic mantras themselves are meant to be spoken and heard. Therefore, the injunction that neither the mind nor speech can approach the Absolute Truth (naitan mano viçati vāg uta) cannot be taken as applicable in all cases; rather, it is a warning to those who foolishly try to encompass the Absolute Truth by their own puny speculative powers. Since the Vedic injunctions, either positive or negative, are to be taken as realistic descriptions of the Absolute Truth, the process of hearing and repeating Vedic knowledge (çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23]) can be understood as a separate process in which one's hearing and speaking power becomes spiritualized by submissive reception of transcendental knowledge. This process depends upon one's faith in the bona fide spiritual master, who is a devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore it is stated,

yasya deve parä bhaktir yathä deve tathä gurau tasyaite kathitä hy arthäù prakäçante mahätmanaù [ÇU 6.23(94)]

"Only unto those great souls who have implicit faith in both the Lord and the spiritual master are all the imports of Vedic knowledge automatically revealed." (Çvetäçvatara Upaniñad 6.23) As the Lord Himself states in the Hari-vaàça,

tat-paraà paramaà brahma sarvaà vibhajate jagat mamaiva tad ghanaà tejo ji ätum arhasi bhärata

"That Supreme Truth, Para-brahman, expands itself into all the variegatedness of this universe. You should know it to be My own concentrated effulgence, O Bhärata." The words ji ätum arhasi, "you must know it," spoken by the Lord Himself, indicate that the Absolute Truth is to be known, but one must surrender to the truth, rather than waste time in foolish speculation.

Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has pointed out that according to authorized statements of Vedic literature the Lord's transcendental form is understood to be brahmamaya, or completely spiritual, with no trace of material contamination. Therefore, in such statements as nélotpala-dala-çyämam, "the Lord's form is beautifully manifest with the hue of dark blue lotus petals," it is understood that a transcendental dark blue color is being described. Still, the Lord is inconceivably merciful to His devotees, even those on the neophyte platform who are trying to come to the state of love of Godhead. Therefore the Lord gradually purifies the senses of a conditioned soul who is trying to understand Him, and eventually the Lord appears before such a rectified servitor. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura, prākāta-nélotpala-varëatvena bhaktair dhyätam atädâçam api. In the beginning, being conditioned by previous materialistic activities, a devotee meditating on the Lord's transcendental form may base his meditation on his experience of material forms and colors within this world. The Lord's transcendental form has nothing to do with material forms and colors, but since the object of this meditation is Kânëa, such meditation will eventually be transformed into transcendental experience of the actual form, color, activities, pastimes and entourage of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In other words, transcendental knowledge depends not on material logic but on the pleasure of the Personality of Godhead. If the Lord is pleased by His devotee's sincere attempt to understand Him, the Lord can immediately circumvent all the so-called technicalities of material logic and Vedic injunctions and reveal Himself to His pure devotee. Unless one accepts this omnipotency of the Personality of Godhead, there is no hope of approaching the Absolute Truth. Therefore it is stated in the Kaïha Upaniñad (1.3.12), däçyate tv agryayä buddhyä: the Absolute Truth is seen by transcendental intelligence.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura has pointed out that knowledge acquired through the interaction of the material senses with the modes of nature is merely hypothetical and not factual. Empirical knowledge deals with our ephemeral experience of the sense objects generated by material nature. For example, there are many wars currently going on because of a false concept of nationalism. Similarly, there is conflict throughout the world, and great world leaders fight like cats and dogs for the economic development of their countries. Thus, material language is used to designate temporary objects perceived by the eyes, nose, tongue, touch and taste. This type of language and experience is useless for approaching the Absolute Truth. But the transcendental sound from the spiritual sky has a completely different effect. We should not foolishly try to use materially concocted language to include the Supreme Personality of Godhead as an object of the material world. The Supreme Lord is completely transcendental and is known as ātma-prakāṣa, or self-manifested. Therefore, as stated in the Padma Purāṇa,

*ataù çré-kāñëa-nämädi
na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiù
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau
svayam eva sphuraty adaù
[Cc. Madhya 17.136]*

"Material senses cannot appreciate Kāñëa's holy name, form, qualities and pastimes. But when a conditioned soul is awakened to Kāñëa consciousness and renders service by using his tongue to chant the Lord's holy name and taste the remnants of the Lord's food, the tongue is purified, and one gradually comes to understand who Kāñëa really is." If one surrenders to the Supreme Lord, taking shelter at His lotus feet, one's spiritualized senses gradually become empowered to perceive the Lord. Mere empiricism and material logic have a limited jurisdiction within the external energy of the Supreme Lord and cannot apply to those things which are eternal. In this regard, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has quoted the following verse from Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (7.5.32):

naiñäà matis tävad urukramäi ghrià spâçaty anarthäpagamo yad-arthaù mahéyasäm päda-rajo- 'bhiñëkaà niñkii canänäà na vâëëta yävat

"Unless they smear upon their bodies the dust of the lotus feet of a Vaiñëava completely freed from material contamination, persons very much inclined toward materialistic life cannot be attached to the lotus feet of the Lord, who is glorified for His uncommon activities. Only by becoming Kāñëa conscious and taking shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord in this way can one be freed from material contamination."

Although Çré Pippalāyana is expressing that the Absolute Truth cannot be approached by material senses, the sage himself is describing the Absolute Truth with transcendental senses, and King Nimi is able to understand this transcendental sound because he has surrendered at the lotus feet of pure devotees, the nava-yogendras. Therefore, one should not foolishly try to understand this verse out of context, in an impersonal way, but should follow the example of King Nimi, who was trying to understand how the Supreme Personality of Godhead is ultimately the source of everything.

TEXT 37

s$aÔvaM r"jastama wita iṭava{de"k(maAd"AE s$aUṭaM mah"Anah"imaita 'avad"inta jalvama, ÁaAnai,(yaATaRP(laè&patayaAeç&zAi-( “aöEva BaAita s$ad"s$a»a tayaAe: parM" yata, sattvaà rajas tama iti tri-vâd ekam âdau sûtraà mahän aham iti pravadanti jêvam jî âna-kriyârtha-phala-rûpatayoru-çakti brahmaiva bhâti sad asac ca tayou paraà yat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sattvam—goodness; rajaù—passion; tamaù—and ignorance; iti—thus known; tri-vât—threefold; ekam—one; âdau—in the beginning, before creation; sûtram—the power to act; mahän—the power of consciousness; aham—and the false ego; iti—thus; pravadanti—is called; jêvam—(false ego, which covers) the living entity; jî âna—the demigods as the embodiment of knowledge; kriyâ—the senses; artha—sense objects; phala—and fruitive results such as happiness and distress; rûpatayä—assuming the forms; uru-çakti—possessing great varieties of energy; brahma eva—the Supreme alone; bhâti—is manifest; sat asat ca—as both gross objects and their subtle causes; tayou—both; param—beyond; yat—which is.

TRANSLATION

Originally one, the Absolute, Brahman, comes to be known as threefold, manifesting itself as the three modes of material nature—goodness, passion and ignorance. Brahman further expands its potency, and thus the power to act and the power of consciousness become manifest, along with the false ego, which covers the identity of the conditioned living being. Thus, by the expansion of the multipotencies of the Absolute, the demigods, as the embodiment of knowledge, become manifest, along with the material senses, their objects, and the results of material activity, namely happiness and distress. In this way the manifestation of the material world takes place as the subtle cause and as the material effect visible in the appearance of gross material objects. Brahman, which is the source of all subtle and gross manifestations, is simultaneously transcendental to them, being absolute.

PURPORT

In the previous verse the sage Pippalāyana described the Absolute, Brahman, as being beyond the range of material sense perception and mental speculation. At the same time, it was stated, ātma-mūlam arthoktam āha yad-āte na niñedha-siddhiù: the negative injunctions of the Vedas indirectly indicate the existence of the Absolute Truth. This Absolute Truth can be approached by correct means. Now, in the present verse, it is clearly described that the Absolute Truth possesses innumerable potencies (uru-çakti brahmaiva bhāti). Thus by the expansion of the Absolute Truth the gross and subtle features of the material world become manifest. As stated by Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, kāryaà kāraëäd bhinnaà na bhavati: "The result is not different from its cause." Therefore, since the Absolute is eternal existence, this material world, being the potency of the Absolute, must also be accepted as real, although the various manifestations of the material world are temporary and thus illusory. The material world should be understood to consist of the bewildering interactions of real elements. The material world is not false in the imaginary sense of the Buddhists and Māyāvādés, who state that in fact the material world does not exist outside the mind of the observer. The material world, as the potency of the Absolute, has real existence. But the living entity becomes bewildered by the temporary manifestations, foolishly taking them to be permanent. Thus the material world functions as an illusory potency, causing the living entity to forget the spiritual world, wherein life is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge. Because the material world thus bewilders the conditioned soul, it is called illusory. When a magician performs his tricks onstage, that which the audience apparently sees is an illusion. But the magician actually exists, and the hat and rabbit exist, although the appearance of a rabbit coming out of a hat is an illusion. Similarly, when the living entity identifies himself as part and parcel of the material world, thinking, "I am American," "I am Indian," "I am Russian," "I am black," "I am white," he is bewildered by the magic of the Lord's illusory potency. The conditioned soul must come to understand, "I am a pure spirit soul, part and parcel of Kāñëa. Now let me stop my useless activities and serve Kāñëa, since I am part of Him." Then he is free from the illusion of māyā. If one artificially tries to escape the clutches of the illusory energy by declaring that there is no illusory potency and that this world is false, he merely falls into another illusion created by māyā to keep him in ignorance. Kāñëa states in Bhagavad-gētā (7.14), *daivé hy eñā guëamayé

mama māyā duratyayā
mām eva ye prapadyante
māyām etāà taranti te*

Unless one surrenders at the lotus feet of Māyeça, the Lord of the illusory potency, there is no possibility of escaping from illusion. Childishly declaring that there is no illusory potency is useless, since māyā is duratyayā, or insurpassable for the tiny living entity. But Lord Kāñëa, the omnipotent Personality of Godhead, can immediately call off the illusory potency.

In this verse the expansion of the material world from Brahman, the Absolute, is described. Since Brahman is one of the subordinate features of the Supreme Personality of Godhead (brahmeti paramätmeti bhagavän iti çabdyate [SB 1.2.11]), one who understands this material world to be Brahman is freed from the tendency to exploit the material energy through sense gratification and mental speculation aimed at one's own satisfaction.

The question may be raised, Since Brahman is stated to be ekam, or one, how does it become manifest in the innumerable varieties of the material world? Therefore this verse uses the word uru-çakti. The Absolute contains multipotencies, as stated in the Vedas (Çvetāçvatara Upaniñad): parasya çaktir vividhaiva çrüyate [Cc. Madhya 13.65, purport]. The Absolute Truth is not çakti, or energy, but çaktimān, the possessor of innumerable potencies. According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, one should submissively hear these authorized descriptions of the Absolute Truth. As stated in the previous verse, yathānalam arcīṇaù sväù: the insignificant sparks of a fire have no power to illuminate the blazing fire, which is itself the source of illumination. Similarly, the tiny living entity, who is like a spark of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, cannot illuminate the Personality of Godhead by his insignificant intellectual power. One may argue that the sun expands its potency in the form of its rays and it is through the illumination of those rays that we are able to see the sun. In the same way, we should be able to perceive the Absolute Truth by the expansion of its potency. In answer to this it may be stated that if the sun creates a cloud covering the sky, then despite the presence of sun rays the sun cannot be seen. Therefore, ultimately the power to see the sun depends not only on the sun's rays but on the presence of a clear sky, which is also an arrangement by the sun. Similarly, as stated in this verse, one can understand the existence of the Absolute Truth by the expansion of its potencies.

Although in the previous verse the power of the material senses and mind was rejected, the authorized descriptions given here inform us that one can directly perceive everything that exists to be the potency of the Personality of Godhead. In this regard, Nārada Muni advised King Prācēnabarhi as follows:

*atas tad apavādārthaà
bhaja sarvātmanā harim paçyaàs tad-ātmakaà viçvaà*

sthity-utpatty-apyayā yatau

"You should always know that this cosmic manifestation is created, maintained and annihilated by the will of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Consequently, everything within this cosmic manifestation is under the control of the Lord. To be enlightened by this perfect knowledge, one should always engage himself in the devotional service of the Lord." (SB 4.29.79) As stated here, bhaja sarvātmanā harim: one must worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead so that one's consciousness will become clean and pure, just like the clear blue sky in which the potent sun is fully manifest. When one sees the sun, he immediately sees the sun's rays in full potency. Similarly, if one engages in the devotional service of Kāñēa, one's mind becomes cleansed of material dirt, and thus he can see not only the Lord but the Lord's expansions as the spiritual world, as the pure devotees, as the Paramātmā, as the impersonal Brahman effulgence and as the subsequent creation of the material world, the shadow of the kingdom of God (chāyeva), in which so many material varieties become manifest.

According to Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē, the word phalam can also be understood to mean puruñārtha-svarūpam, or the actual form of the goal of life, or, in other words, the transcendental form of the Lord Himself. The living entity in his original pure state is not different from the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Similarly, the infinite multicolored opulence of the kingdom of God, called Vaikuēōha, is nondifferent in quality from the Lord. Thus when the Supreme Personality of Godhead is personally present with His unparalleled opulence and His pure spiritual servitors, the living entities, a very happy situation is created. The mundane concept of family is a perverted reflection of the happy situation created when the Lord is united in full spiritual opulence with His pure devotees. Every living entity has the option to join the Lord in His opulent eternal kingdom. Thus one should understand from this verse that everything within the gross and subtle cosmic manifestations is the potency of the Lord and is therefore meant to be used in the Lord's service. Ēçāvāsyam idaṅ sarvam [Ēço mantra 1].

Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē has given an elaborate explanation proving that the entire cosmic situation is the natural potency of the Absolute Truth.

Sometimes superstitious people, without knowledge of the Personality of Godhead, say that material activities are controlled by an independent devil and that God is struggling with such a devil. Such gross ignorance of the omnipotent status of the Personality of Godhead can be removed by understanding the purport of this verse. Just as a spark is a tiny emanation from a blazing fire, everything that exists is but an insignificant spark of the potency of the Personality of Godhead. The Lord therefore says in Bhagavad-gētā (10.42), *athavā bahunaitena

kiā ji ātena tavārjuna viññābhyāham idaā kātsnam ekāāçena sthito jagat*

"But what need is there, Arjuna, for all this detailed knowledge? With a single fragment of Myself I pervade and support this entire universe." The omnipotent Personality of Godhead is actually the well-wishing friend of every living entity (suhādaā sarva-bhūtānām [Bg. 5.29]). Therefore, if one becomes sane and understands that one's well-wishing friend Kāñēa is the ultimate source and controller of everything that exists, one attains immediate peace (ji ātvā māā çāntim ācchati). Fear and illusion arise when one foolishly thinks that even one atom of the creation is not the controlled potency of the Personality of Godhead. Bhayaā dvitēyābhiniveçataū syāt. Denying the existence of the material world also creates a very dangerous situation of illusion. Both types of atheism—namely, seeing the material world as belonging to oneself (and therefore being meant for one's sense gratification) and declaring the nonexistence of the material world—are futile attempts to avoid one's eternal subordination to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the actual owner and enjoyer of everything. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has quoted the following question stated by Çré Maitreya to Çré Parāçara in the Viññēu Purāēa (1.3.1):

nirguēasyāprameyasya çuddhasyāpy amalātmanaū kathaā sargādi-kartātvaā

brahmaëo 'bhyupagamyate

"How are we to understand that Brahman, the Supreme Soul, is the executor of the creation, maintenance and destruction of the material world, even though it is devoid of qualities, immeasurable, unembodied and free from any fault?" In reply, Çré Parāçara stated:

çaktayaù sarva-bhävänäm acintya-jì āna-gocaräù yato 'to brahmaëas tās tu sargādyā bhāva-çaktayaù bhavanti tapatāà çreñña pāvakasya yathoñëatā

"Mere logic cannot explain how even material objects expand their potency. These things can be understood by mature observation. The Absolute Truth expands His potency in the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material world just as fire expands its potency of heat." (Viñëu Purāëa 1.3.2) Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé explains that one can understand the power of a valuable gem not by logical statements but by observing the effect of the gem. Similarly, one can understand the potency of a mantra by observing its power to achieve a particular effect. Such potency doesn't depend on so-called logic. There is no logical necessity for a seed's growing into a tree and giving fruits that nourish the human body. One may argue that the genetic code for the entire tree is contained within the seed. But there is no logical necessity for the existence of the seed, nor for the seed's expanding itself into a gigantic tree. Ex post facto, or after the manifestation of the wonderful material nature, the foolish material scientist traces out the expansion of a seed's potency in an apparently logical sequence of events. But there is nothing within the realm of so-called pure logic that dictates that a seed should expand into a tree. Rather, such expansion should be understood to be the potency of the tree. Similarly, the potency of a jewel is its mystic power, and various mantras also contain innate potencies. Ultimately the mahā-mantra—Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare—has the potency to transfer one to the spiritual world of bliss and knowledge. In the same way, the Absolute Truth has the natural quality of expanding itself into innumerable varieties of material and spiritual worlds. We may logically describe this expansion after the fact, but we cannot deny the expansion of the Absolute Truth. The conditioned soul who purifies his consciousness through the process of devotional service can scientifically observe the expansion of the Absolute Truth as described here, just as one who is not blind can observe the expansion of a seed into a huge tree. One can understand the potency of a seed not by speculation but rather by practical observation. Similarly, one must purify his vision so that he can practically observe the expansion of the Absolute Truth. Such observation can take place either by the ears or by the eyes. Vedic knowledge is śabda-brahma, or transcendental potency in the form of sound vibration. Therefore, one can observe the functions of the Absolute Truth through submissive hearing of transcendental sound. Śāstra-cakṛiḥ. When one's consciousness becomes fully purified one can perceive the Absolute Truth with all of one's spiritualized senses.

The Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead, is devoid of material qualities such as mundane goodness, passion and ignorance because He is an ocean of transcendental qualities and therefore has no need for the inferior qualities of the material world. As stated in the Çvetāçvatara Upaniṣad (4.10), māyā tu prakṛtiḥ vidyā māyina tu maheçvaram: "Understand that māyā is the material energy whereas the Supreme Lord is the Supreme Lord of māyā." Similarly, it is stated in the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, māyā ca tad-apāçrayām: māyā is always under the control of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Just as it is understood from the above discussion that the material world is an emanation from the impersonal Brahman potency of the Lord, Brahman itself is an expansion of the potency of Kāñēa, as stated in Bhagavad-gītā (brahmaēo hi pratiññāham).

yasya prabhā prabhavato jagad-aēōa-koī-kotiñv aēña-vasudhādi vibhūti-bhinna tad brahma niñkalam anantam aēña-bhūta govindam ädi-puruṇaà tam ahaà bhajämi

(Bs. 5.40)

Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has pointed out that in the impersonal Brahman there is neither transcendental activity nor the supreme pum-artha, or benefit of human life, namely prema, love of Godhead. Therefore, if one is prematurely dazzled by the expansion of the Lord's bodily effulgence, known as Brahman, and therefore does not actually come to know the Supreme Personality of Godhead, there is no possibility of actually understanding one's eternal identity as an eternal blissful expansion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The subject matter is summarized in the Caitanya-caritāmāta (Ädi 1.3):

yad advaitaà brahmopaniṇadi tad apy asya tanu-bhā ya ätmāntaryāmé puruṇa iti so 'syāàça-vibhavaù ñàò-aiçvaryaiù pürëo ya iha bhagavān sa svayam ayaà na caitanyāt kãñëäj jagati para-tattvaà param iha

TEXT 38

naAtmaA jajaAna na mair"Syaita naEDatae's$aAE na °alyatae s$avanaivaã"YaiBacaAir"NAAM ih" s$avaRṭa zAid"napaAyyaupalaibDamaAṭaM 'aANAAe yaTaein%"yabalaena ivak(ilpataM s$ata, nātmā jajāna na mariṇyati naidhate 'sau na kñēyate savana-vid vyabhicāriëää hi sarvatra çaçvad anapāyy upalabdhi-mātraà prāëo yathendriya-balena vikalpitaà sat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—never; ātmā—the soul; jajāna—was born; na—never; mariṇyati—will die; na—does not; edhate—grow; asau—this; na—does not; kñēyate—become diminished; savana-vit—the knower of these phases of time; vyabhicāriëām—as they occur in other, changing beings; hi—indeed; sarvatra—everywhere; çaçvat—constantly; anapāyi—never disappearing; upalabdhi-mātram—pure consciousness; prāëaù yathā—just like the life air within the body; indriya-baleṇa—by the force of the senses; vikalpitaṁ—imagined as divided; sat—becoming.

TRANSLATION

Brahman, the eternal soul, was never born and will never die, nor does it grow or decay. That spiritual soul is actually the knower of the youth, middle age and death of the material body. Thus the soul can be understood to be pure consciousness, existing everywhere at all times and never being destroyed. Just as the life air within the body, although one, becomes manifest as many in contact with the various material senses, the one soul appears to assume various material designations in contact with the material body.

PURPORT

The Vedic aphorism sarvaṁ khalv idaṁ brahma, "Everything is Brahman," has been explained in this chapter of the Bhāgavatam. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the original source of everything. By expanding His internal potency, He manifests the spiritual world, and by expanding His external potency He manifests the material cosmos. The conditioned living entity is originally part and parcel of the superior, internal potency of the Lord, but being in contact with illusion, he falls under the clutches of the external potency. In any case, since everything is an expansion of the potency of the Supreme Brahman, everything is part and parcel of the Lord's spiritual potency. Bhayaṁ dvitēyābhiniveçataù syād èçād apetasya viparyayo 'smātiù. When a living entity thinks that the material world is not part and parcel of the Lord's potency but is a separate existence, liable to be controlled and enjoyed by the tiny jēva soul, he is under viparyayaù, or a wrong conception. Asmātiù. Thus the living entity forgets that the Supreme Lord is the proprietor of everything, everything being an expansion of the Lord.

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has pointed out that although the Lord's external potency is subject to transformations such as birth, growth, decay and death, one should not foolishly conclude that the Lord's internal potency, the living entity, is also subject to these changes. Both the living entity and material nature are ultimately Brahman, being expansions of the Supreme Brahman. But the Vedas clearly say, parāśya çaktir vividhaiva çrūyate: [Cc. Madhya 13.65, purport] the Lord's potencies are vividhā, or multifarious. Thus, according to this verse, nātmā jajāna na mariṇyati naidhate 'sau na kñēyate: the soul is never born, nor does he die, and he certainly cannot grow or decay like a material body. Although the visible material body passes through boyhood, adolescence and old age, or although one may take birth as a demigod, human being, plant or animal, the spirit soul never changes his eternal constitutional position. Rather, he falsely identifies with the external transformations of the material body and thus imposes upon himself a psychological condition called illusion. This miserable illusory experience of seeing oneself transformed and ultimately annihilated by the laws of nature can be nullified by transcendental knowledge of one's eternal status as the superior energy of the Lord.

The word sarvatra in this verse should not be foolishly misinterpreted to mean that the individual jēva soul is all-pervading. The soul is not born, nor does he die. Yet in our present conditioned state we falsely identify with the birth and death of the body. Therefore, because an all-pervading soul would never fall into illusion, sarvatra cannot indicate that the individual soul is all-pervading. Illusion implies an incomplete understanding of reality, which would not be possible for an all-pervading entity. Therefore, the word sarvatra is understood to mean that the pure spiritual soul exists in all material conditions. In deep sleep, for example, consciousness may not overtly be manifest, and yet the spirit soul is understood to be present within the body. Similarly, it is understood from Bhagavad-gētā that the spirit soul (nityaū sarva-gataū) may exist even within fire, water or outer space, since the existence of the soul never depends upon material conditions but is an eternal fact. The consciousness of the soul is more or less manifest according to the possibilities offered by a particular material situation, just as electric light is manifest in a particular intensity and color according to the bulb available. The electrical energy is one, but it is manifested variously according to material conditions.

The argument may be raised that although the spirit soul is pure consciousness (upalabdhi-mātram), it is our practical experience that consciousness is constantly transformed. If I am thinking of a blue object such as the sky, then my previous thought of a yellow object such as a flower is destroyed. Similarly, if I become aware that I am hungry, then my consciousness of the blue sky is destroyed. In this way, consciousness is constantly being transformed. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has replied that consciousness itself is eternal, but in contact with the material senses it may be manifest in various ways. The example of the life air is very appropriate. Prāëa, or the life air, is one, but in contact with the different senses it is manifest as the power to see, the power to hear, and so on. Similarly, consciousness, being spiritual, is ultimately one, but when in contact with the various senses it may be perceived in terms of particular sensory functions. But the state of consciousness is an eternal fact that cannot be changed, although it may be temporarily covered by māyā.

When one becomes Kāñëa conscious, he is understood to be dhëra (dhëras tatra na muhyati [Bg. 2.13]). At that time one is no longer subject to bewilderment by falsely identifying his consciousness with the transformations of material nature.

From the statement tat tvam asi, found in the Chändogya Upaniñad, it is to be understood that spiritual knowledge is not impersonal but entails gradually perceiving the pure spiritual soul within the material body. Just as in Bhagavad-gétä Kāñëa repeatedly says aham, or "I," this Vedic aphorism uses the word tvam, or "you," to indicate that just as the Absolute Truth is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the individual spark of Brahman (tat) is also an eternal personality (tvam). Therefore, according to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé it is to be understood that the individual spark of Brahman is eternally conscious. Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura has further pointed out that instead of wasting time trying to understand the truth in its impersonal aspect, which is merely the negation of temporary material variety, one should try to understand oneself to be an eternally conscious entity in the jéva category. In other words, one should understand oneself to be eternally a conscious servitor of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

In this regard Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted the following statement from the Mokṣa-dharma section of the Mahābhārata:

*ahaà hi jéva-saàji' o vai mayi jévaù sanātanaù maivaà tvayānumantavyaà dāñño jévo mayeti ha
ahaà çreyo vidhāsyāmi
yathādhikāram éçvaraù*

"The living entity, known as jéva, is not different from Me, for he is My expansion. Thus the living entity is eternal, as I am, and always exists within Me. But you should not artificially think, 'Now I have seen the soul.' Rather, I, as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, will bestow this benediction upon you when you are actually qualified."

TEXT 39

@Nxe"Sau paeizASau taç&SvaivainaiêtaeSau
'aANAAe ih" jalvamaupaDaAvaita taṭa taṭa s$a^aae yaid"in%"yagANAE'h"ima ca 'as$auæae kU(q%STa @AzAyama{tae tad"nausma{itanaR:

aëðeñu peçiñu taruñv aviniçciteñu präëo hi jévam upadhāvati tatra tatra sanne yad indriya-gaëe 'hami ca prasupte küôa-stha açayam âte tad-anusmâtir naù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aëðeñu—in (species of life born from) eggs; peçiñu—in embryos; taruñu—in plants; aviniçciteñu—in species of indeterminate origin (born from perspiration); präëaù—the vital air; hi—indeed; jévam—the soul; upadhävati—follows; tatra tatra—from one species to another; sanne—they are merged; yat—when; indriya-gaëe—all the senses; ahami—the false ego; ca—also; prasupte—in deep sleep; küöa-sthaù—unchanging; äçayam—the subtle covering of contaminated consciousness, the lii ga-çaréra; âte—without; tat—of that; anusmâtiù—(there is) subsequent remembrance; naù—our.

TRANSLATION

The spirit soul is born in many different species of life within the material world. Some species are born from eggs, others from embryos, others from the seeds of plants and trees, and others from perspiration. But in all species of life the präëa, or vital air, remains unchanging and follows the spirit soul from one body to another. Similarly, the spirit soul is eternally the same despite its material condition of life. We have practical experience of this. When we are absorbed in deep sleep without dreaming, the material senses become inactive, and even the mind and false ego are merged into a dormant condition. But although the senses, mind and false ego are inactive, one remembers upon waking that he, the soul, was peacefully sleeping.

PURPORT

When a living entity is awake the material senses and mind are constantly active. Similarly, when one is sleeping the false ego recollects one's waking experiences, and thus one experiences dreams or fragments of dreams while sleeping. But in the state of prasupti, or deep sleep, both the mind and the senses become inactive, and the false ego does not recall previous experiences or desires. The subtle mind and false ego are called lii ga-çaréra, or the subtle material body. This linga-çaréra is experienced in the form of temporary material designations such as "I am a rich man," "I am a strong man," "I am black," "I am white," "I am American," "I am Chinese." The sum total of one's illusory conceptions of oneself is called ahaì kâra, or false ego. And due to this illusory conception of life the living entity transmigrates from one species of life to another, as clearly explained in Bhagavad-gêtä. The spirit soul, however, does not change its constitutional position of eternity, knowledge and bliss, although the soul may temporarily forget this position. To cite an analogous situation, if one dreams at night that he is walking in the forest, such a dream does not change one's actual position of lying in bed within his apartment. Thus it is stated in this verse, kūā-stha āçayam āte: despite the transformations of the subtle body, the spirit soul does not change. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has given the following example to illustrate this point. Etāvantaà kālaà sukham aham asvāpsam, na kii cid avedīñam. One often thinks, "I was sleeping very peacefully, although I was not dreaming or aware of anything." It can be logically understood that one cannot remember something of which he has had no experience. Therefore, since one remembers peacefully sleeping although there was no mental or sensual experience, such a memory should be understood to be a vague experience of the spirit soul.

Çréla Madhvācārya has explained that the demigods, who are a superior race of humanlike entities on the higher planetary systems of this universe, do not actually undergo the gross ignorance of deep sleep as do ordinary human beings. Because the demigods have superior intelligence, they are not merged into ignorance at the time of sleeping. In Bhagavad-gētā Lord Kāñëa says, mattaù smâtir ji ānam apohanaà ca [Bg. 15.15]. Sleep is apohanam, or forgetfulness. Sometimes by dreaming there is smâti, or memory of one's actual condition, although in a dream one may experience one's family or friends in an altered, illusory state. But all such conditions of remembering and forgetting are due to the presence of the Supersoul within the heart. By the mercy of the Supersoul one can have a preliminary glimpse of the soul by remembering how one was peacefully resting even without mental or sensual experience.

According to the authorized commentaries on this verse, aviniçciteñu means sveda-jeñu, or born from perspiration. Çréla Madhvācārya has pointed out, bhü-svedena hi prāyo jāyante: the earth's dew is to be considered the perspiration of the earth, and various species of life are generated from dew.

In the Muëòaka Upaniñaa (3.1.9) the situation of the soul in relation to prāëa is explained:

eño 'ëur ätmä cetasä veditavyo yasmin prāëaù paĩ cadhā saàviveça prāëaiç cittaà sarvam otam prajānāà yasmin viçuddhe vibhavaty eña ātmā

"The soul is atomic in size and can be perceived by perfect intelligence. This atomic soul is floating in the five kinds of air [prāëa, apāna, vyāna, samāna and udāna]. The soul is situated within the heart, and it spreads its influence all over the body of the embodied living entities. When the soul is purified from the contamination of the five kinds of material air, its spiritual influence is exhibited." Thus in the innumerable species of life the spiritual soul remains situated within prāëa, or the material life air.

TEXT 40

ya÷RbjanaABacar"NAESaNAyaAeç&BaftyaA caetaAemalaAina ivaDamaeÖ"NAk(maRjaAina taimana, ivazAuÜ" opalaByata @AtmataÔvaM zAA°aAâTaAmalaä{"zAAe: s$avata{‘ak(AzA:

yarhy abja-nābha-caraëaiñaëayoru-bhaktyā ceto-malāni vidhamed guëa-karma-jāni tasmin viçuddha upalabhyata ātma-tattvaà çäkñād yathāmala-dāçoù savitā-prakāçaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yarhi—when; abja-nābha—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, whose navel is shaped like a lotus; caraëa—the feet; eñaëayā—desiring (only); uru-bhaktyā—by powerful devotional service; cetaù—of the heart; malāni—the dirt; vidhamet—cleanses away; guëa-karma-jāni—generated from the modes of nature and material activities in those modes; tasmin—in that; viçuddhe—completely purified (heart); upalabhyate—is perceived; ātma-tattvam—the true nature of the self; säkñāt—directly; yathā—just as; amala-dāçoù—of pure eyes; savitā—of the sun; prakāçaù—the manifestation.

TRANSLATION

When one seriously engages in the devotional service of the Personality of Godhead, fixing the Lord's lotus feet within one's heart as the only goal of life, one can destroy the innumerable impure desires lodged within the heart as a result of one's previous fruitive work within the three modes of material nature. When the heart is thus purified one can directly perceive both the Supreme Lord and one's self as transcendental entities. Thus one becomes perfect in spiritual understanding through direct experience, just as one can directly experience the sunshine through normal, healthy vision.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was explained that one can have a preliminary glimpse of the eternal, unchanging soul by remembering one's experience of peacefully sleeping even while the mind and senses were totally inactive. One may ask, If in deep sleep there is a preliminary experience of the soul, why upon waking does one return to illusory material existence? It may be answered that because of material desires lodged within the heart the conditioned soul is addicted to the nescience of material sense gratification. A prisoner may glimpse through the bars the free light outside the prison window but still remain captive behind the bars. Similarly, although a conditioned soul may have a glimpse of the spirit soul, he remains captured within the bondage of material desires. Therefore, although one may have a preliminary understanding of the eternal soul that exists within the temporary body, or even of the Supersoul that accompanies the individual soul within the heart, a specific process is still required to eliminate the cause of material existence, namely material desire.

As explained in Bhagavad-gītā (8.6), yaà yaà väpi smaran bhävaà tyajaty ante kalevaram taà tam evaiti kaunteya sadä tad-bhäva-bhävitaù

"Whatever state of being one remembers when he quits his body, that state he will attain without fail." According to one's desire at the time of death a suitable material body is awarded by material nature. Karmaëä daiva-netreëa jantur dehopapattaye [SB 3.31.1]. According to one's fruitive desires and actions and under the jurisdiction of the representatives of the Lord called demigods, the living entity is awarded a particular material body, which is inevitably subject to harassment by birth, death, old age and disease. If one can eliminate the cause of a particular phenomenon, logically he also eliminates the effect. Therefore, this verse states that one should desire only to achieve shelter at the lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead. One should give up illusory desires for material society, friendship and love, since such desires cause further material bondage. One should fix his mind on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kåñëa, so that without fail one can remember Kåñëa at the time of death. As the Lord states, *anta-kåle ca mām eva smaran muktvā kalevaram

yaù prayāti sa mad-bhāvaà
yāti nāsty atra saàçayaù*

"Whoever, at the time of death, quits his body remembering Me alone, at once attains My nature. Of this there is no doubt." (Bg. 8.5) The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kåñëa, is the actual shelter for every living being. And the Lord can be directly perceived as soon as one's heart has become transparently clean through bhakti-yoga.

Bhagavad-gētā describes the state of achieving the Supreme Personality of Godhead by the words tato mām tattvato jī atvā viçate tad-anantaram, and sometimes impersonalists falsely interpret these words to be a description of brahma-sāyujyam, or impersonal merging into the existence of the Lord. It is clearly mentioned in this verse that one must fix his mind and devotion on the lotus feet of abja-nābha, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead. If the individual living entity were equal to the Personality of Godhead, the living entity could simply think of himself in order to be purified. But even then a contradiction would arise: the Personality of Godhead has no need to be purified, since He is described in Bhagavad-gētā as pavitraà paramam, or the supreme pure. Therefore, one should not artificially try to twist an impersonal meaning out of the statements of the Vedic literature.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura has stated that the perfect stage of devotional service indicated in this verse can be observed in the activities of such great devotees as Dhruva Mahārāja. Dhruva Mahārāja approached the Personality of Godhead desiring a political adjustment on the material platform, but when purified by chanting the holy name of God (oà namo bhagavate vāsudevāya) he felt no further need for material sense gratification. As stated in the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, janayaty āçu vairāgyam. As soon as one advances in devotional service, one is freed from the embarrassment of superficial material desires.

The words upalabhyata ātma-tattvam are significant in this verse. Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura says that ātma-tattvam, or knowledge of the soul, indicates knowledge of the Supreme Personality of Godhead along with His various expansions such as the impersonal brahma-jyotir and the marginal living entity himself. As indicated here by the word sākñāt, perceiving the Personality of Godhead means seeing the personal form of the Lord, His hands and legs, His various transcendental vehicles and servants, and so on, just as by devotion to the sun-god one can gradually perceive the personal body of the sun-god, along with his chariot and personal attendants.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura has pointed out that in verses 35 through 39 the various stages of standard logic are demonstrated. Verse 35 establishes the viñaya, or general thesis. Verse 36 manifests saàçaya, or an expression of doubt. Verse 37 gives the pūrva-pakñā, or opposing argument. And verse 38 definitely establishes the siddhānta, or conclusion. Verse 39 presents saì gati, the summary. The saì gati, or final word, is that one should become a pure devotee of the Personality of Godhead and worship the Lord's lotus feet. Thus by cleansing the mirror of the heart one can see the Lord, just as a normal human being with healthy 20/20 vision can very easily see the brilliant rays of the sun or as an advanced devotee of the sun-god himself can see the personal body of the sun-god.

TEXT 41

™alr"AjaAevaAca
k(maRyaAegAM vad"ta na:
pauç&SaAe yaena s$AMs$k{(ta: ivaDaUyaeh"AzAu k(maARiNA naESk(mya< ivand"tae par"ma,

çré-räjoväca
karma-yogaà vadata naù puruñño yena saàskâtaù vidhüyehäçu karmäëi
naiñkarmyaà vindate param

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; karma-yogam—the practice of dovetailing one's work with the Supreme; vadata—please tell; naù—us; puruññaù—a person; yena—by which; saàskâtaù—being refined; vidhüya—getting rid of; iha—in this life; äçu—quickly; karmäëi—materialistic activities; naiñkarmyam—freedom from fruitive reactions; vindate—enjoys; param—transcendental.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi said: O great sages, please speak to us about the process of karma-yoga. Purified by this process of dedicating one's practical work to the Supreme, a person can very quickly free himself from all material activities, even in this life, and thus enjoy pure life on the transcendental platform.

PURPORT

As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (3.5), na hi kaçcit kñäëam api

jätu tiññhaty akarma-kât kâryate hy avaçau karma sarvaù prakâti-jair guëaiù

"All men are forced to act helplessly according to the impulses born of the modes of material nature; therefore no one can refrain from doing something, not even for a moment." Since the living entity cannot remain inactive, he must learn to dedicate his activities to the Lord. Çréla Prabhupāda comments on this verse from Bhagavad-gētā as follows: "It is not a question of embodied life, but it is the nature of the soul to be always active. Without the presence of the spirit soul, the material body cannot move. The body is only a dead vehicle to be worked by the spirit soul, which is always active and cannot stop even for a moment. As such, the spirit soul has to be engaged in the good work of Kāñëa consciousness, otherwise it will be engaged in occupations dictated by illusory energy. In contact with material energy, the spirit soul acquires material modes, and to purify the soul from such affinities it is necessary to engage in the prescribed duties enjoined in the çāstras. But if the soul is engaged in his natural function of Kāñëa consciousness, whatever he is able to do is good for him."

Ordinary people often question the busy activities of the devotees of the Kāñëa consciousness movement, mistaking such activities to be ordinary material work. Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē has stated in this connection, kāmya-karmāëy eva tyājītāni, na tu nitya-naimittikāni, phalasyaiva vininditatvāt. One should give up selfish activities performed for one's personal sense gratification, since the result of such thoughtless work is further material bondage. But one should offer one's regular or occasional occupational duties to the Supreme Lord, and thus such activities become transcendental devotional service. By the words tasmād guruà prapadyeta jijñāsuù çreya uttamam [SB 11.3.21], this chapter has clearly explained that dovetailing one's work with the service of the Lord is an art one should learn at the lotus feet of the bona fide spiritual master. Otherwise, if one whimsically declares his materialistic work to be transcendental devotional service, there will be no actual result. Therefore, according to Çré Jēva Gosvāmē, one should not mistake the word naiñkarmyam to indicate inactivity; rather, it indicates transcendental activity under the guidance of the Lord and His representative.

TEXT 42

WvaM 'a'ama{Salna, paUvaRma, @pa{cCM$ ipataur"intake( naA"auvana, "aöNA: pauṭaAs$a, taṭa k(Ar"NAmacyataAma,

evaà praçnam āñēn pūrvam apācchaà pitur antike näbruvan brahmaëaù puträs tatra kāraëam ucyatām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—similar; praçnam—a question; āñēn—to the sages; pūrvam—previously; apāccham—I asked; pituù—of my father (Ikīvāku Mahārāja); antike—in front; na abruvan—they did not speak; brahmaëaù—of Lord Brahmā; putrāù—the sons; tatra—of that; kāraëam—the reason; ucyatām—please say.

TRANSLATION

Once in the past, in the presence of my father, Mahārāja Ikīvāku, I placed a similar question before four great sages who were sons of Lord Brahmā. But they did not answer my question. Please explain the reason for this.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé the words brahmaëaù putrāù, "the sons of Brahmā," refer to the four Kumāras headed by Sanaka Āñi. Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted a verse from the Tantra-bhāgavata stating that the reason the four sons of Lord Brahmā, although mahājanas and experts in the science of devotional service, declined to answer King Nimi was that they wanted to demonstrate clearly that even those who are expert in the cultivation of speculative knowledge cannot understand the actual science of pure devotional service. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has further commented that the sages avoided answering the question from the King because at that time King Nimi was a young boy and therefore not mature enough to understand the answer fully.

TEXT 43

™al@Aivah"AeRṭa ovaAca k(maARk(maR ivak(maeRita vaed"vaAd"Ae na laAEik(k(: vaed"sya caeìr"AtmatvaAta, taṭa mau÷inta s$aUr"ya:

çré-ävirhotra uväca
karmäkarma vikarmeti
veda-vädo na laukikaù
vedasya ceçvarätmatvät tatra muhyanti sūrayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-ävirhotraù uväca—the sage Ävirhotra said; karma—the execution of duties prescribed by scripture; akarma—failure to perform such duties; vikarma—engagement in forbidden activities; iti—thus; veda-vädaù—subject matter understood through the Vedas; na—not; laukikaù—mundane; vedasya—of the Vedas; ca—and; éçvara-ätmatvät—because of coming from the Personality of Godhead Himself; tatra—in this matter; muhyanti—become confused; sūrayaù—(even) great scholarly authorities.

TRANSLATION

Çré Ävirhotra replied: Prescribed duties, nonperformance of such duties, and forbidden activities are topics one can properly understand through authorized study of the Vedic literature. This difficult subject matter can never be understood by mundane speculation. The authorized Vedic literature is the sound incarnation of the Personality of Godhead Himself, and thus Vedic knowledge is perfect. Even the greatest learned scholars are bewildered in their attempts to understand the science of action if they neglect the authority of Vedic knowledge.

PURPORT

Prescribed duties authorized by revealed scripture are called karma, whereas the failure to execute one's highest duty is called akarma. The performance of forbidden activities is called vikarma. Thus karma, akarma and vikarma are established by the authorized explanations of Vedic literature. They cannot be ascertained merely through mundane exercises in logic. In the Çrémad-Bhägavatam (6.16.51) the Lord says, çabda-brahma paraà brahma mamobhe çäçvaté tanü: "I am the form of the transcendental vibrations of the Vedas, such as oàkåra and Hare Kåñëa Hare Råma, and I am the Supreme Absolute Truth. These two forms of Mine—namely, the transcendental Vedic sound and the eternally blissful spiritual form of the Deity—are My eternal forms; they are not material. " Similarly, it is stated in the Bhägavatam (6.1.40), vedo nārāyaëaù sākñāt svayambhür iti çuçruma: "The Vedas are directly the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaëa, and are self-born. This we have heard from Yamarāja." In the Puruña-sükta (Åg Veda, maëòala 10, sükta 90, mantra 9) it is stated, tasmäd yajì àt sarva-huta åcaù sāmāni jajì ire/ chandäàsi jajì jre tasmät: "From Him, Yajì a, came all sacrificial offerings, hymns of invocation and songs of praise. All the mantras of the Vedas come from the Lord." All the incarnations of the Supreme Personality of Godhead are completely transcendental and free from the four defects of conditional life, namely mistakes, illusion, cheating and imperfect senses. So Vedic knowledge, being a plenary manifestation of the Supreme Lord, is similarly infallible and transcendental.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura has pointed out that in the material world, which is controlled by the illusory energy of the Lord, a particular sound vibration is discarded after describing its object. But on the spiritual platform called Vaikuëha nothing is ever lost, and thus çabda-brahma, or the Personality of Godhead in His form as transcendental sound, is eternal.

In ordinary human discourse one can ascertain the meaning of human words by understanding the intention of the speaker. But since Vedic knowledge is apauruñeya, or transcendental, one can appreciate its purport only by hearing from the standard authorities in the chain of disciplic succession. This process is prescribed by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gétä (evaà paramparä-präptam [Bg. 4.2]). Thus, even highly learned scholars who proudly neglect this simple descending process are certainly bewildered and embarrassed in their hopeless attempt to ascertain the ultimate meaning of Vedic knowledge. The four sons of Lord Brahmä declined to answer the question of King Nimi since at that time the King was a mere child and therefore not capable of seriously surrendering to the process of hearing through disciplic succession. Çréla Madhväcärya has pointed out in this regard, éçvarätmatväd éçvara-viñayatvät. Because the Vedas describe the unlimited Personality of Godhead, Vedic knowledge cannot be approached by mundane methods of comprehension.

TEXT 44

par"Ae°avaAd"Ae vaed"Ae'yaM baAlaAnaAmanauzAAs$anama, k(maRmaAe°aAya k(maARiNA ivaDaÔae ÷gAdM" yaTaA

parokñä-vädo vedo 'yaà bälänäm anuçäsanam karma-mokñäya karmäëi vidhatte hy agadaà yathä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

parokña-vādaù—describing a situation as something else in order to disguise its real nature; vedaù—Vedas; ayam—these; bālānām—of childlike persons; anuçāsanam—guidance; karma-mokñāya—for liberation from material activities; karmāëi—material activities; vidhatte—prescribe; hi—indeed; agadam—a medicine; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

Childish and foolish people are attached to materialistic, fruitive activities, although the actual goal of life is to become free from such activities. Therefore, the Vedic injunctions indirectly lead one to the path of ultimate liberation by first prescribing fruitive religious activities, just as a father promises his child candy so that the child will take his medicine.

PURPORT

As stated in Bhagavad-gētā, traiguëya-viñayā vedā nistraiguëyo bhavārjuna. The Vedas apparently offer fruitive results within the three modes of material nature. Those who perform ritualistic ceremonies or austerities in the mode of goodness are offered the chance for promotion to the higher planetary systems called Svargaloka. Açnanti divyān divi deva-bhogān. Similarly, those who perform karma-käëòà, or fruitive religious activities in the mode of passion, are allowed to become great rulers or wealthy men on earth and enjoy great prestige and earthly power. But as stated in the Manu-saàhitā, pravāttir eñā bhütānāà nivāttis tu mahā-phalā: "Although fruitive religious activities are very much popular among the conditioned souls, the actual perfection of life is achieved when one gives up all fruitive endeavor."

If a father tells his child, "You must take this medicine by my order," the child may become fearful and rebellious and reject the medicine. Therefore, the father entices his child by saying, "I am going to give you a delicious piece of candy. But if you want this candy, first just take this little bit of medicine, and then you can have the candy." Such indirect persuasion is called parokña-vādaù, or an indirect description that conceals the actual purpose. The father presents his proposal to the child as if the ultimate goal were to receive the candy and only a minor condition must be fulfilled to receive it. Actually, however, the father's goal is to administer the medicine to the child and cure him of his disease. Thus, describing the primary purpose indirectly and concealing it with a secondary proposal is called parokñā-vādaù, or indirect persuasion.

Since the great majority of conditioned souls are addicted to sense gratification (pravāttir eñā bhūtānām), the Vedic karma-kāēōa rituals offer them a chance to become free from temporary materialistic sense gratification by making them greedy for fruitive Vedic results such as promotion to heaven or a powerful ruling position on earth. In all Vedic rituals Viñēu is worshiped, and thus one is gradually promoted to the understanding that one's actual self-interest is to surrender to Viñēu. Na te viduù svārtha-gatiā hi viñēum [SB 7.5.31]. Such an indirect method is prescribed for bālānām, those who are childish or foolish. An intelligent person can immediately understand by direct analysis the actual purpose of Vedic literature as described by the Lord Himself (vedaīç ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15]). All Vedic knowledge ultimately aims at achieving shelter at the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Without such shelter one must rotate within the 8,400,000 species offered by the illusory energy of the Lord. Ordinary material vision, either through gross sense perception or the subtle perception of rational induction, always yields imperfect knowledge distorted by the desire for illusory material enjoyment. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura comments that the cultivation of impersonal self-realization is also a disturbance to the conditioned souls, since the impersonal speculative process is an artificial attempt to become completely formless. Such an attempt is not at all in accord with the proper judgment of the Vedas, which is described in Bhagavad-gētā (vedaīç ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15]).

In Lord Caitanya's movement there is no need to childishly pursue fruitive material results and gradually be dragged to actual knowledge. According to Caitanya Mahāprabhu:

harer nāma harer nāma

*harer nāmaiva kevalam
kalau nāsty eva nāsty eva
nāsty eva gatir anyathā
[Cc. Ādi 17.21]*

In Kali-yuga life is very short (prāyeēālpāyuiñāu), and people are generally undisciplined (mandāu), misguided (sumanda-matayaū), and overwhelmed by the unfavorable results of their previous activities (manda-bhāgyāu). Thus their minds are never peaceful (upadrutāu), and their very brief life span vitiates the possibility of their gradually progressing through the path of Vedic ritualistic activities. Therefore, the only hope is to chant the holy names of the Lord, harer nāma [Cc. Ādi 17.21], In the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (12.3.51) it is stated:

kaler doña-nidhe rājann asti hy eko mahān guēaū kértanād eva kãñēasya mukta-saī gaū paraē vrajet

Kali-yuga is an ocean of hypocrisy and pollution. In Kali-yuga all natural elements are polluted, such as water, earth, sky, mind, intelligence and ego. The only auspicious aspect of this fallen age is the process of chanting the holy names of the Lord (asti hy eko mahān guēaū). Simply by the delightful process of kãñēa-kértana one is freed from his connection to this fallen age (mukta-saī ga) and goes back home, back to Godhead (paraē vrajet). Sometimes the preachers of the Kãñēa consciousness movement also use the parokñā, or indirect method of persuasion, offering a nice transcendental sweet to the conditioned soul to entice him to come to the lotus feet of the Lord. Caitanya Mahāprabhu's movement is kevala ānanda-kāēōa, simply blissful. But by the mercy of Caitanya Mahāprabhu even one who is indirectly attracted to the Kãñēa consciousness movement achieves very quickly the perfection of life and goes back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 45

naAcare"âstau vaed"Ae·M( svayamaÁaAe'ijataein%"ya:
ivak(maRNAA ÷DamaeRNA ma{tyaAema{RtyaumaupaEita s$a:

nācared yas tu vedoktaà svayam ajī o 'jitendriyaù vikarmaëä hy adharmeëa mātyor mātyum upaiti saù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na ācaret—does not perform; yaù—who; tu—but; veda-uktam—what is prescribed in the Vedas; svayam—himself; ajī aù—ignorant; ajita-indriyaù—not having learned to control his senses; vikarmaëä—by not executing scriptural duty; hi—indeed; adharmeëa—by his irreligion; mātyoù mātyum—death after death; upaiti—achieves; saù—he.

TRANSLATION

If an ignorant person who has not conquered the material senses does not adhere to the Vedic injunctions, certainly he will engage in sinful and irreligious activities. Thus his reward will be repeated birth and death.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was stated that although fruitive activities are prescribed in the Vedas, the actual goal of human life is to free oneself from all materialistic activities. Therefore, one may conclude that there is no need to perform the Vedic rituals, which offer regulated sense gratification. But an ignorant person, or, in other words, one who has not understood that he is not the material body but an eternal spiritual soul, part and parcel of Kāñëa, will invariably be unable to control the urges of the material senses. Therefore, if such a materially inclined person neglects the Vedic injunctions that administer regulated sense gratification, he will surely fall down into unregulated sense gratification in pāpa, or sinful life. For example, those who are affected by sexual desire are ordered to accept the vivāha-yajī'a, or religious marriage ceremony. We often see that because of false pride a so-called brahmacāre, or celibate student of Vedic knowledge, rejects the marriage ceremony as māyā, or material illusion. But if such a celibate student is unable to control his senses he will undoubtedly degrade himself by eventually engaging in illicit sex, which has no connection to Vedic culture. Similarly, a neophyte in Kāñëa consciousness is encouraged to eat kāñëa-prasādam to his full satisfaction. Sometimes an immature practitioner of bhakti-yoga tries to make a show of severe eating habits and eventually falls down into eating unregulated and abominable foodstuffs.

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the words mātyor mātyum upaiti mean that a sinful person is awarded a free ticket to hell by the lord of death himself, Yamarāja. This is also described in the Vedas as follows: mātvā punar mātyum āpadyate ardyamānaù sva-karmabhiù. "Persons who cause themselves severe pain by their materialistic activities gain no relief at the moment of death, for they are placed again in a situation in which death will occur." Therefore, Vedic ritualistic activities such as the wedding ceremony or the relishing of sumptuous yajī'a-çinñä, or food remnants of sacrifice, should not be given up by those whose senses are not yet controlled.

The previous verse gave the example of a father's administering candy to his son to induce the child to take medicine. If the child rejects the father's offer, thinking that the candy is unnecessary, the child also misses the opportunity to take the medicine that will cure him. Similarly, if a materialistic person rejects the Vedic injunctions that administer prescribed sense gratification, he will not be purified but instead will be further degraded. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has described a materialistic person as one whose mind and intelligence are not faithfully fixed in the message of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In Bhagavad-gétä Çré Bhagavän, Lord Kāñëa, gives wonderful explanations to the conditioned souls, represented by Arjuna, concerning the actual goal of life. One who cannot fix his mind on these instructions is to be considered a materialistic person who is inclined toward sinful activities and who must therefore submit himself to the standard Vedic injunctions. Such Vedic injunctions, even though fruitive. are considered puëya, or pious, according to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, and thus one who strictly performs them will not go to hell. Lord Kåñëa Himself states in the Bhägavatam (11.20.9), *tāvat karmāëi kurvéta

na nirvidyeta yāvatā
mat-kathā-çravaëädau vä
çraddhä yāvan na jäyate*

"One should continue to perform the Vedic ritualistic activities until one actually becomes detached from material sense gratification and develops faith for hearing and chanting about Me."

Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains that the Vedas prescribe that one rise early in the morning, bathe, and chant the Gäyatré mantra. If one artificially gives up such a disciplined, regulated life, one will gradually become a victim of activities for gross sense gratification, such as eating in restaurants and indulging in illicit connections with women. Thus losing control of his senses, he becomes just like an animal, engaging from the early morning until the night in dangerous activities. Çréla Madhväcärya has commented in this regard, aji au sann äcarann api. Although in ignorance, one continues to act, not considering the future result of one's activities. Such indifference to the future result of one's activities is described in Bhagavad-gétä to be a symptom of the mode of ignorance. Just as an intelligent man will not drive his car on a highway if he knows the highway will lead him to danger, an intelligent man will not perform non-Vedic activities if he knows that the ultimate result will be the disaster described here by the words mātyor mātyum upaiti. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has stated that ignorant persons sometimes think that after death one automatically attains everlasting peace. But by the powerful reactions of one's sinful activities one comes to a most unpeaceful condition, for one must suffer hellish miseries in exchange for the meager temporary fruits of material work. Such hellish reactions occur not once but perpetually, as long as one is indifferent to the Vedic injunctions.

TEXT 46

vaed"Ae·(maeva ku(vaARNAAe ina:s$aËÿAe'ipaRtamalire" naESk(mya< laBatae is$aïÜM" r"AecanaATaAR P(la™auita:

vedoktam eva kurväëo niüsaï go 'rpitam éçvare naiñkarmyaà labhate siddhià rocanärthä phala-çrutiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

veda-uktam—the regulated activities described by the Vedas;
eva—certainly; kurväëaù—performing; nihsaï gaù—without attachment;
arpitam—offered; éçvare—to the Supreme Lord; naiñkarmyam—of liberation from material work and its reactions; labhate—one achieves; siddhim—the perfection; rocana-arthä—for the purpose of giving encouragement;
phala-çrutiù—the promises of material results given in the Vedic scriptures.

TRANSLATION

By executing without attachment the regulated activities prescribed in the Vedas, offering the results of such work to the Supreme Lord, one attains the perfection of freedom from the bondage of material work. The material fruitive results offered in the revealed scriptures are not the actual goal of Vedic knowledge, but are meant for stimulating the interest of the performer.

PURPORT

Human life is an opportunity offered by the laws of nature to the conditioned soul so that he may understand his eternal relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Unfortunately, even in the human form of life most living entities remain addicted to improving the standard of animal activities, namely eating, sleeping, defending and mating. Almost no one is interested in the actual success of life, Kāñëa consciousness.

*çrotavyädëni räjendra
nâëää santi sahasraçaù apaçyatäm ätma-tattvaà
gâheñu gâha-medhinäm*

"Those persons who are materially engrossed, being blind to the knowledge of ultimate truth, have many subject matters for hearing in human society, O Emperor." (SB 2.1.2)

It is stated, parama-käruëiko vedaù—"Vedic knowledge is supremely merciful"—because it engages the animalistic human beings in a gradual process of purification that culminates in full consciousness of Lord Kāñëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. This is confirmed by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gētā (vedaiç ca sarvair aham eva vedyaù [Bg. 15.15]). The majority of human beings are not able to suddenly give up material sense gratification, even though they understand from Vedic literature that such sense gratification causes a pernicious future effect. We have practical experience in the Western countries that when the government informed the citizens that smoking cigarettes causes lung cancer, most people were unable to give up their smoking habit. Therefore, the Vedic literature prescribes a gradual process of purification in which the conditioned soul learns to offer the results of his material activities to the Supreme Lord, thus spiritualizing those activities. Material sense gratification is based on two organs, namely the tongue for tasting and the genitals for sex life. By offering palatable food to the Deity of Kāñëa and then enjoying the remnants as kāñëa-prasādam and by accepting the rules and regulations for Vedic householder life and begetting of Kāñëa conscious children, one can gradually bring the full range of material activities to the platform of pure devotional service. By offering the fruits of one's ordinary activities to the Supreme Lord, one gradually understands that the Lord Himself, and not material sense gratification, is the actual goal of life. Lord Kāñëa warns in Bhagavad-gētā that if people are prematurely encouraged to give up householder life or the sumptuous remnants of the Lord's prasādam, such artificial renunciation will have the opposite effect.

There is a class of duplicitous men who misunderstand the transcendental purpose of the Vedas and falsely claim that material fruitive results such as promotion to heaven, which is offered in the agnihōma sacrifice, constitute the ultimate goal of the Vedas. Such foolish men have been described by Lord Kāṇḍeya:

*yām imāṇ puṇpitāṇ vācaṇ pravadanty avipaṇcitāṇ veda-vāda-ratāṇ pārtha
nānyad astēti vādinaṇ*

*kāmātmānaṇ svarga-parā
janma-karma-phala-pradām
kriyā-viṇeṇa-bahulāṇ bhogaicṇvarya-gatiṇ prati*

"Men of small knowledge are very much attached to the flowery words of the Vedas, which recommend various fruitive activities for elevation to heavenly planets, resultant good birth, power, and so forth. Being desirous of sense gratification and opulent life, they say that there is nothing more than this." (Bg. 2.42-43) To refute such a foolish understanding of the Vedic purpose, this verse uses the word niṇsai gaṇ, which means "without attachment to material results." The actual purpose of the Vedas is arpitam eṇvare, to offer everything to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The result is siddhim, or the perfection of life, Kāṇḍeya consciousness.

The words rocanārthā phala-ṇṇrutīṇ clearly indicate that the fruitive results promised in the Vedic literature are meant to stimulate a materialistic person to have faith in the Vedic injunctions. The example is given that a child may be offered candy-covered medicine. The child becomes enthusiastic to take the medicine because of the candy coating, whereas a mature person will be enthusiastic to take the medicine itself, knowing that such medicine is meant for his real self-interest. The mature platform of Vedic understanding is mentioned in the Bāhad-āraēyaka

Upaniṣad (4.4.22): tam etaṁ vedānuvacanena brāhmaṇā vividiṁanti brahmacaryeṇa tapasā çraddhayā yajī enānāçakena ca. "By the teaching of the Vedas and by celibacy, penances, faith and controlled eating, great brāhmaṇas come to know the Supreme." The Supreme is Kāṇḍa, as stated in Bhagavad-gītā. Although the prescribed rituals of the Vedas may sometimes resemble material fruitive work, the activity is spiritualized because the result is offered to the Supreme. Candy-covered medicine and ordinary candy may appear or taste the same. But the candy-covered medicine has a therapeutic effect not found in ordinary candy. Similarly, the words naiṅkarmyaṁ labhate siddhim in this verse indicate that a faithful follower of the Vedic injunctions will gradually be promoted to the highest perfection of life, pure love of Godhead, as stated by Caitanya Mahāprabhu (premā pum-artho mahān).

TEXT 47

ya @AzAu ô$d"yafainTaM inaijaRh"l[%Sau: par"Atmana: ivaiDanaAepacare"Úe"vaM tanṭaAe-e(na ca ke(zAvama,

*ya āçu hādaya-granthiṁ nirjihēñuṁ parātmanaṁ vidhinopacared devam
tantruktēna ca keçavam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaṁ—one who; āçu—quickly; hādaya-granthim—the knot of the heart (false identification with the material body); nirjihēñuṁ—desirous of cutting; parātmanaṁ—of the transcendental soul; vidhinā—with the regulations; upacaret—he should worship; devam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; tantra-uktena—which are described by the tantras (the supplementary Vedic literatures that give detailed instructions for spiritual practice); ca—as well (in addition to those regulations which are directly vedoktam);

keçavam—Lord Keçava.

TRANSLATION

One who desires to quickly cut the knot of false ego, which binds the spirit soul, should worship the Supreme Lord, Keçava, by the regulations found in Vedic literatures such as the tantras.

PURPORT

The Vedic literatures contain mysterious descriptions of the Absolute Truth that stimulate philosophical speculation. The Vedas also offer heavenly rewards for the performance of ritualistic ceremonies. But as stated in verse 44 of this chapter such jī āna-kāēōa and karma-kāēōa sections of the Vedas are bālānām anuçāsanam; that is, because less intelligent or childish persons are addicted to mental speculation and fruitive activity, these sections of the Vedas are meant to attract such persons to take shelter of the Vedic injunctions for gradual promotion to the perfect stage of Kāñēa consciousness.

Now that the path for those who are materialistic has been described in several verses, this verse describes the process for those who are vijī aū, or learned transcendentalists. Such learned transcendentalists are advised to follow the regulated worship described in such Vaiñēava tantras as Çré Nārada Pai carātra for pleasing the Supreme Lord directly. The words upacared devaē tantroktena ca keçavam indicate that one should directly worship Keçava, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who appears in many different incarnations to please His devotees. Çréla Jayadeva Gosvāmē has described the pastimes of the Lord in his song describing ten prominent incarnations of the Personality of Godhead, Keçava: Lord Fish, Lord Tortoise, Lord Boar, Lord Nāsiāha-deva, Lord Vāmana, Lord Paraçurāma, Lord Rāmacandra, Lord Balarāma, Lord Buddha and Lord Kalki. The words upacared devam indicate devotional service to the Personality of Godhead. And therefore the word tantroktena, or "injunctions of the tantras," should be understood to indicate vaiñēava-tantras such as Çré Nārada Pai carātra, which give explicit and detailed instructions for worshiping Keçava. The Vedas are referred to by the term nigama. And the elaborate explanation of these nigamas is called āgama, or tantra. When the transcendental living entity becomes perturbed by the obnoxious harassment of material bodily dualities, he becomes eager to hear from the Vedas about his transcendental situation. The word āçu in this verse indicates that those who are eager to put a quick end to material existence and situate themselves in the eternal blissful life of perfect knowledge should directly worship Lord Kāñëa, bypassing the preliminary Vedic rituals described in the previous verses.

TEXT 48

labDvaAnaufah" @AcaAyaARta, taena s$and"izARtaAgAma:
mah"Apauç&SamaByacaeRna, maUtyaARiBamatayaAtmana:

*labdhvānugraha ācāryāt tena sandarçitāgamaù
mahā-puruṇam abhyarcen mūrtyābhimatayātmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

labdhvā—having obtained; anugrahaù—mercy; ācāryāt—from the spiritual master; tena—by him; sandarçita—being shown; āgamaù—(the process of worship given by) the vaiñëava-tantras; mahā-puruṇam—the Supreme Person; abhyarcet—the disciple should worship; mūrtyā—in the particular personal form; abhimatayā—which is preferred; ātmanaù—by himself.

TRANSLATION

Having obtained the mercy of his spiritual master, who reveals to the disciple the injunctions of Vedic scriptures, the devotee should worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead in the particular personal form of the Lord the devotee finds most attractive.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the word labdhvānugrahaù indicates formal initiation by a bona fide spiritual master. It is stated in the Padma Purāëa, ñāō-karma-nipuëo vipro mantra-tantra-viçāradaù avaiñëavo gurur na syād vaiñëavaù çvapaco guruù

A bona fide spiritual master must be a soul surrendered at the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord. In the Brahma-vaivarta Purāëa it is stated, *bodhaù kaluñitas tena daurätmyaà prakaōë-kātam gurur yena parityaktas

tena tyaktaù purā hariù*

"One pollutes his own intelligence and exhibits severe weakness of character when he rejects his own spiritual master. Indeed, such a person has already rejected the Supreme Lord, Hari." The bona fide disciple should always remember that his entire understanding of Vedic knowledge is coming through the mercy of his bona fide spiritual master. If one superficially or whimsically accepts and rejects a bona fide Vaiñëava spiritual master, sometimes becoming attracted to another spiritual master, one commits a vaiñëava-aparādha, a great offense against the devotees of the Lord. Sometimes a foolish neophyte mistakenly thinks that the relationship with the spiritual master is meant for the sense gratification of the disciple, and therefore in the name of spiritual aspirations such a fool gives up a bona fide Vaiñëava guru. One should understand oneself to be the eternal servant of the guru. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, however, has quoted this verse from the Nārada Pai carātra:

*avaiñëavopadiñöena
mantreëa nirayaà vrajet punaç ca vidhinä samyag grähayed vaiñëaväd guroù*

"One who is initiated into a mantra by a non-Vaiñëava must go to hell. Therefore he should again be initiated properly, according to the prescribed method, by a Vaiñëava guru." It is the duty of the bona fide spiritual master to examine carefully the qualification of the disciple, and the disciple should similarly approach a bona fide spiritual master. Otherwise, the foolish disciple and the indiscriminate guru may both be punished by the laws of nature.

One should not artificially try to assimilate all of the apparently conflicting branches of Vedic knowledge. Vedaiç ca sarvair aham eva vedyaù [Bg. 15.15]. Conditioned souls have various conflicting natures, which are engaged by apparently conflicting Vedic injunctions called pravåtti and nivåtti-mārga. But the easiest path is simply to learn the process of regularly worshipping advaya-jī āna, Lord Viñëu. All the demigods mentioned in the Vedas are paraphernalia for the service of the Supreme Lord, Viñëu. Whatever exists in the visible material world is also meant to be engaged in the Lord's service; otherwise, it has no value. If one artificially renounces material things useful in the service of the Supreme Lord, he loses his spiritual qualification of seeing everything as meant for Kāñëa's pleasure and will be forced to think of material objects as meant for his own sense enjoyment. In other words, material things should be accepted or rejected according to the pleasure of the Supreme Lord. Otherwise, one will fall down from the standard of pure devotional service. As stated in this verse, labdhvānugraha ācāryāt: such discrimination can be learned when one receives the mercy of a bona fide spiritual master, who reveals to the sincere disciple the practical application of Vedic knowledge.

TEXT 49

zAuica: s$ammauKamaAs$alna:

‘aANAs$aMyamanaAid"iBa: ipaNxM" ivazAAeDya s$a^ayaAs$ak{(tar"°aAe'caRyaeÜ"ir"ma,

çuciù sammukham äsénaù präëa-saàyamanädibhiù piëòaa viçodhya sannyäsakâta-rakñö 'rcayed dharim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çuciù—clean; sammukham—facing (the Deity); äsénaù—thus seated; präëa-saàyamana-ädibhiù—by präëäyāma (breathing exercises) and other means; piëòam—the gross body; viçodhya—purifying; sannyäsa—by placing transcendental marks of tilaka on various places of the body; kâta-rakñö—in this way invoking the Lord's protection; arcayet—one should worship; harim—Lord Hari.

TRANSLATION

After cleansing oneself, purifying the body by präëäyāma, bhüta-çuddhi and other processes, and marking the body with sacred tilaka for protection, one should sit in front of the Deity and worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

Präëäyāma is the authorized Vedic process for controlling the air within the body. Similarly, bhüta-çuddhi is a process for purifying the body. The word çuciù means that one should be internally and externally clean. Çuciù means that one should perform activities only for the pleasure of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. If somehow or other one can remember the Supreme Lord constantly by chanting and hearing His holy name, one will come to the pure stage of life, as described in this Vedic mantra:

oà apavitraù pavitro vä

sarvāvasthā̀ gato 'pi vā yaù smaret puëòarékākñā̀ sa bahyābhyantara-çuciù (Garuòā Purāëa)

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura has pointed out that although one may mark the body with sacred tilaka, perform mudrās and chant mantras, if one is thinking within his mind of material sense gratification his worship of Lord Çré Hari is bogus. Therefore the word çuciù here indicates that one should worship the Lord in a favorable frame of mind, considering the Lord to be sacred and one's self to be an insignificant servant of the Lord. Those who are not favorably inclined toward the Supreme Personality of Godhead do not like to worship the Deity in the temple, and they discourage people from going to the temple of the Lord by saying that since the Lord is omnipresent there is no need to do so. Such envious persons prefer the gymnastic exercises of haõha-yoga or the rāja-yoga system. But statements by the Lord Himself, such as vāsudevaù sarvam iti and mā̀ ekà çaraëà vraja [Bg. 7.19], indicate that in mature transcendental realization one understands that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the source of everything and therefore the only worshipable object. Thus the devotees who worship the Deity of the Lord according to the pañcarātra system are not attracted by any yoga process except bhakti-yoga.

TEXTS 50-51

@caARd"AE ô$d"yae caAipa yaTaAlabDaAepacaAr"kE(: %"vyai°atyaAtmailaNgAAina inaSpaAâ 'aAe°ya caAs$anama, paAâAd"lnaupak(lpyaATa

s$ai°aDaApya s$amaAih"ta:
ô$d"Aid"iBa: k{(tanyaAs$aAe maUlamāñaeNA caAcaRyaeta,

*arcādau hādaye cāpi
yathā-labdhopacāraiù
dravya-kñiti-ātma-liëgāni niñpādyā prokñiya cāsanam*

*pādyādén upakalpyātha sannidhāpya samāhitaù hād-ādibhiù kāta-nyāso
mūla-mantreëa cārcayet*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

arcā-ādau—in the form of the Deity and His paraphernalia; hādaye—in the heart; ca api—also; yathā-labdha—whatever is available; upacāraiù—with ingredients of worship; dravya—the physical items to be offered; kñiti—the ground; ātma—one's own mind; lië gāni—and the Deity; niñpādyā—preparing; prokñiya—sprinkling with water for purification; ca—and; āsanam—one's seat; pādyā-ādén—the water for bathing the Deity's feet and other offerings; upakalpya—getting ready; atha—then; sannidhāpya—placing the Deity in His proper place; samāhitaù—concentrating one's attention; hāt-ādibhiù—on the Deity's heart and other places of the body; kāta-nyāsaù—having drawn sacred marks; mūla-mantreëa—with the appropriate basic mantra for worshipping the particular Deity; ca—and; arcayet—one should offer worship.

TRANSLATION

The devotee should gather whatever ingredients for worshipping the Deity are available, make ready the offerings, the ground, his mind and the Deity, sprinkle his sitting place with water for purification and prepare the bathing water and other paraphernalia. The devotee should then place the Deity in His proper place, both physically and within his own mind, concentrate his attention, and mark the Deity's heart and other parts of the body with tilaka. Then he should offer worship with the appropriate mantra.

PURPORT

*ataù çré-kāñëa-nämädi
na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiù
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau
svayam eva sphuraty adaù
[Cc. Madhya 17.136]
(Padma Purāëa)*

The Absolute Truth can never be understood by ordinary material sense perception. The conditioned souls engrossed in the vain pursuit of material sense gratification are completely indifferent to the transcendental loving service of the Lord. Their materially conditioned minds are always impure and disturbed by the endless flow of material dualities, such as prosperity and poverty, winter and summer, fame and infamy, youth and old age. Such disturbed conditioned souls cannot recognize the personal presence of the Absolute Truth in the form of the Deity.

The Lord's incarnation as arcā-avatāra, the Deity form, is a special manifestation of the Lord's mercy toward the materialistic or neophyte devotees who are still under the influence of material designations. They are unable to perceive the Lord in His eternal abode, and therefore the Lord descends as the Deity form, manifesting the prakāça incarnations and even the svayaà-prakāça, or the original form of the Lord. The prakāça incarnations exhibit various pastimes within this world, whereas svayaà-prakāça, the Lord's original form, is the source of all avatāras.

To one who sincerely worships the Deity, the Deity manifests Himself as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Those who are most unfortunate cannot even recognize the Supreme Lord in His merciful Deity expansion. They consider the Deity an ordinary material object. But by surrendering at the lotus feet of a bona fide spiritual master, who is a pure devotee of the Lord, one can learn to worship the Deity, as mentioned in this verse, and thus revive one's lost relationship with the Lord. One who considers such transcendental Deity worship to be equivalent to idol worship is grossly covered by the three modes of material nature. A person wearing rose-colored glasses sees the entire world to be rose colored. Similarly, those unfortunate living entities who are thickly covered by the material modes of nature see everything, including the Supreme Lord, as material due to their polluted vision.

TEXTS 52-53

s$AÄyAepaAÄyAM s$apaASaRd"AM taAM taAM maUita< svamanṭata:
paAâAGyaARcamanalyaAâE:
µAnavaAs$aAeivaBaUSaNAE:

gAnDamaAlyaA°ata'agBar," DaUpad"IpaAepah"Ar"kE(:
s$AÄyms$ampaUjya ivaiDavata, stavaE: stautvaA namaeÜ"ir"ma,

sāi gopāi gāà sa-pārñadāà tāà tāà mūrtià sva-mantrataù pādyārghyācamanēyādyaiù snāna-vāso-vibhūñāēaiù

gandha-mālyākñata-sragbhir dhūpa-dēpopahārakaiù sāi gam sampūjya vidhivat stavaiù stutvā named dharim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sa-aì ga—including the limbs of His transcendental body; upāi gām—and His special bodily features such as His Sudarṇana disc and other weapons; sa-pārñadām—along with His personal associates; tām tām—each particular; mūrtim—Deity; sva-mantrataù—by the Deity's own mantra; pādyā—with water for bathing the feet; arghya—scented water for greeting; ācamanēya—water for washing the mouth; ādyaiù—and so on;

snāna—water for bathing; vāsaù—fine clothing; vibhūñāëaiù—ornaments; gandha—with fragrances; mālya—necklaces; akñata—unbroken barleycorns; sragbhiù—and flower garlands; dhüpa—with incense; dēpa—and lamps; upaharakaiù—such offerings; sa-aì gam—in all aspects; sampūjya—completing the worship; vidhivat—in accordance with the prescribed regulations; stavaiù stutvā—honoring the Deity by offering prayers; namet—one should bow down; harim—to the Lord.

TRANSLATION

One should worship the Deity along with each of the limbs of His transcendental body, His weapons such as the Sudarçana cakra, His other bodily features and His personal associates. One should worship each of these transcendental aspects of the Lord by its own mantra and with offerings of water to wash the feet, scented water, water to wash the mouth, water for bathing, fine clothing and ornaments, fragrant oils, valuable necklaces, unbroken barleycorns, flower garlands, incense and lamps. Having thus completed the worship in all its aspects in accordance with the prescribed regulations, one should then honor the Deity of Lord Hari with prayers and offer obeisances to Him by bowing down.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has mentioned that akñata, or unbroken barleycorns (mentioned in verse 53), are to be used in decorating the Deity with tilaka, and not in the actual pūjā. Nākñatair arcayed viñëuà na ketakyä maheçvaram: "Lord Viñëu should not be worshiped with unbroken barleycorns, and Lord Çiva should not be worshiped with ketaké flowers."

TEXT 54

@AtmaAnamtanmayamDyaAyana, maUita< s$ampaUjayaeÜ"re":
zAeSaAmaADaAya izAr"s$aA svaDaAmnyauã"Asya s$atk{(tama, *ätmānam tan-mayam dhyāyan mūrtià sampūjayed dhareù çeñām ādhāya çirasä

sva-dhāmny udvāsya sat-kātam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ätmānam—oneself; tat—in the Lord; mayam—absorbed; dhyāyan—so meditating; mūrtim—the personal form; sampūjayet—should fully worship; hareù—of Lord Hari; çeñām—the remnants of worship; ādhāya—taking; çirasä—upon one's head; sva-dhāmni—in His place; udvāsya—putting; sat-kātam—respectfully.

TRANSLATION

The worshiper should become fully absorbed in meditating upon himself as an eternal servant of the Lord and should thus perfectly worship the Deity, remembering that the Deity is also situated within his heart. Then he should take the remnants of the Deity's paraphernalia, such as flower garlands, upon his head and respectfully put the Deity back in His own place, thus concluding the worship.

PURPORT

The word tan-mayam in this verse is significant. One who is purified by worshipping the Deity form of the Lord can understand that he, the worshiper, is an eternal servant of the Lord and is qualitatively one with the Lord, being like a tiny spark of the original fire, the Personality of Godhead. Çréla Madhvācārya has stated in this regard, viñëor bhātyo 'ham ity eva sadā syād bhagavan-mayaù naivāhaà viñëur asméti

viñëuù sarveçvaro hy ajaù

"One should think, 'I am an eternal servant of Viñëu, and therefore, because I am His eternal part and parcel, I am eternally one with Him. But I am not Viñëu Himself, because Viñëu is the supreme controller of everything.' "

The basic principle of Deity worship is that one must understand oneself to be an eternal servant of the Supreme Lord. One who is addicted to sexual gratification, foolishly identifying himself with the external material body, cannot change his conception of himself from that of an enjoyer to that of the enjoyed. Such a person interprets the word tan-mayam to mean that the worshiper is himself also the worshipable object. Çré Jêva Gosvämé Prabhupäda has written in his Durga-saì gamané, his commentary on Çré Rûpa Gosvämé Prabhu's Bhakti-rasämâta-sindhu, that ahaì grahopäsanä, or the process of worshipping oneself as the Supreme, is a gross misidentification of one's own self with the Supreme, who is actually one's eternal shelter. The six Gosvämés have repeatedly clarified this point. But unintelligent persons within the präkâta-sahajiyä community become influenced by the bogus ideas of the Mâyävädé philosophers and thus display the deluded misconception that the worshiper becomes the supreme shelter. Such a hallucination is an aparädha, an offense against the Lord. Therefore the word tan-maya in this verse should not be offensively understood to mean that the worshiper becomes equal to his eternal worshipable object.

TEXT 55

WvamagnyakR(taAeyaAd"Ava, @itaTaAE ô$d"yae ca ya:
yajatalir"maAtmaAnama, @icar"Anmaucyatae ih" s$a:

*evam agny-arka-toyädäv atithau hâdaye ca yaù yajatéçvaram ätmänam
acirän mucyate hi saù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; agni—in fire; arka—the sun; toya—water; ādau—and so on; atithau—in the guest at one's home; hādaye—in one's heart; ca—also; yaù—who; yajati—worships; ēçvaram—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ātmānam—the Supreme Soul; acirāt—without delay; mucyate—becomes liberated; hi—indeed; saù—he.

TRANSLATION

Thus the worshiper of the Supreme Lord should recognize that the Personality of Godhead is all-pervading and should worship Him through His presence in fire, the sun, water and other elements, in the heart of the guest one receives in one's home, and also in one's own heart. In this way the worshiper will very soon achieve liberation.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Third Chapter, of the Çrēmad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Liberation from the Illusory Energy."

4. Drumila Explains the Incarnations of Godhead to King Nimi

The various forms of the past, present and future incarnations of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Çré Hari, and the various transcendental characteristics of each of these avatāras constitute the subject matter of this chapter.

Even if it were ever possible to count all the particles of dust on the face of the earth, any attempt to count all the innumerable transcendental qualities of the unlimited Lord Hari, the foundation of all potencies, would be simply madness. The Personality of Godhead Nārāyaṇa created the universe out of the five elements manufactured by His own māyā, entered into that universe in the form of the Supersoul and became known as the Puruṣa-avatāra. He effects the work of creation in the mode of passion through the personal form of Brahmā, of protection in the mode of goodness through the form of the Lord of sacrifice, Viṣṇu, and of annihilation in the mode of ignorance through the form of Rudra. Incarnating in the form of Nara-Nārāyaṇa, the greatest of sages, from the womb of Mūrti, the daughter of Dakṣa and wife of Dharma, He preached by His own practical demonstration the science of naiṣkarmyam. When Cupid (Kandarpa) and his hosts were sent to Badarikāṣrama by King Indra, who had become fearful and envious at seeing the austerities of Lord Nara-Nārāyaṇa, that best of sages welcomed Cupid as an honored guest. The pacified Cupid then offered prayers to the Supreme Personality Nara-Nārāyaṇa Āṇi. By the order of the sage, Cupid returned from there with Urvaṣī and upon presenting himself before Indra related to him everything that had taken place.

The Personality of Godhead Lord Viṣṇu has appeared in various partial incarnations for the benefit of the entire world and has given instructions in spiritual knowledge in the forms of Haṁsa, Dattatreya, Sanaka and the other Kumāra brothers, and Āṇabhadeva. In the form of Hayagrēva He killed the demon Madhu and saved all the Vedas. In the avatāra of Matsya, the fish, He protected both the earth and Satyavrata Manu. In the incarnation of Varāha, the boar, He delivered the earth and destroyed Hiraṇyākṣa; in that of Kūrma, the tortoise, He carried Mandara Mountain upon His back; and in the form of Ṣṛī Hari He gave liberation to the king of the elephants. The Lord delivered the Vālakhilyas, who had been trapped in the water in a cow's hoofprint, He delivered Indra from the reaction for murdering a brāhmaṇa, and He delivered the wives of the demigods from imprisonment in the palaces of the demoniac asuras. In the avatāra of Nāsiṅha, He killed Hiraṇyakaṣipu. In the reign of each Manu He kills the demons, fulfills the needs of the demigods and protects all the planetary systems. In the form of Vāmana, the dwarf brāhmaṇa boy, He cheated Bali Mahārāja; in the form of Paraṣurāma He rid the earth of kīatriyas twenty-one times; and in the form of Çré Rāma He brought the ocean under His submission and killed Rāvaëa. Descending into the Yadu dynasty, He removed the burden of the earth. In the form of Buddha, by His argumentative preaching in defiance of the Vedas He bewildered the demons who were unqualified to perform sacrifices, and at the end of Kali-yuga He will destroy the çûdra kings in His form of Kalki. In this way the innumerable appearances and activities of the Supreme Personality of Godhead Lord Hari are described.

TEXT 1

™alr"AjaAevaAca
yaAina yaAnalh" k(maARiNA yaEyaE=: svacC$nd"janmaiBa:
ca,e(k(r"Aeita k(taAR vaA
h"ir"staAina "auvantau na:

çré-rājavāca
yāni yānēha karmāëi
yaiṛ yaiù svacchanda-janmabhiù cakre karoti kartā vā haris tāni bruvantu naù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; yāni yāni—each; iha—in this world; karmāëi—of the activities; yaiù yaiù—by each; svacchanda—assumed independently; janmabhiù—of the appearances; cakre—He performed; karoti—is performing; kartā—will perform; vā—or; hariù—the Supreme Lord, Hari; tāni—these; bruvantu—please tell; naù—us.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi said: The Supreme Personality of Godhead descends into the material world by His internal potency and according to His own desire. Therefore, please tell us about the various pastimes Lord Hari has performed in the past, is performing now and will perform in this world in the future in His various incarnations.

PURPORT

In this Fourth Chapter the son of Jayanté, Drumila, will address King Nimi. The forty-eighth verse of the Third Chapter stated, mūrtyābhimatayātmanaù: "One should worship the particular form of the Lord most attractive to oneself." Similarly it was stated in the previous chapter, stavaiù stutvä named dharim: "One should bow down to Lord Hari after glorifying Him with prayers." Thus it is assumed that the worshiper has knowledge of the Supreme Lord's transcendental qualities and pastimes in order to execute the process of worship previously described. King Nimi, therefore, is eagerly inquiring about the various incarnations of the Supreme Lord so that he can ascertain which particular form of the Supreme Lord is most suitable for his personal worship. It is understood that King Nimi is a Vaiñëava, or devotee, who is trying to advance in the transcendental loving service of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

It is important to note in this regard that the word abhimata-mūrti, meaning "one's most desirable form," does not indicate that one may concoct a form of the Lord by one's own whim. Advaitam acyutam anādim ananta-rūpam [Bs. 5.33]. All the forms of the Supreme Lord are anādim, or eternal. Thus there is no question of concocting a form, because such a concoction would be ādi, or the origin of the concocted form. Abhimata-mūrti means that among the eternal forms of the Lord one should select that form which most inspires one's love for the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Such love cannot be imitated, but it is automatically aroused when one follows the prescribed rules and regulations given by the bona fide spiritual master and submissively hears these descriptions of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam.

TEXT 2

™alâu"imala ovaAca

yaAe vaA @nantasya gAunaAnanantaAna, @nau,(imaSyana, s$a tau baAlabauiÜ":
r"jaAMis$a BaUmaegARNayaetk(TaiÂata, k(Alaena naEvaAiKalazAi·(DaA°a:

çré-drumila uvāca
yo vā anantasya gunān anantān anukramiṇyan sa tu bāla-buddhiu rajā̀asi bhūmer gaëayet kathai`cit kālena naivākhila-çakti-dhāmnau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-drumilau uvāca—Çré Drumila said; yaù—who; vai—indeed; anantasya—of the unlimited Lord; guruëä—the transcendental qualities; anantān—which are unlimited; anukramiṇyan—trying to enumerate; saù—he; tu—certainly; bāla-buddhiu—is a person of childish intelligence; rajā̀asi—the particles of dust; bhūmeu—on the earth; gaëayet—one may count; kathai`cit—somehow; kālena—in time; na eva—but not; akhila-çakti-dhāmnau—(the qualities) of the reservoir of all potencies.

TRANSLATION

Çré Drumila said: Anyone trying to enumerate or describe fully the unlimited qualities of the unlimited Supreme Lord has the intelligence of a foolish child. Even if a great genius could somehow or other, after a time-consuming endeavor, count all the particles of dust on the surface of the earth, such a genius could never count the attractive qualities of the Personality of Godhead, who is the reservoir of all potencies.

PURPORT

In reply to King Nimi's request that the nava-yogendras describe all the qualities and pastimes of the Lord, Çré Drumila here explains that only the most foolish person would even attempt such a comprehensive description of the unlimited qualities and pastimes of the Personality of Godhead. Such foolish, childish persons, however, are far more advanced than ignorant materialistic scientists who actually try to describe all knowledge without even referring to the Personality of Godhead. In other words, although it is impossible to describe the Lord fully, foolish atheistic scientists attempt to describe all knowledge without even having reached the most preliminary knowledge of the Personality of Godhead. Such atheistic persons should be understood to be shortsighted and of very weak intelligence, despite their showy material achievements, which ultimately end in great suffering and destruction. It is said that Lord Anantadeva Himself, with His innumerable tongues, cannot even begin to vibrate completely the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The example given in this verse is very nice. No human being can hope to count the number of particles on the surface of the earth; therefore no one should foolishly try to understand the Supreme Lord by his own tiny endeavor. One should submissively hear knowledge of God as it is spoken by God Himself in Bhagavad-gētā, and thus one should gradually be elevated to the stage of hearing Çrēmad-Bhāgavatam. According to Caitanya Mahāprabhu, by tasting a drop of seawater one can get a general idea of the flavor of the entire ocean. Similarly, by submissively hearing about the Personality of Godhead one can acquire a qualitative understanding of the Absolute Truth, although quantitatively one's knowledge can never be complete.

TEXT 3

BaUtaEyaRd"A paÂaiBar"Atmas$a{íE": pauraM" ivar"AjaM ivar"cayya taismana, svaAMzAena ivaí": pauç&SaAiBaDaAnama, @vaApa naAr"AyaNA @Aid"de"va:

bhütair yadä pa'i cabhir ätma-sânöaiù puraâ viräjaâ viracayya tasmin sväâçena viñöaù puruñäbhidhänam aväpa nārāyaëa ädi-devaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhūtaiù—by the material elements; yadā—when; pañcabhiù—five (earth, water, fire, air and ether); ātma-sāññaiù—created by Himself; puram—the body; virājam—of the universe in its subtle form; viracayya—having constructed; tasmin—within that; sva-aàçena—in the manifestation of His own plenary expansion; viññāu—entering; puruṇa-abhidhānam—the name Puruṇa; avāpa—assumed; nārāyaëaù—Lord Nārāyaëa; ādi-devaù—the original Personality of Godhead.

TRANSLATION

When the primeval Lord Nārāyaëa created His universal body out of the five elements produced from Himself and then entered within that universal body by His own plenary portion, He thus became known as the Puruṇa.

PURPORT

The words bhūtaiù pañcabhiù in this verse refer to the five gross material elements—earth, water, fire, air and sky—which form the basic building blocks of the material world. When the conditioned living entity enters within these five elements, consciousness becomes manifest, along with the functions of the mind and intelligence. Unfortunately, the consciousness manifest under the modes of material nature is governed by ahaṁkāra, or false ego, in which the living entity wrongly considers himself the enjoyer of the material elements. Although the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Puruṇottama, enjoys His pure transcendental existence in the spiritual sky, the material elements are also meant for His enjoyment, through the process of yajñīya, or sacrifice. This material world is called Devé-dhāma, or the abode of the illusory energy of the Lord, Māyā-devé. The Brahma-saṁhitā explains that the Supreme Person is not at all attracted to His inferior energy, māyā, but when the material creation is used in the devotional service of the Lord, the Lord becomes attracted by the devotion and sacrifice of the living entities, and thus, indirectly, He is also the enjoyer of the material world.

We should not think that the pastimes of Lord Nārāyaṇa as the Supersoul and creator of this universe are on a lower spiritual level than Nārāyaṇa's eternal pastimes in the spiritual world. Were Lord Nārāyaṇa in any way to diminish His transcendental bliss and knowledge in His activities of material creation, He would have to be considered a conditioned soul, affected by contact with the illusory potency. But since Lord Nārāyaṇa is eternally aloof from the influence of māyā, His activities as the Supersoul of this universe are exactly on the same transcendental level as His activities in the spiritual world. All the activities of the Supreme Personality of Godhead are part and parcel of His unlimited spiritual pastimes.

TEXT 4

yatk(Aya W Sa Bauvanaṭayas$ai^aavaezAAe yasyaein%o"yaEstanauBa{taAmauBayaein%o"yaAiNA ĀaAnaM svata: is$anataAe balamaAeja wRh"A s$aÔvaAid"iBa: isTaitalayaAeà"va @Aid"k(taAR yat-kāya eṇa bhuvana-traya-sanniveṣo yasyendriyais tanu-bhātām ubhayendriyāḥi jī ānaḥ svataḥ cvasanato balam oja éhā sattvādibhiḥ sthiti-layodbhava ādi-kartā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yat-kāye—within whose body; eṇaḥ—this; bhuvana-traya—of the three planetary systems making up the universe; sanniveṣaḥ—the elaborate arrangement; yasya—of whom; indriyaiḥ—by the senses; tanu-bhātām—of the embodied living beings; ubhaya-indriyāḥi—both kinds of senses (knowledge-acquiring and active); jī ānam—knowledge; svataḥ—directly from Him; cvasanataḥ—from His breathing; balam—strength of the body; ojaḥ—strength of the senses; éhā—activities; sattva-ādibhiḥ—by nature's modes of goodness, passion and ignorance; sthiti—in maintenance;

laya—destruction; udbhava—and creation; ädi-kartä—the original doer.

TRANSLATION

Within His body are elaborately arranged the three planetary systems of this universe. His transcendental senses generate the knowledge-acquiring and active senses of all embodied beings. His consciousness generates conditioned knowledge, and His powerful breathing produces the bodily strength, sensory power and conditioned activities of the embodied souls. He is the prime mover, through the agency of the material modes of goodness, passion and ignorance. And thus the universe is created, maintained and annihilated.

PURPORT

When a conditioned soul becomes completely exhausted by his strenuous activities, or when he is overcome by disease, death or fear, he loses all power to manifest practical knowledge or activities. Thus we should understand that independent of the mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead we can neither work nor cultivate knowledge. By the mercy of the Personality of Godhead the conditioned soul acquires a material body, which is a perverted reflection of the unlimited spiritual body of the Lord. Thus the living entity engages in ignorant materialistic activities for society, friendship and love. But the entire program suddenly vanishes with the unforeseen dissolution of the material body. Similarly, our material knowledge is always subject to become null and void within an instant, since the material nature is itself constantly changing. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the prime mover behind the birth, maintenance and destruction of the universe. And the living entity should try to understand that Personality of Godhead who has given him so much facility for illusion. The Personality of Godhead actually wants the conditioned soul to surrender to Him and regain an eternal life of bliss and knowledge at the Lord's side. The conditioned soul should reason, "If the Lord is giving me so much facility to merge into ignorance, surely He will give even more facility to come out of this ignorance if I humbly follow His direction without foolish speculations."

This verse describes Garbhodakaçäyë Viñëu, the second phase of the puruña incarnations of the Lord. This Garbhodakaçäyë Viñëu, who is glorified in the Puruña-sükta prayers, expands Himself as the Supersoul to enter the heart of every living being. Through chanting the holy names of the Lord—Hare Kâñëa, Hare Kâñëa, Kâñëa Kâñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Râma, Hare Râma, Râma Râma, Hare Hare—even in this degraded age one can find the Supreme Lord within one's heart. The Lord is a person as much as we are, but He is unlimited. Still, a personal loving relationship exists between the tiny living entity and the unlimited Supreme Lord. In consideration of this personal relationship, bhakti-yoga is the only suitable process by which to come to the ultimate understanding of our constitutional position as eternal servants of the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 5

@Ad"AvaBaUcC$taDa{tal r"jas$aAsya s$agAeR ivaSNAu: isTataAE ,(taupaitaiãR"jaDamaRs$aetau:
ç&% "Ae'pyayaAya tamas$aA pauç&Sa: s$a @Aâ wtyauà"vaisTaitalayaA: s$atataM 'ajaAs$au

ädäv abhüc chata-dhâté rajasäsyä sarge viñëuù sthitau kratu-patir dvija-dharma-setuù rudro 'pyayäya tamasä puruñau sa ädya ity udbhava-sthiti-layäu satataà prajāsu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ädau—in the beginning; abhüt—He became; çata-dhätü—Lord Brahmä; rajasä—by the material mode of passion; asya—of this universe; sarge—in the creation; viñëuù—Lord Viñëu; sthitau—in maintenance; kratu-patiù—the Lord of sacrifice; dvija—of the twice-born brähmaëas; dharma—of the religious duties; setuù—the protector; rudraù—Lord Çiva; apyayäya—for annihilation; tamasä—by the mode of ignorance; puruñau—the Supreme Person; saù—He; ädyaù—original; iti—thus;

udbhava-sthiti-layäù—creation, maintenance and destruction;
satatam—always; prajāsu—among created beings.

TRANSLATION

In the beginning, the original Supreme Personality manifested the form of Brahmā through the material mode of passion in order to create this universe. The Lord manifested His form as Viñëu, the Lord of sacrifice and protector of the twice-born brāhmaëas and their religious duties, to maintain the universe. And when the universe is to be annihilated the same Supreme Lord employs the material mode of ignorance and manifests the form of Rudra. The created living beings are thus always subject to the forces of creation, maintenance and destruction.

PURPORT

In the previous verse the Supreme Personality of Godhead was described as ädi-kartä, the original person responsible for the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material world. According to Çrëdhara Svämé, ädi-kartä, or "the original doer," implies subsequent creators, maintainers and annihilators. Otherwise there would be no meaning to the word ädi, or "original." Therefore this verse describes that the Absolute Truth expands Himself into the guëävatāras, or incarnations who carry out the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the universe through the modes of passion, goodness and ignorance respectively.

It is significant here that although this verse mentions creation through the material mode of passion and annihilation through the material mode of ignorance, it does not mention maintenance by Viñëu through the material mode of goodness. That is because Viñëu is viçuddha-sattva, or existing on the platform of unlimited transcendental goodness. Although Lord Çiva and Lord Brahmā are somewhat affected by their prescribed duties as superintendents of the modes of nature, Lord Viñëu is viçuddha-sattva, completely beyond contamination even by the material mode of goodness. As described in the Vedas, na tasya käryaà karaëaà ca vidyate: the Lord has no occupational duty. Whereas Lord Çiva and Lord Brahmä are understood to be servants of the Lord, Viñëu is completely transcendental.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, Viñëu, described in this verse as kratu-patiù, the Lord of sacrifice, is understood to have appeared in a previous age as the incarnation Suyaji a, the son of Prajāpati Ruci. Whereas Brahmä and Çiva faithfully engage in service to the Supreme Lord, Viñëu is the Supreme Lord Himself, and therefore His activities of maintaining the brähmaëas and religious principles, as mentioned in this verse (dvija-dharma-setuù), are not occupational duties but lélä. So in addition to being a guëävatära, Viñëu is also a lélävatära, according to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé. The Mahābhārata (Çānti-parva) describes the birth of Lord Brahmä from the lotus flower emanating from Viñëu and the subsequent birth of Lord Çiva from the angry eyes of Lord Brahmä. Viñëu, however, is the self-manifested Personality of Godhead who enters the material universe by His own internal potency, as stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (3.8.15):

tal loka-padmaà sa u eva viñëuù prävëviçat sarva-guëävabhäsam

In conclusion, Lord Viñëu, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is the supreme controller whose personal form is full of eternal existence, knowledge and bliss, who is beginningless but is the beginning of everything, who is known as Govinda, and who is the original cause of all causes, as stated in Brahma-saàhitä. Still, that same eternal Lord manifests Himself as Brahmä and Çiva in the sense that the primeval controllers Brahmä and Çiva manifest the potency and supreme will of the Lord, although they themselves are not supreme.

TEXT 6

DamaRsya d"°aäu"ih"tayaRjainai" maUtyaA< naAr"AyaNA Ae nar" [%iSa'avar": 'azAAnta: naESk(myaRla°aNAmauvaAca cacaAr" k(maR yaAe'âAipa caAsta [%iSavayaRinaSaeivataAx.~i,,a:

dharmasya dakña-duhitary ajaniñña mūrtyāā nārāyaēo nara āñi-pravaraū praçāntaū naiñkarmya-lakñāēam uvāca cacāra karma yo 'dyāpi cāsta āñi-varya-niñevitāi ghriū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmasya—(the wife) of Dharma; dakña-duhitari—by the daughter of Dakña; ajaniñña—was born; mūrtyām—by Mūrti; nārāyaēā naraū—Nara-Nārāyaēā; āñi-pravaraū—the best of sages; praçāntaū—perfectly peaceful; naiñkarmya-lakñāēam—characterized by the cessation of all material work; uvāca—He spoke; cacāra—and performed; karma—the duties; yaū—who; adya api—even today; ca—also; āste—is living; āñi-varya—by the greatest sages; niñevita—being served; aī ghriū—His feet.

TRANSLATION

Nara-Nārāyaēā Āñi, who is perfectly peaceful and is the best of sages, was born as the son of Dharma and his wife Mūrti, the daughter of Dakña. Nara-Nārāyaēā Āñi taught the devotional service of the Lord, by which material work ceases, and He Himself perfectly practiced this knowledge. He is living even today, His lotus feet served by the greatest of saintly persons.

PURPORT

It is understood that Nara-Nārāyaēā Āñi spoke transcendental knowledge to great saintly persons such as Nārada Muni. On the basis of these teachings, Nārada was able to describe naiñkarmyam, or the devotional service of the Lord, which eradicates material work, as mentioned in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.3.8): tantraā sātvatam ācāñña naiñkarmyaā karmaēāā yataū. The ātma-svarūpa, or eternal form of the living entity, is devotional service to the Personality of Godhead. But our perception of our eternal form is covered by a material concept of life, just as our normal understanding of our life is covered by a dream. Naiṅkarmyam, or the cessation of material work, is possible only by the devotional service of the Lord, as stated by Nārada Muni himself: naiṅkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitaḥ na çobhate ji'ānam alaḥ nirai'janam (SB 1.5.12). The process of transforming ordinary karma into naiṅkarmya, or transcendental work, is summarized by Çréla Prabhupāda in his commentary on this verse spoken by Nārada Muni. "Fruitive work, in which almost all people in general are engaged, is always painful either in the beginning or at the end. It can be fruitful only when made subservient to the devotional service of the Lord. In the Bhagavad-gētā also it is confirmed that the result of such fruitive work may be offered for the service of the Lord, otherwise it leads to material bondage. The bona fide enjoyer of the fruitive work is the Personality of Godhead, and thus when it is engaged for the sense gratification of the living beings, it becomes an acute source of trouble." According to the Matsya Purāṇa (3.10), Dharma, the father of Nara-Nārāyaṇa Āṇi, was born from the right breast of Brahmā and later married thirteen of the daughters of Prajāpati Dakṣa. The Lord Himself appeared from the womb of Mūrti-devī.

TEXT 7

wn% "Ae ivazAÆyYa mama DaAma ijaGa{°atalita k(AmaM nyayauÈy s$agANAM s$a bad"yauRpaAKyamgAtvaAps$ar"AegANAvas$antas$aumand"vaAtaE: ñl'ae°aNAeSauiBar"ivaDyad"tanmaih"Áa:

indro viçaiḥ kya mama dhāma jighāṅātēti kāmaḥ nyayauḥ kta sa-gaēaḥ sa badary-upākhyam gatvāpsaro-gaēa-vasanta-sumanda-vātaiḥ stré-prekṇāēēubhir avidhyad atan-mahi-jī au

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indrau—Lord Indra; viçaiḥ kya—fearing; mama—my; dhāma—kingdom;

jighāṁti—He wants to devour; iti—thinking thus; kāma—Cupid; nyayuṁ kta—he engaged; sa-gaëam—with his associates; saṁ—he (Cupid); badarë-upākhyam—to the āçrama named Badarikä; gatvā—going; apsaraṁ-gaëa—with the heavenly society girls; vasanta—the spring season; su-manda-vātaiṁ—and the gentle breezes; strë-prekñäëa—(consisting of) the glances of women; iñubhiṁ—with his arrows; avidhyat—attempted to pierce; atat-mahi-jī aṁ—not knowing His greatness.

TRANSLATION

King Indra became fearful, thinking that Nara-Nārāyaëa Āṁi would become very powerful by His severe penances and seize Indra's heavenly kingdom. Thus Indra, not knowing the transcendental glories of the incarnation of the Lord, sent Cupid and his associates to the Lord's residence in Badarikāçrama. As the charming breezes of spring created a most sensuous atmosphere, Cupid himself attacked the Lord with arrows in the form of the irresistible glances of beautiful women.

PURPORT

This verse and the following nine verses illustrate the Personality of Godhead's opulence of supreme renunciation. The word atan-mahi-jī aṁ, "not understanding the glories of the Lord," indicates that King Indra was placing the Personality of Godhead on the same level as he himself, considering the Lord an ordinary enjoyer who would be attracted by mundane sex life. Indra's plot to cause the falldown of Nara-Nārāyaëa Āṁi could not affect the Lord, but it reveals the shortsightedness of Indra himself. Because Indra is attached to his heavenly kingdom, he took it for granted that the Supreme Lord was performing austerities to acquire such flickering phantasmagoria as the kingdom of heaven (tridaça-pür äkäça-puñpäyate).

TEXT 8

ivaÁaAya zA,(k{(tama,(mamaAid"de"va:
'aAh" 'ah"sya gAtaivasmaya WjamaAnaAna, maA BaEivaRBaAe mad"na maAç&ta de"vavaDvaAe gA{õ"lta naAe bailamazAUnyaimamaM ku(ç&Dvama,

vijī äya çakra-kâtam akramam ädi-devau prâha prahasya gata-vismaya ejamânân mâ bhair vibho madana mâruta deva-vadhvo gâhëeta no balim açünyam imaà kurudhvam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vijī äya—understanding perfectly; çakra—by Indra; kâtam—committed; akramam—the offense; ädi-devau—the original Personality of Godhead; prâha—He spoke; prahasya—laughing; gata-vismaya—free from pride; ejamânân—to those who were trembling; mâ bhai—please have no fear; vibho—O mighty one; madana—Cupid; mâruta—O god of the wind; deva-vadhva—O wives of the demigods; gâhëeta—please accept; na—from Us; balim—these gifts; açünyam—not empty; ima—this (äçrama); kurudhvam—please make.

TRANSLATION

The primeval Lord, understanding the offense committed by Indra, did not become proud. Instead He spoke laughingly as follows to Cupid and his followers, who were trembling before Him: "Do not fear, O mighty Madana, O wind-god and wives of the demigods. Rather, please accept these gifts I am offering you and kindly sanctify My äçrama by your presence."

PURPORT

The word gata-vismaya, or "free from false pride," is very significant. If one becomes proud by performing severe penances, such penances are considered material. One should not think, "I am a great, austere personality." Çré Nara-Nâräyaëa could immediately understand the foolishness of Indra, and thus He was amused by the whole situation. Cupid and the heavenly women, understanding their great offense, were trembling before Nara-Nārāyaṇa in fear of receiving a powerful curse. But the Lord, exhibiting most sublime saintly behavior, reassured them by saying, mā bhaiṁ—"Don't worry about it"—and actually offered them nice prasādam and articles of worship. "If you do not give Me the opportunity to act as host to the demigods and other respectable personalities," He said, "what will be the use of My āçrama? My āçrama will be void without the opportunity to receive respectable personalities such as you."

Similarly, the International Society for Krishna Consciousness is establishing beautiful centers in all the major cities of the world. In some of these centers, such as those in Los Angeles, Bombay, London, Paris and Melbourne, the Society has established very gorgeous preaching āçramas. But the Vaiṇēavas who live in these beautiful buildings feel that the buildings are void if guests do not come to hear about Kāṇēa and chant His holy name. Thus, one may establish a beautiful āçrama not for one's personal sense gratification but to execute Kāṇēa consciousness peacefully and encourage others to take to Kāṇēa consciousness also.

TEXT 9

wtTaM "auvatyaBayade" nar"de"va de"vaA:
s$a~alx"na•aizAr"s$a: s$aGa{NAM tamaUcau: naEtaĩ"BaAe tvaiya pare"ivak{(tae ivaicaṭaM svaAr"AmaDalr"inak(r"AnatapaAd"paáe itthaà bruvaty abhaya-de nara-deva devāu sa-vrēḍa-namra-çirasaù sa-ghāēaà tam ūcuù naitad vibho tvayi pare 'vikāte vicitraà svārāma-dhēra-nikarānata-pāda-padme

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ittham—in this way; bruvati—when He had spoken; abhaya-de—the giver of fearlessness; nara-deva—O King (Nimi); devāu—the demigods (Cupid and his associates); sa-vrēḍa—out of shame; namra—bowed; çirasaù—with their heads; sa-ghâëam—begging for compassion; tam—to Him; ücuù—they said; na—is not; etat—this; vibho—O almighty Lord; tvayi—for You; pare—the Supreme; avikâte—unchanging; vicitram—anything surprising; sva-äräma—of those who are self-satisfied; dhëra—and those who are sober-minded; nikara—by great numbers; änata—bowed down to; päda-padme—whose lotus feet.

TRANSLATION

My dear King Nimi, when Nara-Näräyaëa Åñi thus spoke, eradicating the fear of the demigods, they bowed their heads with shame and addressed the Lord as follows, to invoke His compassion: Our dear Lord, You are always transcendental, beyond the reach of illusion, and therefore You are forever changeless. Your causeless compassion toward us, despite our great offense, is not at all unusual in You, since innumerable great sages who are self-satisfied and free from anger and false pride bow down humbly at Your lotus feet.

PURPORT

The demigods said, "Our dear Lord, although ordinary living entities such as the demigods and ordinary men are always disturbed by material pride and anger, You are always transcendental. Therefore it is not surprising that we fallible demigods could not appreciate Your glories."

TEXT 10

tvaAM s$aevataAM s$aur"k{(taA bah"vaAe'ntar"AyaA: svaAEk(Ae ivalaîÿYa par"maM ~ajataAM padM" tae naAnyasya baihR"iSa balaInd"d"ta: svaBaAgAAna, DaÔae padM" tvamaivataA yaid" iva£amaUi©aR tväà sevataà sura-kâtä bahavo 'ntaräyäu svauko vilai ghya paramaà vrajataà padaà te nänyasya barhiñi balén dadataù sva-bhägän dhatte padaà tvam avitä yadi vighna-mürdhni

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvām—You; sevatām—for those who are serving; sura-kâtäù—made by the demigods; bahavaù—many; antaräyâù—disturbances; sva-okaù—their own abode (the planets of the demigods); vilaìghya—crossing beyond; paramam—the supreme; vrajatām—who are going; padam—to the abode; te—Your; na—there are not such; anyasya—for another; barhiñi—in ritual sacrifices; balén—offerings; dadataù—for one who is giving; sva-bhägän—the own shares (of the demigods); dhatte—(the devotee) places; padam—his foot; tvam—You; avitä—the protector; yadi—because; vighna—of the disturbance; mürdhni—upon the head.

TRANSLATION

The demigods place many obstacles on the path of those who worship You to transcend the temporary abodes of the demigods and reach Your supreme abode. Those who offer the demigods their assigned shares in sacrificial performances encounter no such obstacles. But because You are the direct protector of Your devotee, he is able to step over the head of whatever obstacle the demigods place before him.

PURPORT

The demigods, headed by Kāmadeva, or Cupid, recognizing their offense at the lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead, Nara-Nārāyaëa Āñi, here point out the insignificant position of the demigods in relation to the Supreme Lord. Just as a farmer must pay a specific percentage of his agricultural profit to the king or political head as tax money, all human beings must offer a percentage of their material wealth to the demigods in sacrifice. In Bhagavad-gētä, however, the Lord explains that the demigods are also His servants and it is He Himself who awards all benedictions, through the agency of the demigods. Mayaiva vihitän hi tñn. Although a Vaiñëava, or devotee of the Lord, has no need to worship the demigods, the demigods, being proud of their exalted material position, sometimes resent the exclusive devotion of the Vaiñëava to the Lord and thus try to cause the devotee to fall down, as described in this verse (sura-kâtä bahavo 'ntaräyäu). But the demigods here point out that Kânëa is directly the protector of His devotees. Therefore, so-called impediments become stimuli for further spiritual advancement for a sincere devotee.

The demigods here state, "We thought, our dear Lord, that we could disturb Your consciousness by our foolish tricks. But by Your mercy even Your devotees pay little regard to us, so why should You take our foolish behavior seriously?" The word yadi here is used to indicate the certainty that Kânëa is always the protector of His surrendered devotees. Although there may be many obstacles on the path of the sincere devotee who is preaching the glories of the Lord, such obstacles increase the determination of the devotee. Therefore, according to Çrëla Jëva Gosvämé, the continuous obstacles presented by the demigods form a kind of ladder or stairway upon which the devotee steadily progresses back to the kingdom of God. A similar verse appears in Çrémad-Bhägavatam (10.2.33):

tathä na te mädhava tävakäu kvacid bhraçyanti märgät tvayi baddha-sauhädäu tvayäbhiguptä vicaranti nirbhayä vinäyakänékapa-mürdhasu prabho

"O Mädhava, Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord of the goddess of fortune, if devotees completely in love with You sometimes fall from the path of devotion, they do not fall like nondevotees, for You still protect them. Thus they fearlessly traverse the heads of their opponents and continue to progress in devotional service."

TEXT 11

°auÔa{q%.iḥak(AlagAuNAMAç&tajaEù"zAESNAAna, @smaAnapaAr"jalaDalnaitatalyaR ke(icata, ,(AeDasya yaAinta ivaP(lasya vazAM pade" gAAer," maÀainta äü"êr"tapaê va{TaAets$a{jainta

kñut-tāḥ-tri-kāla-guḥa-māruta-jaiḥva-çaiñḇān asmān apāra-jaladhēn atitēya kecit krodhasya yānti viphalasya vaçaḥ pade gor majjanti duçcara-tapaç ca vāthotsājanti

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kñut—hunger; tāḥ—thirst; tri-kāla-guḥa—the manifestations of the three phases of time (such as heat and cold, rain and so on); māruta—wind; jaiḥva—enjoyment of the tongue; çaiñḇān—and of the genitals; asmān—ourselves (in all these forms); apāra—limitless; jala-dhēn—oceans; atitēya—having crossed over; kecit—some persons; krodhasya—of anger; yānti—they come; viphalasya—which is fruitless; vaçam—under the sway; pade—in the foot(print); goḥ—of a cow; majjanti—they drown; duçcara—difficult to execute; tapaḥ—their austerities; ca—and; vāthā—without any good purpose; utsājanti—they throw away.

TRANSLATION

Some men practice severe penances to cross beyond our influence, which is like an immeasurable ocean with endless waves of hunger, thirst, heat, cold and the other conditions brought about by the passing of time, such as the sensuous wind and the urges of the tongue and sex organs. Nevertheless, although crossing this ocean of sense gratification through severe penances, such persons foolishly drown in a cow's hoofprint when conquered by useless anger. Thus they exhaust the benefit of their difficult austerities in vain.

PURPORT

Those who do not accept the devotional service of the Supreme Lord can be considered in two categories. Those engaged in sense gratification are easily conquered by the demigods through various weapons such as hunger, thirst, sexual desire, lamentation for the past and vain hoping for the future. Such materialistic fools, infatuated with the material world, are easily controlled by the demigods, who are the ultimate supplying agents of sense gratification. But according to Çrédhara Svämé, persons who attempt to subdue the desires of the material senses and thus avoid the control of the demigods without surrendering to the Supreme Lord are even more foolish than the sense gratifiers. Although crossing the ocean of sense gratification, those who perform severe penances without service to the Lord eventually drown in tiny puddles of anger. One who simply performs material penances does not actually purify his heart. By one's material determination one may restrict the activities of the senses although one's heart is still filled with material desires. The practical result of this is krodha, or anger. We have seen artificial performers of penance who have become very bitter and angry through denial of the senses. Being indifferent to the Supreme Lord, such persons do not achieve ultimate liberation, nor can they enjoy material sense gratification; rather, they become angry, and through cursing others or enjoying false pride they uselessly exhaust the results of their painful austerities. It is understood that when a yogé curses he diminishes the mystic power he has accumulated. Thus, anger gives neither liberation nor material sense gratification but merely burns up all the results of material penances and austerities. Being useless, such anger is compared to a useless puddle found in a cow's hoofprint. Thus after crossing over the ocean of sense gratification the great yogés who are indifferent to the Supreme Lord drown in puddles of anger. Although the demigods admit that the devotees of the Lord actually conquer the miseries of material life, it is understood here that a similar result is not to be obtained by so-called yogés who are not interested in devotional service to the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 12

wita 'agA{NAtaAM taeSaAM iñyaAe'tyaàu"tad"zARnaA:
 d"zARyaAmaAs$a zAu™aUSaAM svaicaRtaA: ku(vaRtalivaRBau:

iti pragâëatâà teñäà striyo 'ty-adbhuta-darçanäu

darçayäm äsa çuçrũñäà sv-arcitäu kurvatér vibhuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; pragâëatäm—who were offering praise; teñäm—in their presence; striyaù—women; ati-adbhuta—very wonderful; darçanäu—in appearance; darçayäm äsa—He showed; çuçrũñäm—reverential service; su-arcitäu—nicely decorated; kurvatêu—performing; vibhuù—the almighty Lord.

TRANSLATION

While the demigods were thus praising the Supreme Lord, the all-powerful Lord suddenly manifested before their eyes many women, who were astonishingly gorgeous, decorated with fine clothes and ornaments, and all faithfully engaging in the Lord's service.

PURPORT

Lord Nara-Nārāyaëa showed His causeless mercy toward the demigods by relieving them of their false prestige. Although the demigods were proud of their personal beauty and female companions, the Lord showed that He was already being adequately served by innumerable gorgeous females, each of whom was far more beautiful than any female companion imagined by the demigods. The Lord manifested such uniquely attractive women through His own mystic potency.

TEXT 13

tae de"vaAnaucar"A ä{"î"A iñya: ™alir"va è&ipaNAI: gAnDaena maumauò"staAs$aAM è&paAEd"AyaRh"tai™aya:

*te devānucarā dāñvā
striyaù çréṛ iva rūpiëù gandhena mumuḥus tāsāà rūpaudārya-hata-çriyaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

te—they; deva-anucaräù—the followers of the demigods; dāñvā—seeing; striyaù—these women; çréù—the goddess of fortune; iva—as if; rūpiëù—in person; gandhena—by the fragrance; mumuhuù—they became bewildered; tāsām—of the women; rūpa—of the beauty; audārya—by the magnificence; hata—ruined; çriyaù—their opulence.

TRANSLATION

When the followers of the demigods gazed upon the fascinating mystic beauty of the women created by Nara-Nārāyaëa Āñi and smelled the fragrance of their bodies, the minds of these followers became bewildered. Indeed, upon seeing the beauty and magnificence of such women, the representatives of the demigods were completely diminished in their own opulence.

TEXT 14

taAnaAh" de"vade"vaezA:
'aNAtaAna, 'ah"s$ai^aava @As$aAmaek(tamaAM va{x.~DvaM s$avaNAA< svagARBaUSaNAama, tān āha deva-deveçaù praëatān prahasann iva āsām ekatamāà vāi dhvaà sa-varëää svarga-bhūñäëäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tān—to them; āha—said; deva-deva-ēṣaù—the Supreme Lord of all lords; praëatān—who had bowed down to Him; prahasan iva—almost smiling; āsām—of these women; ekatamām—one; vāi dhvam—please choose; sa-varëām—suitable; svarga—of heaven; bhūñāëām—the ornament.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Lord of lords then smiled slightly and told the representatives of heaven, who were bowing down before Him, "Please choose one of these women, whomever you find suitable for you. She will become the ornament of the heavenly planets."

PURPORT

Nara-Nārāyaëa Āñi was almost laughing upon seeing the defeat of the demigods. However, being extremely grave, He did not actually laugh. Although the demigods might have thought, "We are simply low-class fools in comparison to these women," the Lord encouraged them to choose one of the women, whomever they considered equal in character to themselves. The beauty thus selected would become the ornament of heaven.

TEXT 15

@AeimatyaAde"zAmaAd"Aya natvaA taM s$aur"vaind"na:
ovaRzAlmaps$ar":™aeï"AM paur"s$k{(tya id"vaM yayau:

*om ity ādeṣam ādāya
natvā taà sura-vandinaù urvaçém apsaraù-çreññhàà puraskātya divaà yayuù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

om iti—chanting oà to signify agreement; ādeçam—His order; ādäya—taking; natvä—offering obeisances; tam—to Him; sura—of the demigods; vandinaù—those servants; urvaçém—Urvaçi; apsaraù-çreñöhäm—the best of the Apsaräs; puraù-kâtya—placing in front (out of respect); divam—to heaven; yayuu—they returned.

TRANSLATION

Vibrating the sacred syllable oà, the servants of the demigods selected Urvaçé, the best of the Apsaräs. Placing her in front of them out of respect, they returned to the heavenly planets.

TEXT 16

wn%o"AyaAnamya s$ad"is$a Za{NvataAM iṭaid"vaAEk(s$aAma, OcaunaARr"AyaNAbalaM
zA,(staṭaAs$a ivaismata:

indräyānamya sadasi
çäëvatäà tri-divaukasām ücur nārāyaëa-balaà
çakras taträsa vismitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indräya—to Lord Indra; ānamya—bowing down; sadasi—in his assembly; çäëvatām—while they were listening; tri-diva—the three heavens; okasām—whose residents; ücuù—they told; nārāyaëa-balam—about the strength of Lord Nārāyaëa; çakraù—Indra; tatra—at that; äsa—became; vismitaù—surprised.

TRANSLATION

The servants of the demigods reached the assembly of Indra, and thus, while all the residents of the three heavens listened, they explained to Indra the supreme power of Nārāyaṇa. When Indra heard of Nara-Nārāyaṇa Āṇi and became aware of his offense, he was both frightened and astonished.

TEXT 17

hM"s$asvaè&pyavad"d"cyauta @AtmayaAegAM d"Ôa: ku(maAr" [%SaBaAe BagAvaAna, ipataA na: ivaSNAu: izAvaAya jagAtaAM k(layaAvaitaNARs$a, taenaAô$taA maDauBad"A ™autayaAe h"yaAsyae

haàsa-svarüpy avadat acyuta ātma-yogaà dattaù kumāra āṇabho bhagavān pitā naù viñëuù çivāya jagatāà kalayāvatirëas tenāhātā madhu-bhidā çrutayo hayaśye

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

haàsa-svarüpy—assuming His eternal form of the swan incarnation; avadat—He spoke; acyutaù—the infallible Supreme Personality of Godhead; ātma-yogam—self-realization; dattaù—Dattātreyā; kumāraù—the Kumāra brothers, headed by Sanaka; āṇabhaù—Āṇabhadeva; bhagavān—the Lord; pitā—father; naù—our; viñëuù—Lord Viñëu; çivāya—for the welfare; jagatām—of all the world; kalayā—by His secondary personal expansions; avatërëaù—descending to this world; tena—by Him; āhātāù—were brought back (from the depths of Pātāla-loka); madhu-bhidā—by the killer of the demon Madhu; çrutayaù—the original texts of the Vedas; haya-śye—in the horse-headed incarnation.

TRANSLATION

The infallible Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, has descended into this world by His various partial incarnations such as Lord Haàsa [the swan], Dattātreyā, the four Kumāras and our own father, the mighty Āṇabhadeva. By such incarnations, the Lord teaches the science of self-realization for the benefit of the whole universe. In His appearance as Hayagrēva He killed the demon Madhu and thus brought the Vedas back from the hellish planet Pātāla-loka.

PURPORT

It is stated in the Skanda Purāṇa that the Lord of the universe, Hari Himself, once appeared in the form of a young brahmacārī named Kumāra and spoke transcendental knowledge to Sanat-kumāra.

TEXT 18

gAuæaAe'pyayae manauir"laAESaDayaê maAtsyae
,(AExe" h"taAe id"itaja oÜ"r"taAmBas$a: °maAma, k(AEmaeR Da{taAe'i%"r"ma{taAenmaTanae svapa{ie" faAh"At'apa^aaimaBar"AjamamauÂad"AtaRma, gupto 'pyaye manur ilauñadhayaç ca mätšye krauòe hato diti-ja uddharatāmbhasaù kīmām kaurme dhāto 'drir amātonmathane sva-pāññhe grāhāt prapannam ibha-rājam amui cad ārtam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guptaù—was protected; apyaye—during the annihilation; manuù—Vaivasvata Manu; ilā—the earth planet; oñadhayaù—the herbs; ca—and; mätšye—in His incarnation as a fish; krauòe—in His incarnation as a boar; hataù—was killed; diti-jaù—the demoniac son of Diti, Hiraëyākñā; uddharatā—by Him who was delivering; ambhasaù—from the waters; kīmām—the earth; kaurme—as a tortoise; dhātaù—was held; adriù—the mountain (Mandara); amāta-unmathane—when the nectar was being churned (by the demons and demigods together); sva-pāññhe—upon His own back; grāhāt—from the crocodile; prapannam—surrendered; ibha-rājam—the king of the elephants; amui cat—He freed; ārtam—distressed.

TRANSLATION

In His appearance as a fish, the Lord protected Satyavrata Manu, the earth and her valuable herbs. He protected them from the waters of annihilation. As a boar, the Lord killed Hiraëyākñā, the son of Diti, while delivering the earth from the universal waters. And as a tortoise, He lifted Mandara Mountain on His back so that nectar could be churned from the ocean. The Lord saved the surrendered king of the elephants, Gajendra, who was suffering terrible distress from the grips of a crocodile.

TEXT 19

s$amstaunvataAe inapaitataAna, TMamaNAAna{Sal%Mê zA,M(ca va{ṭavaDatastamais$a 'aivaI"ma, de"vaiñyaAe's$aur"ga{he" ipaih"taA @naATaA ja£ae's$au"re"n%"maBayaAya s$ataAM na{is$aMhe" saàstunvato nipatitān ṣramaëān āñēàç ca çakraà ca vātra-vadhataś tamasi praviññam deva-striyo 'sura-gāhe pihitā anāthā jaghne 'surendram abhayāya satāà nāsiàhe

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saàstunvataù—who were offering prayers; nipatitān—fallen (into the water in a cow's hoofprint); ṣramaëān—the ascetics; āñēn—sages (the Vāḷakhilyas); ca—and; çakram—Indra; ca—and; vātra-vadhataù—from killing Vātrāsura; tamasi—in darkness; praviññam—absorbed; deva-striyaù—the wives of the demigods; asura-gāhe—in the palace of the demons; pihitāù—imprisoned; anāthāù—helpless; jaghne—He killed; asura-indram—the king of the demons, Hiraëyakaçipu; abhayāya—for the sake of giving fearlessness; satām—to the saintly devotees; nāsiàhe—in the incarnation of Nāsiàha.

TRANSLATION

The Lord also delivered the tiny ascetic sages called the Vālahilyas when they fell into the water in a cow's hoofprint and Indra was laughing at them. The Lord then saved Indra when Indra was covered by darkness due to the sinful reaction for killing Vātrāsura. When the wives of the demigods were trapped in the palace of the demons without any shelter, the Lord saved them. In His incarnation as Nāsiṅha, the Lord killed Hiraēyakaṣipu, the king of demons, to free the saintly devotees from fear.

TEXT 20

de"vaAs$asure" yauida ca dE"tyapatalna, s$aur"ATaeR h"tvaAntare"Sau BauvanaAnyad"DaAtk(laAiBa: BaUtvaATa vaAmana wmaAmah"r"ṣ"lae: °maAM yaAḥaAcC$laena s$amad"Ad"id"tae: s$autaeBya:

devāsura yudhi ca daitya-patēn surārthe hatvāntareṇu bhuvanāny adadhāt kalābhiu bhūtvātha vāmana imām aharat baleu kīmāṅ yāci ā-cchalena samadāt aditeu sutebhyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deva-asura—of the demigods and demons; yudhi—in the battle; ca—and; daitya-patēn—the leaders of the demons; sura-arthe—for the sake of the demigods; hatvā—by killing; antareṇu—during the reign of each Manu; bhuvanāni—all the worlds; adadhāt—protected; kalābhiu—by His various appearances; bhūtvā—becoming; atha—moreover; vāmanaù—the incarnation as a dwarf brāhmaëa boy; imām—this; aharat—took away; baleu—from Bali Mahārāja; kīmām—earth; yāci ā-cchalena—on the excuse of begging for charity; samadāt—gave; aditeu—of Aditi; sutebhyaù—to the sons (the demigods).

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Lord regularly takes advantage of the wars between the demons and demigods to kill the leaders of the demons. The Lord thus encourages the demigods by protecting the universe through His various incarnations during the reigns of each Manu. The Lord also appeared as Vāmana and took the earth away from Bali Mahārāja on the plea of begging three steps of land. The Lord then returned the entire world to the sons of Aditi.

TEXT 21

ina:°aiṭayaAmak{(ta gAAM ca iṭa:s$aæak{(tvaAe r"Amastau hE"h"yaku(laApyayaBaAgARvaAiṭa:
s$aAe'ibDaM babanDa d"zAvafṭamah"na, s$alaÆMÿ
s$altaApaitajaRyaita laAek(mala£ak(L[%ita:

niùkñatriyām akāta gāà ca triù-sapta-kātvo rāmas tu haihaya-kulāpyaya-bhārgavāgniù so 'bdhià babandha daça-vaktram ahan sa-laì kaà sētā-patir jayati loka-mala-ghna-kētiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

niùkñatriyām—devoid of members of the warrior class; akāta—He made; gām—the earth; ca—and; triù-sapta-kātvaù—three times seven (twenty-one) times; rāmaù—Lord Paraçurāma; tu—indeed; haihaya-kula—of the dynasty of Haihaya; apyaya—the destruction; bhārgava—descending from Bhāgu Muni; agniù—the fire; saù—He; abdhim—the ocean; babandha—brought under subjection; daça-vaktram—the ten-headed Rāvaëa; ahan—killed; sa-laì kam—along with all the soldiers of his kingdom, Laì kâ; sētā-patiù—Lord Rāmacandra, the husband of Sētā; jayati—is always victorious; loka—of the entire world; mala—the contamination; ghna—which destroys; kētiù—the recounting of whose glories.

TRANSLATION

Lord Paraçurāma appeared in the family of Bhāgu as a fire that burned to ashes the dynasty of Haihaya. Thus Lord Paraçurāma rid the earth of all kīatriyas twenty-one times. The same Lord appeared as Rāmacandra, the husband of Sētādevé, and thus He killed the ten-headed Rāvaëa, along with all the soldiers of Laì kä. May that Çré Rāma, whose glories destroy the contamination of the world, be always victorious.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, Lord Rāmacandra was more or less a contemporary incarnation for the nine Yogendras. Thus they have offered particular respect to Lord Rāmacandra, as indicated by the word jayati.

TEXT 22

BaUmaeBaRr"Avatar"NAAya yaäu"SvajanmaA jaAta: k(ir"Syaita s$aurE"r"ipa äu"Sk(r"AiNA vaAdE"ivaRmaAeh"yaita yaÁak{(taAe'tad"h"ARna, zAU#%"Ana, k(laAE i'aitaBaujaAe nyah"inaSyad"ntae

bhümer bharāvataraëäya yaduñv ajanmä jātaù kariṇyati surair api duñkaräëi vādair vimohayati yaji' a-kāto 'tad-arhän çüdrän kalau kñiti-bhujo nyahaniṇyad ante

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhümeù—of the earth; bhara—the burden; avataraëäya—to diminish; yaduñu—in the Yadu dynasty; ajanmä—the unborn Lord; jātaù—taking birth; kariṇyati—He will perform; suraiù—by the demigods; api—even;
duñkaräëi—difficult deeds; vādaiù—by speculative arguments;

vimohayati—He will bewilder; yajī'a-kātaù—the performers of Vedic sacrifices; atat-arhān—who are unfit to be so engaged; çüdrān—the low-class men; kalau—in the degraded age of Kali; kñīti-bhujaù—rulers; nyahaniñyat—He will kill; ante—at the end.

TRANSLATION

To diminish the burden of the earth, the unborn Lord will take birth in the Yadu dynasty and perform feats impossible even for the demigods. Propounding speculative philosophy, the Lord, as Buddha, will bewilder the unworthy performers of Vedic sacrifices. And as Kalki the Lord will kill all the low-class men posing as rulers at the end of the age of Kali.

PURPORT

It is understood that in this verse the description of the Lord's appearance in the Yadu dynasty refers to the appearance of both Kāñëa and Balarāma, who together removed the demoniac rulers who were burdening the earth. Çréla Jëva Gosvāmë has pointed out that the description of the incarnations to deal with çüdrān, or low-class men, refers to both Buddha and Kalki. Those who misuse Vedic sacrifice to engage in gross sense gratification, such as the sinful killing of animals, are certainly in the category of çüdra, as are the so-called political leaders of Kali-yuga who perform many atrocities in the name of state management.

TEXT 23

WvaMivaDaAina janmaAina
k(maARiNA ca jagAtpatae: BaUr"liNA BaUir"yazAs$aAe vaiNARtaAina mah"ABauja evaà-vidhāni janmāni karmāëi ca jagat-pateù

bhüréëi bhüri-yaçaso

varëitāni mahā-bhuja

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam-vidhāni—just like these; janmāni—appearances; karmāēi—activities; ca—and; jagat-pateu—of the Lord of the universe; bhūrēi—innumerable; bhūri-yaçasau—very glorious; varëitāni—described; mahā-bhuja—O mighty-armed King Nimi.

TRANSLATION

O mighty-armed King, there are innumerable appearances and activities of the Supreme Lord of the universe similar to those I have already mentioned. In fact, the glories of the Supreme Lord are unlimited.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Fourth Chapter, of the Çrëmad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Drumila Explains the Incarnations of Godhead to King Nimi."

5. Nārada Concludes His Teachings to Vasudeva

In this chapter the destination of persons who are inimical to the worship of Lord Hari, who are unable to control their own senses and who are not peaceful is examined, along with the different names, forms and modes of worship of the Personality of Godhead in each yuga.

From the face, arms, thighs and feet of the primeval person Lord Viñëu are born (correspondingly and in order of the modes of goodness, passion and ignorance) the four varëas-brāhmaëa and so on-and also the four different āçramas. If the members of the four varëas and four āçramas do not worship Lord Çré Hari, who is Himself directly the origin of their own creation, they will simply fall down. Among these classes, women and çüdras, who generally have no contact with the hearing and chanting of hari-kathä, are on account of their very ignorance special candidates for the mercy of great souls. The members of the other three varëas, becoming fit for achieving the lotus feet of Hari by second birth through Vedic initiation (çrauta-janma), nevertheless become confused by concocted interpretations of the Vedas. Presuming themselves to be great scholars, although not understanding the essential meaning of karma, they become flatterers of other deities in their greed for fruitive results and ridicule the devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. They are fixed in family life, attached to mundane gossip and indifferent to the devotional service of Viñëu and the Vaiñëavas. They are maddened by material opulences and pleasures, devoid of real discrimination and intelligence and always function on the mental platform. But such attachment to family life and so on is most natural for the mass of people, even though it is against the best advice of çästra. To become disentangled from such life in all respects is the principal teaching of the Vedas. Real wealth is that conducive to the faithful execution of the duty of the soul, not that which exists simply for selfish sense gratification. As a consequence of the desire to indulge the senses, men and women couple together to produce children. Engaging in animal slaughter apart from that necessary for performance of sacrifice, these human animals themselves suffer violence in the next life. If because of excessive greed for one's own pleasure one commits violence against living beings. He is also attacking Lord Çré Hari, who is present in the bodies of all living entities as the Supersoul. Opposed to Lord Väsudeva, ignorant self-cheaters completely carry out their own ruination and enter into hell.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Çré Hari, accepts in each of the different yugas various colors, names and forms and is worshiped by various prescribed processes. In Satya-yuga the Supreme Lord is white in complexion, has four arms, dresses as a brahmacäre, is known by such names as Haësa and is served by the practice of meditational yoga. In Tretä-yuga He is red in color and four-armed, is the personification of sacrifice, is characterized by the symbols of the sacrificial spoon, ladle, etc., is called by such names as Yajñā and is worshiped by Vedic sacrifices. In Dvāpara-yuga He is of dark blue complexion, wears a yellow garment, is marked by Çrévatsa and other signs, has such names as Vāsudeva and is worshiped in His Deity form by the regulations of the Vedas and tantras. In Kali-yuga He is golden in color, is accompanied by associates who are His primary and secondary limbs and His weapons, is absorbed in kāññā-kīrtana and is worshiped by the performance of saññā-kīrtana-yajñā. Since in Kali-yuga all the goals of human life can be achieved simply by the glorification of the holy name of Lord Çré Hari, those who can appreciate the real essence of things praise Kali-yuga. In Kali-yuga many people in South India (Draviḍa-deśa), in places where the Tāmrāparī, Kātamālā, Kāverī and Mahānadī rivers flow, will be dedicated to the devotional service of the Supreme Lord.

Persons who give up all false ego and take full shelter of Lord Hari are no longer debtors to the demigods or anyone else. The Personality of Godhead, Çré Hari, appears in the hearts of devotees who know no other shelter than Him and causelessly drives away all evil desires from the devotees' hearts. Videharāja Nimi, having heard elaborate descriptions of bhāgavata-dharma from the mouths of the nava-yogendras, offered worship to them with a satisfied mind. They then disappeared.

Devarāṇi Nārada thereupon instructed Vasudeva about the ultimate shelter of devotional service. He told Vasudeva that although Lord Kāññā had become his son, having appeared in this world to free the earth of its burden, he still should not think of Lord Kāññā as his child, but rather as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Even by meditating upon Kāññā in a spirit of enmity, such kings as Çiçupāla attained an equal status to Him. So to attempt to say anything more about the perfect achievement of great souls such as Vasudeva, who enjoy intimate loving relations with Kāññā, would be a useless endeavor.

TEXT 1

™alr"AjaAevaAca
BagAvantaM h"ir$M 'aAyaAe na BajantyaAtmaivaÔamaA:

taeSaAmazAAntak(AmaAnaAM k(inai" AivaijataAtmanaAma,

çré-rājavāca
bhagavantaà harià prāyo na bhajanty ātma-vittamāu teñām açānta-kāmānāà ka niñhāvijitātmanām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—King Nimi inquired; bhagavantam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; harim—Hari; prāyaù—for the most part; na—never; bhajanti—who worship; ātma-vittamāu—all of you are most perfect in knowledge of the science of the self; teñām—of them; açānta—unquenched; kāmānām—material desires; kā—what; niñhā—destination; avijita—who are not able to control; ātmanām—themselves.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi further inquired: My dear Yogendras, all of you are most perfect in knowledge of the science of the self. Therefore, kindly explain to me the destination of those who for the most part never worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari, who are unable to quench their material desires and who are not in control of their own selves.

PURPORT

In the Fifth Chapter of the Eleventh Canto, Camasa Āñi describes the inauspicious path of those who are unfavorable to the devotional service of Lord Viñëu, and the sage Karabhājana explains the yuga-dharmāvatāras, the incarnations of the Lord who present the authorized process of religion for each different age.

In the previous chapter it was explained that although the demigods place obstacles in the path of the Lord's devotees, by the mercy of the Supreme Lord the devotees are able to place their feet on the head of such obstacles and thus pass beyond them to the supreme destination. However, for the nondevotees there is no such facility. As soon as the conditioned soul becomes indifferent to the devotional service of the Supreme Lord, he is immediately attracted by the temporary varieties of matter and becomes a slave of inauspicious desires. Thus the conditioned soul, devoid of devotion for the Lord, completely forgets the transcendental bliss of the spiritual world, which is enjoyed in five transcendental rasas. Although the devotees are not overcome by the sense gratification offered by the demigods, the demigods themselves become absorbed in material form, taste and smell. And similarly, those who are nondevotees also become bound by material form, taste and other sense perceptions, such as the sensuous experience of sex life. Thus they remain hovering in a dreamlike state, imagining different types of material sense gratification, and forget their eternal relationship with the Personality of Godhead. Videharāja Nimi now inquires from Camasa Muni about the goal attained by such bewildered persons.

TEXT 2

™alcamas$a ovaAca mauKabaAó"ç&paAde"Bya:
 pauç&SasyaA™amaE: s$ah" catvaAr"Ae jaiÁare" vaNAAR gAuNAEivaR'aAd"ya: pa{Tak,( çré-camasa uvāca

mukha-bāhūru-pādebhyaù puruṇasyāçramaiù saha catvāro jaji ire varēā
guëair viprādayaù pāthak

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-camasaù uvāca—Çré Camasa said; mukha—face; bāhu—arms; ūru—thighs;

pādebhyaù—from the feet; puruṇasya—of the Supreme Lord; āçramaiù—the four spiritual orders; saha—with; catvāraù—four; jajī ire—were born; varēāù—the social orders; guēaiù—by the modes of nature; vīpra-ādayaù—headed by the brāhmaēas; pāthak—various.

TRANSLATION

Çré Camasa said: Each of the four social orders, headed by the brāhmaēas, was born through different combinations of the modes of nature, from the face, arms, thighs and feet of the Supreme Lord in His universal form. Thus the four spiritual orders were also generated.

PURPORT

Those who are not spontaneously attracted to the devotional service of the Lord can be gradually purified by observing the varēāçrama system of four social orders and four spiritual orders. According to Çrédhara Svāmé, the brāhmaēas are born of the mode of goodness, the kñātriyas of a combination of goodness and passion, the vaiçyas of a combination of passion and ignorance and the çūdras of the mode of ignorance. Just as the four social orders are born from the face, arms, thighs and feet of the Lord's universal form, similarly the brahmacārēs are generated from the heart of the Lord, the householder order from His loins, the vānaprasthas from His chest and the sannyāsa order from His head.

A similar verse is found in the Āk-saàhitā (8.4.19), as well as the Çukla-yajur Veda (34.11) and the Atharva Veda (19.66):

*brāhmaëo 'sya mukham äséd bāhü rājanyaù kâtaù
ürü tad asya yad vaiçyaù padbhyäà çüdro 'jāyata*

"The brāhmaëa appeared as His face, the king as His arms, the vaiçya as His thighs, and the çüdra was born from His feet."

It is understood that pure devotional service to the Lord has already been described by two of the Yogendras, Drumila and Āvirhotra. Camasa Muni now describes the system of varëāçrama-dharma, because this system is meant to gradually purify those who are inimical to the Supreme Lord, bringing them back to their constitutional position of love of Godhead. Similarly, the virāō-rūpa, or universal form of the Lord, is an imaginary form meant to help the gross materialists gradually understand the position of the Personality of Godhead. Since the foolish materialist cannot understand anything beyond matter, he is encouraged to see the entire universe as a personal form of the Supreme Lord's body. The impersonal conception of formlessness is a mere negation of temporary material variety without any concept of the Lord's spiritual potency. The impersonal view is another kind of material speculative conception. The Supreme Lord is full of spiritual potencies under the principal headings hlādiné, or unlimited bliss, sandhiné, or eternal existence, and saàvit, or omniscience. It is understood from this verse that the varëāçrama-dharma system generated from the universal form of the Lord is a program offered by the Lord to engage the conditioned souls in a complete social and religious system that gradually brings them back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 3

ya W SaAM pauç&SaM s$A°aAä," @Atma'aBavamalir"ma, na BajantyavajaAnainta sTaAnaAä," "aí"A: patantyaDa:

*ya eñāà puruñāà sākñād ātma-prabhavam éçvaram
 na bhajanty avajānanti sthānād bhrañōāù patanty adhaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who; eñām—of them; puruñāà—the Supreme Lord;
sākñāt—directly; ātma-prabhavam—the source of their own creation;

éçvaram—the supreme controller; na—do not; bhajanti—worship; avajānanti—disrespect; sthānāt—from their position; bhrañōāu—fallen; patanti—they fall; adhaù—down.

TRANSLATION

If any of the members of the four varēas and four āçramas fail to worship or intentionally disrespect the Personality of Godhead, who is the source of their own creation, they will fall down from their position into a hellish state of life.

PURPORT

The words na bhajanti in this verse refer to those who out of ignorance do not worship the Supreme Lord, whereas the word avajānanti refers to those who have actually been informed of the supreme position of the Lord but still show Him disrespect. It has already been described that the four spiritual and occupational orders of life are generated from the body of the Lord. In fact, the Supreme Lord is the source of everything, as described in Bhagavad-gētā (10.8): ahaà sarvasya prabhavaù. Those who foolishly do not inquire into the position of the Personality of Godhead, as well as those who disrespect the Lord in spite of having heard of His transcendental position, will certainly fall down from the varēāçrama-dharma system, as described by the words sthānād bhrañōāu. The words patanty adhaù indicate that one who falls from the varēāçrama system will have no means of avoiding sinful activities; nor will such a person receive any credit for performing sacrifice, and thus he will gradually sink down into lower and lower species of life in hellish conditions. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has pointed out that the original cause of offending the Lord and falling down from one's position is one's not learning how to properly worship a bona fide spiritual master. One who is trained to offer respectful obeisances and worship to the bona fide spiritual master automatically offers proper worship to the Supreme Lord. Without the mercy of a bona fide spiritual master, even a so-called religious man will gradually become atheistic, offend the Lord by foolish speculation and fall into a hellish condition of life. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura has pointed out that the puruṇa mentioned in this verse is Lord Garbhodakaçäyē Viñëu, who is glorified in the Puruṇa-sūkta prayers. If one is proud of his high social position and enviously thinks that the Lord is also a creation of nature and that there is no absolute entity who is the origin of all beings, then such a puffed-up fool will certainly fall down from the varëaçrama system and become just like an unregulated animal.

TEXT 4

äU"re" h"ir"k(TaA: ke(icaä," äU"re" caAcyautak(LtaRnaA: iñya: zAU#%"Ad"yaêEva tae'nauk(mpyaA BavaAä{"zAAma,

düre hari-kathäù kecid
düre cäcyuta-kértanäù
striyaù çüdrädayaç caiva te 'nukampyä bhavadâçäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

düre—far away; hari-kathäù—from discussion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari; kecit—many persons; düre—far away; ca—and; acyuta—infallible; kértanäù—glories; striyaù—women; çüdra-ädayaù—çüdras and other fallen classes; ca—and; eva—indeed; te—they; anukampyäù—deserve the mercy; bhavadâçäm—of personalities like yourself.

TRANSLATION

There are many persons who have little opportunity to take part in discussions about the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari, and thus it is difficult for them to chant His infallible glories. Persons such as women, çüdras and other fallen classes always deserve the mercy of great personalities like yourself.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was explained that some persons are ignorant of the glories of the Personality of Godhead (na bhajanti), whereas others, although aware of the Lord, ridicule Him or state that the Lord is also material (avajānanti). In this verse the first class, namely the ignorant, are described as fit candidates for the mercy of a pure devotee. The word düre indicates those who have little opportunity to hear and chant the glories of the Lord. According to Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura they can be explained as ye sädhu-saiga-bhägya-henäü, those who are bereft of the association of saintly persons and pure devotees. Generally, those who are advanced in the spiritual science of Kāñëa consciousness avoid contact with women and low-class men. In general, women are lusty, and çüdras and other low-class men are habitually addicted to materialistic habits such as smoking, drinking and woman hunting. Therefore, Caitanya Mahäprabhu warned the sädhus, or saintly persons, to avoid intimate connection with women and low-class men. The practical result of such a restriction is that women and lower-class men are often bereft of the opportunity to hear the glories of the Lord chanted by saintly persons; thus Çré Camasa Muni instructs the King that he should especially give his mercy to such fallen persons.

Our spiritual master, His Divine Grace Çréla Prabhupäda, was severely criticized in India for giving all classes of men and women the opportunity to take part in the Kāñëa consciousness movement. Indeed, the caste brähmaëas of India and other persons concerned only with ritualistic formalities were shocked that Çréla Prabhupäda allowed women and persons born in low-class families to take part freely in the Vaiñëava culture and even become initiated as bona fide brähmaëas. However, Çréla Prabhupäda could understand that in this age practically everyone is fallen. He saw that if spiritual life were to be limited to the so-called higher classes, there would be no possibility of spreading a genuine spiritual movement all around the world. The mercy of Caitanya Mahäprabhu is so great and the holy name of Kāñëa so potent that any man, woman, child or even animal can become purified by chanting Kāñëa's name and taking prasādam, the sanctified remnants of Kāñëa's food. In Caitanya Mahāprabhu's movement, no sincere person is restricted from achieving the highest perfection of self-realization. Whereas the impersonalists and yogés tend to be selfishly concerned with their individual realization and achievement of mystic power, it has always been the custom of the Vaiñëavas to be merciful to all classes of living entities.

It is understood that the conversation between the nava-yogendras and King Nimi took place approximately at the time of Lord Rāmacandra, many hundreds of thousands of years ago. But in the Bhagavad-gētā, which was spoken only five thousand years ago, Lord Kāñëa Himself also states that any person, despite his material situation of life, can become the most dear devotee of the Lord by full surrender to the lotus feet of Kāñëa. Therefore, the fallen people of Kali-yuga should take advantage of the special mercy of the Vaiñëavas and join the Kāñëa consciousness movement to perfect their lives and go back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 5

iva'aAe r"AjanyavaEzyaAE vaA h"re": 'aAæaA: pad"Aintak(ma, ™aAEtaena janmanaATaAipa mau÷ntyA°aAyavaAid"na:

vipro rājanya-vaiçyau vä hareù prāptäù padāntikam çrautena janmanāthäpi muhyanty ämnäya-vädinaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vipraù—the brähmaëas; rājanya-vaiçyau—of the royal order and the vaiçyas; vä—or; hareù—of the Supreme Lord, Hari; prāptäù—after being allowed to approach; pada-antikam—near the lotus feet; çrautena janmanä—by having received the second birth of Vedic initiation; atha—then; api—even; muhyanti—bewildered; āmnāya-vādinaù—adopting various materialistic philosophies.

TRANSLATION

On the other hand, brāhmaëas, members of the royal order and vaiçyas, even after being allowed to approach the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord, Hari, by receiving the second birth of Vedic initiation, can become bewildered and adopt various materialistic philosophies.

PURPORT

It is said that a little knowledge can be very dangerous. Those who are falsely proud of material social status and who thus neglect to perfect their worship of the Personality of Godhead are condemned in this verse. Muhyanty āmnāya-vādinaù: becoming attracted by the sense gratification of high status within the varëäçrama social system, such persons become more attracted to illusory material philosophy than to the Absolute Truth, which is not material. Within the Vedic system, brāhmaëas, kñatriyas and vaiçyas, as mentioned in this verse, are all offered initiation into the Gäyatrë mantra and are considered twice-born, or highly civilized men. By studying Vedic literature, chanting Vedic mantras, executing ritualistic ceremonies and worshipping the spiritual master and the Personality of Godhead such persons gradually come near to the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord. If one in such an exalted position becomes proud of his status or fascinated by the heavenly material enjoyment that is undoubtedly available to the followers of the varëäçrama system, then one so bewildered returns to the illusory material platform of birth and death. Even the highly posted demigods become victims of mäyä's enticement, as described in the first verse of Çrémad-Bhägavatam: muhyanti yat sūrayaù.

In order to justify their illusory desire to enjoy dead matter, such foolish persons condemn themselves by minimizing the necessity of worshipping the Personality of Godhead (avajñanti) and falsely try to give equal importance to the karma-kāṇḍa section of the Vedas, which awards heavenly sense gratification in exchange for the performance of prescribed ritualistic ceremonies. Such bogus rationalizers are described in Bhagavad-gītā (2.42):

*yām imāṁ puṁpitāṁ vācāṁ pravadanty avipaścitaṁ veda-vāda-ratāṁ pārtha
nānyad astēti vādinaṁ*

"Men of small knowledge are very much attached to the flowery words of the Vedas, which recommend various fruitive activities for elevation to the heavenly planets, resultant good birth, power and so on. Being desirous of sense gratification and opulent life, they say that there is nothing more than this."

Çréla Prabhupāda's purport to this verse of Bhagavad-gītā gives a clear picture of the offensive class of men described therein. "People in general are not very intelligent, and due to their ignorance they are most attached to the fruitive activities recommended in the karma-kāṇḍa portions of the Vedas. They do not want anything more than sense gratificatory proposals for enjoying life in heaven, where wine and women are available and material opulence is very common. In the Vedas many sacrifices are recommended for elevation to the heavenly planets, especially the jyotiṁśoma sacrifices. In fact, it is stated that anyone desiring elevation to heavenly planets must perform these sacrifices, and men with a poor fund of knowledge think that this is the whole purpose of Vedic wisdom. It is very difficult for such inexperienced persons to be situated in the determined action of Kāṇḍa consciousness. As fools are attached to the flowers of poisonous trees without knowing the results of such attractions, similarly, unenlightened men are attracted by such heavenly opulence and the sense enjoyment thereof.

"In the karma-kāṇḍa sections of the Vedas it is said that those who perform the four monthly penances become eligible to drink the soma-rasa beverage to become immortal and happy forever. Even on this earth some are very eager to have soma-rasa to become strong and fit to enjoy sense gratification. Such persons have no faith in liberation from material bondage, and they are very much attached to the pompous ceremonies of Vedic sacrifices. They are generally sensual, and they do not want anything other than the heavenly pleasures of life. It is understood that there are gardens called Nandana-kānana, in which there is good opportunity for association with angelic, beautiful women and having a profuse supply of soma-rasa wine. Such bodily happiness is certainly sensual; therefore there are those who are purely attached to material, temporary happiness, as lords of the material world."

The significant point in this verse is that such bewildered materialists who have become attracted to the materialistic portions of the Vedas (muhyanty āmnāya-vādināu) desire to ignore the supreme proprietorship of the Personality of Godhead, who is the supreme enjoyer (bhoktāraṁ yajī a-tapasām [Bg. 5.29]). And at the same time they wish to preserve their exalted status as followers of the Vedic principles. Such duplicitous persons take shelter of materialistic philosophers, such as Jaimini, who deny the existence of God as a tangible principle (ācvarāśiddheu) and therefore recommend material fruitive activities as the highest knowable truth. Such so-called Vedic philosophers amount to little more than polished atheists and are therefore understood to be anācvara-vādināu, or those who preach against the supremacy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Although foolish materialistic followers of the varēācrama system desire to maintain their exalted status as Āryans, or twice-born men, and at the same time neglect the Personality of Godhead, it is clearly stated in the Bhāgavatam (11.5.3), sthānād bhrañṣāu patanty adhaū: such persons inevitably fall from their position into a degraded condition of life. As confirmed in this verse by the word muhyanti, they fall into the darkness of ignorance. Sometimes such pompous persons even present themselves as gurus. However, Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura has pointed out that they are actually laghu, or flimsy, rather than guru, or heavy with Vedic knowledge. It is one's ultimate duty to oneself (svārtha-gatī) and to the Personality of Godhead to give up all materialistic activities characterized by karma and jīāna and surrender fully at the lotus feet of the Lord. Only the most unfortunate person will consider that there is a higher pleasure than ecstatic surrender at the lotus feet of Gokulānanda, the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 6

k(maRNYak(Aeivad"A: stabDaA maUKaAR: paiNx"tamaAinana: vad"inta caAq%]k(AnmaUX#A yayaA maADvyaA igAr"Aets$auk(A:

*karmaëy akovidäù stabdhä mürkhäù paëòita-mäninaù vadanti cäöukän müòhä
yayä mädhvyä girotsukäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

karmaëi—about the facts of fruitive work; akovidäù—ignorant;
stabdhäù—puffed up by false pride; mürkhäù—fools;
paëòita-mäninaù—thinking themselves great scholars; vadanti—they speak;
cäöukän—flattering entreaties; müòhäù—bewildered; yayä—by which;
mädhvyä—sweet; girä—words; utsukäù—very eager.

TRANSLATION

Ignorant of the art of work, such arrogantly proud fools, enchanted and enlivened by the sweet words of the Vedas, pose as learned authorities and offer flattering entreaties to the demigods.

PURPORT

The words karmaëy akovidäù refer to those who are ignorant of the art of performing work in such a way that there will be no future bondage. This art is described in Bhagavad-gētā: yajī'ārthāt karmaëo 'nyatra loko 'ya'à karma-bandhanaù [Bg. 3.9]). Work must be performed for the satisfaction of Viñëu, otherwise work is the cause of future bondage in the cycle of repeated birth and death. The word stabdhäù, "puffed up by false pride," indicates that although ignorant persons do not know the art of working properly, they do not inquire from learned devotees, nor do they accept the advice of the Lord's own men. Being infatuated by the fruitive results offered in the Vedas, such mürkhas, or fools, think, "We are learned Vedic scholars; we have understood everything perfectly." Thus they are attracted to such Vedic statements as apāma somam amâtä abhüma ("We have drunk the soma juice and now we are immortal"), akñayyaà ha vai cäturmäsyä-yājinaù sukâtaà bhavati ("For one who executes the cäturmäsyä sacrifice there is inexhaustible pious reaction"), and yatra noñëaà na çëtaà syän na glänir näpy arätayaù ("Let us go to that material planet where there is no heat, no cold, no diminution and no enemies"). Such foolish persons are unaware that even Lord Brahmä, the creator of the universe, will die at the end of universal time, what to speak of materialistic followers of the Vedas who jump like frogs to the different celestial planets, seeking the highest standard of sense gratification. Such bewildered Vedic scholars dream of frolicking with the Apsaräs, the gorgeous society girls of the heavenly planets who are expert in singing, dancing and in general stimulating uncontrollable lusty desires. Thus, those who are carried away by the heavenly phantasmagoria offered in the karma-käëòa section of the Vedas gradually develop an atheistic mentality. Actually, the entire universe is meant to be offered to Lord Viñëu as sacrifice. The conditioned soul can thereby gradually elevate himself to the eternal kingdom beyond the hallucination of material sense gratification. However, being puffed up by false pride, the materialistic followers of the Vedas remain perpetually ignorant of the supremacy and beauty of Lord Viñëu.

TEXT 7

r"jas$aA GaAer"s$aÆyIpaA:
 k(Amauk(A @ih"manyava:
 d"AimBak(A maAinana: paApaA ivah"s$antyacyautai'ayaAna, rajasā ghora-saī kalpāu kāmukā ahi-manyavaù

dāmbhikā māninaù pāpā
vihasanty acyuta-priyān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

rajasā—by the prominence of the mode of passion;
ghora-saī kalpāu—having horrible desires; kāmukāu—lusty;
ahi-manyavaù—their anger like that of a snake; dāmbhikāu—deceitful;
māninaù—overly proud; pāpāu—sinful; vihasanti—they make fun;
acyuta-priyān—of those who are dear to the infallible Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Due to the influence of the mode of passion, the materialistic followers of the Vedas become subject to violent desires and are excessively lusty. Their anger is like that of a snake. Deceitful, overly proud, and sinful in their behavior, they mock the devotees who are dear to Lord Acyuta.

PURPORT

Ghora-saī kalpāu refers to ghastly desires, such as thinking, "He is my enemy, let him die." Due to the mode of passion, waves of lust overcome the conditioned soul, who then becomes furious like a snake. Such a person, filled with pride and arrogance, cannot appreciate the humble efforts of the Lord's devotees to distribute Kāñëa consciousness. He thinks, "These beggars worship Lord Viñëu to fill their bellies, but they will never be happy." Such a materialistic rascal cannot appreciate the transcendental status of the devotees of the Lord, who are personally protected and encouraged by the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 8

vad"inta tae'nyaAenyamaupaAis$ataiñyaAe gA{he"Sau maETaunyapare"Sau caAizASa: yajantyasa{í"A^aaivaDaAnad"i^oaNAM va{ÔyaE parM" £ainta pazAUnataiã"d":

vadanti te 'nyonyam upāsita-striyo gāheñu maithunya-pareñu cāçīñau yajanty asāñña-vidhāna-dakñiëaà vāṭṭyai paraà ghnanti paçün atad-vidaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vadanti—speak; te—they; anyonyam—among each other; upāsita-striyaù—who are engaged in worshipping women; gāheñu—in their homes; maithunya-pareñu—which are dedicated to sex only; ca—and; āçīñau—blessings; yajanti—they worship; asāñña—without discharging; anna-vidhāna—distribution of food; dakñiëam—gifts in payment to the priests; vāṭṭyai—for their own livelihood; param—only; ghnanti—they murder; paçün—animals; atat-vidaù—in ignorance of the consequences of such behavior.

TRANSLATION

The materialistic followers of Vedic rituals, giving up the worship of the Lord, instead practically worship their wives, and thus their homes become dedicated to sex life. Such materialistic householders encourage one another in such whimsical behavior. Understanding ritualistic sacrifice as a necessary item for bodily maintenance, they perform unauthorized ceremonies in which there is no distribution of foodstuffs or charity to the brāhmaëas and other respectable persons. Instead, they cruelly slaughter animals such as goats without any understanding of the dark consequences of their activities.

PURPORT

False pride is certainly not complete without sex indulgence. Thus, lusty materialistic householders are not attracted to worshipping saintly persons, but rather worship their wives as a source of constant sex pleasure. The mentality of such condemned persons is described by the Lord Himself in Bhagavad-gētā (16.13):

*idam adya mayā labdham imaà prāpsyē manoratham idam astēdam api me
bhaviṇyati punar dhanam*

"So much wealth do I have today, and I will gain more according to my schemes. So much is mine now, and it will increase in the future, more and more."

Generally, materialistic householders consider themselves to be very religious. In fact, by earning money to support a band of relatives they consider themselves to be more pious than the "irresponsible" sādhus, who do not struggle to maintain family members. Worshiping the material body, they are contemptuous of the humble brāhmaēas, who are generally not very advanced in economic development. They consider such so-called beggars to be unworthy objects of charity and instead perform sacrifices only for the enhancement of the false prestige of their own family members. Madhvācārya has stated in this regard, upekṇya vai harià te tu bhūtvā yājyāu patanty adhaù. In spite of proudly considering themselves to be great performers of religious ceremonies, those who neglect the Lord and His devotees certainly fall down. Such foolish persons sometimes bless each other by saying, "May you be blessed with the wealth of gorgeous flower garlands, sandalwood pulp and beautiful women."

Men who are controlled by the nature of women become exactly like women. Materialistic women are uninterested in the devotional service of the Supreme Lord and strive for their own selfish happiness. Therefore they eagerly take service from their husbands and become most discouraged if the husband prefers to serve the Personality of Godhead. Being lost in such a fool's paradise, both husband and wife mutually encourage each other in temporary happiness. They do not like to speak or hear about the pastimes of the Lord, but prefer to discuss their own families. Still, the devotees of the Lord, being mature in the mode of goodness, are always ready to act mercifully toward such conditioned souls, who are just like vain animals. When the devotees of the Lord preach that human beings should not slaughter animals, materialistic householders are very often astonished and inquire if it is actually possible to subsist on a vegetarian diet. Thus being completely ignorant of the material mode of goodness, what to speak of spiritual knowledge, such condemned materialists have no hope beyond the mercy of the devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 9

iTMayaA ivaBaUtyaAiBajanaena ivaâyaA tyAgAena è&paena balaena k(maRNAA jaAtasmayaenaAnDaiDaya: s$ahē"ir"Ana, s$ataAe'vamanyainta h"ir"i'ayaAna, KalaA:

çriyā vibhūtyābhijanena vidyayā tyāgena rūpeḥa balena karmaḥa jāta-smayenāndha-dhiyaū saheṣvarān sato 'vamanyanti hari-priyān khalāū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çriyā—by their opulence (wealth, etc.); vibhūtyā—special abilities;
abhijanena—aristocratic heritage; vidyayā—education;
tyāgena—renunciation; rūpeḥa—beauty; balena—strength; karmaḥa—performance of Vedic rituals; jāta—which is born; smayena—by such pride; andha—blinded; dhiyaū—whose intelligence; saha-ēṣvarān—along with the Supreme Lord Himself; sataū—the saintly devotees; avamanyanti—they disrespect; hari-priyān—who are very dear to Lord Hari;
khalāū—cruel persons.

TRANSLATION

The intelligence of cruel-minded persons is blinded by false pride based on great wealth, opulence, prestigious family connections, education, renunciation, personal beauty, physical strength and successful performance of Vedic rituals. Being intoxicated with this false pride, such cruel persons blaspheme the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His devotees.

PURPORT

The attractive qualities exhibited by the conditioned soul originally belong to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the reservoir of all attractive qualities. The moonshine is actually the reflected effulgence of the sun. Similarly, the living entity reflects for a brief time a particular quantity of the Lord's opulences. Not knowing this, atheistic persons become intoxicated by such reflected opulences, and thus blinded, they condemn themselves more and more by criticizing the Lord and His devotees. They are unable to understand how they have become abominable, and it is difficult to prevent them from going to hell.

TEXT 10

s$avaeRSau zAiÔanauBa{tsvavaisTataM yaTaA KamaAtmaAnamaBalí"malir"ma, vaed"AepagAltaM ca na Za{Nvatae'bauDaA manaAer"TaAnaAM 'avad"inta vaAtaRyaA

sarveṇu çaçvat tanu-bhātsv avasthitaḥ yathā kham ātmānam abhēṇām eçvaram vedopagētaḥ ca na çāëvate 'budhā mano-rathānāḥ pravadanti vārtayā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarveṇu—in all; çaçvat—eternally; tanu-bhātsu—embodied living beings; avasthitam—situated; yathā—just as; kham—the sky; ātmānam—the Supreme Soul; abhēṇām—most worshipable; eçvaram—ultimate controller; veda-upagētam—glorified by the Vedas; ca—also; na çāëvate—they do not hear; abudhāu—unintelligent persons; manaù-rathānām—of whimsical pleasures; pravadanti—they go on discussing; vārtayā—the topics.

TRANSLATION

The Personality of Godhead is eternally situated within the heart of every embodied being; still the Lord remains situated apart, just as the sky, which is all-pervading, does not mix with any material object. Thus the Lord is the supreme worshipable object and the absolute controller of everything. He is elaborately glorified in the Vedic literature, but those who are bereft of intelligence do not like to hear about Him. They prefer to waste their time discussing their own mental concoctions, which inevitably deal with gross material sense gratification such as sex life and meat-eating.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gītā Lord Kāñëa says, vedaïç ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15]. The goal of all Vedic knowledge is to know the Lord, who is the Absolute Truth. Although this purpose of the Vedas is clearly revealed both in the Vedic literature itself and by the self-realized äcāryas, foolish people cannot grasp this simple truth. They prefer to cultivate knowledge of illicit sex by discussing their sexual partners and experiences. They also eagerly describe and recommend to their friends the best restaurants for eating meat, and they are fond of glorifying drugs and liquor by elaborately describing the drunken and hallucinogenic effects of their sinful experiences. The materialistic sense gratifiers eagerly call one another on the telephone, congregate in clubs and committees, and enthusiastically go on hunting, drinking and gambling excursions, thus filling their lives with the mode of ignorance. They have neither the time nor the inclination to discuss the Absolute Truth, Kāñëa. Unfortunately, they neglect the Supreme Lord, who therefore severely punishes such foolish persons in order to bring them back to their senses. Everything belongs to the Lord, and everything is meant for the Lord's enjoyment. When the living entity dovetails his activities for the pleasure of the Lord, he experiences unlimited happiness. Yena sattvaà çuddhyed yasmäd brahma-saukhyà tv anantam [SB 5.5.1]. There is actually no happiness in material affairs, and the Lord mercifully punishes the intoxicated conditioned soul to bring him back to his real life.

Unfortunately, materialistic persons do not heed the advice of the Supreme Lord in Bhagavad-gétä or that of the Lord's representatives, who speak in allied literatures such as Çrémad-Bhägavatam. Instead, such sense gratifiers consider themselves to be most eloquent and learned. Every materialistic person actually feels that he is the most intelligent person, and thus he has no time to hear the actual truth. Nevertheless, the Personality of Godhead, as described in this verse, waits patiently within the heart of the conditioned soul, encouraging him to recognize the Lord, who is sitting beside him. Such recognition of the Personality of Godhead is the beginning of all auspiciousness and happiness for the conditioned soul.

TEXT 11

laAeke(vyavaAyaAimaSamaâs$aevaA inatyaA ih" jantaAenaR ih" taṭa caAed"naA vyavaisTaitastaeSau ivavaAh"yaÁa s$aur"AfahE"r"As$au inava{iÔair"i"A loke vyaväyāmiṇa-madya-sevā nityā hi jantor na hi tatra codanā vyavasthitis teṇu vivāha-yajī a surā-grahair āsu nivāttir iṇā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

loke—in the material world; vyaväya—sex indulgence; ämiṇa—of meat; madya—and liquor; seväu—the taking; nityäu—always found; hi—indeed; jantou—in the conditioned living being; na—not; hi—indeed; tatra—in regard to them; codanä—any command of scripture; vyavasthitiu—the prescribed arrangement; teṇu—in these; vivāha—by sacred marriage; yajī a—the offering of sacrifice; surā-grahaiu—and the acceptance of ritual cups of wine; āsu—of these; nivāttiu—cessation; iṇā—is the desired end.

TRANSLATION

In this material world the conditioned soul is always inclined to sex, meat-eating and intoxication. Therefore religious scriptures never actually encourage such activities. Although the scriptural injunctions provide for sex through sacred marriage, for meat-eating through sacrificial offerings and for intoxication through the acceptance of ritual cups of wine, such ceremonies are meant for the ultimate purpose of renunciation.

PURPORT

Those who are not situated in pure Kāñëa consciousness are always inclined toward material sense gratification in the form of illicit sex, meat-eating and intoxication. They simply desire a party life of eat, drink and be merry. Such materialistic persons are unwilling to give up such temporary gratification because they are firmly bound up in the bodily concept of life. For such persons there are numerous Vedic injunctions for rituals that bestow material sense pleasure in a regulated manner. The conditioned soul thereby becomes accustomed to indirectly worshiping the Supreme Lord by accepting the austerity of regulated sense gratification in obedience to the Vedic way of life. Through purification the living entity gradually develops a higher taste and becomes directly attracted to the spiritual nature of the Lord.

Sometimes the fallen practitioners of the karma-käëòa section of the Vedas assert that the material fruitive results of Vedic ceremonies should never be given up, because they are prescribed by religious scriptures. For example, there is a Vedic injunction that in the proper season a husband must approach his wife at night at least five days after her menstrual period, if the wife has properly bathed and cleansed herself. Thus, a responsible householder should engage in religious sex life.

The injunction that one must approach his wife for sex life is explained by the Vaiñëava äcäryas as follows. Within the material world almost every man is very lusty and desires passionate sex life with every attractive woman he meets, or with any woman at all. Actually, for an ordinary materialistic man it is an accomplishment if he can restrict himself to relationships with his lawfully wedded wife. But because familiarity breeds contempt, the natural tendency is for the husband to gradually become envious or resentful of the wife and desire illicit connections with other women. Such a mentality is most sinful and abominable, and the Vedic scripture therefore orders that one must approach his actual wife, with a desire to beget children, and thus curtail the tendency toward illicit sexual connection with other women. Were there no such Vedic injunction ordering one to approach his wife, many men would naturally be inclined to neglect their wives and pollute other women by illicit connection.

However, such an injunction for conditioned souls does not apply to great souls who are fixed on the spiritual platform and are transcendental to material sex desire. As stated in this verse, nivāttir iññā: the actual purpose of the Vedic scriptures is to bring one back home, back to Godhead, back to the spiritual world. It is clearly stated by Lord Kāññā in Bhagavad-gētā, yaà yaà vāpi smaran bhāvaà tyajaty ante kalevaram: [Bg. 8.6] whatever we think of at the time of death will determine our next body.

*anta-kāle ca mām eva
smaran muktvā kalevaram
yaù prayāti sa mad-bhāvaà
yāti nāsty atra saàçayaù
(Bg. 8.5)*

If one remembers Kāññā, he is immediately transferred to the eternal planet of Kāññā. Therefore, since all the Vedic scriptures are meant for knowing Kāññā (vedaic ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15]), the ultimate goal of the Vedas cannot be any type of absorption in the material senses, either licit or illicit. The Vedic regulations governing married sex life are actually meant to prevent sinful illicit sex. However, one should not foolishly conclude that a lusty attraction to his wife's naked body is the perfection of self-realization and Vedic elevation. The actual perfection of spiritual life is to become free from all material desires, nivātti, and to fix the mind on Kāññā.

Similarly there are other injunctions, governing the regulated consumption of liquor and meat. Those who are mad after meat-eating are instructed to perform Vedic ceremonies by which they are permitted to consume five types of five-clawed animals, namely the rhinoceros, turtle, rabbit, porcupine and lizard. Similarly, the consumption of specific liquors is allowed during highly restricted sacrifices performed on specific days of the year at great expense. In this way, other types of drunkenness and cruel animal slaughter are prohibited. One is gradually purified by performing such sacrifices, and he develops a distaste for such foolish activities as meat-eating and the drinking of liquor. The Vedic rules and regulations that gradually restrict sense gratification are called vidhi. The word niyama refers to injunctions governing activities that human beings ordinarily would not be inclined to perform. For example, it is said, ahar ahaù sandhyäm upäsëta: "One should chant Gäyatrë mantra at the three junctions of the day, every day." It is also stated, mägha-snänaà prakurvëta: "One must take bath daily, even during the coldest months of winter." Such injunctions prescribe activities that ordinarily would be neglected.

Although it has been mentioned above that there are injunctions against neglecting one's lawful wife, there is no injunction against totally neglecting meat-eating. In other words, killing of animals is considered most abominable, and although some concession is made for the more violent class of men, one should actually completely give up this cruel activity because even a slight discrepancy in animal sacrifices will cause havoc in one's life.

It should be understood that those who have become spiritually advanced by chanting the Hare Kåñëa mantra under the guidelines of Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu are expected to completely give up material sense gratification. If a devotee of Kåñëa duplicitously tries to take advantage of the scriptural allowances for meat-eating, intoxication or sex enjoyment, then he commits the tenth offense against chanting. Especially if one has accepted the renounced order of life called tridaëöi-sannyäsa, it is most abominable and reprehensible to become attracted to the Vedic injunctions prescribing regulated sex life for householders. According to Çréla Jëva Gosvämë there is no such allowance for one in the renounced order of life. The Vaiñëava sannyäsés should not foolishly become bewildered by statements in the Vedic literature such as the following verse from Manu-saṁhitā:

*na māṁsa-bhakṣāḥ doṇo
na madye na ca maithune pravāttir eṇā bhūtānāṁ nivāttis tu mahā-phalā*

"It may be considered that meat-eating, intoxication and sex indulgence are natural propensities of the conditioned souls, and therefore such persons should not be condemned for these activities. But unless one gives up such sinful activities, there is no possibility of achieving the actual perfection of life."

In the Kriyā-vidhāna it is explained that sex is permitted only during the vāmadeva sacrifice, or the garbhādhāna-saṁskāra for begetting of religious children. It is also stated that sometimes certain types of meat are used in worshiping Lord Hari through sacrifices to the forefathers and demigods. Similarly, there is a form of intoxication available through drinking the soma beverage. But if a so-called brāhmaṇa becomes attracted to such offerings, he immediately becomes polluted. Actually, the brāhmaṇas who performed such offerings would not personally accept any type of liquor or meat. These things would be consumed by the kṣātriyas, who were not considered at fault in accepting such remnants of sacrifice.

However, in the movement of Caitanya Mahāprabhu it can be observed that those who desire to become advanced devotees of Kṛṣṇa immediately give up all such fruitive sacrifices. There is no scope in pure devotional service for any type of fruitive sacrifices. Caitanya Mahāprabhu demanded that all of His sincere followers engage twenty-four hours a day in ṣṛavāṇa-kīrtana-viñeo [SB 7.5.23], hearing and chanting the glories of the Personality of Godhead. Those who claim to be followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu and who are seriously planning on going back home, back to Godhead, in the near future should not become mindlessly attracted by Vedic fruitive rituals that are meant to attract those who are hopelessly bound up in the material, bodily concept of life. The followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu always remain aloof from such tainted rituals.

TEXT 12

DanaM ca DamaE=k(P(laM yataAe vaE ÁaAnaM s$aiivaÁaAnamanau'azAAinta gA{he"Sau yauÃainta k(laevar"sya ma{tyauM na pazyainta äu"r"ntavalyaRma, dhanaà ca dharmaika-phalaà yato vai ji' änaà sa-viji' änam anupraçänti gâheñu yui'janti kalevarasya mâtyuà na paçyanti duranta-véryam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ghanam—wealth; ca—also; dharma-eka-phalam—whose only proper fruit is religiosity; yatau—from which (religious life); vai—indeed; ji' änam—knowledge; sa-viji' änam—along with direct realization; anupraçänti—and subsequent liberation from suffering; gâheñu—in their homes; yui'janti—they utilize; kalevarasya—of their material body; mâtyum—the death; na paçyanti—they cannot see; duranta—insurmountable; véryam—the power of which.

TRANSLATION

The only proper fruit of acquired wealth is religiosity, on the basis of which one can acquire a philosophical understanding of life that eventually matures into direct perception of the Absolute Truth and thus liberation from all suffering. Materialistic persons, however, utilize their wealth simply for the advancement of their family situation. They fail to see that insurmountable death will soon destroy the frail material body.

PURPORT

Those things that come under the control of the proprietor are called ghanam, or wealth. When a foolish person becomes addicted to spending all of his hard-earned money to increase the prestige of his material body and family, he is no longer able to see how death is steadily approaching his own body as well as the temporary bodies of his family and friends. Mātyuù sarva-haraç cāham: [Bg. 10.34] the Supreme Lord appears as all-powerful death, which destroys all material situations. Actually, even in family life one should use one's wealth for spiritual advancement of oneself and one's family. In the Kāñëa consciousness movement there are many religious householders who live a simple, peaceful life and use their wealth for arranging Kāñëa conscious activities at home and for helping the renounced brahmacārës and sannyäsés who are actively preaching Kāñëa consciousness in public places. Such householders, even those who are not able to dedicate one hundred percent of their energy to Kāñëa consciousness, gradually acquire a very solid understanding of the spiritual principles of life and eventually become transcendentalists firmly fixed at the lotus feet of Kāñëa. Thus they free themselves from all of the anxieties of conditional life, namely birth, old age, disease and death.

Life without Kāñëa consciousness is actually poverty, but the poverty-stricken materialist, whose intelligence is limited, cannot perceive that real wealth is the expansion of consciousness up to the highest level of Kāñëa consciousness, love of Godhead. Such persons raise their children to be just like animals, having as their only goal false prestige and material sense gratification. Such materialistic householders fear that excessive interest in spiritual life may damage the ambition of their children to acquire false material prestige. Actually, death will smash all of the endeavors and plans of such spiritually impoverished materialists. If family life and wealth are used for Kāñëa consciousness, one will learn to discriminate between the eternal and the noneternal, between spirit and matter, between bliss and anxiety, and thus the living entity will become liberated and go beyond mere theoretical knowledge to acquire the highest perfectional benediction of eternal Kāñëa conscious life. Limited sensory knowledge, pratyakñā-jī āna, is useless without theoretical spiritual knowledge, parokñā-jī āna, which gradually matures, with careful cultivation, into direct realized knowledge of the soul, aparokñā-jī āna.

The word anupraçānti in this verse indicates that by spiritual knowledge (vijī ānam) one achieves the most sublime state of eternal peace and bliss, far beyond the dreams of the materialistic conditioned soul.

TEXT 13

yaä," „aANABa°aAe ivaih"ta: s$aur"AyaAs$a, taTaA pazAAer"AlaBanaM na ihM"s$aA WvaM vyavaAya: 'ajayaA na r"tyaA wmaM ivazAuÜM" na ivaäu": svaDamaRma, yad ghräëa-bhakñö vihitaù suräyäs tathä paçor älabhanaà na hiàsä evaà vyaväyaù prajayä na ratyä imaà viçuddhaà na viduù sva-dharmam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yat—because; ghräëa—by smell; bhakñäù—the taking; vihitaù—is enjoined; suräyäu—of wine; tathä—similarly; paçou—of a sacrificial animal; älabhanam—prescribed killing; na—not; hiàsä—wanton violence; evam—in the same way; vyaväyaù—sex; prajayä—for the purpose of begetting children; na—not; ratyai—for the sake of sense enjoyment; imam—this (as pointed out in the previous verse); viçuddham—most pure; na viduù—they do not understand; sva-dharmam—their own proper duty.

TRANSLATION

According to the Vedic injunctions, when wine is offered in sacrificial ceremonies it is later to be consumed by smelling, and not by drinking. Similarly, the sacrificial offering of animals is permitted, but there is no provision for wide-scale animal slaughter. Religious sex life is also permitted, but only in marriage for begetting children, and not for sensuous exploitation of the body. Unfortunately, however, the less intelligent materialists cannot understand that their duties in life should be performed purely on the spiritual platform.

PURPORT

Madhvācārya has given the following statement in regard to animal sacrifice:

yajī eṁv ālabhanaà proktaà devatoddeçataù paçou himsā nāma tad-anyatra tasmāt tāà nācared budhaù

*yato yajī e mātā ūrdhvaà yānti deve ca paitāke ato lābhād ālabhanaà
svargasya na tu mārāëam*

According to this statement, the Vedas sometimes prescribe animal sacrifice in ritual performances for the satisfaction of the Supreme Lord or a particular demigod. If, however, one whimsically slaughters animals without rigidly following the Vedic prescriptions, such killing is actual violence and should not be accepted by any intelligent person. If the animal sacrifice is perfectly performed, the sacrificed animal immediately goes to the heavenly planets of the demigods and the forefathers. Therefore such a sacrifice is not for killing animals but for demonstrating the potency of Vedic mantras, by the power of which the sacrificed creature is immediately promoted to a higher situation.

Caitanya Mahāprabhu, however, has forbidden such animal sacrifice in this age because there are no qualified brāhmaëas to chant the mantras, and the so-called sacrificial arena becomes an ordinary butcher shop. And in an earlier era, when unscrupulous persons tried to establish that animal killing and meat-eating are acceptable by misinterpreting the Vedic sacrifices, Lord Buddha personally appeared and rejected their heinous proposition. This is described by Jayadeva Gosvāmī:

nindasi yajī a-vidher ahaa çruti-jātaà sadaya-hâdaya darçita-paçu-ghâtam keçava dhâta-buddha-çaréra jaya jagad-éça hare

Unfortunately, the conditioned souls are afflicted by four imperfections, one of which is the cheating propensity, and thus they tend to exploit the concessions that the Lord mercifully gives to them in religious scriptures for their gradual purification. Rather than follow the Vedic injunctions for simultaneously satisfying their senses and gradually elevating themselves, the conditioned souls reject the actual purpose of such apparently materialistic ceremonies and simply become more and more degraded in the ignorance of the bodily concept of life. Thus they fall down altogether from the varëäçrama system and, taking birth in violent non-Vedic societies, foolishly presume the small fragments of universal religious principles prevalent there to be the exclusive religion of the soul. As a result, they fall into fanaticism, embracing merely sectarian, dogmatic views of religion. Such unfortunate persons are completely out of touch with their own eternal function in life and consider things to be vastly different than they are in reality.

TEXT 14

*yae tvanaevaMivad"Ae's$anta: stabDaA: s$ad"iBamaAinana:
pazAUnâu"÷inta iva™abDaA:
'aetya KaAd"inta tae ca taAna,*

ye tv anevaà-vido 'santaù stabdhâù sad-abhimäninaù paçün druhyanti viçrabdhâù pretya khädanti te ca tãn

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ye—those who; tu—but; anevam-vidaù—not knowing these facts;

asantaù—very impious; stabdhäù—presumptuous;
sat-abhimänaù—considering themselves saintly; paçün—animals; druhyanti—they harm; viçrabdhäù—being innocently trusted; pretya—after leaving this present body; khädanti—they eat; te—those animals; ca—and;
tän—them.

TRANSLATION

Those sinful persons who are ignorant of actual religious principles, yet consider themselves to be completely pious, without compunction commit violence against innocent animals who are fully trusting in them. In their next lives, such sinful persons will be eaten by the same creatures they have killed in this world.

PURPORT

In this verse we can clearly see the great discrepancies in those persons who do not surrender to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His law. As stated in the Bhägavatam, haräv abhaktasya kuto mahad-guëäù: those who do not accept the supremacy of the Supreme Lord gradually become infected with the most sinful propensities that bring, in their turn, terrible suffering upon the nondevotees. In the Western countries such as America, many people proudly proclaim themselves to be most pious religionists and sometimes even prophets or representatives of God. Boasting of their religiosity, such foolish people experience no fear or doubt in cruelly slaughtering innumerable animals in slaughterhouses or on hunting trips for their whimsical sense gratification. In the state of Mississippi there are sometimes pig-killing festivals, in which entire families enjoy watching a pig cruelly butchered before their eyes. Similarly, a former president of the United States from Texas did not consider any social occasion complete without the slaughtering of a cow. Such persons mistakenly consider themselves to be perfectly observing the laws of God and due to such arrogant foolishness lose all touch with reality. When a man is raising an animal for slaughter, he feeds the animal nicely and encourages it to grow fat. Thus the animal gradually accepts its would-be killer as its protector and master. When the master finally approaches the helpless animal with a sharp knife or gun, the animal thinks, "Oh, my master is joking with me." Only at the last minute does the animal understand that the so-called master is death personified. It is clearly stated in Vedic literature that cruel masters who kill innocent animals will undoubtedly be killed in the next life by a similar process.

*māṣa sa bhakṣayitāmutra
yasya māṣam ihādmy aham etan māṣasya māṣatvaṁ pravadanti manīṣāḥ*

"That creature whose flesh I am eating here and now will consume me in the next life.' Thus meat is called māṣa, as described by learned authorities." In Çrémad-Bhāgavatam this grisly fate of animal killers is described by Nārada Muni to King Prācīnabarhi, who was excessively killing animals in so-called sacrifices.

bho bhoḥ prajāpate rājan paçūn paçya tvayādhvare saṁjī āpitān jēva-sā ghān nirghāṇena sahasraçāḥ

*ete tvāṁ sampratēkṣante smaranto vaiçasaṁ tava sāparetam ayaḥ-kūṣāiḥ
chindanty utthita-manyavaḥ*

"O ruler of the citizens, my dear King, please see in the sky those animals which you have sacrificed, without compassion and without mercy, in the sacrificial arena. All these animals are awaiting your death so that they can avenge the injuries you have inflicted upon them. After you die, they will angrily pierce your body with iron horns." (SB 4.25.7-8) Such punishment of animal killers may take place under the jurisdiction of Yamarāja on the planet of the lord of death. In other words, one who kills an animal or who eats meat undoubtedly acquires a debt to the living entity who has contributed his body for the satisfaction of the meat-eater. The meat-eater must pay his debt by contributing his own body to be consumed in the next life. Such payment of one's debt by offering one's own body to be eaten is confirmed in the Vedic literature.

TEXT 15

iā"Santa: par"k(AyaeSau svaAtmaAnaM h"ir"malir"ma, ma{take(s$aAnaubanDae'ismana,
baÜ"µaeh"A: patantyaDa:

dviñantaù para-käyeñu
svätmänaà harim eçvaram mātake sānubandhe 'smin baddha-snehäù patanty adhaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dviñantaù—envying; para-käyeñu—(the souls) within the bodies of others; sva-ätmānam—their own true self; harim eçvaram—the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari; mātake—in the corpse; sa-anubandhe—together with its relations; asmin—this; baddha-snehäù—their affection being fixed; patanti—they fall; adhaù—downward.

TRANSLATION

The conditioned souls become completely bound in affection to their own corpse-like material bodies and their relatives and paraphernalia. In such a proud and foolish condition, the conditioned souls envy other living entities as well as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari, who resides in the heart of all beings. Thus enviously offending others, the conditioned souls gradually fall down into hell.

PURPORT

Materialistic persons express their envy of animals by cruelly killing them. Similarly, the conditioned souls become envious even of other human beings and of the Lord Himself, who dwells within everyone's body. They express their envy of God by preaching atheistic science or pseudophilosophy in which they ridicule the fact that everyone is an eternal servant of God. Envious persons express their bitter feelings toward other human beings by creating wars, terrorism, cruel governments and cheating business enterprises. The sinful bodies of such envious persons are just like corpses. Still, envious persons are enamored by the corpse of their material body and become further fascinated by their children and other bodily extensions. Such feelings are based in false pride. Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted the following verse from Hari-vaṇṇa:

āptatvād ātma-çabdoktaḥ svasminn api pareṇu ca jēvād anyaḥ na paçyanti çrutvaivaḥ vidviṇanti ca etāḥ tvam āsurān viddhi lakṣaṇaiḥ puruṣādhamān

"The Supreme is called ātmā because He is found both in oneself and within others. Some persons become agitated by hearing descriptions of the Supreme Lord, and they openly state that there is no superior living being beyond themselves. Such persons are to be known as demons. By their practical symptoms they are to be understood as the lowest class of men."

TEXT 16

yae kE(valyamas$am'aAæaA yae caAtaltaAê maUX#taAma, ‡aEvaigARK(A ÷°aiNAk(A

@AtmaAnaM GaAtayainta tae

*ye kaivalyam asamprāptā ye cātētāḥ ca müòhatām
trai-vargikā hy akñāëikā ātmānaà ghātayanti te*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ye—those who; kaivalyam—knowledge of the Absolute Truth; asamprāptāu—have not achieved; ye—who; ca—also; atētāu—have transcended; ca—also; müòhatām—gross foolishness; trai-vargikāu—dedicated to the three goals of pious life, namely dharma (religiosity), artha (economic development) and kāma (sense gratification); hi—indeed; akñāëikāu—not having even a moment to reflect; ātmānam—their own selves; ghātayanti—murder; te—they.

TRANSLATION

Those who have not achieved knowledge of the Absolute Truth, yet who are still beyond the darkness of complete ignorance, generally follow the threefold path of pious material life, namely religiosity, economic development and sense gratification. Not having time to reflect on any higher purpose, they become the killers of their own soul.

PURPORT

Those who are completely in the darkness of ignorance and thus bereft even of material pious life commit innumerable sinful activities and suffer greatly. Due to such intense suffering such persons sometimes seek the shelter of the devotees of the Lord and, being blessed by such transcendental association, are sometimes elevated to the highest perfectional stage of Kñāëa consciousness.

Those who are not completely sinful experience some mitigation of the miseries of material life and thus develop a false sense of well-being within the material world. Because those who are materially pious generally obtain worldly prosperity, bodily beauty and a pleasant family situation, they become falsely proud of their position and are not inclined to associate with or accept instructions from the devotees of the Lord. Unfortunately, all material activities, whether pious or impious, are inevitably contaminated by sinful activity. Those who are proud of their piety and do not like to hear about Kāñëa sooner or later fall down from their artificial position. Every living entity is an eternal servant of Kāñëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore, until we surrender to Kāñëa, our position is actually always impious. The word akñāëikāu ("not having even a moment to reflect") is significant in this verse. Materialistic persons cannot spare a single moment for their eternal self-interest. This is a symptom of misfortune. Such persons are considered to be killing their own souls because by their obstinacy they are preparing a dark future for themselves from which they will not escape for a very long time.

A sick man receiving medical treatment may be encouraged by the preliminary results of the doctor's care. But if the patient becomes falsely proud of the preliminary progress in his treatment and prematurely gives up the doctor's orders, thinking himself already cured, there will undoubtedly be a relapse. The words ye kaivalyam asamprāptāu in this verse clearly indicate that material piety is a long way from perfect knowledge of the Absolute Truth. If one gives up his spiritual progress before achieving the lotus feet of Kāñëa, he will undoubtedly fall back down into the most unpleasant material situation, even if he has achieved impersonal realization of the Brahman effulgence. As stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, āruhya kácchreëa paraà padaà tatau patanty adhaù [SB 10.2.32].

TEXT 17

Wta @Atmah"naAe'zAAntaA @ÁaAnae ÁaAnamaAinana:
 s$ald"ntyak{(tak{(tyaA vaE
 k(AlaDvastamanaAer"TaA:

*eta ātma-hano 'çäntä
ajī āne jī āna-māninau śedanty akāta-kātyā vai kāla-dhvasta-manorathāu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ete—these; ātma-hanau—killers of the self; açäntāu—devoid of peace; ajī āne—in ignorance; jī āna-māninau—presuming to have knowledge; śedanti—they suffer; akāta—failing to perform; kātyāu—their duty; vai—indeed; kāla—by time; dhvasta—destroyed; manau-rathāu—their fanciful desires.

TRANSLATION

The killers of the soul are never peaceful, because they consider that human intelligence is ultimately meant for expanding material life. Thus neglecting their real, spiritual duties, they are always in distress. They are filled with great hopes and dreams, but unfortunately these are always destroyed by the inevitable march of time.

PURPORT

There is a similar verse in Çré Ēṣopaniṣad (3):

*asuryā nāma te lokā andhena tamasāvātāu
tāàs te pretyābhigacchanti ye ke cātma-hano janāu*

"The killer of the soul, whoever he may be, must enter into the planets known as the worlds of the faithless, full of darkness and ignorance."

TEXT 18

ih"tvaAtmamaAyaAr"icataA

gA{h"Apatyas$auô$itñya:
tamaAe ivazAntyainacC$ntaAe vaAs$au"vapar"Ax.~mauKaA:

hitvātma-māyā-racitā gāhāpatya-suhāt-striyaù tamo viçanty anicchanta vāsudeva-parāi -mukhāù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

hitvā—giving up; ātma-māyā—by the illusory energy of the Supreme Soul; racitāù—manufactured; gāha—homes; apatya—children; suhāt—friends; striyaù—wives; tamaù—into darkness; viçanti—they enter; anicchantaù—without desiring; vasudeva-parāk-mukhāù—those who have turned away from Lord Vāsudeva.

TRANSLATION

Those who have turned away from the Supreme Lord, Vāsudeva, being under the spell of the Lord's illusory energy, are eventually forced to give up their so-called homes, children, friends, wives and lovers, which were all created by the illusory potency of the Supreme Lord, and enter against their will into the darkest regions of the universe.

PURPORT

The living entity turns his back on the Supreme Personality of Godhead and tries instead to enjoy temporary sense gratification. The result is simply anxiety as the conditioned soul struggles to maintain his temporary wife, children, friends, home, nation, etc. Finally all of these things are taken away, and the bewildered soul, in great frustration, sometimes tries to take shelter of an impersonal concept of God and liberation. Thus the conditioned soul is always in ignorance, either pursuing illusory sense gratification or trying to avoid sense gratification by merging into the impersonal aspect of the Lord, called Brahman. But the actual position of the living entity is to serve the Supreme Person, who is his master. And unless one gives up one's inimical feelings toward the Supreme Personality of Godhead, there is no question of peace or happiness.

*kāñëa-bhakta-niñkāma, ataeva 'çänta'
bhukti-mukti-siddhi-kāmë-sakali 'açänta'
(Cc. Madhya 19.149)*

TEXT 19

™al r"AjaAevaAca
k(ismana, k(Alae s$a BagAvaAna, ikM(vaNAR: k(Lä{"zAAe na{iBa: naA°aA vaA ke(na ivaiDanaA paUjyatae taid"h"AecyataAma,

*çré rājavāca
kasmin kāle sa bhagavān kiā varëaù kédāço nābhiù nāmnā vā kena vidhinā
pūjyate tad ihocyatām*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-rājā uvāca—the King said; kasmin—in what; kāle—time; saù—He; bhagavān—the Supreme Lord; kim varëaù—having what color; kédāçaù—having what form; nābhiù—by men; nāmnā—by (what) names; vā—and; kena—by what; vidhinā—processes; pūjyate—is worshiped; tat—that; iha—in our presence; ucyatām—please speak.

TRANSLATION

King Nimi inquired: In what colors and forms does the Supreme Personality of Godhead appear in each of the different ages, and with what names and by what types of regulative principles is the Lord worshiped in human society?

PURPORT

It has been clearly established in the previous verses that human life is spoiled if one does not surrender unto the Supreme Lord and engage in His loving devotional service. Therefore the King is now requesting the sages to give specific details about the worship of the Lord because this devotional process has clearly been described as the only practical means of delivering the conditioned soul.

TEXT 20

™alk(r"BaAjana ovaAca k{(taM ꣳaetaA ā"AparM" ca k(ilair"tyaeSau ke(zAva: naAnaAvaNAARiBaDaAk(Ar"Ae
naAnaEva ivaiDanaejyatae

çré-karabhājana uvāca kātaà tretā dvāparaà ca kalir ity eṇu keçavaù
nānā-varēābhidhākāro
nānaiva vidhinejyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-karabhājanaù uvāca—Çré Karabhājana said; kātam—Satya; tretā—Tretā; dvāparam—Dvāpara; ca—and; kaliù—Kali; iti—thus named; eṇu—in these ages; keçavaù—the Supreme Lord, Keçava; nānā—various; varēa—having complexions; abhidhā—names; ākāraù—and forms; nānā—various; eva—similarly; vidhinā—by processes; ijyate—is worshiped.

TRANSLATION

Çré Karabhājana replied: In each of the four yugas, or ages—Kāta, Tretā, Dvāpara and Kali—Lord Keçava appears with various complexions, names and forms and is thus worshiped by various processes.

TEXT 21

k{(tae zAuflaêtaubaARò"r," jaiq%laAe valk(laAmbar":
k{(SNAAijanaAepavaltaA°aAna, iba"áÚ"Nx"k(maNx"laU

*kâte çuklaç catur-bāhur jaõilo valkalāmbaraù kāñëäjinopavétākñān
bibhrad daëòa-kamaëòalü*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kâte—in Satya-yuga; çuklaù—white; catuù-bāhuù—having four arms; jaõilaù—with matted locks; valkala-ambaraù—wearing a garment of tree bark; kāñëa-ajina—a black deerskin; upavëta—a brähmaëa's sacred thread; akñān—prayer beads made of akñā seeds; bibhrat—carrying; danda—a rod; kamaëòalü—and waterpot.

TRANSLATION

In Satya-yuga the Lord is white and four-armed, has matted locks and wears a garment of tree bark. He carries a black deerskin, a sacred thread, prayer beads and the rod and waterpot of a brahmacäre.

TEXT 22

manauSyaAstau tad"A zAAntaA inavaE=r"A: s$auô$d": s$amaA:
yajainta tapas$aA de"vaM

zAmaena ca d"maena ca

manuñyäs tu tadä çäntä nirvairäù suhådaù samäù yajanti tapasä devaà çamena ca damena ca

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

manuñyäu—human beings; tu—and; tadä—then; çäntäù—peaceful; nirvairäù—free from envy; suhådaù—friendly to all; samäù—equipoised; yajanti—they worship; tapasä—by the austerity of meditation; devam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; çamena—by controlling the mind; ca—also; damena—by controlling the external senses; ca—and.

TRANSLATION

People in Satya-yuga are peaceful, nonenvious, friendly to every creature and steady in all situations. They worship the Supreme Personality by austere meditation and by internal and external sense control.

PURPORT

In Satya-yuga the Supreme Lord incarnates as a four-armed brahmacäre described in the previous verse and personally introduces the process of meditation.

TEXT 23

hM"s$a: s$aupaNAAeR vaEku(NQ&Ae DamaAeR yaAegAeì"Ae'mala: wRìr": pauç&SaAe'vya·(:
par"maAtmaeita gAlyatae

haàsaù suparëo vaikuëöho

dharmo yogeçvaro 'malaù éçvaraù puruño 'vyaktaù paramätmeti géyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

haàsaù—the transcendental swan; su-parëaù—whose wings are very beautiful; vaikuëöhaù—the Lord of the spiritual kingdom; dharmaù—the maintainer of religion; yoga-éçvaraù—the master of all mystic perfection; amalaù—immaculate; éçvaraù—the supreme controller; puruñaù—the supreme enjoying male; avyaktaù—the unmanifest; parama-ätmä—the Supersoul in the heart of every living being; iti—thus; géyate—His names are variously chanted.

TRANSLATION

In Satya-yuga the Lord is glorified by the names Haàsa, Suparëa, Vaikuëöha, Dharma, Yogeçvara, Amala, Éçvara, Puruña, Avyakta and Paramätmä.

PURPORT

The sage Karabhājana Muni is replying to Videharāja Nimi's questions about the varieties of the Lord's incarnations. In Satya-yuga the Lord's color is white, and He wears tree bark and a black deerskin as an ideal meditative brahmacäre. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has explained the Lord's various names in Satya-yuga as follows. Those who are self-realized know this supreme reality of the Personality of Godhead as Paramätmä, Those souls who are situated in the religious system of varëäçrama glorify Him as the haàsa who is transcendental to all the varëas and äçramas. Persons absorbed in gross matter consider Him to be Suparëa, "the beautifully winged" basis of the conceptions of cause and effect who flies within the subtle sky of the soul, as described in Chändogya Upaniñad. Persons accustomed to wandering within this universe of subtle and gross matter created by the Lord's illusory potency chant His name Vaikuëöha.

Persons deprived of the power of transcendental meditation (dhāraëä), who are thus subject to falling from the path of religion, glorify Him as Dharma, or religion personified. Those who are forced to submit to the illusory modes of material nature and whose minds are uncontrolled and disturbed glorify Him as the most perfectly self-controlled Yogeçvara. Persons tainted by a mixture of the modes of passion and ignorance call Him Amala, or the uncontaminated. Persons devoid of potency call Him Éçvara, and those who consider themselves to be under His shelter chant His glories by the name Uttama Puruñä. Those who know that this material manifestation is only temporary call Him Avyakta. In this way, in Satya-yuga Lord Väsudeva appears in various four-armed transcendental forms, and the jéva souls worship Him, each by their own particular process of devotional service. Therefore the Supreme Lord has many different names.

TEXT 24

‡aetaAyaAM r".(vaNA AeR's$ aAE cataubaARò"iñmaeKala:
ih"r" Nyake(zAñyyaAtmaA ›auf›auvaAâupala°aNA:

tretäyää rakta-varëo 'sau catur-bāhus tri-mekhalaù hiraëya-keças trayy-ätmä sruk-sruvädy-upalakñäëaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tretäyäm—in Tretä-yuga; rakta-varëaù—red-complexioned; asau—He; catuù-bāhuù—four-armed; tri-mekhalaù—wearing three belts (representing three phases of Vedic initiation); hiraëya-keçaù—having golden hair; trayi-ätmä—personifying the knowledge of the three Vedas; sruk-sruva-ädi—the sacrificial wooden ladle, spoon and so on; upalakñäëaù—having as His symbols.

TRANSLATION

In Tretā-yuga the Lord appears with a red complexion. He has four arms, golden hair, and wears a triple belt representing initiation into each of the three Vedas. Embodying the knowledge of worship by sacrificial performance, which is contained in the Āg, Sāma and Yajur Vedas, His symbols are the ladle, spoon and other implements of sacrifice.

PURPORT

The sruk is a particular implement for pouring ghee in sacrifices. It is about an arm's length long and is made of a particular type of wood called vikaṭ kata. The sruk has a rodlike handle and a spout with a shallow groove at its tip that resembles a swan's beak. Its front part is a carved-out spoon the size of a fist. The sruva is another implement used in sacrificial oblations. It is made of khadira wood, is smaller than the sruk and is used to pour ghee into the sruk. It is also sometimes used instead of the sruk to pour ghee directly into the sacrificial fire. These are the Lord's symbols in Tretā-yuga, when the Lord incarnates to introduce the yuga-dharma of yajñā, or sacrifice.

TEXT 25

taM tad"A manaujaA de"vaM
s$avaR$de"vamayaM h"ir"ma, yajainta ivaâyaA ‡ayyaA DaimaRi"A "aövaAid"na:

*taà tadā manujā devaà
sarva-deva-mayaà harim
yajanti vidyayā trayyā dharmiṇōhā brahma-vādināu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tam—Him; tadä—then; manujäù—human beings; devam—the Personality of Godhead; sarva-deva-mayam—who contains within Himself all the demigods; harim—Çré Hari; yajanti—they worship; vidyayä—with the rituals; trayyä—of the three main Vedas; dharminöhäù—fixed in religiosity; brahma-vädinaù—seekers of the Absolute Truth.

TRANSLATION

In Tretä-yuga, those members of human society who are fixed in religiosity and are sincerely interested in achieving the Absolute Truth worship Lord Hari, who contains within Himself all the demigods. The Lord is worshiped by the rituals of sacrifice taught in the three Vedas.

PURPORT

The residents of the earth in Satya-yuga are described as having all good qualities. In Tretä-yuga human society is described as dharminöhäù, or thoroughly religious, and brahma-vädinaù, or faithfully seeking the Absolute Truth through the Vedic injunctions. However, it should be noted that all of the exalted qualities of the people of Satya-yuga are not mentioned in this verse. In other words, in Satya-yuga people are automatically perfect, whereas in Tretä-yuga people are inclined to become perfect through performing Vedic sacrifice. In Tretä-yuga human society is not automatically Kãñëa conscious, as it was in Satya-yuga, but people are still highly inclined to become Kãñëa conscious, and thus they strictly follow the Vedic injunctions.

TEXT 26

ivaSNAuyaRÁa: pa{i'agABaR:
s$avaR$de"va oç&(ma:
va{SaAk(ipajaRyantaê
oç&gAAya wtalyaRtae

viñëur yaji' aù pãñigarbhaù sarvadeva urukramaù vãñäkapir jayantaç ca

urugäya itéryate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viñëuù—the all-pervading Supreme Lord; yaji' aù—the supreme personality of sacrifice; pãçni-garbhaù—the son of Pãçni and Prajãpati Sutapã; sarva-devaù—the Lord of all lords; uru-kramaù—the performer of wonderful deeds; vãñäkapiù—the Lord, who dispels all suffering and rewards all desires simply by being remembered; jayantaù—the all-victorious; ca—and; uru-gäyaù—the most glorified; iti—by these names; éryate—He is called.

TRANSLATION

In Tretä-yuga the Lord is glorified by the names Viñëu, Yaji' a, Pãçnigarbha, Sarvadeva, Urukrama, Vãñäkapi, Jayanta and Urugäya.

PURPORT

Pãçnigarbha refers to Kãñëa's incarnation as the son of Pãçni-devé and Prajãpati Sutapã. Vãñäkapi indicates that if the living entities simply remember the Lord, He is inclined to shower all benedictions upon them, thus satisfying their desires and removing their miseries. Since the Lord is always victorious, He is called Jayanta.

TEXT 27

ã"Apare" BagAvaAHzyaAma: paltavaAs$aA inajaAyauDa: ™alvats$aAid"iBar"ÆEÿê la°aNAEç&palai°ata:

dvãpare bhagaväi' çyãmaù péta-väsä nijäyudhaù

çrévatsädibhir aì kaiç ca lakñäëair upalakñitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dvāpare—in Dvāpara-yuga; bhagavān—the Supreme Lord; çyāmaù—dark blue; pēta-väsäù—wearing a yellow garment; nija-äyudhaù—having His own particular weapons (the disc, club, conchshell and lotus flower); çrévatsa-ädibhiù—by Çrévatsa and others; aì kaiù—bodily marks; ca—and; lakñäëaiù—by ornaments; upalakñitaù—characterized.

TRANSLATION

In Dvāpara-yuga the Supreme Personality of Godhead appears with a dark blue complexion, wearing yellow garments. The Lord's transcendental body is marked in this incarnation with Çrévatsa and other distinctive ornaments, and He manifests His personal weapons.

PURPORT

The Lord's transcendental body in Dvāpara-yuga can be compared to the color of a dark blue flower. The Lord exhibits His personal transcendental weapons such as Sudarçana cakra, and all of the limbs of His body, especially His hands and feet, are decorated with auspicious symbols such as a lotus flower and a flag. And on His chest, the Lord manifests the Kaustubha jewel as well as the auspicious Çrévatsa, a whorl of hair curling from left to right on the right side of the Lord's chest. Actually, such auspicious marks as Kaustubha and Çrévatsa, as well as the weapons of the Lord, are present in all of the viñëu-tattva incarnations. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé explains that these universal characteristics of the Lord mentioned by the sage Karabhājana are indications of the Kñäëa avatāra. Because Kñäëa is the source of all incarnations, all of the symptoms of all other incarnations are to be found in His transcendental body.

TEXT 28

taM tad"A pauç&SaM matyaAR mah"Ar"AjaAepala°aNAma, yajainta vaed"tanṭaAByaAM parM" ijaÁaAs$avaAe na{pa

*taà tadā puruṇāà martyā mahā-rājopalakṇāëam
yajanti veda-tantrābhyāà paraà jijī āsavo nāpa*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tam—Him; tadā—in that age; puruṇam—the supreme enjoyer; martyäù—mortal men; mahā-rāja—a great king; upalakṇāëam—playing the role of; yajanti—they worship; veda-tantrābhyām—according to both the original Vedas and ritual tantras; param—of the Supreme; jijī āsavaù—those who want to gain knowledge; nāpa—O King.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, in Dvāpara-yuga men who desire to know the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the supreme enjoyer, worship Him in the mood of honoring a great king, following the prescriptions of both the Vedas and tantras.

PURPORT

When Lord Kāṇēa was leaving the city of Hastināpura, Arjuna personally held an umbrella over the Lord, and Uddhava and Sātyaki fanned the Lord with decorated fans (SB 1.10.17, 18). In this way, Emperor Yudhiṇōhira and his followers worshiped Kāṇēa as the greatest of noble kings and as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Similarly, at the Rājasūya sacrifice all of the great souls of the universe elected Kāṇēa as the King of all kings, the greatest personality, deserving of first worship. Such reverential worship of the Lord is characteristic of Dvāpara-yuga, as described in this verse (mahā-rājopalakṇāḥam). With each successive yuga, namely Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara and Kali, the condition of human society deteriorates more and more. As mentioned in this verse, the only favorable qualification of the residents of Dvāpara-yuga is that they are jijī āsavaù, strongly desirous of knowing the Absolute Truth. Otherwise there is no good qualification mentioned. The inhabitants of Satya-yuga were described as çāntāù, nirvairāù, suhādaù and samāù, or peaceful, free from envy, the well-wishers of every living entity, and fixed on the spiritual platform beyond the modes of material nature. Similarly the inhabitants of Tretā-yuga were described as dharmiṇōhāù and brahma-vādinaù, or thoroughly religious, and expert followers of the Vedic injunctions. In the present verse, the inhabitants of Dvāpara-yuga are said to be simply jijī āsavaù, desiring to know the Absolute Truth. Otherwise they are described as martyāù, or subject to the weakness of mortal beings. If the human society of even Dvāpara-yuga was clearly inferior to that of Satya and Tretā-yugas, we can hardly imagine the truly disastrous condition of human society in Kali-yuga. Therefore, as will be mentioned in the following verses, human beings who have taken their birth in the present age of Kali should attach themselves rigidly to the movement of Caitanya Mahāprabhu to free themselves from foolishness.

TEXTS 29-30

namastae vaAs$auDe"vaAya nama: s$aÆySaRNAAya ca
 'aâu°aAyaAinaç&Ü"Aya
 tauByaM BagAvatae nama:

naAr"AyaNAAya [%Sayae
 pauç&SaAya mah"Atmanae ivaieir"Aya ivaiaAya
 s$avaRBaUtaAtmanae nama:

namas te vāsudevāya
namaù saì karṇāḥāya ca
pradyumnāyāniruddhāya

tubhya à bhagavate namaù

*nārāyaēāya āñaye puruñāya mahātmane
viçveçvarāya viçvāya
sarva-bhütātmane namaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

namaù—obeisances; te—unto You; väsudevāya—Väsudeva; namaù—obeisances; saì karñāēāya—to Saì karñāēā; ca—and;
pradyumnāya—to Pradyumna; aniruddhāya—to Aniruddha; tubhyam—to You; bhagavate—the Personality of Godhead; namaù—obeisances; nārāyaēāya āñaye—to Lord Nārāyaēā Āñi; puruñāya—the supreme enjoying male and the creator of the material universe; mahā-ātmane—the supreme being; viçva-ēçvarāya—the Lord of the universe; viçvāya—and Himself the very form of the universe; sarva-bhüta-ātmane—the Supersoul of all living beings; namaù—obeisances.

TRANSLATION

"Obeisances to You, O Supreme Lord Väsudeva, and to Your forms of Saì karñāēā, Pradyumna and Aniruddha. O Supreme Personality of Godhead, all obeisances unto You. O Lord Nārāyaēā Āñi, O creator of the universe, best of personalities, master of this cosmos and original form of the universe, O Supersoul of all created entities, all homage unto You."

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé explains that although Lord Kāñēā appeared at the end of Dväpara-yuga, great sages chanted this verse from the beginning of that age in expectation of His appearance.

Ordinary living entities, although eternally subordinate to the Lord, become absorbed in attempting to dominate the material creation yet ultimately remain under the control of the Supreme Lord. The constitutional position of the living entity is engagement in the Lord's service. It is further the constitutional position of the material nature to be engaged by the living entity in satisfying the transcendental desires of the Lord. Thus these prayers, as mentioned in this verse, are offered to the Supreme Lord in accordance with the Pai'carātra and the Vedic mantras so that one may become fixed in remembering his eternal subordination to the Absolute Truth.

The supreme living entity, Kāñëa, eternally manifests Himself as the catur-vyūha, or quadruple plenary expansion. The purport of this prayer is that one should give up his false ego and pray to this catur-vyūha by offering Them obeisances. Although the Absolute Truth is one without a second, the Absolute Truth displays His unlimited opulences and potencies by expanding Himself in innumerable plenary forms, of which the catur-vyūha is a principal expansion. The original being is Vāsudeva, the Personality of Godhead. When the Godhead manifests His primeval energies and opulences, He is called Saī karṇāëa. Pradyumna is the basis of the Viñëu expansion who is the soul of the entire universe, and Aniruddha is the basis of the personal manifestation of Viñëu as the Supersoul of every individual entity within the universe. Among the four plenary expansions mentioned here, the original expansion is Vāsudeva, and the other three are considered to be particular manifestations of Him.

When the living entity forgets that both he himself as well as the material nature are meant for the Lord's service, the quality of ignorance becomes prominent, and the conditioned entity desires to become himself the master. Thus the conditioned soul imagines that he is a very important person within society or that he is a great philosopher. The Vedic mantras and Pai'carātra give mankind instructions about devotional service to the Personality of Godhead, which free one from the contamination of considering oneself a prestigious member of society or a great philosopher. One in knowledge should recognize himself as a tiny servant of the Supreme Absolute Truth.

In Dvāpara-yuga, Deity worship of the Lord is prominent. Such Deity worship is ultimately aimed at the process of çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB

7.5.23]. Without hearing and chanting the glories of the Lord one cannot perform Deity worship. In Deity worship it is required that the worshiper glorify the names, forms, qualities, paraphernalia, entourage and pastimes of the Supreme Lord. When such glorification is complete, the worshiper becomes eligible to realize transcendental knowledge through hearing about the Lord.

TEXT 31

wita ã"Apar" oval=zA stauvainta jagAd"lir"ma, naAnaAtanṭaivaDaAnaena
k(laAvaipa taTaA Za{NAu

*iti dvāpara urv-éça stuvanti jagad-éçvaram
nānā-tantra-vidhānena
kalāv api tathā çāëu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; dvāpare—in the Dvāpara age; uru-éça—O King; stuvanti—they praise; jagat-éçvaram—the Lord of the universe; nānā—various; tantra—of scriptures; vidhānena—by the regulations; kalau—in the age of Kali; api—also; tathā—in which manner; çāëu—please hear.

TRANSLATION

O King, in this way people in Dvāpara-yuga glorified the Lord of the universe. In Kali-yuga also people worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead by following various regulations of the revealed scriptures. Now kindly hear of this from me.

PURPORT

The words kalāv api, "in Kali-yuga also," are very important in this verse. It is well known that Kali-yuga is an irreligious age. Thus it is surprising that in such a completely irreligious age the Supreme Lord is worshiped. Therefore it is stated kalāv api, "even in Kali-yuga." In Kali-yuga the incarnation of the Personality of Godhead does not directly assert Himself to be the Personality of Godhead, but rather He is detected by expert devotees in accordance with the revealed Vedic scriptures. Similarly, Prahlāda Mahārāja states in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (7.9.38):

itthaà nā-tiryag-āñi-deva-jhañāvatārair lokān vibhāvayasi hañsi jagat pratēpān dharmaà mahā-puruña pāsi yugānuvāttaç channaù kalau yad abhavas tri-yugo 'tha sa tvam

"In this way, my Lord, You appear in various incarnations as a human being, an animal, a great saintly demigod, a fish or a tortoise, thus maintaining the entire creation in different planetary systems and killing the demoniac principles. According to the age, O my Lord, You protect the principles of religion. In the age of Kali, however, You do not assert Yourself as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and therefore You are known as Triyuga, or the Lord who appears in three yugas." Thus it is understood that it is difficult for common people in Kali-yuga to recognize the incarnation of the Lord since in this age the Lord's appearance is slightly concealed.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura the word nānā-tantra-vidhānena indicates the importance in Kali-yuga of the Vaiñēava scriptures known as the Pañcarātras or Sātvata-pañcarātras. It is stated in the Bhāgavatam, strē-çüdra-dvija-bandhünāà trayē na çruti-gocarā: [SB 1.4.25] in Kali-yuga it is impossible for ordinary people to perform highly technical Vedic sacrifices or the unbearable penances of the mystic yoga system. Such standard Vedic processes are practically inaccessible for the spiritually retarded population of Kali-yuga. Therefore the simple process of glorifying the Personality of Godhead by chanting His holy names is essential in this age. Such devotional processes as chanting the holy names of the Lord and worshiping His Deity form are elaborately described in the Vaiñëava çästras known as Pañ carätras. Such tantric scriptures are referred to in this verse, and it is stated that in Kali-yuga these devotional processes, taught by great äcäryas such as Nārada Muni, are the only practical means for worshipping the Lord. This will be more clearly explained in the following verse.

TEXT 32

k{(SNAvaNA< itvaSaAk{(SNAM s$aAËÿAepaAËÿAñpaASaRd"ma, yaÁaE: s$aAËÿLtaRna'aAyaEr," yajainta ih" s$aumaedDas$a:

kāñëa-varëaà tviñākāñëaà sāi gopāi gāstra-pāññadam yajī aiù sāi kērtana-prāyair yajanti hi su-medhasaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kāñëa-varëam—repeating the syllables kāñ-ëa; tviñā—with a luster; akāñëam—not black (golden); sa-aì ga—along with associates;
upa-aì ga—servitors; astra—weapons; pāññadam—confidential companions;
yajī aiù—by sacrifice; sāi kērtana-prāyaiù—consisting chiefly of congregational chanting; yajanti—they worship; hi—certainly;
su-medhasaù—intelligent persons.

TRANSLATION

In the age of Kali, intelligent persons perform congregational chanting to worship the incarnation of Godhead who constantly sings the names of Kāñëa. Although His complexion is not blackish, He is Kāñëa Himself. He is accompanied by His associates, servants, weapons and confidential companions.

PURPORT

This same verse is quoted by Kāñēadāsa Kavirāja in the Caitanya-caritāmāta, Ādi-līlā, Chapter Three, verse 52. His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda has given the following commentary on this verse. "This text is from Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (11.5.32). Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē has explained this verse in his commentary on the Bhāgavatam known as the Krama-sandarbha, wherein he says that Lord Kāñēa also appears with a golden complexion. That golden Lord Kāñēa is Lord Caitanya, who is worshiped by intelligent men in this age. That is confirmed in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam by Garga Muni, who said that although the child Kāñēa was blackish, He also appears in three other colors—red, white and yellow. He exhibited His white and red complexions in the Satya and Tretā ages respectively. He did not exhibit the remaining color, yellow—gold, until He appeared as Lord Caitanya, who is known as Gaurahari.

"Çréla Jēva Gosvāmē explains that kāñēa-varēam means Çré Kāñēa Caitanya. Kāñēa-varēam and Kāñēa Caitanya are equivalent. The name Kāñēa appears with both Lord Kāñēa and Lord Caitanya Kāñēa. Lord Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, but He always engages in describing Kāñēa and thus enjoying transcendental bliss by chanting and remembering His name and form. Lord Kāñēa Himself appears as Lord Caitanya to preach the highest gospel. Varēayati means 'utters' or 'describes.' Lord Caitanya always chants the holy name of Kāñēa and describes it also, and because He is Kāñēa Himself, whoever meets Him will automatically chant the holy name of Kāñēa and later describe it to others. He injects one with transcendental Kāñēa consciousness, which merges the chanter in transcendental bliss. In all respects, therefore, He appears before everyone as Kāñēa, either by personality or by sound. Simply by seeing Lord Caitanya one at once remembers Lord Kāñēa. One may therefore accept Him as viñēu-tattva. In other words, Lord Caitanya is Lord Kāñēa Himself.

"Sāi gopāi gāstra-pāriadam further indicates that Lord Caitanya is Lord

Kāñëa. His body is always decorated with ornaments of sandalwood and with sandalwood paste. By His superexcellent beauty He subdues all the people of the age. In other descents the Lord sometimes used weapons to defeat the demoniac, but in this age the Lord subdues them with His all-attractive figure as Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé explains that His beauty is His astra, or weapon, to subdue the demons. Because He is all-attractive, it is to be understood that all the demigods lived with Him as His companions. His acts were uncommon and His associates wonderful. When He propagated the saī kértana movement, He attracted many great scholars and ācāryas, especially in Bengal and Orissa. Lord Caitanya is always accompanied by His best associates like Lord Nityānanda, Advaita, Gadādhara and Çrévāsa.

"Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé cites a verse from the Vedic literature that says that there is no necessity of performing sacrificial demonstrations or ceremonial functions. He comments that instead of engaging in such external, pompous exhibitions, all people, regardless of caste, color or creed, can assemble together and chant Hare Kāñëa to worship Lord Caitanya. Kāñëa-varëaà tviñākāñëam [SB 11.5.32] indicates that prominence should be given to the name Kāñëa. Lord Caitanya taught Kāñëa consciousness and chanted the name of Kāñëa. Therefore, to worship Lord Caitanya, everyone should together chant the mahā-mantra—Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare. To propagate worship in churches, temples or mosques is not possible because people have lost interest in that. But anywhere and everywhere, people can chant Hare Kāñëa. Thus worshiping Lord Caitanya, they can perform the highest activity and fulfill the highest religious purpose of satisfying the Supreme Lord.

"Çréla Sārvabhauma Bhaōōācārya, a famous disciple of Lord Caitanya, said: 'The principle of transcendental devotional service having been lost, Çré Kāñëa Caitanya has appeared to deliver again the process of devotion. He is so kind that He is distributing love of Kāñëa. Everyone should be attracted more and more to His lotus feet, as humming bees are attracted to a lotus flower.' "

The incarnation of Caitanya Mahāprabhu is also described in the Ṣṛé Viñēu-sahasra-nāma, which appears in Chapter 189 of the Dāna-dharma-parva of Mahābhārata. Ṣṛéla Jēva Gosvāmé has quoted this reference as follows: suvarēa-varēo hemāi go varāi gaṣ candanāi gadé. "In His early pastimes He appears as a householder with a golden complexion. His limbs are beautiful, and His body, smeared with the pulp of sandalwood, seems like molten gold." He has also quoted, sannyāsa-kāc chamaù ṣānto niñhā-ṣānti-parāyāēaù: "In His later pastimes He accepts the sannyāsa order, and He is equipoised and peaceful. He is the highest abode of peace and devotion, for He silences the impersonalist nondevotees."

TEXT 33

DyaeyaM s$ad"A pair"BavaḥamaBalí"d"AehM" taITaARs$padM" izAvaivair"iĀanautaM zAr"Nyama, Ba{tyaAitaRhM" 'aNAtpaAla BavaAibDapaAetaM vande" mah"Apauṣ&Sa tae car"NAAr"ivand"ma, dhyeyaà sadā paribhava-ghnam abhēñā-dohaà térthāspadaà ṣiva-virīi'ci-nutaà ṣaraēyam bhātyārti-haà praēata-pāla bhavābdhi-potaà vande mahā-puruṇa te caraēāravindam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhyeyam—fit to be meditated upon; sadā—always; paribhava—the insults of material existence; ghnam—which destroy; abhēñā—the true desire of the soul; doham—which amply reward; tértha—of all the holy places and great saintly personalities; āspadam—the abode; ṣiva-virīi'ci—by the greatest of demigods, Lord Ṣiva and Brahmā; nutam—which are bowed down to; ṣaraēyam—most worthy of taking shelter of; bhātya—of Your servants; ārti-ham—which relieve the distress; praēata-pāla—O protector of all who simply offer respects to You; bhava-abdhi—of the ocean of birth and death; potam—which are a suitable boat (for crossing); vande—I offer my homage; mahā-puruṇa—O Lord Mahāprabhu; te—to Your; caraēā-aravindam—lotus feet.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, You are the Mahā-puruṣa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and I worship Your lotus feet, which are the only eternal object of meditation. Those feet destroy the embarrassing conditions of material life and freely award the greatest desire of the soul, the attainment of pure love of Godhead. My dear Lord, Your lotus feet are the shelter of all holy places and of all saintly authorities in the line of devotional service and are honored by powerful demigods like Lord Śiva and Lord Brahmā. My Lord, You are so kind that You willingly protect all those who simply bow down to You with respect, and thus You mercifully relieve all the distress of Your servants. In conclusion, my Lord, Your lotus feet are actually the suitable boat for crossing over the ocean of birth and death, and therefore even Lord Brahmā and Lord Śiva seek shelter at Your lotus feet."

PURPORT

The incarnation of the Personality of Godhead in Kali-yuga is described and worshiped in this verse. The sage Karabhājana, after describing the incarnation of Godhead in each of the three previous yugas-Satya, Tretā and Dvāpara—presented suitable prayers which are utilized for glorifying the Lord in each particular age. After describing the Lord's manifestation in Kali-yuga with the verse kāñēa-varēaṁ tviñākāñēam [SB 11.5.32], this and the next verse are now presented to glorify the Lord's appearance in Kali-yuga as Caitanya Mahāprabhu, kāñēa-varēam. Caitanya Mahāprabhu appears in Kali-yuga and teaches everyone to chant the holy name of Kāñēa. The members of the ISKCON movement are so much absorbed in kāñēa-varēam, or chanting the holy names of Kāñēa, that sometimes ordinary persons refer to them as "the Kāñēas." Thus whoever comes into contact with Caitanya Mahāprabhu's movement immediately begins to worship Kāñēa by chanting His holy name.

The words dhyeyaṁ sadā, or "always to be meditated upon," indicate that there are no hard-and-fast rules in this age for chanting the holy names of Kāñëa. In Kali-yuga the authorized process of meditation is to chant the holy names of the Lord, especially the mantra Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare. This process is to be executed constantly and always (sadā). Similarly, Caitanya Mahāprabhu stated, nāmnām akāri bahudhā nija-sarva-çaktis tatrārpitā niyamitau smaraëe na kālaù: in Kali-yuga, the Supreme Lord has kindly invested all of His potencies in His holy name, and there are no hard-and-fast rules for chanting such names. The mention of such rules refers to kāla-deça-niyama, or regulations of time and place. Normally there are strict regulations governing the time, season, place, conditions, etc., under which one may execute a particular Vedic ceremony or chant a particular mantra. However, one should chant the holy name of Kāñëa everywhere and at all times, twenty-four hours a day. Thus there is no restriction in terms of time and place. This is the meaning of Caitanya Mahāprabhu's statement.

The word paribhava-ghnam is significant in this verse. In Kali-yuga human society is infected with enviousness. There is great envy, even among members of the same family, who constantly quarrel in this age. Similarly, neighbors are envious of each other and of each other's possessions and status. And entire nations, burning with envy, go to war unnecessarily at the risk of genocide caused by terrible modern weapons. But all of these harassments caused by family members, strangers, so-called friends who are unfaithful, opposing nations, financial competition, social disgrace, cancer, etc., can be relieved by taking shelter of the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu. It is not possible to save the material body, but one who takes shelter of Caitanya Mahāprabhu loosens the hard knot of the heart that psychologically binds him to the hallucination of identifying with the external body or the subtle material mind. Once this false identification is broken, one can be blissful in any adverse material condition. Those who foolishly try to make the temporary body eternal are wasting their time and neglecting the actual process for making life permanent, which is to take shelter of the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is Kāñëa Himself.

In this verse the word térthāspadam means that the lotus feet of Caitanya

Mahāprabhu are the shelter of all holy places. As the Kāñëa consciousness movement spreads all over the world, we often find, especially in poor third-world countries, that it is very difficult for people to travel to India to visit the most exalted holy places such as Vāndāvana and Māyāpur. Especially in South America it is very difficult for a large number of devotees to visit such places in India and purify themselves. But Caitanya Mahāprabhu is so merciful that simply by worshiping Him, Vaiñëavas throughout the world receive the benefit of having visited the supreme holy place, namely the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Thus there is no loss for the followers of the Kāñëa consciousness movement, despite their external situation.

In this regard, Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has stated, kalau dravya-deça-kriyādi-janitaà durvāram apāvitryam api nāçaì kanéyam iti bhāvaù. In this age the world is so polluted by sinful life that it is very difficult to become free from all of the symptoms of Kali-yuga. Still, one who is faithfully serving in the missionary work of Caitanya Mahāprabhu need not fear occasional, unavoidable symptoms of Kali-yuga. The followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu strictly follow the four regulative principles of no illicit sex, no intoxication, no meat-eating and no gambling. They try to always chant Hare Kāñëa and engage in the service of the Lord. However, it may happen that by accident an occasional symptom of Kali-yuga such as envy, anger, lust, greed, etc., may momentarily appear in the life of a devotee. But if such a devotee is actually surrendered at the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, by His mercy such an unwanted symptom, or anartha, will quickly disappear. Therefore, a sincere follower of the Lord should never be discouraged in the execution of his prescribed duty but should be confident that he will be protected by Caitanya Mahāprabhu.

It is also mentioned in this verse, çiva-virīci-nutam. Lord Çiva and Lord Brahmā are undoubtedly the two most powerful personalities within this universe. Still, they meticulously worship the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Why? çaraëyam. Even Lord Çiva and Lord Brahmā are not safe without the shelter of the lotus feet of the Lord.

The words bhātyārti-haà praëata-pāla indicate that if one simply bows down without duplicity at the lotus feet of the Lord (praëata), then the Lord will give such a sincere candidate all protection. This verse does not mention that one need be an exalted devotee of the Lord. Rather, it is stated that if one simply bows down at the Lord's lotus feet he will get all protection, and this also applies to anyone who is trying to serve the mission of Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Even the neophyte will get all protection by the mercy of the Lord.

In regard to the words bhavāb̥dhi-potam, or "a suitable boat for crossing the ocean of material existence," there is the following statement by Lord Brahmā and other demigods in the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam: tvat-pāda-potena mahat-kātena kurvanti go-vatsa-padaḥ bhavāb̥dhim. "By accepting Your lotus feet as the boat by which to cross the ocean of nescience, one follows in the footsteps of the mahājanas and can cross that ocean as easily as one steps over the hoofprint of a calf." According to Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé, a follower of Caitanya Mahāprabhu is jēvan-mukta, or a liberated soul. Thus the devotee is not worried about his future destination, for he is confident that the Lord will quickly take him across the ocean of material existence. Such confidence is referred to in the Upadeçāmāta by the word niçcayāt, meaning firm conviction about the potency of the process of devotional service. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura, the statement çiva-virii ci-nutam is also understood to indicate that Caitanya Mahāprabhu is worshiped by Lord Çiva's incarnation Advaita Ācārya and by Lord Brahmā's incarnation Haridāsa Ōhākura.

Caitanya Mahāprabhu is addressed in this verse as mahā-puruṇa, meaning puruṇottama, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Similarly, there is reference to mahāprabhu in the Çvetāçvatara Upaniṇad (3.12), mahān prabhur vai puruṇaḥ sattvasya iṇa pravartakaḥ: "The supreme prabhu is the Personality of Godhead, who is the initiator of the entire cosmos." Similarly, Lord Çré Gaurakāṇēa is addressed by the word mahāpuruṇa in this verse, and the whole intention of this verse is to offer obeisances at His lotus feet. Such lotus feet are the actual eternal object of meditation because they cut off the bondage of material life and fulfill the desires of the devotees. Although the conditioned souls laboring arduously under illusion pursue many temporary goals in life, there is no possibility of their achieving actual bliss or knowledge. Such eternal bliss and knowledge is actually wealth. One should not neglect the lotus feet of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, taking Him to be an ordinary person, and instead accept the temporary, useless shelter offered by the illusory energy of the Lord.

Those yogés who falsely select some other object of meditation besides the lotus feet of the Lord are simply creating obstructions to their own eternal life. When the meditator, the meditation and the object of meditation are all on the eternal platform of the Lord, then actual shelter has been achieved. Generally the conditioned souls are engaged in bhoga-tyāga. Sometimes they run madly after material prestige and sense gratification, and sometimes they desperately try to renounce these things. However, beyond this vicious cycle of alternating sense gratification and renunciation are the lotus feet of the Lord, which constitute the ultimate abode of peace and happiness for the living entity.

The following are additional notes on this verse given by Çrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōhākura.

dhyeyam—the object indicated by the word dhémahi in the Gāyatrī mantra.

térthāspadam—the original shelter of holy places headed by Çré Gauḍakṣetra and Vraja-maēḍala; or the original shelter, namely the lotus feet of the Lord, of the great devotees of the Brahma-sampradāya following in the succession of faithful hearing. The succession of faithful hearing begins with Çrémad Ānandatértha (Madhvācārya) and is continued by the rūpānuga mahā-bhāgavatas, the highly elevated followers of Rūpa Gosvāmī and Caitanya Mahāprabhu.

çiva-virīci-nutam—He who is worshiped by the incarnation of Lord Çiva, Çrémad Advaitācārya Prabhu, and by the incarnation of Lord Virīci, Çrémān Ācārya Haridāsa Prabhu.

bhātyārti-ham—He who destroyed by His causeless mercy the misery of His own servant, the brāhmaēa Vāsudeva, who was afflicted with leprosy in caitanya-lēlā.

bhavābdhi-potam—the means of crossing over the ocean of saṁsāra; or the shelter of those who are freeing themselves from material existence, which afflicts the living entity in the form of hankering for liberation or material enjoyment. Such persons who took advantage of this transcendental boat of the Lord's lotus feet are Sārvabhauma Bhaññācārya, who was saved from mukti-kāma, or desire for liberation, and Pratāparudra Mahārāja, who was saved from bhukti-kāma, or the desire for material opulence.

TEXT 34

tyaftvaA s$auäu"styajas$aure"ips$atar"Ajyala°mal%M DaimaRi" @AyaRvacas$aA yad"gAAAd"r"Nyama, maAyaAma{gAM d"iyatayaeips$atamanvaDaAvaä," vande" mah"Apauç&Sa tae car"NAAr"ivand"ma, tyaktvā su-dustyaja-surepsita-rājya-lakṣmīḥ dharmīṇōha ārya-vacasā yad agād araēyam māyā-māgaḥ dayitayepsitam anvadhāvat vande mahā-puruṇa te caraēāravindam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tyaktvā—abandoning; su-dustyaja—most difficult to give up; sura-ēpsita—anxiously desired by the demigods; rājya-lakṣmīm—the goddess of fortune and her opulence; dharmīṇōha—most perfectly fixed in religiousness; ārya-vacasā—according to the words of a brāhmaēa (who had cursed Him to be deprived of all the happiness of family life); yat—He who; agāt—went; araēyam—to the forest (taking to the renounced order of life); māyā-māgam—the conditioned soul, who is always searching out illusory enjoyment; dayitayā—out of sheer mercy; ēpsitam—His desired object; anvadhāvat—running after; vande—I offer my homage; mahā-puruṇa—O Lord Mahāprabhu; te—to Your; caraēa-aravindam—lotus feet.

TRANSLATION

O Mahā-puruṇa, I worship Your lotus feet. You gave up the association of the goddess of fortune and all her opulence, which is most difficult to renounce and is hankered after by even the great demigods. Being the most faithful follower of the path of religion, You thus left for the forest in obedience to a brāhmaëa's curse. Out of sheer mercifulness You chased after the fallen conditioned souls, who are always in pursuit of the false enjoyment of illusion, and at the same time engaged in searching out Your own desired object, Lord Çyāmasundara.

PURPORT

According to the Vaiṇëava äcäryas, this important verse of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam is understood to describe Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Lord Kāṇëa and also Lord Çré Rāmacandra. This verse appears within the discussion by the sage Karabhājana of the yugāvatāras, or the different incarnations of the Personality of Godhead who deliver the conditioned souls of each age. The prayers ending with the words vande mahāpuruṇa te caraëäravindam are understood to glorify the incarnation of Lord Kāṇëa in Kali-yuga known as Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Caitanya Mahāprabhu lived for twenty-four years in Navadvëpa as a householder and enjoyed immense popularity among both scholars and ordinary persons. His saì kértana movement was completely supported by the local government, even though it was Muslim. And Caitanya Mahāprabhu had the pleasure of marrying the goddess of fortune. No ordinary woman of the material world, no matter how gorgeous she may be, can in any way compare with the beautiful goddess of fortune. Everyone in the universe, including Lord Brahmā, is searching after the goddess of fortune. Therefore it is stated here, surepsita.

However, Caitanya Mahāprabhu is Lord Kāṇëa appearing as a brāhmaëa, and therefore He is certainly dharmiṇōhaù, or the most religious. Actually the Supreme Personality of Godhead is always dharmiṇōhaù, whether He appears as a cowherd boy, a great king or a brāhmaëa, because the Lord Himself is the original source and personification of all religious principles. However, in the pastimes of Caitanya Mahāprabhu there are very few political or economic activities. Caitanya Mahāprabhu appeared as a great philosopher—brāhmaëa, and thus He is certainly dharmiṇōhaù. In Caitanya-caritāmāta, in the Seventeenth Chapter of the Ādi-līlā, it is described that a certain brāhmaëa, who was well known for being harsh and cursing others, could not enter the kértana hall where Caitanya Mahāprabhu was performing kértana because the door was locked. Being very agitated and breaking his brāhmaëa's thread, he cursed Caitanya Mahāprabhu the next day on the bank of the Ganges, saying, "I shall now curse You, for Your behavior has greatly aggrieved me. You shall be bereft of all material happiness." However, Caitanya Mahāprabhu felt great jubilation within Himself, since His mission was vairāgya-vidyā-nija-bhakti-yoga [Cc. Madhya 6.254]—to give up the illusion of material sense gratification and staunchly engage twenty-four hours a day in the devotional service of the Lord. Therefore, Caitanya Mahāprabhu took this curse as a blessing, and soon after, the Lord took sannyāsa. Thus it is stated in this verse that by the words of the Āryan, the brāhmaëa (ārya-vacasā), Caitanya Mahāprabhu took sannyāsa (yad agād araëyam) and went traveling through the different forests of India on the way to Våndāvana, and later South India. Caitanya Mahāprabhu wanted especially to preserve the prestige of the brāhmaëa class, and therefore He decided to keep the brāhmaëa's curse intact.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has explained the word māyā-māgam as follows. Māyā means one's so-called wife, children and bank account, which keep one firmly bound up in the material bodily concept of life. The word māgam indicates māgyati, or "to search out." Thus, māyā-māgam indicates the conditioned living entity, who is always frantically searching for the latest up-to-the-minute sense gratification in the material bodily concept of society, friendship and love. Anvadhāvat indicates that Caitanya Mahāprabhu was always visibly going here and there, searching after the fallen conditioned souls. Caitanya Mahāprabhu would sometimes embrace the conditioned souls on the pretext of religious friendship or ecstasy. But actually, the Lord was touching the bodies of the conditioned souls to pull them out of the ocean of material existence and hurl them into the ocean of ecstatic love of Godhead. Thus Caitanya Mahāprabhu was the most merciful and munificent incarnation of the Lord, whose mercy surpassed the bounds of mundane discrimination in the matter of caste, color and creed.

The word dayitayā can be explained as follows. The Sanskrit word dayā means "mercy." Thus, by grammatical derivation, the word used in this verse, dayitayā, indicates that because of being the most merciful, Caitanya Mahāprabhu was busily engaged in rescuing the fallen conditioned souls, who are completely distracted and bewildered by the external illusory energy of the Lord. The quality of being the most merciful is part and parcel of the character of the mahā-puruṣa, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

According to Ćrēla Jēva Gosvāmē, this verse also describes the incarnation of Lord Kāṇēa Himself in His original blackish form. Thus the words surepsita-rājya-lakṣmēm indicate ćrē-mathurā-sampattim, or the opulence of Mathurā. Mathurā is described in Vedic literature as the reservoir of all opulence because of the touch of the Lord's lotus feet in that precinct. But Kāṇēa, although taking birth in the opulent city of Mathurā, transferred Himself to the forest village of Vāṇḍāvana. In this case the word ārya-vacasā indicates the order of Lord Kāṇēa's original parents, Vasudeva and Devakē. In Ćrēmad-Bhāgavatam (10.3.22, 29) both Vasudeva and Devakē express their fear at the threat of Kaṇṇasa, who had already killed all of Kāṇēa's elder brothers. The word ārya-vacasā thus indicates that with great love they requested Kāṇēa to kindly make some arrangement to avoid Kaṇṇasa. And Kāṇēa, to obey their order, transferred Himself to the forest village of Vāṇḍāvana (yad agād araēyam).

In this context, the words māyā-māgam indicate the special, exalted relationship between Ćrēmatē Rādhārāēē and Ćrē Kāṇēa. Māyā also indicates the internal potency of Kāṇēa, yoga-māyā. The original form of Kāṇēa's internal potency is Ćrēmatē Rādhārāēē. Due to the inconceivable love of Ćrēmatē Rādhārāēē, Lord Kāṇēa becomes easily controlled by Her. Thus, māgam, or "animal" in this case indicates krēḍā-māgam, or "a toy animal." Just as a beautiful young girl may play with so many dolls or stuffed animals, similarly Lord Kāṇēa becomes just like a doll in the hands of the most beautiful young girl, Ćrēmatē-Rādhārāēē. According to Ćrēla Jēva Gosvāmē, Ćrēmatē Rādhārāēē performed innumerable types of worship in order to bind Kāñëa more and more to Her because Çrématé Rādhārāëé cannot live without Kāñëa. Thus, due to Çrématé Rādhārāëé's ārādhana, or worship, Kāñëa can never leave Vāndāvana. He runs here and there in Vāndāvana, protecting the cows, playing with His friends and engaging in countless intrigues of love with Çrématé Rādhārāëé and the gopés. Thus the word anvadhāvat indicates Kāñëa's boyish activities, His running throughout the transcendental land of Vāndāvana, tightly under the control of the love of Çrématé Rādhārāëé.

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé has explained how this verse also describes the incarnation of Lord Çré Rāmacandra. Although the Lord is completely independent and detached from everything, He becomes attached to His pure devotees due to their love for Him. In the great capital of Ayodhyā all of the citizens loved Rāmacandra more than can be described. In this context ārya-vacasā means that by the order of His father, who was just like His guru, Rāmacandra gave up everything and went to the forest. There He exhibited His great affection for mother Sētā and chased after māyā-māgam, or the illusory deer that had been created by the trick of Rāvaëa. That this golden deer was especially desired by Çrématé Sētādevé is indicated by the word dayitayepsitam.

All of the limbs of the Lord's transcendental body are nondifferent and interchangeable, as stated in Brahma-saàhitā (5.32):

aì gāni yasya sakalendriya-vāttimanti paçyanti pänti kalayanti ciraà jaganti ānanda-cinmaya-sad-ujjvala-vigrahasya govindam ādi-puruñaà tam ahaà bhajāmi

All of the limbs (aì gāni) of the Supreme Lord are sakalendriya-vāttimanti, or possessing all of the functions of all of the other limbs. Thus the two lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead are a plenary representation of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and worshiping the Lord's lotus feet immediately places the worshiper in the ocean of transcendental bliss. There is no factual difference in spiritual quality between the incarnations of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Lord Kāñëa and Lord Çré Rāmacandra. As stated in Vedic literatures, advaitam acyutam anādim ananta-rūpam [Bs. 5.33]. Therefore there is no contradiction in the opinions of the ācāryas that this verse wonderfully glorifies three different manifestations of the one Absolute Truth. Caitanya Mahāprabhu is undoubtedly the Supreme Personality of Godhead. His transcendental attributes fulfill in every sense of the term the descriptions of the Absolute Truth as given in Vedic literature. In Caitanya-caritāmāta, in the Third Chapter of the Ādi-līlā, Kāñēadāsa Kavirāja Gosvāmī and Ṣṛēla Prabhupāda have given elaborate explanations of the transcendental status of Ṣṛē Caitanya Mahāprabhu, which the reader can refer to for further information.

Everyone should follow the example of the sage Karabhājana and worship the lotus feet of the Mahāprabhu, the mahā-puruṇa, Ṣṛē Caitanya Mahāprabhu. One should not rot on the platform of mental speculation and whimsical interpretation but should actually revive his lost relationship with the Absolute Truth by surrendering to Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Those who are worshiping Caitanya Mahāprabhu are deriving wonderful spiritual results and are tasting the fruit of love of Kāñēa. Therefore, vande mahā-puruṇa te caraēāravindam: let us humbly bow down at the lotus feet of the original Personality of Godhead, Ṣṛē Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is the mahā-puruṇa glorified within Ṣṛēmad-Bhāgavatam.

Corroborating the explanation of this verse, the followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu also worship Him in His six-armed form of ṇāò-bhuja. Two arms carry the waterpot and daēòā of the sannyāsē Caitanya Mahāprabhu, two arms carry the flute of Lord Kāñēa, and two arms carry the bow and arrow of Ṣṛē Rāmacandra. This ṇāò-bhuja form is the actual purport of this verse of Ṣṛēmad-Bhāgavatam.

TEXT 35

WvaM yaugAAnauè&paAByaAM BagAvaAna, yaugAvaitaRiBa: manaujaEir"jyatae r"Ajana, ™aeyas$aAmalir"Ae h"ir":

*evaà yugānurūpābhyāà
bhagavān yuga-vartibhiù manujair ijjate rājan
çreyasām èçvaro hariù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; yuga-anurūpābhyām—(by particular names and forms) suitable for each age; bhagavān—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; yuga-vartibhiù—by those living in each of the different ages; manujaiù—human beings; ijjate—is worshiped; rājan—O King; çreyasām—of all spiritual benefit; èçvaraù—the controller; hariù—Lord Hari.

TRANSLATION

Thus, O King, the Supreme Lord Hari is the giver of all desirable benefits of life. Intelligent human beings worship the particular forms and names that the Lord manifests in different ages.

PURPORT

The word yugānurūpābhyām is significant here. Anurūpa means "suitable" or "appropriate." The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, anxiously desires that all conditioned living entities come back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. Thus, the Lord reveals Himself in each of the four ages—Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara and Kali—in a form appropriate for worship by the human beings of that age. In his Laghu-bhāgavatāmāta (Pūrva-khaëòa 1.25), Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé states:

kathyate varëa-nāmābhyāà çuklaù satya-yuge hariù raktaù çyāmaù kramāt kāñëas tretāyāà dvāpare kalau

"The Supreme Lord Hari is described in terms of His color and names as çukla [white, or the most pure] in Satya-yuga, and as red, dark blue and black respectively in Tretä, Dväpara and Kali." Thus, although in each age various names suitable for glorifying the Lord are given, such as Haàsa and Suparëa in Satya-yuga, Viñëu and Yajï a in Tretä-yuga, and Väsudeva and Saï karñaëa in Dväpara-yuga, similar names are not given for Kali-yuga, although such names exist, in order to avoid disclosing cheaply the truth of the incarnation of Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu.

In Kali-yuga human society is infested with hypocrisy and superficiality. There is a strong tendency toward imitation and fraud in this age. Therefore the incarnation of Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu is revealed in Vedic literature in a confidential, discrete way, so that it will be known to the authorized persons who can then propagate the mission of the Lord on the earth. We actually see in this modern age that many foolish and ordinary persons claim to be God or incarnations, avatāras, etc. There are many cheap philosophies and academies that promise, for a moderate fee, to make one God in a short time. In America one famous religious group promises its followers that they will all become the Supreme Lord in heaven. Such bogus preaching goes on in the name of Christianity. Thus, were Caitanya Mahäprabhu's name widely spoken of in Vedic literature, there would soon be a veritable plague of imitation Caitanya Mahäprabhus infesting the world.

Therefore, to prevent this pandemonium, discretion is exercised in the Vedic literatures in Kali-yuga, and in a sober, concealed way the actual followers of Vedic culture are informed through the Vedic mantras of the descent of Çré Caitanya Mahäprabhu. This discrete system, selected by the Lord Himself for His appearance in Kali-yuga, is proving to be greatly successful on the earth planet. And throughout the world millions of people are chanting the holy names of Kāñëa without the unbearable harassment of hundreds and thousands of imitation Caitanya Mahäprabhus. Those who seriously desire to approach the Supreme Personality of Godhead can easily understand the Lord's mission, whereas cynical materialistic rascals, puffed up by false prestige and madly considering their insignificant intelligence to be greater than the intelligence of Lord Kāñëa, cannot understand the beautiful arrangements made by the Lord for His graceful descent into the material world. Thus, although Kāñëa is çreyasām éçvaraù, or the Lord of all benedictions, such foolish persons turn away from the Lord's mission and in this way deprive themselves of their own true benefit in life.

TEXT 36

k(ilaM s$aBaAjayantyaAyaAR gAuNA ÁaA: s$aAr"BaAigAna: yaṭa s$aÆyLtaR"naenaEva
s$avaRsvaATaAeR'iBalaByatae

kalià sabhājayanty āryā guëa jī aù sāra-bhāginaù yatra saì kērtanenaiva sarva-svārtho 'bhilabhyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kalim—the age of Kali; sabhājayanti—they praise; āryäù—progressive souls; guëa-jī aù—who know the true value (of the age); sāra-bhāginaù—who are able to pick out the essence; yatra—in which; saì kērtanena—by the congregational chanting of the holy names of the Supreme Lord; eva—merely; sarva—all; sva-arthaù—desired goals; abhilabhyate—are attained.

TRANSLATION

Those who are actually advanced in knowledge are able to appreciate the essential value of this age of Kali. Such enlightened persons worship Kali-yuga because in this fallen age all perfection of life can easily be achieved by the performance of saì kērtana.

PURPORT

It is stated here that among the four ages—Satya, Tretä, Dväpara and Kali—Kali-yuga is actually the best because in this age the Lord mercifully distributes the highest perfection of consciousness, namely Kāñëa consciousness, very freely. The word ärya has been defined by Çrëla Prabhupäda as "one who is advancing spiritually." The nature of an advanced person is to search for the essence of life. For example, the essence of the material body is not the body itself but the spirit soul that is within the body; therefore an intelligent person gives more attention to the eternal spirit soul than to the temporary body. Similarly, although Kali-yuga is considered to be an ocean of contamination, there is also an ocean of good fortune in Kali-yuga, namely the saì kërtana movement. In other words, all of the degraded qualities of this age are completely counteracted by the process of chanting the holy names of the Lord. Thus it is stated in the Vedic language, *dhyäyan kâte yajan yajï ais tretäyâ dväpare 'rcayan yad äpnoti tad äpnoti

kalau saì kërtya keçavam*

"Whatever is achieved in Satya-yuga by meditation, in Tretä by offering ritual sacrifices and in Dväpara by temple worship is achieved in Kali-yuga by chanting the names of Lord Keçava congregationally."

The Vedic process gradually lifts the conditioned entity out of the darkness of ahaì kära, or false identification with the gross material body, and brings him to the platform of self-realization, or aha à brahmäsmi(95), "I am spirit soul. I am eternal." One has to make further progress to discover that although one is eternal, there is a superior eternal entity, who is the Lord Himself within one's own heart and within every atom in the material universe. Beyond this second phase of self-realization there is the third and final stage of perfection, which is realization of Bhagavän, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead, in His own abode.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is not primarily the superintendent of this world but rather the enjoyer of His own world, which is beyond the most fantastic dreams of the conditioned living entity. In other words, although the king or president of a country is ultimately the controller of the prison department, the king or president derives actual pleasure within his own palace and not in administering justice to the foolish prisoners. Similarly, the Lord appoints the demigods to administer the material creation on His behalf while He Himself personally enjoys the ocean of transcendental bliss in His own transcendental kingdom. Thus, realization of the Lord within His own kingdom is far superior to the primitive understanding that the Lord is the "creator" of the prison of the material world. This realization of Bhagavān begins with understanding that there are innumerable Vaikuṇṭha planets in the spiritual sky and that on each of them a particular expansion of Nārāyaṇa dwells with His innumerable devotees who are attached to that particular form. The central and chief planet in the spiritual sky is called Kāṇṭhaloka, and there the Personality of Godhead exhibits His supreme and original form of Govinda. As confirmed by Lord Brahmā, govindam ādi-puruṣaṁ tam ahaṁ bhajāmi . Lord Brahmā also states:

*īṣvaraṁ paramaṁ kāṇṭhaṁ sac-cid-ānanda-vigrahaṁ anādir ādir govindaṁ
 sarva-kāraṇa-kāraṇam
 (Bs. 5.1)*

Thus, love of Kāṇṭha and entrance into Kāṇṭha's planet in the spiritual sky is the most supremely perfect and exalted status of life available anywhere, at any time, throughout the totality of existence. That perfection is available in Kali-yuga simply by chanting the holy names of God: Hare Kāṇṭha, Hare Kāṇṭha, Kāṇṭha Kāṇṭha, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare. Therefore every sane man, woman or child should deeply understand the unprecedented opportunity offered by Caitanya Mahāprabhu and seriously take up this chanting process. Only the most unfortunate and irrational person will neglect this transcendental opportunity.

TEXT 37

na ÷ta: par"maAe laABaAe de"ih"naAM "aAmyataAimah" yataAe ivande"ta par"maAM zAAintaM nazyaita s$ams$a{ita:

*na hy ataù paramo lābho dehināà bhrāmyatām iha yato vindeta paramāà
çāntià naçyati saàsātiù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—there is no; hi—indeed; ataù—than this (process of saì kértana); paramaù—greater; lābhaù—thing to be gained; dehinām—for embodied souls; bhrāmyatām—who are being forced to wander; iha—throughout this material universe; yataù—from which; vindeta—one obtains; paramām—the supreme; çāntim—peace; naçyati—and is destroyed; saàsātiù—the cycle of repeated birth and death.

TRANSLATION

Indeed, there is no higher possible gain for embodied souls forced to wander throughout the material world than the Supreme Lord's saì kértana movement, by which one can attain the supreme peace and free oneself from the cycle of repeated birth and death.

PURPORT

In the Skanda Puräëa, as well as in other Puräëas, there is the following statement: mahā-bhāgavatā nityaà kalau kurvanti kértanam. "During Kali-yuga the great devotees of the Lord always engage in kértana, chanting the Lord's holy names." It is the nature of the Supreme Personality of Godhead to be merciful, and He is especially merciful to those who, in a helpless condition, take complete shelter of His lotus feet. One can immediately take shelter of the lotus feet of the Lord by chanting His holy names. According to Çrédhara Svämé, even in previous ages such as Satya-yuga it was not possible for the living entities to achieve the perfection that is available in Kali-yuga. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has explained this as follows. In former ages such as Satya-yuga human beings were perfectly qualified and easily performed even the most difficult spiritual processes, meditating for many thousands of years practically without eating or sleeping. Thus, although in any age one who completely takes shelter of the Lord's holy name gets all perfection, the highly qualified inhabitants of Satya-yuga do not consider that merely moving the tongue and lips, chanting the Lord's holy name, is a complete process and that the Lord's holy name is the only shelter within the universe. They are more attracted to the difficult and elaborate yoga system of meditation, complete with sophisticated sitting postures, painstaking control of the breath and deep, extended meditations in trance on the Personality of Godhead within the heart. In Satya-yuga sinful life is practically unheard of, and therefore people are not afflicted with the terrible reactions seen in Kali-yuga, such as world war, famine, plague, drought, insanity, etc. Although in Satya-yuga people always worship the Personality of Godhead as the ultimate goal of life and meticulously follow His laws, called dharma, they do not feel themselves to be in a helpless condition, and thus they do not always experience intense love for the Lord.

However, in Kali-yuga living conditions are so unbearable, modern governments are so obnoxious, our bodies are so ridden by physical and mental disease, and even self-preservation is so troublesome, that the conditioned souls intensely cry out the holy name of Kãñëa, begging for relief from the onslaught of this age. The members of the Kãñëa consciousness movement have vivid and unforgettable experiences of the terrible contradictions inherent in human society in this age, and thus they are firmly convinced that there is nothing to be achieved except the mercy of the Supreme Lord. In ISKCON centers throughout the world we observe wonderfully ecstatic kértana performances in which men, women and children from all walks of life chant with startling enthusiasm the holy names of Kãñëa and dance in ecstasy, becoming completely indifferent to so-called public opinion. In America a prominent professor from Oberlin College visited a Hare Kāñëa center in California and was astonished by the enthusiasm with which the devotees chant the holy name of Kāñëa in their congregational performances.

Thus, due to their helpless and pathetic condition, the living entities in Kali-yuga have great impetus to surrender fully to the holy name of Kāñëa, putting all of their hope and faith in the Lord's holy name. Kali-yuga is therefore the best age because in this age, more than in Satya-yuga or other ages, the conditioned souls become disgusted with the kingdom of illusion and surrender fully to the Lord's holy name. This status of full surrender is called paramāñ çāntim, or supreme peace.

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted a passage from the book called Svābhāvya to the effect that a bona fide spiritual master in disciplic succession is able to understand the mentality and capability of his disciples and engage them in worshiping the particular form of the Lord suitable for them. In this way the spiritual master destroys all obstacles in the path of his disciples. The general rule is that one must worship the particular form of the Lord that appears in the current yuga. One may also offer his love and worship to other forms of the Lord that appear in other ages, and specifically one is recommended to chant the holy names of Lord Nāsiñha-deva to get all protection. Practically all of these injunctions are being carried out within the ISKCON movement. Within the Kāñëa consciousness society, men, women and children are all being engaged in worshiping the Lord according to their particular natures. In addition, according to Caitanya Mahāprabhu's order, we are worshiping Balarāma and Kāñëa, who appeared in Dvāpara-yuga, because They are the original Supreme Personality of Godhead. Similarly, by chanting the Daçāvatāra-stotra, jaya jagad-ēça hare, and by reading Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, the members of ISKCON worship all of the plenary expansions of the Personality of Godhead. And after every ārati performance devotional prayers are duly chanted to Lord Nāsiñha-deva for protection of this movement, which is so essential to human society.

TEXTS 38-40

k{(taAid"Sau 'ajaA r"Ajana, k(laAivacC$inta s$amBavama, k(laAE Kalau BaivaSyainta naAr"AyaNApar"AyaNAA:

,(icat,(icanmah"Ar"Aja %"ivaxe"Sau ca BaUir"zA:

taA•apaNAI= nad"I yaṭa k{(tamaAlaA payaisvanal k(Avaer"I ca mah"ApauNyaA
'atalcal ca mah"Anad"I

yae ipabainta jalaM taAs$aAM manaujaA manaujaeir"
'aAyaAe Ba·(A BagAvaita vaAs$aude"vae'malaAzAyaA:

*kâtādiṇu prajā rājan
kalāv icchanti sambhavam kalau khalu bhaviṇyanti nārāyaṇa-parāyaṇau
kvacit kvacin mahā-rāja draviḍeṇu ca bhūriṇau

tāmraparēṇa nade yatra
kātamālā payasvinī
kāverī ca mahā-puṇyā
pratīcī ca mahā-nadī

ye pibanti jalaṁ tāsāṁ manujā manujeṣvara
prāyo bhaktā bhagavati
vāsudeve 'malāṇyau*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kāta-ādiṇu—of Satya and the other earlier ages; prajāu—the inhabitants; rājan—O King; kalau—in Kali-yuga; icchanti—they want;

sambhavam—birth; kalau—in Kali; khalu—certainly; bhaviṇyanti—there will be; nārāyaṇa-parāyaṇāṁ—devotees who dedicate their lives to the service of Lord Nārāyaṇa; kvacit kvacit—here and there; mahā-rāja—O great monarch; draviḍeṇu—in the provinces of South India; ca—but; bhūriṇāṁ—especially plentifully; tāmraparē—named Tāmraparē; nadī—the river; yatra—where; kātamālā—Kātamālā; payasvinī—Payasvinī; kāverī—Kāverī; ca—and; mahā-puṇyā—extremely pious; pratīcī—named Pratīcī; ca—and; mahā-nadī—the Mahānadī; ye—those who; pibanti—drink; jalam—the water; tāsām—of these; manujāṁ—humans; manuja-īśvara—O lord of men (Nimi); prāyaṇāṁ—for the most part; bhaktāṁ—devotees; bhagavati—of the Personality of Godhead; vāsudeva—Lord Vāsudeva; amala-āçayāṁ—having spotless hearts.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, the inhabitants of Satya-yuga and other ages eagerly desire to take birth in this age of Kali, since in this age there will be many devotees of the Supreme Lord, Nārāyaṇa. These devotees will appear in various places but will be especially numerous in South India. O master of men, in the age of Kali those persons who drink the waters of the holy rivers of Draviḍa-deça, such as the Tāmraparē, Krtamālā, Payasvinī, the extremely pious Kāverī and the Pratīcī Mahānadī, will almost all be purehearted devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Vāsudeva.

PURPORT

The Vedas contain information of past, present and future living conditions throughout the universe. This is not very wonderful. For example, although at present time in India we are experiencing spring weather, we know that in the future the torrid summer will come, followed by the rainy season, autumn and eventually winter and a new spring. Similarly, we know that these seasons have occurred repeatedly in the past. Thus, just as ordinary human beings can understand the past, present and future seasons of the earth, the liberated followers of Vedic culture can easily understand the past, present and future conditions of the seasonal ages of the earth and other planets. The inhabitants of Satya-yuga are certainly aware of the conditions of Kali-yuga. They know that in Kali-yuga the difficult material situation forces the living entity to take complete shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and that the inhabitants of Kali-yuga therefore develop a high degree of love of Godhead. Therefore although the inhabitants of Satya-yuga are far more sinless, truthful and self-controlled than the people of other ages, they desire to take birth in Kali-yuga in order to taste pure love of Kāñëä.

Without associating with the devotees of the Lord no one can become an advanced devotee of the Lord. Therefore, since in Kali-yuga other Vedic processes collapse due to the unfavorable condition, and since the only authorized Vedic process is the devotional chanting of the Lord's holy name, which is available to everyone, there will undoubtedly be innumerable Vaiñëavas, or devotees of the Lord, in this age. Birth in this age is very favorable for one who is eager to associate with the devotees. In fact, the Kāñëä consciousness movement is establishing authorized Vaiñëava temples throughout the world so that in innumerable areas one may avail himself of association with pure Vaiñëavas.

Association with the devotees of the Lord is far more valuable than any amount of association with persons who are merely self-controlled, sinless or expert in Vedic scholarship. Therefore it is stated in Çrémad-Bhägavatam (6.14.5):

*muktänäm api siddhänäà näräyaëa-paräyaëaù
su-durlabhaù praçäntätmä koöiñv api mahä-mune*

"O great sage, among many millions who are liberated and perfect in knowledge of liberation, one may be a devotee of Lord Näräyaëa, or Kāñëä. Such devotees, who are fully peaceful, are extremely rare." Similarly, it is stated in Caitanya-caritämâta (Madhya 22.54):

'sädhv-saì ga ', 'sädhv-saì ga '-sarva-çästre kaya lava-mātra sādhu-sai ge sarva-siddhi haya

"The verdict of all revealed scriptures is that by even a moment's association with a pure devotee, one can attain all success."

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé the words kvacit kvacit in the verses under discussion indicate that in Kali-yuga Lord Çré Kāñëa Caitanya will appear in Gauḍa-deça, in the district of Nadia. And from this pivotal point, He will gradually expand the flood of love of Godhead to cover the entire earth. Many exalted devotees such as Çré Advaitäcärya also take birth in Gauḍa-deça.

The process of chanting the holy name of Kāñëa, kāñëa-kértana, is not limited to Kali-yuga. In the Viñëu-dharma, in relation to the story of the fallen son of a kñatriya, it is stated, na deça-niyamas tatra na kälä-niyamas tathä nocchiññädaù niñedhaç ca çré-harer nāmni lubdhakaù

"There is no restriction of place or time, nor any injunction forbidding the accepting of remnants of foods, etc., when one has become greedy to chant the name of Çré Hari." Similarly, it is stated in the Skanda Puräëa, the Viñëu-dharma and the Vaiçäkha-mähätmya section of the Padma Puräëa, cakräyudhasya nāmāni sadä sarvatra kértayet: "The names of the Supreme Lord who has the disc as His weapon should be glorified always and everywhere." Similarly, the Skanda Puräëa states, na deça-kälävasthätma-çuddhy-ädikam apekñate kintu svatantram evaitaà näma kāmīta-käma-dam

"The name of the Lord need not be chanted with regard to place, time, circumstantial conditions, preliminary self-purification or any other factors. Rather, it is completely independent of all other processes and rewards all the desires of those who eagerly chant it." Similarly, it is stated in the Viiñeu-dharma, *kalau kâta-yugaà tasya kalis tasya kâte yuge

yasya cetasi govindo
hâdaye yasya nâcyutaù*

"For one who has Lord Govinda in his heart, Satya-yuga becomes manifest in the midst of Kali, and conversely even Satya-yuga becomes Kali-yuga for one who does not have the infallible Lord in his heart." The holy name of Kâñëa is potent everywhere, at all times and in all circumstances; therefore one should always chant the holy names of the Lord, either in Kali-yuga, Satya-yuga, in heaven, in hell or in Vaikuëöha. Kâñëa's holy name is eternally nondifferent from Him, and Kâñëa is eternally the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus, it is not that the holy name is powerful in this age only because other processes are not effective.

It is also stated in the Çré Viñëu Puräëa that chanting the holy names of the Lord is far more potent than simply trying to remember the Lord through meditation. In Çrémad-Bhägavatam (2.1.11), Çukadeva Gosvämé has stated, *etan nirvidyamänänäm icchatäm akuto-bhayam yoginäà nâpa nirëëtaà

harer nāmānukértanam*

"O King, constant chanting of the holy name of the Lord after the ways of the great authorities is the doubtless and fearless way of success for all, including those who are free from all material desires, those who are desirous of all material enjoyment, and also those who are self-satisfied by dint of transcendental knowledge." In his commentary on this verse in the Bhägavatam, Çréla Prabhupäda has written: "According to Çré Çukadeva Gosvämé, this way of attaining success [chanting the holy name] is an established fact, concluded not only by him, but also by all other previous ācāryas. Therefore there is no need of further evidence." The reader may consult Çréla Prabhupāda's purport to this verse for a detailed explanation of the chanting of the holy name of the Lord and the offenses to be avoided in such chanting.

In the Vaiñëava-cintāmaëi there is the following statement:

*agha-cchit smaraëaà viñëor bahv-äyäsena sādhyate oñõha-spandana-mātreëa
kértanaà tu tato varam*

"Although capable of destroying all sins, the remembrance of Lord Viñëu is achieved only with extraordinary effort. On the other hand, one may perform kāñëa-kértana simply by moving one's lips, and thus this process is superior." Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has also quoted the following verse:

*yena janma-çataiù pürvaà väsudevaù samārcitaù tan-mukhe hari-nāmāni
sadā tiñõhanti bhārata*

"O descendant of Bharata, the holy names of Lord Viñëu are always vibrating in the mouth of one who has previously worshiped Väsudeva perfectly for hundreds of lifetimes." The same idea is conveyed in the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam by Çrématé Devahüti in her statement to her son, Kapila:

aho bata çva-paco 'to garéyān yaj-jihvägre vartate nāma tubhyam tepus tapas te juhuvuù sasnur äryä brahmānūcur nāma gāëanti ye te

"Oh, how glorious are they whose tongues are chanting Your holy name! Even if born in the families of dog-eaters, such persons are worshipable. Persons who chant the holy name of Your Lordship must have executed all kinds of austerities and fire sacrifices and achieved all the good manners of the Aryans. To be chanting the holy name of Your Lordship, they must have bathed at holy places of pilgrimage, studied the Vedas and fulfilled everything required." (SB 3.33.7)

Therefore, Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has concluded that it is possible to perform kértana equally in all ages. In Kali-yuga, however, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, by His causeless mercy, personally induces the living entities to take the holy name. Bhaktivinoda Öhäkura has thus quoted the Lord as follows:

enechi auñadhi mäsya näçibära lägi' hari-näma mahä-mantra lao tumi mägi'

"O conditioned souls who are foolishly sleeping on the lap of the witch Mäsya, I have brought an excellent medicine to cure the disease of your illusion. This medicine is called hari-näma. It is My holy name, and by taking this medicine you will get all perfection in life. Therefore, I sincerely request you to please take this medicine that I have personally brought for you."

In verse 32 of this chapter it was stated, yajñi aiù sañ kértana-präyair yajanti hi su-medhasaù. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé the words sañ kértana-präyair, which mean "mainly by the process of sañ kértana," indicate that although other processes such as Deity worship may be performed to some extent in Kali-yuga, such processes, in order to be successful, must be favorably connected with the chanting of the holy names of the Lord. One who is performing worship of the Kåñëa Deity should know that the most essential part of such Deity worship is constant chanting of the holy names of the Lord. On the other hand, one who has perfectly chanted the holy name of the Lord need not depend on other processes, as expressed in the following famous mantra:

*harer näma harer näma
harer nämaiva kevalam kalau nästy eva nästy eva nästy eva gatir anyathä*

[Cc. Ādi 17.21]

"In this age of Kali there is no alternative, there is no alternative, there is no alternative for spiritual progress other than the holy name, the holy name, the holy name of the Lord." (Bāhan-nāradēya Purāṇa 38.126) As proved by all of these evidences, the statement in the Bhāgavatam (kaliṁ sabhājayanty āryāu) that spiritually advanced persons worship the age of Kali due to the facilities offered in this age by the Lord is not at all contradictory.

At the end of verse 40 in this chapter it is stated, prāyo bhaktā bhagavati vāsudeve 'malāṣayāu: in general those who are able to regularly drink the waters of the holy rivers of South India will be pure-hearted devotees of Lord Vāsudeva. The word prāyaū, or "in general" indicates that those who are offensive to the Lord's devotees, although claiming themselves to be devotees, are not included within the list of amalāṣayāu, or purehearted souls. Ṣṛēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura has pointed out that one should not be bewildered by seeing the apparently poverty-stricken condition of the inhabitants of South India. Even nowadays the inhabitants of the places mentioned in this verse generally spend their days with meager eating and clothing and live as great renounced devotees of the Supreme Lord. In other words, clothes do not make the man. To live as a polished animal, dressing oneself luxuriously and gratifying the tongue with rich foodstuffs, is not the actual symptom of an advanced transcendentalist. Although the residents of South India are generally Ṣṛē Vaiṇēavas, or devotees in the Lakṣmē-sampradāya, they are recognized as devotees of the Lord by the followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu. According to Ṣṛēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura, their austere living conditions should be taken as a good qualification, not a disqualification.

TEXT 41

de"vaiSaRBaUtaAæana{NAAM ipata|NAAM na ik(Æÿr"Ae naAyama{NAI ca r"Ajana, s$avaARtmanaA ya: zAr"NAM zAr"NyaM gAtaAe mauku(ndM" pair"ô$tya k(taRma, devarñi-bhütäpta-nâëääà pitèëääà na kiì karo näyam âëé ca räjan sarvätmanä yaù çaraëääà çaraëyaà gato mukundaà parihâtya kartam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deva-of the demigods; ânî-of the sages; bhüta-of ordinary living entities; äpta-of friends and relatives; nâëäm-of ordinary men; pitèëäm-of the forefathers; na-not; kiì karaù-the servant; na—nor; ayam—this one; âëé—debtor; ca—also; räjan—O King; sarva-ätmanä—with his whole being; yaù—a person who; çaraëam—shelter; çaraëyam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who affords shelter to all; gataù—approached; mukundam—Mukunda; parihâtya—giving up; kartam—duties.

TRANSLATION

O King, one who has given up all material duties and has taken full shelter of the lotus feet of Mukunda, who offers shelter to all, is not indebted to the demigods, great sages, ordinary living beings, relatives, friends, mankind or even one's forefathers who have passed away. Since all such classes of living entities are part and parcel of the Supreme Lord, one who has surrendered to the Lord's service has no need to serve such persons separately.

PURPORT

One who has not fully surrendered to the devotional service of the Lord undoubtedly has many material duties to perform. Every ordinary conditioned soul is the recipient of innumerable benefits given by the demigods, who provide sun and moonshine, rain, wind, food and, ultimately, one's own material body. In Bhagavad-gétä it is stated, stena eva saù: [Bg. 3.12] one who does not reciprocate with the demigods by offering them sacrifice is stena, or a thief. Similarly, other living entities such as cows are providing us with innumerable delicious and nutritious foodstuffs. When we wake up in the morning our mind is refreshed by the sweet singing of birds, and on a hot day we enjoy the cool shade and breeze of the forest trees. We are accepting service from innumerable living entities, and we are obligated to repay them. Āpta means one's own family members, to whom one is certainly obligated according to normal morality, and nâëäm means human society. Until one becomes a devotee of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one is certainly a product of his society. We receive mundane education, culture, tradition and protection from the society in which we live, and thus we owe a great debt to society. Of course, our debt to society is not simply to the present order but to all of our forefathers and ancestors who carefully preserved moral and social customs so that we, their descendants, could live peacefully. Therefore the word pitëëäm, or "forefathers," indicates our debt to previous generations.

In fact, the members of the Kâñëa consciousness society are sometimes criticized by materialistic persons for giving too much attention to Kâñëa rather than working to fulfill all of the above-mentioned obligations. In reply to this, the Bhāgavatam (4.31.14) states, yathā taror mūla-niñecanena tāpyanti tat-skandha-bhujopaçākhāu. If one waters the root of a tree, automatically all of the branches, twigs, leaves, etc., are also nourished. There is no need for, nor any effectiveness in, separately pouring water on the branches, twigs and leaves of a tree. The water has to be placed on the root. Similarly, prāëopahārāc ca yathendriyāëäm: food must be placed in the stomach, from where it is automatically distributed to all of the limbs of the body. It is foolish to try to nourish the whole body by rubbing food separately on all the bodily limbs. Similarly, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kâñëa, is the source of all existence. Everything is emanating from Kâñëa, everything is maintained by Kâñëa, and at the end, everything will merge to rest in Kâñëa. The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kâñëa, is the supreme benefactor, friend, protector and well-wisher of every living entity, and if He is satisfied, then automatically the whole world will become satisfied, just as all of the bodily limbs are strengthened and satisfied when food is duly remitted to the stomach.

The example can be given that a man who is working as the personal secretary to a great king has no further obligation to petty minor kings. Undoubtedly an ordinary person has many obligations within this material world. But according to Bhagavad-gētā, mayāiva vihitān hi tām: it is actually the Supreme Lord who is giving all benedictions. For example, one receives one's body by the mercy of one's parents. However, sometimes we find that a particular man or woman may become impotent at a given moment. Sometimes a deformed child is born, and sometimes a child is born dead. Often the sexual act fails to produce pregnancy at all. So although all parents desire a beautiful, highly qualified child, this is often not the case. Thus it can be understood that ultimately it is by the mercy of the Supreme Lord that a man and woman are able to produce a child by the sexual act. It is by the Lord's mercy that the man's seminal injection is potent and the woman's ovum is fertile. Similarly, it is only by the mercy of the Lord that the child is born in a healthy condition and reaches physical maturity to pursue his own life. If at any stage in the evolution of a human being the Lord's mercy is withdrawn, sudden death or crippling disease occurs.

The demigods are also not independent. The words parihātya kartam, "giving up other duties," indicate that one should give up any concept that the demigods are separate from Kāñēa. It is clearly stated in Vedic literature that the demigods are different limbs of the universal body of the Supreme Lord. Further, it is stated in Bhagavad-gētā that the Supreme Lord is situated in everyone's heart and that He only is giving intelligence and memory. Thus, our forefathers who carefully preserved cultural traditions were acting with intelligence provided by the Supreme Lord. They certainly were not acting with their own independent intelligence. No one can be intelligent without a brain, and it is only by Kāñēa's mercy that we receive a human brain. Therefore, if we carefully analyze all of our multifarious obligations toward different classes of living entities, we shall find that in each and every case it is ultimately by the mercy of the Supreme Personality of Godhead that we have received a particular benediction in life. So although an ordinary person must methodically fulfill all of his various obligations by executing different types of sacrifices and charitable activities for the satisfaction of those who have benefited him, one who is directly serving the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñēa, at once fulfills all such obligations because all benedictions ultimately have come from the Lord through the agency of family, forefathers, demigods, etc.

The example may be given that sometimes a state government may distribute benefits originally provided by the federal government. So one who becomes the personal secretary or minister to the chief executive of the federal government has no further obligation to the less important representatives of the state government. Therefore, it is stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (11.20.9):

*tāvat karmāëi kurveta
na nirvidyeta yāvatā
mat-kathā-çravaëädau vä
çraddhā yāvan na jāyate*

"As long as one is not satiated by fruitive activity and has not awakened his taste for devotional service by hearing and chanting about the Supreme Lord, one has to act according to the regulative principles of the Vedic injunctions." The conclusion is that one who has fully surrendered to the devotional service of the Supreme Lord is a first-class human being.

People in general are only eager to receive benedictions from demigods, family members and society because such benedictions are conducive to material sense gratification. Less intelligent persons consider such material progress to be the only goal of life and thus cannot appreciate the exalted position of pure devotional service to the Lord. Bhakti-yoga, or pure devotional service, is meant to directly please the senses of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Envious materialistic persons propose various arguments to deny that the Supreme Lord even has transcendental senses. The devotees, however, do not waste time doubting the inconceivable beauty, strength, wealth and geniality of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, but directly please the Lord's senses through loving service and thus receive the supreme benediction of going back home, back to Godhead. The devotees return to the Lord's abode, where life is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge. No demigod, family member or forefather can give one an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. However, if one foolishly neglects the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord and instead accepts the temporary material body to be everything, then one must certainly perform elaborate sacrifices, austerities and charity and fulfill all of the obligations mentioned above. Otherwise, one becomes completely sinful and condemned, even from the material point of view.

TEXT 42

svapaAd"maUlamBajata: i'ayasya tya·(AnyBaAvasya h"ir": pare"zA: ivak(maR ya»aAetpaitataM k(TaiÂä," DaunaAeita s$ava< ô$id" s$ai^aaivaí":

sva-pāda-mūlam bhajataù priyasya tyaktānya-bhāvasya hariù pareṣaù vikarma yac cotpatitaà kathai' cid dhunoti sarvaà hādi sanniviñāaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sva-pāda-mūlam—the lotus feet of Kāñēa, the shelter of the devotees; bhajataù—who is engaged in worshiping; priyasya—who is very dear to Kāñēa; tyakta—given up; anya—for others; bhāvasya—of one whose disposition or inclination; hariù—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; para-ēṣaù—the Supreme Lord; vikarma—sinful activities; yac—whatever; ca—and; utpatitam—occurred; kathai' cit—somehow; dhunoti—removes; sarvam—all; hādi—in the heart; sanniviñāaù—entered.

TRANSLATION

One who has thus given up all other engagements and has taken full shelter at the lotus feet of Hari, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is very dear to the Lord. Indeed, if such a surrendered soul accidentally commits some sinful activity, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is seated within everyone's heart, immediately takes away the reaction to such sin.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was clearly described that a fully surrendered devotee of the Supreme Lord has no need to perform ordinary, worldly duties. Now in this verse it is revealed that devotional service is so pure and potent that a surrendered devotee of the Lord has no need to perform any other purificatory process. As described in the Sixth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, a surrendered devotee has no need to perform prāyaścitta, or atonement for an accidental falldown into sinful activity. Since devotional service is itself the most purifying process, a sincere devotee who has accidentally stumbled on the path should immediately resume his pure devotional service at the lotus feet of the Lord. And thus the Lord will protect him, as stated in Bhagavad-gētā (9.30):

api cet su-durācāro bhajate mām ananya-bhāk sādhur eva sa mantavyaù samyag vyavasito hi saù

The word tyaktānya-bhāvasya in this verse is very significant. As stated in the previous verse, a pure devotee realizes clearly that all living entities, including Brahmā and Çiva, are part and parcel of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and thus have no separate or independent existence. Realizing that everything and everyone is part and parcel of the Lord, a devotee automatically is not inclined to commit sinful activities by violating the order of God. However, due to the powerful influence of material nature, even a sincere devotee may be temporarily overwhelmed by illusion and deviate from the rigid path of pure devotional service. In such a case, Lord Kāñëa Himself, acting within the heart, removes such sinful activities. Even Yamarāja, the lord of death, has no power to punish a surrendered devotee who has accidentally committed sinful activities. As stated here, Kāñëa is pareça, or the Supreme Lord, and all secondary lords such as the demigods cannot threaten the Lord's personal devotees. In his youth Ajāmila had been a pious brāhmaëa engaged in the service of the Lord. Then, by bad association with a prostitute, he became practically the most degraded man in the world. At the end of his life, Yamarāja sent his Yamadūtas to drag away the soul of the sinful Ajāmila, but the Personality of Godhead immediately sent His personal associates to save Ajāmila and demonstrate to Yamarāja that no secondary personality can disturb the personal devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā, kaunteya pratijānēhi na me bhaktaṁ praëaṣyati [Bg. 9.31].

The argument may be raised that the smāti-çāstra states, çruti-smāti mamaivāji'e: the Vedic scriptures are the direct orders of the Personality of Godhead. Therefore, one may ask, how can the Lord tolerate that His orders be occasionally neglected, even by His devotees? To answer this possible objection, the word priyasya is used in this verse. The devotees of the Lord are very dear to the Lord. Although the beloved child may accidentally commit an abominable activity, the loving father forgives the child, taking into consideration the actual good intentions of the child. Thus, although the devotee of the Lord does not try to exploit the Lord's mercy by requesting the Lord to free him from any future suffering, the Lord, by His own initiative, frees the devotee from the reactions to accidental falldowns.

This causeless mercy of the Lord upon His devotee is His paramaiçvaryam, or supreme opulence. Gradually the faithful devotee becomes free, even from accidental falldown, because simply by remembering the lotus feet of the Lord, what to speak of by actively rendering service to Him, his heart is purified. Although the surrendered devotees of the Personality of Godhead may sometimes appear to be affected by mundane attitudes, they are inevitably protected by the merciful Lord and are never actually defeated in life.

TEXT 43

™alNaAr"d" ovaAca
DamaARna, BaAgAvataAinatTaM ™autvaATa imaiTalaer":
jaAyantaeyaAnmaunaIna, 'alta:

s$AepaADyaAyaAe ÷paUjayata,

çré-nārada uvāca
dharmān bhāgavatān itthaṇ çrutvātha mithileçvaraù jāyanteyān munén prētaù sopādhyāyo hy apūjayat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-nāradaù uvāca—Nārada Muni said; dharmān bhāgavatān—the science of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ittham—in this manner; çrutvā—having heard; atha—then; mithilā-ēçvaraù—the master of the kingdom of Mithilā, King Nimi; jāyanteyān—to the sons of Jayanté; munén—sages; prētaù—being satisfied; sa-upādhyāyaù—along with the priests; hi—indeed; apūjayat—he offered worship.

TRANSLATION

Nārada Muni said: Having thus heard the science of devotional service, Nimi, the King of Mithilā, felt extremely satisfied and, along with the sacrificial priests, offered respectful worship to the sagacious sons of Jayanté.

PURPORT

The word jāyanteyān indicates the nine Yogendras, who were born from the womb of Jayanté, the wife of Ānabhadeva.

TEXT 44

tataAe'ntadR"iDare" is$aÜ"A: s$avaRlaAek(sya pazyata:
r"AjaA DamaARnaupaAitaï"ªa, @vaApa par"maAM gAitama,

tato 'ntardadhire siddhäu sarva-lokasya paçyataù rājā dharmān upātinōhann avāpa paramāḥ gatim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tataù—then; antardadhire—they disappeared; siddhäu—the perfect sages headed by Kavi; sarva-lokasya—all those present; paçyataù—as they were watching; rājā—the King; dharmān—these principles of spiritual life; upātinōhan—faithfully following; avāpa—he achieved; paramām—the supreme; gatim—destination.

TRANSLATION

The perfect sages then disappeared before the eyes of everyone present. King Nimi faithfully practiced the principles of spiritual life he had learned from them, and thus he achieved the supreme goal of life.

TEXT 45

tvamapyetaAnmah"ABaAgA DamaARna, BaAgAvataAna, TMautaAna, @AisTata: TMaÜ"yaA yau.(Ae ina:s$aËÿAe yaAsyas$ae par"ma,

tvam apy etān mahā-bhāga dharmān bhāgavatān çrutān āsthitaù çraddhayā yukto niūsai go yāsyase param

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—you (Vasudeva); api—also; etān—these; mahā-bhāga—O most fortunate one; dharmān—principles; bhāgavatān—of devotional service; çrutān—which you have heard; āsthitaù—situated in; çraddhayā—with faith; yuktaù—endowed; niùsaì gaù—free from material association; yäsyase—you will go; param—to the Supreme.

TRANSLATION

O greatly fortunate Vasudeva, simply apply with faith these principles of devotional service which you have heard, and thus, being free from material association, you will attain the Supreme.

PURPORT

Nārada Muni related to Kāñëa's father, Vasudeva, the story of the enlightenment of King Nimi. Now Nārada reveals that Vasudeva himself will also achieve the supreme perfection of life by practicing the same principles spoken long ago by the nine Yogendras. Actually, Vasudeva was already a personal associate of the Supreme Lord, but due to his natural humility as a great devotee, he was determined to perfect his love of Kāñëa. Thus we can observe the exalted status of the parents of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Ordinary persons feel that the Supreme Lord is always to be worshiped as the supreme father who supplies everything for the living entities. Such an attitude is not the perfection of love of Godhead, because when a son is young he is incapable of giving much service to his mother and father. When the child is very young, it is rather the parents who are constantly serving the child. So when the devotee takes the role of mother or father of Kāñëa, there is unlimited opportunity for rendering loving service to the Lord, whom the devotee ecstatically accepts as his son. It was Vasudeva's good fortune that Nārada Muni personally revealed to him the wonderful teachings given by the nava-yogendras long, long ago to the saintly King Nimi.

TEXT 46

yauvayaAe: Kalau d"mpatyaAer," yazAs$aA paUir"taM jagAta, pauṭataAmagAmaâ"AM BagAvaAnalir"Ae h"ir":

*yuvayoù khalu dampatyor yaçasä pūritaà jagat
putratām agamad yad vāà bhagavān ēçvaro hariù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yuvayoù—of the two of you; khalu—indeed; dam-patyò—of the husband and wife; yaçasä—by the glories; pūritam—has become full; jagat—the earth; putratām—the state of being the son; agamat—assumed; yat—because; vām—your; bhagavān—the Personality of Godhead; ēçvaraù—the Supreme Lord; hariù—Hari.

TRANSLATION

Indeed, the whole world has become filled with the glories of you and your good wife because the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Hari, has taken the position of your son.

PURPORT

In this verse Nārada Muni hints at the glories of Vasudeva and Devaké, the parents of Kāñëa and Balarāma, by the words yaçasä pūritaà jagat, "the whole world is now filled with your glories." In other words, although Vasudeva inquired from Nārada about spiritual advancement, Nārada here states, "You are already completely glorious due to your extraordinary devotion to the Supreme Personality of Godhead."

TEXT 47

d"zARnaAilaËÿnaAlaApaE:

zAyanaAs$anaBaAejanaE: @AtmaA vaAM paAivata: k{(SNAe pauṭaṁaehM" 'aku(vaRtaAe:

darṣanāliḥ ganālāpaiu ṣayanāsana-bhojanaiu
ātmā vām pāvitaū kâñēe
putra-snehaà prakurvatoū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

darṣana—by seeing; āliḥ gana—embracing; ālāpaiu—and conversing; ṣayana—in taking rest; āsana—sitting; bhojanaiu—and eating; ātmā—the hearts; vām—of you two; pāvitaū—have become purified; kâñēe—for Lord Kâñēa; putra-sneham—the affection toward a son; prakurvatoū—who were manifesting.

TRANSLATION

My dear Vasudeva, you and your good wife Devaké have manifested great transcendental love for Kâñēa, accepting Him as your son. Indeed, you are always seeing the Lord, embracing Him, speaking with Him, resting with Him, sitting together with Him and taking your meals with Him. By such affectionate and intimate association with the Lord, undoubtedly both of you have completely purified your hearts. In other words, you are already perfect.

PURPORT

The words ātmā vām pāvitaū in this verse are very significant. Ordinary conditioned souls are required to purify their existence by practicing the regulative principles of bhakti-yoga and learning how to offer all of their activities in the devotional service of the Lord. Such a regulative, gradual process, however, cannot be applied to those exalted souls who are personally attending the Lord as His parents, boyfriends, girl friends, advisors, sons, etc. Due to Vasudeva and Devaké's intense love for Kâñēa as their son, they had already achieved the highest perfectional stage of life. Although in the previous verse Çré Nārada Muni informed Vasudeva that he and his wife had become glorious by Kāñëa's taking birth as their son, Vasudeva might have argued that other personal associates of the Lord, such as Jaya and Vijaya, had fallen down due to offending the brāhmaëa class. Therefore, in the present verse Nārada has used the word pāvitaù: "You are completely purified, and therefore you are completely free from the slightest trace of discrepancy in your devotional service, due to your intense love for Kāñëa."

It is understood from the commentary of Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura that Çré Vasudeva, Kāñëa's pastime father, is actually an eternally liberated nitya-siddha associate of the Personality of Godhead. Vasudeva has a spiritual body, just as Kāñëa does, and he is always merged in the overwhelming ecstatic desire to serve Kāñëa, his beautiful son. However, Nārada could understand that due to extreme humility, Vasudeva considered himself an ordinary human being and was feeling very anxious to receive transcendental instructions on the devotional service of the Lord. Accepting the ecstatic humility of Vasudeva, and to relieve his anxiety, Çré Nārada Muni instructed him in the science of bhakti-yoga as one might instruct an ordinary human being. However, at the same time Nārada has revealed that actually Çré Vasudeva and Devaké are already completely glorious by their unprecedented fortune of having Kāñëa and Balarāma as their sons. Therefore, Nārada is telling Vasudeva, "My dear Vasudeva, do not in any way be discouraged or doubtful about your position. Undoubtedly you are immediately going back home, back to Godhead. And actually you and your good wife are the most fortunate persons."

In conclusion, everyone should become fortunate by fully developing his dormant love for Kāñëa. Many terrible demons who opposed Kāñëa eventually achieved a happy state of life by their association with Kāñëa. Therefore there is no doubt about the supreme bliss achieved by the loving devotees of the Lord who day and night can only think of pleasing Kāñëa.

TEXT 48

vaEre"NA yaM na{pataya: izAzAupaAlapaAENx")- zAAIvaAd"yaAe gAitaivalaAs$aivalaAek(naAâE: DyaAyanta @Ak{(taiDaya: zAyanaAs$anaAd"AE tats$aAmyamaApaur"naur".(iDayaAM pauna: ik(ma, vaireëa yaà nâpatayaù çicupâla-pauëòra-çälvâdayo gati-vilâsa-vilokanâdyaiù dhyâyanta âkâta-dhiyaù çayanâsanâdau tat-sâmyam âpur anurakta-dhiyâà punaù kim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vaireëa—with envy; yaM—whom (Lord Kâñëa); nâ-patayaù—kings;
çicupâla-pauëòra-çälva-âdayaù—like Çicupâla, Pauëòraka, Çälva, etc.; gati—upon His movements; vilâsa—sporting; vilokana—glances;
âdyaiù—and so forth; dhyâyantaù—meditating; âkâta—thus fixed;
dhiyaù—their minds; çayana—in the activities of lying down;
âsana-âdau—sitting, and so on; tat-sâmyam—a position on the same level with Him (that is, a position in the eternal, spiritual world); âpuù—they achieved; anurakta-dhiyâm—for those whose minds are naturally attached in a favorable way; punaù kim—what to speak of in comparison.

TRANSLATION

Inimical kings like Çicupâla, Pauëòraka and Çälva were always thinking about Lord Kâñëa. Even while they were lying down, sitting or engaging in other activities, they enviously meditated upon the bodily movements of the Lord, His sporting pastimes, His loving glances upon His devotees, and other attractive features displayed by the Lord. Being thus always absorbed in Kâñëa, they achieved spiritual liberation in the Lord's own abode. What then can be said of the benedictions offered to those who constantly fix their minds on Lord Kâñëa in a favorable, loving mood?

PURPORT

On the eve of the disappearance of Lord Kāñëa from this world, Vasudeva became filled with lamentation thinking that he had not properly utilized the opportunity of the Lord's personal presence to become perfectly Kāñëa conscious. However, Nārada Muni assured Çré Vasudeva that the glories of Vasudeva and his good wife Devaké were chanted throughout the universe because even the demigods worshiped the exalted status of the Lord's own parents. Vasudeva was not only concerned about his own spiritual position, but he also lamented for the Yadu dynasty, which had left the world in an apparently inauspicious way, being cursed by great brāhmaëas such as Nārada and dying in a fratricidal war. Although the members of the Yadu dynasty were personal associates of the Lord, their disappearance from the earth was apparently inauspicious, and therefore Vasudeva was concerned about their eventual destination. So Nārada here assures Vasudeva that even the demons who opposed Kāñëa, such as Çiçupāla, Pauëòraka and Çälva, achieved promotion to the Lord's own abode because of their constant absorption in thinking of Kāñëa. Therefore what to speak of the exalted members of the Yadu dynasty who actually loved Kāñëa more than anything (anurakta-dhiyäm punaù kim)? Similarly, it is stated in the Garuòa Puräëa, aji' äñinaù sura-varaà samadhikñipanto yaà päpino 'pi çicupāla-suyodhanādyäù muktià gatäù smaraëa-mātra-vidhüta-päpäù kaù saàçayaù parama-bhaktimatäà janänäm

"Even foolish sinners like Çiçupāla and Duryodhana who showered abuse upon the Lord were cleansed of all sins simply by remembering Lord Kāñëa. Somehow or other their minds were absorbed in the Lord, and thus they attained liberation. What doubt then is there about the destination of those who are overwhelmed with devotional feelings for the Lord?"

Vasudeva was also feeling anxiety because on the one hand he was aware that Kāñëa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, but at the same time he treated the Lord as his beloved son. In the relationship between the father and son, sometimes the father must chastise the son and restrict him in various ways. In this way Vasudeva was feeling that undoubtedly he had offended the Lord in his attempt to train Lord Kāñëa as his son. However, Lord Kāñëa is actually pleased when a pure devotee becomes absorbed in parental love for Him and thus devotedly tries to care for Him just as loving parents care for a small child. Kāñëa reciprocates the intense devotional feelings of such devotees by actually appearing before them as a young boy and acting just like their son.

As mentioned in this verse, the demons actually chastised Kāñëa with feelings of enmity. Nevertheless, such demons attained liberation due to their absorption in Kāñëa. Therefore, what to speak of the destination of Vasudeva, who chastised Kāñëa due to his overwhelming parental love for Him? The conclusion is that the devotees of the Lord should never consider Vasudeva and Devaké to be ordinary, conditioned souls. Their relationship with Lord Kāñëa is completely on the transcendental platform of vātsalya-rasa, or parental love for the Personality of Godhead. It has nothing to do with the parental love of the material world, which is based on a mood of sense gratification, since the parents see their children as objects of material enjoyment.

TEXT 49

maApatyabauü"mak{(TaA:
k{(SNAe s$avaARtmanalire" maAyaAmanauSyaBaAvaena
gAUXE#iyaeR pare"vyayae

māpatya-buddhim akāthāu kāñëe sarvātmanéçvare māyā-manuñya-bhāvena
gūòhaiçvare pare 'vyaye

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mā—do not; apatya-buddhim—the idea of being your son; akāthāu—impose; kāñëe—on Kāñëa; sarva-ātmani—the Supreme Soul of all; éçvare—the Personality of Godhead; māyā—by His power of illusion; manuñya-bhāvena—appearing as if an ordinary person; gūḍha-aīṣvare—hiding His opulence; pare—the Supreme; avyaye—infallible.

TRANSLATION

Do not think of Kāñēa as an ordinary child, because He is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, inexhaustible and the Soul of all beings. The Lord has concealed His inconceivable opulences and is thus outwardly appearing to be an ordinary human being.

PURPORT

Lord Çré Kāñēa is the original source of all plenary incarnations of the Absolute Truth. Kāñēas tu bhagavān svayam [SB 1.3.28]. His unlimited transcendental opulences are inexhaustible, and thus He very easily brings the entire creation under His personal control. Lord Kāñēa is the eternal well-wisher of every living entity, so there was no need for Vasudeva to be anxious about his future destination, nor that of the other personal associates of Kāñēa, such as the members of the Yadu dynasty. In verse 46 of this chapter, Nārada Muni told Vasudeva, putratām agamad yad vāḥ bhagavān eṣvaro hariḥ: "You and your good wife are now glorified throughout the universe because Lord Kāñēa has personally become your son." In this way Nārada is encouraging Vasudeva to continue to love Kāñēa as his most beloved son, for such ecstatic devotional feelings are never to be given up. But at the same time, Nārada is removing Vasudeva's doubts about the future by assuring him, "Due to your love for Kāñēa you may think that He is an ordinary human being. You are appearing like a human being, and Lord Kāñēa is simply reciprocating with you. In order to encourage you to love Him as your son, He is placing Himself under your control. And thus, His inconceivable power and opulences are being concealed from you. Don't assume, however, that there is actually a dangerous situation because of the events of this material world. Although Kāñēa appears to be under your control, He is eternally the supreme controller. Therefore, do not consider Him to be a human being. He is always the Supreme Personality of Godhead."

The word māyā in this verse indicates that Kāñēa's manuñya, or humanlike, activities are actually misleading to the ordinary man because Kāñēa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Māyā also means "transcendental potencies." As stated in Bhagavad-gētā, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā: [Bg. 4.6] the Lord descends in His own transcendental form filled with transcendental potencies. And thus the words māyā-manuñya-bhāvena here also indicate Kāñēa's original transcendental form, which resembles the humanlike forms experienced in this world. Māyā also indicates "mercy," or "compassion," according to the Sanskrit dictionary, and thus the Lord's incarnation is understood to be His causeless mercy upon the conditioned souls. The Lord's descent is also His causeless mercy upon the liberated souls, who take immense pleasure in joining the Lord in His pastimes and in chanting and hearing about such exalted spiritual activities (çravaëaà kērtanaà viñëou [SB 7.5.23]).

In order to reciprocate the love of Vasudeva for Him, Kāñēa mostly concealed His unlimited opulences. In this way the devotee is fully encouraged in his particular loving relationship with the Lord. However, when Vasudeva was filled with anxiety due to the dangerous situation created by the brāhmaëa's curse, Nārada immediately reminded him that such anxiety was unnecessary, since all these events were under the direct control of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus, the Vaiñëava paramahaàsas who take the position of the Lord's parents remain under the shelter of the Lord at all times and never deviate from the loving devotional service of the Lord. They remain fixed in transcendence in all circumstances, unlike ordinary parents of the material world, who are constantly becoming bewildered by illusion due to the bodily concept of life.

TEXT 50

BaUBaAr"As$aur"r"Ajanya-h"ntavae gAuæayae s$ataAma, @vataINARsya inava{RtyaE yazAAe laAe(ivatanyatae

*bhü-bhäräsurā-rājanyahantave guptaye satām avatērēasya nirvātyai
yaço loke vitanyate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhü-bhärä—who were the burden of the earth; asura—demons; rājanya—members of the kingly order; hantave—in order to kill; guptaye—for the protection; satām—of the saintly devotees; avatērēasya—of Him who has descended; nirvātyai—also for awarding liberation; yaçau—the fame; loke—throughout the world; vitanyate—has become spread.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead descended to kill the demoniac kings who were the burden of the earth and to protect the saintly devotees. However, both the demons and the devotees are awarded liberation by the Lord's mercy. Thus, His transcendental fame has spread throughout the universe.

PURPORT

A doubt may arise as to how the Supreme Personality of Godhead descends to this material world. And since He is the omnipotent creator of millions of universes, why do the devotees glorify as wonderful the Lord's activities such as His killing a witch named Pūtanā by sucking out her life through her breast? Although such activities are certainly beyond the scope of ordinary human beings, why should they be considered wonderful when executed by the omnipotent Personality of Godhead? The answer is given in this verse by the word nirvātyai. The Lord killed the demons not because He was envious of them, but in order to give them spiritual liberation. Thus the causeless mercy of the Personality of Godhead in liberating both the devotees and the demons by His inconceivable pastimes clearly distinguishes the Lord from any other living entity, either man or demigod. It is stated, mukti-pradātā sarveṇā viñēur eva na saṅṅayaù: only Viñēu can give liberation beyond birth and death. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura has pointed out that generally the demons are awarded impersonal liberation in the Brahman effulgence, whereas the devotees are given the superior benediction of love of Godhead in the spiritual planets. Thus, the Lord exhibits His causeless mercy toward all classes of living entities, and His fame is spread throughout the universe. Because Kāñēa is transcendental, His fame is not different from His personal incarnation, so as the Lord's fame expands, the entire universe is gradually liberated. These are some of the unique characteristics of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 51

™alzAuk(ovaAca
WtacC_$tvaA mah"ABaAgAAe vas$aude"vaAe'itaivaismata:
de"vak(L ca mah"ABaAgAA
jah"taumaAeRh"maAtmana:

çré-çuka uvāca
etac chrutvā mahā-bhāgo vasudevo 'ti-vismitaù devaké ca mahā-bhāgā
jahatur moham ātmanaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmē said; etat—this; çrutvā—having heard; mahā-bhāgaù—the greatly fortunate; vasudevaù—King Vasudeva; ati-vismitaù—extremely amazed; devaké—mother Devaké; ca—and; mahā-bhāgā—the greatly fortunate; jahatuù—they both gave up;

moham—the confusion; ätmanaù—their own.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvämé continued: Having heard this narration, the greatly fortunate Vasudeva was completely struck with wonder. Thus he and his most blessed wife Devaké gave up all illusion and anxiety that had entered their hearts.

TEXT 52

witah"As$aimamaM pauNyaM DaAr"yaeâ: s$amaAih"ta:
s$a ivaDaUyaeh" zAmalaM “aöBaUyaAya k(lpatae

itihäsam imaà puëyaà
dhärayed yaù samähitaù
sa vidhüyeha çamalaà
brahma-bhüyäya kalpate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

itihäsam—historical account; imam—this; puëyam—pious;
dhärayet—meditates upon; yaù—who; samähitaù—with fixed attention;
saù—he; vidhüya—cleaning off; iha—in this very life; çamalam—contamination; brahma-bhüyäya—the supreme spiritual perfection; kalpate—achieves.

TRANSLATION

Anyone who meditates on this pious historical narration with fixed attention will purify himself of all contamination in this very life and thus achieve the highest spiritual perfection.

*Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C.
Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Fifth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Nārada Concludes His Teachings to Vasudeva."*

6. The Yadu Dynasty Retires to Prabhāsa

This chapter describes how Brahmā and other demigods, after offering prayers to Lord Çré Kāñëa, requested the Lord to return to His own abode and how Uddhava, anticipating separation from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, was very distressed and prayed to Çré Kāñëa that he might accompany Him on His return to that abode.

Desiring to see Çré Kāñëa in His humanlike form, which enchants all the worlds, the Gandharvas, Apsarās, Nāgas, Āñis, Pitās, Vidyādhara, Kinnaras and other demigods, all headed by Brahmā, Çiva and Indra, arrived at the city of Dvārakā. Covering the body of Kāñëa with flower garlands from the Nandana gardens of heaven, they praised Him with statements about His transcendental power and qualities.

All living entities, beginning with Brahmā, are subordinate to Lord Çré Kāñëa. Kāñëa creates the universe by empowering His expansion Mahā-viñëu. Although Kāñëa creates, maintains and destroys this world through His material energy, He remains transcendental to the material energy and perfectly self-satisfied. Even in the midst of His sixteen thousand queens, Lord Kāñëa is undisturbed.

Performers of fruitive sacrifices and yogés desiring mystic power contemplate the lotus feet of Lord Çré Kāñëa to attain their materialistic objectives. But the most elevated devotees, who desire liberation from the bondage of material work, lovingly contemplate the Lord's lotuslike feet because those feet are the fire that destroys all desires for sense gratification. One cannot actually purify the mind by ordinary worship, penance and other such processes. One can purify the mind contaminated by sense gratification only through mature faith in the mode of goodness, which arises by hearing the glories of Kāñëa. Therefore, intelligent persons situated in the varëäçrama system serve the two kinds of holy places: the nectarean rivers of the topics of Kāñëa and the nectarean rivers flowing from the Lord's lotus feet.

By incarnating within the Yadu dynasty, Kāñëa performed the highest welfare work for the entire universe by displaying His transcendental pastimes. Simply by hearing and chanting about these pastimes, pious persons in Kali-yuga can definitely cross over the ocean of material illusion. When the Lord had fulfilled the purpose of His descent and the Yadu dynasty was facing imminent destruction from the brähmaëas' curse, the Lord desired to wind up His pastimes. When Brahmä prayed to the lotus feet of Lord Kāñëa for the deliverance of himself and all the other demigods, Çré Kāñëa revealed in His reply that after the destruction of the Yadu dynasty He would return to His own abode.

Observing terrible disturbances indicating the imminent destruction of the world, Lord Kāñëa called together the wise members of the Yadu dynasty and reminded them of the brähmaëas' curse. The Lord convinced them to go to Prabhäsa-tërtha, where they could save themselves by the performance of ritual bathing, charity, and so on. The Yadus, in obedience to Kāñëa's desire, prepared to journey to Prabhäsa.

Upon seeing and hearing the Lord's conversation with the Yadu dynasty, Uddhava approached Lord Çré Kāñëa in a secluded place, offered Him full obeisances and, with folded hands, expressed his inability to tolerate separation from the Lord. He begged Kāñëa to carry him to His own abode.

If one tastes the nectar of Kāñëa's pastimes with his ears, one loses all hankering for other things. Persons who engage constantly in Kāñëa's service-while eating, sporting, sleeping, sitting, etc.-cannot tolerate separation from Kāñëa. They honor all kinds of remnants from Çré Kāñëa and thus conquer the Lord's illusory energy. Peaceful members of the renounced order attain Brahmaloĳa after exhaustive and painful exertion, whereas the devotees of the Lord simply discuss Lord Kāñĳea among themselves, chant and remember His various pastimes and instructions, and thus automatically cross beyond the insurmountable material energy.

TEXT 1

™alzAuk(ovaAca
@Ta “aöAtmajaE: de"vaE:
'ajaezAEr"Ava{taAe'ByagAAta, Bavaê BaUtaBavyaezAAe
yayaAE BaUtagANAEva{Rta:

çré-çuka uvāca
atha brahmātma-jaiù devaiù prajeçair āvāto 'bhyagāt bhavaç ca bhūta-bhavyeço yayau bhūta-gaëair vātaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; atha—then; brahmā—Lord Brahmā; ātma-jaiù—by his sons (headed by Sanaka); devaiù—by the demigods; prajā-ëçaiù—and by the progenitors of universal population (headed by Maréci); āvātaù—surrounded; abhyagāt—went (to Dvārakā); bhavaù—Lord Çiva; ca—also; bhūta—to all living beings; bhavya-ëçaù—the bestower of auspiciousness; yayau—went; bhūta gaëaiù—by the hordes of ghostly creatures; vātaù—surrounded.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: Lord Brahmā then set off for Dvārakā, accompanied by his own sons as well as by the demigods and the great Prajāpatīs. Lord Çiva, the bestower of auspiciousness to all living beings, also went, surrounded by many ghostly creatures.

TEXTS 2-4

wn%"Ae maç&ià"BaRgAvaAna, @Aid"tyaA vas$avaAe'iinaAE [%BavaAe'iËÿr"s$aAe ç&%"A ivaie s$aADyaAê de"vataA:

gAnDavaARps$ar"s$aAe naAgAA:
is$aÜ"caAr"NAgAu÷k(A: [%Saya: ipatar"êEva
s$aivaâADar"ik(²ar"A:

ã"Ar"k(Amaupas$aÃagmau:
s$avaeR k{(SNAid"ä{"°ava:
vapauSaA yaena BagAvaAna, nar"laAek(manaAer"ma:
yazAAe ivataenae laAeke(Sau
s$avaRlaAek(malaApah"ma,

*indro marudbhir bhagavān ādityā vasavo 'çvinau ābhavo 'ì giraso rudrā
viçve sādhyāç ca devatāu*

*gandharvāpsaraso nāgāu siddha-cāraëa-guhyakāu āñayaù pitaraç caiva
sa-vidyādhara-kinnarāu*

*dvārakām upasai jagmuù sarve kâñëa-didākñavaù vapuñā yena bhagavān
nara-loka-manoramaù
yaço vitene lokeñu
sarva-loka-malāpaham*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indrau—Lord Indra; marudbhiu—along with the wind-gods; bhagavan—the powerful controller; ädityäu—the twelve principal demigods, all sons of Aditi; vasavau—the eight Vasu demigods; açvinau—the two Açviné-kumāras; ābhavau—the Ābhus; aī girasaū—the descendants of Aī girā Muni; rudräu—the expansions of Lord Çiva; viçve sādhyäu—known as Viçvedevas and Sādhyas; ca—also; devatäu—other demigods; gandharva-apsarasaū—the heavenly musicians and dancing girls; nāgäu—the celestial snakes; siddha-cāraëa—the Siddhas and Cāraëas; guhyakäu—and the hobgoblins; āñayaū—the great sages; pitaraū—the departed forefathers; ca—also; eva—indeed; sa—along with; vidyādhara-kinnaräu—the Vidyādharas and Kinnaras; dvārakām—to Dvārakā; upasai jagmuū—they arrived together; sarve—all of them; kāñëa-didākñavaū—eager to see Lord Kāñëa; vapuñā—by the transcendental body; yena—which; bhagavan—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; nara-loka—to all human society; manaū-ramaū—enchanted; yaçaū—His fame; vitene—He expanded; lokeñu—throughout all the universe; sarva-loka—of all planets; mala—the impurities; apaham—which eradicates.

TRANSLATION

The powerful Lord Indra, along with the Maruts, Ädityas, Vasus, Açvinés, Ābhus, Aī giräs, Rudras, Viçvedevas, Sādhyas, Gandharvas, Apsaräs, Nāgas, Siddhas, Cāraëas, Guhyakas, the great sages and forefathers and the Vidyādharas and Kinnaras, arrived at the city of Dvārakā, hoping to see Lord Kāñëa. By His transcendental form, Kāñëa, the Supreme Lord, enchanted all human beings and spread His own fame throughout the worlds. The Lord's glories destroy all contamination within the universe.

PURPORT

The Personality of Godhead descends within the material world to assist the demigods in the cosmic management; thus the demigods can normally see such forms of the Lord as Upendra. However, here it is indicated that although accustomed to seeing various Viñëu expansions of the Lord, the demigods were specifically eager to see the most beautiful form of the Lord as Kâñëa. Deha-dehi-vibhāgaç ca neçvare vidyate kvacit: there is no distinction between the Supreme Lord and His personal body. The jéva soul is different from his body, but the beautiful, transcendental form of the Lord is identical with the Lord in all respects.

TEXT 5

tasyaAM iva”aAjamaAnaAyaAM s$ama{Ü"AyaAM mah"iÜR"iBa: vyaca°ataAivata{æaA°aA:
k{(SNAmaàu"tad"zARnama, tasyäà vibhrājamānāyāà samāddhāyāà maharddhibhiù vyacakñatāvitāptākñäù

kāñëam adbhuta-darçanam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasyām—in that (Dvārakā); vibhrājamānāyām—resplendent;
samāddhāyām—very rich; mahā-āddhibhiù—with great opulences;
vyacakñata—they saw; avitāpta—unsatisfied; akñäù—whose eyes;
kāñëam—Lord Kâñëa; adbhuta-darçanam—wonderful to behold.

TRANSLATION

In that resplendent city of Dvārakā, rich with all superior opulences, the demigods beheld with unsatiated eyes the wonderful form of Çré Kâñëa.

TEXT 6

svagAAeRâAnaAepagAEmaARlyaEzA, C$Ad"yantaAe yauäU"Ôamama, gAliBaRiêṭapad"ATaARiBas$a, tauī]"vaujaRgAd"lir"ma,

svargodyānopagair mālyaiḥ chādayanto yudūttamam gērbhiḥ citra-padārthābhis tuñōuvur jagad-ēçvaram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

svarga-udyāna—from the gardens of the heavenly planets of the demigods; upagaiu—obtained; mālyaiu—with flower garlands; chādayantaù—covering;
yadu-uttamam—the best of the Yadus; gērbhiu—with verbal expressions; citra—charming; pada-arthābhiu—the words and ideas comprising which;
tuñōuvuù—they praised; jagat-ēçvaram—the Lord of the universe.

TRANSLATION

The demigods covered the Supreme Lord of the universe with flower garlands brought from the gardens of heaven. Then they praised Him, the best of the Yadu dynasty, with statements containing charming words and ideas.

TEXT 7

™alde"vaA Ocau:
nataA: sma tae naATa pad"Ar"ivandM" bauÜ"lin%"ya'aANAmānaAevacaAeiBa: yai»antyatae'ntaôR$id" BaAvayau·E(r," maumau°auiBa: k(maRmayaAeç&paAzAAta, *çré-devā ūcuù

natāu sma te nātha padāravindaà buddhēndriya-prāëa-mano-vacobhiu* yac cintyate 'ntar hâdi bhäva-yuktair mumukñubhiù karma-mayoru-päçät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-deväù ücuù—the demigods said; natäù sma—we are bowed down; te—Your; nätha—O Lord; pada-aravindam—to the lotus feet; buddhi—with our intelligence; indriya—senses; präëa—vital air; manaù—mind; vacobhiù—and words; yat—which; cintyate—are meditated upon; antaù hâdi—within the heart; bhäva-yuktaiù—who are fixed in yoga practice; mumukñubhiù—by those striving for liberation; karma-maya—of the reactions of fruitive work; uru-päçät—from the great bondage.

TRANSLATION

The demigods began to speak: Our dear Lord, advanced mystic yogis, striving for liberation from the severe bondage of material work, meditate with great devotion upon Your lotus feet within their hearts. Dedicating our intelligence, senses, vital air, mind and power of speech to Your Lordship, we demigods bow down at Your lotus feet.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the word sma in this verse indicates vismaya, "astonishment." The demigods were astonished that although great mystic yogés are only able to contemplate the lotus feet of the Lord within their hearts, the demigods arriving in the city of Dvārakā were able to see before them the entire body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore the powerful demigods fell down like sticks before the Lord. Such full obeisances (called daëòavat, "like a stick") are described as follows:

*dorbhyäà padäbhyäà jänubhyäm urasä çirasä dâçä manasä vacasä ceti
praëämo 'ññäi ga éritaù*

"The obeisances offered with eight limbs are made with the two arms, the two legs, the two knees, the chest, the head, the eyes, the mind and the power of speech."

The currents of material nature are very powerful, and one should therefore cling tightly to the lotus feet of the Lord. Otherwise, the violent waves of sense gratification and mental speculation will undoubtedly sweep one away from one's eternal, constitutional position as the loving servitor of the Supreme Lord, and one will then fall down into the stringent bondage described here as uru-pāçāt, "a very powerful illusory network."

TEXT 8

tvaM maAyayaA iṭagAuNAyaAtmaina äu"ivaRBaAvyaM vya·M(s$a{jasyavais$a laumpais$a taÖ"NAsTa: naEtaEBaRvaAnaijata k(maRiBar"jyatae vaE yatsvae s$auKae'vyavaih"tae'iBar"taAe'navaâ:

tvaà mäyayä tri-guëayätmani durvibhävyäà vyaktaà sâjasy avasi lumpasi tad-guëa-sthaù naitair bhavän ajita karmabhir ajyate vai yat sve sukhe 'vyavahite 'bhirato 'navadyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—You; mäyayä—by the material energy; tri-guëayä—made up of the three modes of nature; ätmani—within Yourself; durvibhävyam—inconceivable; vyaktam—the manifest cosmos; sâjasi—You create; avasi—protect; lumpasi—and destroy; tat—of that material nature; guëa—within the modes (goodness, passion and ignorance); sthaù—situated; na—not; etaiù—by these; bhavän—You; ajita—O unconquerable Lord; karmabhiù—activities; ajyate—are entangled; vai—at all; yat—because; sve—in Your own; sukhe—happiness; avyavahite—unimpeded; abhirataù—You are always absorbed; anavadyaù—the unimpeachable Lord.

TRANSLATION

O unconquerable Lord, You engage Your illusory energy, composed of three modes, to unleash, maintain and devastate the inconceivable manifest cosmos, all within Your own self. As the supreme superintendent of māyā, You appear to be situated in the interaction of the modes of nature; however, You are never affected by material activities. In fact, You are directly engaged in Your own eternal, spiritual bliss, and thus You cannot be accused of any material infection.

PURPORT

The word durvibhāvya is significant here. The ultimate cause of the creation, maintenance and annihilation of the material world is certainly inconceivable even for the greatest mundane scientists, who waste their lives in useless and fruitless speculation. Yet Mahā-viñēu, who is the secondary expansion of an expansion of the Supreme Lord, Kāñēa, sees the entire cosmos to be like an insignificant atom. So what hope is there for foolish so-called scientists who try to understand Kāñēa by their ridiculous experimental power? Thus the word anavadya is used. No one can find fault or discrepancy in the body, character, activities or instructions of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The Lord is never materially ignorant; therefore He never exhibits cruelty, laziness, foolishness, blindness or material intoxication. Similarly, because the Lord is never polluted by material passion, He never exhibits material pride, lamentation, yearning or violence. And since the Lord is free from material goodness, He never attempts to peacefully enjoy the material world with a sublime materialistic mentality.

Lord Kāñēa, as stated here (sve sukhe 'vyavahite 'bhiratau), is eternally busy, day and night, in His transcendental abode, relishing the inconceivable loving devotion of His innumerable associates. The Lord is being embraced and is embracing. He is joking and is hearing the joking of His loved ones. The Lord is walking through forests full of fruits and flowers, playing in the nectarean river Yamunā and taking part in His most confidential transcendental loving affairs with the cowherd girls of Våndävana. These pastimes in Kånëaloka and on other Vaikuëöha planets are eternal, faultless and an ocean of spiritual happiness. The Lord never descends to the dry platform of relative material happiness. The infinite Personality of Godhead has nothing to gain from anyone; thus fruitive activity cannot possibly exist within the Lord.

TEXT 9

zAuiÜ"na{RNAAM na tau taTaex"Ya äu"r"AzAyaAnaAM ivaâA™autaADyayanad"Anatapa:i,(yaAiBa:
s$âÖvaAtmanaAma{SaBa tae yazAis$a 'ava{Ü"- s$acC)$Ü"yaA™avaNAs$amBa{tayaA yaTaA syaAta, çuddhir nâëää na tu tattheöya duräçayänää vidyâ-çrutädhyayana-däna-tapaù-kriyäbhiù sattvätmanäm āñabha te yaçasi pravâddha-sac-çraddhayä çravaëa-sambhâtayä yathä syät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çuddhiù—purification; nâëäm—of persons; na—is not; tu—but; tathä—in such a way; éöya—O worshipable one; duräçayänäm—of those whose consciousness is contaminated; vidyâ—by ordinary worship; çruta—hearing and obeying the injunctions of the Vedas; adhyayana—study of various çästras; däna—charity; tapaù—austere penances; kriyäbhiù—and ritual activities; sattva-ätmanäm—of those who are situated in pure goodness; āñabha—O greatest of all; te—Your; yaçasi—in the glories; pravâddha—fully matured; sat—transcendental; çraddhayä—by faith; çravaëa-sambhâtayä—which is reinforced by the process of hearing; yathä—as; syät—there is.

TRANSLATION

O greatest of all, those whose consciousness is polluted by illusion cannot purify themselves merely by ordinary worship, study of the Vedas, charity, austerity and ritual activities. Our Lord, those pure souls who have developed a powerful transcendental faith in Your glories achieve a purified state of existence that can never be attained by those lacking such faith.

PURPORT

Even if a pure devotee is lacking the above qualifications, such as Vedic study and austerity, if he has unflinching faith in Lord Kāñëa the Lord will save him because of his devotion. On the other hand, if one becomes falsely proud of one's material qualifications, including ordinary piety, but does not devote himself to hearing and chanting the glories of Kāñëa, the result will ultimately be nil. The transcendental spirit soul cannot be purified by any amount of material piety, charity or scholarship. Only the transcendental Supreme Lord can purify the transcendental living entity by bestowing His mercy within the heart. The demigods were astonished at their good fortune. Even by hearing about Kāñëa, one achieves all perfection, but they had entered the Lord's own city and were seeing Him standing before them, syaA^aastavaAx.~i,,ar"zAuBaAzAyaDaUmake(tau:

TEXT 10

°aemaAya yaAe mauinaiBar"A%oR"ô$d"Ae÷maAna:
ya: s$AAtvataE: s$amaivaBaUtaya @Atmavaià"r," vyaUhe""icaRta: s$avanazA: svar"ita,(maAya

syān nas tavāi ghrīr aṣubhāçaya-dhūmaketuṁ kīemāya yo munibhir ārdra-hādohyamānau yau sātvatāiṁ sama-vibhūtaya ātmavadbhir vyūhe 'rcitau savanaçau svar-atikramāya

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

syāt—may they be; naṁ—for Us; tava—Your; aṁ ghrīṁ—the lotus feet; aṣubha-āçaya—of our inauspicious mentality; dhūma-ketuṁ—the annihilating fire; kñemäya—for achieving real benefit; yaù—which; munibhiù—by sages; ärdrā-hādā—with melted hearts; uhyamānaù—are being carried; yaù—which; sātvataiù—by the devotees of the Supreme Personality of Godhead; sama-vibhūtaye—for gaining opulence like His; ātma-vadbhiù—by those who are self-controlled; vyūhe—in the four-handed personal expansions of Vāsudeva, Saī karṇāëa, Pradyumna and Aniruddha; arcitaù—worshiped; savanaçaù—at the three junctions of each day; svaù-atikramäya—for crossing beyond the heavenly planets of this world.

TRANSLATION

Great sages, desiring the highest benefit in life, always cherish Your lotus feet within their hearts, which are melted by love for You. Similarly, Your self-controlled devotees, desiring to cross beyond the material kingdom of heaven to achieve opulence equal to Yours, worship Your lotus feet in the morning, at noon and in the evening. Thus, they meditate upon Your Lordship in Your quadruple expansion. Your lotus feet are just like a blazing fire that burns to ashes all the inauspicious desires for material sense gratification.

PURPORT

The conditioned living entity can purify his existence simply by having firm faith in the transcendental glories of the Personality of Godhead. What then can be said of the extraordinary good fortune of the demigods, who were directly seeing Lord Kāṇëa's lotus feet? Although we are presently afflicted by innumerable material desires, these desires are temporary. The eternal living entity is meant to experience a loving relationship with the supreme living entity, the Personality of Godhead; and by rendering pure devotional service to the Lord, the heart of the living entity is completely satisfied.

The word dhūmaketu in this verse indicates a flaming comet or fire, which represents Lord Çiva. Lord Çiva is the master of the mode of ignorance, and Lord Kāṇëa's lotus feet are compared to the comet, a symbol of the potency of Çiva, which can destroy all ignorance within the heart. The word sama-vibhūṭaye ("for achieving equal opulence") indicates that the pure devotees go back home, back to Godhead, and enjoy the infinite bliss of the spiritual world. Lord Kāñṛēa is endowed with unlimited opulent paraphernalia for enjoyment, and a liberated soul who goes to Kāñṛēa's abode is awarded all opulence for serving the Lord. According to Çrēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura, the word vyūhe in this verse indicates the three puruṇa incarnations, namely Mahā-viñṛēu, Garbhodakaçāyē Viñṛēu and Kñērodakaçāyē Viñṛēu, as well as Vāsudeva. If we can scientifically understand how Kāñṛēa expands Himself to create the material world, we shall immediately experience that everything is the property of Kāñṛēa and thus become free from the desire to exploit it for our own selfish purposes. Kāñṛēa is the Supreme Lord, the master of everyone and the reservoir of all opulences, and one should remember His lotus feet in the morning, at noon and in the evening. One who always remembers Kāñṛēa and never forgets Him will experience real, blissful life beyond the pale shadow of material illusion.

TEXT 11

yais$cantyaṭae 'ayatapaAiNAiBar"Dvar"AçāAE ‡ayyaA inaç&•(ivaiDanaezA h"ivagA{Rh"ItvaA @DyaAtmayaAegA ota yaAeigAiBar"AtmamaAyaAM ijaÁaAs$auBa: par"maBaAgAvataE: par"lí":

yas cintyate prayata-päëibhir adhvarāgnau trayyā nirukta-vidhineça havir gāhētvā adhyātma-yoga uta yogibhir ātma-māyāà jijī āsubhiù parama-bhāgavataiù parēñōaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—which; cintyate—are meditated upon; prayata-päëibhiù—by those with folded hands; adhvara-agnau—in the fire of sacrifice; trayyā—of the three Vedas (Āg, Yajur and Sāma); nirukta—comprising the essential understanding presented in the Nirukta; vidhinā—by the process; éça—O Lord; haviù—the ghee meant for offering; gāhétvā—taking; adhyātma-yoge—in that yoga system meant for realization of one's true self; uta—also; yogibhiù—by the practitioners of this yoga; ātma-māyām—about Your bewildering material energy; jijī'āsubhiù—who are inquisitive; parama-bhāgavataiù—by the most elevated devotees; parēñāu—perfectly worshiped.

TRANSLATION

Those about to offer oblations into the fire of sacrifice in accordance with the Āg, Yajur and Sāma Vedas meditate on Your lotus feet. Similarly, the practitioners of transcendental yoga meditate upon Your lotus feet, hoping for knowledge about Your divine mystic potency, and the most elevated pure devotees perfectly worship Your lotus feet, desiring to cross beyond Your illusory potency.

PURPORT

The words ātma-māyā à jijī'āsubhiù are significant in this verse. The mystic yogés (adhyātma-yoga uta yogibhiù) are eager to acquire knowledge of the Lord's mystic potencies, whereas the pure devotees (parama-bhāgavataiù) are eager to cross beyond the kingdom of illusion so that they can serve Lord Kāñëa's lotus feet in pure loving ecstasy. In any case, everyone is interested in the potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The atheistic material scientists are also fascinated by the external material potency of the Lord, and the gross sense gratifiers are attracted by the physical body, which is also ātma-māyā, or an expansion of the Lord's potency. Although all of the Lord's potencies are qualitatively one with the Lord, and therefore with each other, the blissful spiritual potency is nevertheless supreme because it establishes relationships between the Lord and the pure living entities on the platform of eternal happiness. Every living entity is originally a loving servitor of the Lord, and the spiritual energy of the Lord engages the living entity in his pure constitutional position beyond illusion.

Our dreaming and waking experiences are both activities of the mind; however, the activities we perform while awake are more valuable because they establish us in our permanent situation. Similarly, at every moment every living entity is experiencing one of the innumerable potencies of the Supreme Lord. However, the experience of the spiritual potency is more significant because it establishes the living entity in his eternal, constitutional position as a faithful servitor of the Personality of Godhead.

The demigods are glorifying the Lord's lotus feet because they are personally very eager to be purified by contact with those feet (tavāi ghrir asmākam aṣubhāçaya-dhūmaketuū syāt). When a sincere devotee eagerly desires to attain the shelter of the Lord's lotus feet, the Lord brings him to His personal abode, just as the demigods were brought to Dvārakā by Lord Kāñḁa's arrangement.

TEXT 12

payauRí"yaA tava ivaBaAe vanamaAlayaeyaM s$ams$paAiDaRnal BagAvatal 'aitapa¥alvacC)$I: ya: s$au'aNAltamamauyaAhR"NAmAd"d"ªaAe BaUyaAts$ad"Ax.~i,,ar"zAuBaAzAyaDaUmake(tau:

paryuññayā tava vibho vana-mālayeyā saṁspārdhiné bhagavaté pratipatné-vac chrēu yau su-praëétam amuyārhaëam ādadan no bhüyāt sadāi ghrir aṣubhāçaya-dhūmaketuū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

paryuññayā—worn out; tava—Your; vibho—almighty Lord; vanamālayā—by the flower garland; iyam—she; saṁspārdhiné—feeling competitive; bhagavaté—the female counterpart of the Personality of Godhead; prati-patné-vat—just like an envious co wife; chrēu—Lakīmédevé, the goddess of fortune; yau—which Supreme Lord (Yourself); su-praëétam—(so that it may be) properly executed; amuyä—by this; arhaëam—the offering; ädadan—accepting; naù—our; bhüyät—may they be; sadä—always; aì ghriù—the lotus feet; açubha-äçaya—of our impure desires; dhüma-ketuù—the fire of destruction.

TRANSLATION

O almighty Lord, You are so kind to Your servants that You have accepted the withered flower garland that we have placed on Your chest. Since the goddess of fortune makes her abode on Your transcendental chest, she will undoubtedly become agitated, like a jealous co-wife, upon seeing our offering also dwelling there. Yet You are so merciful that You neglect Your eternal consort Lakīmé and accept our offering as most excellent worship. O merciful Lord, may Your lotus feet always act as a blazing fire to consume the inauspicious desires within our hearts.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gētä (9.26) it is stated:

patraà puñpaà phalaà toyaà yo me bhaktyä prayacchati tad ahaà bhakty-upahâtam açnämi prayatâtmanaù

Lord Kāñëa gratefully and happily accepts even the most meager offering from His loving devotee. Lord Kāñëa is conquered by the love of His pure devotees, just as a father is easily conquered by the most insignificant gift offered by his loving child. Unless a transcendentalist completely gives up the impersonal conception of life, he cannot make such a loving offering to the Lord. The process of meditation upon the Supersoul within the heart, called dhyäna-yoga, is not as pleasing to Kāñëa as bhakti-yoga, or devotional service, because in dhyäna, or meditation, the yogë is trying to satisfy himself (and not the Lord) by attaining mystic powers. Similarly, in order to acquire material benefits from the Lord, ordinary people worship God in temples, churches and mosques. But one who desires actual spiritual perfection must be enlivened to always chant and hear the glories of the Lord. Such devotional enthusiasm is motivated by love of Godhead and is devoid of any selfish expectation.

The Lord is so kind that He neglects His own eternal consort, Lakṣmī, and gives preference to His humble devotee, just as a man will neglect the loving embrace of his wife when his affectionate child approaches him with a gift. Ćrēla Jēva Gosvāmē has pointed out that any garland worn by the Lord cannot be faded because all of the Lord's personal paraphernalia is completely transcendental and spiritually opulent. Similarly, there is no possibility that mundane jealousy could appear in the character of the goddess of fortune, who is as transcendental as Lord Kāñēa Himself. Therefore the statements of the demigods are to be understood as humorous words inspired by intense love of Godhead. The demigods enjoy the protection of Lakṣmī and, ultimately, of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñēa, and due to their confidence in their loving relationship with the Lord and His consort they feel free to speak in a joking way.

TEXT 13

ke(tauīñiva,(mayautaiñpatatpataAk(Ae yastae BayaABayak(r"Ae's$aur"de"vacamvaAe: svagAARya s$aADauSau KalaeiSvatar"Aya BaUmana, pad": paunaAtau BagAvana, BajataAmaGaM na:

ketus tri-vikrama-yutas tri-patat-patāko yas te bhayābhaya-karo 'sura-deva-camvoù svargāya sādhuñu khaleñv itarāya bhūman padaù punātu bhagavan bhajatām aghaà nau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ketuù—a flagpole; tri-vikrama—three mighty steps in conquering Bali Mahārāja; yataù—adorned by; tri-patat—falling into each of the three planetary systems; patākaù—the flag upon which; yaù—which; te—Your (lotus feet); bhaya-abhaya—fear and fearlessness; karaù—creating; asura-deva—of the demons and the demigods; camvoù—for the respective armies; svargäya—for the attainment of heaven; sädhunü—among the saintly demigods and devotees; khaleñu—among the envious; itaräya—for just the opposite; bhüman—O most powerful Lord; pädaù—the lotus feet; punätu—may they purify; bhagavan—O Supreme Personality of Godhead; bhajatäm—who are engaged in worshipping You; agham—the sins; naù—of us.

TRANSLATION

O omnipotent Lord, in Your incarnation as Trivikrama, You raised Your leg like a flagpole to break the shell of the universe, allowing the holy Ganges to flow down, like a banner of victory, in three branches throughout the three planetary systems. By three mighty steps of Your lotus feet, Your Lordship captured Bali Mahārāja, along with his universal kingdom. Your lotus feet inspire fear in the demons by driving them down to hell and fearlessness among Your devotees by elevating them to the perfection of heavenly life. We are sincerely trying to worship You, our Lord; therefore may Your lotus feet kindly free us from all of our sinful reactions.

PURPORT

In order to reclaim for the demigods the universal kingdom seized by Bali Mahārāja, Lord Kāñëa, as described in the Eighth Canto of this great work, appeared as the beautiful dwarf-brähmaëa Vāmana, who extended His foot upward to the outer limits of the universe. When the Lord's leg breached a hole in the universal shell, the holy Ganges water came flowing into the universe. This scene appeared like an upraised flagpole with a wonderfully flowing victory banner.

As stated in the çruti-mantras, caraëaà pavitraà vitataà puräëaà yena pütas tarati duñkätäni: "The lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead are most pure, all-pervading and the oldest of all. One who is purified by them crosses over all previous sinful activities." Throughout the universe the process of worshiping the lotus feet of the Lord is most famous.

TEXT 14

nasyaAetagAAva wva yasya vazAe Bavainta “aöAd"yastanauBa{taAe imaTaur"âRmaAnaA:
k(Alasya tae ‘ak{(itapaUç&SayaAe: par"sya zAM nastanaAetau car"NA: pauç&SaAeÔamasya

nasy ota-gäva iva yasya vaçe bhavanti brahmādayas tanu-bhāto mithur ardyamānāu kālasya te prakāti-pūruṇayoḥ parasya çāṇaḥ nas tanotu caraṇau puruṇottamasya

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nasi—through the nose; ota—strung; gävaḥ—oxen; iva—as if; yasya—of whose; vaçe—under the control; bhavanti—they exist; brahma-ādayaḥ—Brahmā and all others; tanu-bhātaḥ—the embodied living beings; mithuḥ—among each other; ardyamānāu—struggling; kālasya—of the force of time; te—of Yourself; prakāti-pūruṇayoḥ—both the material nature and the living entity; parasya—who is beyond them; çam—transcendental fortune; naḥ—for us; tanotu—may they spread; caraṇau—the lotus feet; puruṇa-uttamasya—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TRANSLATION

You are the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the transcendental entity who is superior to both material nature and the enjoyer of nature. May Your lotus feet bestow transcendental pleasure upon us. All of the great demigods, beginning with Brahmā, are embodied living entities. Struggling painfully with one another under the strict control of Your time factor, they are just like bulls dragged by ropes tied through their pierced noses.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé states: nanu yuddhe devāsurādayaù parasparaà jayanti jéyante ca kim ahaà tatrety ata āhuù, naséti. mithur mitho 'rdyamānā yuddhādibhiù péòyamānā brahmādayo 'pi yasya tava vaçe bhavanti na tu jaye parājaye vā svatantrāù. "In the perpetual battles between the demigods, or devotees of the Lord, and the demons, or nondevotees, each side sometimes conquers and is sometimes apparently defeated. One may argue that all this has nothing to do with the Personality of Godhead since it is based on nothing more than the interaction of opposing living entities. But every living entity is, however, strictly under the control of the Personality of Godhead, and victory and defeat are always in the hands of the Lord." This does not contradict the fact of the living entity's free will, since the Lord awards victory and defeat according to the merit of the living entities. In a legal battle neither the prosecution nor the defense can act independently of the legal system presided over by the authorized judge. Victory and defeat in the court are awarded by the judge, but the judge is acting according to the laws, which do not favor or discriminate against either side.

Similarly, the Personality of Godhead is awarding us the results of our previous activities. In order to discredit God, materialists frequently give the argument that oftentimes innocent people suffer whereas impious rogues enjoy life unimpeded. The fact is, however, that the Personality of Godhead is not a fool, as are the materialistic persons who place such arguments. The Lord can see our many previous lives; therefore He may allow one to enjoy or suffer in this life not only as a result of one's present activities, but also as a result of one's previous activities. For example, by working very hard a man may accumulate a fortune. If such a newly rich man then gives up his work and takes to a degenerate life, his fortune does not immediately disappear. On the other hand, one who is destined to become rich may now be working very hard, with discipline and austerity, and yet be without spending money. So a superficial observer might well be confused upon seeing the moral, hard-working man without funds and the degenerate, lazy man in possession of riches. Similarly, a materialistic fool without knowledge of past, present and future is unable to understand the perfect justice of the Personality of Godhead.

The example given in this verse to explain Kāñëa's controlling power is appropriate. Although a bull is extremely powerful, he is easily controlled by a slight tug on a rope strung through his pierced nose. Similarly, even the most powerful politicians, scholars, demigods, etc., may immediately be put into an unbearable situation by the omnipotent Personality of Godhead. Therefore the demigods have not come to Dvārakā to proudly display their universal political and intellectual powers but to humbly surrender at the lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 15

@syaAis$a he"tauç&d"yaisTaitas$aMyamaAnaAma, @vya·(jalvamah"taAmaipa k(AlamaAò":
s$aAe'yaM iṭaNAAiBar"iKalaApacayae 'ava{Ôa:
k(AlaAe gABalr"r"ya oÔamapaUç&Sastvama, asyäsi hetur udaya-sthiti-saàyamänäm avyakta-jéva-mahatäm api kalam ähuù so 'yaà tri-ëäbhir akhiläpacaye pravåttau kalo gabhëra-rayä uttama-püruñas tvam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

asya—of this (universe); asi—You are; hetuù—the cause; udaya—of the creation; sthiti—maintenance; saàyamänäm—and annihilation; avyakta—of the unmanifest material nature; jéva—the individual living beings; mahatäm—and of the mahat-tattva, with the manifest elements evolved from it; api—also; kalam—the controlling time factor; ähuù—You are said to be; saù ayam—this same personality; tri-ëäbhiù—appearing as a wheel with circumference divided into three parts (the year divided into four-month seasons); akhila—of everything; apacaye—in effecting the diminution; pravåttau—engaged; kälaù—the time factor; gabhëra—imperceptible; rayaù—the movement of which;

uttama-pūruṇiāu—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; tvam—You are.

TRANSLATION

You are the cause of the creation, maintenance and destruction of this universe. As time, You regulate the subtle and manifest states of material nature and control every living being. As the threefold wheel of time You diminish all things by Your imperceptible actions, and thus You are the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

The word gabhéra-rayau, or "imperceptible speed and power," is significant. We observe that by the laws of nature all material things, including our own bodies, gradually disintegrate. Although we can perceive the long-term results of this aging process, we cannot experience the process itself. For example, no one can feel how his hair or fingernails are growing. We perceive the cumulative result of their growth, but from moment to moment we cannot experience it. Similarly, a house gradually decays until it is demolished. From moment to moment we cannot perceive exactly how this is happening, but in the course of longer intervals of time we can actually see the deterioration of the house. In other words, we can experience the results or manifestations of aging and deterioration, but as it is taking place the process itself is imperceptible. This is the wonderful potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead in His form of time.

The word tri-ëäbhiu indicates that according to astrological calculation of the sun's movements, the year can be divided into three sections: those represented by Aries, Taurus, Gemini and Cancer; Leo, Virgo, Libra and Scorpio; and Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius and Pisces.

The word uttama-pūruṇiā, or puruṇottama, is explained in Bhagavad-gētā (15.18):

yasmāt kīaram atīto 'ham akīarād api cottamau

*ato 'smi loke vede ca
prathitaù puruñottamaù*

"Because I am transcendental, beyond both the fallible and the infallible, and because I am the greatest, I am celebrated both in the world and in the Vedas as that Supreme Person."

TEXT 16

*tvaÔa: paumaAna, s$amaiDagAmya yayaAsya valya< DaÔae mah"Antaimava gABaRmamaAeGavalyaR:
s$aAe'yaM tayaAnaugAta @Atmana @ANx"k(AezAM hE"maM s$as$aJaR baih"r"Avar"NAEç&paetama,* tvattaù pumän samadhigamya yayäsyä véryaà dhatte mahäntam iva garbham amogha-véryaù so 'yaà tayänugata ätmana äëòa-koçaà haimaà sasarja bahir ävaraëair upetam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvattaù—from You; pumän—the puruña-avatära, Mahä-viñëu; samadhigamya—obtaining; yayä—along with which (material nature); asya—of this creation; véryam—the potential seed; dhatte—He impregnates; mahäntam—the mahat-tattva, the raw amalgamation of matter; iva garbham—like an ordinary fetus; amogha-véryaù—He whose semen is never wasted; saù ayam—that same (mahat-tattva); tayä—with the material nature; anugataù—joined; ätmanaù—from itself; äëòa-koçam—the primeval egg of the universe; haimam—golden; sasarja—produced; bahiù—on its outside; ävaraëaiù—with several coverings; upetam—endowed.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, the original puruña-avatära, Mahä-viñëu, acquires His creative potency from You. Thus with infallible energy He impregnates material nature, producing the mahat-tattva. Then the mahat-tattva, the amalgamated material energy, endowed with the potency of the Lord, produces from itself the primeval golden egg of the universe, which is covered by various layers of material elements.

PURPORT

In the previous verses the supremacy of the Personality of Godhead has been established in relation to the living entity and material nature. In this verse it is clearly stated that Lord Kāñëa is the source of the greatest Viñëu incarnation, Mahä-viñëu, and that Mahä-viñëu acquires His creative potency from Lord Kāñëa. It would therefore be foolish to surmise that Lord Kāñëa is an expansion of Viñëu. In this regard the opinion of the demigods, headed by Brahmä, can be taken as final.

TEXT 17

taÔasTaUSaê jagAtaê BavaAnaDalzAAe yanmaAyayaAetTagAuNAivai,(yayaAepanaltaAna, @TaARÃauSa^aaipa ô$Salk(patae na ilææaAe yae'nyae svata: pair"ô$taAd"ipa ibaByaita sma tat tasthüñaç ca jagataç ca bhavän adhëço yan mäyayottha-guëa-vikriyayopanëtän arthäi' juñann api hñëka-pate na lipto ye 'nye svataù parihâtäd api bibhyati sma

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—therefore; tasthüñaù—of everything stationary; ca—and; jagataù—mobile; ca—as well; bhavän—You (are); adhëçaù—the ultimate controller; yat—because; mäyayä—by material nature; uttha—raised; guëa—of (nature's) modes; vikriyayä—by the transformation (i.e. by the activity of the sense organs of the living beings); upanëtän—gathered together; arthān—the sense objects; juñān—engaging with; api—even though; hāñēka-pate—O master of everyone's senses; na liptaù—You are never touched; ye—those who; anye—others; svataù—on their own strength; parihātāt—on account of (objects of sense gratification); api—even; bibhyati—they fear; sma—indeed.

TRANSLATION

O Lord, You are the supreme creator of this universe and the ultimate controller of all moving and nonmoving living entities. You are Hāñēkeṣa, the supreme controller of all sensory activity, and thus You never become contaminated or entangled in the course of Your supervision of the infinite sensory activities within the material creation. On the other hand, other living entities, even yogés and philosophers, are disturbed and frightened simply by remembering the material objects that they have supposedly renounced in their pursuit of enlightenment.

PURPORT

The Supreme Lord Kāñēa is within the heart of every conditioned soul and guides the living entity in the pursuit and experience of sense gratification. The disappointing results of such activities gradually convince the conditioned soul to reject material life and surrender again to the Lord within his heart. Lord Kāñēa is never affected by the futile attempts of the living entities to enjoy His illusory energy. For the Personality of Godhead there is no possibility of fear or disturbance, because nothing is ultimately separate from Him.

TEXT 18

smaAyaAvalaAek(lavad"izARtaBaAvah"Air"-
 "aUmaNx"la'aih"tas$AAEr"tamanṭazAAENxE": patnyastau SaAex"zAs$ah">amanaĒybaANAEr," yasyaein%o"yaM ivamaiTatauM k(r"NAEnaR ivaBvya:

smäyāvaloka-lava-darçita-bhāva-hāri-bhrū-maëðala-prahita-saurata-mantra-çauëðaiù patnyas tu ñòðaça-sahasram anaì ga-bäëair yasyendriyaà vimathituà karaëair na vibhvyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

smäya—smiling; avaloka—of a glance; lava—by fractions; darçita—having shown; bhāva—their feelings; hāri—enchanting; bhrū-maëðala—by which arch of the eyebrows; prahita—launched; saurata—of conjugal love; mantra—messages; çauëðaiù—by the impudent advances; patnyaù—wives; tu—but; ñòðaça-sahasram—sixteen thousand; anaì ga—of Cupid; bäëaiù—by the arrows; yasya—whose; indriyam—senses; vimathitum—to agitate; karaëaiù—with all their devices; na vibhvyaù—they were not able.

TRANSLATION

My Lord, You are living with sixteen thousand exquisitely beautiful, aristocratic wives. By their irresistible coy and smiling glances and by their lovely arching eyebrows, they send You messages of eager conjugal love. But they are completely unable to disturb the mind and senses of Your Lordship.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was clearly stated that no material object can attract the senses of the Lord. Now in this verse it is demonstrated that the Lord has no desire to enjoy even spiritual sense gratification. Kāñëa is complete in Himself. He is the reservoir of all pleasure, and He does not lust after anything material or spiritual. The argument may be given that Kāñëa, in order to please His wife Satyabhāmā, stole a pārijāta flower from heaven and thus appeared to be a henpecked husband under the control of His loving wife. But although Kāñëa is sometimes conquered by the love of His devotees, He is never influenced by the desire to enjoy like an ordinary, lusty materialistic person. The nondevotees cannot understand the overwhelming loving feelings exchanged between the Lord and His pure devotees. Kāñëa may be conquered by our intense love for Him, and thus pure devotees can control the Lord. For example, the elderly gopés in Våndävana would clap their hands in different rhythms to make Kāñëa dance, and in Dvärakä Satyabhämä ordered Kāñëa to bring her a flower as proof of His love for her. As stated in Çréniväsa Ācärya's song to the six Gosvämés, gopé-bhäva-rasämätäbdhi-laharé-kallola-magnau muhuù: the love between the Lord and His pure devotee is an ocean of spiritual bliss. But at the same time, Kāñëa remains completely self-satisfied. Kāñëa indifferently gave up the company of the incomparable young damsels of Vraja-bhümi, the gopés, and went to Mathurä at the request of His uncle, Akrüra. Thus neither the gopés of Våndävana nor the queens of Dvärakä could arouse an enjoying spirit in Kāñëa. When all is said and done, pleasure in this world means sex. But this mundane sexual attraction is simply a perverted reflection of the transcendental loving affairs between Kāñëa and His eternal associates in the spiritual world. The gopés of Våndävana are unsophisticated village girls, whereas the queens in Dvärakä are aristocratic young ladies. But both the gopés and the queens are overwhelmed with love for Kāñëa. As the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa displays the highest perfection of beauty, strength, wealth, fame, knowledge and renunciation and is thus completely satisfied by His own supreme position. He reciprocates spiritual loving affairs with the gopés and queens simply for their sake. Only fools think that Lord Kāñëa could be attracted by the perverted illusory pleasures to which we poor conditioned souls are so blindly attached. Therefore everyone should recognize the supreme transcendental position of the Personality of Godhead and surrender to Him. That is the clear implication of this statement by the demigods.

TEXT 19

ivaBvyastavaAma{tak(TaAed"vah"AiñlaAefyaA:
 paAd"Avanaejas$air"ta: zAmalaAina h"ntauma, @Anau™avaM™auitaiBar"x.~i,,ajamaËÿs$äËËÿs$a, taITaRã"yaM zAuicaSad"sta opas$pa{zAinta

vibhvyas tavāmāta-kathoda-vahäs tri-lokyäù pädävane-ja-saritaù çamaläni hantum änuçravaà çrutibhir aì ghri-jam aì ga-saì gais tértha-dvayaà çuci-ñadas ta upaspâçanti

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vibhvyäù—are able; tava—Your; amāta—nectarean; kathä—of the topics; uda-vahäù—the water-bearing rivers; tri-lokyäù—of the three worlds; päda-avane—from the bathing of Your lotus feet; ja—born; saritaù—rivers; çamaläni—all contamination; hantum—to destroy; änuçravam—consisting of the process of hearing from bona fide authority; çrutibhiù—with the ears; aì ghri-jam—consisting of (the holy rivers) generated from Your lotus feet; aì ga-saì gaiù—by direct physical contact; tértha-dvayam—these two kinds of holy places; çuci-ñadaù—those who are striving for purification; te—Your; upaspâçanti—they approach to associate with.

TRANSLATION

The nectar-bearing rivers of discussions about You, and also the holy rivers generated from the bathing of Your lotus feet, are able to destroy all contamination within the three worlds. Those who are striving for purification associate with the holy narrations of Your glories by hearing them with their ears, and they associate with the holy rivers flowing from Your lotus feet by physically bathing in them.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura states, änuçravaà guror uccäraëam anuçrüyante: "One should hear about Kāñëa by hearing from the spiritual master." The bona fide spiritual master describes the pastimes, potencies and incarnations of the Personality of Godhead to his disciple. If the spiritual master is bona fide and if the disciple is sincere and obedient, then the communication between guru and disciple is just like nectar, both for the guru and the disciple. Ordinary persons cannot even imagine the special pleasure experienced by the devotees of the Lord. Such nectarean speaking and hearing destroys all contamination within the heart of a conditioned soul, the primary contamination being the desire to live without serving Kāñëa.

The other nectar described here is caraëämâta, the nectarean waters that bathe the Lord's feet. Lord Vāmanadeva bathed His own lotus foot by kicking a hole in the universal covering so that the sacred Ganges water washed His toes and fell into the universe. The Yamunā River also washed Kāñëa's lotus feet when the Lord appeared on this planet five thousand years ago. Kāñëa sported daily with His boyfriends and girl friends in the Yamunā River, and consequently that river is also caraëämâta. One should therefore try to take bath in the Ganges or Yamunā.

Every morning in ISKCON temples, the lotus feet of the Deity of Kāñëa are bathed, and the water thus sanctified is also called caraëämâta, the nectar of Kāñëa's lotus feet. Çrëla Prabhupāda taught his disciples and followers to come before the Deities each morning and drink three drops of the caraëämâta from the Deities' bathing.

In all these ways one can purify his heart and relish spiritual bliss. When one is fixed on the platform of spiritual bliss, then one does not take another birth in the material world. In this verse the word çuci-ñadau is significant: one must engage in the purified activities of Kāñëa consciousness. One must learn to serve the Lord from the bona fide spiritual master, whose instructions one should accept without speculation. Those who are attached to the phantasmagoria of this world sometimes concoct their own whimsical concepts of God. But only from the bona fide spiritual master can we get perfect and pure knowledge about the Supreme Personality of Godhead and devotional service to Him. Such knowledge may be found in all the books of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda.

TEXT 20

™albaAd"r"AyaiNAç&vaAca wtYaiBaí^"ya ivabauDaE:
s$aezA: zAtaDa{itahR"ir"ma,

@ByaBaASata gAAeivandM" 'aNAmYaAmbar"maAi™ata:

*çré-bādarāyaëir uvāca
ity abhiñōüya vibudhaiù seçaù çata-dhâtir harim abhyabhāñata govindaà praëamyāmbaram āçritaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bādarāyaëiù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; iti—thus; abhiñōüya—praising; vibudhaiù—along with all the demigods; sa-éçaù—and also Lord Çiva; çata-dhâtîù—Lord Brahmä; harim—the Supreme Lord; abhyabhāñata—spoke; govindam—to Govinda; praëamyā—offering obeisances; ambaram—in the sky; āçritaù—situated.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé continued: After Brahmä, along with Lord Çiva and the other demigods, thus offered prayers to the Supreme Lord, Govinda, Lord Brahmä situated himself in the sky and addressed the Lord as follows.

TEXT 21

™al“aöAevaAca
BaUmaeBaARr"AvataAr"Aya paur"A ivaÁaAipata: 'aBaAe tvamasmaAiBar"zAeSaAtmana, taÔaTaEvaAepapaAid"tama,

*çré-brahmovāca
bhümer bhārāvatārāya
purā vijî äpitaù prabho tvam asmābhir açñātman*

tat tathaivopapāditam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-brahmā uvāca—Çré Brahmā said; bhūmeu—of the earth; bhāra—the burden; avatārāya—for the sake of diminishing; purā—previously; viji'āpitaù—were requested; prabho—O Lord; tvam—You; asmābhiù—by us; açeña-ātman—O unlimited Soul of all; tat—that (request); tathā eva—just as expressed by us; upapāditam—was fulfilled.

TRANSLATION

Lord Brahmā said: My dear Lord, previously we requested You to remove the burden of the earth. O unlimited Personality of Godhead, that request has certainly been fulfilled.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa might have said to the demigods, "Actually, you requested Kñérodakaçäyë Viñëu to come down, so why are you saying that you requested Me? After all, I am Govinda." Therefore Brahmā has addressed the Lord here as açeñātmā, or the unlimited Personality of Godhead from whom all plenary expansions of Viñëu emanate. This is the opinion of Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura.

TEXT 22

DamaRê sTaAipata: s$ats$au s$atyas$anDaeSau vaE tvayaA k(LitaRê id"°au ivai°aæaA s$avaRlaAek(malaApah"A dharmaç ca sthāpitaù satsu satya-sandheñu vai tvayā kértiç ca dikñu vikñiptā

sarva-loka-malāpahā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmau—the principles of religion; ca—and; sthāpitaū—established; satsu—among the pious; satya-sandheṇu—among those who seek after truth; vai—indeed; tvayā—by You; kērtiū—Your glories; ca—and; dikṇu—in all the directions; vikṇiptā—disseminated; sarva-loka—of all planets; mala—the contamination; apahā—which remove.

TRANSLATION

My Lord, You have reestablished the principles of religion among pious men who are always firmly bound to the truth. You have also distributed Your glories all over the world, and thus the whole world can be purified by hearing about You.

TEXT 23

@vatalyaR yad"Aeva<zAe
iba"aåU"pamanauÔamama, k(maARNyauÚ"Amava{ÔaAina ih"taAya jagAtaAe'k{(TaA:

avatērya yador vaàçe
bibhrat rūpam anuttamam karmāëy uddāma-vāttāni
hitāya jagato 'kāthāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

avatērya—descending; yadoū—of King Yadu; vaàçe—into the dynasty; bibhrat—bearing; rūpam—a transcendental form; anuttamam—unexcelled; karmāëi—activities; uddāma-vāttāni—comprised of magnanimous deeds; hitāya—for the benefit; jagataū—of the universe; akāthāu—You performed.

TRANSLATION

Descending into the dynasty of King Yadu, You have manifested Your unique transcendental form, and for the benefit of the entire universe You have executed magnanimous transcendental activities.

TEXT 24

yaAina tae cair"taAnalzA manauSyaA: s$aADava: k(laAE Za{Nvanta: k(LtaRyantaê tair"SyantyaÃas$aA tama:

*yäni te caritänéça
manuñyäu sädhavaù kalau çâëvantaù kértayantaç ca tariñyanti ai jasä tamaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yäni—which; te—Your; caritäni—pastimes; éça—O Supreme Lord; manuñyäu—humans; sädhavaù—saintly persons; kalau—in the degraded age of Kali; çâëvantaù—hearing; kértayantaù—chanting; ca—and; tariñyanti—they will cross over; ai jasä—easily; tamaù—darkness.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, those pious and saintly persons who in the age of Kali hear about Your transcendental activities and also glorify them will easily cross over the darkness of the age.

PURPORT

Unfortunately, in Kali-yuga many persons are not attracted to the authorized Vedic literatures. Minimizing the transcendental process of hearing and chanting the glories of the Personality of Godhead, they prefer to listen to useless and whimsical vibrations on the radio and television, in newspapers and magazines, and so on. Rather than hear about Kāñëa from the bona fide spiritual master, they endlessly give their own opinions about everything, until they are dragged away by the force of time. After studying the temporary, limited forms of the material world, they impatiently conclude that the Absolute Truth is formless. Such persons are actually worshiping Kāñëa's illusory energy, māyā, who has been authorized to kick their stubborn heads. If instead people hear directly about Kāñëa from the bona fide sources, they will very easily solve all the problems of their lives. In Kali-yuga people are constantly suffering from many psychological, social, economic, historical, political and existential problems. But all these nightmarish problems can be removed as soon as one awakens to the transcendental reality of the Personality of Godhead, who is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge and beyond the bewildering manifestations of the material energy. The Lord appears within this universe so that people can observe, hear about and glorify His actual activities. In this difficult age of Kali we should all seriously take advantage of this opportunity.

TEXT 25

yaäu"vaMzAe'vataINARsya Bavata: pauç&SaAeÔama
 zAr"cC$taM vyatalyaAya paÂaivaMzAAiDakM('aBaAe

yadu-vaàçe 'vatêrëasya bhavataù puruñottama çarac-chataà vyatëyâya
pai ca-viàçâdhikaà prabho

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadu-vaàçe—in the family of the Yadus; avatêrëasya—who has descended;
bhavataù—of Yourself; puruña-uttama—O Supreme Person;

çarat-çatam—one hundred autumns; vyatēyāya—having passed;
pañca-viṅśa—by twenty-five; adhikam—more; prabho—O Lord.

TRANSLATION

O Supreme Personality of Godhead, O my Lord, You have descended into the Yadu dynasty, and thus You have spent one hundred twenty-five autumns with Your devotees.

TEXTS 26-27

naADaunaA tae'iKalaADaAr" de"vak(AyaARvazAeiSatama, ku(laM ca iva'azAApaena naí""aAyamaBaUid"d"ma,

tata: svaDaAma par"maM
ivazAsva yaid" manyas$ae s$alaAek(AéaAek(paAlaA^aa: paAih" vaEku(NQ&ik(Æÿr"Ana, nādhunā te 'khilādhāra

deva-kāryāvaçēñitam
kulaṁ ca vipra-çāpena
nañña-prāyam abhūd idam

tataṁ sva-dhāma paramaṁ viçasva yadi manyase sa-lokāl loka-pālān naṁ pāhi vaikuṇṭha-kīṁ karān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na adhunā—no longer; te—for You; akhila-ādhāra—O basis of everything;
deva-kārya—duty on behalf of the demigods; avaçēñitam—remaining part; kulam—Your dynasty; ca—and; vipra-çāpena—by the curse of the brāhmaëas; nañña-prāyam—virtually annihilated; abhūt—has become; idam—this; tataù—therefore; sva-dhāma—Your own abode; paramam—supreme; viçasva—please enter; yadi—if; manyase—You are so disposed; sa-lokān—with the inhabitants of all the planets; loka-pālān—the protectors of the planets; naù—us; pāhi—please continue to protect; vaikuëöha—of Lord Viñëu, Vaikuëöha; kiñ karān—the servants.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, there is nothing remaining at this time for Your Lordship to do on behalf of the demigods. You have already withdrawn Your dynasty by the curse of the brāhmaëas. O Lord, You are the basis of everything, and if You so desire, kindly return now to Your own abode in the spiritual world. At the same time, we humbly beg that You always protect us. We are Your humble servants, and on Your behalf we are managing the universal situation. We, along with our planets and followers, require Your constant protection.

TEXT 28

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
@vaDaAir"tamaetanmae yad"AtTa ivabauDaeir" k{(taM va: k(AyaRmaiKalaM BaUmaeBaARr"Ae'vataAir"ta:

çré-bhagavān uvāca
avadhāritam etan me
yad āttha vibudheçvara
kātaā vaù kāryam akhilaā bhūmer bhāro 'vatāritaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said;
avadhāritam—is understood; etat—this; me—by Me; yat—that which;

ättha—you have said; vibudha-ēçvara—O controller of the demigods, Brahmä; kâtam—is completed; vaù—your; käryam—work; akhilam—all; bhümeù—of the earth; bhâraù—the burden; avatäritaù—is removed.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Lord said: O lord of the demigods, Brahmä, I understand your prayers and request. Having removed the burden of the earth, I have executed everything that was required on your behalf.

TEXT 29

taid"dM" yaAd"vaku(laM valyaRzAAEyaRi™ayaAeÜ"tama, laAekM(ijaGa{°aâu"ÜM" mae velayaeva mah"ANARva:

tad idaà yädava-kulaà
vérya-çaurya-çriyoddhatam lokaà jighâkñat ruddhaà me velayeva mahärëavaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat idam—this very; yädava-kulam—Yädava dynasty; vérya—by their power; çaurya—courage; çriyā—and opulence; uddhatam—magnified; lokam—the whole world; jighâkñat—threatening to devour; ruddham—has been checked; me—by Me; velayā—by the shore; iva—just as; mahā-arëavaù—a great ocean.

TRANSLATION

That very Yädava dynasty in which I appeared became greatly magnified in opulence, especially in their physical strength and courage, to the extent that they threatened to devour the whole world. Therefore I have stopped them, just as the shore holds back the great ocean.

PURPORT

The heroes of the Yadu dynasty were so powerful that even the demigods could not check them. The enthusiasm of the Yadus was unlimitedly increased by their victories in dangerous battles, and they could not be killed. Due to their martial spirit they naturally desired to establish their power over the whole world; therefore the Lord checked them and withdrew them from the earth.

TEXT 30

yaâs$aMô$tya ä{"æaAnaAM yaäU"naAM ivapaulaM ku(lama, gAntaAsmyanaena laAek(Ae'yama, oãe"laena ivanaÉYaita

yady asaàhâtya dâptänäà yadünäà vipulaà kulam gantäsmy anena loko 'yam udvelena vinaì kñyati

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadi—if; asaàhâtya—without withdrawing; dâptänäm—of the overly proud; yadünäm—Yadus; vipulam—the vast; kulam—dynasty; gantä asmi—I go; anena—for that reason; lokaù—the world; ayam—this; udvelena—by the overflow (of the Yadus); vinaì kñyati—will be destroyed.

TRANSLATION

If I were to leave this world without withdrawing the overly proud members of the Yadu dynasty, the whole world would be destroyed by the deluge of their unlimited expansion.

PURPORT

Just as a tidal wave overwhelms the boundary of the shore and wreaks havoc on innocent people, similarly, there was imminent danger that the powerful Yadu dynasty might expand beyond all boundaries of social and political control. The members of the Yadu dynasty had become proud because of their apparent familial relationship with the Personality of Godhead. Although they were very religious and devoted to brahminical culture, they had become, as indicated by the word dāptānām, affected by pride due to their relationship with Kāñëa. Furthermore, due to their intense love for Kāñëa, they would certainly feel such intense separation after the Lord's departure to the spiritual world that they would become maddened and thus become an unbearable burden on the earth. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has pointed out, however, that the earth herself, due to attachment for Kāñëa, would never consider Kāñëa's own family members to be anything but a welcome burden. Still, Kāñëa wanted to remove this burden. The example is given that for the pleasure of her husband a beautiful young wife may decorate herself with many golden ornaments. These ornaments constitute a painful burden for the delicate wife, but although she is willing to bear this burden, the loving husband removes the ornaments for the pleasure of his wife. So the Lord, desiring to apply the wisdom of "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," took precautions to remove from the earth the burden of the Yadu dynasty.

TEXT 31

wd"Anal%M naAzA @Ar"bDa: ku(lasya iā"jazAApaja:
yaAsyaAima BavanaM "aö^aa, Wtad"ntae tavaAnaGa

idānéà nāça ārabdhau
kulasya dvija-çäpa-jau
yäsyämi bhavanaà brahmann

etat-ante tavānagha

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

idānēṁ—just now; nāṇaṁ—the annihilation; ārabdhaṁ—has begun; kulasya—of the dynasty; dvija-ṇapa-jaṁ—due to the curse of the brāhmaēas; yāsyāmi—I will go; bhavanam—to the place of residence; brahman—O Brahṁā; etat-ante—after this; tava—your; anagha—O sinless one.

TRANSLATION

Now due to the brāhmaēas' curse, the annihilation of My family has already begun. O sinless Brahṁā, when this annihilation is finished and I am enroute to Vaikuēōha, I will pay a small visit to your abode.

PURPORT

The members of the Yadu dynasty are eternal servants of the Lord; therefore Ṇrēla Jēva Gosvāmē has explained the word nāṇaṁ, or "destruction," as nigūḥāyāṁ dvārakāyāṁ praveṇanam ity arthaṁ: the members of the Yadu dynasty entered into the hidden or confidential Dvārakā in the spiritual world, which is not manifested here on the earth. In other words, Dvārakā, the Lord's abode, is manifest on the earth, and when the earthly Dvārakā is apparently removed, the eternal Dvārakā in the spiritual world remains as it is. Since the members of the Yadu dynasty are eternal associates of the Lord, there is no question of their destruction. Only our conditioned vision of their manifestation was destroyed. This is the meaning of the word nāṇaṁ.

TEXT 32

™alZauk(ovaAca
wtyau.(Ae laAek(naATaena svayamBaU: 'aiNApatya tama, s$ah" de"vagANAEdeR"va:

svaDaAma s$amapaâta

*çré-çuka uväca
ity ukto loka-näthena
svayam-bhüù praëipatya tam saha deva-gaëair devaù
sva-dhâma samapadyata*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uväca—Çukadeva Gosvämé said; iti—thus; uktaù—being addressed; loka-näthena—by the Lord of the universe, Çré Kāñëa; svayam-bhüù—self-born Brahmä; praëipatya—falling down to offer obeisances; tam—unto Him; saha—along with; deva-gaëaiù—all the different demigods; devaù—the great Lord Brahmä; sva-dhâma—to his personal abode; samapadyata—returned.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvämé said: Thus addressed by the Lord of the universe, the self-born Brahmä fell down in obeisances at the lotus feet of the Lord. Surrounded by all the demigods, the great Brahmä then returned to his personal abode.

TEXT 33

@Ta tasyaAM mah"AetpaAtaAna, ã"Ar"vatyaAM s$amauitTataAna, ivalaAefya BagAvaAnaAh" yaäu"va{Ü"Ana, s$amaAgAtaAna, *atha tasyäà mahotpätän dväravatyäà samutthitän vilokya bhagavän äha

yadu-vâddhän samägatän*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atha—thereafter; tasyām—in that city; mahā-utpātān—serious disturbances; dvāravatyām—in Dvārakā; samutthitān—developed; vilokya—observing; bhagavān—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; āha—said; yadu-vāddhān—to the elder Yadus; samāgatān—assembled.

TRANSLATION

Thereafter, the Personality of Godhead observed that tremendous disturbances were taking place in the holy city of Dvārakā. Thus the Lord spoke to the assembled senior members of the Yadu dynasty as follows.

PURPORT

Muni-vāsa-nivase kiā ghaṇetāriṇṇā-darṣanam: there is no possibility of actual disturbances or inauspicious events in holy places inhabited by saintly persons. Thus the so-called disturbances in Dvārakā were directly enacted by the Personality of Godhead for His own auspicious purpose.

TEXT 34

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
Wtae vaE s$aumah"AetpaAtaA vyauīÔāī"ntalh" s$avaRta: zAApaê na: ku(lasyaAs$alä," “aAöNAeByaAe äu"r"tyaya:

çré-bhagavān uvāca
ete vai su-mahoṭpātā
vyuttiṇṇohantéha sarvataù çāpaç ca naù kulasyāséd brāhmaëebhyo duratyayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Personality of Godhead said; ete—these; vai—indeed; su-mahā-utpātāu—very great disturbances; vyuttiññhanti—are rising up; iha—here; sarvatau—on all sides; çāpaù—the curse; ca—and; naù—our; kulasya—of the family; āsēt—there has been; brāhmaëebhyaù—by the brāhmaëas; duratyayaù—impossible to counteract.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: Our dynasty has been cursed by the brāhmaëas. Such a curse is impossible to counteract, and thus great disturbances are appearing everywhere around us.

TEXT 35

na vastavyaimah"AsmaAiBar," ijajalivaSauiBar"AyaRk(A:
'aBaAs$aM s$aumah"tpauNyaM yaAsyaAmaAe'âEva maA icar"ma, na vastavyam ihāsmābhir jijéviñubhir äryakāu prabhāsaà su-mahat-puëyaà yāsyāmo 'dyaiva mā ciram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na vastavyam—should not reside; iha—here; asmābhiù—we; jijéviñubhiù—desiring to live; äryakāu—O venerable ones; prabhāsam—to the holy place called Prabhāsa; su-mahat—very much; puëyam—pious; yāsyāmaù—let us go; adya—today; eva—even; mā ciram—without delay.

TRANSLATION

My dear respected elders, we must not remain any longer in this place if we wish to keep our lives intact. Let us go this very day to the most pious place Prabhāsa. We have no time to delay.

PURPORT

Many demigods, coming to the earth to assist Lord Kāṇḍa in His pastimes, took birth within the Yadu dynasty and appeared as Lord Kāṇḍa's associates. When the Lord had completed His earthly pastimes He wanted to send these demigods back to their previous service in universal administration. Each demigod was to return to his respective planet. The transcendental city of Dvārakā is so auspicious that whoever dies there immediately goes back home, back to Godhead, but because the demigod members of the Yadu dynasty, in many cases, were not yet prepared to go back to Godhead, they had to die outside the city of Dvārakā. Thus Lord Kāṇḍa, pretending to be an ordinary living being, said, "We are all in danger. Let us all immediately go to Prabhāsa." In this way, by His yoga-māyā Kāṇḍa bewildered such demigod members of the Yadu dynasty and led them away to the holy place Prabhāsa.

Since Dvārakā is parama-maṇi gala, the most auspicious place, not even an imitation of inauspiciousness can take place there. Actually, Lord Kāṇḍa's pastime of removing the Yadu dynasty is ultimately auspicious, but since it outwardly appeared inauspicious, it could not take place in Dvārakā; therefore Lord Kāṇḍa led the Yadus away from Dvārakā. After having sent the demigods back to their planets, Lord Kāṇḍa planned to return to the spiritual world, Vaikuṇṭha, in His original form and remain in the eternal city of Dvārakā.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatī Ōḥakura has made the following important comments on this verse. Prabhāsa is a famous holy place located near the Veraval railway station, within the region of Junagarah. In Chapter Thirty of the Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam it is written that after hearing the words of Çré Kāṇḍa, the Yādavas went to the mainland from the island city of Dvārakā by means of boats and then traveled to Prabhāsa in chariots. At Prabhāsa-kṣētra they drank a beverage called maireya and became engaged in a mutual quarrel. A great battle ensued, and killing each other with hard stalks of cane, the members of the Yadu dynasty acted out the pastime of their own annihilation.

Lord Çré Kâñëa, manifesting His four-armed form, sat down under a pippala tree, placing His left foot, the heel of which was colored red like the red koka-nada lotus, upon His right thigh. A hunter named Jarä, watching from the shore of the ocean at Prabhäsa, mistook the Lord's red-colored foot to be the face of a deer and shot his arrow at it.

At the base of that same pippala tree under which Lord Kâñëa had sat there is now a temple. One mile away from the tree, on the seashore, is the Véra-prabhai jana Maöha, and it is said that from this point the hunter Jarä fired his arrow.

In the conclusion to his work Mahäbhärata-tätöarya-nirëaya, Çré Madhväcärya-päda has written the following purport to the mauñala-lélä. The Supreme Personality of Godhead, in order to bewilder the demons and ensure that the word of His own devotees and of the brähmaëas be maintained, created a body of material energy into which the arrow was shot. But the Lord's actual four-armed form was never touched by the arrow of Jarä, who is actually the Lord's devotee Bhägu Äñi. In a previous age Bhägu Muni had placed his foot on the chest of Lord Viñëu. In order to counteract the offense of improperly placing his foot on the Lord's chest, Bhägu had to take birth as a degraded hunter. But even though a great devotee willingly accepts such a low birth, the Personality of Godhead cannot tolerate seeing His devotee in such a fallen condition. Thus the Personality of Godhead arranged that at the end of Dväpara-yuga, when the Lord was winding up His manifest pastimes, His devotee Bhägu, in the form of the hunter Jarä, would cast the arrow into a material body created by the Lord's illusory energy. Thus the hunter would become remorseful, gain release from his degraded birth and go back to Vaikuëöha-loka.

Therefore, to please His devotee Bhägu and to confuse the demons, the Supreme Lord manifested His mauñala-lélä at Prabhäsa, but it should be understood that this is an illusory pastime. The Personality of Godhead, Lord Kâñëa, from His very appearance on the earth, did not manifest any of the material qualities of ordinary human beings. The Lord did not appear from the womb of His mother. Rather, by His inconceivable power He descended into the maternity room. At the time of His giving up this mortal world, He similarly manifested an illusory situation for the sake of bewildering the demons. To bewilder the nondevotees, the Lord created an illusory body out of His material energy while simultaneously remaining personally in His own sac-cid-ānanda body, and thus He manifested the downfall of an illusory, material form. This pretense effectively bewilders foolish demons, but Lord Çré Kāñëa's actual transcendental, eternal body of bliss never experiences death.

Also at Prabhāsa-kñetra there is the holy place known as Bhāgu-tértha, which was manifested by Lord Paraçurāma. The place at which the two rivers Sarasvaté and Hiraëyā flow together into the ocean is named Bhāgu-tértha, and there the hunter cast his arrow. There is an elaborate description of Prabhāsa-tértha in the Prabhāsa-khaëòa of the Skanda Purāëa. There are also many phala-çrutis given within the Mahābhārata in connection with Prabhāsa-tértha. Phala-çrutis are scriptural statements that promise various auspicious results for one who performs a particular pious activity. In the following verses the Lord Himself will explain the particular benefits to be derived from visiting Prabhāsakñetra and performing religious activities there.

TEXT 36

yaṭa maAtvaA d"°azAApaAä," gA{h"ltaAe ya°maNAeäu"r"Aq%. ivamau·(: ik(ilbaSaAts$aâAe Baejae BaUya: k(laAed"yama,

yatra snātvā dakñā-çäpād gāhéto yakñmaëodu-räi vimuktaù kilbiñāt sadyo bheje bhüyaù kalodayam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yatra—where; snātvā—taking bath; dakṣa-ṣāpāt—because of the curse of Prajāpati Dakṣa; gāhetau—seized; yakīmaëä—by consumptive lung disease; uou-räö—the king of stars, the moon; vimuktau—freed; kilbiñāt—from his sinful reaction; sadyau—immediately; bheje—he assumed; bhūyaù—once again; kalā—of his phases; udayam—the increasing.

TRANSLATION

Once, the moon was afflicted with consumption because of the curse of Dakṣa, but just by taking bath at Prabhāsa-kīetra, the moon was immediately freed from his sinful reaction and again resumed the waxing of his phases.

TEXTS 37-38

vayaM ca taisma^aaAplautya tapaRiyatvaA ipata|na, s$aur"Ana, BaAejaiyatvaAeiSajaAe iva'aAna, naAnaAgAuNAvataAnDas$aA

taeSau d"AnaAina paAṭaeSau ™aÜ"yaAeptvaA mah"Ainta vaE va{ijanaAina tair"SyaAmaAe d"AnaEnaAE=#iBair"vaANARvama, vayaà ca tasminn äplutya tarpayitvä pitèn surān bhojayitvoñijo viprān

nānā-guëavatāndhasā

teñu dānāni pātreñu ṣraddhayoptvä mahānti vai vājināni tariṇyāmo
dānair naubhir ivārëavam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vayam—we; ca—also; tasmin—at that place; äplutya—bathing; tarpayitvä—satisfying by offerings; pitèn—the departed forefathers; surän—and the demigods; bhojayitvä—feeding; uñijaù—worshipable; viprän—the brähmaëas; nänä—various; guëa-vatä—having tastes; andhasä—with foodstuffs; teñu—in them (the brähmaëas); dänäni—gifts; pätreñu—as fitting candidates for charity; çraddhayä—faithfully; uptvä—sowing (i.e. offering to them); mahänti—great; vai—indeed; väjinäni—the dangers; tariñyämaù—we will cross over; dänaiù—by our charity; naubhiù—with boats; iva—as if; arëavam—the ocean.

TRANSLATION

By bathing at Prabhäsa-kñetra, by offering sacrifice there to placate the forefathers and demigods, by feeding the worshipable brähmaëas with various delicious foodstuffs and by bestowing opulent gifts upon them as the most suitable candidates for charity, we will certainly cross over these terrible dangers through such acts of charity, just as one can cross over a great ocean in a suitable boat.

TEXT 39

™alzAuk(ovaAca
WvaM BagAvataAid"i"A yaAd"vaA: ku(ç&nand"na gAntauM k{(taiDayastaITa< syand"naAna, s$amayaUyaujana,

çré-çuka uväca
evaà bhagavatädiñöä
yädaväù kuru-nandana
gantuà kâta-dhiyas tërthaà syandanän samayüyujan

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva said; evam—thus; bhagavatā—by the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ādiññāù—instructed; yādavāù—the Yādavas; kuru-nandana—O favorite of the Kurus; gantum—to go; kāta-dhiyaù—having made up their minds; tértham—to the holy place; syandanān—to their chariots; samayūyujan—they yoked their horses.

TRANSLATION

Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: O favorite son of the Kurus, thus advised by the Personality of Godhead, the Yādavas made up their minds to go to that holy place, Prabhāsa-kñetra, and thus yoked their horses to their chariots.

TEXTS 40-41

tai^aar"l^oyaAeÜ"vaAe r"Ajana, TMautvaA BagAvataAeid"tama, ä{"î"Air"î"Aina GaAer"AiNA inatyaM k{(SNamanauñata:

ivaiva·(opas$aËÿmya
 jagAtaAmaIire"ir"ma, ‘aNAmya izAir"s$aA paAd"AE ‘aAÃailastamaBaASata tan nirékñyoddhavo rājan çrutvā bhagavatoditam dāñvāriññāni ghorāēi

nityaà kññēam anuvrataù

vivikta upasāi gamya jagatām éçvareçvaram
praëamya çirisā pādaù
prāi jalis tam abhññata

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—that; nirékñya—seeing; uddhavaù—Uddhava; räjan—O King; çrutvä—hearing; bhagavatä—by the Lord; uditam—what had been said; dāñvā—observing; ariññāni—evil omens; ghoräëi—fearful; nityam—always; kāñëam—of Lord Kāñëa; anuvrataù—a faithful follower; vivikte—in privacy; upasaì gamya—approaching; jagatām—of all the moving creatures within the universe; éçvara—of the controllers; éçvaram—the one supreme controller; praëamyä—bowing down; çirasä—with his head; pädaù—at His feet; präi'jaliù—with hands folded in submission; tam—to Him; abhäñata—spoke.

TRANSLATION

My dear King, Uddhava was a constantly faithful follower of Lord Kāñëa. Upon seeing the imminent departure of the Yādavas, hearing from them of the Lord's instructions and taking note of the fearful omens, he approached the Personality of Godhead in a private place. He bowed down with his head at the lotus feet of the supreme controller of the universe and with folded hands addressed Him as follows.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé there cannot be any actual disturbance in the Lord's own abode. The great disasters apparently occurring in Dvārakä were an external show created by the Lord to facilitate His pastimes. We can understand the pastimes of Kāñëa only by hearing from the recognized äcäryas. Lord Kāñëa is not a mundane historical figure, and His activities cannot be confined within the tiny limits of material logic. Lord Kāñëa's pastimes are an exhibition of His acintya-çakti, or inconceivable potency, which functions according to higher, spiritual laws, unknown to the blind conditioned souls and their petty material logic.

TEXT 42

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
de"vade"vaezA yaAegAezA
pauNya™avaNAk(LtaRna

s$amô$tyaEtatku(laM naUnaM laAekM(s$antya°yatae BavaAna, iva'azAApaM s$amaTaAeR'ipa
'atyah"ªa yad"lir":

çré-uddhava uvāca
deva-deveça yogeça
puëya-çravaëa-kértana saàhātyaitat kulaà nūnaà lokaà santyakñyate bhavān vipra-çāpaà samartho 'pi pratyahan na yad éçvaraù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; deva-deva—of the greatest among the demigods; éça—O ultimate God; yoga-éça—O master of all mystic power; puëya—which are pious; çravaëa-kértana—O You, hearing and chanting the glories of whom; saàhātya—withdrawing; etat—this; kulam—dynasty; nūnam—is it not so; lokam—this world; santyakñyate—are about to give up once and for all; bhavān—You; vipra-çāpam—the curse of the brähmaëas; samarthaù—capable; api—although; pratyahan na—You did not counteract; yat—because; éçvaraù—the Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: O my Lord, O supreme God among all the demigods, real piety is invoked simply by hearing and chanting Your transcendental glories. My Lord, it appears that You will now withdraw Your dynasty, and thus You Yourself will finally give up Your pastimes within this universe. You are the supreme controller and the master of all mystic power. But although You are fully capable of counteracting the brähmaëas' curse against Your dynasty, You are not doing so, and Your disappearance is imminent.

PURPORT

As previously mentioned, Kāṇḍya's own dynasty can never be destroyed; therefore the word saṅhātya means that Kāṇḍya was taking the Yādavas with Him as He left this material world. However, in the eyes of ordinary, unenlightened persons the withdrawal of the Yadu dynasty appears to be its destruction. Ćrēla Viṇvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura has very nicely explained the statement of Uddhava as follows.

Kāṇḍya is addressed as deva-deva, or the supreme God among the gods, because He expertly solved all of the problems of the demigods by His incarnation within the universe. The Lord rid the world of demons and firmly established both His devotees and religious principles. Lord Kāṇḍya is addressed here as yogeṇa because He not only performed work on behalf of the demigods, but also revealed His beautiful, transcendental form, full of transcendental qualities and ecstasies, for the pleasure of His pure devotees. Kāṇḍya is called puṇya-ṇravaṇa-kṛtana because when by His internal mystic potency He exhibited His humanlike activities, the Lord stimulated the writing of innumerable Vedic scriptures about His pastimes. Thus persons who would be born in the future, like ourselves would be able to hear and chant about the Lord's activities and also go back home, back to Godhead.

Having insured the transcendental bliss and liberation of all of His devotees, even those who would be born in the future, Kāṇḍya decided the time had come for Him to leave this material universe. Uddhava could understand the Lord's desire and said to Kāṇḍya, "You have instructed the Yādavas to counteract the brāhmaṇas' curse by taking bath at Prabhāsakṇetra, but how could mere bathing in a holy place be of greater value than seeing You, the Personality of Godhead, face to face? Since the Yādavas are always seeing Your transcendental form, and since You are the Supreme Lord, what is the use of their taking bath in a so-called holy place? Therefore You obviously have some other purpose. If You actually wanted to counteract the curse, You could simply say, 'Let this curse not act,' and the curse would immediately be neutralized. Therefore You must be preparing to leave this universe, and that is why You have not counteracted the curse."

TEXT 43

naAhM" tavaAx.~i,,ak(malaM °aNAADaRmaipa ke(zAva tya-uM(s$amauts$ahē" naATa svaDaAma naya maAmaipa

nāhaà tavāi ghri-kamalaà kñāëārdham api keçava tyaktuà samutsahe nātha sva-dhāma naya mām api

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—am not; aham—I; tava—Your; aī ghri-kamalam—lotus feet; kñāëa—of a moment; ardham—for half; api—even; keçava—O killer of the demon Keçi; tyaktum—giving up; samutsahe—am I able to tolerate; nātha—O master; sva-dhāma—to Your own abode; naya—please take; mām—me; api—also.

TRANSLATION

O Lord Keçava, my dear master, I cannot tolerate giving up Your lotus feet even for a fraction of a moment. I urge You to take me along with You to Your own abode.

PURPORT

Uddhava understood that Kāñëa was going to withdraw the Yadu dynasty, and thus he begged the Lord to take him along to the Lord's abode. He had no desire to merge into Kāñëa's impersonal effulgence; instead he wanted to go to the Lord's spiritual abode and continue associating with Kāñëa as His dearest friend. Kāñëa is the Personality of Godhead and can do whatever He likes, but the devotee begs the Lord for the chance to serve Him. Although the Lord manifests within the material world His various abodes, such as Våndāvana, Dvārakā and Mathurā, and although these are certainly nondifferent from their counterparts in the spiritual world, the most advanced devotees, overwhelmed with desire to personally serve the Lord, are very eager to go to the Lord's original spiritual planet. As stated by Lord Kapila in the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, the pure devotees have no desire for liberation. Because of their eagerness to render service, they urge the Lord to appear before them. The six Gosvāmés, due to their intense eagerness to serve Rādhā and Kāñëa, urgently searched after Them, calling out Their names in the forests of Vāndāvana. Similarly, Uddhava is urging the Lord to take him to His own abode so that Uddhava's personal service to the Lord's lotus feet will not be interrupted even for a moment.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has pointed out that immature conditioned souls think that Lord Kāñëa is an ordinary jéva soul engaged in material activities and was thus unable to protect His own dynasty from the curse of the brāhmaëas. Uddhava's statement corrects such unfortunate persons. It is Lord Kāñëa Himself who awarded pious living entities birth in brahminical families, and then Lord Kāñëa further awarded them the potency to curse His dynasty. And finally, Lord Kāñëa personally kept the curse intact, although He was capable of neutralizing it. Therefore in the beginning, middle and end, directly and indirectly, in the past, present and future, Lord Kāñëa is the Absolute Truth, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and He is completely transcendental to even the slightest touch of material illusion or impotence.

TEXT 44

tava iva,(Lix"taM k{(SNA na{naAM par"mamaËylama, k(NARpalyaUSamaAs$aAâ tyajantyanyas$pa{h"AM janaA:

*tava vikréòitaà kãñëa nãnäà parama-maì galam
karëa-péyüñam äsädya tyajanty anya-spâhãà janäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tava—Your; vikrëòitam—pastimes; kāñëa—O Kāñëa; nãëäm—for men; parama-maì galam—supremely auspicious; karëa—for the ears; péyüñam—nectar; äsädya—having tasted; tyajanti—they reject; anya—for other things; spâhäm—their desires; janäù—persons.

TRANSLATION

O my dear Kāñëa, Your pastimes are supremely auspicious for mankind and are an intoxicating beverage for the ears. Tasting such pastimes, people forget their desires for other things.

PURPORT

Anyas-spâhäm, or "desire for things other than Kāñëa," indicates the material desire to enjoy wife, children, money, and so on. Ultimately, the materialist may desire religious salvation for his personal comfort and satisfaction, but all such desires are mundane, because on the spiritual platform the pure soul thinks only of the Lord's pleasure and the Lord's service. Therefore, a pure devotee can never give up Kāñëa, even for a moment, although for Kāñëa's pleasure he can give up the entire universe.

TEXT 45

zAyyaAs$anaAq%nasTaAna-µaAna,(Lx"AzAnaAid"Sau k(TaM tvaAM i'ayamaAtmaAnaM vayaM Ba·(Astyajaema ih"

çayyāsanāōana-sthāna-
snāna-kreōāçanādiñu kathaà tväà priyam ätmānaà vayaà bhaktäs tyajema hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sayyā—in lying down; āsana—sitting; aāna—walking; sthāna—standing; snāna—bathing; krēṇā—taking recreation; āsana—eating; ādīñu—and other activities; katham—how; tvām—You; priyam—dear; ātmānam—Self; vayam—we; bhaktāu—Your devotees; tyajema—can reject; hi—indeed.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, You are the Supreme Soul, and thus You are most dear to us. We are Your devotees, and how can we possibly reject You or live without You even for a moment? Whether we are lying down, sitting, walking, standing, bathing, enjoying recreation, eating or doing anything else, we are constantly engaged in Your service.

PURPORT

One should be constantly engaged in the service of Lord Kāñēa. By hearing about Kāñēa and by serving Him, we can give up the illusion of trying to enjoy something separately from the Supreme Lord. If we neglect such hearing and serving, our minds will become bewildered by the illusory energy of the Lord, and seeing the world as separate from Kāñēa, we will take it as a place meant for our own sense gratification. This gross ignorance brings nothing but trouble to the living entity.

TEXT 46

tvayaAepaBau-(ṽaggAnDavaAs$aAe'la/ĒyAr"caicaRtaA: oicC$ī"BaAeijanaAe d"As$aAs$a, tava maAyaAM jayaema ih"

tvayopabhukta-srag-gandhavāso-'laṇ kāra-carcitāu

ucchiñña-bhojino dāsās tava māvāṇa jayema hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvayā—by You; upabhukta—already enjoyed; srak—with the garlands; gandha—fragrances; vāsaṇ—garments; alāṇ kara—and ornaments; carcitāṇ—adorned; ucchiñña—the remnants of Your food; bhojinaṇ—eating; dāsāṇ—Your servants; tava—Your; māvām—illusory energy; jayema—we will conquer; hi—indeed.

TRANSLATION

Simply by decorating ourselves with the garlands, fragrant oils, clothes and ornaments that You have already enjoyed, and by eating the remnants of Your meals, we, Your servants, will indeed conquer Your illusory energy.

PURPORT

It is clear from this verse that Uddhava is not approaching the Lord for liberation from the illusory energy. As a personal, confidential associate of Lord Kāṇḍa, Uddhava was undoubtedly a completely liberated soul. He is praying to the Lord because he cannot bear the thought of living without Kāṇḍa even for a moment. This feeling is called love of God. Uddhava is addressing the Lord as follows: "Even if Your illusory energy tries to attack us, my Lord, we will very easily conquer her by our powerful weapons, which are the remnants of Your foodstuffs, clothes, ornaments, and so on. In other words, we will easily conquer over māvā by kāṇḍa-prasādam, and not by useless speculation and mental concoction."

TEXT 47

vaAtavas$anaA ya [%Saya:
™amaNAA O'aRmainTana: “aöAKyaM DaAma tae yaAinta zAAntaA: s$^ayaAs$alnaAe'malaA:

vāta-vasanā ya āñayaù
çramaëä ürdhva-manthinaù brahmākhyā dhāma te yānti çāntāù sannyāsēno 'malāù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vāta-vasanāù—dressed by the air (naked); ye—those who are; āñayaù—sages; çramaëäù—strict observers of spiritual practices; ürdhva-manthinaù—who have conserved their semen to the point that it has risen up to their heads; brahma-ākhyam—known as Brahman; dhāma—the (impersonal) spiritual abode; te—they; yānti—to go; çāntāù—peaceful; sannyāsinaù—members of the renounced order of life; amalāù—sinless.

TRANSLATION

Naked sages who seriously endeavor in spiritual practice, who have raised their semen upward, who are peaceful and sinless members of the renounced order, attain the spiritual abode called Brahman.

PURPORT

In Chapter Twelve of Bhagavad-gētā it is stated, kleṣo 'dhikataras teñām avyaktāsakta-cetasām: those who are attached to the impersonal feature of the Personality of Godhead must endure grueling penances in order to achieve impersonal liberation in the realm of Brahman. Also it is stated in the Bhāgavatam, āruhya kâcchreëa paraà padaà tataù/ patanty adho 'nâdâta-yuimad-aì ghrayaù [SB 10.2.32]. Kâcchreëa: with great struggle and trouble the yogés climb their way up into the impersonal effulgence called brahma-jyotir, but again they slip out of the jyoti and fall back into the material world because they do not take shelter of the Personality of Godhead.

Envious fools object to the "paternalism" of the Personality of Godhead, but these fools cannot take credit for the creation of their own body, brain or energy, nor can they claim credit for the air, rain, vegetables, fruits, sun, moon, and so on. In other words, they are totally dependent on the mercy of God at every second, and yet they arrogantly state that they do not want to accept the shelter of the Lord, because they are self-sufficient. In fact, some bewildered living entities even think that they themselves are God, although they cannot explain why "God" has to struggle and toil to achieve meager success in the yoga system. Therefore Uddhava is pointing out that, unlike the impersonalists and meditators, the pure devotees very easily cross over the illusory energy because they are totally attached to the lotus feet of Kåñëa. Lord Kåñëa is always transcendental, and if one is firmly attached to the Lord's lotus feet, then he is also transcendental. The causeless mercy of Kåñëa is more valuable than millions and billions of years of one's own struggling and straining. One should try to get the Lord's mercy, and then everything will become very easy on the path of spiritual realization. In this age one can achieve the mercy of Lord Kåñëa by constantly chanting His holy name, as recommended in the çästra:

*harer nāma harer nāma
harer nāmaiva kevalam
kalau nāsty eva nāsty eva
nāsty eva gatir anyathā
[Cc. Ādi 17.21]
(Bāhan-nāradēya Purāëa)*

If one constantly chants Lord Kåñëa's holy names, avoiding offenses against the names, then surely one will achieve the same result as Uddhava. Uddhava was not interested in so-called Brahman realization, but rather he wanted to go on drinking the maddening nectar of the beautiful smiling of the Lord's moonlike face.

TEXTS 48-49

vayaM itvah" mah"AyaAeigAna,

"amanta: k(maRvatmaRs$au tvaã"AtaRyaA tair"SyaAmas$a, taAvakE(äuR"starM" tama:

smar"nta: k(LtaRyantastae k{(taAina gAid"taAina ca gAtyauitsmatae°aNA°vaeila ya²a{laAek(ivax"mbanama,

*vayaà tv iha mahä-yogin bhramantaù karma-vartmasu tvad-värtayä tariṇyāmas tävakair dustaraà tamaù smarantaù kértayantas te kâtäni gaditāni ca
gaty-utsmitekñāëa-kñveli yan nâ-loka-viòambanam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vayam—we; tu—on the other hand; iha—in this world; mahä-yogin—O greatest of yogés; bhramantaù—wandering; karma-vartmasu—on the paths of material work; tvat—of You; värtayä—by discussion of the topics; tariṇyāmaù—will cross over; tävakaiù—along with Your devotees; dustaram—insurmountable; tamaù—darkness; smarantaù—remembering; kértayantaù—glorifying; te—Your; kâtäni—deeds; gaditāni—words; ca—also; gati—movements; utsmita—widely smiling; ékñāëa—glances; kñveli—and loving pastimes; yat—which are; nâ-loka—of human society; viòambanam—a clever imitation.

TRANSLATION

O greatest of mystics, although we are conditioned souls wandering on the path of fruitive work, we will certainly cross beyond the darkness of this material world simply by hearing about Your Lordship in the association of

Your devotees. Thus we are always remembering and glorifying the wonderful things You do and the wonderful things You say. We ecstatically recall Your amorous pastimes with Your confidential conjugal devotees and how You boldly smile and move about while engaged in such youthful pastimes. My dear Lord, Your loving pastimes are bewilderingly similar to the activities of ordinary people within this material world.

PURPORT

In this verse Uddhava, by stating bhramantaù karma-vartmasu, humbly presents himself as one of the conditioned souls entangled in fruitive activities. Still, Uddhava is confident that he will certainly cross over the illusory energy because he is addicted to chanting and remembering the glorious activities and words of Lord Kåñëa. Similarly, Rûpa Gosvämé has stated:

*éhä yasya harer däsye
karmaëä manasä girä
nikhiläsv apy avasthäsu
jévan-muktaù sa ucyate*

Although one may outwardly appear to be involved in this material world, if one is always engaged, twenty-four hours a day, in the service of Lord Kåñëa, then one is considered to be a liberated soul. Uddhava states here that hearing and chanting the holy name and pastimes of Kåñëa is infinitely more effective than becoming a naked yogé in the forest and running the constant risk of becoming, due to lusty desires and sex indulgence, a naked monkey in the forest. Uddhava is begging the Lord for the mercy of His Sudarçana cakra, whose effulgence is represented by the process of remembering and chanting the pastimes of the Lord. One who absorbs himself in the incomparable bliss of thinking of the Lord's abode easily becomes free from all lamentation, illusion and fear. That is the recommendation of Çré Uddhava.

TEXT 50

™alZAuk(ovaAca
WvaM ivaÁaAipataAe r"Ajana, BagAvaAnde"vak(Ls$auta: Wk(AintanaM i'ayaM Ba{tyama, oÜ"vaM s$amaBaASata

çré-çuka uvāca
evaà viji āpito rājan
bhagavān devaké-sutaù ekāntinaà priyaà bhātyam uddhavaà samabhāñata

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; evam—in this way; viji āpitaù—requested; rājan—O King; bhagavān—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; devaké-sutaù—the son of Devaké; ekāntinam—in private; priyam—dear; bhātyam—to the servant; uddhavam—Uddhava; samabhāñata—He spoke at length.

TRANSLATION

Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: O King Parékñit, thus addressed, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, the son of Devaké, began to reply confidentially to His dear, unalloyed servant Uddhava.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté, the conditioned living entities, by their movements, laughter, activities and words, simply bind themselves more and more in material existence. But if they engage in hearing and chanting about the pastimes of the Personality of Godhead, the conditioned souls will achieve liberation from the bondage of repeated birth and death. This process of supreme liberation will now be elaborately described by Lord Çré Kāñëa to His dearmost devotee Çré Uddhava.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Sixth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Yadu Dynasty Retires to Prabhāsa."

7. Lord Kāñëa Instructs Uddhava

As described in this chapter, the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa, replied to Uddhava's prayerful entreaty that he be allowed to return with Him to His abode. Kāñëa advised Uddhava to take to the renounced order of sannyāsa, and when Uddhava showed interest in more elaborate instructions, the Lord further described the avadhūta's account of his twenty-four spiritual masters.

After hearing Uddhava's prayerful request to be taken back with Him to the spiritual world, Lord Kāñëa informed him that He was indeed desirous of returning to His own personal abode because the purpose of His descent had been successfully fulfilled and the misfortunes of Kali-yuga would soon beset the earth. He thus advised Uddhava to take up sannyāsa by fixing his mind upon Him and establishing himself in theoretical and realized transcendental knowledge. The Lord further instructed Uddhava that while remaining untouched by contamination and compassionately disposed to all beings, he should begin wandering throughout this temporary world, which is simply the combined manifestation of the Lord's illusory energy and the imagination of the living entities.

Uddhava then stated that renouncing material things in a spirit of detachment is the source of the highest auspiciousness, but such renunciation is certainly extremely difficult to accomplish for living entities other than the devotees of the Supreme Lord, because they are very attached to sense gratification. Uddhava expressed the need for some instruction by which foolish persons who misidentify the body as the self can be convinced to carry out their duties in accordance with the order of the Supreme Lord. Even great demigods like Brahmā are not completely surrendered to the Lord, but Uddhava declared that he himself had taken shelter of the only true instructor of the Absolute Truth-Lord Nārāyaṇa, the all-perfect, all-knowing master of Vaikuṇṭha and the only real friend of all living entities. Hearing this, the Supreme Lord replied that actually the jīva soul is his own guru. Within this human body, the living beings can search out the Supreme Lord by positive and negative means and ultimately achieve Him. For this reason the human form of life is most dear to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In this regard, Lord Kāṇḍa began to describe an ancient conversation between a brāhmaṇa avadhūta and the great king Yadu.

The son of Yayāti, Mahārāja Yadu, once encountered an avadhūta who was traveling about, here and there, in great transcendental ecstasy and was acting unpredictably, just like someone who has become haunted by a ghost. The King inquired from the holy man about the cause of his wandering and his ecstatic condition, and the avadhūta replied that he had received various instructions from twenty-four different gurus-the earth, the wind, the sky, the water, fire, and so on. Because of the knowledge he had gained from them, he was able to travel about the earth in a liberated state.

From the earth he had learned how to be sober, and from the two manifestations of earth, namely the mountain and the tree, he had learned, respectively, how to serve others and how to dedicate one's whole life to the benefit of others. From the wind, manifesting in the form of the vital air within the body, he had learned how to be satisfied with merely keeping oneself alive, and from the external wind he had learned how to remain uncontaminated by the body and the objects of the senses. From the sky he had learned how the soul, which pervades all material substances, is both indivisible and imperceptible, and from the water he had learned how to be naturally clear and purifying. From the fire he had learned how to devour all things without becoming dirtied and how to destroy all the inauspicious desires of those who make offerings to him. He had also learned from fire how the spirit soul enters into every body and gives illumination and how the birth and death of those who are embodied cannot be discerned. From the moon he had learned how the material body undergoes growth and dwindling. From the sun he had learned how to avoid entanglement even while coming into contact with sense objects, and he had also learned about the two different modes of perception based on seeing the real form of the soul and seeing false designative coverings. From the pigeon he had learned how too much affection and excessive attachment are not good for one. This human body is the open door to liberation, but if one becomes attached to family life like the pigeon, one is compared to a person who has climbed up to a high place just to fall down again.

TEXT 1

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
yad"AtTa maAM mah"ABaAgA tai»ak(LiSaRtamaeva mae
"aöA BavaAe laAek(paAlaA: svavaARs$aM mae'iBak(AiÉÿNA:

çré-bhagavän uväca
yad ättha mää mahä-bhāga tac-cikérñitam eva me
brahmä bhavo loka-päläù svar-väsaà me 'bhikāi kñiëaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; yad—that which; ättha—you spoke; mäm—to Me; mahä-bhāga—O greatly fortunate Uddhava; tat—that; cikérñitam—the program that I am desiring to execute; eva—certainly; me—Mine; brahmä—Lord Brahmä; bhavaù—Lord Çiva; loka-päläù—the leaders of all universal planets; svaù-väsam—abode in Vaikuëöha; me—My; abhikāi kñiëaù—they are desiring.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: O greatly fortunate Uddhava, you have accurately revealed My desire to withdraw the Yadu dynasty from the earth and return to My own abode in Vaikuṇṭha. Thus Lord Brāhmā, Lord Śiva and all other planetary rulers are now praying for Me to resume My residence in Vaikuṇṭha.

PURPORT

Each and every demigod has his particular abode in the heavenly planets within the material universe. Although Lord Viṇṇu is sometimes counted among the demigods, His abode is in Vaikuṇṭha, the spiritual sky. The demigods are universal controllers within the kingdom of māyā, but Viṇṇu is the Lord of the illusory potency and many other spiritual potencies. His exalted residence does not lie within the kingdom of His insignificant maidservant māyā.

Lord Viṇṇu, the Personality of Godhead, is the Supreme Lord of all lords; the demigods are His separated parts and parcels. Being themselves minute jīva souls, the demigods are under the influence of the potency of māyā; but Lord Viṇṇu is always the supreme controller of māyā. The Personality of Godhead is the reservoir and root of all existence, and the material world is just a dim reflection of the brilliant scenery of His eternal, spiritual abode, where everything is infinitely beautiful and pleasurable. Viṇṇu is the supreme reality, and no living entity can ever be equal to or greater than Him. The Lord exists within His own unique category called viṇṇu-tattva, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead. All other prominent or extraordinary living entities owe their positions and potencies to the Lord. Ultimately Viṇṇu Himself is a plenary expansion of Lord Kāṇḍa, the original source of all the viṇṇu-tattva and jīva-tattva expansions. Thus Lord Kāṇḍa is the basis of everything.

TEXT 2

mayaA inaSpaAid"taM ÷ṭa de"vak(AyaRmazAeSata:
yad"TaRmavataINAAeR'h"ma, @MzAena "aöNAAiTARta:

*mayä niñpäditā hy atra deva-kāryam aṇṇatāu
yad-artham avatēreō 'ham aṇṇena brahmaēārthitāu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mayä—by Me; niñpäditam—accomplished; hi—certainly; atra—within this world; deva-kāryam—work for the benefit of the demigods; aṇṇatāu—completely, with nothing remaining; yat—for whose; artham—sake; avatēreāu—incarnated; aham—I; aṇṇena—with My plenary portion, Baladeva; brahmaēā—by Lord Brahmā; arthitāu—being prayed for.

TRANSLATION

Answering the prayer of Lord Brahmā, I descended within this world along with My plenary portion, Lord Baladeva, and performed various activities on behalf of the demigods. I have now completed My mission here.

TEXT 3

ku(laM vaE zAApainadR"gDaM naÉYyatyanyaAenyaivafah"Ata, s$amau"%": s$aæamae ÷enaAM paur"I%M ca plaAvaiyaSyaita

kulā vai ṇṇapa-nirdagdha nāi kīyaty anyonya-vigrahāt samudrāu saptame hy enā purē ca plāvayīṇyati

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kulam—this Yadu dynasty; vai—definitely; çäpa—by the curse; nirdagdham—finished; naï kīyati—will be destroyed; anyonya—mutual; vigrahāt—by a quarrel; samudraù—the ocean; saptame—on the seventh day; hi—certainly; enäm—this; purém—city; ca—also; plāvayīṇyati—will inundate.

TRANSLATION

Now due to the brāhmaëas' curse the Yadu dynasty will certainly perish by fighting among themselves; and on the seventh day from today the ocean will rise up and inundate this city of Dvārakā.

PURPORT

In this and the following verses, Lord Kāṇëa indicates to Uddhava that he should immediately fix himself in self-realization by giving up all identification with the material world. Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé has pointed out that the Yadu dynasty was not actually destroyed by Lord Kāṇëa but merely removed from the vision of the world through the curse of the brāhmaëas; similarly, the Lord's eternal abode Dvārakā can never be drowned by the ocean. Nevertheless, all external approaches to this transcendental city were covered by the ocean, and thus the Lord's abode remains inaccessible to foolish persons in Kali-yuga, as will be described later in this canto.

By the Lord's mystic potency, called yoga-māyā, He reveals His own form, abode, paraphernalia, pastimes, entourage, and so on, and at the suitable time He removes all of these from our mundane sight. Although bewildered conditioned souls may doubt the spiritual potency of the Lord, the pure devotees can directly perceive and relish His transcendental appearance and disappearance, which are described in Bhagavad-gētā as janma karma ca me divyam [Bg. 4.9]. If one faithfully accepts this perfect knowledge of the Lord's transcendental nature, then surely one will go back home, back to Godhead, and become an eternal companion of Lord Kāṇëa.

TEXT 4

ya÷eRvaAyaM mayaA tya·(Ae laAek(Ae'yaM naí"maËÿla: BaivaSyatyaicar"Ats$AaDaAe
k(ilanaAipa inar"Ak{(ta:

yarhy evāyaà mayā tyakto loko 'yaà nañña-maī galaù bhaviṇyaty acirāt sādho kalināpi nirākātaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yarhi—when; eva—certainly; ayam—this; mayā—by Me; tyaktaù—abandoned; lokaù—the world; ayam—this;
nañña-maī galaù—bereft of all auspiciousness or piety; bhaviṇyati—it will be;
acirāt—very soon; sādho—O saintly one; kalinā—due to Kali; api—himself;
nirākātaù—overwhelmed.

TRANSLATION

O saintly Uddhava, in the near future I will abandon this earth. Then, being overwhelmed by the age of Kali, the earth will be bereft of all piety.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa's plan was to bring Uddhava back to His own eternal abode after a brief delay. Because of Uddhava's extraordinary spiritual qualities, the Lord wanted to engage him in propagating His message among other saintly persons who were not yet advanced to the stage of pure devotional service. However, the Lord assured Uddhava that he would not be bereft of the Lord's association for even a moment. Also, because Uddhava had become a perfect master of his senses, he would never be afflicted by the three modes of material nature. In this way, before bringing Uddhava back home, back to Godhead, the Lord empowered him to carry out a specific confidential mission.

Wherever the supreme position of the Personality of Godhead is not recognized, useless mental speculation becomes very prominent, and the safe and sure path of hearing perfect Vedic knowledge becomes covered by the chaos of mental concoction. At the present time, especially in the Western countries, literally millions of books are being published on hundreds and thousands of subjects; yet despite this proliferation of mental concoction people remain totally in ignorance about the most fundamental issues of human life, namely, Who am I? Where have I come from? Where am I going? What is my soul? What is God?

The Personality of Godhead, Lord Çré Kâñëa, is the reservoir of innumerable enchanting pastimes, and thus He is the source of innumerable varieties of pleasure. In fact, He is the ocean of eternal pleasure. When the eternal soul is bereft of the constitutional pleasure that comes from loving service to the Lord, he is overwhelmed and bewildered by material nature. He helplessly chases after material sense gratification, thinking that one material object is good and another bad, and constantly changes his assessment of what is good and what is bad. Thus he derives no peace or pleasure, is in constant anxiety and is repeatedly thrashed by the cruel laws of nature in the form of birth, death, old age and disease.

In this way the conditioned soul becomes a fit candidate to take birth in Kali-yuga, which is the epitome of misfortune. In Kali-yuga the living entities, who are already suffering so many tribulations, mercilessly turn against one another. Human society in Kali-yuga becomes savagely violent, and men open slaughterhouses to butcher hundreds of millions of innocent creatures. Large-scale wars are declared, and millions of human beings, even women and children, are quickly annihilated.

Unless the living entity recognizes the authority of the Personality of Godhead, he remains a helpless victim in the clutches of mâyä, or material illusion. He concocts different solutions to release himself from mâyä, but these solutions are themselves creations of mâyä and thus cannot possibly release the conditioned soul. In fact, they only intensify his distress. In the next verse, Lord Kāñëa specifically warns Uddhava to avoid Kali-yuga and go back home, back to Godhead. Those of us who have already taken birth in Kali-yuga should also heed this advice and immediately take all necessary steps to go back to the Lord's eternal abode for a blissful life of perfect knowledge. The material world is never a happy place, especially during the fearful days of Kali-yuga.

TEXT 5

na vastavyaM tvayaEvaeh" mayaA tya·e(mah"ltae janaAe'Ba%"ç&icaBaR%" BaivaSyaita k(laAE yaugAe *na vastavyaà tvayaiveha mayä tyakte mahé-tale

jano 'bhadra-rucir bhadra bhaviñyati kalau yuge*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; vastavyam—should remain; tvayä—you; eva—certainly; iha—in this world; mayä—by Me; tyakte—when it is abandoned; mahétale—the earth; janaù—the people; abhadra—sinful, inauspicious things; ruciù—addicted to; bhadra—O you who are sinless and auspicious; bhaviñyati—will be; kalau—in Kali; yuge—in this yuga.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, you should not remain here on the earth once I have abandoned this world. My dear devotee, you are sinless, but in Kali-yuga the people will be addicted to all types of sinful activities; therefore do not stay here.

PURPORT

In this age of Kali, human beings are totally unaware that the Supreme Personality of Godhead comes personally to the earth to manifest His transcendental pastimes as they are enacted in the spiritual world. Heedless of the authority of the Personality of Godhead, the fallen souls of Kali-yuga become engulfed in bitter quarrel and cruelly harass one another. Because people in Kali-yuga are addicted to polluted, sinful activities, they are always angry, lusty and frustrated. In Kali-yuga the devotees of the Personality of Godhead, who are engaged in the ever-increasing loving service of the Lord, should never be attracted to living on the earth, the population of which is covered in the darkness of ignorance and devoid of any loving relationship with the Lord. Thus Lord Kāñëa advised Uddhava not to remain on the earth in Kali-yuga. In fact, in Bhagavad-gētā the Lord advises all living entities that they should never remain anywhere within the material universe—during any age. Therefore every living being should take advantage of the pressures of Kali-yuga to understand the overall useless nature of the material world and surrender himself at the lotus feet of Lord Kāñëa. Following in the footsteps of Çré Uddhava, one should surrender to Kāñëa and go back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 6

tvaM tau s$ava< pair"tyajya µaehM" svajanabanDauSau mayyaAvaezya mana: s$aMyak,( s$amaä{"igvacar"sva gAAma, tvaà tu sarvaà parityajya snehaà sva-jana-bandhuñu mayy äveçya manaù saàyak sama-dåg vicarasva gäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—you; tu—in fact; sarvam—all; parityajya—giving up; sneham—affection; sva-jana-bandhuṇu—for your relatives and friends; mayi—in Me, the Supreme Personality of Godhead; āveṣya—fixing; manaù—your mind; saàyak—completely; sama-dāk—seeing everything with equal vision; vicarasva—wander; gām—throughout the earth.

TRANSLATION

Now you should completely give up all attachment to your personal friends and relatives and fix your mind on Me. Thus being always conscious of Me, you should observe all things with equal vision and wander throughout the earth.

PURPORT

Çrémad Vêrarāghava Ācārya has explained the concept of equal vision as follows: sama-dāk sarvasya brahmātmakatvānusandhāna-rūpa-sama-dāññimān. "One who is on the path of self-realization should always endeavor to see the ultimate spiritual nature of all existence." The word mayi in this verse means paramātmāni. One should fix one's mind on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the source of everything. Thus as one passes one's life on the earth, using up one's allotted time, one should practice seeing all things and all people as part and parcel of the Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead. Since all living entities are part and parcel of Kāñëa, ultimately they all have the same spiritual status. The material nature, also being an emanation of Kāñëa, has a similar spiritual status, but although matter and spirit are both emanations from the Personality of Godhead, they do not exist exactly on the same level. In Bhagavad-gētā it is said that the spirit soul is the superior energy of the Lord, whereas the material nature is His inferior energy. However, since Lord Kāñëa is equally present in all things, the word sama-dāk in this verse indicates that one must ultimately see Kāñëa within everything and everything within Kāñëa. Thus equal vision is compatible with mature knowledge of the varieties present within this world.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura comments as follows on this verse. "At the end of His manifest pastimes on the earth, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, thought as follows within His mind: 'During My pastimes on the earth, I have satisfied the desires of all those devotees who anxiously desired to see Me. I have duly married many thousands of queens, headed by Rukmiëë, whom I personally kidnapped, and I have killed innumerable demons in various places and by various means. I have attended meetings, reunions and ceremonies with many friends, relatives and well-wishers in cities such as Våndävana, Mathurä, Dvärakä, Hastinäpura and Mithilä, and thus I have kept constantly busy coming and going in the performance of pastimes.

" 'I further arranged to give My personal association to great devotees who are situated below the earthly planet. In order to please My mother Devaké and return her six deceased sons who were killed by Kaàsa, I descended to the planet Sutala and blessed My great devotee Bali Mahäräja. In order to return the dead son of My spiritual master, Sändëpani Muni, I personally went to the court of Ravinandana, or Yamaräja, and thus he was able to see Me face to face. I even blessed the residents of heaven, such as mother Aditi and Kaçyapa Muni, with My personal association when I traveled there to steal the pärijäta flower for My wife Satyabhämä. And in order to please the inhabitants of Mahä-viñëu's abode, such as Nanda, Sunanda and Sudarçana, I traveled to Mahä-vaikuëhaloka to recover the deceased children of a frustrated brähmaëa. Thus, innumerable devotees who ardently desired to see Me have received the object of their prayers.

" 'Unfortunately Nara-Näräyaëa Āñi and the great paramahaàsa sages who live with Him in Badarikäçrama, although most enthusiastic to see Me, never had their desire fulfilled. I have been on the earth for 125 years, and the scheduled time is now up. Being busily engaged in My pastimes, I did not have time to give My blessings to these great sages. Nevertheless, Uddhava is practically the same as Me. He is a great devotee and shares My own transcendental opulences. Thus, he is the right person for Me to send to Badarikäçrama. I shall give Uddhava complete transcendental knowledge by which one becomes detached from the material world, and he in turn can deliver this knowledge, the science of transcending the kingdom of illusion, to the worthy sages at Badarikāṣrama. In this way he can teach them the method of rendering loving devotional service to My lotus feet. Such loving devotional service rendered to Me is the most valuable treasure, and by hearing such knowledge the desires of the great sages such as Nara-Nārāyaṇa will be completely fulfilled.

" 'Those great souls who have surrendered unto Me are always equipped with transcendental knowledge and detachment from the material world. Sometimes, being busy in their devotional service, they may appear to forget Me. However, a pure devotee who has achieved the platform of love for Me will always be protected by such sincere devotion. Even if such a devotee should suddenly give up his life while neglecting to fix his mind intensely on Me, such a devotee's loving feelings are so powerful that they afford him all protection. Even if there is a temporary moment of forgetfulness, such devotion will bring the devotee to My lotus feet, which are beyond the vision of ordinary, materialistic persons. Uddhava is My pure devotee. Knowledge of Me and detachment from this world have again been aroused in him because he can never give up My association.' "

The sincere servants of Caitanya Mahāprabhu are vigorously endeavoring to spread this Kāñḍa consciousness movement for the pleasure of their spiritual master and Lord Kāñḍa. At the present time thousands of devotees in the Kāñḍa consciousness movement, in all parts of the world, are working long hours under difficult conditions to distribute transcendental literature and thus enlighten the general populace. In this effort the devotees have no personal motivation but are simply desirous of pleasing their spiritual master by distributing his books. The people who receive this literature usually have no previous experience of Kāñḍa consciousness, yet they are so impressed by the purity of the devotees they meet that they eagerly purchase the books and magazines. In order to execute the tremendous task of spreading Kāñḍa consciousness, the devotees are tirelessly laboring day and night because they are on the platform of loving devotion. Although superficially such busy devotees may occasionally not think directly of the lotus feet of Kāñḍa, such loving devotion will undoubtedly take them back to Kāñḍa's lotus feet, and being pleased by their service, the Lord Himself will again arouse their unflinching meditation upon His personal form. This is the beauty of bhakti-yoga, which depends wholly and solely on the mercy of the all-merciful Personality of Godhead, Çré Kâñëa. This is the only totally safe means of uprooting the deep desires for material enjoyment, attaining pure love for Kâñëa and going beyond the material universe to the kingdom of God. As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (2.40):

nehäbhikrama-näço 'sti pratyaväyo na vidyate sv-alpam apy asya dharmasya träyate mahato bhayät

Lord Kâñëa also advised Uddhava in this verse to give up the illusory attachment to so-called friends and family within this material world. One may not be able to physically give up association with family and friends, but one should understand that everyone and everything is part and parcel of God and is meant for the pleasure of God. As soon as one thinks, "This is my personal family," immediately one will see the material world as no more than a place for enjoying family life. As soon as one is attached to one's so-called family, false prestige and material possessiveness arise. Actually, everyone is part and parcel of God and therefore, on the spiritual platform, related to all other entities. This is called kâñëa-sambandha, or the constitutional relationship with Kâñëa. It is not possible to advance to the highest stage of spiritual awareness and at the same time maintain a petty material concept of society, friendship and love. One should experience all relationships on the higher, spiritual platform of kâñëa-sambandha, which means seeing everything in relation to Lord Kâñëa, the Personality of Godhead.

One who is situated in his constitutional relationship with Kâñëa can see all things in relation to Kâñëa. He thus gives up the mundane urges of the body, mind and speech and travels throughout the earth as a devotee of the Lord. Such a highly elevated personality is called gosvämé, or the master of the senses. This stage is described in Bhagavad-gétä (18.54) by the words brahma-bhütaù prasannätmä: on the spiritual platform one attains complete satisfaction.

TEXT 7

yaid" dM" manas$ aA vaAcaA ca° auByaA< ™avaNAAid" iBa:
nairM" gA{÷maANAM ca
ivaiÜ" maAyaAmanaAemayama,

*yad idaà manasā vācā cakñurbhyāà çravaëädibhiù naçvaraà gāhyamäëaà ca
viddhi mâyā-mano-mayam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yat—that which; idam—this world; manasā—by the mind; vācā—by speech; cakñurbhyām—by the eyes; çravaëa-ädibhiù—by the ears and other senses; naçvaram—temporary; gāhyamäëam—that which is being accepted or perceived; ca—and; viddhi—you should know; mâyā-mano-mayam—it is only imagined to be real by the influence of mâyā.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, the material universe that you perceive through your mind, speech, eyes, ears and other senses is an illusory creation that one imagines to be real due to the influence of mâyā. In fact, you should know that all of the objects of the material senses are temporary.

PURPORT

The question may be raised that since we find good and bad qualities throughout the material world, how can Lord Kāñëa advise Uddhava to see everything equally? In this verse Kāñëa explains that material good and evil are a creation of the illusory energy, just as the objects of a dream are a mental creation.

As stated in Bhagavad-gētā, vāsudevaù sarvam iti: [Bg. 7.19] Lord Kāñëa is actually everything because He is present within everything and everything is present within Him. Kāñëa is sarva-loka-maheçvaram [Bg. 5.29], the Lord and proprietor of all worlds. To see anything separate from Kāñëa is illusion, and attraction to any kind of material illusion, either good or bad, is ultimately useless since it obliges the living entity to continue wandering in the cycle of birth and death.

Seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and touching constitute the activities of the five knowledge-gathering senses. Similarly, the voice, the hands, the legs, the anus and the genital constitute the five working senses. These ten senses are organized around the mind, which is the center of material activity. When the living entity desires to exploit matter, he is covered by the three modes of nature. Thus he concocts different philosophical, political and social explanations of reality but never understands the Absolute Truth, Lord Kāñëa, who is beyond the contaminated perception of the material senses. One who is entangled in the network of material designations, such as race, nationality, sectarian religion, political affiliation, etc., is absorbed in the experience of combining his body and other bodies with material sense objects, thinking these sense objects to be sources of happiness and satisfaction. Unfortunately, the entire material world, along with the senses that experience it, is a temporary creation that will be annihilated by the time potency of the Supreme Lord. Despite our foolish hopes and dreams, there is no actual happiness on the material platform. The real truth is not material, nor is it temporary. The real truth is called ātmā, or the eternal soul, and among all eternal souls one is supreme. He is called the Personality of Godhead, and in His original form He is known as Kāñëa. The knowledge-gathering process culminates in perception of the inconceivable, transcendental form of Kāñëa. One who is not perceiving Kāñëa in everything and everything in Kāñëa is undoubtedly on the platform of mental concoction. In this verse Lord Kāñëa warns Uddhava to remain clear of this illusory platform of existence.

TEXT 8

pauMs$Ae'yau·(sya naAnaATaAeR "ama: s$A gAuNAd"AeSaBaAk,( k(maARk(maRivak(maeRita gAuNAd"AeSaiDayaAe iBad"A puàso 'yuktasya nānārtho bhramaù sa guëa-doña-bhāk karmākarma-vikarmeti guëa-doña-dhiyo bhidä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

puàsaù—of a person; ayuktasya—whose mind is diverted from the truth; nānā—many; arthaù—values or meanings; bhramaù—confusion; saù—that; guëa—something good; doña—something bad; bhāk—embodying; karma—compulsory duties; akarma—nonperformance of prescribed duties; vikarma—forbidden activities; iti—thus; guëa—good things; doña—bad things; dhiyaù—of one who perceives; bhidä—this difference.

TRANSLATION

One whose consciousness is bewildered by illusion perceives many differences in value and meaning among material objects. Thus one engages constantly on the platform of material good and evil and is bound by such conceptions. Absorbed in material duality, such a person contemplates the performance of compulsory duties, nonperformance of such duties and performance of forbidden activities.

PURPORT

The illusory mental platform of existence is described in this verse. The word ayuktasya indicates the conditioned soul who does not fix his mind on the Supreme Personality of Godhead. It is clearly described in Bhagavad-gētä and other Vedic literature that Lord Kāñëä, the Absolute Truth, is within everything, and everything is within the Lord. The example may be given that when a woman loves a man, she is most eager to see him, and she daily sees him dressed in different clothes. Actually the woman is interested not in the clothes but in the man. Similarly, within every material object is the Supreme Personality of Godhead; therefore one who has developed love of God is constantly seeing the Lord everywhere, and not just the superficial material objects that cover the Lord.

The word ayuktasya in this verse indicates one who has not come to the stage of reality. Such a person, being deprived of loving devotional service to Lord Kāñëa, attempts to enjoy the innumerable forms and flavors of material experience. This temporary, illusory engagement is not the constitutional function of the bewildered living entity, who remains without any awareness of the ultimate reality, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Within the world of matter there are undoubtedly varieties. Among dogs there are pedigree poodles and common mutts, and among horses there are thoroughbreds and old gray mares. Similarly, some human beings are beautiful and educated and others are dull and homely. Some are rich and some are poor. In nature we find fertile land and sterile land, lush forests and useless deserts, invaluable gems and colorless stones, flowing transparent rivers and stagnant dirty ponds. In human society we find happiness and distress, love and hate, victory and defeat, war and peace, life and death, and so on. However, we do not have any permanent relationship with any of these conditions, because we are eternal spirit souls, part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Vedic culture is arranged in such a way that everyone can become perfect in self-realization simply by performing his occupational duty for the satisfaction of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Sve sve karmaëy abhirataù saàsiddhià labhate naraù. Some conditioned souls, however, believe that complete perfection in life may be achieved by performing ordinary, nonspiritual duties on behalf of family, nation, humanity, and so on. Others are interested in neither service to God nor noble mundane activities, and there are others who actively pursue sinful life. Such sinful persons generally rise from bed late in the afternoon and stay awake all night, taking intoxicants and engaging in illicit sex. Such a dark, hellish existence is caused by attraction to tamo-guëa, the mode of ignorance. Actions in the mode of ignorance are called vikarma, as mentioned in this verse.

Unfortunately, neither the materially responsible person nor the materially irresponsible person nor the sinful person can achieve the real perfection of life, Kāñëa consciousness. Although different societies and different individuals maintain different concepts of good and evil, all material things are ultimately useless in terms of our eternal self-interest, which is Kāñëa consciousness. This idea is expressed by the saintly King Citraketu in the Sixth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (6.17.20):

*guëa-pravāha etasmin
kaù çāpaù ko nv anugrahaù kaù svargo narakaù ko vā kiā sukhaā duùkham eva vā*

"This material world resembles the waves of a constantly flowing river. Therefore, what is a curse and what is a favor? What are the heavenly planets and what are the hellish planets? What is actually happiness and what is actually distress? Because the waves flow constantly, none of them has an eternal effect." The argument may be given that since in the Vedas there are prescribed and forbidden activities, the Vedas also accept the concept of good and evil within the material world. The fact is, however, that it is not the Vedas themselves but the conditioned souls who are bound up in material duality. The function of Vedic literature is to engage each individual at the particular level on which he is presently situated and gradually elevate him to the perfection of life. The material mode of goodness is not itself spiritual, but it does not impede spiritual life. Since the material mode of goodness purifies one's consciousness and creates a hankering for higher knowledge, it is a favorable platform from which to pursue spiritual life, just as the airport is a favorable place from which to travel. If a man desires to travel from New York to London, the New York airport is certainly the most favorable place from which to travel. But if the man misses his plane, he is no closer to London than anyone in New York who did not go to the airport. In other words, the advantage of the airport is meaningful only if one catches his plane. Similarly, the material mode of goodness is the most favorable situation from which to move up to the spiritual platform. The Vedas prescribe and forbid various activities to lift the conditioned soul to the material mode of goodness, and from that point he should rise to the spiritual platform by transcendental knowledge. Therefore if one does not come to the platform of Kāñëa consciousness, his elevation to the material mode of goodness is useless, just as a trip to the airport is useless for one who misses his plane. In the Vedas there are injunctions and prohibitions that appear to accept good and evil among material things, but the ultimate purpose of the Vedic regulations is to create a favorable situation for spiritual life. If one can immediately take to spiritual life then there is no need to waste time with rituals within the modes of nature. Therefore Kāñëa advises Arjuna in Bhagavad-gëtä (2.45), trai-guëya-visayä vedä nīstrai-guëyo bhavärjuna nirdvandvo nitya-sattva-stho niryoga-kñëma ätmavän

"The Vedas mainly deal with the subject of the three modes of material nature. Rise above these modes, O Arjuna. Be transcendental to all of them. Be free from all dualities and from all anxieties for gain and safety, and be established in the Self." In this connection, Çréla Madhväcärya has quoted the following verses from Mahäbhärata:

svargädyäç ca guëäù sarve doñäù sarve tathaiva ca ätmanaù kartâtä-bhräntyä jäyante nätra saäçayaù

"Within the material world, the conditioned souls consider residence on the heavenly planets and celestial pleasures, such as the pious enjoyment of beautiful women, to be good and desirable things. Similarly, painful or miserable conditions are considered to be evil or bad. However, all such perception of good and bad in the material world is undoubtedly based upon the fundamental mistake of considering oneself, and not the Supreme Personality of Godhead, to be the ultimate doer or performer of all actions."

paramātmānam evaikaà kartāraà vetti yaù pumān sa mucyate 'smāt saàsārāt paramātmānam eti ca

"On the other hand, a person who knows that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the actual controller of material nature, and that it is ultimately He who is moving everything, can free himself from the bondage of material existence. Such a person goes to the abode of the Lord."

TEXT 9

tasmaAâu·e(in%o"yafaAmaAe yau·(icaÔa wd"mjagAta, @Atmanal°asva ivatatama, @AtmaAnaM mayyaDalire"

*tasmād yuktendriya-grāmo yukta-citta idaà jagat ātmanékñasva vitatam
ātmānaà mayy adhēçvare*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmāt—therefore; yukta—having brought under control; indriya-grāmaù—all the senses; yukta—also subduing; cittaù—your mind; idam—this; jagat—world; ātmani—within the individual soul; ékñasva—you should see; vitatam—spread out (as the substance of his material enjoyment); ātmānam—and that individual soul; mayi—in Me; adhēçvare—the supreme controller.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, bringing all your senses under control and thus subduing the mind, you should see the entire world as situated within the self, who is expanded everywhere, and you should also see this individual self within Me, the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

The word vitatam, or "widely expanded," implies that the individual jēva soul is present throughout the material universe. Similarly, in Bhagavad-gētā (2.24) Lord Kāñēa states, nityaū sarva-gataū: the individual soul is eternal and is expanded everywhere throughout the material and spiritual worlds. This does not mean, however, that each individual soul is all-pervading, but that the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñēa, has expanded His marginal potency everywhere. Thus, one should not blindly conclude that a minute living entity is all-pervading; rather, one should understand that God is great and expands His personal energy everywhere. In this verse, ātmanēkñasva vitatam means that this material world is created to facilitate the sense gratification of the conditioned souls, who are trying to enjoy without Kāñēa, their actual master. The living entities are busily trying to exploit the external energy of the Lord, but their jurisdiction over the material world is illusory. Both the material nature and the conditioned living being are energies of the Lord and thus exist within the Personality of Godhead and are under His supreme control.

The individual living entity exists for the pleasure of the Personality of Godhead and is the Lord's eternal servant. As soon as the senses become absorbed in material gratification they lose their power to experience the Absolute Truth. The actual goal of sense activity is satisfaction of Viñēu, the Lord, and all of the senses can experience infinite spiritual pleasure by perceiving and serving the Lord in His personal feature. Those who adopt the impersonal conception of God, however, try to stop all sense activity. But because the senses cannot remain permanently inactive they naturally return to activities in the realm of material illusion. If one engages the senses in the service of the Personality of Godhead, then one enjoys unlimited pleasure upon seeing the transcendental beauty of the Lord's form. But unless one qualifies himself by pure loving devotion to Kāñēa, the Lord does not award him this exalted experience. Therefore, every conditioned soul should end his unnecessary separation from the Personality of Godhead by rejoining the Lord's blissful company. Lord Kāñëa personally comes down to reopen the blind eyes of the conditioned souls, and thus the Lord is personally teaching Uddhava so that sincere souls in the future might take advantage of His instructions. Indeed, hundreds and millions of people even now derive spiritual enlightenment from Lord Kāñëa's instructions to Arjuna in Bhagavad-gétä.

TEXT 10

ÁaAnaivaÁaAnas$amYau·( @AtmaBaUta: zAr"lir"NAama, @tmaAnauBavatauí"AtmaA naAntar"AyaEivaRh"nyas$ae

jī āna-vijī āna-saàyukta ātma-bhūtaù çarériëäm atmänubhava-tuñöätmä nāntarāyair vihan̐yase

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jī āna—with conclusive knowledge of the Vedas; vijī āna—and practical realization of the purpose of knowledge; saàyuktaù—fully endowed; ātma-bhūtaù—an object of affection; çarériëäm—for all embodied beings (beginning with the great demigods); ātma-anubhava—by direct perception of the soul; tuñöa-ätmä—having a satisfied mind; na—never; antarāyaiù—by disturbances; vihan̐yase—you will be checked in your progress.

TRANSLATION

Being fully endowed with conclusive knowledge of the Vedas and having realized the ultimate purpose of such knowledge in practice, you will be able to perceive the pure self, and thus your mind will be satisfied. At that time you will become dear to all living beings, headed by the demigods, and you will never be hampered by any disturbance in life.

PURPORT

As explained in Bhagavad-gētā, one whose mind is free from material desire becomes disinterested in demigod worship, since the purpose of such worship is material amelioration. The demigods, however, are never displeased with one who becomes a pure devotee of Lord Kāñëa and offers all of his worship to the Lord. The demigods themselves are humble servants of Lord Kāñëa, as was amply demonstrated in Lord Kāñëa's pastimes on the earth. One who can experience the eternal soul within everyone's body certainly becomes dear to all living beings. Since he sees everyone as qualitatively equal to himself, he does not envy anyone nor try to lord it over any other living being. Being free from envy and a well-wisher of all, such a self-realized soul is naturally dear to everyone. As stated in the song to the six Gosvāmés, dhérādhëra-jana-priyau priya-karau nirmatsarau pūjitaù.

TEXT 11

d"AeSabauÜ"YaAeBayaAtaltaAe inaSaeDaA^a inavataRtae gAuNAbauÜ"YaA ca ivaih"taM na k(r"Aeita yaTaABaRk(:

doña-buddhyobhayätéto niñedhän na nivartate
guëa-buddhyä ca vihitaà na karoti yathärbhakaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

doña-buddhyä—because of thinking that such action is wrong; ubhaya-atétaù—one who has transcended both (the conceptions of mundane right and wrong); niñedhät—from what is forbidden; na nivartate—he does not desist; guëa-buddhyä—because of thinking it is good;

ca—also; vihitam—what is enjoined; na karoti—he does not do; yathā—just like; arbhakaù—a young child.

TRANSLATION

One who has transcended material good and evil automatically acts in accordance with religious injunctions and avoids forbidden activities. The self-realized person does this spontaneously, like an innocent child, and not because he is thinking in terms of material good and evil.

PURPORT

One who has developed transcendental knowledge never acts whimsically. Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmé describes two stages of devotional service: sādhana-bhakti and rāgānugā-bhakti. Rāgānugā-bhakti is the stage of spontaneous love of Godhead, whereas sādhana-bhakti means the conscientious practice of the regulative principles of devotional service. In most cases, one who is now enjoying transcendental consciousness has rigidly practiced the rules and regulations of devotional service. Thus, due to previous practice, one spontaneously avoids sinful life and acts in accordance with the standards of ordinary piety. This does not mean that a self-realized soul is consciously avoiding sin and pursuing piety. Rather, due to his self-realized nature, he spontaneously engages in the most exalted spiritual activities, just as an innocent child may spontaneously exhibit good qualities such as kindness, tolerance, and so on. The spiritual platform is called çuddha-sattva, or purified goodness, to distinguish it from the material mode of goodness, which is always to some extent polluted by the lower modes of passion and ignorance. Thus if a man in material goodness appears to be most pious in the eyes of the world, we can only imagine the spotless character of a self-realized soul in purified spiritual goodness. Therefore it is stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (5.18.12):

yasyāsti bhaktir bhagavaty akii canā sarvair guëais tatra samāsate surāù harāv abhaktasya kuto mahad-guëä

mano-rathenäsati dhävato bahiù

If one is a pure devotee of Lord Kânëa, he will automatically exhibit all the exalted qualities of the demigods. Such manifestation of purity is spontaneous, as explained in this verse.

TEXT 12

s$avaR BaUtas$auô$cC$AntaAe ÁaAnaivaÁaAnainaêya:
pazyanmad"AtmakM(ivaìM
na ivapaâeta vaE pauna:

sarva-bhüta-suhâc chânto jì äna-vijì äna-niçcayaù paçyan mad-âtmakaà viçvaà na vipadyeta vai punaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarva-bhüta—to all creatures; su-hât—a well-wisher; çântaù—peaceful; jì äna-vijì äna—in knowledge and transcendental realization; niçcayaù—firmly fixed; paçyan—seeing; mat-âtmakam—pervaded by Me; viçvam—the universe; na vipadyeta—will never fall into the cycle of repeated birth and death; vai—indeed; punaù—again.

TRANSLATION

One who is the kind well-wisher of all living beings, who is peaceful and firmly fixed in knowledge and realization, sees Me within all things. Such a person never again falls down into the cycle of birth and death.

TEXT 13

™alzAuk(ovaAca

wtYAid"í" Ae BagAvataA mah"ABaAgAvataAe na{pa
oÜ"va: 'aiNApatyaAh"
taÔvaM ijaÁaAs$aur"cyautama,

çré-çuka uvāca
ity ādiñño bhagavatā
mahā-bhāgavato nāpa
uddhavaṁ praëipatyāha
tattvaà jijī āsur acyutam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaṁ uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; iti—thus; ādiññoṁ—instructed; bhagavatā—by the Supreme Lord; mahā-bhāgavataṁ—the exalted devotee of the Lord; nāpa—O King; uddhavaṁ—Uddhava; praëipatya—after bowing down to offer respects; āha—spoke; tattvam—the scientific truth; jijī āsuṁ—being eager to learn; acyutam—unto the infallible Personality of Godhead.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmi said: O King, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāñëa, thus instructed His pure devotee Uddhava, who was eager to receive knowledge from the Lord. Uddhava then offered obeisances to the Lord and spoke as follows.

PURPORT

Uddhava is described here as tattvaà jijī āsuṁ, or desiring to know the truth. It is clear from previous verses that Çré Uddhava is a pure devotee of Lord Kāñëa and that he considers devotional service to Lord Kāñëa to be the perfection of life. Thus the words tattvaà jijī āsuṁ indicate that since Lord Kāñëa is about to leave the earth, Uddhava is most anxious to deepen his understanding of the Lord so that he may further advance in loving service at the Lord's lotus feet. Unlike an ordinary philosopher or scholar, a pure devotee is not eager to acquire knowledge for personal gratification.

TEXT 14

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
yaAegAezA yaAegAivanyaAs$a yaAegAAtmana, yaAegAs$amBava ina:™aeyas$aAya mae 'aAe-(s$a, tyaAgA: s$a^ayaAs$ala^oaNA:

çré-uddhava uvāca
yogeça yoga-vinyāsa
yogātman yoga-sambhava niūçreyasāya me proktas tyāgaù sannyāsa-lakṇāëaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; yoga-éça—O giver of all results of yoga; yoga-vinyāsa—O You who by Your own power bestow yoga even upon those who are unqualified; yoga-ātman—O Supreme Soul realized through yoga; yoga-sambhava—O origin of all mystic power; niūçreyasāya—for the ultimate benefit; me—of me; proktaù—You have spoken about; tyāgaù—renunciation; sannyāsa—by the acceptance of the order of sannyāsa; lakṇāëaù—characterized.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Lord, You alone award the results of yoga practice, and You are so kind that by Your own influence You distribute the perfection of yoga to Your devotee. Thus You are the Supreme Soul who is realized through yoga, and it is You who are the origin of all mystic power. For my supreme benefit You have explained the procedure for giving up the material world through the process of sannyāsa, or renunciation.

PURPORT

The word yogeṣa here indicates that the Supreme Personality of Godhead awards the results of all yoga practices. Since all of the material and spiritual worlds emanate from the transcendental body of Kāñḍā, there is nothing to be achieved by any yoga process except Kāñḍā and His potencies. And since the Lord remains eternally the master of His potencies, no one can achieve anything through yoga, or any other spiritual or material process, except by the sanction of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The word yoga means "linking up," and unless we link ourselves with the Absolute Truth, we remain covered by the darkness of ignorance. Thus, Kāñḍā is the goal of yoga.

In the material world we falsely try to link ourselves with the objects of the senses. Man wants to link with woman and woman with man, or one tries to link up with nationalism, socialism, capitalism or innumerable other creations of the illusory energy of the Lord. Since we are linking ourselves to temporary objects the relationships are temporary, the results are temporary, and at the time of death we become bewildered when all of our connections are suddenly cut off by māyā. If we link ourselves to Kāñḍā, however, our relationship with Him will continue even after death. As explained in Bhagavad-gētā, the relationship with Kāñḍā that we develop in this life will continue to increase in our next life until we achieve the supreme goal of entering Kāñḍā's planet. Those who sincerely serve the mission of Caitanya Mahāprabhu, following the transcendental life-style prescribed by the Lord, will enter the Lord's abode at the end of this lifetime.

One can never achieve a permanent situation by mental speculation, and what to speak of by ordinary material sense gratification. By the methods of haiha-yoga, karma-yoga, rāja-yoga, jī āna-yoga, etc., one does not actually awaken his propensity for rendering eternal loving service to the Personality of Godhead. Thus, one is bereft of the transcendental tastes of spiritual enjoyment. Sometimes the conditioned soul, disgusted by his failure to gratify his senses, bitterly decides to renounce the material world and merge into an impersonal, painless transcendence. But our actual happy situation is to render loving service at the lotus feet of the Personality of Godhead. All of the different yoga processes gradually lead one to love of Godhead, and it is Lord Kāñëa's aim to reestablish the conditioned souls in this happy position. Caitanya Mahāprabhu is making this perfection easily available through the chanting of the holy name of Kāñëa, the supreme yoga process for this age.

TEXT 15

tyaAgAAe'yaM äü"Sk(r"Ae BaUmana, k(AmaAnaAM ivaSayaAtmaiBa:
s$autar"AM tvaiya s$avaARtma^aa, @Ba·E(ir"ita mae maita:

tyägo 'yaà duñkaro bhüman kämänäà viñayätmabhiù sutarää tvayi sarvätmann abhaktair iti me matiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tyägaù—renunciation; ayam—this; duñkaraù—difficult to perform; bhüman—O my Lord; kämänä—of material enjoyment; viñaya—sense gratification; ätmabhiù—by those dedicated to; sutaräm—especially; tvayi—unto You; sarva-ätman—O Supreme Soul; abhaktaiù—by those without devotion; iti—thus; me—my; matiù—opinion.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, O Supreme Soul, for those whose minds are attached to sense gratification, and especially for those bereft of devotion unto You, such renunciation of material enjoyment is most difficult to perform. That is my opinion.

PURPORT

Those who are truly devoted to the Supreme Lord do not accept anything for their personal gratification but rather accept those things suitable to be offered in the Lord's loving service. The word viñayātmabhiù indicates those who desire material objects for their personal gratification instead of for the devotional service of the Lord. The minds of such materialistic persons are suitably disturbed, and it is virtually impossible for such persons to renounce material enjoyment. This is the opinion of Çré Uddhava.

TEXT 16

s$Ae'hM" mamaAh"imaita maUX#maitaivaRgAAX#s$a, tvanmaAyayaA ivar"icataAtmaina s$aAnaubanDae taÔvaÃas$aA inagAid"taM BavataA yaTaAhM" s$aMs$aADayaAima BagAva^aanauzAAiDa Ba{tyama, so 'haà mamāham iti müòha-matir vigäòhas tvan-māyayā viracitātmani sānubandhe tat tv ai jasā nigaditaà bhavatā yathāhaà saàsādhayāmi bhagavann anuçādhi bhātyam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saù—he; aham—I; mama aham—the false concept of "I" and "mine"; iti—thus; müòha—most foolish; matìù—consciousness; vigäòhaù—merged;
tvat-māyayā—by Your illusory potency; viracita—manufactured;
ātmani—in the body; sa-anubandhe—along with bodily relations;
tat—therefore; tu—indeed; ai jasā—easily; nigaditam—that instructed;
bhavatā—by You; yathā—the process by which; aham—I; saàsādhayāmi—may execute; bhagavan—My dear Lord; anuçādhi—teach;
bhātyam—Your servant.

TRANSLATION

O my Lord, I myself am most foolish because my consciousness is merged in the material body and bodily relations, which are all manufactured by Your illusory energy. Thus I am thinking, "I am this body, and all of these relatives are mine." Therefore, my Lord, please instruct Your poor servant. Please tell me how I can very easily carry out Your instructions.

PURPORT

It is very difficult to give up false identification with the material body, and thus we remain attached to our so-called bodily relations such as wife, children, friends, and so on. Bodily attachment causes intense pain within the heart, and we are stunned by lamentation and hankering. Çré Uddhava, a pure devotee of the Lord, here speaks like an ordinary person showing how to pray to the Personality of Godhead. We practically see that many sinful persons enter the International Society for Krishna Consciousness and after preliminary purification become most repentant for their previous illicit activities. They are shocked when they realize how they gave up the personal association of God to pursue the useless forms created by māyā; therefore they wholeheartedly pray to the spiritual master and Lord Kāñhēa to be engaged eternally in transcendental devotional service. Such a repentant, eager mentality is most auspicious for spiritual advancement. The Lord certainly answers the prayers of a repentant devotee desperate to escape the clutches of illusion.

TEXT 17

s$atyasya tae svaä{"zA @Atmana @AtmanaAe'nyaM va-(Ar"malzA ivabauDaeSvaipa naAnauca⁰ae
s$avaeR ivamaAeih"taiDayastava maAyayaemae
"aöAd"yastanauBa{taAe baih"r"TaRBaAvaA:

satyasya te sva-dâça âtmana âtmano 'nyaà vaktâram éça vibudheñv api nânucakñe sarve vimohita-dhiyas tava mâyayeme brahmâdayas tanu-bhâto bahir-artha-bhävâu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

satyasya—of the Absolute Truth; te—besides You; sva-dāṣaù—who reveal Yourself; ātmanaù—for me personally; ātmanaù—than the Supreme Personality of Godhead; anyam—other; vaktāram—qualified speaker; éça—O my Lord; vibudheñu—among the demigods; api—even; na—not; anucakñe—I can see; sarve—all of them; vimohita—bewildered; dhiyaù—their consciousness; tava—Your; māyayā—by the illusory potency; ime—these; brahma-ādayaù—headed by Lord Brahmā; tanu-bhātaù—conditioned souls with material bodies; bahiù—in external things; artha—supreme value; bhāvāù—conceiving of.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, You are the Absolute Truth, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and You reveal Yourself to Your devotees. Besides Your Lordship, I do not see anyone who can actually explain perfect knowledge to me. Such a perfect teacher is not to be found even among the demigods in heaven. Indeed, all of the demigods, headed by Lord Brahmā, are bewildered by Your illusory potency. They are conditioned souls who accept their own material bodies and bodily expansions to be the highest truth.

PURPORT

All conditioned souls, from Lord Brahmā down to the insignificant ant, are declared by Çré Uddhava to be covered by material bodies produced by the illusory potency of the Lord. The demigods in heaven, being absorbed in universal management, constantly utilize their fabulous material potencies. They therefore gradually fix their minds upon their mystically empowered bodies and also upon their bodily expansions such as their celestial wives, children, co-workers and friends. In the course of life in the heavenly planets, the demigods become conditioned to think in terms of material good and bad, and thus they accept the immediate welfare of their bodies to be the highest goal of life.

The demigods do, however, try to strictly follow the laws of God. And to help them do this, the Supreme Lord descends to remind the heavenly beings of His own supreme personality, which possesses powers infinitely exceeding theirs. Lord Viñëu has an eternal body, full of bliss, knowledge and unlimited variegated potencies, whereas the demigods possess only deluxe material forms, subject to birth, death, old age and disease.

Because the demigods are attached to ruling the created universe, their devotion to God is tinged with material desires. They are therefore attracted to those portions of Vedic knowledge that award the various material opulences necessary for perpetuating their celestial life. Çré Uddhava, however, being a pure devotee of the Lord, is determined to go back home, back to Godhead, for eternal life and is thus not at all interested in the sophisticated Vedic knowledge of the demigods. The material world is a gigantic prison, whose inmates are subjected to birth, death, old age and illusion, and a pure devotee has no desire to remain there even as a first-class prisoner, like the demigods. Çré Uddhava desires to return to the kingdom of God and for this reason directly approaches the Personality of Godhead. The Lord is sva-dâçaù, or one who reveals Himself to His devotee. Thus, only the Lord Himself or His pure devotee, who faithfully repeats the Lord's message, can take one beyond the material sky into the free atmosphere of the spiritual planets, where the liberated souls enjoy an eternal life of bliss and omniscience.

TEXT 18

tasmaAà"vantamanavaâmanantapaArM" s$avaRÁamalir"maku(NQ&ivaku(NQ&iDaSNyama, inaivaRNNADalr"h"mau he" va{ijanaAiBataæaAe naAr"AyaNAM nar"s$aKaM zAr"NAM 'apaâe tasmäd bhavantam anavadyam ananta-päraà sarva-jì am êçvaram akuëöha-vikuëöha-dhiñëyam nirviëëa-dhër aham u he vâjinäbhitapto näräyaëaà nara-sakhaà çaraëaà prapadye

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmāt—therefore; bhavantam—unto You; anavadyam—the perfect; ananta-pāram—unlimited; sarva jī am—omniscient; ēçvaram—Personality of Godhead; akuëöha—undisturbed by any force; vikueöha—the spiritual kingdom Vaikuëöha; dhiñëyam—whose personal abode; nirviëëa—feeling renounced; dhéu—my mind; aham—I; u he—O (Lord); vājina—by material distress; abhitaptau—tormented; nārāyaëam—unto Lord Nārāyaëa; nara-sakham—the friend of the infinitesimal living entity; çaraëam prapadye—I approach to take shelter.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, O Lord, feeling weary of material life and tormented by its distresses, I now surrender unto You because You are the perfect master. You are the unlimited, all-knowing Supreme Personality of Godhead, whose spiritual abode in Vaikuëöha is free from all disturbances. In fact, You are known as Nārāyaëa, the true friend of all living beings.

PURPORT

No one can claim to be a self-made man, because everyone works with the body and mind awarded by material nature. By the laws of nature there is always anxiety in material existence, and terrible tragedies periodically harass the conditioned souls. Here Uddhava points out that only Çré Kāñëa, the Personality of Godhead, is a proper master, friend and shelter for the conditioned souls. We may be attracted by the good qualities of a particular man or demigod, but we may later discover discrepancies in that person's behavior. Therefore Kāñëa is described as anavadyam. There are no discrepancies in the personal conduct or character of the Personality of Godhead; He is eternally faultless.

We may faithfully serve a master, father or demigod, but when it is time for us to receive our reward for faithful service, the master may die. Therefore Lord Kāñëa is here described as ananta-pāram, which indicates that He is not limited by time or space. The word anta indicates the termination of time, and pāra indicates a spatial termination; therefore ananta-pāram means that Lord Kāñëa is not limited by time or space and thus will always dutifully reward His faithful servants.

If we serve someone other than the Personality of Godhead, our so-called master may forget our service or become ungrateful. Therefore Lord Kāñëa is described here as sarva-jī am, omniscient. He can never forget the service of His devotee, and therefore He is never ungrateful. In fact, it is said that Lord Kāñëa does not remember the faults of His devotees but only the sincere service they have rendered.

A further disadvantage in serving anyone besides Kāñëa is that when we are in danger our master may not be able to protect us. If we take shelter of our nation, that nation may be destroyed in war. If we take shelter of our family, they may also die. And as described in the Vedic literature, even the demigods are sometimes defeated by the demons. But since Lord Kāñëa is described here as ēçvara, or the supreme controller, there is no danger of His being overcome or even impeded by any other power. Thus Lord Kāñëa's promise of protection to His devotee is eternally valid.

If we do not serve the Personality of Godhead, we will not know the ultimate result of our service. But here Lord Kāñëa is described as akuëöha-vikuëöha-dhiñëyam. Lord Kāñëa has an eternal abode called Vaikuëöha, and that abode is never disturbed by anything. The faithful servants of Lord Kāñëa will certainly go back to Godhead, back home, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge in the personal abode of the Lord. However, since even the demigods, and what to speak of insignificant human beings, are subject sooner or later to annihilation, what ultimate benefit can be derived from serving them?

Uddhava describes his personal situation as nirviëëa-dhéù and vājinābhitaù. In other words, Çré Uddhava states that he is exhausted and discouraged by the contradictions and anguish of material life. He has been forced, therefore, to become humble and surrender to the lotus feet of Kāñëa, the personal friend of every living entity. In the material world a great man does not have time for insignificant men. But although the Lord is the greatest person, He sits in the heart of every living entity; thus He is the most merciful. Lord Kâñëa is the ultimate shelter of even Nära, or the Lord's puruñä expansion who creates the material world. The living entity is called nara, and the source of his material situation is Nära, or Mahä-viñëu. The word näräyaëa indicates that even Mahä-viñëu finds His shelter in Kâñëa, who is certainly supreme. Although our consciousness is presently contaminated by sinful propensities, if we follow the example of Çré Uddhava and take shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kâñëa, everything can be rectified. Taking shelter of Kâñëa means taking shelter of devotional service to Kâñëa and obeying Him. Lord Kâñëa demands this in Bhagavad-gétä, and if we comply with the order of the Lord our life can become fully auspicious and successful. Sooner than we expect, we may, by Kâñëa's mercy, enter the kingdom of God for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge.

TEXT 19

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca ‘aAyaena manaujaA laAeke( laAek(taÖvaivaca°aNAA:
 s$amauÜ"r"inta ÷AtmaAnama, @AtmanaEvaAzAuBaAzAyaAta,

çré-bhagavän uväca
präyeëa manuñä loke
loka-tattva-vicakñäëäù
samuddharanti hy ätmänam ätmanaiväçubhāçayät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—Lord Kâñëa said; präyeëa—in general; manuñäù—humans; loke—in this world; loka-tattva—the factual situation of the material world; vicakñäëäù—who know expertly; samuddharanti—they deliver; hi—indeed; ätmänam—themselves; ätmanä—by their own intelligence; eva—indeed; açubha-āçayāt—from the inauspicious attitude of desiring sense gratification.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Lord replied: Generally those human beings who can expertly analyze the actual situation of the material world are able to raise themselves beyond the inauspicious life of gross material gratification.

PURPORT

Çré Uddhava expressed to the Lord in the previous verses his fallen condition and his entanglement in the material concept of life. Now Lord Kāñëa reassures Uddhava that even persons far less qualified than Uddhava are able to extricate themselves from the inauspicious life of material sense gratification. According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, even if one has not received the instruction of a bona fide spiritual master, one can understand by direct and indirect analysis that the material world is not a place of enjoyment. Direct analysis means one's personal experience and indirect analysis means hearing and reading of the experience of others.

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, Lord Kāñëa considered Uddhava to be more intelligent than even the demigods in heaven. Uddhava, however, was feeling discouraged, thinking himself unqualified to render devotional service to the Lord. But Uddhava was actually perfectly situated because he had achieved Lord Kāñëa as his personal spiritual master. Similarly, the members of the Kāñëa consciousness movement are guided by the instructions of the Society's founder-ācārya, Oà Viñëupāda Paramahaàsa Parivrājakācārya Añöottara-çata Çré Çrémad A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda. Therefore, a sincere member of the Kāñëa consciousness movement should never feel discouraged but should rather count his blessings and do the needful to go back home, back to Godhead. Within the material world, certain activities are auspicious and produce happiness, whereas other activities, being sinful, are inauspicious and cause unlimited suffering. Even one who has not yet received the complete mercy of the bona fide Kāñëa conscious spiritual master should conclude by sharp intelligence that there is no happiness in ordinary, material life and that real self-interest lies beyond the material platform.

Çréla Madhväcärya points out that even if one is expert not only in material knowledge but also in spiritual knowledge, one will enter into the darkness of ignorance if one neglects the association of the devotees of the Lord. Therefore, one should not misinterpret this verse in a way that minimizes the significance of the pure devotee spiritual master. One who is vicakñäëäù, or expert, will eventually come to understand the difference between matter and spirit. Such a person will certainly recognize and appreciate a genuine spiritual master. One who is advanced in knowledge undoubtedly becomes humble, and thus an expert advanced human will never neglect the lotus feet of the pure devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 20

@AtmanaAe gAuç&r"AtmaEva pauç&Sasya ivazAeSata:
yat'atya°aAnaumaAnaAByaAM ™aeyaAe's$aAvanauivand"tae

*ätmano gurur ätmaiva puruñasya viçeñataù
yat pratyakñānumānābhyäà çreyo 'säv anuvindate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ätmanaù—of himself; guruù—the instructing spiritual master; ätmä—himself; eva—indeed; puruñasya—of a person; viçeñataù—in a particular sense; yat—because; pratyakñā—by his direct perception; anumānābhyām—and application of logic; çreyaù—real benefit; asau—he; anuvindate—can eventually gain.

TRANSLATION

An intelligent person, expert in perceiving the world around him and in applying sound logic, can achieve real benefit through his own intelligence. Thus sometimes one acts as one's own instructing spiritual master.

PURPORT

As illustrated in this chapter by the conversation between King Yadu and the avadhūta, a sensitive, reasonable person can acquire real knowledge and happiness simply by carefully observing the world around him. By observing the happiness and distress of other living entities, one can understand what is beneficial and what is destructive.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé states in this connection, gurv-anusaraëe pravartakaity arthaù: the knowledge acquired by one's own perception and intelligence leads one to appreciate the value of the representative of Lord Kåñëa. The word çreyas in this verse indicates that one can advance in life through one's own intelligence. By good association one should gradually come to understand one's eternal position as servant of Kåñëa, and then one becomes very eager to live in the company of other enlightened persons. Birds of a feather flock together. The symptom of an enlightened servant of Kåñëa is that he is eager for the company of other such great souls. Thus by one's sensitive and rational observation of this material world, one should come to appreciate the value of spiritual life in the association of the devotees.

TEXT 21

pauç&Satvae ca maAM Dalr"A: s$aAÊÿYayaAegAivazAAr"d"A: @Aivastar"AM 'apazyainta s$avaRzAftyaupaba{Mih"tama, puruñatve ca mää dhéräù sâi khya-yoga-viçäradäù

ävistaräà prapaçyanti sarva-çakty-upabâàhitam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

puruñatve—in the human form of life; ca—and; mäm—Me; dhëräù—those free from envy through spiritual knowledge; säi khya-yoga—in the spiritual science composed of analytical knowledge and devotion to the Supreme; viçäradäù—who are expert; ävistaräm—directly manifest; prapaçyanti—they clearly see; sarva—all; çakti—with My energies; upabâàhitam—fully endowed.

TRANSLATION

In the human form of life, those who are self-controlled and expert in the spiritual science of Säi khya can directly see Me along with all of My potencies.

PURPORT

We find the following statement in the Vedas: puruñatve cävistaräm ätmä sahita-prajï änenä sampanna-tamo vijï ätaà vadati vijï ätaà paçyati veda çvastanaà veda lokälokau martyenämâtam épsaty evaà sampanno 'thetareñäà paçünäm äsanä-pipäse eväbhijï änam. "In the human form of life, the soul is fully endowed with intelligence to understand spiritual knowledge. Thus, in human life the soul may speak realized knowledge, see the truth, know the future and also understand the reality both of this world and of the next. Taking advantage of the experience of mortal life, the soul in human form may endeavor for immortality, and the human body is fully equipped to achieve this end. In such an elevated state the soul is certainly well acquainted with the ordinary activities of animals, such as eating and drinking."

The human form of life (puruñatve) is very significant because it affords us the opportunity to perfect our existence. The Säi khya system mentioned here is best illustrated by the instructions of Lord Kapila to His mother, Devahüti. Lord Kapila is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and His mother approached Him, saying,

nirviëëä nitaräà bhümann asad-indriya-tariäëät yena sambhävya-mänaena prapannändhaà tamaù prabho

"I am very sick of the disturbance caused by my material senses, for because of this sense disturbance, my Lord, I have fallen into the abyss of ignorance." (SB 3.25.7) Lord Kapila delivered to His mother a highly analytical summary of all material and spiritual reality. It is significant that Lord Kapila did not discriminate against His mother because she was a woman, nor did He consider her incapable of understanding the most elaborate spiritual knowledge. Thus, in a Kâñëa conscious society of liberated souls, any man, woman or child may become a great devotee of Lord Kâñëa without discrimination. It is also significant that in the highly intellectual Sâi khya system enunciated by Lord Kapila, the solid conclusion is surrender to the lotus feet of the pure devotees and love of Godhead. In Lord Kapila's instructions in the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam, He emphasizes the need to take shelter of the pure devotees of the Lord. In the present verse Lord Kâñëa says, sâi khya-yoga-viçäradäù: those who are expert in taking shelter of the pure devotees and who can thus understand the actual situation of this world are able to see Kâñëa in His personal form, along with His internal and external potencies.

A spiritual master becomes bona fide by his full surrender to his spiritual master; but as explained in this chapter, one may also act as his own guru. This means that an intelligent and perceptive person can understand the nature of this world and his own limitations. Such a person then becomes very much inclined to associate with the pure devotees of the Lord and to receive the mercy of those who are advanced in Kâñëa consciousness. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, sâi khya-yoga, as described here, refers to the rigorous intellectual progress of the jï äna-yoga system, along with the devotion of bhakti-yoga, which emphasizes the mercy of the lotus feet of the pure devotees.

Actually, jī āna-yoga is a factor in the bhakti-yoga system, since Kāñëa is jī āna-gamya, or the goal of all knowledge. The Lord also says in Bhagavad-gētā (10.10) that He personally enlightens a sincere devotee with all knowledge. In this chapter, Lord Kāñëa is training Uddhava to see the Lord's personal form in the course of his daily experiences in the material world. The Lord has already indicated to Uddhava that he will travel throughout the world in samādhi, or trance, and now Lord Kāñëa is preparing Uddhava to travel as a true sannyāsi seeing the Personality of Godhead everywhere.

TEXT 22

Wk(iā"iṭacataus$paAd"Ae baò"paAd"staTaApad":
baù"Ya: s$ainta paur": s$a{í"As$a, taAs$aAM mae paAEç&Sal i'ayaA eka-dvi-tri-catus-pādo bahu-pādas tathāpadaù bahvyaù santi puraù sãñöäs täsäà me pauruñë priyā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

eka—one; dvi—two; tri—three; catu—four; pāda—having legs; bahu-pāda—having many legs; tathā—also; apada—having no legs; bahvya—many; santi—there are; pura—different kinds of bodies; sãñöä—created; täsäm—of them; me—to Me; pauruñë—the human form; priyā—is most dear.

TRANSLATION

In this world there are many kinds of created bodies—some with one leg, others with two, three, four or more legs, and still others with no legs—but of all these, the human form is actually dear to Me.

PURPORT

The ultimate purpose of material creation is to facilitate the return of the conditioned souls back home, back to Godhead. Since this redemption of the conditioned souls is especially possible in the human form of life, naturally this form is particularly dear to the compassionate Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 23

@ṭa maAM ma{gAyantyaÜ"A yau·(A he"tauīBar"līr"ma, gA{÷maANAEgAuRNAEilaR$ĒEÿr," @faA÷manaumaAnata:

atra mää̐ māgayanty addhā yuktā hetubhir éçvaram gāhyamāëair guëair lī̐ gair agrāhyam anumānataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atra—here (in the human form); mām—for Me; māgayanti—they search; addhā—directly; yuktāù—situated; hetubhiù—by apparent symptoms; éçvaram—the Supreme Lord; gāhyamāëaiù guëaiù—with the perceiving intelligence, mind and senses; lī̐ gaiù—and by indirectly ascertained symptoms; agrāhyam—beyond the grasp of direct perception; anumānataù—by the process of logical deduction.

TRANSLATION

Although I, the Supreme Lord, can never be captured by ordinary sense perception, those situated in human life may use their intelligence and other faculties of perception to directly search for Me through both apparent and indirectly ascertained symptoms.

PURPORT

According to Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura, the word yuktäù in this verse indicates those engaged in the regulative practice of bhakti-yoga. The devotees of the Lord do not abandon their intelligence and become mindless fanatics, as some fools think. As indicated by the words anumänataù and guëair lii gaiù, a devotee engaged in bhakti-yoga intensely searches out the Personality of Godhead through all of the rational faculties of the human brain. The word māgayanti, or "searching," does not, however, indicate an unregulated or unauthorized process. If we are searching for the telephone number of a particular person, we look in the authorized telephone directory. Similarly, if we are searching for a particular product, we go to a specialized store where we are likely to find what we are looking for. Çrëla Jëva Gosvämë points out that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is not a product of the imagination, and thus we cannot whimsically imagine what the Lord might be. Therefore, to gain information about Lord Kāñëa, one must conduct a regulated search in the authorized Vedic scriptures. The word agrāhyam in this verse indicates that no one can achieve or understand Lord Kāñëa by ordinary speculation or through the activities of the material senses. In this regard Çrëla Rüpa Gosvämë states the following verse in the Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu (1.2.234):

*ataù çré-kāñëa-nämädi
na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiù
sevonmukhe hi jihvädau
svayam eva sphuraty adaù
[Cc. Madhya 17.136]*

"No one can understand the transcendental nature of the name, form, quality and pastimes of Çré Kāñëa through his materially contaminated senses. Only when one becomes spiritually saturated by transcendental service to the Lord are the transcendental name, form, quality and pastimes of the Lord revealed to him."

The words gāhyamäëair guëaiù indicate the rational and intellectual faculties of the human brain. All of these can be used to directly and indirectly perceive the Personality of Godhead. Indirectly one may experience the Lord through His creation. Since we are experiencing this world through our intelligence (and senses), we may conclude that our own intelligence must have a creator and that creator is therefore supremely intelligent. Thus, through simple logic any sane person can understand that there is a Supreme Personality of Godhead who is controlling everything.

One may also directly perceive the Lord through chanting and hearing His holy names and glories. Çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23] means that one should always chant and hear of the glories of the Lord. One who perfectly hears and chants will undoubtedly see the Lord face to face. Lord Kāñëa is all-pervading, and one should search for Him everywhere. By the transcendental senses, purified by bhakti-yoga, one may directly perceive the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As indicated by the word addhā in this verse, this perception is direct and not imaginary. This point has been elaborately explained by Çréla Prabhupāda in his purport to this verse from Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (2.2.35):

bhagavān sarva-bhūteṇu lakṣitaù svātmanā hariù dāṣyair buddhy-ādibhir draṇōā lakṣaëair anumāpakaiù

"The Personality of Godhead, Lord Çré Kāñëa, is in every living being along with the individual soul, and this fact is perceived and hypothesized in our acts of seeing and taking help from the intelligence."

TEXT 24

@ḥaApyaud"Ah"r"ntalmama, witaH"As$am paura"Atanama, @vaDaUtasya s$amvaAdM" yad"Aer"imatataejas$a:

*aträpy udäharantémam
itihäsaà purātanam
avadhütasya saàvādaà
yador amita-tejasaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atra api—in this very matter; udāharanti—they cite as example; imam—this; itihāsam—a historical narration; purātanam—ancient; avadhütasya—of a holy man acting outside the scope of ordinary regulative principles; saàvādam—the conversation; yadou—and of King Yadu; amita-tejasaù—whose power was unlimited.

TRANSLATION

In this regard, sages cite a historical narration concerning the conversation between the greatly powerful King Yadu and an avadhüta.

PURPORT

Lord Kåñëa will narrate this story to show Uddhava how rational intelligence can be utilized in bhakti-yoga to acquire Vedic knowledge and how ultimately an intelligent person will come to the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 25

@vaDaUtaM iã"yaM k(iÂaca, car"ntamaku(taAeBayama, k(ivaM inar"l^oya taç&NAM
yaäu": pa'acC$ DamaRivata, avadhütaà dvijaà kai'cic

carantam akuto-bhayam kavià nirékñya taruëaà
yaduù papraccha dharma-vit

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

avadhütam—the mendicant; dvijam—a brähmaëa; kaïcit—a certain; carantam—wandering; akutaù-bhayam—without fear for any reason; kavim—learned; nirékñya—observing; taruëam—young; yaduù—King Yadu; papraccha—inquired; dharma-vit—expert in religious principles.

TRANSLATION

Mahārāja Yadu once observed a certain brähmaëa avadhüta, who appeared to be quite young and learned, wandering about fearlessly. Being himself most learned in spiritual science, the King took the opportunity and inquired from him as follows.

TEXT 26

™alyaäu"ç&vaAca ku(taAe baiiÜ"ir"yaM "aöªa, @k(tauR: s$auivazAAr"d"A yaAmaAs$aAâ BavaAéaAekM( ivaã"AMêr"ita baAlavata, çré-yadur uväca

kuto buddhir iyaà brahmann akartuù su-viçäradä yäm äsädyä bhaväl lokaà vidväàç carati bāla-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-yaduù uväca—King Yadu said; kutaù—from where; buddhiù—intelligence; iyam—this; brahman—O brähmaëa; akartuù—of one not engaged in any work; su-viçäradä—very broad; yäm—which; äsädya—having acquired; bhavän—you; lokam—the world; vidvän—in full knowledge; carati—travel; bäla-vat—like a child.

TRANSLATION

Çré Yadu said: O brähmaëa, I see that you are not engaged in any practical religious activity, and yet you have acquired a most expert understanding of all things and all people within this world. Kindly tell me, sir, how did you acquire this extraordinary intelligence, and why are you traveling freely throughout the world behaving as if you were a child?

TEXT 27

‘aAyaAe DamaARTaRk(AmaeSau ivaivats$aAyaAM ca maAnavaA:
he"taunaEva s$amalh"nta @AyauSaAe yazAs$a: i™aya:

präyo dharmärtha-kämeñu vivitsäyää ca mänaväù hetunaiva saméhanta
äyüño yaçasaù çriyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

präyaù—generally; dharma—in religiosity; ärtha—economic development; kämeñu—and sense gratification; vivitsäyäm—in pursuit of spiritual knowledge; ca—also; mänaväù—human beings; hetunä—for the purpose; eva—indeed; saméhante—they endeavor; äyüñaù—of long life; yaçasaù—fame; çriyaù—and material opulence.

TRANSLATION

Generally human beings work hard to cultivate religiosity, economic development, sense gratification and also knowledge of the soul, and their usual motive is to increase the duration of their lives, acquire fame and enjoy material opulence.

PURPORT

An intelligent person should understand that if there is an eternal soul different from the body, then real happiness must lie in our eternal situation, beyond the bondage of material nature. However, ordinary persons, even when discussing spiritual subject matters, generally desire to become famous or to increase their wealth and duration of life by such spiritual practices. Most common people think, for example, that the yoga system is meant for improving one's health, that one may pray to God for money, and that one's spiritual knowledge is meant for increasing one's prestige in society. Mahārāja Yadu wants to clarify that the young brāhmaëa avadhüta is not like ordinary persons and that he is actually on a spiritual platform, as will be explained in the following verses.

TEXT 28

tvaM tau k(lpa: k(ivadR"°a:
s$auBagAAe'ma{taBaASaNA:
na k(taAR naeh"s$ae ik(iÎAja, jax"AenmaÔaipazAAcavata,

tvaà tu kalpaù kavir dakñaù su-bhago 'mâta-bhãñaëaù na kartä nehase kii cij jaðonmatta-piçäca-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—you; tu—however; kalpaù—capable; kaviù—learned; dakñaù—expert; su-bhagaù—handsome; amâta-bhãñaëaù—having nectarean speech; na—are not; kartä—a doer; na ehase—you do not desire;

kii cit—anything; jaòà—stupefied; unmatta—maddened; piçäca-vat—like a ghostly creature.

TRANSLATION

You, however, although capable, learned, expert, handsome and most eloquent, are not engaged in doing anything, nor do you desire anything; rather, you appear stupefied and maddened as if you were a ghostly creature.

PURPORT

Ignorant persons often think that renounced spiritual life is meant for those who are impotent or homely or incompetent in practical worldly affairs. Sometimes foolish people say that religious life is a crutch for those who are not expert enough to achieve a high status in society. Therefore King Yadu has described the qualities of the mendicant brähmaëa in order to show that the brähmaëa has taken to renounced spiritual life in spite of great potential for worldly success. The avadhüta brähmaëa is described as being expert, learned, good-looking, eloquent and in every sense qualified to be a great material success. Still, the avadhüta has renounced material life and taken to Kãñëa consciousness. Going back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge is the real work of a human being.

The followers of Lord Caitanya Mahäprabhu simultaneously cultivate their own Kãñëa consciousness and strenuously endeavor in missionary work to help others become Kãñëa conscious. Often foolish persons deride the devotees by saying, "Why don't you get a job?" They think that one who is sincerely endeavoring for spiritual enlightenment and who is also enlightening others is not doing anything practical. Foolish materialists will pay millions of dollars to extend their lives by a few weeks or months in a hospital, but they do not appreciate someone endeavoring for eternal life. There is no actual logic in material life. The act of trying to enjoy without Kãñëa is in itself the culmination of irrationality, and thus we cannot expect to find anything ultimately rational or logical in a materialistic life devoid of Kãñëa consciousness. Many devotees of Kãñëa come from wealthy, learned and influential families, and they take to Kāñëa consciousness in order to perfect their lives, and certainly not due to lack of opportunity for material advancement. Although sometimes persons in material distress approach the Supreme Lord for help in material life, a real devotee of Lord Kāñëa voluntarily gives up all types of material enjoyment, knowing that nothing but love of Kāñëa and service to His lotus feet are the actual perfection of life.

TEXT 29

janaeSau d"÷maAnaeSau
k(AmalaAeBad"vaAiçanaA na tapyas$ae'içanaA mau-(Ae gAËÿAmBa:sTa wva iã"pa:

*janeñu dahyamäneñu
kāma-lobha-davāgninā
na tapyase 'gninā mukto gaì gāmbhaù-stha iva dvipaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

janeñu—all people; dahyamäneñu—even while they are burning; kāma—of lust; lobha—and greed; dava-agninā—in the forest fire; na tapyase—you are not burned; agninā—from the fire; muktaù—free; gaì gā-ambhaù—in the water of the Gaì gā; sthaù—standing; iva—as if; dvipaù—an elephant.

TRANSLATION

Although all people within the material world are burning in the great forest fire of lust and greed, you remain free and are not burned by that fire. You are just like an elephant who takes shelter from a forest fire by standing within the water of the Ganges River.

PURPORT

The natural result of transcendental bliss is described in this verse. The young brāhmaëa was physically very attractive, and his senses were full of potency for material enjoyment, yet he was not at all affected by material lust. This position is called mukti, or liberation.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura explains that within the Ganges flow great currents of water, capable of extinguishing a blazing fire. If an elephant maddened by sex desire stands within the Ganges, its powerful, cooling currents extinguish his lust, and the elephant becomes pacified. Similarly, ordinary human beings trapped in the cycle of birth and death are constantly harassed by the enemies of lust and greed, which never allow the mind to be completely peaceful. But if, following the example of the elephant, one situates oneself within the cooling waves of transcendental bliss, then all material desire will soon be extinguished, and one will become çānta, or peaceful. As described in Çré Caitanya-caritāmāta, kâñëa-bhakta niñkāma ataeva çānta [Cc. Madhya 19.149]. Thus, everyone should take to the movement of Caitanya Mahāprabhu and cleanse himself in the cooling waters of Kâñëa consciousness, our real, eternal consciousness.

TEXT 30

tvaM ih" na: pa{cC$taAM "aöªa, @AtmanyaAnand"k(Ar"NAmā,
"aUih" s$pazARivah"lnasya Bavata: ke(ṽalaAtmana:

*tvaà hi naù pācchatāà brahmann ātmany ānanda-kāraëam brühi sparça-vihénasya
bhavataù kevalātmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—you; hi—certainly; naù—to us; pâcchatām—who are inquiring; brahman—O brāhmaëa; ātmani—within yourself; ānanda—of the ecstasy; kāraëam—the cause; brühi—please say; sparça-vihénasya—who are devoid of any contact with material enjoyment; bhavataù—of you; kevala-ātmanaù—who are living completely alone.

TRANSLATION

O brāhmaëa, we see that you are devoid of any contact with material enjoyment and that you are traveling alone, without any companions or family members. Therefore, because we are sincerely inquiring from you, please tell us the cause of the great ecstasy that you are feeling within yourself.

PURPORT

The word kevalātmanaù is significant here. Unless one has practical realization of the Supreme Soul and the individual soul, who reside together within the heart of every living being, it is very difficult to artificially adopt the sannyāsa order of life and travel without the association of wife, children or other family members. The nature of every living being is to make friends with others and to offer his love to a suitable person. One who has realized the Supreme Person is satisfied to always carry the Personality of Godhead within his heart as his constant companion. Unless one has realized that Kāñëa is one's only true friend and that Kāñëa is within one's heart, one will remain attached to the temporary relationships of the material world.

TEXT 31

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca
yaäu"naEvaM mah"ABaAgAAe

“aöNyaena s$aumaeDas$aA pa{í": s$aBaAijata: 'aAh"
'a™ayaAvanataM iã"ja:

çré-bhagavän uväca
yadunaivaà mahä-bhägo
brahmaëyena su-medhasä
pãññaù sabhājitaù prāha praçrayävanataà dvijaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; yadunä—by King Yadu; evam—in this way; mahä-bhāgaù—greatly fortunate; brahmaëyena—who was very respectful to brähmaëas; su-medhasä—and intelligent; pãññaù—asked; sabhājitaù—honored; prāha—he spoke; praçraya—out of humility; avanatam—bowing his head; dvijaù—the brähmaëa.

TRANSLATION

Lord Kãñëa continued: The intelligent King Yadu, always respectful to the brähmaëas, waited with bowed head as the brähmaëa, pleased with the King's attitude, began to reply.

TEXT 32

™al“aAöNA ovaAca
s$ainta mae gAur"vaAe r"Ajana, bah"vaAe bauÜ"Yaupai™ataA:
yataAe baiiÜ"maupaAd"Aya mau·(Ae'q%Amalh" taAna, Za{NAu

çré-brähmaëa uväca
santi me guravo räjan

*bahavo buddhy-upaṇṇitāu yato buddhim upādāya
mukto 'āmeḥa tān ṇāu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ṇé-brāhmaēaū uvāca—the brāhmaēa said; santi—there are; me—my; guravaū—spiritual masters; rājan—O King; bahavaū—many; buddhi—by my intelligence; upaṇṇitāu—taken shelter of; yataū—from whom; buddhim—intelligence; upādāya—gaining; muktaū—liberated; āāmi—I wander; iha—in this world; tān—them; ṇāu—please hear.

TRANSLATION

The brāhmaēa said: My dear King, with my intelligence I have taken shelter of many spiritual masters. Having gained transcendental understanding from them, I now wander about the earth in a liberated condition. Please listen as I describe them to you.

PURPORT

The word buddhy-upaṇṇitāu in this verse indicates that the brāhmaēa's spiritual masters did not directly speak to him. Instead, he learned from them by his intelligence. All living entities who are inimical to Lord Kāṇēa glorify useless material things and spend their lives trying to lord it over the material objects they falsely worship. Thus the conditioned souls try to increase their duration of life, as well as their fame and beauty, by means of mundane religiosity, economic development and gross sense gratification. King Yadu noticed that the saintly avadhūta did not behave like that. Therefore the King was inquisitive to find out the actual situation of the brāhmaēa. In reply to the King the saintly brāhmaēa states, "I do not consider the twenty-four elements of the physical world as objects of my sense gratification, and therefore I don't consider accepting or rejecting them. Rather, I accept the material elements as my instructing spiritual masters. Thus, even though wandering throughout the material world, I am never bereft of service to the guru. Taking shelter of steady intelligence, I travel about the earth constantly engaged on the transcendental platform. By intelligence I transcend useless desires, and my ultimate goal is the loving devotional service of the Lord. Now I shall explain to you about my twenty-four spiritual masters."

TEXTS 33-35

paḥiTaval vaAyaaur"Ak(AzAma, @ApaAe'içâên%oo"maA r"iva:
k(paAetaAe'jagAr": is$anDau: pataËÿAe maDauk{(Ö"ja:

maDauh"A h"ir"NAAe malna: ipaËÿlaA ku(r"r"Ae'BaRk(: ku(maAr"I zAr"k{(ts$apaR ONARnaAiBa: s$aupaezAk{(ta,

Wtae mae gAur"vaAe r"Ajana, catauiva<zAitar"Ai™ataA:
izA°aA vaḥiÔaiBare"taeSaAma, @nvaizA°aimah"Atmana:

pāthivē vāyur ākācam
āpo 'gniç candramā raviu kapoto 'jagaraù sindhuu patai go madhukād gajaù

madhu-hā hariëo ménaù più galā kuraro 'rbhakaù kumäre çara-kāt sarpa ürëanābhiù supeçakāt

ete me guravo räjan
catur-viàçatir āçritäù
çikñā vāttibhir eteñām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pāthivē—the earth; vāyuù—the air; ākāçam—the sky; āpaù—the water; agniù—the fire; candramäù—the moon; raviù—the sun; kapotaù—the pigeon; ajagaraù—the python; sindhuù—the sea; patai gaù—the moth; madhu-kāt—the honeybee; gajaù—the elephant; madhu-hä—the honey thief; hariëaù—the deer; mënaù—the fish; piì galä—the prostitute named Piì galä; kuraraù—the kurara bird; arbhakaù—the child; kumäret—the young girl; çara-kāt—the arrow maker; sarpaù—the serpent; ürëa-nābhiù—the spider; supeça-kāt—the wasp; ete—these; me—me; guravaù—spiritual masters; rājan—O King; catuù-viàçatiù—twenty-four; āçritäù—taken shelter of; çikñä—instruction; vāttibhiù—from the activities; eteñām—of them; anvaçikāṁ—I have properly learned; iha—in this life; ätmanaù—about the self.

TRANSLATION

O King, I have taken shelter of twenty-four gurus, who are the following: the earth, air, sky, water, fire, moon, sun, pigeon and python; the sea, moth, honeybee, elephant and honey thief; the deer, the fish, the prostitute Piì galä, the kurara bird and the child; and the young girl, arrow maker, serpent, spider and wasp. My dear King, by studying their activities I have learned the science of the self.

PURPORT

The wasp is known as supeça-kāt because it causes the insect that it kills to take a beautiful form in the next life.

TEXT 36

yataAe yad"nauizA°aAima yaTaA vaA naAò"SaAtmaja taÔaTaA pauç&SavyaA,,a inabaAeDa k(TayaAima tae

*yato yad anuçikñāmi yathā vā nāhuñātmaja
tat tathā puruñā-vyāghra nibodha kathayāmi te*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yataû—from whom; yat—what; anuçikñāmi—I have learned; yathā—how; vā—and; nāhuñā-ātma-ja—O son of King Nāhuñā (Yayāti); tat—that; tathā—thus; puruñā-vyāghra—O tiger among men; nibodha—listen; kathayāmi—I will recount; te—to you.

TRANSLATION

Please listen, O son of Mahārāja Yayāti, O tiger among men, as I explain to you what I have learned from each of these gurus.

TEXT 37

BaUtaEr"A,(myamaANAAe'ipa Dalr"Ae dE"vavazAAnaugAE: taiã"ã"Aªa calaenmaAgAARä," @nvaizAºaM iºatae~aRtama,

bhütair ākramyamäëo 'pi dhéro daiva-vaçānugaiù tad vidvān na calen mārḡād anvaçikñāà kñiter vratam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhütaiù—by various creatures; ākramyamäëaù—being harassed; api—although; dhëraù—sober; daiva—of fate; vaça—the control;

anugaiù—who are simply following; tat—this fact; vidvān—he who is in knowledge of; na calet—should not deviate; mārgāt—from the path; anvaçikñam—I have learned; kñiteù—from the earth; vratam—this fixed practice.

TRANSLATION

A sober person, even when harassed by other living beings, should understand that his aggressors are acting helplessly under the control of God, and thus he should never be distracted from progress on his own path. This rule I have learned from the earth.

PURPORT

The earth is the symbol of tolerance. By deep oil-drilling, atomic explosions, pollution, and so on, the earth is constantly harassed by demoniac living entities. Sometimes lush forests are cut down by greedy men with commercial interests, and thus a wasteland is created. Sometimes the earth's surface is soaked by the blood of soldiers fighting in savage warfare. Yet, despite all these disturbances, the earth continues to provide all the necessities of the living beings. In this way one may learn the art of tolerance by studying the earth.

TEXT 38

zAitpar"ATaRs$avaeRh": par"ATaE=k(Antas$amBava:
s$aADau: izA°aeta BaUBa{ÔaAe nagAizASya: par"AtmataAma, çaçvat parārtha-sarvehaù parārthaikānta-sambhavaù sādhuù çikñeta bhü-bhātto naga-çīñyaù parātmātām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çaçvat—always; para—of others; artha—for the sake; sarva-ēhaù—all of one's efforts; para-artha—the benefit of others; ekānta—sole; sambhavaù—reason for living; sādhuù—a saintly person; çikñeta—should learn; bhü-bhāttaù—from the mountain; naga-çñyaù—the disciple of the tree; para-ätmatām—dedication to others.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should learn from the mountain to devote all his efforts to the service of others and to make the welfare of others the sole reason for his existence. Similarly, as the disciple of the tree, he should learn to dedicate himself to others.

PURPORT

Great mountains bear unlimited quantities of earth, which in turn give sustenance to innumerable forms of life such as trees, grass, birds, animals, and so on. Mountains also pour forth unlimited quantities of crystalline water in the form of waterfalls and rivers, and this water gives life to all. By studying the example of mountains, one should learn the art of providing for the happiness of all living entities. Similarly, one may take excellent lessons from the pious trees, who offer innumerable benefits, such as fruits, flowers, cooling shade and medicinal extracts. Even when a tree is suddenly cut down and dragged away, the tree does not protest but continues to give service to others in the form of firewood. Thus, one should become the disciple of such magnanimous trees and learn from them the qualities of saintly conduct.

According to Çréla Madhvācārya, the word parārthaikānta-sambhavaù indicates that one should dedicate all of one's wealth and other assets to the welfare of others. By one's acquired opulence, one should especially try to please the spiritual master and the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus, the demigods, as well as all truly respectable superior personalities, will automatically be pleased. By developing saintly conduct, as described in this verse, one will become tolerant, and this will free one from the useless agitation of the material senses, which drive one to wander throughout the world searching in vain for material happiness. Lord Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu has also emphasized the tree's quality of tolerance: taror iva sahiññeunā, kērtanēyaù sadā hariù [Cc. Ādi 17.31]. One who is as tolerant as a tree can chant the holy name of Kāññā constantly, finding ever-new satisfaction.

TEXT 39

‘aANaVa{ÔyaEva s$antauSyaena, mauinanaE=$vaein%o"yai‘ayaE: ÁaAnaM yaTaA na nazyeta naAvak(LyaeRta vaAx.~mana:

präëa-vâttyaiva santuñyen munir naivendriya-priyaiù jī ānaà yathā na naçyeta nāvakéryeta vāi -manaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

präëa-vâttyä—with the mere functioning of his vital air; eva—even; santuñyet—should be satisfied; muniù—a sage; na—not; eva—indeed; indriya-priyaiù—with things that gratify the senses; jī ānam—consciousness; yathā—so that; na naçyeta—may not be destroyed; na avakéryeta—may not become disturbed; vāk—his speech; manaù—and mind.

TRANSLATION

A learned sage should take his satisfaction in the simple maintenance of his existence and should not seek satisfaction through gratifying the material senses. In other words, one should care for the material body in such a way that one's higher knowledge is not destroyed and so that one's speech and mind are not deviated from self-realization.

PURPORT

A wise man does not absorb his consciousness in the forms, flavors, aromas and sensations of material sense gratification, but rather accepts activities such as eating and sleeping simply to keep body and soul together. One must properly maintain one's body by regulated activities of eating, sleeping, cleansing, etc., otherwise the mind will become weak, and one's spiritual knowledge will fade away. If one eats too austere, or if in the name of selflessness one accepts impure food, surely one loses control of the mind. On the other hand, if one eats food that is excessively fatty or rich there will be an unwanted increase in sleep and semen, and thus the mind and speech will be overwhelmed by the modes of passion and ignorance. Lord Kāñëa has summarized the whole matter in Bhagavad-gētā by His statement yuktāhāra-vihārasya yukta-ceññāsya karmasu. One should moderately and intelligently regulate all of one's bodily activities so that they are favorable for self-realization. This technique is taught by the bona fide spiritual master. If one is too austere or if one engages too much in sense gratification, self-realization is impossible.

It is the duty of a devotee of the Lord to avoid seeing any object as separate from Kāñëa, because that is illusion. A gentleman will never try to enjoy the property of another gentleman. Similarly, if one sees everything in relation to Kāñëa, there is no scope for material sense gratification. But if one sees material objects as separate from Kāñëa, then one's material enjoying propensity is immediately aroused. A human being must be intelligent enough to distinguish between preyas, or temporary gratification, and çreyas, permanent benefit. One may accept sense activity in a regulated, limited fashion so that one will be strong for serving Kāñëa, but if one excessively indulges the material senses, one will lose one's gravity and seriousness in spiritual life and act like an ordinary materialist. The ultimate goal, as stated here, is jī ānam, or steady consciousness of the Absolute Truth, Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 40

ivaSayaeSvaAivazAna, yaAegAl naAnaADamaeRSau s$avaRta:
gAuNAd"AeSavyapaetaAtmaA
na ivaSaÀaeta vaAyauvata,

*viñayeñv äviçan yogé
nänä-dharmeñu sarvataù
guëa-doña-vyapetätmä
na viñajjeta väyu-vat*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viñayeñu—into contact with material objects; äviçan—entering; yogé—one who has attained self-control; nänä-dharmeñu—which have different varieties of qualities; sarvataù—everywhere; guëa—good qualities; doña—and faults; vyapeta-ätmä—a person who has transcended; na viñajjeta—should not become entangled; väyu-vat—like the wind.

TRANSLATION

Even a transcendentalist is surrounded by innumerable material objects, which possess good and bad qualities. However, one who has transcended material good and evil should not become entangled even when in contact with the material objects; rather, he should act like the wind.

PURPORT

The wind is the external manifestation of air, whereas präëa is the internal manifestation. When the wind passes over waterfalls it carries sprinkles of clear water and thus becomes most refreshing. Sometimes the wind blows through a beautiful forest, carrying the fragrances of fruits and flowers; at other times the wind may fuel a fire that burns the same forest to ashes. The wind, however, being fixed in its own nature, remains neutral in both its auspicious and inauspicious activities. Similarly, within this material world we will inevitably face both pleasing and disgusting situations. If, however, we remain fixed in Kâñëa consciousness, we will not be disturbed by the inauspicious, nor will we become attached to the materially auspicious. In the course of his spiritual duties, a devotee sometimes finds himself chanting Hare Kâñëa in a beautiful country atmosphere, and sometimes he finds himself doing the same thing in a hellish city. In both cases the devotee fixes his mind upon Lord Kâñëa and experiences transcendental bliss. Although the wind passes through the most dark and forbidding places, the wind is not frightened or disturbed. Similarly, a devotee of Lord Kâñëa should never be fearful or anxious, even when in the most difficult situation. One who is attached to materially pleasing forms, tastes, smells, sounds and touches will also be repelled by the opposite in each category. Thus finding himself surrounded by innumerable good and bad things, the materialist is constantly disturbed. When the wind blows in many directions at once, the atmosphere becomes agitated. Similarly, if the mind is constantly attracted and repelled by material objects there will be such mental disturbance that it will be impossible to think of the Absolute Truth. Therefore, one should learn from the blowing wind the art of moving throughout the material world without attachment.

TEXT 41

paAiTaR"vaeiSvah" de"he"Sau
 'aivaí"staÖ"NAA™aya:
 gAuNAEnaR yaujyatae yaAegAI gAnDaEvaARyauir"vaAtmaä{"k,( pārthiveñv iha deheñu praviññas tad-guëäçrayaù guëair na yujyate yogé gandhair vāyur ivātma-dāk

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pārthiveñu—composed of earth (and other elements); iha—in this world; deheñu—within bodies; praviññāu—having entered; tat—of them; guëa—the characteristic qualities; āçrayaù—having assumed; guëaiù—with those qualities; na yujyate—does not entangle himself; yogé—a yogé; gandhaiù—with different odors; vāyuù—the air; iva—just as; ātma-dāk—he who can see himself properly (as separate from this matter).

TRANSLATION

Although a self-realized soul may live in various material bodies while in this world, experiencing their various qualities and functions, he is never entangled, just as the wind which carries various aromas does not actually mix with them.

PURPORT

Although we experience the wind as fragrant or foul, depending on the aromas it carries, the wind does not in fact change its actual nature. Similarly, although we regard a particular person as strong or weak, intelligent or retarded, beautiful or homely, good or bad, the pure spirit soul, who is the actual person, does not really possess any of the qualities of the body but is merely covered by them, just as the wind is covered by different aromas. Thus, a Kāñëa conscious person is always aware that he is different from the temporary body. He experiences the various transformations of the body, such as childhood, adolescence, adulthood and old age; but although he experiences the pains, pleasures, qualities and functions of that body, a Kāñëa conscious person never thinks that he is the body. He always understands that he is an eternal spirit soul, part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa. As stated in this verse, na yujyate yogé: he is not entangled. The conclusion is that one should never consider a Kāñëa conscious person in terms of bodily designation, but should see him as an eternal servitor of the Lord.

TEXT 42

@ntaihR"taê isTar"jaËÿmaeSau “aöAtmaBaAvaena s$amanvayaena vyaAptyaAvyavacCe$d"mas$aËÿmaAtmanaAe mauinanaRBastvaM ivatatasya BaAvayaeta, antarhitaç ca sthira-jaì gameñu brahmätma-bhävena samanvayena vyäptyävyavacchedam asaì gam ätmano munir nabhastvaà vitatasya bhävayet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

antarhitaù—present within; ca—also; sthira—all nonmoving living bodies; jaì gameñu—and all moving forms of life; brahma-ätma-bhävena—by realization that he himself is pure spirit; samanvayena—as a result of the different contacts (with different bodies); vyäptyä—because of being all-pervading; avyavacchedam—the feature of being undivided; asaì gam—being unattached; ätmanaù—possessed by the Supersoul; muniù—a sage; nabhastvam—the similarity with the sky; vitatasya—of the expansive; bhävayet—should meditate upon.

TRANSLATION

A thoughtful sage, even while living within a material body, should understand himself to be pure spirit soul. Similarly, one should see that the spirit soul enters within all forms of life, both moving and nonmoving, and that the individual souls are thus all-pervading. The sage should further observe that the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as the Supersoul, is simultaneously present within all things. Both the individual soul and the Supersoul can be understood by comparing them to the nature of the sky: although the sky extends everywhere and everything rests within the sky, the sky does not mix with anything, nor can it be divided by anything.

PURPORT

Although air exists within the sky, the sky, or space, is different from air.

Even in the absence of air, space or sky is present. All material objects are situated within space, or within the vast material sky, but the sky remains undivided and, although accommodating all objects, never actually mixes with anything. In the same way one can understand the situation of both the individual soul and the Supersoul. The individual soul is all-pervading, because there are innumerable jévätmäs, which enter within all things; yet, as confirmed in Vedic literature, each individual ätmä remains infinitesimal. The Çvetäçvatara Upaniñad (5.9) states, *bälägra-çata-bhägasya çatadhä kalpitasya ca

bhägo jévaù sa vijì eyaù sa cänantyäya kalpate*

"When the upper point of a hair is divided into one hundred parts and again each of such parts is further divided into one hundred parts, each such part is the measurement of the dimension of the spirit soul." The same is stated in Çrémad-Bhägavatam:

*keçägra-çata-bhägasya çatäàçaù sädâçätmakaù jévaù sükñma-svarüpo 'yaà saì khyätéto hi cit-kaëaù
[Cc. Madhya 19.140]*

"There are innumerable particles of spiritual atoms, which are measured as one ten-thousandth of the upper portion of the hair."

The Supreme Personality of Godhead, however, is all-pervading because He Himself is personally present everywhere. The Lord is known as advaita, or indivisible. Thus the same unique Personality of Godhead exists everywhere, just like the sky, and yet is not attached to anything, although everything is resting within Him. The Lord Himself has confirmed this analysis of His all-pervasiveness in Bhagavad-gétä (9.6):

yathäkäça-sthito nityaà

*väyuù sarvatra-go mahän tathä sarväëi bhütäni
mat-sthänéty upadhäraya*

"As the almighty wind, blowing everywhere, always rests in ethereal space, know that in the same manner all beings rest in Me."

Therefore, although both the jéva soul and the Supersoul are said to be all-pervading, it should be remembered that there are innumerable individual jéva souls, whereas there is only one Supreme Personality of Godhead. The Lord is always supreme, and one who is actually a thoughtful sage never doubts the supreme position of the Lord.

TEXT 43

*taejaAe'ba^aamayaEBaAR$vaEr," maeGaAâEvaARYaunaer"taE:
na s$pa{zyatae naBastaã"ta, k(Alas$a{íE"gAuRNAE: paumaAna,*

tejo-'b-anna-mayair bhävair meghädyaair väyuneritaiù na spâçyate nabhas tadvat kāla-sāññair guëaiù pumän

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tejaù—fire; ap—water; anna—and earth; mayaiù—consisting of; bhävaiù—by objects; megha-ädyaiù—clouds and so on; väyunä—by the wind; ëritaiù—which are blown; na spâçyate—is not touched; nabhaù—the ethereal sky; tat-vat—in the same way; kāla-sāññaiù—which have been sent forth by time; guëaiù—by the modes of nature; pumän—a person.

TRANSLATION

Although the mighty wind blows clouds and storms across the sky, the sky is never implicated or affected by these activities. Similarly, the spirit soul is not actually changed or affected by contact with the material nature. Although the living entity enters within a body made of earth, water and fire, and although he is impelled by the three modes of nature created by eternal time, his eternal spiritual nature is never actually affected.

PURPORT

Although the sky appears to be affected by the mighty movements of wind, rain, hurricanes, lightning and thunder, etc., the sky, being very subtle, is actually not affected, but is rather the background for such visible activities. Similarly, although the material body and mind undergo innumerable changes, such as birth and death, happiness and distress, love and hate, the eternal living entity is merely the background for such activities. The spirit soul, being most subtle, is not actually affected; only due to misidentification with the superficial activities of the body and mind does the soul undergo terrible distress within the material world.

In this regard, Çréla Madhvācārya has pointed out that the individual living entity must struggle to revive his divine spiritual qualities. The living entity is part and parcel of the supreme entity, called Kāñēa, and as such the individual soul is also a reservoir of godly qualities. The Personality of Godhead, however, automatically manifests these qualities without any hindrance, whereas the conditioned soul must struggle to revive such qualities. Thus, although both the Personality of Godhead and the personality of the living entity are eternal and transcendental, the Personality of Godhead is always supreme. By realizing all this with clear intelligence, the conditioned soul can rise to the spiritual platform.

TEXT 44

svacC$: 'ak{(itata: ipagDaAe maADauyaRstaITaRBaUna{RNAAma, mauina: paunaAtyapaAM imaḥama, wR°aAepas$ pazARk(LtaR$naE:

svacchaù prakâtaù snigdho mâdhuryas tērtha-bhūr nâëäm muniù punäty apäà mitram ékñopasparça-kértanaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

svacchaù—pure; prakâtaù—by nature; snigdhaù—soft or softhearted; mâdhuryaù—sweet or gentle speech; tērtha-bhüù—a place of pilgrimage; nâëäm—for human beings; muniù—a sage; punäti—sanctifies; apäm—of the water; mitram—the exact counterpart; ékñä—by being seen; upasparça—by being respectfully touched; kértanaiù—and by being glorified verbally.

TRANSLATION

O King, a saintly person is just like water because he is free from all contamination, gentle by nature, and by speaking creates a beautiful vibration like that of flowing water. Just by seeing, touching or hearing such a saintly person, the living entity is purified, just as one is cleansed by contact with pure water. Thus a saintly person, just like a holy place, purifies all those who contact him because he always chants the glories of the Lord.

PURPORT

The words apäà mitram, "just like water," can also be read as aghän mitram, which means that a saintly person purifies all living entities by accepting them as mitram, or his personal friends, and saves them from their sinful reactions (aghät). The conditioned living entity falsely identifies with his gross material body and subtle mind and thus falls from the platform of spiritual knowledge. A conditioned living being is always lusty for material sense gratification, and if he does not acquire it, he becomes angry. Sometimes he is so obsessed with fear of losing his material gratification that he enters a stage approaching madness.

A saintly person, however, is like pure water, free from all contamination and capable of purifying all things. Just as pure water is transparent, a saintly person transparently manifests the Personality of Godhead within his heart. Such love of Godhead is the reservoir of all happiness. Water makes a most pleasing vibration as it flows and cascades, and similarly the sound vibration of the Lord's pure devotee, who is saturated with the glories of the Lord, is most charming and beautiful. Thus, by studying the nature of water one can understand the symptoms of a pure devotee of the Lord.

TEXT 45

tejasval tapasā d"læaAe äu"DaRSaAeRd"r"BaAjana:
s$avaRBa^oyaAe'ipa yau·(AtmaA naAd"Ôae malamaiçavata, tejasvé tapasā dépto durdharṇodara-bhājanaù sarva-bhakṇyo 'pi yuktātmā nādatte malam agni-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tejasvé—brilliantly luminous; tapasā—by his austerity; déptaù—glowing; durdharṇa—unshakable; udara-bhājanaù—eating only that needed by his stomach; sarva—everything; bhakṇyaù—eating; api—even though; yukta-ātmā—one who is fixed in spiritual life; na ādatte—does not assume; malam—contamination; agni-vat—like the fire.

TRANSLATION

Saintly persons become powerful by execution of austerities. Their consciousness is unshakable because they do not try to enjoy anything within the material world. Such naturally liberated sages accept foodstuffs that are offered to them by destiny, and if by chance they happen to eat contaminated food, they are not affected, just like fire, which burns up contaminated substances that are offered to it.

PURPORT

The word udara-bhājana indicates that a saintly person eats only to keep body and soul together and not for sense gratification. One should eat palatable foodstuffs to maintain one's mind in a cheerful mood; however, one should not eat luxuriously, because this will cause sex desire and laziness. A saintly person is always a perfect gentleman and is never greedy or lusty. Although māyā tries to defeat him by offering different material allurements, ultimately these attractive material features are themselves defeated by the spiritual power of a saintly person. Thus one should never disrespect a spiritually advanced personality but should worship him reverentially. To carelessly approach a Kāñḍa conscious personality is just like carelessly approaching fire, which immediately burns if not handled properly. The Lord does not excuse mistreatment of a pure devotee.

TEXT 46

ṣṭ(īcācC$ā: ṣṭ(īcats$paī" opaAsya: ṭṢaeya wcC$taAma, BauĒeṽ s$avaRṭa d"Ata{NAAM d"h"na, 'aAgAuÔar"AzAuBama, kvacit channaù kvacit spañña upāsyaù çreya icchatām bhuì kte sarvatra dātāēā dahan prāg-uttarāçubham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kvacit—sometimes; channaù—concealed; kvacit—sometimes;
spaññaù—manifest; upāsyaù—worshipable; çreyaù—the highest good;
icchatām—by those desiring; bhuì kte—he devours; sarvatra—on all sides;
dātēēām—of those making offerings to him; dahan—burning;

prāk—previous; uttara—and future; açubham—sinful reactions.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person, just like fire, sometimes appears in a concealed form and at other times reveals himself. For the welfare of the conditioned souls who desire real happiness, a saintly person may accept the worshipable position of spiritual master, and thus like fire he burns to ashes all the past and future sinful reactions of his worshipers by mercifully accepting their offerings.

PURPORT

A saintly person prefers to conceal his exalted spiritual position, but to instruct the suffering people of the world he sometimes reveals his own greatness. This is compared to a fire that sometimes burns unnoticed beneath ashes and sometimes blazes openly. Just as fire devours the ghee and other offerings given by the performers of sacrifice, similarly a saintly person accepts the praise offered by his conditioned followers, knowing that in fact all praise is meant for the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa. Although an ordinary person immediately becomes puffed up and foolish when he is praised, such inauspicious tendencies within a saintly person are burned to ashes by his attachment to the Absolute Truth. In this way, he is just like fire.

TEXT 47

svamaAyayaA s$ā{ī"imadM" s$ad"s$āéa°aNAM ivaBau:
'aivaí" wRyatae taÔata,- svaè&paAe'içair"vaEDais$a sva-māyayā sâññam idaà sad-asal-lakñāëaà vibhuù praviñña éyate tat-tatsvarüpo 'gnir ivaiddhasi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sva-mäyayä—by His own material energy; sāñōam—created; idam—this (body of the individual jéva); sat-asat—as demigod, animal, and so on; lakñaëam—characterized; vibhuù—the Almighty; praviññaù—having entered; éyate—appears; tat-tat—of each different form; svarüpaù—assuming the identity; agniù—fire; iva—as; edhasi—in firewood.

TRANSLATION

Just as fire manifests differently in pieces of wood of different sizes and qualities, the omnipotent Supreme Soul, having entered the bodies of higher and lower life forms created by His own potency, appears to assume the identity of each.

PURPORT

Although the Supreme Lord is within everything, everything is not the Lord. By the mode of goodness the Lord creates the exalted material bodies of demigods and brähmaëas, and by expanding the mode of ignorance He similarly creates the bodies of animals, çüdras and other lower forms of life. The Lord enters all of these superior and inferior creations, but He remains vibhu, the all-powerful Personality of Godhead. Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains that although fire is present within smoldering wood, it blazes forth when we stir the wood around. Similarly, although the Personality of Godhead is indirectly present everywhere, when we chant and hear His glories with love and devotion the Lord is stirred into manifestation and directly appears before His devotees.

The foolish conditioned souls ignore the spectacular presence of the Lord within everything and instead absorb their mediocre consciousness in their own temporary material coverings, thinking, "I am a strong man," "I am a beautiful woman," "I am the richest man in this city," "I am a Ph.D.," and so on. One should cut off such useless entanglement and accept the fact that one is pure spirit soul, the eternal, blissful servant of Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 48

ivas$agAARâA: zmazAAnaAntaA BaAvaA de"h"sya naAtmana:
k(laAnaAimava can%"sya
k(AlaenaAvya·(vatmaRnaA

*visargädyäù çmaçänäntä bhävä dehasya nātmanaù
kalänäm iva candrasya
kälēnāvyakta-vartmanā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

visarga—birth; ädyäù—beginning with; çmaçäna—the time of death, when the body is burned to ashes; antäù—ending with; bhäväù—the states; dehasya—of the body; na—not; ātmanaù—of the soul; kalänäm—of the different phases; iva—as; candrasya—of the moon; kālena—by time; avyakta—imperceptible; vartmanā—whose movement.

TRANSLATION

The various phases of one's material life, beginning with birth and culminating in death, are all properties of the body and do not affect the soul, just as the apparent waxing and waning of the moon does not affect the moon itself. Such changes are enforced by the imperceptible movements of time.

PURPORT

The body undergoes six changes: birth, growth, maintenance, production of by-products, dwindling and death. Similarly, the moon appears to grow, diminish and finally disappear. Since moonlight is a lunar reflection of sunlight, it is understood that the moon itself does not grow or diminish; rather, we perceive the reflection of the moon in various phases. Similarly, the eternal soul is not born, nor does it die, as confirmed in Bhagavad-gētā

(2.20): na jâyate mriyate vâ kadâcit. We perceive the reflection of the soul in the form of the gross material body and the subtle mind, which undergo various material changes.

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the sun is a fiery planet and the moon is a watery planet. This is also confirmed by Çréla Jéva Gosvämé and further illustrates the ignorance of modern science about the actual nature of the moon planet.

TEXT 49

k(Alaena ÷AeGavaegAena BaUtaAnaAM 'aBavaApyayaAE inatyaAvaipa na ä{"zyaetae @AtmanaAe'çaeayaRTaAicaRSaAma, *kâlena hy ogha-vegena

bhütänââ prabhavâpyayau nityâv api na dâçyete
âtmano 'gner yathârciñâm*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kâlena—by time; hi—indeed; ogha—like a flood; vegena—whose speed; bhütänâm—of created bodies; prabhava—the birth; apyayau—and demise; nityau—constant; api—although; na dâçyete—are not seen; âtmanaù—related to the spirit soul; agneù—of fire; yathâ—just as; arciñâm—of the flames.

TRANSLATION

The flames of a fire appear and disappear at every moment, and yet this creation and destruction is not noticed by the ordinary observer. Similarly, the mighty waves of time flow constantly, like the powerful currents of a river, and imperceptibly cause the birth, growth and death of innumerable material bodies. And yet the soul, who is thus constantly forced to change his position, cannot perceive the actions of time.

PURPORT

The brähmaëa avadhüta instructing King Yadu again gives the example of fire after having already proceeded to the example of the moon. This analytic method is called siàhāvalokana, or "the lion's glance," by which one simultaneously proceeds forward and casts backward glances to see if anything has been overlooked. Thus the sage proceeds with his analysis but returns to the example of fire to illustrate the need for renunciation. The material body is certainly an ephemeral and phantasmagorical manifestation of the Lord's external potency. The flames of a fire constantly take birth and disappear, yet we perceive the fire as a continuous reality. Similarly, the soul is a continuous reality, although his material bodies appear and disappear constantly, by the influence of time. It is said that the most astonishing thing is that no one thinks that they will die. Because the soul is eternal, the living entity is prone to accept any fleeting situation as permanent, forgetting that his eternal nature can be truly experienced only in the eternal atmosphere of the spiritual sky. If one is convinced of this fact, he develops the quality of vairāgya, or detachment from material illusion.

TEXT 50

gAuNAEgAuRNAAnaupaAd"Ôae yaTaAk(AlaM ivamauÂaita na taeSau yaujyatae yaAegAl gAAeiBagAAR wva gAAepaita:

*guëair guëän upādatte
yathā-kālaà vimui' cati na teñu yujyate yogé
gobhir gā iva go-patiü*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëaiù—by his senses; guëän—material sense objects; upädatte—accepts; yathä-kālam—at the proper time; vimui'cati—gives them up; na—he does not; teñu—in them; yujyate—become entangled; yogē—a self-realized sage; gobhiù—by his rays; gäù—bodies of water; iva—as; go-patiù—the sun.

TRANSLATION

Just as the sun evaporates large quantities of water by its potent rays and later returns the water to the earth in the form of rain, similarly, a saintly person accepts all types of material objects with his material senses, and at the appropriate time, when the proper person has approached him to request them, he returns such material objects. Thus, both in accepting and giving up the objects of the senses, he is not entangled.

PURPORT

A Kāñëa conscious person never feels proprietorship over the opulences entrusted to him by Lord Kāñëa for spreading the Kāñëa consciousness movement. The devotees of Lord Kāñëa should not merely accumulate material wealth, but should distribute the opulences of Lord Kāñëa in such a way that the Kāñëa consciousness movement spreads unlimitedly. This is a lesson to be learned from the sun.

TEXT 51

bauDyatae svaē na Baede"na vyai·(sTa wva taÕ"ta:
la°yatae sTaUlamaitaiBar," @AtmaA caAvaisTataAe'kR(vata, budhyate sve na bhedena vyakti-stha iva tad-gataù lakñyate sthūla-matibhir ātmā cāvasthito 'rka-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

budhyate—is thought of; sve—in his original form; na—not; bhedena—in terms of diversity; vyakti—on separate reflecting objects; sthaù—situated; iva—apparently; tat-gataù—actually having entered within them; lakīyate—seems; sthūla-matibhiù—to those whose intelligence is dull; ātmā—the self; ca—also; avasthitaù—situated; arkavat—like the sun.

TRANSLATION

Even when reflected in various objects, the sun is never divided, nor does it merge into its reflection. Only those with dull brains would consider the sun in this way. Similarly, although the soul is reflected through different material bodies, the soul remains undivided and nonmaterial.

PURPORT

The sun is reflected in many objects, such as windows, mirrors, shiny metal, oil, water, and so on, yet the sun remains one and indivisible. Similarly, the eternal spirit soul within the body is reflected through the screen of the material body. Thus the soul appears to be old or young, fat or skinny, happy or sad. The soul may appear to be American, Russian, African, Hindu or Christian; however, the eternal soul in its natural position is free of any material designation.

The word sthūla-matibhiù in this verse indicates those whose intelligence is gross and dull. We have practical experience of a dog urinating on a valuable painting at an outdoor art show. Due to its dull intelligence, the dog could not appreciate the actual value of the painting. Similarly, unless one takes to Kāñēa consciousness, one is grossly misusing the invaluable opportunity of human life. Human life is meant for self-realization, and we should not waste time bickering over material designations such as capitalist, communist, American, Russian, and so on. Instead, all people should take to the loving devotional service of God and realize their eternal, pure identity. One should understand the sun by observing its direct manifestation and not its distorted reflection on material objects. Similarly, one should consider every living being in terms of his pure spiritual identity beyond the distorted manifestation of material designations.

The word ātmā in this verse also refers to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Just as we tend to observe ordinary jēva souls through the reflection of the material body, we tend to observe the Personality of Godhead through the distorting screen of our material mind. Thus, we imagine God to be impersonal or material or unknowable. When the sky is overcast, sunlight is the highest possible perception of the sun, which is covered by clouds. Similarly, when one's mind is fogged over with mental speculation one may take the light emanating from the transcendental body of God to be the highest spiritual truth. However, when the mind is spotlessly clear like a cloudless blue sky, one can see the actual form of the Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāñëa. The Absolute Truth cannot be perfectly understood by the covered mind of the conditioned soul; rather, one must see the Lord through the clear blue sky of pure Kāñëa consciousness, which is free from fruitive desires and mental speculation. Çréla Bhaktivinoda Ōhākura sings, jēvera kalyäëa-sādhana-kāma jagate äsi ' e madhura nāma avidyā-timira-tāpana-rūpe hād-gagane virāje

"The holy name of Lord Kāñëa descends into the darkness of the material world just to benedict the conditioned souls. The holy name of Lord Kāñëa is just like the sun that rises in the clear sky of the heart of the devotees." Such brilliant knowledge cannot be understood by those who are trying, in the name of either piety or atheism, to exploit the material creation of the Lord. One must become a pure devotee of Lord Kāñëa, and then his knowledge will illuminate everything in all directions: kasminn u bhagavo vijī āte sarvam idaà vijī ātaà bhavatēti. (Muëòaka Upaniñad 1.1.3).

TEXT 52

naAitapaeh": 'as$aEëAe vaA k(taRvya: ,(Aipa ke(naicata, ku(vaRna, ivande"ta s$antaApaM k(paAeta wva d"lnaDal:

näti-snehaù prasaì go vä kartavyaù kväpi kenacit kurvan vindeta santäpaà kapota iva déna-dhéù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; ati-snehaù—excess affection; prasaì gaù—close association; vä—or; kartavyaù—one should manifest; kva api—ever; kenacit—with anyone or anything; kurvan—so doing; vindeta—one will experience; santäpam—great distress; kapotaù—the pigeon; iva—just as; déna-dhéù—cripple-minded.

TRANSLATION

One should never indulge in excessive affection or concern for anyone or anything; otherwise one will have to experience great suffering, just like the foolish pigeon.

PURPORT

The Sanskrit prefix ati, or "excessive," indicates affection or attachment in which there is no Kânëa consciousness. Lord Kânëa says in Bhagavad-gétä (5.29), suhädaà sarva-bhütänäm: the Lord is the eternal well-wisher of every living being. The Lord is so affectionate that He sits in the heart of every conditioned soul and accompanies him throughout his endless wandering in the kingdom of mäyä, patiently waiting for the conditioned soul to come back home, back to Godhead. Thus the Lord makes all arrangements for the eternal happiness of every living entity. The best way for anyone to show compassion and affection for all living beings is to become a preacher on behalf of Lord Kāñëa and assist the Lord in reclaiming the fallen souls. If our affection or attachment for others is based on bodily sense gratification, in the name of society, friendship and love, that excessive, unwanted affection (ati-sneha) will cause burning pain at the time of the breaking or destruction of the relationship. Now the story of the foolish pigeon will be narrated. A similar story is described in the Seventh Canto, Second Chapter of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, told by Yamarāja to the mourning widows of King Suyajī a.

TEXT 53

k(paAeta: k(ênaAr"Nyae
k{(tanalx"Ae vanas$patAe k(paAetyaA BaAyaRyaA s$ADaRma, ovaAs$A k(itaicats$amaA:

kapotaù kaçcanāraëye
kāta-néòo vanaspatau
kapotyā bhāryayā sārdham uvāsa katicit samāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapotaù—pigeon; kaçcana—a certain; araëye—in the forest;
kāta-néòau—having built his nest; vanaspatau—in a tree; kapotyā—with a female pigeon; bhāryayā—his wife; sa-ardham—as his companion;
uvāsa—he dwelled; katicit—for some; samāu—years.

TRANSLATION

There once was a pigeon who lived in the forest along with his wife. He had built a nest within a tree and lived there for several years in her company.

TEXT 54

k(paAetaAE µaeh"gAuiNAtaô$d"yaAE gA{h"DaimaRNAAE ä{"íiM" ä{"í"YaAËÿmaËëÿna bauüÜM" bauÜ"YaA babanDatau:

kapotau sneha-guëitahâdayau gâha-dharmiëau dâñôi à dâñöyâi gam aî gena buddhi à buddhyä babandhatuü

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapotau—the two pigeons; sneha—by affection; guëita—tied together as if by ropes; hâdayau—their hearts; gâha-dharmiëau—attached householders; dâñôi—glance; dâñöyâ—by glance; aî gam—physical body; aî gena—by the other's body; buddhim—mind; buddhyä—by the other's mind; babandhatuü—they bound each other.

TRANSLATION

The two pigeons were very much devoted to their household duties. Their hearts being tied together by sentimental affection, they were each attracted by the other's glances, bodily features and states of mind. Thus, they completely bound each other in affection.

PURPORT

The male and female pigeon were so attracted to each other that they could not tolerate even a moment's separation from one another. This is called bhagavad-vismâti, or forgetfulness of the Supreme Lord and attachment to dead matter. The living entity has an eternal love for the Lord, but when perverted, that love is manifested as false material affection. A pale reflection of actual pleasure thus becomes the foundation of a false life based on forgetfulness of the Absolute Truth.

TEXT 55

zAyyaAs$anaAq%nasTaAna vaAtaAR,(Lx"AzAnaAid"k(ma, imaTaunaIBaUya iva™abDaAE
caer"tauvaRnar"AijaSau

çayyāsanāōana-sthāna
vārtā-krēōāçanādikam
mithuné-bhüya viçrabdhau ceratur vana-rājiñu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çayyā—resting; āsana—sitting; aōana—walking; sthāna—standing; vārtā—conversing; krēōā—playing; açana—eating; ādikam—and so on;
mithuné-bhüya—together as a couple; viçrabdhau—trusting; ceratu—they performed; vana—of the forest; rājiñu—among the groves of trees.

TRANSLATION

Naively trusting in the future, they carried out their acts of resting, sitting, walking, standing, conversing, playing, eating and so forth as a loving couple among the trees of the forest.

TEXT 56

yaM yaM vaAHC$ita s$aA r"Ajana, tapaRyantyanauk(impataA taM taM s$amanayatk(AmaM k{(cC)e$NAApaijataein%o"ya:

yaà yaà väi chati sā rājan tarpayanty anukampitā

taà taà samanayat kämaà kâcchreëäpy ajitendriyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yam yam—whatever; väi chati—would want; sä—she; râjan—O King; tarpayantë—pleasing; anukampitâ—being shown mercy; tam tam—that; samanayat—brought; kämam—her desire; kâcchreëa—with difficulty; api—even; ajita-indriyaù—having never learned to control his senses.

TRANSLATION

Whenever she desired anything, O King, the she-pigeon would flatteringly cajole her husband, and he in turn would gratify her by faithfully doing whatever she wanted, even with great personal difficulty. Thus, he could not control his senses in her association.

PURPORT

The word tarpayantë indicates that the lady pigeon was quite expert in seducing her husband through smiling glances and loving talks. Thus appealing to his noble sentiments, she efficiently engaged him as her faithful servant. The poor pigeon was ajitendriya, or one who cannot control his senses and whose heart is easily melted by the beauty of a woman. The brähmaëa avadhüta is giving valuable instructions by narrating this story of the two pigeons and the terrible distress they suffered by inevitable separation. If one's intelligence is not dedicated to serving Hãñëkeça, the Supreme Lord of sense activity, undoubtedly one will plunge into the nescience of bodily gratification. Then one becomes no better than a foolish pigeon.

TEXT 57

k(paAetal 'aTamaM gABa< gA{õ"ntal k(Ala @AgAtae

@Nx"Aina s$auSauvae nalxe" stapatyau: s$ai^aaDaAE s$atal

*kapoté prathamaà garbhaà gâhëanté kâla ägate
aëöäni suñuve néðe
sta-patyuù sannidhau saté*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapoté—the female pigeon; prathamam—her first; garbham—pregnancy; gâhëanté—carrying; kâle—when the time (for delivery); ägate—had come; aëöäni—eggs; suñuve—she delivered; néðe—in the nest; sva-patyuù—of her husband; sannidhau—in the presence; saté—the chaste.

TRANSLATION

Then the female pigeon experienced her first pregnancy. When the time arrived, the chaste lady delivered a number of eggs within the nest in the presence of her husband.

TEXT 58

taeSau k(Alae vyajaAyanta r"icataAvayavaA h"re":
zAi·(iBaäuR"ivaRBaAvyaAiBa:
k(AemalaAËýtanaUç&h"A:

*teñu kâle vyajāyanta racitāvayavā hareu
çaktibhir durvibhāvyābhiu komalāi ga-tanūruhāu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

teñu—from those eggs; kâle—in time; vyajāyanta—were born;

racita—produced; avayaväù—(children) whose limbs; hareù—of the Supreme Lord, Hari; çaktibhiù—by the potencies; durvibhävyäbhiù—which are inconceivable; komala—tender; aì ga—whose limbs; tanüruhäù—and feathers.

TRANSLATION

When the time was ripe, baby pigeons, with tender limbs and feathers created by the inconceivable potencies of the Lord, were born from those eggs.

TEXT 59

‘ajaA: paupauSatau: ‘altaAE
d"mpatal pauṭavats$alaAE Za{NvantaAE kU(ijataM taAs$aAM inava{RtaAE k(laBaAiSataE:

prajāù pupuñatuù prētau dampaté putra-vatsalau çāëvantau küjitaà täsäà nirvātau kala-bhāñitaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

prajāù—their progeny; pupuñatuù—they nourished; prētau—very pleased; dam-paté—the couple; putra—to their children; vatsalau—compassionate; çāëvantau—listening; küjita—to the chirping; täsäm—of their children; nirvātau—extremely happy; kala-bhāñitaiù—by the awkward sounds.

TRANSLATION

The two pigeons became most affectionate to their children and took great pleasure in listening to their awkward chirping, which sounded very sweet to the parents. Thus with love they began to raise the little birds who were born of them.

TEXT 60

taAs$aAM pataṭaE: s$aus$pazAE=: kU(ijataEmauRgDacaei"taE:
'atyaüŌ"maEr"d"lnaAnaAM ipatar"AE maud"maApatau:

täsäà patatraiù su-sparçaiù küjitair mugdha-ceññitaiù pratyudgamair adénänäà pitarau mudam äpatuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

täsäm—of the little birds; patatraiù—by the wings; su-sparçaiù—gentle to the touch; küjitaiù—their chirping; mugdha—attractive; ceññitaiù—by the activities; pratyudgamaiù—by their efforts to fly by eagerly jumping up; adénänäm—of the happy (children); pitarau—the parents; mudam äpatuù—became joyful.

TRANSLATION

The parent birds became very joyful by observing the soft wings of their children, their chirping, their lovely innocent movements around the nest and their attempts to jump up and fly. Seeing their children happy, the parents were also happy.

TEXT 61

µaeh"AnaubaÜ"ô$d"yaAva, @nyaAenyaM ivaSNAumaAyayaA ivamaAeih"taAE d"lnaiDayaAE izAzAUna, paupauSatau: ‘ajaA:

snehānubaddha-hādayāv
anyonyaà viññeu-māyayā
vimohitau dēna-dhiyau
çičün pupuñatuù prajāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sneha—by affection; anubaddha—bound up; hādayau—their hearts;
anyonyam—mutually; viññeu-māyayā—by the illusory potency of Lord Viññeu; vimohitau—completely bewildered; dēna-dhiyau—weak-minded;
çičün—their children; pupuñatuù—they nourished; prajāu—their progeny.

TRANSLATION

Their hearts bound to each other by affection, the foolish birds, completely bewildered by the illusory energy of Lord Viññeu, continued to take care of the young offspring who had been born to them.

TEXT 62

Wk(d"A jagmataustaAs$aAma, @^aaATa< taAE ku(q%]imbanaAE pair"ta: k(Ananae taisma^aa, @iTaRnaAE caer"tauie^r"ma, ekadā jagmatus tāsām

annārthaà tau kuūumbinau paritaù kānane tasmīn
arthinau ceratuç cīram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ekadā—once; jagmatuù—they went; tāsām—of the children; anna—food;
artham—for the sake of; tau—the two; kuūumbinau—heads of the family;

paritaù—all around; kānane—in the forest; tasmin—that; arthinau—anxiously searching; ceratuù—they wandered; ciram—far away.

TRANSLATION

One day the two heads of the family went out to find food for the children. Being very anxious to feed their offspring properly, they wandered all over the forest for a long time.

TEXT 63

ä{"î"A taAnlaubDak(: k(iêä," yaä{"cC$AtaAe vanaecar":
jagA{he" jaAlamaAtatya car"ta: svaAlayaAintake(

dāñvā tñ lubdhakaù kaçcid yadācchäto vane-caraù jagāhe jālam ātatyā
carataù svālayāntike

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dāñvā—seeing; tñ—them, the young birds; lubdhakaù—hunter; kaçcit—a certain; yadācchätaù—at random; vane—in the forest; caraù—passing; jagāhe—he seized; jālam—his net; ātatyā—having spread out; carataù—who were moving about; sva-ālaya-antike—in the vicinity of their own home.

TRANSLATION

At that time a certain hunter who happened to be wandering through the forest saw the young pigeons moving about near their nest. Spreading out his net he captured them all.

TEXT 64

k(paAetaê k(paAetal ca
'ajaApaAeSae s$ad"Aets$auk(AE gAtaAE paAeSaNAmaAd"Aya svanalx"maupajagmatau:

*kapotaç ca kapoté ca
prajā-poñe sadotsukau
gatau poñaëam ädäya
sva-néòam upajagmatuù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapotaù—the pigeon; ca—and; kapoté—the she-pigeon; ca—and; prajā—of their children; poñe—in the matter of maintaining; sadä—always; utsukau—eagerly engaged; gatau—having gone; poñaëam—food; ädäya—bringing; sva—their own; néòam—to the nest; upajagmatuù—they approached.

TRANSLATION

The pigeon and his wife were always anxious for the maintenance of their children, and they were wandering in the forest for that purpose. Having obtained proper food, they now returned to their nest.

TEXT 65

k(paAetal svaAtmajaAna, val^oya baAlak(Ana, jaAlas$amva{taAna, taAnaByaDaAvat,(AezAntal ,(AezAtaAe Ba{zAäu":iKataA

kapoté svätmajän vėkñya bālakān jāla-samvātān tān abhyadhāvat kroçanté kroçato bhāça-duùkhitā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapotē—the female pigeon; sva-ātma-jān—her own offspring; vékñya—seeing; bālakān—the children; jāla—by the nest; sa-ā-vātān—surrounded; tān—toward them; abhyadhāvat—she ran; kroçantē—calling out; kroçataù—toward them who were also crying; bhāça—extremely; duùkhitā—distressed.

TRANSLATION

When the lady pigeon caught sight of her own children trapped within the hunter's net, she was overwhelmed with anguish, and crying out, she rushed toward them as they cried out to her in return.

TEXT 66

s$As$ak{(ṭp̣aeh" gAuiNAtaA d" InaicaÔaAjamaAyayaA svayaM caAbaDyata izAcaA baÜ" Ana, pazyantyapasma{ita:

sāsakāt sneha-guëitā
dēna-cittāja-māyayā
svaya-ā cābadhyata çicā baddhān paçyanty apasmātiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sā—she; asakāt—constantly; sneha—by material affection; guëitā—bound up; dēna-cittā—of crippled intelligence; aja—of the unborn Supreme Lord; māyayā—by the illusory potency; svayam—herself; ca—also; abadhyata—became caught; çicā—by the net; baddhān—the captured (children); paçyantē—while looking at; apasmātiù—having forgotten herself.

TRANSLATION

The lady pigeon had always allowed herself to be bound by the ropes of intense material affection, and thus her mind was overwhelmed by anguish. Being in the grip of the illusory energy of the Lord, she completely forgot herself, and rushing forward to her helpless children, she was immediately bound in the hunter's net.

TEXT 67

k(paAeta: svaAtmajaAna, baÜ"Ana, @AtmanaAe'pyaiDak(Ana, i'ayaAna, BaAyaA< caAtmas$amaAM d"lnaAe ivalalaApaAitaäu":iKata:

kapotaù svātmajān baddhān ātmano 'py adhikān priyān bhāryāà cātma-samāà déno vilalāpāti-duùkhitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kapotaù—the male pigeon; sva-ātma-jān—his own children; baddhān—bound up; ātmanaù—than himself; api—even; adhikān—more; priyān—dear; bhāryām—his wife; ca—and; ātma-samām—equal to himself; dēnaù—the unfortunate fellow; vilalāpa—lamented; ati-duùkhitaù—most unhappy.

TRANSLATION

Seeing his own children, who were more dear to him than life itself, fatally bound in the hunter's net along with his dearest wife, whom he considered equal in every way to himself, the poor male pigeon began to lament wretchedly.

TEXT 68

@h"Ae mae pazyataApaAyama, @lpapauNyasya äu"maRtae: @ta{æasyaAk{(taATaRsya gA{h"ñEvaigARk(Ae h"ta:

*aho me paçyatäpäyam
alpa-puëyasya durmateù atâptasyäkâtärthasya
gâhas trai-vargiko hataù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aho—alas; me—my; paçyata—just see; apäyam—the destruction; alpa-puëyasya—of him whose pious credit has been insufficient; durmateù—unintelligent; atâptasya—unsatisfied; akâta-arthasya—of him who has not fulfilled the purpose of his life; gâhaù—the family life; trai-vargikaù—comprising the three aims of civilized existence (religiosity, economic development and sense gratification); hataù—ruined.

TRANSLATION

The male pigeon said: Alas, just see how I am now destroyed! I am obviously a great fool, for I did not properly execute pious activities. I could not satisfy myself, nor could I fulfill the purpose of life. My dear family, which was the basis of my religiosity, economic development and sense gratification, is now hopelessly ruined.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svämé explains that the word atâptasya indicates that the pigeon was not satisfied with the sense gratification he had achieved. Although he was completely attached to his wife, children and nest, he could not sufficiently enjoy them since there is ultimately no satisfaction in such things. Akâtārthasya indicates that his hopes and dreams for future expansion of his sense gratification were now also ruined. People commonly refer to their "home, sweet home" as their nest, and money put aside for future sense gratification is called a nest egg. Therefore, all of the love birds of the material world should clearly note how their so-called wife, children and fortune will all be dragged away in the hunter's net. In other words, death will finish everything.

TEXT 69

@nauè&paAnaukU(laA ca
yasya mae paitade"vataA zAUnyae gA{he" maAM s$antyajya pauṭaE: svayaARita s$aADauiBa:

*anurüpānukūlā ca
yasya me pati-devatā
ṣūnye gāhe mām śantyajya putraiṁ svar yāti śādhubhiṁ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

anurüpā—suitable; anukūlā—faithful; ca—and; yasya—of whom; me—of me; pati-devatā—she who accepted her husband as a worshipable deity; ṣūnye—empty; gāhe—in the home; mām—me; śantyajya—leaving behind; putraiṁ—along with her sons; svaṁ—to heaven; yāti—is going; śādhubhiṁ—saintly.

TRANSLATION

My wife and I were an ideal match. She always faithfully obeyed me and in fact accepted me as her worshipable deity. But now, seeing her children lost and her home empty, she has left me behind and gone to heaven with our saintly children.

TEXT 70

s$Ae'hM" zAUnyae gA{he" d"lnaAe ma{tad"Ar"Ae ma{ta'aja: ijajalivaSae ik(maTa< vaA ivaDaur"Ae äu":Kajalivata:

*so 'haà çünye gâhe dēno mâta-dâro mâta-prajaù jijéviñe kim arthaà vâ
vidhuro duùkha-jévitaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saù aham—myself; çünye—empty; gâhe—in the house; dēnaù—wretched; mâta-dâraù—my wife dead; mâta-prajaù—my children dead; jijéviñe—I should want to live; kim artham—for what purpose; vâ—indeed; vidhuraù—suffering separation; duùkha—miserable; jévitaù—my life.

TRANSLATION

Now I am a wretched person living in an empty home. My wife is dead; my children are dead. Why should I possibly want to live? My heart is so pained by separation from my family that life itself has become simply suffering.

TEXT 71

taAMstaTaEvaAva{taAna, izAigBar," ma{tyaufastaAna, ivacaeí"ta: svayaM ca k{(paNA: izA^oau pazyaa^aapyabauDaAe'patata,

tāàs tathaivāvâtān çigbhir mâtyu-grastān viceññataù svayaà ca kâpaëaù çikñu

paçyann apy abudho 'patat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tān—them; tathā—also; eva—indeed; āvātān—surrounded; çigbhiū—by the net; mātyu—by death; grastān—seized; viceññātaū—stunned; svayam—himself; ca—also; kāpaēaū—wretched; çikñu—within the net; paçyan—while watching; api—even; abudhaū—unintelligent; apatat—he fell.

TRANSLATION

As the father pigeon wretchedly stared at his poor children trapped in the net and on the verge of death, pathetically struggling to free themselves, his mind went blank, and thus he himself fell into the hunter's net.

TEXT 72

taM labDvaA laubDak(: ,U(r": k(paAetaM gA{h"maeiDanama, k(paAetak(Ana, k(paAetal%M ca is$aÜ"ATaR: 'ayayaAE gA{h"ma, taà labdhvä lubdhakaū krūraū kapotaà gāha-medhinam kapotakān kapotēà ca

siddhārthaū prayayau gāham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tam—him; labdhvä—taking; lubdhakaū—the hunter; krūraū—cruel; kapotam—the pigeon; gāha-medhinam—the materialistic householder; kapotakān—the pigeon children; kapotēm—the pigeon wife; ca—also; siddha-ārthaū—having achieved his purposes; prayayau—he set off; gāham—for his home.

TRANSLATION

The cruel hunter, having fulfilled his desire by capturing the head pigeon, his wife and all of their children, set off for his own home.

TEXT 73

WvaM ku(q%]mbyazAAntaAtmaA ã"nã"Ar"Ama: pataiṭavata, pauSNAna, ku(q%]mbaM k{(paNA:
s$aAnaubanDaAe'vas$ald"ita

evaà kuöumby açäntätmä dvandvärämaù patatri-vat puñëan kuöumbaà kâpaëaù sänubandho 'vasédati

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; kuöumbé—a family man; açänta—unpeaceful; ätmä—his soul; dvandva—in material dualities (like male and female); ärämaù—taking his pleasure; patatri-vat—like this bird; puñëan—maintaining; kuöumbam—his family; kâpaëaù—the miser; sa-anubandhaù—with his relatives; avasédati—must suffer greatly.

TRANSLATION

In this way, one who is too attached to family life becomes disturbed at heart. Like the pigeon, he tries to find pleasure in mundane sex attraction. Busily engaged in maintaining his own family, the miserly person is fated to suffer greatly, along with all his family members.

TEXT 74

ya: 'aApya maAnauSaM laAekM( maui·(ã"Ar"mapaAva{tama, gA{he"Sau KagAvats$a·(s$a, tamaAè&X#cyautaM ivaäu":

yaù prāpya mānuñāà lokaà mukti-dvāram apāvātam gāheñu khaga-vat saktas tam ārūḥa-cyutaà viduù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who; prāpya—having achieved; mānuñam lokam—the human form of life; mukti—of liberation; dvāram—the door; apāvātam—wide open; gāheñu—in family affairs; khaga-vat—like the bird of this story; saktaù—attached; tam—him; ārūḥa—having climbed high; cyutam—then falling; viduù—they consider.

TRANSLATION

The doors of liberation are opened wide to one who has achieved human life. But if a human being simply devotes himself to family life like the foolish bird in this story, then he is to be considered as one who has climbed to a high place only to trip and fall down.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Seventh Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Lord Kāñēa Instructs Uddhava."

8. The Story of Piṇ galā

Lord Kāñëa told Uddhava how the avadhüta brähmaëa explained to Mahäräja Yadu the instructions he had received from nine of his gurus, beginning with the python.

The instruction the avadhüta brähmaëa received from the python is that an intelligent person should cultivate a mentality of detachment and should maintain his body by accepting whatever comes of its own accord or is easily obtained. In this way, he should remain always engaged in the worship of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Even if no food is available, the person who wants to engage fully in the Lord's worship should not beg; rather, he should understand this to be the arrangement of providence, thinking, "Whatever enjoyment is destined for me will automatically come, and thus I should not uselessly waste the remaining duration of my life in worrying about such things." If he does not get any food, he should simply remain lying like the python and patiently fix his mind in meditation upon the Supreme Lord.

The instruction the avadhüta brähmaëa received from the ocean is that the mind of the sage who is devoted to the Personality of Godhead appears very clear and grave, just like the still ocean waters. The ocean does not overflow during the rainy season, when all the flooded rivers discharge their waters into it, nor does it dry up during the hot season, when the rivers fail to supply it. Similarly, the sage does not become elated when he achieves desirable things, nor does he become distressed in their absence.

The instruction of the moth is that just as he becomes enticed by the fire and gives up his life, the fool who cannot control his senses becomes enchanted by the forms of women decorated with gold ornaments and fine clothing. Chasing after these embodiments of the divine illusory energy of the Lord, he loses his life untimely and falls down into the most horrible hell.

There are two kinds of bees, the bumblebee and the honeybee. The instruction learned from the bumblebee is that a sage should collect only small amounts of food from many different households and thus day after day practice the occupation of mādhukarë for maintaining his existence. A sage should also collect the essential truths from all scriptures, be they great or insignificant. The instruction received from the second insect, the honeybee, is that a mendicant sannyāse should not save the food he begs for the sake of having it later that night or the next day, because if he does so, then just like the greedy honeybee he will be destroyed along with his hoard.

From the elephant the avadhūta brāhmaëa received the following instruction. Male elephants are tricked by hunters into moving toward captive female elephants, whereupon they fall into the hunters' ditch and are captured. Similarly, the man who becomes attached to the form of woman falls down into the deep well of material life and is destroyed.

The instruction received from the honey thief is that just as he steals the honey collected with great effort by the honeybee, a person in the renounced order of life has the privilege of enjoying before anyone else the food and other valuable things purchased by the hard-earned money of the householders.

The instruction from the deer is that just as he becomes confused upon hearing the song of the hunter's flute and loses his life, so also does any person who becomes attracted to mundane music and song uselessly waste his life.

The instruction learned from the fish is that because he comes under the sway of attachment to the sense of taste, he is caught on the baited fishhook and must die. Similarly, an unintelligent person who is victimized by his insatiable tongue will also end up losing his life.

There was once a prostitute named Piñgalā in the city of Videha, and from her the avadhūta learned another lesson. One day she dressed herself in very attractive clothing and ornaments and was waiting from sunset until midnight for a customer. She waited in great anticipation, but as the time passed her mind became very uneasy. No man came to see her, and in disgust she finally became renounced, giving up her hankering for the arrival of a suitor. Thereafter she engaged herself in thinking only of the Supreme Lord, Hari, and her mind achieved the supreme platform of peace. The instruction received from her is that hopes for sense gratification are the root cause of all suffering. Therefore, only one who has given up such hankering can fix himself in meditation upon the Personality of Godhead and achieve transcendental peace.

TEXT 1

™al“aAöNA ovaAca
s$auKamaEin%o"yakM(r"Ajana, svagAeR nar"k(Wva ca de"ih"naAM yaâTaA äu":KaM tasmaA^aaecCe$ta taä,"bauDa:

*çré-brähmaëa uväca
sukham aindriyakaà räjan svarge naraka eva ca
dehinäà yad yathä duùkhaà tasmän neccheta tad-budhaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-brähmaëaù uväca—the saintly brähmaëa said; sukham—happiness; aindriyakam—generated from the material senses; räjan—O King; svarge—in material heaven; narake—in hell; eva—certainly; ca—also; dehinäm—of the embodied living beings; yat—since; yathä—just as; duùkham—unhappiness; tasmät—therefore; na—not; iccheta—should desire; tat—that; budhaù—one who knows.

TRANSLATION

The saintly brähmaëa said: O King, the embodied living entity automatically experiences unhappiness in heaven or hell. Similarly, happiness will also be experienced, even without one's seeking it. Therefore a person of intelligent discrimination does not make any endeavor to obtain such material happiness.

PURPORT

One should not uselessly waste his life pursuing material sense gratification, because a specific quantity of material happiness will automatically come to one as a result of one's past and present fruitive activities. This lesson is learned from the ajagara, or python, who lies down and accepts for his maintenance whatever comes of its own accord. Remarkably, in both material heaven and hell happiness and unhappiness come automatically, due to our previous activities, although the proportions of happiness and unhappiness certainly vary. Either in heaven or in hell one may eat, drink, sleep and have sex life, but these activities, being based on the material body, are temporary and inconsequential. An intelligent person should see that even the best material situation is actually a punishment for previous unlawful activities executed outside the scope of loving devotional service to God. A conditioned soul undergoes great trouble to obtain a little happiness. After struggling in material life, which is full of hardship and hypocrisy, one may receive a little sense gratification, but this illusory pleasure in no way offsets the burden of suffering one must bear to obtain it. After all, a pretty hat is no cure for a homely face. If one really wants to solve life's problems, one should live simply and reserve the major portion of one's life for loving service to Kāñëa. Even those who do not serve God receive a certain standard of maintenance from Him; therefore we can just imagine the security the Lord affords to those who dedicate their lives to His devotional service.

Unrefined fruitive workers foolishly worry only about the present life, whereas more pious karmës imprudently make elaborate arrangements for future material sense gratification, unaware that all such enjoyment is temporary. The real solution, however, is to understand that by pleasing the Personality of Godhead, who is the master of all senses and all desires, one can attain permanent happiness. Such knowledge easily solves the problems of life.

TEXT 2

*f*aAs$aM s$auma{íM" ivar"s$aM mah"AntaM staAek(maeva vaA

yaä{"cC$yaEvaApaitataM fas$aed"AjagAr"Ae'i,(ya:

*grāsaà su-māññaà virasaà mahāntaà stokam eva vā yadācchayaivāpatitaà
grased ājagaro 'kriyaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

grāsam—food; su-māññam—clean and delicious; virasam—tasteless; mahāntam—a large quantity; stokam—a small quantity; eva—certainly; vā—either; yadācchayā—without personal endeavor; eva—indeed; āpatitam—obtained; graset—one should eat; ājagaraù—like the python; akriyaù—remaining neutral without endeavor.

TRANSLATION

Following the example of the python, one should give up material endeavors and accept for one's maintenance food that comes of its own accord, whether such food be delicious or tasteless, ample or meager.

TEXT 3

zAyaltaAh"Aina BaUr"liNA inar"Ah"Ar"Ae'naupa,(ma:
yaid" naAepanayaeØ"As$aAe mah"Aih"ir"va id"í"Bauk,( *çayētāhāni bhūrēi

nirāhāro 'nupakramaù
yadi nopanayed grāso
mahāhir iva diñña-bhuk*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çayêta—he should remain peacefully; ahäni—days; bhürëi—for many; nirähäraù—fasting; anupakramaù—without endeavor; yadi—if; na upanayet—does not come; gräsaù—food; mahä-ahiù—the great python; iva—like; diñña—whatever is provided by providence; bhuk—eating.

TRANSLATION

If at any time food does not come, then a saintly person should fast for many days without making endeavor. He should understand that by God's arrangement he must fast. Thus, following the example of the python, he should remain peaceful and patient.

PURPORT

If by God's arrangement one is forced to suffer material hardship, then one should think, "Due to my past sinful activity I am now being punished. In this way, God is mercifully making me humble." The word çayêta means one should remain peaceful and patient without mental agitation. Diñña-bhuk means one must accept the Personality of Godhead as the supreme controller and not foolishly give up one's faith due to material inconvenience. Tat te 'nukampäà su-samëkñamäëo bhui'jana evätma-kätaà vipäkam (SB 10.14.8). A devotee of the Lord always accepts material hardship as the mercy of Lord Kåñëa; thus he becomes eligible for supreme liberation.

TEXT 4

@Aeja:s$ah"AebalayautaM iba"aÜe"h"mak(maRk(ma, zAyaAnaAe valtaina%"ê
naehe"taein%"yavaAnaipa

ojaù-saho-bala-yutaà bibhrad deham akarmakam çayäno vëta-nidraç ca

nehetendriyavän api

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ojaù—sensual strength; sahaù—mental strength; bala—physical strength; yutam—endowed with; bibhrat—maintaining; deham—the body; akarmakam—without endeavor; çayänaù—remaining peacefully; vêta—freed; nidraù—from nescience; ca—and; na—not; êheta—should endeavor; indriya-vän—possessing full bodily, mental and sensual strength; api—even though.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should remain peaceful and materially inactive, maintaining his body without much endeavor. Even though possessed of full sensual, mental and physical strength, a saintly person should not become active for material gain but rather should always remain alert to his actual self-interest.

PURPORT

The word vêta-nidraù in this verse is very significant. Nidrâ means "sleep" or "ignorance," and vêta means "freed from." In other words, a transcendentalist should always be awake to his eternal relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead and should carefully cultivate Kânëa consciousness. Being confident of his relationship with the Lord, he should not endeavor for his personal maintenance, knowing that the Lord is protecting him in all respects. Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura states that the example of the python is given so that one will not uselessly waste his time in bodily maintenance.

One should not think, however, that the purpose of life is to lie on the ground like a python or to make a show of starving the body. The example of the python should not encourage one to become completely inactive. One should rather become active in spiritual advancement and inactive in material sense gratification. If one becomes completely inactive, that is certainly nidrā, or the darkness of ignorance, in which one remains asleep to his identity as an eternal servant of the Personality of Godhead.

A transcendentalist is eager to execute his service to the Lord, and therefore he is grateful when the Lord provides material facilities for such service. Mere renunciation of the material world is phalgu-vairāgya, or an immature stage of spiritual understanding. One must come to the stage of yukta-vairāgya, engaging everything in the service of Lord Kāñëa. It is our practical experience that a devotee absorbed in spreading Kāñëa consciousness automatically receives all facilities for his personal maintenance.

TEXT 5

mauina: 'as$a^aagAmBalr"Ae äu"ivaRgAA÷Ae äu"r"tyaya: @nantapaAr"Ae ÷^oaAeBya:
istaimataAed" wvaANARva:

muniù prasanna-gambhéro durvigāhyo duratyayaù ananta-pāro hy akñobhyaù stimitoda ivärëavaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

muniù—a saintly sage; prasanna—pleasing; gambhéraù—very grave;
durvigāhyaù—unfathomable; duratyayaù—unsurpassable;
ananta-pāraù—unlimited; hi—certainly; akñobhyaù—not to be disturbed;
stimita—calm; udaù—water; iva—like; arëavaù—the ocean.

TRANSLATION

A saintly sage is happy and pleasing in his external behavior, whereas internally he is most grave and thoughtful. Because his knowledge is immeasurable and unlimited he is never disturbed, and thus in all respects he is like the tranquil waters of the unfathomable and unsurpassable ocean.

PURPORT

Even in the midst of great distress, a self-realized sage does not lose control of himself, nor is his spiritual knowledge lost. Thus he is akñobhya, or undisturbed. His mind is fixed on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the reservoir of unlimited spiritual bliss, and having linked his consciousness with the supreme consciousness, his knowledge cannot be measured. A pure devotee, having taken shelter of the Lord's lotus feet, possesses great spiritual power, and therefore he cannot be surpassed or overwhelmed. In fact, having developed his spiritual body, he is not affected by the deteriorating actions of time. Although outwardly he is friendly and pleasing to everyone, internally his mind is fixed in the Absolute Truth, and no one can understand his actual purpose or plan. Even the most intelligent human being cannot understand the mental activities of a self-realized devotee who has given up material life based on lust and greed and taken shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord. Such a great soul can be compared to the mighty ocean. Innumerable powerful rivers plunge into the ocean, but the ocean remains calm and peaceful. Thus, a saintly person is understood to be, like the ocean, pleasing, unfathomable, grave, unsurpassable, unlimited and unshakable.

TEXT 6

s$ama{Ü"k(AmaAe h"lnaAe vaA naAr"AyaNApar"Ae mauina:
naAets$apaeRta na zAuSyæta
s$air"ià"ir"va s$aAgAr":

*samâddha-kâmo héno vä
nâräyaëa-paro muniù
notsarpeta na çuiyeta
saridbhir iva sägaraù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

samāddha—flourishing; kāmaù—material opulence; hēnaù—destitute; vā—or; nārāyaëa—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; paraù—accepting as supreme; muniù—a saintly devotee; na—does not; utsarpeta—swell up; na—does not; cuñyeta—dry up; saridbhiù—by the rivers; iva—like; sāgaraù—the ocean.

TRANSLATION

During the rainy season the swollen rivers rush into the ocean, and during the dry summer the rivers, now shallow, severely reduce their supply of water; yet the ocean does not swell up during the rainy season, nor does it dry up in the hot summer. In the same way, a saintly devotee who has accepted the Supreme Personality of Godhead as the goal of his life sometimes will receive by providence great material opulence, and sometimes he will find himself materially destitute. However, such a devotee of the Lord does not rejoice in a flourishing condition, nor is he morose when poverty-stricken.

PURPORT

A sincere devotee of the Lord is always eager to meet the Lord and render Him transcendental service. He wants to remain fixed as an atom at the lotus feet of the Lord because Lord Kāñëa, or Nārāyaëa, is the reservoir of all pleasure. He rejoices when experiencing pure Kāñëa consciousness and is morose when Kāñëa is not present in his mind. In his dealings with the material world, a devotee cannot be disturbed by ordinary, materialistic people who sometimes insult him and accuse him of neglecting material sense gratification, just as the ocean cannot be disturbed by the innumerable rivers that enter into it. Sometimes lusty women approach a pure devotee, and sometimes speculative philosophers try to argue against the Personality of Godhead, but with all such ordinary people, a pure devotee is detached and undisturbed in his blissful Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 7

ä{"î"A iñyaM de"vamaAyaAM taà"AvaEr"ijataein%"ya:
'alaAeiBata: patatyanDae tamasyaçaAE pataËyvatā,

dāñvā striyaà deva-māyāà tat-bhāvair ajitendriyaù pralobhitaù pataty andhe tamasy agnau patai ga-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dāñvā—seeing; striyam—a woman; deva-māyām—whose form is created by the illusory energy of the Lord; tat-bhāvaiù—by the alluring seductive activities of the woman; ajita—one who has not controlled; indriyaù—his senses; pralobhitaù—enticed; patati—falls down; andhe—into the blindness of ignorance; tamasi—into the darkness of hell; agnau—in the fire; patai ga-vat—just like the moth.

TRANSLATION

One who has failed to control his senses immediately feels attraction upon seeing a woman's form, which is created by the illusory energy of the Supreme Lord. Indeed, when the woman speaks with enticing words, smiles coquettishly and moves her body sensuously, his mind is immediately captured, and thus he falls blindly into the darkness of material existence, just as the moth maddened by the fire rushes blindly into its flames.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé explains in this regard that just as a moth is killed by its attraction to the form of fire, similarly a bee can easily be killed by exploiting its attraction to the fragrance of flowers. Furthermore, hunters may trap and kill an elephant by exploiting its sensuous desire to touch a captive female elephant and may also kill a deer by attracting it with the sounds of their horns; and a fish is killed by its desire to taste the bait on a hook. Thus, one who desires to learn detachment from material illusion should accept these five helpless creatures as guru and learn the needful. Certainly one who is lusty to enjoy the illusory form of woman will be quickly buried in material illusion. Of the five types of fatal attraction involving material sense objects, the lesson of rūpa, or form, is illustrated in this verse.

TEXT 8

yaAeiSaiÜ"r"NyaABar"NAAmbar"Aid"- %o"vyaeSau maAyaAr"icataeSau maUX#:
 'alaAeiBataAtmaA ÷upaBaAegAbauÜ"YaA pataËÿva^aazyaita nai"ä{"i":

yoñid-dhiraëyābharaëāambarādidravyeñu māyā-raciteñu müòhaù pralobhitātmā hy upabhoga-buddhyā pataì ga-van naçyati nañña-dāññiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yoñit—of women; hiraëya—golden; ābharaëa—ornaments; ambara—clothing; ādi—and so on; dravyeñu—upon seeing such things; māyā—by the illusory energy of the Lord; raciteñu—manufactured; müòhaù—a fool with no discrimination; pralobhita—aroused by lusty desires; ātmā—such a person; hi—certainly; upabhoga—for sense gratification; buddhyā—with the desire; pataì ga-vat—like the moth; naçyati—is destroyed; nañña—is ruined; dāññiù—whose intelligence.

TRANSLATION

A foolish person with no intelligent discrimination is immediately aroused at the sight of a lusty woman beautifully decorated with golden ornaments, fine clothing and other cosmetic features. Being eager for sense gratification, such a fool loses all intelligence and is destroyed just like the moth who rushes into the blazing fire.

PURPORT

Actually, women have the power to attract men through all of the material senses. Men become lusty by seeing the body of a woman, by smelling her fragrance, by hearing her voice, by tasting her lips and by touching her body. However, the foolish relationship based on material sex attraction begins by seeing, and thus rūpa, or form, is very prominent in the process of ruining one's intelligence. This fact has been exploited in modern times by huge pornography industries, which prey on unfortunate men and women. The example of the foolish moth rushing into the fire and destroying itself is most appropriate in this regard, for one who becomes addicted to the momentary pleasure of sex indulgence certainly loses his power to understand the spiritual reality behind dull matter.

A lusty person becomes blind and foolish through sex indulgence, and his soul is lost in the fire of sense gratification. This whole disaster can be avoided by taking seriously to the process of chanting the holy names of the Lord: Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare. Caitanya Mahāprabhu and His empowered representatives such as Çréla Prabhupāda have created a movement to save people from the dungeon of material life, and we should all seriously take advantage of this opportunity.

TEXT 9

staAekM(staAekM(f as$aeØ" As$aM de"h" Ae vataeRta yaAvataA gA{h" AnaihM" s$a^aaAitaie"ä," va{iÔaM maADauk(r"l%M mauina:

stokaà stokaà grased grāsaà

deho varteta yävatä gāhān ahiāsann ātinōhed vāttiā mādhu-karēā muniū

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

stokam stokam—always, a little bit; graset—one should eat; grāsam—food; dehaū—the material body; varteta—that it may live; yävatä—with that much; gāhān—the householders; ahiāsann—not harassing; ātinōhet—one should practice; vāttim—the occupation; mādhu-karēam—of the honeybee; muniū—a saintly person.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should accept only enough food to keep his body and soul together. He should go from door to door accepting just a little bit of food from each family. Thus he should practice the occupation of the honeybee.

PURPORT

Sometimes a honeybee is attracted by the extraordinary aroma of a particular lotus flower and lingers there, neglecting his usual activity of flying from flower to flower. Unfortunately, at sunset the lotus flower closes, and thus the infatuated honeybee is trapped. Similarly, a sannyāsī or brahmacārī may discover that excellent foodstuff is available at a particular house, and therefore, instead of wandering from place to place, he may become a veritable resident of such a well-fed household. Thus he will become bewildered by the illusion of family life and fall down from the platform of renunciation. Also, if a mendicant takes unfair advantage of the Vedic custom of charity and takes too often from a single family, the resentment he causes will disturb the social order. An ideal sage should, like the honeybee, travel from place to place, but he must be careful not to become a chubby bee by going to many houses and eating sumptuously at each house. According to Ćṛēla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura, such a chubby bee will undoubtedly become entangled in the network of māyā. No one should be overly attached to the gratification of his tongue, because this will lead to an overstuffed belly and then uncontrollable lust. In conclusion, one should not endeavor very much for material sense gratification but should instead endeavor strenuously to spread the glories of the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa. This is the proper use of human energy.

TEXT 10

@NAuByaê mah"à"Yaê zAAñeBya: ku(zAlaAe nar":
s$avaRta: s$Ar"maAd"âAta, pauSpaeBya wva Saq%.pad":

*aëubhyaç ca mahadbhyaç ca çästrebhyaù kuçalo naraù sarvataù säram ädadyät
puñpebhya iva ñaüpadaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aëubhyaù—from the smallest; ca—and; mahadbhyaù—from the greatest; ca—also; çästrebhyaù—from religious scriptures; kuçalaù—intelligent; naraù—a man; sarvataù—from all; säram—the essence; ädadyät—should take; puñpebhyaù—from the flowers; iva—like; ñaüpadaù—the honeybee.

TRANSLATION

Just as the honeybee takes nectar from all flowers, big and small, an intelligent human being should take the essence from all religious scriptures.

PURPORT

In human society the original knowledge is called Veda, and the essential part of veda, or knowledge, is Kāñëa consciousness. As stated in Bhagavad-gētä (15.15), vedaïç ca sarvair aham eva vedyau. From the honeybee, an intelligent human being should learn to take the essence, or nectar, of all knowledge. A honeybee does not waste its time trying to carry away an entire bush or garden, but rather takes the essential nectar. We may thus study the difference between the honeybee and the ass, who carries heavy loads. Education does not mean to become an intellectual ass carrying heavy loads of useless knowledge; rather, one should accept the essential knowledge that leads to an eternal life of bliss and understanding.

At the present time people generally have a sectarian concept of religion, and yet there is no scientific understanding of the Absolute Truth. Such complacent, dogmatic, sectarian religionists can certainly learn something from the example of the honeybee given in this verse.

TEXT 11

s$aAyantanaM istanaM vaA na s$ax.~gA{õ"lta iBai°atama, paAiNAPAaṭaAed"r"AmaṭaAe mai°ake(va na s$aiyḥ"l

*sāyantanaà çvastanaà vā na saì gāhēṭa bhikṣitam pāḍi-pātrodarāmatro
makṣikeva na saì grahe*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sāyantanam—meant for the night; çvastanam—meant for tomorrow; vā—either; na—not; saì gāhēṭa—should accept; bhikṣitam—food in charity; pāḍi—with the hand; pātra—as one's plate; udara—with the belly; amatrau—as the storage container; makṣikā—the bee; iva—like; na—not; saì grahe—a collector.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should not think, "This food I will keep to eat tonight and this other food I can save for tomorrow." In other words, a saintly person should not store foodstuffs acquired by begging. Rather, he should use his own hands as his plate and eat whatever fits on them. His only storage container should be his belly, and whatever conveniently fits into his belly should be his stock of food. Thus one should not imitate the greedy honeybee who eagerly collects more and more honey.

PURPORT

There are two types of honeybees: those who collect nectar from the flowers and those who actually manufacture honey in the beehive. This verse refers to the second class. The greedy honeybee eventually collects so much honey that he is trapped in his hive; and in the same way, a materialistic person becomes trapped under the burden of unnecessary material accumulation. One who is interested in making spiritual progress should avoid such a situation; however, Çrëla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvatë Öhäkura points out that for the purpose of spreading Kåñëa consciousness one may accumulate an unlimited amount of material opulence. This is called yukta-vairägya, or using everything in the service of Kåñëa. A saintly person who is unable to work in Lord Caitanya's mission should practice austerities and collect only what he can hold in his hands and belly. However, one who has given his life to Kåñëa may collect unlimitedly on Lord Kåñëa's behalf. In fact, without acquiring material opulence, how is it possible to spread the Kåñëa consciousness movement all over the world? But if one tries to personally enjoy the funds or facilities acquired for the missionary activities of the Kåñëa consciousness movement, he commits the greatest offense. Therefore, even in the name of Lord Kåñëa, one should collect only what he can immediately engage in practical devotional service; otherwise one will fall down to the platform of ordinary greediness.

TEXT 12

s$aAyantanaM istanaM vaA
na s$ax.~gA{õ"lta iBa^oauk(: mai^oak(A wva s$ax.~gA{õ"na, s$ah" taena ivanazyaita säyantanaà çvastanaà vä na saì gâhëéta bhikñukaù makñikā iva saì gâhëan

saha tena vinaçyati

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

säyantanam—meant for the night; çvastanam—meant for tomorrow; vä—either; na—not; saì gâhëéta—should accept; bhikñukaù—a saintly mendicant; makñikā—honeybee; iva—like; saì gâhëan—collecting; saha—with; tena—that collection; vinaçyati—is destroyed.

TRANSLATION

A saintly mendicant should not even collect foodstuffs to eat later in the same day or the next day. If he disregards this injunction and like the honeybee collects more and more delicious foodstuffs, that which he has collected will indeed ruin him.

PURPORT

Bhramara refers to that honeybee who wanders about from flower to flower, and makñikā is the honeybee who accumulates more and more honey in the beehive with great attachment. A saintly mendicant should be like the bhramara bee because if he imitates the makñikā bee his spiritual consciousness will be ruined. This point is so important that it is repeated in this verse.

TEXT 13

pad"Aipa yauvatal%M iBa^oaur," na s$pa{zAeÚ"Ar"valmaipa s$pa{zAna, k(r"lva baDyaeta k(ir"NyaA @Ëÿs$aËÿta:

*padäpi yuvatéà bhikñur na spâçed dâravém api
spâçan karéva badhyeta
kariëyâ aì ga-saì gataù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

padä—with the foot; api—even; yuvatém—a young girl; bhikñuù—a saintly mendicant; na—not; spâçet—should touch; dâravém—made of wood; api—even; spâçan—touching; karé—the elephant; iva—like; badhyeta—becomes captured; kariëyâù—of the she-elephant; aì ga-saì gataù—by contact with the body.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should never touch a young girl. In fact, he should not even let his foot touch a wooden doll in the shape of a woman. By bodily contact with a woman he will surely be captured by illusion, just as the elephant is captured by the she-elephant due to his desire to touch her body.

PURPORT

Elephants are captured in the jungle in the following way. A large hole is dug and then covered over with grass, leaves, mud and so on. Then a she-elephant is exhibited in front of the male elephant, who chases after her with lusty desire, falls into the hole and is captured. The lesson to be learned from the elephant is that the desire to relish the touch sensation is certainly the cause of ruining one's life. An intelligent person, noting the elephant's great propensity to sport with the she-elephant, will take this excellent example to heart. Therefore, somehow or other one should avoid being cheated by allurements to the sensuous form of woman. One should not allow one's mind to be lost in lusty dreams of sex pleasure. There are various types of sense gratification to be enjoyed between men and women, including speaking, contemplating, touching, sexual intercourse, etc., and all of these constitute the network of illusion by which one is helplessly bound like an animal. Somehow or other one should remain aloof from sense gratification in the form of sex pleasure; otherwise, there is no possibility of understanding the spiritual world.

TEXT 14

naAiDagAcCe$itñyaM 'aAÁa:
k(ihR"icanma{tyaumaAtmana: balaAiDakE(: s$a h"nyaeta gAjaEr"nyaEgARjaAe yaTaA

nādhigacchet striyaṇ prāji aṇ karhicin mātyum ātmanaṇ balādhikaiṇ sa hanyeta gajair anyair gajo yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na adhigacchet—he should not approach to enjoy; striyam—a woman; prāji aṇ—one who can intelligently discriminate; karhicit—at any time; mātyum—death personified; ātmanaṇ—for oneself; bala—in strength; adhikaiṇ—by those who are superior; saṇ—he; hanyeta—will be destroyed; gajaiṇ—by elephants; anyaiṇ—by others; gajaiṇ—an elephant; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

A man possessing intelligent discrimination should not under any circumstances try to exploit the beautiful form of a woman for his sense gratification. Just as an elephant trying to enjoy a she-elephant is killed by other bull elephants also enjoying her company, one trying to enjoy a lady's company can at any moment be killed by her other lovers who are stronger than he.

PURPORT

Just as one is enchanted by the beautiful form of a woman, many other men will also be enchanted, and there is danger that they will be stronger than oneself and may even jealously kill one. Crimes of passion are extremely common. This is another disadvantage of material life.

TEXT 15

na de"yaM naAepaBaAegyaM ca laubDaEyaRä," äü":Kas$aiÂatama, BauÊeÿ tad"ipa ta»aAnyAe maDauhe"vaATaRivanmaDau

na deyaà nopabhogyà ca lubdhair yad duùkha-sai citam bhuì kte tad api tac cānyo madhu-hevārthavin madhu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; deyam—to be given in charity to others; na—not; upabhogyam—to be enjoyed personally; ca—also; lubdhaiù—by those who are greedy; yat—that which; duùkha—with great struggle and pain; sai citam—is accumulated; bhuì kte—he enjoys; tat—that; api—nevertheless; tat—that; ca—also; anyaù—someone else; madhu-hä—the one who steals the honey from the beehive; iva—like; artha—wealth; vit—one who knows how to recognize; madhu—the honey.

TRANSLATION

A greedy person accumulates a large quantity of money with great struggle and pain, but the person who has struggled so much to acquire this wealth is not always allowed to enjoy it himself or give it in charity to others. The greedy man is like the bee who struggles to produce a large quantity of honey, which is then stolen by a man who will enjoy it personally or sell it to others. No matter how carefully one hides his hard-earned wealth or tries to protect it, there are those who are expert in detecting the whereabouts of valuable things, and they will steal it.

PURPORT

One may argue that a wealthy man may conceal his money so expertly, by investing it in banks, stocks, properties, and so on, that there is no danger of theft. Only foolish people actually hide money by burying it in the ground or placing it under a mattress. But despite the fact that the majority of the world's wealth has been accumulated in highly developed capitalistic countries, these countries are being severely challenged by many enemies who threaten at any moment to overrun the capitalists and steal their wealth. Similarly, we often find that the children of wealthy people are kidnapped, and then their parents must pay huge ransoms. Sometimes the parents themselves may also be kidnapped. Furthermore, there are so-called investment counselors who are expert in stealing the money of rich people; and in the modern age governments have also become expert in stealing money by taxation. Thus, the word artha-vit indicates one who by hook or by crook is expert in stealing the hard-earned wealth of other people. The bees work frantically to produce honey, but they will not enjoy their honey. As Lord Kāñëa states, mātyuù sarva-haraç cāham: "I will come as death personified and steal everything." (Bg. 10.34) Somehow or other one's hard-earned material opulence will be stolen, and therefore, as mentioned in this verse, one should not work uselessly like the foolish honeybee.

TEXT 16

s$auäu":KaAepaAijaR#taEivaRÔaEr," @AzAAs$aAnaAM gA{h"AizASa: maDauhe"vaAfataAe BauÊeÿ yaitavaE= gA{h"maeiDanaAma, su-duùkhopärjitair vittair äçäsänäà gâhâçîñau

madhu-hevägrato bhuì kte yatir vai gâha-medhinäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

su-duùkha—with great struggle; upärjitaiù—that which is acquired; vittaiù—material opulence; äçäsänäm—of those fervently desiring; gâha—related to domestic enjoyment; äçîñau—blessings; madhu-hä—the person who steals honey from the bees; iva—like; agrataù—first, before others; bhuì kte—enjoys; yatiù—a saintly mendicant; vai—certainly; gâha-medhinäm—of those dedicated to material family life.

TRANSLATION

Just as a hunter takes away the honey laboriously produced by the honeybees, similarly, saintly mendicants such as brahmacärés and sannyäsés are entitled to enjoy the property painstakingly accumulated by householders dedicated to family enjoyment.

PURPORT

The scriptures state, "Saintly mendicants in the sannyäsa order of life and brahmacärés have first right to enjoy the sumptuous foodstuffs produced by the householders. If the householders enjoy such foodstuffs without first offering them in charity to the mendicants, such neglectful householders must undergo the lunar fast called cändräyaëam." In family life one must overcome the natural tendency toward selfishness by giving abundant charity. Modern society foolishly does not observe such Vedic injunctions, and as a result the world has become overrun by envious gâha-medhés, or persons wholly and solely dedicated to personal gratification in family life. Therefore, the whole world is seized in an uncontrollable spasm of violence and suffering. If one wants to live peacefully one must follow the Vedic injunctions regulating family life. Although the householders work very hard to accumulate money, the saintly sannyäsés and brahmacärés have the right to first enjoy the fruits of such labor. The conclusion is that one should give first priority to spiritual advancement in Kåñëa consciousness and thus perfect one's life. Then even without personal endeavor, one will be supplied all of one's necessities by the mercy of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 17

faAmyagAltaM na Za{NAuyaAä," yaitavaRnacar":,(icata, izA°aeta h"ir"NAAß"Ü"Ana, ma{gAyaAegAl=tamaAeih"taAta, grāmya-gētaà na çāëuyäd yatir vana-caraù kvacit çikñeta hariëäd baddhän māgayor gēta-mohitāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

grāmya—relating to sense gratification; gētam—songs; na—not; çāëuyät—he should hear; yatiù—a saintly mendicant; vana—in the forest; caraù—moving; kvacit—ever; çikñeta—one should learn; hariëät—from the deer; baddhät—bound up; māgayoü—of the hunter; gēta—by the song; mohitāt—bewildered.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person dwelling in the forest in the renounced order of life should never listen to songs or music promoting material enjoyment. Rather, a saintly person should carefully study the example of the deer, who is bewildered by the sweet music of the hunter's horn and is thus captured and killed.

PURPORT

If one becomes attached to the sense gratification of materialistic music and songs, one will develop all the features of material entanglement. One should hear Bhagavad-gétä, or the song sung by the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 18

na{tyavaAid"ḥagAltaAina jauSana, faAmyaAiNA yaAeiSataAma, @As$aAM ,(Lx"nak(Ae vazya [%SyaZa{"ËÿAe ma{gAls$auta:

nātya-vāditra-gétāni
juñan grāmyäëi yoñitām
äsäà kréòanako vaçya
ân̐yaçaì go mágé-sutaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nātya—dancing; vāditra—musical performance; gétāni—songs;
juñan—cultivating; grāmyāni—related to sense gratification; yoñitām—of women; äsām—of them; kréòanakaù—a plaything; vaçyaù—fully controlled;
ân̐ya-çaì gaù—the sage Âñyaçaì ga; mágé-sutaù—son of Mágé

TRANSLATION

Becoming attracted to the worldly singing, dancing and musical entertainment of beautiful women, even the great sage Âñyaçaì ga, the son of Mágé, fell totally under their control, just like a pet animal.

PURPORT

Âñyaçaì ga, the young son of the sage Mágé, was intentionally brought up by his father in an atmosphere of complete innocence. Mágé Âñi thought that if his son were never exposed to the sight of women he would always remain a perfect brahmacäre. But by chance the inhabitants of the neighboring kingdom, who were suffering from a long-term drought, received divine advice that rain would return to their kingdom only after the brāhmaëa named Āñyaçai ga stepped foot in it. Therefore they sent beautiful women to the hermitage of Mâgé to entice Āñyaçai ga and bring him back with them. Since Āñyaçai ga had never even heard about women, he easily fell for their trap.

The name Āñyaçai ga indicates that the young sage was born with a deerlike horn growing out of his forehead. If like the deer a āñi becomes attracted to sweet musical sounds promising sense gratification, then like the deer he is quickly vanquished. A thoughtful person should humbly take instruction from the deer, who is doomed by attraction to musical sense gratification.

TEXT 19

ijaù"yaAita'amaAiTanyaA janaAe r"s$aiivamaAeih"ta:
ma{tyauma{cC$tyas$aä,"bauiÜ"r," malnastau baix"zAEyaRTaA

jihvayāti-pramāthinyā jano rasa-vimohitaù mātyum ācchaty asad-buddhir mēnas tu baòïçair yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jihvayā—by the tongue; ati-pramāthinyā—which is extremely disturbing; janaù—a person; rasa-vimohitaù—bewildered by attraction to taste; mātyum—death; ācchatī—achieves; asad—useless; buddhiù—whose intelligence; mēnaù—the fish; tu—indeed; baòïçaiù—by the hooks; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

Just as a fish, incited by the desire to enjoy his tongue, is fatally trapped on the fisherman's hook, similarly, a foolish person is bewildered by the extremely disturbing urges of the tongue and thus is ruined.

PURPORT

The fisherman places meaty bait on a sharp hook and easily attracts the unintelligent fish, who is greedy to enjoy its tongue. Similarly, people are mad after gratifying their tongues and lose all discrimination in their eating habits. For momentary gratification they construct huge slaughterhouses and kill millions of innocent creatures, and by inflicting such atrocious suffering they prepare a ghastly future for themselves. But even if one eats only the foods authorized in the Vedas, there is still danger. One may eat too sumptuously and then the artificially stuffed belly will create pressure on the sexual organs. Thus one will fall down into the lower modes of nature and commit sinful activities that lead to the death of one's spiritual life. From the fish one should carefully learn the real dangers involved in gratifying the tongue.

TEXT 20

win%o"yaAiNA jayantyaAzAu inar"Ah"Ar"A manaliSaNA: vajaRiyatvaA tau r"s$anaM tai^aar"^aasya vaDaRtae

*indriyāëi jayanty āçu nirāhārā manēñiēaù
varjayitvā tu rasanaà
tan nirannasya vardhate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indriyāëi—the material senses; jayanti—they conquer; āçu—quickly; nirāhārāù—those who restrain the senses from their objects;

manēñiēaù—the learned; varjayitvā—except for; tu—however; rasanam—the tongue; tat—its desire; nirannasya—for one who is fasting; vardhate—increases.

TRANSLATION

By fasting, learned men quickly bring all of the senses except the tongue under control, because by abstaining from eating such men are afflicted with an increased desire to gratify the sense of taste.

PURPORT

In South America there is a saying that when the belly is full the heart is content. Thus, one who is eating sumptuously is jolly, and if one is deprived of proper food one's appetite becomes even more voracious. An intelligent person, however, does not fall under the control of the tongue, but rather tries to make progress in Kāñēa consciousness. By accepting the remnants of food offered to the Lord (prasādam), one gradually purifies the heart and automatically becomes simple and austere.

In this connection, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura states that the business of the tongue is to gratify itself with the varieties of flavor, but by wandering in the twelve holy forests of Vraja-maēðala (Vāndāvana), one can be freed from the twelve flavors of material sense gratification. The five principal divisions of material relationships are neutral admiration, servitude, friendship, parental affection and conjugal love; the seven subordinate features of material relationships are material humor, astonishment, chivalry, compassion, anger, dread and ghastliness. Originally, these twelve rasas, or flavors of relationships, are exchanged between the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the living entity in the spiritual world; and by wandering in the twelve forests of Vāndāvana one can respiritualize the twelve flavors of personal existence. Thus one will become a liberated soul, free from all material desires. If one artificially tries to give up sense gratification, especially that of the tongue, the attempt will be a failure, and in fact one's desire for sense gratification will increase as a result of artificial deprivation. Only by experiencing real, spiritual pleasure in relationship with Kāñëa can one give up material desires.

TEXT 21

taAvaiÀataein%o"yaAe na syaAä," ivaijataAnyaein%o"ya: paumaAna, na jayae%o"s$anaM yaAvaja, ijataM s$ava< ijatae r"s$ae

*tāvaj jitendriyo na syād vijitānyendriyaù pumān na jayed rasanaà yāvaj
jitaà sarvaà jite rase*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tāvat—still; jita-indriyaù—one who has conquered the senses; na—not; syāt—can be; vijita-anyā-indriyaù—one who has conquered all of the other senses; pumān—a human being; na jayet—cannot conquer; rasanam—the tongue; yāvat—as long as; jitam—conquered; sarvam—everything; jite—when conquered; rase—the tongue.

TRANSLATION

Although one may conquer all of the other senses, as long as the tongue is not conquered it cannot be said that one has controlled his senses. However, if one is able to control the tongue, then one is understood to be in full control of all the senses.

PURPORT

By eating, one gives energy and activity to all of the senses, and thus if the tongue is uncontrolled all of the senses will be dragged down to the material platform of existence. Therefore, by all means one must control the tongue. If one fasts, then all of the other senses become weak and lose their potency. The tongue, however, becomes more greedy to taste delicious preparations, and when one finally indulges the tongue, all of the senses quickly go out of control. Therefore, Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhākura advises that one accept mahā-prasādam, or the remnants of the Lord's food, in a moderate proportion. Since the tongue's function is also to vibrate, one should vibrate the glorious holy name of the Supreme Lord and taste the ecstasy of pure Kāñëa consciousness. As stated in Bhagavad-gétä, rasa-varjaà raso 'py asya paraà dāñövä nivartate: [Bg. 2.59] only by the higher taste of Kāñëa consciousness can one give up the deadly lower taste that keeps one imprisoned in material bondage.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura states that as long as one's intelligence is materially covered, one cannot understand the pleasure of Kāñëa consciousness. Trying to enjoy without Kāñëa, the living entity leaves the abode of the Supreme Lord, called Vrajabhümi, and comes down into the material world, where he quickly loses control of his senses. One becomes particularly victimized by the tongue, belly and genitals, which exert intolerable pressure on the conditioned soul. These desires subside, however, when one reestablishes one's blissful relationship with the Lord, who is actually the reservoir of all pleasure. One who is attached to the taste of Kāñëa consciousness automatically follows all of the rules and regulations of religious life due to spontaneous attraction to viçuddha-sattva, or the mode of pure goodness. Without such spontaneous attraction, one is certainly bewildered by the pushing of the material senses.

Even the beginning stage of devotional service, called sādhana-bhakti (regulatory practice), is so powerful that it brings one to the platform of anartha-nivātti, where one becomes free from unwanted sinful habits and gains relief from the pressure of the tongue, belly and genitals. Thus one is delivered from the bondage of material addiction and can no longer be cheated by the allurements of the material energy. As it is said, all that glitters is not gold. In this regard Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura recommends that we consider the following song written by his father, Çréla Bhaktivinoda Öhākura:

çaréra avidyā-jāl, jaòendriya tāhe kāl jéve phele viñaya-sāgare tā'ra madhye jihvā ati-, lobhamay sudurmati, tā'ke jetā kaōhina saāsāre kāñëa baòa dayāmay, karibāre jihvā jay, sva-prasādānna dila bhāi sei annāmāta pāo, rādhā-kāñëa-guëa gāo, preme òāko caitanya-nitāi

"O Lord, this material body is a lump of ignorance, and the senses are a network of paths to death. Somehow, we have fallen into this ocean of material sense enjoyment, and of all the senses the tongue is most voracious and uncontrollable; it is very difficult to conquer the tongue in this world. But You, dear Kāñëa, are very kind to us and have given us such nice prasādam, just to control the tongue. Now we take this prasādam to our full satisfaction and glorify Their Lordships Çré Çré Rādhā-Kāñëa, and in love call for the help of Lord Caitanya and Lord Nityānanda."

TEXT 22

ipaĒyīlaA naAma vaezyaAs$alā," ivade"h"nagAre" paur"A tasyaA mae izAi^oataM ik(iĀana, inabaAeDa na{panand"na

*piṁ galā nāma veçyāséd videha-nagare purā
tasyā me çikñītaà kīi cin nibodha nāpa-nandana*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

piṁ galā nāma—of the name Piṁ galā; veçyā—a prostitute; āsét—there was; videha-nagare—in the city named Videha; purā—in the past; tasyāu—from her; me—by me; çikiitaà—what was learned; kii cit—something; nibodha—now you learn; nāpa-nandana—O son of kings.

TRANSLATION

O son of kings, previously in the city of Videha there dwelled a prostitute named Piṇ galā. Now please hear what I have learned from that lady.

TEXT 23

s$āA svaEir"Nyaek(d"A k(AntaM
s$āÆeÿta opanaeSyatal @BaUtk(Alae baih"ã"AR&#re"
iba"atal è&pamauÔamama,

sā svairiëy ekadā kāntaà saṇ keta upaneñyatē
abhūt kāle bahir dvāre
bibhratē rūpam uttamam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sā—she; svairiëy—the prostitute; ekadā—once; kāntam—a paying lover or a customer; saṇ keta—into her house of sex; upaneñyatē—to bring; abhūt—she stood; kāle—at night; bahiù—outside; dvāre—in the doorway; bibhratē—holding up; rūpam—her form; uttamam—most beautiful.

TRANSLATION

Once that prostitute, desiring to bring a lover into her house, stood outside in the doorway at night showing her beautiful form.

TEXT 24

maAgAR @AgAcC$taAe val^oya

pauç&SaAna, pauç&SaSaRBa taAna, zAulk(d"Ana, ivaÔavata:
k(AntaAnmaenae'TaRk(Amauk(L

mārga āgacchato vēkñya
puruññān puruññāñabha
tān çulka-dān vittavataù kāntān mene 'rtha-kāmuké

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mārga—in that street; āgacchataù—those who were coming; vēkñya—seeing;
puruññān—men; puruñña-āñabha—O best among men; tān—them;
çulka-dān—who could pay the price; vitta-vataù—possessing money;
kāntān—lovers or customers; mene—she considered;
artha-kāmuké—desiring money.

TRANSLATION

O best among men, this prostitute was very anxious to get money, and as she stood on the street at night she studied all the men who were passing by, thinking, "Oh, this one surely has money. I know he can pay the price, and I am sure he would enjoy my company very much." Thus she thought about all the men on the street.

TEXTS 25-26

@AgAtaeSvapayaAtaeSau
s$SaA s$Sa/ÆeÿtaAepajalivanal @pyanyaAe ivaÔavaAna, k(Ae'ipa maAmaupaESyaita BaUir"d":

WvaM äu"r"AzAyaA Dvastaina%"A ã"AyaRvalambatal inagARcC$ntal 'aivazAtal

inazAITaM s$amapaâta

*agateñv apayäteñu
sā saī ketopajéviné
apy anyo vittavān ko 'pi mām upaiñyati bhūri-daū evaà durāçayā dhvasta-
nidrā dvāry avalambatē nirgacchantē praviçatē niçēthaà samapadyata*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agateñu—when they came; apayäteñu—and they went; sā—she; saī keta-upajéviné—she whose only income was from prostitution; api—maybe; anyaū—another one; vitta-vān—who has money; kaū api—someone; mām—me; upaiñyati—will approach for love; bhūri-daū—and he will give lots of money; evam—thus; durāçayā—with vain hope; dhvasta—spoiled; nidrā—her sleep; dvāri—in the doorway; avalambatē—hanging on; nirgacchantē—going out toward the street; praviçatē—going back into her house; niçētham—midnight; samapadyata—arrived.

TRANSLATION

As the prostitute Piī galā stood in the doorway, many men came and went, walking by her house. Her only means of sustenance was prostitution, and therefore she anxiously thought, "Maybe this one who is coming now is very rich...Oh, he is not stopping, but I am sure someone else will come. Surely this man who is coming now will want to pay me for my love, and he will probably give lots of money." Thus, with vain hope, she remained leaning against the doorway, unable to finish her business and go to sleep. Out of anxiety she would sometimes walk out toward the street, and sometimes she went back into her house. In this way, the midnight hour gradually arrived.

TEXT 27

tasyaA ivaÔaAzAyaA zAuSyaä,"- vafṭaAyaA d"lnacaetas$a:
inavaeRd": par"maAe jaÁae icantaAhe"tau: s$auKaAvah":

*tasyā vittāçayā çuñyadvaktrāyā déna-cetasaù nirvedaù paramo jaji'e
cintā-hetuù sukhāvahaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasyäù—of her; vitta—for money; äçayä—by the desire; çuñyat—dried up; vaktrāyäù—her face; dēna—morose; cetasaù—her mind;
nirvedaù—detachment; paramaù—very great; jaji'e—awakened;
cintä—anxiety; hetuù—because of; sukha—happiness; ävahaù—bringing.

TRANSLATION

As the night wore on, the prostitute, who intensely desired money, gradually became morose, and her face dried up. Thus being filled with anxiety for money and most disappointed, she began to feel a great detachment from her situation, and happiness arose in her mind.

PURPORT

It appears from these verses that on this particular night the prostitute Piì galä was not at all successful in attracting customers to her house. Being completely frustrated and disappointed, she gradually became indifferent to her situation. Thus, great suffering sometimes leads one to the path of enlightenment; or, according to a Sanskrit proverb, disappointment gives rise to the greatest satisfaction.

The prostitute had dedicated her life to satisfying the lusty desires of many men. Engaging her mind, body and words in the service of paying lovers, she completely forgot the devotional service of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and thus her mind was most unsteady and disturbed. Finally, being completely frustrated, her face and throat drying up, she began to feel indifferent to her situation, and happiness arose in her mind.

TEXT 28

tasyaA inaivaRNNAicaÔaAyaA gAltaM Za{NAu yaTaA mama inavaeRd" @AzAApaAzAAnaAM pauç&Sasya yaTaA ÷is$a:

*tasyä nirviëëa-cittäyä gétaà çäëu yathä mama nirveda äçä-päçänäà
puruñasya yathä hy asiù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasyäù—of her; nirviëëa—disgusted; cittäyäù—whose mind; gétam—song; çäëu—please hear; yathä—as it is; mama—from me; nirvedaù—detachment; äçä—of hopes and yearnings; päçänäm—of the binding network; puruñasya—of a person; yathä—just as; hi—certainly; asiù—the sword.

TRANSLATION

The prostitute felt disgusted with her material situation and thus became indifferent to it. Indeed, detachment acts like a sword, cutting to pieces the binding network of material hopes and desires. Now please hear from me the song sung by the prostitute in that situation.

PURPORT

The network of material desires is created when one falsely thinks that he can establish himself permanently in the material world. This binding network should be cut by the sword of detachment; otherwise one will be forced to wander in the illusory network of māyā with no understanding of liberated life on the spiritual platform.

TEXT 29

na ÷ËÿAjaAtainavaeRd"Ae de"h"banDaM ijah"As$aita yaTaA ivaÁaAnar"ih"taAe manaujaAe mamataAM na{pa

*na hy aì gājāta-nirvedo deha-bandhaà jihāsati yathā vijī āna-rahito
manujo mamatāà nāpa*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—does not; hi—certainly; aì ga—O King; ajāta—who has not developed; nirvedaù—detachment; deha—of the material body; bandham—bondage; jihāsati—he desires to give up; yathā—just as; vijī āna—realized knowledge; rahitaù—bereft of; manujaù—a human being; mamatām—false sense of proprietorship; nāpa—O King.

TRANSLATION

O King, just as a human being who is bereft of spiritual knowledge never desires to give up his false sense of proprietorship over many material things, similarly, a person who has not developed detachment never desires to give up the bondage of the material body.

TEXT 30

ipaĒyāAevaAca
@h"Ae mae maAeh"ivataitaM pazyataAivaijataAtmana:
yaA k(AntaAd"s$ata: k(AmaM k(Amayae yaena baAilazAA

piṇ galovāca
aho me moha-vitatiā
paçyatāvijitātmanaù
yā kāntād asataù kāmaā
kāmaye yena bāliçā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

piṇ galā—Piṇ galā; uvāca—said; aho—oh; me—my; moha—of illusion; vitati—expansion; paçyata—just see, everyone; avijita-ātmanaù—of one whose mind is not controlled; yā—which person (me); kāntāt—from a lover; asataù—useless, insignificant; kāmam—lusty pleasure; kāmaye—I desire; yena—because; bāliçā—I am a fool.

TRANSLATION

The prostitute Piṇ galā said: Just see how greatly illusioned I am ! Because I cannot control my mind, just like a fool I desire lusty pleasure from an insignificant man.

PURPORT

In material existence all of the senses are attracted by different objects, and thus the conditioned soul becomes a first-class fool. The cause of material life is one's indifference to the Absolute Truth. The conditioned soul considers himself to be the lord and enjoyer of the material world and considers the purpose of life to be sense gratification. The more one tries to enjoy the material world, the more one's illusion increases.

It appears from this verse that the prostitute Piṇ galā was not only earning her livelihood through prostitution, but was actually enjoying her illicit contact with innumerable men. The words kāntād asataù indicate that she was freely selling herself without discrimination to the most ordinary and useless men, considering them to be "lovers." Thus she says, "I was a great fool." The word bāliṇā means "one who has a childish mentality, without practical experience of right and wrong."

TEXT 31

s$antaM s$amalpae r"maNAM r"ita'adM" ivaÔa'adM" inatyaimamaM ivah"Aya @k(AmadM" äu":KaBayaAiDazAAek(- maAeh"'adM" taucC$mahM" Bajae'ÁaA santaà samépe ramaëaà rati-pradaà vitta-pradaà nityam imaà vihäya akäma-daà duùkha-bhayädhi-çokamoha-pradaà tuccham ahaà bhaje 'ji ä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

santam—being; samépe—most near (in my heart); ramaëam—the most dear; rati—actual love or pleasure; pradam—giving; vitta—prosperity; pradam—giving; nityam—eternal; imam—Him; vihäya—giving up; akäma-dam—who can never satisfy one's desires; duùkha—misery; bhaya—fear; ädhi—mental distress; çoka—lamentation; moha—illusion; pradam—giving; tuccham—most insignificant; aham—I; bhaje—serve; aji ä—an ignorant fool.

TRANSLATION

I am such a fool that I have given up the service of that person who, being eternally situated within my heart, is actually most dear to me. That most dear one is the Lord of the universe, who is the bestower of real love and happiness and the source of all prosperity. Although He is in my own heart, I have completely neglected Him. Instead I have ignorantly served insignificant men who can never satisfy my real desires and who have simply brought me unhappiness, fear, anxiety, lamentation and illusion.

PURPORT

Piṇ galā laments that she chose to serve most sinful, useless men. She falsely thought they would bring her happiness and neglected to serve the actual Lord of the heart, Kāñēa. She could understand how foolishly she had struggled for money, not knowing that the Supreme Lord is always inclined to award prosperity to His sincere devotee. The prostitute was proud of her ability to please men, but she now laments that she did not try to please the Supreme Lord by loving service. The Supreme Lord is completely aloof from the transactions of the material world. Lord Kāñēa is the actual enjoyer of everyone and everything, but one must learn how to please the Lord by pure spiritual service.

TEXT 32

@h"Ae mayaAtmaA pair"taAipataAe va{TaA
s$AAEeÿtyava{ÔyaAitaivagA÷RvaAtaRyaA ñENAA^aar"AâATaRta{SaAe'nauzAAecyaAta, ,(Ltaena ivaÔaM r"itamaAtmanaecC$taI

aho mayātmā paritāpito vāthā sāi ketya-vāṭṭyāti-vigarhya-vārtayā straiēān narād yārtha-tāño 'nuçocyāt krétena vittaà ratim ātmanecchatē

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aho—oh; mayā—by me; ātmā—the soul; paritāpita—subjected to great pain; vāthā—uselessly; sāi ketya—of a prostitute; vāṭṭyā—by the occupation;

ati-vigarhya—most reprehensible; vārtayā—occupation; straiëät—from lusty woman-hunters; narät—from men; yā—who (me); artha-tāñau—from the greedy; anuçocyät—the pitiable; krétena—with that which was sold; vittam—money; ratim—sex pleasure; ätmanā—with my body; icchatë—desiring.

TRANSLATION

Oh, how I have uselessly tortured my own soul! I have sold my body to lusty, greedy men who are themselves objects of pity. Thus practicing the most abominable profession of a prostitute, I hoped to get money and sex pleasure.

PURPORT

The art of prostitution is based on awakening the enjoying propensity in men. Apparently this prostitute was so foolish that she maintained a romantic conception of her profession and was actually trying to enjoy loving affairs with her customers, not realizing that they were the lowest of men with the most abominable motives. Like the prostitute Piñ galä, one should understand that by giving up the devotional service of the Lord one simply becomes a victim of the illusory energy and suffers greatly.

TEXT 33

yad"iTaiBainaRimaRtavaMzAvaMsya-sTaUNAM tvacaA r"AemanaKaE: ipanaÜ"ma, °ar"avaã"Ar"magAAr"maetaä," ivaNmaUṭapaUNA< maäu"paEita k(AnyA

yad asthibhir nirmita-vaṇṇa-vaṇṇasyasthüëaà tvacā roma-nakhaiù pinaddham kñaran-nava-dväram agāram etad vië-mütra-pürëaà mad upaiti känyä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yat—which; asthibhiù—with bones; nirmita—constructed; vaàça—the spine; vaàçya—the ribs; sthüëam—the bones in the hands and legs; tvacä—by skin; roma-nakhaiù—by hair and nails; pinaddham—covered; kñarat—oozing; nava—nine; dväram—doors; agäram—house; etat—this; viù—stool; mütra—urine; pürëam—full of; mat—besides me; upaiti—devotes oneself to; kä—what woman; anyä—other.

TRANSLATION

This material body is like a house in which I, the soul, am living. The bones forming my spine, ribs, arms and legs are like the beams, crossbeams and pillars of the house, and the whole structure, which is full of stool and urine, is covered by skin, hair and nails. The nine doors leading into this body are constantly excreting foul substances. Besides me, what woman could be so foolish as to devote herself to this material body, thinking that she might find pleasure and love in this contraption?

PURPORT

The nine doors leading into and out of the body are the two eyes, the two nostrils, the mouth, the two ears, the genital and the anus. Vaàça, or "spine," also means "bamboo," and indeed the skeleton appears to resemble a bamboo construction. Just as bamboo can be immediately burned to ashes or chopped into pieces, similarly, the material body, which is constantly deteriorating, may at any moment be crushed into powder, cut into pieces, drowned, burned, suffocated, and so on. Eventually the body must disintegrate, and therefore there is certainly no one as unfortunate as one who has dedicated himself heart and soul to this flimsy body, which is filled with unpleasant elements.

TEXT 34

ivade" h" AnaAM paure" ÷isma^aa, @h"maekE(va maUX#Dal:
yaAnyaimacC$ntyas$atyasmaAä," @Atmad" Atk(AmamacyautaAta,

videhänäà pure hy asminn aham ekaiva müòha-dhéù yānyam icchanty asaty asmäd ātma-dāt kāmam acyutāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

videhänäm—of the residents of Videha; pure—in the city; hi—certainly; asmin—this; aham—I; ekā—alone; eva—undoubtedly; müòha—fool; dhéù—whose intelligence; yā—(I am that one) who; anyam—another; icchanté—desiring; asaté—being most unchaste; asmät—other than Him; ātma-dāt—who awards us our real, spiritual form; kāmam—sense gratification; acyutāt—the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Acyuta.

TRANSLATION

Certainly in this city of Videha I alone am completely foolish. I neglected the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who awards us everything, even our original spiritual form, and instead I desired to enjoy sense gratification with many men.

TEXT 35

s$auô$t'aei"tamaAe naATa @AtmaA caAyaM zAr"lir"NAAma, taM iva,(LyaAtmanaEvaAhM"
r"mae'naena yaTaA r"maA

suhât preñôhatamo nātha ātmā cāyaà çarériëām

taà vikréyätmanaivähaà rame 'nena yathä ramä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

su-hât—well-wishing friend; preñöha-tamaù—absolutely the most dear one; näthaù—Lord; ätmä—soul; ca—also; ayam—He; çarériëäm—of all embodied beings; tam—Him; vikréya—purchasing; ätmanä—by surrendering myself; eva—certainly; aham—I; rame—will enjoy; anena—with the Lord; yathä—just like; ramä—Lakīmédevé.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is absolutely the most dear one for all living beings because He is everyone's well-wisher and Lord. He is the Supreme Soul situated in everyone's heart. Therefore I will now pay the price of complete surrender, and thus purchasing the Lord I will enjoy with Him just like Lakīmédevé.

PURPORT

The real friend of all conditioned souls is the Supreme Lord, and only He can award the highest perfection in life. By following the example of Lakīmédevé, who always remains at the lotus feet of the Lord, one will certainly obtain eternal happiness. One should make the best use of the material body, which is a bad bargain, and surrender one's body, mind and words to the Lord. Paying such a price, one can purchase the Lord, who is everyone's dearest well-wisher. Thus one's ancient propensity for sense gratification will automatically be controlled.

TEXT 36

ik(yait'ayaM tae vyaBajana, k(AmaA yae k(Adam"A nar"A: @AântavantaAe BaAyaARyaA

de"vaA vaA k(Alaivaâu"taA:

*kiyat priyaà te vyabhajan kämä ye käma-dä naräù ädy-antavanto bhäryäyā
devä vä käla-vidrutäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kiyat—how much; priyam—actual happiness; te—they; vyabhajan—have provided; kämäù—sense gratification; ye—and those; käma-däù—who give sense gratification; naräù—men; ädi—a beginning; anta—and an end; vantaù—having; bhäryäyäu—of a wife; deväu—the demigods; vä—or; käla—by time; vidrutäù—separated and thus disturbed.

TRANSLATION

Men provide sense gratification for women, but all these men, and even the demigods in heaven, have a beginning and an end. They are all temporary creations who will be dragged away by time. Therefore how much actual pleasure or happiness could any of them ever give to their wives?

PURPORT

In this material world everyone is basically pursuing his personal sense gratification, and thus everyone is being ruined by the influence of time. On the material platform no one actually helps anyone else. So-called material love is simply a cheating process, as the lady Più galä is now discovering.

TEXT 37

naUnaM mae BagAvaAna, 'altaAe ivaSNAu: ke(naAipa k(maRNAA inavaeRd"Ae'yaM äü"r"AzAAyaA yanmae jaAta: s$auKaAvah":

*nünaà me bhagavän préto viñëuù kenäpi karmaëä nirvedo 'yaà duräçäyä
yan me jätaù sukhävahaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nünam—undoubtedly; me—with me; bhagavän—the Supreme Lord; prétaù—is pleased; viñëuù—the Personality of Godhead; kena api—by some; karmaëä—activity; nirvedaù—detachment from sense gratification; ayam—this; duräçäyäu—in one who so stubbornly hoped for material enjoyment; yat—because; me—in me; jätaù—it has arisen; sukha—happiness; ävahaù—bringing.

TRANSLATION

Although I most stubbornly hoped to enjoy the material world, somehow or other detachment has arisen in my heart, and it is making me very happy. Therefore the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, must be pleased with me. Without even knowing it, I must have performed some activity satisfying to Him.

TEXT 38

maEvaM syaumaRnd"BaAgyaAyaA:
flaezAA inavaeRd"he"tava:
yaenaAnaubanDaM inaôR$tya pauç&Sa: zAmama{cC$ita

*maivaà syur manda-bhägyäyäu kleçä nirveda-hetavaù yenänubandhaà nirhätya
puruñaù çamam âcchati*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mā—not; evam—thus; syuù—they could be; manda-bhāgyäyāù—of a woman who is truly unfortunate; kleṣāù—miseries; nirveda—of detachment; hetavaù—the causes; yena—by which detachment; anubandham—the bondage; nirhātya—removing; puruṇaù—a person; ṣamam—real peace; ācchati—obtains.

TRANSLATION

A person who has developed detachment can give up the bondage of material society, friendship and love, and a person who undergoes great suffering gradually becomes, out of hopelessness, detached and indifferent to the material world. Thus, due to my great suffering, such detachment awoke in my heart; yet how could I have undergone such merciful suffering if I were actually unfortunate? Therefore, I am in fact fortunate and have received the mercy of the Lord. He must somehow or other be pleased with me.

TEXT 39

taenaAepak{(tamaAd"Aya izAr"s$aA faAmyas$aĒytaA: tyaftvaA äu"r"AzAA: zAr"NAM ~ajaAima tamaDalir"ma,

tenopakātam ādāya
ṣīrasā grāmya-saī gatāù tyaktvā durāçāù çaraēaà vrajāmi tam adhēçvaram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tena—by Him (the Lord); upakātam—the great help rendered; ādāya—accepting; ṣīrasā—upon my head, with devotion; grāmya—ordinary sense gratification; saṁgatāu—related to; tyaktvā—giving up; durāçäù—sinful desires; çaraëam—for shelter; vrajāmi—I am now coming; tam—to Him; adhéçvaram—the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TRANSLATION

With devotion I accept the great benefit that the Lord has bestowed upon me. Having given up my sinful desires for ordinary sense gratification, I now take shelter of Him, the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 40

s$antauí"A ™aÚ"Datyaetaä," yaTaAlaABaena jalvatal ivah"r"AmyamaunaEvaAh"ma, @AtmanaA r"maNAena vaE

*santuñöä çraddadhaty etad yathä-läbhena jévaté viharämy amunaiväham
ätmanä ramaëena vai*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

santuñöä—completely satisfied; çraddadhaté—now having complete faith; etat—in the Lord's mercy; yathä-läbhena—with whatever comes of its own accord; jévaté—living; viharämi—I will enjoy life; amunä—with that one; eva—only; aham—I; ätmanä—with the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ramaëena—who is the real source of love and happiness; vai—there is no doubt about it.

TRANSLATION

I am now completely satisfied, and I have full faith in the Lord's mercy. Therefore I will maintain myself with whatever comes of its own accord. I shall enjoy life with only the Lord, because He is the real source of love and happiness.

TEXT 41

s$aMs$aAr"kU(pae paitataM ivaSayaEmauRiSatae°aNAmā, fāstaM k(AlaAih"naAtmaAnaM k(Ae'nyañAtaumaDalir":

*saàsāra-küpe patitaà
viñayair muñitekñāëam
grastaà kālāhinātmānaà
ko 'nyas trātum adhēçvaraù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saàsāra—material existence; küpe—in the dark well; patitam—fallen; viñayaiù—by sense gratification; muñita—stolen away; ekñāëam—vision; grastam—seized; kāla—of time; ahinā—by the serpent; ātmānam—the living entity; kaù—who; anyaù—else; trātum—is capable of delivering; adhēçvaraù—the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TRANSLATION

The intelligence of the living entity is stolen away by activities of sense gratification, and thus he falls into the dark well of material existence. Within that well he is then seized by the deadly serpent of time. Who else but the Supreme Personality of Godhead could save the poor living entity from such a hopeless condition?

PURPORT

Più galā stated in a previous verse that even the demigods are unable to give actual happiness to a woman. One may question who has authorized this lady to reject even such exalted personalities as Brahmā, Çiva and the other demigods. The answer given here is that if one actually wants to solve all the problems of life and go back home, back to Godhead, then the only solution is to take shelter of the lotus feet of the Lord. It is well known that the demigods themselves are subject to birth and death. As stated by Lord Çiva himself, mukti-pradātā sarveṇā viñēur eva na saṅṅayaù: "There is no doubt that Viñēu is the deliverer of liberation for everyone."

TEXT 42

@AtmaEva ÷AtmanaAe gAAeæaA inaivaRâeta yad"AiKalaAta, @‘amaÔa wdM" pazyaeä," fastaM k(AlaAih"naA jagAta,

*ätmaiva hy ätmano goptä nirvidyeta yadākhilāt apramatta idaṅ paçyed
 grastaṅ kālāhinā jagat*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ätmä—the soul; eva—alone; hi—certainly; ätmanaù—of himself; goptä—the protector; nirvidyeta—becomes detached; yadä—when; akhilāt—from all material things; apramattaù—without material fever; idam—this; paçyet—can see; grastam—seized; kāla—of time; ahinā—by the serpent; jagat—the universe.

TRANSLATION

When the living entity sees that the entire universe has been seized by the serpent of time, he becomes sober and sane and at that time detaches himself from all material sense gratification. In that condition the living entity is qualified to be his own protector.

PURPORT

In this verse, Piṅgalā states that by the Lord's mercy a self-realized soul can see that the entire universe is existing within the jaws of the great serpent of time. Certainly this is not a promising situation, and one who sees it loses his desire for sense gratification. Thus, by the Lord's causeless mercy, the spiritually sane living entity can protect himself from illusion.

Since Piṅgalā is now glorifying the Personality of Godhead for His mercy in awarding salvation, the following question might arise: Is she worshipping the Lord out of love, or is she merely a salvationist desiring liberation from material existence? In answer it may be said that in her Kāñḍā conscious situation she is already liberated, even though remaining in this world. Her program will now be simply to render loving service to the Personality of Godhead without any personal desire, including that of salvation.

TEXT 43

™al“aAöNA ovaAca WvaM vyavais$atamaitar," äu"r"AzAAM k(AntataSaRjaAma, iC$ÔvaAepazAmamaAsTaAya zAyyaAmaupaivavaezA s$aA

çré-brāhmaëa uvāca
evaṁ vyavasita-matir
durāçāṁ kānta-tarṇa-jām chittvopaçamam āsthāya çayyām upaviveça sā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-brāhmaëaù uvāca—the avadhūta said; evam—thus;
vyavasita—determined; matìù—her mind; durāçām—the sinful desire;
kānta—lovers; tarṇa—hankering for; jām—caused by; chittvā—cutting off;

upaçamam—in tranquillity; āsthāya—being situated; çayyām—on her bed; upaviveça—sat down; sā—she.

TRANSLATION

The avadhūta said: Thus, her mind completely made up, Piṇ galā cut off all her sinful desires to enjoy sex pleasure with lovers, and she became situated in perfect peace. Then she sat down on her bed.

TEXT 44

@AzAA ih" par"maM äu":KaM naEr"AzyaM par"maM s$auKama, yaTaA s$aiHC$â k(AntaAzAAM s$auKaM s$auSvaApa ipaËÿlaA

āçā hi paramaà duùkhaà nairāçyaà paramaà sukham yathā sai chidya kântāçāà sukhaà suñvāpa piṇ galā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

açā—material desire; hi—certainly; paramam—the greatest; duùkham—unhappiness; nairāçyam—freedom from material desires; paramam—the greatest; sukham—happiness; yathā—in that way; sai chidya—completely cutting off; kānta—for lovers; açām—the desire; sukham—happily; suñvāpa—she slept; piṇ galā—the former prostitute, Piṇ galā.

TRANSLATION

Material desire is undoubtedly the cause of the greatest unhappiness, and freedom from such desire is the cause of the greatest happiness. Therefore, completely cutting off her desire to enjoy so-called lovers, Piṇ galā very happily went to sleep.

*Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C.
Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Eighth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Story of Piṅgalā."*

9. Detachment from All that Is Material

The avadhūta brāhmaëa describes his seven remaining gurus, beginning with the kurara bird. He also describes an additional guru, one's own body.

The instruction received from the kurara bird is that attachment creates misery, but the person who is unattached and has no material possessions is qualified to achieve unlimited happiness.

The avadhūta brāhmaëa learned from the foolish, lazy child that by becoming free from anxiety a person becomes capable of worshiping the Supreme Personality of Godhead and experiencing supreme ecstasy.

The instruction received from the young girl who kept just one conchshell bracelet on each wrist is that one should remain alone and thus steady one's mind. Then only will it be possible for one to fix one's mind completely on the Personality of Godhead. Once several men arrived to ask for the hand of the young girl, whose relatives had coincidentally left the house. She went inside and began to prepare food for the unexpected guests by beating rice. At that time her conchshell bracelets were making a loud noise, rattling against each other, and in order to stop this sound she broke off the bracelets one by one until at last only one remained on each arm. Just as two or more bracelets make noise, if even two people reside in the same place, what to speak of many, there is every chance of mutual quarrel and useless gossip.

The avadhūta brāhmaëa also received instruction from the arrow maker, who was so absorbed in constructing an arrow that he did not even notice that the king was passing right by him on the road. In the same way, one must strictly control one's mind, concentrating it in the worship of Lord Çré Hari.

The avadhüta brähmaëa learned from the serpent that a sage should wander alone, should not live in any prearranged place, should be always careful and grave, should not reveal his movements, should take assistance from no one and should speak little.

The instruction obtained from the spider, who spins his web from his mouth and then withdraws it, is that the Supreme Personality of Godhead similarly creates from out of Himself the whole universe and then winds it up into Himself.

From the weak insect who assumed the same form as the peçaskât wasp, the avadhüta brähmaëa learned that the living entity, under the sway of affection, hatred and fear, attains in his next life the identity of that object upon which he fixes his intelligence.

Seeing that the fragile material body is subject to birth and death, one who is sober should become devoid of material attachment to this body and should properly utilize the rare gift of human life in the pursuit of knowledge, endeavoring always for the achievement of the highest goal.

TEXT 1

™al“aAöNA ovaAca
pair" fah"Ae ih" äu":KaAya yaâit'ayatamaM na{NA Ama, @nantaM s$auKamaA«aAeita taiã"ã"Ana, yastvaik(Âana:

çré-brähmaëa uväca
parigraho hi duùkhäya
yad yat priyatamaà nâëäm anantaà sukham äpnoti tad vidvân yas tv akii' canaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-brähmaëaù uvāca—the saintly brähmaëa said; parigrahaù—attachment to possession; hi—certainly; duùkhāya—leading to misery; yat yat—whatever; priya-tamam—is most dear; nāëäm—of men; anantam—unlimited; sukham—happiness; āpnoti—achieves; tat—that; vidvān—knowing; yaù—whoever; tu—indeed; akii' canaù—is free from such attachment.

TRANSLATION

The saintly brähmaëa said: Everyone considers certain things within the material world to be most dear to him, and because of attachment to such things one eventually becomes miserable. One who understands this gives up material possessiveness and attachment and thus achieves unlimited happiness.

TEXT 2

s$AimaSaM ku(r"rM" ja£aur," bailanaAe'nyae inar"AimaSaA:
tad"AimaSaM pair"tyajya
s$a s$auKaM s$amaivand"ta sāmiñāà kuraraà jaghnur balino 'nye nirāmiñäù tadāmiñāà parityajya

sa sukhaà samavindata

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sa-āmiñam—having meat; kuraram—a large hawk; jaghnū—they attacked; balinaù—very strong; anye—others; nirāmiñäù—without meat; tadā—at that time; āmiñam—the meat; parityajya—giving up; saù—he;

sukham—happiness; samavindata—achieved.

TRANSLATION

Once a group of large hawks who were unable to find any prey attacked another, weaker hawk who was holding some meat. At that time, being in danger of his life, the hawk gave up his meat and experienced actual happiness.

PURPORT

Incited by the modes of nature, birds become violent and kill other birds to eat them or to steal meat captured by them. Hawks, vultures and eagles are in this category. However, one should give up the envious propensity to commit violence against others and should take to Kāñëa consciousness, whereby one sees every living entity as equal to oneself. On this platform of actual happiness one does not envy anyone and thus sees no one as his enemy.

TEXT 3

na mae maAnaApamaAnaAE staAe na icantaA gAeh"pauṭaNAAma, @Atma,(Lx" @Atmar"itar," ivacar"Amalh" baAlavata, na me mänäpamānau sto

na cintä geha-putriëäm
ätma-kréòä ätma-ratir vicaräméha bāla-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; me—in me; mäna—honor; apamānau—dishonor; staù—exist;
na—there is not; cintä—anxiety; geha—of those who have a home;

putriëäm—and children; ätma—by the self; kréòàù—sporting; ätma—in the self alone; ratìù—enjoying; vicarämi—I wander; iha—in this world; bäla-vat—like a child.

TRANSLATION

In family life, the parents are always in anxiety about their home, children and reputation. But I have nothing to do with these things. I do not worry at all about any family, and I do not care about honor and dishonor. I enjoy only the life of the soul, and I find love on the spiritual platform. Thus I wander the earth like a child.

TEXT 4

ã"Avaea icantayaA mau.(AE par"maAnand" @AplautaAE yaAe ivamaugDaAe jax"Ae baAlaAe yaAe gAuNAeBya: parM" gAta:

dväv eva cintayä muktau paramänanda äplutau yo vimugdho jaòo bälö yo guëebhyaù paraà gataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dvau—two; eva—certainly; cintayä—from anxiety; muktau—freed; parama-änande—in great happiness; äplutau—merged; yaù—one who; vimugdhaù—is ignorant; jaòau—retarded without developing activities; bälaù—childish; yaù—one who; guëebhyaù—to the modes of nature; param—the Lord, who is transcendental; gataù—has achieved.

TRANSLATION

In this world two types of people are free from all anxiety and merged in great happiness: one who is a retarded and childish fool and one who has approached the Supreme Lord, who is beyond the three modes of material nature.

PURPORT

Those who fervently seek material sense gratification are gradually pushed down into a miserable condition of life because as soon as one even slightly violates the laws of nature, one must suffer sinful reactions. Thus even materially alert and ambitious persons are constantly in anxiety, and from time to time they are plunged into great misery. Those who are nonsensical and retarded, however, live in a fool's paradise, and those who have surrendered to Lord Kāñëa are filled with transcendental bliss. Therefore both the fool and the devotee may be said to be peaceful, in the sense that they are free from the ordinary anxiety of the materially ambitious person. However, this does not mean that the devotee and the retarded fool are on the same platform. A fool's peace is like that of a dead stone, whereas a devotee's satisfaction is based on perfect knowledge.

TEXT 5

ꣳ(icatku(maAr"I tvaAtmaAnaM va{NAAnaAna, gA{h"maAgAtaAna, svayaM taAnahR"yaAmaAs$a ꣳ(Aipa yaAtaeSau banDauSau

*kvacit kumäre tv ätmänaà vâëänän gâham ägatän svayaà tän arhayäm äsa
kväpi yäteñu bandhuñu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kvacit—once; kumäre—a young girl; tu—indeed; ätmänam—herself; vâëänän—desiring as a wife; gâham—to the house; ägatän—arrived;

svayam—herself; tän—those men; arhayäm äsa—received with great hospitality; kva api—to another place; yäteñu—when they had gone; bandhuñu—all her relatives.

TRANSLATION

Once a marriageable young girl was alone in her house because her parents and relatives had gone that day to another place. At that time a few men arrived at the house, specifically desiring to marry her. She received them with all hospitality.

TEXT 6

taeSaAmaByavah"Ar"ATa< zAAIalna, r"h"is$a paAiTaRva @va£antyaA: 'ak(Aeï"sTaAzA, ca,u(: zAÊÿA: svanaM mah"ta,

teñäm abhyavahärärtha
çälén rahasi pārthiva avaghnantyäù prakoñha-sthäç cakruù çai khäù svanaà mahat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

teñäm—of the guests; abhyavahära-artham—so that they could eat; çälén—rice; rahasi—being alone; pārthiva—O King; avaghnantyäù—of her who was beating; prakoñha—on her forearms; sthäù—situated; cakruù—they made; çai khäù—bracelets made of conchshell; svanam—a sound; mahat—great.

TRANSLATION

The girl went to a private place and began to make preparations so that the unexpected male guests could eat. As she was beating the rice, the conchshell bracelets on her arms were colliding and making a loud noise.

TEXT 7

s$āA taĀaugAuips$ataM matvaA mah"tal va{wRix"taA tata:
baBaĀaEkE(k(zA: zAĒÿAna, ā"AE ā"AE paANyaAer"zAeSayata,

sā taj jugupsitaā matvā mahatē vāēōitā tataū babhai'jaikaikaçaū çai khān dvau dvau pāēyōr açeñayat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sā—she; tat—that noise; jugupsitam—shameful; matvā—thinking;
mahatē—very intelligent; vrēōitā—shy; tataū—from her arms;
babhai'ja—she broke; eka-ekaçaū—one by one; çai khān—the shell bracelets; dvau dvau—two each; pāēyōū—on her two hands; açeñayat—she kept on.

TRANSLATION

The young girl feared that the men would consider her family to be poor because their daughter was busily engaged in the menial task of husking rice. Being very intelligent, the shy girl broke the shell bracelets from her arms, leaving just two on each wrist.

TEXT 8

oBayaAer"pyaBaUŪ"AeSaAe ÷va£antyaA: svazAĒÿyaAe: ta‡aApyaekM(inar"iBad"ā," Wk(smaA^aaABavaä," Dvaina:

ubhayor apy abhüd ghoño hy avaghnantyäù sva-çaì khayò taträpy ekaà nirabhidad ekasmän näbhavad dhvaniù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ubhayò—from the two (on each hand); api—still; abhüt—there was; ghoñaù—noise; hi—indeed; avaghnantyäù—of her who was husking the rice; sva-çaì khayò—from each set of two shell ornaments; tatra—therein; api—indeed; ekam—one only; nirabhidad—she separated; ekasmät—from that one ornament; na—not; abhavat—there was; dhvaniù—a sound.

TRANSLATION

Thereafter, as the young girl continued to husk the rice, the two bracelets on each wrist continued to collide and make noise. Therefore she took one bracelet off each arm, and with only one left on each wrist there was no more noise.

TEXT 9

@nvaizA^oaimamaM tasyaA opade"zAmair"nd"ma laAek(Ananaucar"^aaetaAna, laAek(taÔvaivaivats$ayaA

*anvaçikñam imaà tasyä upadeçam arindama
lokän anucarann etän
loka-tattva-vivitsayä*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

anvaçikāṁ—I have seen with my own eyes; imam—this; tasyäù—of the young girl; upadeçam—lesson; arim-dama—O subduer of the enemy; lokān—worlds; anucaran—wandering; etān—these; loka—of the world; tattva—truth; vivitsayä—with a desire to know.

TRANSLATION

O subduer of the enemy, I travel throughout the surface of the earth learning constantly about the nature of this world, and thus I personally witnessed the lesson of the young girl.

PURPORT

The brāhmaëa sage here explains to King Yadu that he is not presenting theoretical knowledge. Rather, by wandering throughout the world the observant and thoughtful brāhmaëa has personally experienced the lessons learned from all of the above-mentioned gurus. Thus, instead of posing himself to be omniscient like God, he humbly explains that he has faithfully learned these lessons in his travels.

TEXT 10

vaAs$ae baó"naAM k(lah"Ae Bavaeã"AtaAR ã"yaAer"ipa Wk(Wva vas$aeÔasmaAta, ku(maAyaAR wva k(ÆyNA:

vāse bahünāà kalaho
bhaved vārtā dvayor api eka eva vaset tasmāt
kumāryā iva kaī kaëaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vāse—in a residence; bahünām—of many people; kalahaù—quarrel;

bhavi—will be; vārtā—conversation; dvayau—of two people; api—even; eka—alone; eva—certainly; vaset—one should live; tasmāt—therefore; kumāryāu—of the young girl; iva—like; kaḥ kaṣṭhau—the bracelet.

TRANSLATION

When many people live together in one place there will undoubtedly be quarreling. And even if only two people live together there will be frivolous conversation and disagreement. Therefore, to avoid conflict, one should live alone, as we learn from the example of the bracelet of the young girl.

PURPORT

Ṣṛīla Viṣvanātha Cakravartī Ōhākura has given a nice example in this regard. Because the young girl mentioned in this story had no husband, she had to fulfill her duties as a host by removing her bracelets so that each wrist held one bracelet only. In the same way, the process of jī āna-yoga, or spiritual advancement by philosophical speculation, demands that the speculating sages live alone, without any other association. Since jī ānēs have dedicated their lives to speculation, there will undoubtedly be endless argument and quarreling on technical points if many jī ānēs live together. Therefore, to keep a peaceful atmosphere they must live alone. On the other hand, a king's daughter who has been duly married to an aristocratic prince fulfills her duties to her husband by dressing herself attractively with innumerable ornaments and approaching him for love. Similarly, the goddess of devotion, Bhakti-devī, decorates herself with the innumerable ornaments of the Vaiṣṇavas, who come together to relish the sweet sound of the holy name of the Lord. Because pure Vaiṣṇavas do not intimately associate with nondevotees, it may be said that they reside alone, and thus they also fulfill the purpose of this verse. There cannot be any quarrel among pure Vaiṣṇavas, because they are on the real platform of desirelessness, not wanting even salvation or mystic powers, what to speak of sense gratification. Because they are all devotees of Kāṣṇa, they may freely associate with one another for glorifying the Lord. As stated in

Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (3.25.34):

naikātmatāà me spāhayanti kecin mat-pāda-sevābhiratā mad-ēhāu ye 'nyonyato bhāgavatāu prasajya sabhājayante mama pauruṇāēi

"A pure devotee, who is attached to the activities of devotional service and who always engages in the service of My lotus feet, never desires to become one with Me. Such a devotee, who is unflinchingly engaged, always glorifies My pastimes and activities."

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has commented on this verse as follows: "The young girl in the story kept only one bracelet on each wrist so that there would be no noisy conflict among the bracelets. Similarly, one should give up the association of those who are not devoted to the Supreme Lord." This is the actual lesson to be learned. A real Vaiṇēava is always pure and faultless in character. However, in those places where nondevotees congregate there will undoubtedly be envious criticism of the devotional service of the Lord, and those who falsely attempt to analyze reality without the Supreme Personality of Godhead will create much disturbing noise in the name of philosophy. Therefore, one should remain in those places where the Supreme Lord is properly worshiped according to the Vedic standard. If everyone is dedicated to glorifying the Personality of Godhead, Kāṇēa, there will not be any impediment in mutual association. However, in a place where people have many different purposes besides the pleasure of the Supreme Lord, social dealings will certainly be disrupted.

One should therefore avoid the association of those who are inimical to devotional service; otherwise one will be frustrated in achieving the spiritual purpose of life. One who always keeps himself in the company of the devotees of the Lord is actually living alone. If one lives in a community where the only consideration is the pleasure of the Lord, then one can avoid the contradictory situations caused by many persons competing to satisfy their own material desires. This is the lesson intelligently understood by the brāhmaēa from the bracelets of the young girl.

In this connection Çréla Madhvācārya quotes the following:

asaj-janaṁ tu sa-āvaśo na kartavyaṁ kathaṁ cana yāvad yāvac ca bahubhiḥ saj-janaṁ sa tu mukti-daṁ

"One should not under any circumstances live with those who are not devotees of the Lord. On the other hand, one should stay with many devotees, because such association awards liberation."

TEXT 11

*manaḥkṛtsaṁśaṁmyauḥjyājā, jita-āśvaṁ jita-āśanaḥ
vairāgya-ābhyaśa-yogena
dhīyamāṇaṁ atandritaṁ*

*manaḥ ekatra sa-āyujyāt
jita-āśvaṁ jita-āśanaḥ
vairāgya-ābhyaśa-yogena
dhīyamāṇaṁ atandritaṁ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

manaḥ—the mind; ekatra—in one place; sa-āyujyāt—one should fix; jita—conquered; āśvaṁ—the breathing process; jita—conquered; āśanaḥ—the yoga sitting postures; vairāgya—by detachment; ābhyaśa-yogena—by the regulated practice of yoga; dhīyamāṇaṁ—the mind being steadied; atandritaṁ—very carefully.

TRANSLATION

Having perfected the yoga sitting postures and conquered the breathing process, one should make the mind steady by detachment and the regulated practice of yoga. Thus one should carefully fix the mind on the single goal of yoga practice.

PURPORT

One should develop vairāgya, or detachment, by observing that all material things are doomed. Thus one should take to the regulated practice of yoga, which in this age means the process of chanting the Hare Kāñëa mantra. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the avadhüta brähmaëa is recommending bhakti-miçra añöäi ga-yoga, or the eightfold mystic yoga process performed as an offering to the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

The desire to enjoy the material world is so strong that the mind wanders here and there uncontrollably. Therefore it is stated, dhriyamäëam: the mind must be fixed in the goal of life, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In the perfect stage of mental concentration called samādhi there is no longer any distinction between internal and external vision, since one can see the Absolute Truth everywhere.

In the mystic yoga process one must sit properly, and then it is possible to control the different airs within the body. When the breathing process is controlled, the mind, which is dependent upon the actions of the bodily airs, is easily fixed in higher consciousness. But although the mind may be momentarily controlled, if one is overcome by desire for sense gratification the mind will again be lost. Thus, this verse emphasizes vairāgya, detachment from material illusion. This is attained by abhyäsa-yoga, the regulated practice of Kāñëa consciousness, which is the highest yoga system, as confirmed in Bhagavad-gétä (6.47):

yoginäm api sarveñäà mad-gatenäntar-ätmanä çraddhävän bhajate yo mäà sa me yuktatamo mataù

"And of all yogés, he who always abides in Me with great faith, worshiping Me in transcendental loving service, is most intimately united with Me in yoga and is the highest of all."

TEXT 12

yaismanmanaAe labDapadM" yade"taca, C$naE: zAnaEmauRÂaita k(maR&#re"NAUna, s$aÔvaena va{Üe"na r"jastamaê ivaDaUya inavaARNamaupaEtyainanDanama, yasmin mano labdha-padaà yad etac chanaiù çanair mui'cati karma-reëün sattvena vâddhena rajas tamaç ca vidhüya nirvääam upaity anindhanam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yasmin—in which (the Supreme Lord); manaù—the mind; labdha—having obtained; padam—a permanent situation; yad etat—that very mind; çanaiù çanaiù—gradually, step by step; mui'cati—gives up; karma—of fruitive activities; reëün—the contamination; sattvena—by the mode of goodness; vâddhena—which has grown strong; rajaù—the mode of passion; tamaù—the mode of ignorance; ca—also; vidhüya—giving up; nirvääam—the transcendental position in which one is united with the object of his meditation; upaiti—achieves; anindhanam—without fuel.

TRANSLATION

The mind can be controlled when it is fixed on the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Having achieved a stable situation, the mind becomes free from polluted desires to execute material activities; thus as the mode of goodness increases in strength, one can completely give up the modes of passion and ignorance, and gradually one transcends even the material mode of goodness. When the mind is freed from the fuel of the modes of nature, the fire of material existence is extinguished. Then one achieves the transcendental platform of direct relationship with the object of his meditation, the Supreme

Lord.

PURPORT

The interaction of the three modes of nature creates great obstacles in one's path of spiritual advancement, and there is danger that one may be thrown down into the darkness of ignorance. Those who are experienced in practical psychology know the dangers of the uncontrolled mind and constantly endeavor to bring the mind under control. If one can free oneself from the influence of the material modes of passion and ignorance, then life becomes very auspicious. Controlling the mind, and thereby freeing oneself from the influence of the material modes of nature, is the only means of making actual progress in life. The word yasmin in this verse, according to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, indicates the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the reservoir of all pleasure. Giving up the material propensities of the mind does not mean merging into an impersonal existence, such as that experienced in dreamless sleep. As stated in this verse, sattvena vâddhena: one must become firmly established in the mode of goodness and then gradually rise onto the spiritual platform, where one may dwell in the company of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 13

tadE"vamaAtmanyavaç&Ü"icaÔaAe na vaed" ik(iÂaß"ih"r"ntarM" vaA yaTaeSauk(Ar"Ae na{paitaM ~ajantama, wSaAE gAtaAtmaA na d"d"zAR paAieR

tadaivam âtmany avaruddha-citto na veda kii'cid bahir antaraà vä yatheñu-kâro nâpatià vrajantam iñau gatâtmä na dadarça pārçve

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tadā—at that time; evam—thus; ātmani—in the Supreme Personality of Godhead; avaruddha—fixed; cittaù—the mind; na—does not; veda—know; kii cit—anything; bahiù—outside; antaram—inside; vā—either; yathā—just as; iñu—of arrows; kāraù—a maker; nā-patim—the king; vrajantam—going; iñau—in the arrow; gata-ātmā—being absorbed; na dadarça—did not see; pārçve—right next to him.

TRANSLATION

Thus, when one's consciousness is completely fixed on the Absolute Truth, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one no longer sees duality, or internal and external reality. The example is given of the arrow maker who was so absorbed in making a straight arrow that he did not even see or notice the king himself, who was passing right next to him.

PURPORT

It is understood that when a king moves on a public street he is heralded by kettledrums and other musical instruments and is accompanied by soldiers and other members of his retinue. Thus, despite this royal extravaganza passing right by his workshop, the arrow maker did not even notice because he was completely absorbed in his prescribed duty of making an arrow straight and sharp. One who is completely absorbed in loving devotional service to the Absolute Truth, Çré Kāñëa, no longer pays attention to material illusion. In this verse the word bahis, "external" refers to the innumerable objects of material sense gratification, such as food, drink, sex, and so on, which drag the senses of the conditioned soul into material duality. The word antaram, or "internal" refers to memory of previous sense gratification or hopes and dreams for future materialistic situations. One who is seeing everywhere the Absolute Truth, Çré Kāñëa, categorically rejects both internal and external illusion. This is called mukti-pada, or the status of liberation. On this platform there is neither attraction nor aversion to sense objects; rather, there is loving absorption in the Absolute Truth, Kāñëa, and an overwhelming desire to please Him by devotional service. One who gives up the reality of Kāñëa will be forced to wander uselessly in the kingdom of mental speculation. One who cannot see that the Absolute Truth, Lord Kāñëa, is the background and basis of everything that exists will be bewildered by the false concept that there is something that is not Kāñëa. Everything emanates from the Lord, and He is the Lord of everything. This simple understanding is the actual existential situation.

TEXT 14

Wk(caAyaRinake(ta: syaAä," @'amaÔaAe gAuh"AzAya:
@la^oyamaANA @AcaArE"r," mauinare"k(Ae'lpaBaASaNA:

*eka-cäry aniketaù syäd apramatto guhäçayaù alakñyamäëa äcärair
munir eko 'lpa-bhāñäëaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

eka—alone; cäre—moving; aniketaù—without fixed residence; syät—should be; apramattaù—being very alert; guhä-äçayaù—remaining secluded; alakñyamäëaù—without being recognized; äcäräiù—by his activities; muniù—a sage; ekaù—without companions; alpa—very little; bhāñäëaù—speaking.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should remain alone and constantly travel without any fixed residence. Being alert, he should remain secluded and should act in such a way that he is not recognized or noticed by others. Moving without companions, he should not speak more than required.

PURPORT

The previous narration concerning the shell bracelets of the young girl demonstrates that even saintly persons engaged in ordinary yoga processes should remain alone to avoid conflict or disturbance. In other words, persons engaged in ordinary yoga processes should not even associate with each other. This verse indirectly refers to the serpent, who, fearing attack from human beings, keeps himself secluded. From this example we learn that a saintly person should not associate with ordinary materialistic people. He should also avoid having a fixed residence and should wander unnoticed by others.

Our engagement in material existence is the cause of our unhappiness. Such engagement destroys the real purpose of our life, Kāñëa consciousness. Somehow or other one must give up the deep-rooted attachment to material society, friendship and love. One must practice detachment, and by surrender to the principles of Kāñëa consciousness one's auspicious life will begin. By organizing one's life according to the varëäçrama system one can take the first step in self-realization. In other words, one should accept an honest occupation and regulate his sex life, either by giving it up entirely as a brahmacärë or sannyäsë or by living as a married householder. Without regulating one's occupation and personal life, there will be chaos, and it will be very difficult to make spiritual advancement. The attachments to material society, friendship and love are based on a long previous experience in the material world. They are great obstacles in the path of transcendental understanding, and if one maintains them, spiritual progress will be most difficult. Caitanya Mahäprabhu taught by His example and precept what a devotee should and should not do, and obedience to such principles brings one to the path of supreme perfection. Thus, one has to rise above ordinary social custom, which directs the living entity toward useless sense gratification.

TEXT 15

gA{h"Ar"mBaAe ih" äü":KaAya ivaP(laêA'auvaAtmana:
s$apaR: par"k{(taM vaezma
'aivazya s$auKamaeDatae

gâhârambho hi duùkhäya viphalaç cädhruvâtmanaù sarpaù para-kâtaà veçma praviçya sukham edhate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gâha—of a home; ârambhaù—construction; hi—certainly; duùkhäya—leads to unhappiness; viphalaù—fruitless; ca—also; adhruva—impermanent; âtmanaù—of the living being; sarpaù—a serpent; parakâtam—built by others; veçma—home; praviçya—having entered; sukham—happily; edhate—prosper.

TRANSLATION

When a person living in a temporary material body tries to construct a happy home, the result is fruitless and miserable. The snake, however, enters a home that has been built by others and prospers happily.

PURPORT

The snake does not have the proclivity to build his own home, but rather lives in a suitable place constructed by other creatures. Thus he does not entangle himself in the labor of home building. Çréla Bhaktisiddhânta Sarasvaté Öhäkura points out that although materialistic persons take unlimited pains to invent and mass-produce electricity, automobiles, airplanes, etc., ultimately these things are meant for the convenience of the Vaiñëavas who are preaching Kãñëa consciousness. The karmés will always go to such trouble, and the devotees will always offer such laborious productions to the Supreme Personality of Godhead by engaging them in His loving service. The devotees, being concerned with the ultimate perfection of life, do not personally struggle for material advancement. On the other hand, there is no need for the devotees to artificially imitate the austere life-style of ancient times. A devotee's goal is simply to serve Kāñëa as nicely as possible; therefore the devotees willingly accept beautiful mansions and all types of material opulences, not with any personal attachment, but only so that these things can be engaged in the loving service of the Lord. If one engages such things with a desire to enjoy them, one falls down from the platform of pure devotional service. Materialistic persons are only interested in exploiting their so-called yoga practice in order to rejuvenate their sexual potency or to vainly remember their previous conditioned lives. Thus, applying mysticism to the endless search for sense gratification, they do not understand the actual goal of human life.

TEXT 16

Wk(Ae naAr"AyaNA Ae de"va: paUvaRs$a{íM" svamaAyayaA
 s$aMô$tya k(Alak(layaA k(lpaAnta wd"malir": Wk(WvaAiã"talyaAe'BaUä," @AtmaADaAr"Ae'iKalaA™aya:

eko nārāyaëo devau
pūrva-sāññaà sva-māyayā saàhātya kāla-kalayā
kalpānta idam eçvaraù
eka evādvitéyo 'bhüa
ātmādhāro 'khilāçrayau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ekaù—alone; nārāyaëau—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; devau—God; pūrva—previously; sāñña—created; sta-māyayā—by His own potency; saàhātya—withdrawing within Himself; kāla—of time; kalayā—by the portion; kalpa-ante—at the time of annihilation; idam—this universe;

ēçvaraù—the supreme controller; ekaù—alone; eva—indeed; advitéyaù—without a second; abhüt—became; ätma-ädhäraù—one whose self is the reservoir and resting place of everything; akhila—of all potencies; äçrayaù—the reservoir.

TRANSLATION

The Lord of the universe, Nārāyaëa, is the worshipable God of all living entities. Without extraneous assistance, the Lord creates this universe by His own potency, and at the time of annihilation the Lord destroys the universe through His personal expansion of time and withdraws all of the cosmos, including all the conditioned living entities, within Himself. Thus, His unlimited Self is the shelter and reservoir of all potencies. The subtle pradhāna, the basis of all cosmic manifestation, is conserved within the Lord and is in this way not different from Him. In the aftermath of annihilation the Lord stands alone.

PURPORT

As will be explained in verse 21 of this chapter, the Lord's independent creation and annihilation of the universe can be compared to the spider's creating and withdrawing his web. The word eka, or "one alone," is mentioned twice in this verse to emphasize that there is only one Supreme Personality of Godhead and that all universal affairs, as well as spiritual pastimes, are conducted by His potency alone. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, this verse refers to Kāraëärëavaçäyë Viñëu, or Mahä-viñëu lying in the Causal Ocean. The words ätmādhāra and akhiläçraya both indicate that Nārāyaëa is the reservoir or shelter of all existence. Ätmādhāra indicates that the Lord's personal body is the shelter of everything. Mahä-viñëu is a plenary portion of Lord Kāñëa, the original Supreme Personality of Godhead, from whose body expand the innumerable potencies that manifest the material and spiritual worlds. According to the Brahma-saàhitä these innumerable worlds rest within the brahma-jyotir, or spiritual effulgence, also emanating from the Lord's body. Thus Kāñëa is éçvara, the supreme controller.

TEXTS 17-18

k(AlaenaAtmaAnauBaAvaena s$aAmyaM naltaAs$au zAi·(Sau s$aÔvaAid"SvaAid"pauç&Sa:
'aDaAnapauç&Saeir":

par"Avar"ANAAM par"ma @Astae kE(valyas$aMiÁata: ke(valaAnauBavaAnand"-
s$and"Aeh"Ae inaç&paAiDak(:

*kālenātmānubhāvena
sāmyaà nētāsu çaktiñu sattvādiñv ādi-puruñau
pradhāna-puruñeçvaraù

parāvarāëää parama
āste kaivalya-saàji' itaù kevalānubhavānanda-
sandoho nirupādhikaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kālena—by the time factor; ātma-anubhāvena—which is the Lord's own potency; sāmyam—to equilibrium; nētāsu—being brought; çaktiñu—the material potencies; sattva-ādiñu—the mode of goodness, etc.; ādi-puruñau—the eternal Supreme Personality of Godhead; pradhāna-puruña-éçvaraù—the supreme controller of the neutral state of nature (pradhāna) and of the living entities; para—of the liberated living entities or the demigods; avarāëām—of ordinary conditioned souls; paramaù—the supreme worshipable object; āste—exists; kaivalya—liberated existence; saàji' itaù—that which is indicated by the term; kevala—pure without material tinge; anubhava—experience of revelation; ānanda—bliss;

sandohaù—the totality; nirupādhikaù—devoid of materially designated relationships.

TRANSLATION

When the Supreme Personality of Godhead displays His own potency in the form of time and guides His material potencies, such as the mode of goodness, into a neutral condition of equilibrium, He remains as the supreme controller of that neutral state, called pradhāna, as well as of the living entities. He is also the supreme worshipable object for all beings, including liberated souls, demigods and ordinary conditioned souls. The Lord is eternally free from any material designation, and He constitutes the totality of spiritual bliss, which one experiences by seeing the Lord's spiritual form. The Lord thus exhibits the fullest meaning of the word "liberation."

PURPORT

One who fixes his mind in the Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead, gets immediate relief from the waves of material anxiety because the Lord's transcendental form is completely free of any material contamination or designation. Less intelligent persons accept the illogical doctrine that the Lord is transformed into His creation and maintains no separate, individual existence. They falsely imagine that they can merge their individuality into the universal oneness and become exactly equal to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. However, in the opinion of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam the Personality of Godhead is not impersonal but is instead full of all transcendental qualities. The three modes of material nature constitute His inferior energy, and the omnipotent time factor, upon which the modes rest, is the personal expansion of the Lord. Thus, the Lord creates, maintains and annihilates the material manifestation and yet remains completely apart from it. The conditioned souls who desire to exploit the Lord's inferior creation are impelled by the Personality of Godhead to do so, and thus they become imitation enjoyers in the temporary world of matter. But when one gains practical experience that the gross and subtle material bodies are simply coverings of the eternal soul, one gives up the foolishness of material attachment and becomes attached to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. He realizes that his constitutional position is neither to enjoy matter nor merge into the Lord's existence. His real nature is that he is a servant of God. Service rendered to the Lord is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge, and by the potency of such service one becomes liberated and his activities become glorious. Such service is eternal and gradually promotes one to the platform of kevalānubhavānanda-sandoha, or merging into the ocean of bliss by seeing the transcendental personal form of the Lord.

TEXT 19

ke(valaAtmaAnauBaAvaena svamaAyaAM iṭagAuNAAtmak(Ama, s$aÉÿAeBayana, s$a{jatyaAd"AE tayaA s$aUṭamair"nd"ma

kevalātmānubhāvena sva-māyāṇ tri-guḍātmikām saī kīobhayan sājaty ādau tayā sūtram arindama

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kevala—pure; ātma—of His own Self; anubhāvena—by the potency; sva-māyām—His own energy; tri—three; guḍa—modes; ātmikām—composed of; saī kīobhayan—agitating; sājati—He manifests; ādau—at the time of creation; tayā—with that energy; sūtram—the mahat-tattva distinguished by the power of action; arindama—O subduer of the enemies.

TRANSLATION

O subduer of the enemies, at the time of creation the Personality of Godhead expands His own transcendental potency in the form of time, and agitating His material energy, māyā, composed of the three modes of material nature, He creates the mahat-tattva.

PURPORT

The word kevala means "pure" and indicates that the Lord's kālaçakti, or time potency, is a transcendental energy nondifferent from His personal body. The brāhmaëa addresses King Yadu here as arindama, subduer of the enemies. This indicates that although the topic of māyā, or illusory creation, is being discussed, the King need not worry, because as a staunch devotee of the Lord, he is able to subdue the real enemies of life, namely lust, anger and greed, which make one a prisoner in māyā's kingdom. The word sūtram indicates the mahat-tattva, on which many material creations rest, just like jewels rest on a thread. In the state of pradhāna, or material equilibrium, the modes of nature do not interact. In the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Lord Kapila explains in His Sāi khyā teachings that the Supreme Personality of Godhead agitates the neutral state of nature and thus creation takes place. The created manifest form of nature in which fruitive activities are stimulated is called mahat-tattva, as indicated in this verse.

If one tries to renounce the illusory creation of the Lord by taking shelter of impersonal Vedānta philosophy, thus artificially equating the infinite consciousness of the Lord and the infinitesimal consciousness of the conditioned soul, one's analysis will fall far short of reality. The word sva-māyām in this verse indicates that the illusory potency that covers the conditioned souls is always subordinate to the Lord, whose consciousness is infallible and infinite and who is always a person.

TEXT 20

taAmaAò"iñgAuNAvyai-M( s$ajantal%M ivaitaAemauKama, yaismana, 'aAetaimadM" ivaiM yaena s$ams$ar"tae paumaAna, tām āhus tri-guëa-vyaktiā

sâjantêà viçvato-mukham yasmin protam idaà viçvaà yena saàsarate pumän

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

täm—the mahat-tattva; ähuù—they say; tri-guëa—the three modes of material nature; vyaktim—manifesting as the cause; sâjantêm—creating; viçvataù-mukham—many different categories of cosmic manifestation; yasmin—within the mahat-tattva; protam—strung and bound; idam—this; viçvam—universe; yena—by which; saàsarate—undergoes material existence; pumän—the living being.

TRANSLATION

According to great sages, that which is the basis of the three modes of material nature and which manifests the variegated universe is called the sûtra or mahat-tattva. Indeed, this universe is resting within that mahat-tattva, and due to its potency the living entity undergoes material existence.

PURPORT

The cosmic manifestation is a reality because it emanates from the supreme reality, the Personality of Godhead. The material world, however, is temporary and full of problems. The conditioned soul foolishly tries to become the lord of this inferior creation and becomes separated from his real friend, the Supreme Lord. In this state, his only business is material sense gratification, and his real knowledge is lost.

TEXT 21

*yaTaAeNARnaAiBaôR$d"yaAä," ONAA< s$antatya vaf†ata:
tayaA ivaô$tya BaUyastaAM*

faṣṣatyā evaṁ māheśvaram:

*yathorēnābhir hādayād
ūrēām śantatyā vaktrataḥ tayā vihatya bhūyaḥ tāṁ grasaty evaṁ māheṣvaraḥ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathā—just as; ūrna-nābhiḥ—the spider; hādayāt—from within himself; ūrēām—thread; śantatyā—expanding; vaktrataḥ—from his mouth; tayā—with that thread; vihatya—enjoying; bhūyaḥ—again; tām—that thread; grasati—he swallows; evam—in the same way; mahā-ēṣvaraḥ—the Supreme Lord.

TRANSLATION

Just as from within himself the spider expands thread through his mouth, plays with it for some time and eventually swallows it, similarly, the Supreme Personality of Godhead expands His personal potency from within Himself. Thus, the Lord displays the network of cosmic manifestation, utilizes it according to His purpose and eventually withdraws it completely within Himself.

PURPORT

One who is intelligent obtains spiritual knowledge even from an insignificant creature like the spider. Thus, transcendental knowledge is visible everywhere for one whose eyes are opened in Kāñḍā consciousness.

TEXT 22

*yaṭa yaṭa manaś dehāt
dātā yatsakṣaṁ iḍāyā
yathā, āśaśa yathā āśa*

yaAita taÔatsvaè&pataAma,

yatra yatra mano dehé dhārayet sakalā dhiyā snehād dveñād bhayād vāpi yāti tat-tat-svarūpatām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yatra yatra—wherever; manaù—the mind; dehé—the conditioned soul; dhārayet—fixes; sakalam—with complete concentration; dhiyā—with the intelligence; snehāt—because of affection; dveñāt—because of envy; bhayāt—because of fear; vā api—either; yāti—he goes; tat-tat—to that, whatever it is; svarūpatām—particular state of existence.

TRANSLATION

If out of love, hate or fear an embodied soul fixes his mind with intelligence and complete concentration upon a particular bodily form, he will certainly attain the form that he is meditating upon.

PURPORT

From this verse it is not hard to understand that if one constantly meditates upon the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one will achieve a spiritual body just like that of the Lord. The word dhiyā, "with intelligence," indicates complete intellectual conviction in a particular understanding, and similarly the word sakalam indicates one-pointed attention of the mind. With such complete absorption of consciousness, surely one will attain in the next life a form exactly like that upon which one was meditating. This is another example learned from the insect kingdom, as explained in the following verse.

TEXT 23

k(Lq%: paezAs$k{(taM DyaAyana, ku(x"YaAM taena 'avaeizAta:
yaAita tats$aAtmataAM r"Ajana, paUvaRè&pamas$antyajana,

kéöaù peçaskâtaà dhyäyan kuòyääà tena praveçitaù yäti tat-sätmatäà rājan pūrva-rūpam asantyajan

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kéöaù—an insect; peçaskâtam—a wasp; dhyäyan—meditating on;
kuòyäm—in his hive; tena—by the wasp; praveçitaù—forced to enter;
yäti—he goes; tat—of the wasp; sa-ätmatām—the same state of existence; rājan—O King; pūrva-rūpam—the previous body; asantyajan—not giving up.

TRANSLATION

O King, once a wasp forced a weaker insect to enter his hive and kept him trapped there. In great fear the weak insect constantly meditated upon his captor, and without giving up his body, he gradually achieved the same state of existence as the wasp. Thus one achieves a state of existence according to one's constant concentration.

PURPORT

The following question may be raised: Since the weaker insect in this story did not physically change his body, how can it be said that he achieved the same state of existence as the wasp? Actually, by constant meditation upon a particular object one's consciousness becomes filled with its qualities. Due to extreme fear the smaller insect was absorbed in the characteristics and activities of the large wasp and thus entered into the existence of the wasp. Due to such meditation, he actually took the body of a wasp in his next life.

Similarly, although we are conditioned souls, if we absorb our consciousness in Lord Kāñëa we can become liberated even before giving up our present body. If our intelligence becomes steady on the spiritual platform by understanding that Lord Kāñëa is everything, then we can give up unnecessary consciousness of the external body and absorb ourselves in the spiritual pastimes of Vaikuëöha. Thus even before death one can raise oneself to the spiritual platform and enjoy life as a liberated soul. Or, if one is a stubborn fool, then even in this life one can become just like an animal, such as a hog or a dog, constantly thinking of eating and sex life. But human life is actually meant for understanding the science of consciousness and the future results of our meditation.

TEXT 24

WvaM gAuç&Bya WtaeBya
WSaA mae izAi^oataA maita: svaAtmaAepaizAi^oataAM bauiÜM" Za{NAu mae vad"ta: 'aBaAe evaà gurubhya etebhya eñä me çikñitā matiù

svātmopaçikñitāà buddhià çäëu me vadatāu prabho

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; gurubhyaù—from the spiritual masters; etebhyaù—from these; eñä—this; me—by me; çikñitā—learned; matiù—knowledge; sva-ātma—from one's own body; upaçikñitām—learned; buddhim—knowledge; çäëu—please hear; me—from me; vadatāu—as I am speaking; prabho—O King.

TRANSLATION

O King, from all these spiritual masters I have acquired great wisdom.

Now please listen as I explain what I learned from my own body.

TEXT 25

de" h" Ae gAuç&maRma ivar" i· (ivavaek(he" taur," iba" atsma s$ aÔvainaDanaM s$ atataAtyauRd" kR(ma, taÔvaAnyanaena ivama{ zAAima yaTaA taTaAipa paAr" fyaimatyavais$ ataAe ivacar" Amyas$ aËÿ:

deho gurur mama virakti-viveka-hetur bibhrat sma sattva-nidhana à satatarty-udarkam tattväny anena vimāçämi yathä tathäpi pärakyaṃ ity avasito vicarämy asaṁ gaṇ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deha—the body; guru—spiritual master; mama—my; virakti—of detachment; viveka—and intelligence which facilitates; hetu—the cause; bibhrat—maintaining; sma—certainly; sattva—existence; nidhanam—destruction; satata—always; ärti—suffering; udarkam—future result; tattväni—the truths of this world; anena—with this body; vimāçämi—I contemplate; yathä—even though; tathä api—nevertheless; pärakyaṃ—belonging to others; iti—thus; avasita—being convinced; vicarämi—I wander about; asaṁ gaṇ—without attachment.

TRANSLATION

The material body is also my spiritual master because it teaches me detachment. Being subject to creation and destruction, it always comes to a painful end. Thus, although using my body to acquire knowledge, I always remember that it will ultimately be consumed by others, and remaining detached, I move about this world.

PURPORT

The words yathā tathāpi are significant in this verse. Although the body bestows great benefit by enabling one to learn about this world, one should always remember its unhappy, inevitable future. If cremated, the body is burned to ashes by fire; if lost in a lonely place, it is consumed by jackals and vultures; and if buried in a luxurious coffin, it decomposes and is consumed by insignificant insects and worms. Thus it is described as pārakyam, "ultimately to be consumed by others." One should, however, carefully maintain bodily health to execute Kāñëa consciousness, but without undue affection or attachment. By studying the body's birth and death, one can acquire virakti-viveka, the intelligence to detach oneself from useless things. The word avasita indicates conviction. One should be convinced of all the truths of Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 26

jaAyaAtmajaATaRpazAuBa{tyagA{h"AæavagAARna, pauSnaAita yait'ayaicak(LSaRyaA ivatanvana, svaAntae s$ak{(cC)$mavaç&Ü"Dana: s$a de"h":
s$a{"î"Asya baljamavas$ald"ita va{°aDamaR:

jäyätmajärtha-paçu-bhâtya-gâhâpta-vargän puññäti yat-priya-cikérñayä vitanvan svänte sa-kâcchram avaruddha-dhanaù sa dehaù sânöväsya béjam avasédati vâkñä-dharmaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jäyä—wife; ätma-ja—children; artha—money; paçu—domestic animals; bhâtya—servants; gâha—home; âpta—relatives and friends; vargän—all these categories; puññäti—nourishes; yat—the body; priya-cikérñayä—with a desire to please; vitānvan—expanding; sva-ante—at the time of death; sa-kâcchram—with great struggle; avaruddha—accumulated; dhanaù—wealth; saù—this; dehaù—body; sânövä—having created; asya—of the living entity; béjam—the seed; avasédati—falls down and dies;

vākñā—the tree; dharmaù—following the nature of.

TRANSLATION

A man attached to the body accumulates money with great struggle to expand and protect the position of his wife, children, property, domestic animals, servants, homes, relatives, friends, and so on. He does all this for the gratification of his own body. As a tree before dying produces the seed of a future tree, the dying body manifests the seed of one's next material body in the form of one's accumulated karma. Thus assuring the continuation of material existence, the material body sinks down and dies.

PURPORT

One might argue, "Among all the gurus mentioned thus far, the material body is certainly the best, since it awards the detachment and fine intelligence that enable one to engage in the devotional service of the Lord. Thus, we should serve the body, although it is temporary, with great attachment, or risk the offense of ungratefulness. How can detachment from the body be recommended when the body is endowed with so many wonderful qualities?" The answer is given in this verse. The body does not award detachment and knowledge in the manner of some benevolent teacher; rather, it causes so much pain and misery that any commonsense person cannot help being convinced of the uselessness of material life. Just as a tree produces the seeds of the next tree and then dies, the body's lusty desires induce the conditioned soul to create a further chain of karma. Finally the body, having paved the way for unlimited suffering in material existence, drops dead.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, deha indicates both the gross body and the subtle, mental body. Those who do not clearly understand the difference between body and soul falsely think that body and soul are identical and that one can find perfect happiness in bodily sense gratification. But those who foolishly accept the temporary body as all-important cannot be compared with self-realized souls who intelligently understand the superiority of the eternal soul.

TEXT 27

ijaùE" k(taAe'maumapak(SaRita k(ihR" taSaAR izA´aAe'nyatastvagAud"rM"™avaNAM ku(taiêta, „aANAAe'nyataêpalaä{ "f, (ca k(maRzAi·(r," baù"Ya: s$apatnya wva gAeh"paitaM launainta jihvaikato 'mum apakarīati karhi tarīā çiçno 'nyatas tvag udaraà çravaëaà kutaçcit ghrāëo 'nyataç capala-dāk kva ca karma-çaktir bahvyaù sapatnya iva geha-patià lunanti

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jihvā—the tongue; ekataù—on one side; amum—the body or the conditioned soul who identifies with the body; apakarīati—drags away; karhi—sometimes; tarīā—thirst; çiçnaù—the genitals; anyataù—on another side; tvak—the sense of touch; udaram—the belly; çravaëam—the ears; kutaçcit—from somewhere else; ghrāëaù—the sense of smell; anyataù—from another side; capala-dāk—the fickle eyes; kva ca—somewhere else; karma-çaktiù—the other active organs and limbs of the body; bahvyaù—many; sa-patnyaù—co-wives; iva—like; geha-patim—the head of the household; lunanti—pull in many directions.

TRANSLATION

A man who has many wives is constantly harassed by them. He is responsible for their maintenance, and thus all the ladies constantly pull him in different directions, each struggling for her self-interest. Similarly, the material senses harass the conditioned soul, pulling him in many different directions at once. On one side the tongue is pulling him to arrange tasty food; then thirst drags him to get a suitable drink. Simultaneously the sex organs clamor for satisfaction, and the sense of touch demands soft, sensuous objects. The belly harasses him until it is filled, the ears demand to hear pleasing sounds, the sense of smell hankers for pleasant aromas, and the fickle eyes clamor for pleasing sights. Thus the senses, organs and limbs, all desiring satisfaction, pull the living entity in many directions.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura mentions that after understanding this verse one should merely offer, without attachment, the bare necessities to the guru of one's body. One should keep one's body fit and working in the simplest possible way, and that is the sum and substance of service to this so-called guru. If one desires to faithfully serve the body, one should consider that the body pulls the consciousness of the conditioned soul in many ways at once, and thus for the servant of the body there is no possibility of understanding God or even of becoming peaceful.

TEXT 28

s$a{"î"A paur"AiNA ivaivaDaAnyajayaAtmazAftyaA va{"aAna, s$ar"Is$a{papazAUna, KagAd"nd"zAUk(Ana, taEstaEr"tauí"ô$d"ya: pauç&SaM ivaDaAya "aöAvalaAek(iDaSaNAM maud"maApa de"va:

sāñvā purāei vividhāny ajayātma-çaktyā vākñān sarésāpa-paçün khaga-dandaçükān tais tair atuñña-hādayaù puruññaà vidhāya brahmāvaloka-dhiññaäaà mudam āpa devaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sāñvā—having created; purāei—material bodies that house the conditioned souls; vividhāni—many varieties; ajayā—through the agency of māyā; ātma-çaktyā—the Lord's own potency; vākñān—trees; sarésāpa—reptiles; pañün—animals; khaga—birds; danda-çükān—snakes; taiù taiù—by all these different varieties of bodies; atuñña—unsatisfied; hādayaù—His heart;

puruṇam—the human form of life; vidhāya—creating; brahma—the Absolute Truth; avaloka—vision of; dhiṇāḁam—intelligence suitable for; mudam—happiness; āpā—achieved; devau—the Lord.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead, expanding His own potency, māyā-çakti, created innumerable species of life to house the conditioned souls. Yet by creating the forms of trees, reptiles, animals, birds, snakes and so on, the Lord was not satisfied within His heart. Then He created human life, which offers the conditioned soul sufficient intelligence to perceive the Absolute Truth, and became pleased.

PURPORT

God has specifically created the human form of life to facilitate the liberation of the conditioned soul. Therefore one who abuses human life prepares his path to hell. As stated in the Vedas, puruṇatve cāvistarām ātmā: "In the human form of life there is good possibility of understanding the eternal soul." The Vedas also state:

*tābhyo gām ānayat tā abruvan na vai no 'yam alam iti tābhyo 'çvam ānayat tā abruvan
na vai no 'yam alam iti tābhyaù puruṇam ānayat tā abruvan su-kātaà bata*

The purport of this çruti-mantra is that lower forms of life, such as the cow and horse, are not actually suitable to fulfill the purpose of creation. But human life awards the opportunity to understand one's eternal relationship with God. Thus, one must control the material senses and fulfill the real purpose of human life. If one takes to Kāṇḁa consciousness, the Supreme Lord personally feels happiness and gradually reveals Himself to His devotee.

The Lord's material creation consists of the living entities and dead matter, which the less intelligent try to enjoy. The Lord, however, is not satisfied by those species that blindly strive for sense gratification without understanding spiritual nature. We are suffering due to our forgetfulness of Kāñëa and the blissful situation of His abode. If we accept the Lord as protector and shelter and execute His order, we can easily revive our eternal, blissful nature as parts and parcels of the Personality of Godhead. It is for this purpose that the Lord has created human life.

TEXT 29

labDvaA s$auäu"laRBaimadM" baò"s$amBavaAntae maAnauSyamaTaRd"mainatyamapalh" Dalr":
 taUNA< yataeta na pataed"nauma{tyau yaAvana, ina:™aeyas$aAya ivaSaya: Kalau s$avaRta: syaAta, labdhvä su-durlabham idaà bahu-sambhavänte mänuñyam artha-dam anityam apéha dhérau türëaà yateta na pated anu-mâtyu yävan niùçreyasäya viñayaù khalu sarvataù syät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

labdhvä—having obtained; su-durlabham—that which is very difficult to obtain; idam—this; bahu—many; sambhava—births; ante—after; mänuñyam—human form of life; artha-dam—which awards great value; anityam—not eternal; api—although; iha—in this material world; dhérau—one who has sober intelligence; türëam—immediately; yateta—should endeavor; na—not; patet—has fallen; anu-mâtyu—always subject to death; yävat—as long as; niùçreyasäya—for ultimate liberation; viñayaù—sense gratification; khalu—always; sarvataù—in all conditions; syät—is possible.

TRANSLATION

After many, many births and deaths one achieves the rare human form of life, which, although temporary, affords one the opportunity to attain the highest perfection. Thus a sober human being should quickly endeavor for the ultimate perfection of life as long as his body, which is always subject to death, has not fallen down and died. After all, sense gratification is available even in the most abominable species of life, whereas Kāñëa consciousness is possible only for a human being.

PURPORT

Material life essentially means repeated birth and death. Even the lowest forms of life, such as reptiles, insects, pigs and dogs, have ample opportunity for sense gratification. Even ordinary houseflies have a busy sex life and thus multiply rapidly. Human life, however, enables one to understand the Absolute Truth and is therefore full of grave responsibility. Since the valuable human life is not eternal, we should do the needful to achieve the highest perfection, Kāñëa consciousness. Before death appears, we should seriously cultivate our real self-interest.

One can experience Kāñëa consciousness in the association of devotees of the Lord. Without their association, one is in danger of being attracted to an impersonal conception of life, which causes one to fall away from devotional service to the Absolute Truth. Or, being discouraged by one's failure to understand the Absolute Truth, one may return to the false platform of sense gratification. In conclusion, human life is meant for cultivating Kāñëa consciousness under the guidance of the experienced, self-realized devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 30

WvaM s$aÄaAtavaEr"AgyaAe ivaÄaAnaAlaAek(@Atmaina ivacar"Aima mah"ImaetaAM mau.(s$aËÿAe'nah"x.~k{(ta:

evaà sai jäta-vairägyo

*vijī ānāloka ātmani vicarāmi mahēm etāà
mukta-sai go 'nahaì kâtaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; sai jâta—completely developed; vairāgyaù—detachment; vijī āna—realized knowledge; ālokaù—having vision; ātmani—in the Supreme Personality of Godhead; vicarāmi—I wander; mahēm—the earth; etām—this; mukta—freed; sai gaù—from attachment; anahaì kâtaù—without false ego.

TRANSLATION

Having learned from my spiritual masters, I remain situated in realization of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and, fully renounced and enlightened by realized spiritual knowledge, wander the earth without attachment or false ego.

TEXT 31

na ÷ek(smaAÖ"r"AeÁaARnaM s$auisTarM" syaAts$aupauSk(lama, "aöEtad"iã"talyaM vaE gAlyatae baò"DaiSaRiBa:

na hy ekasmäd guror jī ānaà su-sthiraà syāt su-puñkalam brahmaitad advitēyaà vai gēyate bahudharñibhiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; hi—certainly; ekasmät—from one; guroù—guru; jī ānam—knowledge; su-sthiram—very steady; syāt—can be; su-puñkalam—very complete; brahma—the Absolute Truth; etat—this;

advitéyam—one without a second; vai—certainly; géyate—is glorified; bahudhā—in many ways; āñibhiù—by the sages.

TRANSLATION

Although the Absolute Truth is one without a second, the sages have described Him in many different ways. Therefore one may not be able to acquire very firm or complete knowledge from one spiritual master.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé comments on this verse as follows. "The statement that one requires many spiritual masters certainly needs explanation, since practically all great saintly persons of the past did not take shelter of many spiritual masters, but rather accepted one. The words géyate bahudhāñibhiù, 'the Absolute Truth is glorified in many ways by the sages,' indicate the personal and impersonal understandings of the Absolute Truth. In other words, some sages describe only the Lord's impersonal effulgence, which is without spiritual variety, whereas others describe the Lord's manifest form as the Personality of Godhead. Thus, merely by hearing from many different authorities, one cannot actually learn the highest perfection of life. The proliferation of differing spiritual authorities is useful only to counteract the living entities' tendency to be grossly materialistic. Different spiritual philosophers create faith in the existence of the soul and may be accepted at that level. But as will be clarified in later verses, the spiritual master who ultimately gives perfect knowledge is one."

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé comments as follows on this verse. "Since it is commonly understood that one is to accept a single spiritual master, why is it recommended that one learn from many so-called spiritual masters appearing in the forms of ordinary material objects? The explanation is that one's worshipable spiritual master will instruct one in many departments of knowledge by giving lessons gleaned from ordinary objects. As recommended by the brähmaëa avadhüta, one can strengthen the teachings received from one's äcärya and avoid transgressing his orders by observing ordinary things in nature. One should not mechanically receive the teachings of one's guru. The disciple should be thoughtful and with his own intelligence realize in practice what he has heard from his spiritual master by observing the world around him. In this sense one may accept many gurus, though not those who preach against the knowledge received from the bona fide spiritual master. In other words, one should not hear from persons like the atheist Kapila."

Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura also comments on this verse, as follows. "It is stated in Çrémad-Bhägavatam, tasmäd guruà prapadyeta jijñäsuù çreya uttamam: [SB 11.3.21] 'Therefore one should approach a bona fide spiritual master if one actually desires to achieve the highest perfection in life.' Similarly, in Chapter Ten, verse 5 of this canto, the Personality of Godhead Himself states, mad-abhijñä guruà çäntam upäseta mad-ätmakam: 'One must serve a bona fide spiritual master who is in full knowledge of My personality and who is not different from Me.' There are many similar verses in Vedic literature indicating that one must take shelter of a single bona fide spiritual master. We also have the examples of innumerable great saintly persons who did not accept more than one spiritual master. Thus, it is a fact that we should accept one bona fide spiritual master and receive from him the particular mantra that one is to chant. I myself certainly follow this principle and worship my bona fide spiritual master. However, in worshipping one's äcärya, one may take help from good and bad examples. By observing examples of good behavior one will be strengthened in devotional service, and in seeing negative examples one will be forewarned and avoid danger. In this way, one may accept many ordinary material objects as one's spiritual masters, considering them as çikñä-gurus, or gurus who give important lessons for spiritual advancement."

Thus in the Lord's own words, mad-abhijñä guruà çäntam upäseta mad-ätmakam: one should approach a single bona fide spiritual master who is in full knowledge of the Lord's personality and sincerely worship him, considering him to be mad-ätmakam, or nondifferent from the Lord Himself. This statement does not contradict what the Lord has presented in the teachings of the avadhüta brähmaëa. If one receives the teachings of one's äcärya but keeps them locked up in his brain as theoretical dogma, one will make little advancement. To develop steady, complete knowledge one must see the teachings of one's ācārya everywhere; thus a Vaiñëava offers all respects to anyone or anything that gives him further enlightenment in the path of worshiping his bona fide ācārya, who is nondifferent from Lord Kāñëa.

Among the many gurus mentioned by the brāhmaëa, some give positive instructions and others give negative instructions. Piì galä the prostitute and the young girl who took off her bracelets provide examples of proper conduct, whereas the hapless pigeons and the foolish honeybee provide examples of behavior to be avoided. In both cases one's spiritual knowledge is enriched. Thus, one should not misunderstand the meaning of this verse in a way contradictory to the Lord's statement mad-abhijì aà guruà çäntam upäsëta mad-ätmakam (SB 11.10.5).

TEXT 32

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca wtyauftvaA s$a yaäuM" iva'as$a, tamaAmanṭya gABalr"Dal:
 vaind"ta: svaicaRtaAe r"AÁaA yayaAE 'altaAe yaTaAgAtama,

çré-bhagavän uväca
ity uktvä sa yaduà vipras tam ämantrya gabhéra-dhéu vanditaù sv-arcito räji ä yayau préto yathägatam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; iti—thus; uktvä—having spoken; saù—he; yadum—to King Yadu; vipraù—the brāhmaëa; tam—to the King; ämantrya—bidding farewell; gabhéra—extremely deep; dhéu—intelligence; vanditaù—being offered obeisances; su-arcitaù—being properly worshiped; räji ä—by the King;

yayau—he went; prētaù—with his mind satisfied; yathä—just as; ägatam—he had come.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: Having thus spoken to King Yadu, the wise brähmaëa accepted obeisances and worship from the King and felt pleased within himself. Then bidding farewell, he left exactly as he had come.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svämé gives evidence from Çrémad-Bhägavatam that the brähmaëa avadhüta was actually the incarnation of Godhead Dattätreya. The Bhägavatam (2.7.4) states, yat-päda-paì kaja-paräga-pavitra-dehä yogardhim äpur ubhayéà yadu-haihayädyaù

"Many Yadus, Haihayas, etc., became so purified, by the grace of the lotus feet of Dattätreya, the Lord, that they obtained both material and spiritual blessings." This verse mentions that Yadu was purified by contact with the lotus feet of Dattätreya, and similarly the present verse states, vandito sv-arcito räji ä: King Yadu worshiped the lotus feet of the brähmaëa. Thus, according to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the avadhüta brähmaëa is the Personality of Godhead Himself, and this is confirmed by Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura.

TEXT 33

@vaDaUtavaca: ™autvaA paUvaeRSaAM na: s$a paUvaRja:
s$avaRs$aËyivainamauR-(: s$amaicaÔaAe baBaUva h"

avadhüta-vacaù çrutvä pürveñää naù sa pürva-jaù sarva-saì ga-vinirmuktaù sama-citto babhüva ha

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

avadhüta—of the avadhüta brähmaëa; vacaù—the words; çrutvä—having heard; pürveñäm—of the ancestors; naù—our; saù—he; pürvajaù—himself a forefather; sarva—all; saì ga—from attachment; vinirmuktaù—being freed; sama-cittaù—with his consciousness on the spiritual platform and thus equal everywhere; babhüva—he became; ha—certainly.

TRANSLATION

O Uddhava, hearing the words of the avadhüta, the saintly King Yadu, who is the forefather of our own ancestors, became free from all material attachment, and thus his mind was evenly fixed on the spiritual platform.

PURPORT

Here the Lord praises His own dynasty, called Yadu-vaàça, because there appeared in that dynasty many great self-realized kings. King Yadu was enlightened by Dattätreya in the form of an avadhüta brähmaëa who taught the King to fix his consciousness on the spiritual platform of detachment by simply observing the creation of God.

Thus end the purports by the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda to the Eleventh Canto, Ninth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhägavatam, entitled "Detachment from All that Is Material."

10. The Nature of Fruitive Activity

In this chapter Lord Çré Kāñëa refutes the philosophy of the followers of Jaimini and describes to Uddhava how the spirit soul bound within the material body can develop pure transcendental knowledge.

The Vaiñëava, or one who has taken shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, should observe the rules and regulations found in the Pañcarātra and other revealed scriptures. According to his own natural qualities and work, he should follow the code of varëäçrama in a spirit free from motivation. The so-called knowledge received through one's material senses, mind and intelligence is as useless as the dreams experienced by a sleeping person attached to sense gratification. Therefore, one should give up work performed for sense gratification and accept work as a matter of duty. When one has come to understand something of the truth of the self, he should give up material work performed out of duty and simply engage himself in the service of the bona fide spiritual master, who is the manifest representative of the Personality of Godhead. The servant of the spiritual master should have very firm affection for his guru, should be anxious to receive from him knowledge of the Absolute Truth, and should be devoid of envy and the tendency to talk nonsense. The soul is distinct from the gross and subtle material bodies. The spirit soul who has entered into the material body accepts bodily functions according to the reactions of his own past activities. Therefore, only the bona fide, transcendental spiritual master is capable of demonstrating pure knowledge of the self.

The followers of Jaimini and other atheistic philosophers accept regulated material work as the purpose of life. But Kāñëa refutes this by explaining that the embodied soul who has come into contact with segmented material time takes upon himself a perpetual chain of births and deaths and is therefore forced to suffer the consequent happiness and distress. In this way there is no possibility that one who is attached to the fruits of his material work can achieve any substantial goal in life. The pleasures of heaven and other destinations, which are achieved by sacrificial rituals, can be experienced for only a short time. After one's enjoyment is finished, one must return to this mortal sphere to partake of lamentation and suffering. On the path of materialism there is certainly no uninterrupted or natural happiness.

TEXT 1

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
mayaAeid"taeSvavaih"ta:
svaDamaeRSau mad"A™aya: vaNAAR™amaku(laAcaAr"ma, @k(AmaAtmaA s$amaAcare"ta,

çré-bhagavān uvāca
mayoditeñv avahitaù
sva-dharmeñu mad-āçrayaù varëāçrama-kulācāram
akāmātmā samācaret

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; mayā—by Me; uditeñu—spoken; avahitaù—with great care; sva-dharmeñu—in the duties of devotional service to the Lord; mat-āçrayaù—one who accepts Me as shelter; varëa-āçrama—the Vedic system of social and occupational divisions; kula—of the society; ācāram—conduct; akāma—devoid of material desires; ātmā—such a person; samācaret—should practice.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: Taking full shelter in Me, with the mind carefully fixed in the devotional service of the Lord as spoken by Me, one should live without personal desire and practice the social and occupational system called varëäçrama.

PURPORT

In the previous chapters Lord Kåñëa described through the story of an avadhüta brähmaëa the qualities and character of a saintly person. Now the Lord describes the practical means for achieving such a saintly position. In the Païcarätra and other scriptures the Personality of Godhead gives instructions for executing devotional service. Similarly, in Bhagavad-gëtä (4.13) the Lord says, cätur-varëyaà mayä säññaà guëa-karma-vibhägaçaù: "I have personally created the varëäçrama system." There are innumerable rules and regulations in the varëäçrama system, and the devotee should execute those which do not contradict the process of devotional service. The term varëa indicates different classes of human beings, some in the mode of ignorance, some in the mode of passion and some in the mode of goodness. Devotional service to the Lord is executed on the liberated platform, and therefore some injunctions for those persons in passion and ignorance may be contradictory to the regulative principles for those on the liberated platform. Therefore, under the guidance of a bona fide spiritual master who is nondifferent from the Lord, one should execute the basic principles of varëäçrama in a way favorable for advancement in Kåñëa consciousness.

TEXT 2

@nval°aeta ivazAuÜ"AtmaA de"ih"naAM ivaSayaAtmanaAma, gAuNAeSau taÔvaDyaAnaena
s$avaARr"mBaivapayaRyama,

*anvékñeta viçuddhätmä dehinäà viñayätmanäm
guëëñu tattva-dhyänena
sarvärambha-viparyayam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

anvêkîeta—one should see; viçuddha—purified; âtmä—soul; dehinäm—of the embodied beings; viñaya-âtmanäm—of those who are dedicated to sense gratification; guëëñu—in the material objects of pleasure; tattva—as truth; dhyänena—by conceiving; sarva—of all; ârambha—endeavors; viparyayam—the inevitable failure.

TRANSLATION

A purified soul should see that because the conditioned souls who are dedicated to sense gratification have falsely accepted the objects of sense pleasure as truth, all of their endeavors are doomed to failure.

PURPORT

In this verse the Lord describes the process of becoming desireless. All material sense objects, including those perceived by their form, taste, flavor, touch or sound, are temporary. We now see our family and nation, but ultimately they will disappear. Even our own body, by which we perceive them, will disappear. Thus, the inevitable result of material enjoyment is viparyaya, or great suffering. The word viçuddhâtmä indicates those who have purified themselves by executing the regulative duties of devotional service. They can clearly see the hopeless frustration of material life, and thus they become akämâtmä, or great souls free from material desire.

TEXT 3

s$auæasya ivaSayaAlaAek(Ae DyaAyataAe vaA manaAer"Ta: naAnaAtmak(tvaAiã"P(las$a,
taTaA Baed"AtmaDalgAuRNAE:

suptasya viñayäloko

dhyäyato vä manorathaù nänätmakatväd viphalas tathä bhedätma-dhéù guëaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

suptasya—of one who is sleeping; viñaya—sense gratification; älokaù—seeing; dhyäyataù—of one who is meditating; vä—or; manaù-rathaù—merely a creation of the mind; nänä—a large variety; ätmakatvät—due to having the nature of; viphalaù—bereft of the real perfection; tathä—in that way; bheda-ätma—in that which is separately constituted; dhéù—intelligence; guëaiù—by the material senses.

TRANSLATION

One who is sleeping may see many objects of sense gratification in a dream, but such pleasurable things are merely creations of the mind and are thus ultimately useless. Similarly, the living entity who is asleep to his spiritual identity also sees many sense objects, but these innumerable objects of temporary gratification are creations of the Lord's illusory potency and have no permanent existence. One who meditates upon them, impelled by the senses, uselessly engages his intelligence.

PURPORT

Because the fruits of material work are temporary, it ultimately does not matter whether or not one obtains them; the final result is the same. Materialistic activities can never award the highest perfection of life, Kâñëa consciousness. The material intelligence, impelled by the senses, strongly desires sense gratification. As stated here (bhedätma-dhéù), such intelligence actually separates one from one's real self-interest. Thus the intelligence, absorbed in that which is materially favorable and unfavorable, becomes divided in pursuit of innumerable categories of material advancement. Such divided intelligence is impotent and cannot understand the Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead, Çré Kâñëa. The devotees of the Lord, however, have their intelligence fixed on one point—Lord Kāñëa. They meditate upon the Lord's form, qualities, pastimes and devotees, and thus their intelligence is never separated from the Absolute Truth. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (2.41):

*vyavasāyātmikā buddhir ekeha kuru-nandana
bahu-çākhā hy anantaç ca buddhayo 'vyavasāyinām*

"Those who are on this path are resolute in purpose, and their aim is one. O beloved child of the Kurus, the intelligence of those who are irresolute is many branched."

If one is not Kāñëa conscious, he is uselessly dreaming without any understanding of his eternal situation. The material intelligence will always devise novel means of achieving happiness, and therefore one bounces from one fruitless program of sense gratification to another, ignoring the simple fact that all material things are temporary and will disappear. In this way one's intelligence becomes infected with material lust and greed, and such infected intelligence cannot bring one to the true goal of life. One should hear from the bona fide spiritual master whose intelligence is pure, and then one will come to Kāñëa consciousness, the highest perfection of life.

TEXT 4

*inava{ÔaM k(maR s$aevaeta
'ava{ÔaM matpar"styajaeta, ijaÁaAs$aAyaAM s$am'ava{ÔaAe naAi%"yaetk(maRcaAed"naAma,*

nivāṭṭaà karma seveta pravāṭṭaà mat-paras tyajet jijī āsāyāà sampravāṭṭo nādrīyet karma-codanām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nivāttam—regulative duties; karma—such work; seveta—one should perform; pravāttam—activities for sense gratification; mat-paraù—one who is dedicated to Me; tyajet—should give up; jijī'āsāyām—in searching for spiritual truth; sampravāttaù—being perfectly engaged; na—not; ādriyet—one should accept; karma—any material activity; codanām—injunctions governing.

TRANSLATION

One who has fixed Me within his mind as the goal of life should give up activities based on sense gratification and should instead execute work governed by the regulative principles for advancement. When, however, one is fully engaged in searching out the ultimate truth of the soul, one should not accept the scriptural injunctions governing fruitive activities.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura explains that the words jijī'āsāyāà sampravāttaù refer to one who is yoga-ärüòha, or advanced in the yoga process. In Bhagavad-gētā (6.3-4) it is stated:

*ärurukñor muner yogaà karma kâraëam ucyate yogärüòhasya tasyaiva
çamaù kâraëam ucyate*

yadä hi nendriyärtheñu na karmasv anuñajjate sarva-saì kalpa-sannyäsä yogärüòhas tadocyate

"For one who is a neophyte in the eightfold yoga system, work is said to be the means; and for one who has already attained to yoga, cessation of all material activities is said to be the means. A person is said to have attained to yoga when, having renounced all material desires, he neither acts for sense gratification nor engages in fruitive activities." The example may be given that an ordinary man will try to enjoy the company of women for material sense pleasure. This is called pravāṭṭa-karma, or the path of sense gratification. A religious person will also enjoy the company of a woman, but under the regulative principles of the varēācrama system. However, one who is fully absorbed in spiritual advancement will ultimately give up all sense gratification derived from sexual association, either regulated or illicit. Similarly, in the stage of pravāṭṭa-karma, or ordinary sense gratification, one will eat whatever pleases his tongue. On the other hand, a materialistic devotee will sometimes cook sumptuous preparations and offer them to the Deity, not in order to satisfy the Lord but rather with the intention of satisfying his own tongue and belly. However, one who is sampravāṭṭa, or fully engaged in spiritual consciousness, is never interested in simply gratifying his tongue. He avoids ordinary foods prepared by materialistic persons, and just for the purpose of keeping his body fit for serving Kāñṇēa he eats moderate quantities of food that has first been offered to the Deity for the Deity's pleasure.

The process of spiritual realization gradually brings a conditioned soul from the lowest point of materialistic consciousness to total absorption in loving service to the Personality of Godhead. In the beginning one is taught to dovetail one's enjoying propensities by first offering to the Lord the fruit of one's work. In the advanced stage, however, the impulse to execute fruitive activities (karma-codanām) is absent, and one simply engages in the loving service of the Lord without any selfish motive. For example, a renounced sannyāsī preaching Kāñṇēa consciousness, or even a renounced householder preaching Kāñṇēa consciousness, is not required to execute all of the injunctions governing sense gratification in family life. Ultimately, every human being should take to the transcendental duties of Kāñṇēa consciousness. Rather than working to fulfill one's own desires and then offering the results to Kāñṇēa, one should fully engage in pleasing the Lord directly according to His own intimate desires.

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, any attempt to enjoy the material world, either religiously or irreligiously, ultimately will be full of contradictions. One should come to the platform of desirelessness, pure love of Godhead, and thus solve all of the problems of life.

TEXT 5

yamaAnaBaI°NAM s$aevaeta inayamaAnmatpar": ,(icata, mad"iBaÁaM gAuçM& zAAntama, opaAs$alta mad"Atmak(ma,

yamān abhékñēaà seveta
niyamān mat-paraù kvacit mad-abhijī aà guruà çāntam upāsēta mad-ātmakam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yamān—major regulative principles, such as not to kill; abhékñēam—always; seveta—one should observe; niyamān—minor regulations, such as cleansing the body; mat-paraù—one who is devoted to Me; kvacit—as far as possible; mat-abhijī am—one who knows Me as I am in My personal form; gurum—the spiritual master; çāntam—peaceful; upāsēta—one should serve; mat-ātmakam—who is not different from Me.

TRANSLATION

One who has accepted Me as the supreme goal of life should strictly observe the scriptural injunctions forbidding sinful activities and, as far as possible, should execute the injunctions prescribing minor regulative duties such as cleanliness. Ultimately, however, one should approach a bona fide spiritual master who is full in knowledge of Me as I am, who is peaceful, and who by spiritual elevation is not different from Me.

PURPORT

The word yamān refers to major regulative injunctions necessary for preserving one's purity. In the Kāñhā consciousness movement all bona fide members must give up eating meat, fish and eggs, and they must also avoid intoxication, gambling and illicit sex. The word abhékñēam indicates that one cannot at any time perform such forbidden activities, even in difficult circumstances. The word niyamān refers to less obligatory injunctions, such as bathing three times daily. In certain difficult situations one may not bathe three times daily yet may still maintain one's spiritual position. But if one engages in sinful, forbidden activities, even in difficult circumstances, there undoubtedly will be a spiritual falldown. Ultimately, as explained in Upadeçāmāta, mere adherence to rules and regulations cannot give one spiritual perfection. One must approach a bona fide spiritual master who is mad-abhijī am, or in full knowledge of the personal form of Godhead. The word mat ("Me") negates the possibility of a bona fide spiritual master having an impersonal conception of the Absolute Truth. Furthermore, the guru must be in complete control of his senses; therefore he is called çānta, or peaceful. Because of being completely surrendered to the mission of the Lord, such a spiritual master is mad-ātmakam, or nondifferent from the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 6

@maAnyamats$ar"Ae d"°aAe inamaRmaAe ä{"X#s$aAEô$d": @s$atvar"Ae'TaRijaÁaAs$aur," @nas$aUyaur"maAeGavaAk,( amāny amatsaro dakñō nirmamo dāòha-sauhādaù

asatvaro 'rtha-jijī' āsur anasüyur amogha-vāk

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

amānt—without false ego; amatsaraù—not considering oneself to be the doer; dakñāù—without laziness; nirmamaù—without any sense of proprietorship over one's wife, children, home, society, etc.; dāòha-sauhādaù—being fixed in the mood of loving friendship with the spiritual master, who is one's worshipable deity; asatvaraù—without becoming bewildered due to material passion; artha-jijī āsuù—desiring knowledge of the Absolute Truth; anasüyuù—free from envy; amogha-vāk—completely free from useless conversation.

TRANSLATION

The servant or disciple of the spiritual master should be free from false prestige, never considering himself to be the doer. He should be active and never lazy and should give up all sense of proprietorship over the objects of the senses, including his wife, children, home and society. He should be endowed with feelings of loving friendship toward the spiritual master and should never become deviated or bewildered. The servant or disciple should always desire advancement in spiritual understanding, should not envy anyone and should always avoid useless conversation.

PURPORT

No one can claim to be the permanent proprietor of his so-called wife, family, home, society, and so on. Such material relationships appear and disappear like bubbles on the surface of the ocean. No one can claim to be the creator of the material elements that produced one's home, society and family. If it were a fact that parents were the ultimate creators of the bodies of their children, children would never die before their parents; the parents would simply create new bodies for the children. Similarly, parents would also not die, because they would create new bodies for themselves to replace the old ones. Actually, God creates everyone's bodies as well as the material elements with which we build our material societies. Therefore, before death drags these things out of our grasp, we should voluntarily engage them in the loving service of the spiritual master, who is the bona fide representative of Lord Kåñëa. Then such material objects, instead of causing lamentation, will be the cause of happiness.

TEXT 7

jaAyaApatyagA{h"°aeṭasvajana%"ivaNAAd"Sau
od"As$alna: s$amaM pazyana, s$avaeRSvaTaRimavaAtmana:

*jäyāpatya-gāha-kñetra-svajana-draviëädiñu udäsénaù samaà paçyan
sarveñv artham ivätmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jäyā—to wife; apatya—children; gāha—home; kñetra—land; svajana—relatives and friends; draviëa—bank account; ädiñu—and so on;
udäsénaù—remaining indifferent; samam—equally; paçyan—seeing;
sarveñu—in all of these; artham—purpose; iva—like; ätmanaù—of oneself.

TRANSLATION

One should see one's real self-interest in life in all circumstances and should therefore remain detached from wife, children, home, land, relatives, friends, wealth and so on.

PURPORT

A devotee of the Lord recognizes that his wife, children, home, land, friends and money are meant to be engaged in the loving service of the Supreme Lord. Therefore, he does not frantically make arrangements for the sense gratification of his family and friends. He is not eager to enjoy the false prestige of being the master of his wife and the lord of his children, nor is he anxious to gain prestige from his friends and society. Thus he does not envy anyone and is not lazy in the matter of self-realization. He is free from the false sense of proprietorship and is always eager to develop his understanding of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. He is free from false egotism and automatically turns away from useless materialistic conversation. Thus he is steady and not whimsical, and he is always firmly situated in loving friendship at the lotus feet of the spiritual master.

The question may be raised as to how one can develop freedom from false proprietorship. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura has given the following example. An ordinary man is very eager to accumulate more and more money, and he maintains his wealth in the form of stocks, bonds, securities, bank accounts, properties, gold, and so on. As long as these different assets are contributing to his financial well-being, he sees them equally and considers that they belong to him. But if some of his assets are taken by the government for taxes, or if they are lost in an unfortunate business arrangement, then he is forced to give up his sense of proprietorship. In the same way, everyone should be intelligent enough to observe that one's sense of ownership over innumerable material objects is not permanent; therefore one should develop detachment from these things. If one does not cultivate a loving feeling of friendship for the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His pure devotee, the spiritual master, one will undoubtedly be entangled by the network of material society, friendship and love. One will then remain bound up on the material platform with no hope of permanent happiness.

TEXT 8

ivala^oaNA: sTaUlas$aU^omaAä," de"h"Ad"Atmaei^oataA svaä{"k,( yaTaAiçad"ARç&NA Ae d"A÷Aä," d"Ah"k(Ae'nya: 'ak(AzAk(:

vilakñāēau sthūla-sūkñmāo

dehäd ätmekñitā sva-dāk yathāgnir dāruëo dāhyäd dähako 'nyaù prakāçakaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vilakñäëaù—having different characteristics; sthüla—from the gross; sükñmät—and the subtle; dehät—from the body; ätmä—the spirit soul; ékñitā—the seer; sva-dāk—self-enlightened; yathä—just as; agniù—fire; dāruëaù—from firewood; dāhyät—from that which is to be burned; dähakaù—that which burns; anyaù—other; prakāçakaù—that which illuminates.

TRANSLATION

Just as fire, which burns and illuminates, is different from firewood, which is to be burned to give illumination, similarly the seer within the body, the self-enlightened spirit soul, is different from the material body, which is to be illuminated by consciousness. Thus the spirit soul and the body possess different characteristics and are separate entities.

PURPORT

It is analytically demonstrated in this verse that one should never falsely identify the ego with the material body. Such misidentification is called false ego, or material illusion. The following question may be raised. Since it is commonly known that the Supreme Personality of Godhead enlightens the conditioned soul, why is the term sva-dāk, or "self enlightened," used in this verse? Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains that although the Supreme Personality of Godhead certainly furnishes consciousness to the living entity, the living entity, being endowed with the potency of the Lord has himself the capacity to revive and expand his pure consciousness. He may therefore be considered, in a secondary sense, self-enlightened. The example may be given that gold or silver domes brilliantly reflect the rays of the sun. Although the light comes from the sun, the inherent properties of gold and silver can also be considered causes for the brilliant reflection, since other substances do not possess suitable properties to reflect the sun's light. Similarly, the spirit soul can be considered sva-dâk, or self-enlightened, because he possesses characteristics by which he can brilliantly reflect the potency of the Personality of Godhead, thus illuminating his existential situation, just as a gold or silver dome shines due to its reflective properties.

A nice example is given in this verse to illustrate the different characteristics of the body and soul. Fire, which burns and illuminates, is always different from that which is burned for illumination. It may be said, however, that fire is present in an unmanifest form within wood. Similarly, in the conditioned life of ignorance, the spirit soul is present, though unmanifest, within the body. The enlightened condition of the living entity can be compared to the act of arousing fire within wood. Just as fire quickly burns wood to ashes, similarly the spirit soul, when enlightened, burns to ashes the darkness of ignorance. We are conscious of the body; therefore it may be said that the body is illuminated by consciousness, which is the energy, or symptom, of the spirit soul. Identifying the body and soul as one is just as foolish as considering fire and wood to be the same. In both cases, the intimate circumstantial connection between fire and wood or between the soul and the body does not alter the fact that fire is different from wood or that the soul is always different from the body.

TEXT 9

inar"AeDaAetpaÔyaNAuba{h"na,- naAnaAtvaM tat{k{(taAna, gAuNAAna, @nta: 'aivaí" @ADaÔa WvaM de"h"gAuNAAna, par":

*nirodhotpatty-aëu-bâhan-nânâtvaà tat-kâtân guëän antaù praviñña ädhatta
evaà deha-guëän paraù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nirodha—dormancy; utpatti—manifestation; aëu—tiny; bâhat—large; nânâtvam—the variety of characteristics; tat-kâtân—produced by that; guëän—qualities; antaù—within; praviññaù—having entered; ädhatte—accepts; evam—thus; deha—of the material body; guëän—qualities; paraù—the transcendental entity.

TRANSLATION

Just as fire may appear differently as dormant, manifest, weak, brilliant and so on, according to the condition of the fuel, similarly, the spirit soul enters a material body and accepts particular bodily characteristics.

PURPORT

Although fire may appear and disappear within a particular object, the element fire always exists. Similarly, the eternal soul appears within a suitable body and then disappears from that body, but the soul always exists. Just as fire is different from its fuel, the soul is different from the body. A match makes a tiny fire, whereas the explosion of a huge gasoline tank will send flames shooting up into the sky. But still, fire is one. Similarly, one spirit soul may appear in the body of Brahmä and another in the body of an ant, but the spirit soul is qualitatively the same in every body. Because of ignorance we impose the bodily characteristics upon the soul, and thus we say that a particular person is American, Russian, Chinese, African or Mexican or that he is old or young. Although such designations certainly apply to the body, they do not apply to the spirit soul, which is described here as paraù, or a transcendental entity. As long as the bewildered spirit soul remains inimical to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the designations of the gross and subtle bodies will wrap themselves around him, keeping him in darkness. If one intellectually identifies oneself with various materialistic philosophies of life, he becomes covered by the subtle mind. Ultimately everything that exists is part and parcel of the Absolute Truth, Lord Kāñëa. When the living entity realizes this, he becomes nirupādhi, or free from material designations. This is his constitutional position.

TEXT 10

yaAe's$aAE gAuNAEivaRr"icataAe de"h"Ae'yaM pauç&Sasya ih" s$aMs$aAr"stai^aabanDaAe'yaM pauMs$aAe ivaâA icC$d"Atmana:

yo 'sau guëair viracito deho 'yaà puruñasya hi saàsāras tan-nibandho 'yaà puàso vidyā cchid ātmanaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—which; asau—that(subtle body); guëaiù—by the material modes; viracitaù—constructed; dehaù—the body; ayam—this (gross body); puruñasya—of the Supreme Personality of Godhead; hi—certainly; saàsāraù—material existence; tat-nibandhaù—tied to that; ayam—this; puàsaù—of the living entity; vidyā—knowledge; chit—that which cuts apart; ātmanaù—of the soul.

TRANSLATION

The subtle and gross material bodies are created by the material modes of nature, which expand from the potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Material existence occurs when the living entity falsely accepts the qualities of the gross and subtle bodies as being his own factual nature. This illusory state, however, can be destroyed by real knowledge.

PURPORT

Regarding the analogy comparing fire and its fuel to the soul and the body, one may argue that to some extent fire is dependent upon its fuel and cannot exist without it. Since we do not experience the existence of fire independent of fuel, one may therefore still question how it is possible for the living entity to exist separately from the body, become covered by it and eventually become free from it. Only through the Supreme Personality of Godhead's knowledge potency (vidyā) can one clearly understand the nature of the living entity. By vidyā, or real knowledge, one may cut material existence to pieces and even in this lifetime experience spiritual reality. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura, our material existence is an artificial imposition. By the Lord's inconceivable potency of nescience, the qualities of gross and subtle material forms are psychologically imposed upon the living being, and because of misidentification with the body, the living entity initiates a series of illusory activities. As explained in the previous chapter, the present material body is like a tree that produces the karmic seed of the next body. However, this cycle of ignorance can be cut to pieces by the transcendental knowledge explained by the Lord.

Unfortunately, the conditioned souls, being inimical to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, do not accept the perfect knowledge spoken by the Lord. Instead they remain absorbed in gross and subtle illusion. But if the living entity accepts the Lord's knowledge, his whole situation can be rectified, and he can return to his original, eternal, blissful life of perfect knowledge in the direct association of the Lord.

TEXT 11

tasmaAiÀaÁaAs$ayaAtmaAnama, @AtmasTaM ke(valaM par"ma, s$aËÿmya inar"s$aede"taä," vastaubaiÜM" yaTaA,(mama,

tasmäj jiji āsayātmānam ātma-sthaà kevalaà param saì gamya nirased etad vastu-buddhià yathā-kramam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmāt—therefore; jijī āsayā—by the cultivation of knowledge; ātmānam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; ātma—within oneself; satham—situated; kevalam—pure; param—transcendental and supreme; saī gamya—approaching by realized knowledge; niraset—one should give up; etat—this; vastu—within material objects; buddhim—concept of reality; yathā-kramam—gradually, step by step.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, by the cultivation of knowledge one should approach the Supreme Personality of Godhead situated within oneself. By understanding the Lord's pure, transcendental existence, one should gradually give up the false vision of the material world as independent reality.

PURPORT

The word yathā-kramam ("step by step") means that after first realizing oneself to be different from the gross material body one should then progressively detach oneself from material mental activities. In this verse etat vastu-buddhim means seeing the material world as existing independently rather than correctly seeing all things as emanations of the Absolute Truth.

When one correctly identifies oneself as eternal spiritual form, one achieves the real fruit of knowledge. The Lord is eternally manifest in His eternal form, and the living entity is similarly manifest in his eternal form as the loving servitor of the Lord. When we falsely assume that temporary, illusory material objects are real, knowledge of our eternal spiritual form is covered by ignorance. If, however, one meditates upon the Lord's supreme presence within everything, one can return to the normal, blissful state of spiritual life. Every human being should seriously endeavor to understand the Absolute Truth, as indicated in this verse by the word jijī āsayā.

TEXT 12

@AcaAyaAeR'r"iNAr"Aâ: syaAä," @ntaevaAsyauÔar"Ar"iNA:
tats$anDaAnaM 'avacanaM ivaâAs$ainDa: s$auKaAvah":

âcārya 'raëir ädyaù syäd ante-väsy uttaräraëiù tat-sandhānaà pravacanaà vidyā-sandhiù sukhāvahaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

âcāryaù—the spiritual master; araëiù—sacred kindling wood used in the sacrificial fire; ädyaù—held beneath; syät—is to be considered; ante-väse—the disciple; uttara—at the top; araëiù—kindling wood; tat-sandhānam—the stick in the middle, which connects the upper and lower wood; pravacanam—instructions; vidyā—transcendental knowledge; sandhiù—like the fire, arising from the friction, that spreads throughout the firewood; sukha—happiness; ävahaù—bringing.

TRANSLATION

The spiritual master can be compared to the lower kindling stick, the disciple to the upper kindling stick, and the instruction given by the guru to the third stick placed in between. The transcendental knowledge communicated from guru to disciple is compared to the fire arising from the contact of these, which burns the darkness of ignorance to ashes, bringing great happiness both to guru and disciple.

PURPORT

When the darkness of ignorance is burned to ashes, the dangerous life of ignorance is also eradicated, and one can work for his true self-interest in full knowledge. In this verse the word ädyaù means "original" and it indicates the spiritual master, who is compared to the sacred kindling stick held below. From the spiritual master transcendental knowledge, like fire, is spread to the disciple. Just as friction between two sticks of firewood produces fire, similarly, bona fide contact between the spiritual master, who is the representative of Kāñëa, and a sincere disciple produces the fire of knowledge. When the disciple takes shelter of the lotus feet of the spiritual master, he automatically acquires perfect knowledge of his original, spiritual form.

TEXT 13

vaEzAAr"d"I s$aAitaivazAuÜ"bauÜ"r," DaunaAeita maAyaAM gAuNAs$am'as$aUtaAma, gAunaAMê s$and"÷ yad"Atmamaetata, svayaM ca zAAMyatyas$aimaâTaAiç:

vaiçäradé säti-viçuddha-buddhir dhunoti mâyäà guëa-samprasütäm gunäàç ca sandahya yad-ätmam etat svayaà ca çäàyaty asamid yathägniù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vaiçäradé—available from the expert; sä—this; ati-viçuddha—most pure; buddhiù—intelligence or knowledge; dhunoti—repels; mâyäm—illusion; guëa—from the modes of material nature; samprasütäm—produced; guëän—the modes of nature themselves; ca—also; sandahya—completely burning up; yat—from which modes; ätmam—constituted; etat—this (material existence); svayam—itself; ca—also; çäàyati—is pacified; asamit—without fuel; yathä—just as; agniù—fire.

TRANSLATION

By submissively hearing from an expert spiritual master, the expert disciple develops pure knowledge, which repels the onslaught of material illusion arising from the three modes of material nature. Finally this pure knowledge itself ceases, just as fire ceases when the stock of fuel has been consumed.

PURPORT

The Sanskrit word vaiçāradē means "that which is derived from the expert [viçārada]." Perfect transcendental knowledge comes from the expert spiritual master, and when such knowledge is heard by the expert disciple, it curbs the waves of material illusion. Since the Lord's illusory energy acts eternally within the material world, there is no possibility of destroying illusion. One may, however, destroy the presence of illusion within one's own heart. To accomplish this the disciple must become expert in pleasing the expert spiritual master. As one advances to the perfectional stage of Kāñëa consciousness, experiencing the presence of the Lord everywhere, one's attention shifts to the transcendental platform. At that time, pure knowledge itself, one's constant technical awareness of illusion, diminishes, just as fire diminishes and is extinguished after consuming its stock of fuel.

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from several Vedic scriptures to show that māyā, or material illusion, is just like a witch who always haunts the conditioned souls. Māyā offers the conditioned souls whatever they like within the three modes of nature, but such offerings are all just like fire that burns the heart to ashes. Therefore, one must understand that the material world is a hellish place, offering a permanent situation to no one. Externally we experience many things, and internally we contemplate our experience, formulating plans for future action. Thus internally and externally we are victims of ignorance. Real knowledge comes from the Vedas, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead in His form of perfect wisdom. If we become fully Kāñëa conscious, taking complete shelter of the Lord, there will be no scarcity of pleasure, because the Lord is the reservoir of all pleasure, and His devotees freely move within that reservoir.

TEXTS 14-16

@TaESaAmk(maRk(ta|RNAAM
BaAe·|(NAAM s$auKaäu":KayaAe:
naAnaAtvamaTa inatyatvaM laAek(k(AlaAgAmaAtmanaAma, manyas$ae s$avaRBaAvaAnaAM s$aMsTaA ÷AEtpaiÔak(L yaTaA taÔad"Ak{(itaBaede"na

jaAyatae iBaâtae ca Dal:

WvamapyaËÿ s$avaeRSaAM de"ih"naAM de"h"yaAegAta:
k(AlaAvayavata: s$ainta BaAvaA janmaAd"yaAe's$ak{(ta,

athaiñām karma-kartëääà bhoktëääà sukha-duùkhayou nānātvam atha nityatvaà loka-kālāgamātmanām

manyase sarva-bhävänäà saàsthā hy autpattiké yathā tat-tad-ākāti-bhedena jāyate bhidyate ca dhéu

*evam apy aī ga sarveñääà dehinääà deha-yogataù kālāvayavataù santi
bhävä janmādayo 'sakāt*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atha—thus; eñām—of those; karma—fruitive activities; kartëääm—of the performers; bhoktëääm—of the enjoyers; sukha-duùkhayou—of happiness and distress; nānātvam—variegatedness; atha—moreover; nityatvam—perpetual existence; loka—of the materialistic world;

kāla—material time; āgama—Vedic literatures recommending fruitive activities; ātmanām—and the self; manyase—if you think; sarva—of all; bhävānām—material objects; saàsthā—the actual situation; hi—certainly; autpattikē—original; yathā—as; tat-tat—of all different objects; ākāti—of their forms; bhedena—by the difference; jāyate—is born; bhidyate—and changes; ca—also; dhēū—intelligence or knowledge; evam—thus; api—even though; aī ga—O Uddhava; sarveṇām—of all; dehinām—embodied beings; deha-yogataū—by contact with a material body; kāla—of time; avayavataū—by the portions or limbs; santi—there are; bhävāū—states of existence; janma—birth; ādayaū—and so on; asakāt—constantly.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, I have thus explained to you perfect knowledge. There are philosophers, however, who challenge My conclusion. They state that the natural position of the living entity is to engage in fruitive activities, and they see him as the enjoyer of the happiness and unhappiness that accrue from his own work. According to this materialistic philosophy, the world, time, the revealed scriptures and the self are all variegated and eternal, existing as a perpetual flow of transformations. Knowledge, moreover, cannot be one or eternal, because it arises from the different and changing forms of objects; thus knowledge itself is always subject to change. Even if you accept such a philosophy, My dear Uddhava, there will still be perpetual birth, death, old age and disease, since all living entities must accept a material body subject to the influence of time.

PURPORT

In this verse, according to Ṣṛēla Viṣvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura, Lord Kāñēa speaks the following to Uddhava. "My dear Uddhava, I have clearly established the actual goal of life in the instructions I have just imparted to you. There are those, however, who challenge My conclusion, especially the followers of Jaimini Kavi. If you are favorable to their understanding and thus do not accept My instructions, then kindly hear the following explanation.

"According to the followers of Jaimini, the living entity is originally and naturally a performer of fruitive activities, and his happiness and distress are derived from the fruits of his own work. The world in which the living entities find their enjoyment, the time during which they enjoy, the revealed scriptures that explain the means for achieving enjoyment, and the subtle bodies through which the living entities experience enjoyment all exist not only in manifold variety but also eternally.

"The living entity need not develop detachment from material sense gratification, either by seeing the temporariness of individual material objects and situations or by seeing the material world as an illusory creation (māyā). According to such materialistic philosophy, material objects such as garlands, sandalwood or beautiful women are temporary in specific manifestations but perpetually exist through the natural flow of creation and destruction. In other words, although a particular woman's form is temporary, there will eternally be beautiful women within the material world. Thus, by carefully executing fruitive rituals according to religious scriptures, one can maintain enjoyable contact with women and wealth life after life. In this way one's sense gratification will be eternal.

"The Jaimini philosophers further say that there never was a time when the world did not exist as it does today, which implies that there is no supreme controller who has created it. They claim that the arrangement of this world is real and appropriate and thus is not illusory. Moreover, they say that there is no eternal knowledge of an original perpetual form of the soul. In fact, they say, knowledge arises not from some absolute truth but from the differences among material objects. Knowledge therefore is not eternal and is subject to change. The assumption hidden in this statement is that there is no spirit soul who possesses eternal, constant knowledge of a single, unchanging reality. Rather, the nature of consciousness or knowledge is that it undergoes constant transformation. They state, however, that eternality is not refuted by the perpetually transforming nature of consciousness. Consciousness perpetually exists, they say, but not in the same form.

"Thus, the followers of Jaimini conclude that the transformation of knowledge does not negate its eternality; rather, they state that knowledge eternally exists within the perpetual nature of its transformation. They therefore naturally come to the path of regulated sense gratification rather than the path of renunciation, for in the state of mukti, or liberation, the living entity would not have any material senses, and thus the transformation of material understanding would not be possible. Such philosophers consider that the achievement of an unchanging state of mukti would stunt or paralyze the natural activity of the living entity and thus would not be in his self-interest. The path of nivātti (aiming toward renunciation and transcendence of the material world) is naturally not interesting to such materialistic philosophers. Accepting for argument's sake the validity of such materialistic philosophy, one can easily demonstrate that the path of regulated sense gratification brings many unwanted and miserable results to the living entity. Therefore even from a materialistic viewpoint, detachment is desirable. Material time is divided into different sections such as days, weeks, months and years, and by material time the living entity is repeatedly forced to undergo the miseries of birth, death, old age and disease. That such real miseries occur everywhere throughout the universe is well known." In this way, states Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, Lord Kāñëa has pointed out the defect of materialistic philosophy to Uddhava.

We may further elaborate that if one falsely accepts the atheistic philosophy of Jaimini and his innumerable modern followers. then the living entity perpetually remains entangled in the anguish of birth, death, old age and disease. This bogus, atheistic philosophy encourages material gratification as the only logical goal of life, but the living entity will inevitably commit mistakes in the execution of regulated sense gratification and eventually go to hell. The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāñëa, personally tells Uddhava that this materialistic philosophy is false and irrelevant to the actual self-interest of the living entity.

TEXT 17

taṭṭaAipa k(maRNAAM k(tauRr," @svaAtanṭyaM ca la°yatae BaAe-u(ê äü":Kas$auKayaAe:
k(Ae nvaTaAeR ivavazAM Bajaeta,

taträpi karmaëää kartur asvātantryaà ca lakñyate bhoktuç ca duùkha-sukhayoü ko nv artho vivaçaà bhajet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tatra—in the matter of one's ability to obtain happiness; api—furthermore; karmaëäm—of fruitive activities; kartuü—of the performer; asvātantryam—the lack of independence; ca—also; lakñyate—is clearly seen; bhoktuü—of the one who is trying to enjoy; ca—also; duùkha-sukhayoü—happiness and unhappiness; kaü—what; nu—indeed; arthaü—value; vivaçam—for one who is not in control; bhajet—can be derived.

TRANSLATION

Although the performer of fruitive activities desires perpetual happiness, it is clearly observed that materialistic workers are often unhappy and only occasionally satisfied, thus proving that they are not independent or in control of their destiny. When a person is always under the superior control of another, how can he expect any valuable results from his own fruitive actions?

PURPORT

Although materialistic persons reject Kāñëa consciousness and instead pursue temporary sense gratification, even that sense gratification is often beyond their reach. If a person could really control his destiny, why would he create problems for himself? No intelligent person would impose death, old age or disease upon himself or his loved ones. One should recognize that these unwanted miseries are forced upon one by a higher power. Since we are all obviously under superior control, the atheistic philosophy advising one to simply perform fruitive activities and create a happy life is most imperfect.

Due to the influence of time, happiness and misery are created. When a woman becomes pregnant, her husband, relatives and friends eagerly await the birth of the child. As time passes and the child is born, everyone feels great happiness. But as the child grows into old age and eventually dies, that same passage of time is a cause of suffering. Ignorant persons vainly seek help from scientists who work feverishly and fruitlessly in their laboratories to stop death. In modern times, inventions have been created to eliminate the inconveniences of life, but the maintenance and production of such conveniences has proven to be unbearably inconvenient for hundreds of millions of people throughout the world. Only the most foolish person will propose that there is no superior controller and that one can achieve favorable results by expert performance of material activities. Ultimately all material activities are useless because they end in annihilation. If one is driving a car but has only limited control, the situation is most dangerous and must lead inevitably to disaster. Similarly, although we are trying to direct the material body to happiness, we are not in full control of the bodily demands, and therefore there will inevitably be disaster. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (9.3), *açraddadhānāu puruṇā

dharmasyāsya parantapa aprāpya māà nivartante
mātyu-saàsāra-vartmani*

"Those who are not faithful on the path of devotional service cannot attain Me, O conqueror of foes, but return to birth and death in this material world." If one is not a devotee of Lord Kāṇēa, the eventual result of his activities is simply mātyu-saàsāra-repeated birth and death.

TEXT 18

na de"ih"naAM s$auKaM ik(iÂÄä," ivaâtae ivaäu"SaAmaipa taTaA ca äu":KaM maUX#AnaAM va{TaAh"Æÿr"NAM par"ma, na dehināà sukhaà kii cid vidyate viduñām api tathā ca duḥkhaà müòhānāà vāthāhaì karaëaà param

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; dehinām—of embodied beings; sukham—happiness; kii cid—some; vidyate—there is; viduñām—of those who are intelligent; api—even; tathā—similarly; ca—also; duḥkham—unhappiness; müòhānām—of the big fools; vāthā—useless; ahaì karaëam—false ego; param—only, or completely.

TRANSLATION

It is observed within the material world that sometimes even an intelligent person is not happy. Similarly, sometimes even a great fool is happy. The concept of becoming happy through expertly performing material activities is simply a useless exhibition of false egotism.

PURPORT

It may be argued that an intelligent person can expertly perform pious activities within the material world and thus never experience suffering, since unhappiness is caused by sinful or impious activities. However, we often observe great suffering even among pious, intelligent persons, because they sometimes fail in the execution of their duty and sometimes consciously or unconsciously perform a forbidden activity. With this argument the Lord refutes the theory that simply on the strength of material piety one may remain perpetually happy without Kāñëa consciousness.

On the other hand, we observe that even the most foolish or sinful persons sometimes experience happiness, because even those completely dedicated to sin sometimes accidentally perform pious activities by inadvertently traveling through a holy place or helping a saintly person. The material creation of God is so complex and bewildering that even those dedicated to piety sometimes commit sins, and even those dedicated to sinful life sometimes perform pious actions. Therefore, within the material world we do not find absolute happiness or unhappiness. Rather, every conditioned soul is hovering in confusion, without perfect knowledge. Piety and sin are relative material ideas that bestow relative happiness and unhappiness. Absolute happiness is experienced on the spiritual platform in full Kāñëa consciousness, or love of God. Thus material life is always ambiguous and relative, whereas Kāñëa consciousness is the actual platform of perfect happiness.

TEXT 19

yaid" 'aAiæaM ivaGaAtaM ca jaAnainta s$auKaäu":KayaAe:
tae'pyaÜ"A na ivaäu"yaAeRgAM ma{tyaunaR 'aBavaeâTaA

yadi prāptià vighātaà ca jānanti sukha-duùkhayoù te 'py addhā na vidur yogaà mātyur na prabhaved yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadi—if; prāptim—achievement; vighātam—removal; ca—also;
jānanti—they know; sukha—of happiness; duùkhayoù—and of distress;
te—they; api—still; addhā—directly; na—not; viduù—do know; yogam—the process; mātyuù—death; na—not; prabhavet—would exert its power; yathā—by which.

TRANSLATION

Even if people know how to achieve happiness and avoid unhappiness, they still do not know the process by which death will not be able to exert its power over them.

PURPORT

If the so-called intelligent materialists know the means of achieving happiness and destroying unhappiness, then they should deliver people from inevitable death. The scientists are busily working to solve this problem, but since they have completely failed, it is understood that they are not actually intelligent and that they do not know the means of achieving happiness and eliminating misery. It is most foolish to think that one can be happy with an ax hanging over one's neck. Lord Kāñëa says in Bhagavad-gétä, måtyuù sarva-haraç cāham: [Bg. 10.34] "I Myself come before you as death and take everything away." We should not blindly ignore the disaster of material life, but should instead accept the Lord's causeless mercy, which He so magnanimously offers in His incarnation as Caitanya Mahāprabhu,. We should surrender to the lotus feet of Lord Caitanya, who offers the real means for achieving unqualified happiness: the chanting of the holy names of the Lord. This is the Lord's desire, and it is in our own self-interest to take up this process.

TEXT 20

k(Ae'nvaTaR: s$auKayatyaenaM k(AmaAe vaA ma{tyaur"intake( @AGaAtaM nalyamaAnasya vaDyasyaeva na tauii"d":

ko 'nv arthaù sukhayaty enaà kāmo vā måtyur antike āghātaà néyamānasya

vadhyasyeva na tuññi-daù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kaù—what; nu—certainly; arthaù—material object; sukhayati—gives happiness; enam—to a person; kāmaù—sense gratification derived from material things; vā—or; mātyuù—death; antike—standing nearby; āghātam—to the place of execution; nēyamānasya—of one who is being led; vadhyasya—of one who is to be killed; iva—like; na—not at all; tuññi-daù—gives satisfaction.

TRANSLATION

Death is not at all pleasing, and since everyone is exactly like a condemned man being led to the place of execution, what possible happiness can people derive from material objects or the gratification they provide?

PURPORT

It is customary throughout the world that a condemned man is offered a sumptuous last meal. For the condemned man, however, such a feast is a chilling reminder of his imminent death, and therefore he cannot enjoy it. Similarly, no sane human being can be satisfied in material life, because death is standing near and may strike at any moment. If one is sitting in one's living room with a deadly snake at one's side, knowing that at any moment the poisonous fangs might pierce the flesh, how can one sit peacefully and watch television or read a book? Similarly, unless one is more or less crazy, one cannot be enthusiastic or even peaceful in material life. Knowledge of the inevitability of death should encourage one to become determined in spiritual life.

TEXT 21

™autaM ca ä{"í"vaä," äu"íM"
s$paDaARs$aUyaAtyayavyayaE:

baù"ntar"Ayak(AmatvaAta, k{(iSava»aAipa inaSP(lama, *çrutaà ca dāñña-vad duññaà spardhäsüyātyaya-vyayaiù bahv-antarāya-kāmatvāt

kāñi-vac cāpi niñphalam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çrutam—material happiness which is heard of; ca—also; dāñña-vat—just like that which we have already seen; duññam—is contaminated; spardhā—by jealousy; asüyā—by envy; atyaya—by death; vyayaiù—and by decay; bahu—many; antarāya—obstacles; kāmatvāt—because of accepting happiness with such characteristics; kāñi-vat—like agriculture; ca—also; api—even; niñphalam—fruitless.

TRANSLATION

That material happiness of which we hear, such as promotion to heavenly planets for celestial enjoyment, is just like that material happiness we have already experienced. Both are polluted by jealousy, envy, decay and death. Therefore, just as an attempt to raise crops becomes fruitless if there are many problems like crop disease, insect plague or drought, similarly, the attempt to attain material happiness, either on earth or on the heavenly planets, is always fruitless because of innumerable obstacles.

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura comments as follows on this verse. "Ordinarily, if there is no specific impediment, agricultural endeavors will yield their fruits. If, however, there is a defect in the seed, or if the soil is too salty or barren, or if there is drought, plague, excessive rain or heat out of season, or if there are disturbances caused by animals, birds or insects, then agricultural activities will not yield the desired harvest. Similarly, those who are expert in analyzing the material world see that the heavenly situations offered in the Vedas are not basically different from life on the earth. By the interaction of conditioned souls there will inevitably be jealousy as one becomes distinguished as superior and another as inferior. By the power of time these positions are reversed, and therefore violence and intrigue disturb life even on the heavenly planets. In fact, the attempt to promote oneself to the heavenly planets is itself full of problems and disturbances. One should therefore understand that the kingdom of God, Vaikuëöha, is transcendental to the limitations and disturbances imposed by the laws of material nature in this world. If one wrongly concludes that such imperfections are also present in the kingdom of God, then one will be polluted by material contamination."

TEXT 22

@ntar"AyaEr"ivaih"taAe yaid" DamaR: svanauü"ta:
taenaAipa inaijaRtaM sTaAnaM yaTaA gAcC$ita tacC+$NAu antarâyair avihito

yadi dharmaù sv-anuñöhitaù tenäpi nirjitaà sthānaà yathä gacchati tac chāëu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

antarâyaiù—by obstacles and discrepancies; avihitaù—not affected; yadi—if; dharmaù—one's execution of regulated duties according to Vedic injunctions; sv-anuñöhitaù—excellently performed; tena—by that; api—even; nirjitam—accomplished; sthānam—status; yathä—the manner in which; gacchati—it perishes; tat—that; çäëu—please hear.

TRANSLATION

If one performs Vedic sacrifices and fruitive rituals without any mistake or contamination, one will achieve a heavenly situation in the next life. But even this result, which is only achieved by perfect performance of fruitive rituals, will be vanquished by time. Now hear of this.

PURPORT

The word gacchati means "going." In Bhagavad-gītā Lord Kāñëa states, āgamāpāyino 'nityāù: all material experiences, good or bad, come and go. Therefore the word gacchati refers to the disappearance of the results of even the most meticulously performed fruitive sacrifices. Any material situation, from the worst to the best, is imperfect. Thus one should strive only for pure Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 23

wîe"h" de"vataA yaÁaE:
svalaAeRkM(yaAita yaAiÁak(: BauÁalta de"vavaÔaþa BaAegAAind"vyaAiªajaAijaRtaAna, īñöveha devatā yajī aiù svar-lokaà yāti yāji ikaù bhui'jēta deva-vat tatra bhogān divyān nijārjitān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

īñövā—having worshiped; īha—in this world; devatāù—the demigods; yajī aiù—with sacrifices; svaù-lokam—to the heavenly planets; yāti—goes; yāji ikaù—the performer of sacrifice; bhui'jēta—he may enjoy; deva-vat—like a god; tatra—therein; bhogān—pleasures; divyān—celestial; nija—by himself; arjitān—achieved.

TRANSLATION

If on earth one performs sacrifices for the satisfaction of the demigods, he goes to the heavenly planets, where, just like a demigod, he enjoys all of the heavenly pleasures he has earned by his performances.

TEXT 24

svapauNyaAepaicatae zAu"ae ivamaAna opagAlyatae gAnDavaE=#ivaRh"r"nmaDyae de"valnaAM ô$âvaeSaDa{k,( *sva-puëyopacite çubhre vimāna upagéyate

gandharvair viharan madhye devénâ à hāḍya-veṇa-dhâk*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sva—his own; puëya—by the pious activities; upacite—accumulated; çubhre—shining; vimāne—in an airplane; upagéyate—is glorified by songs; gandharvaiù—by the heavenly Gandharvas; viharan—enjoying life; madhye—in the middle; devénâm—of heavenly goddesses; hāḍya—charming; veṇa—clothes; dhâk—wearing.

TRANSLATION

Having achieved the heavenly planets, the performer of ritualistic sacrifices travels in a glowing airplane, which he obtains as the result of his piety on earth. Being glorified by songs sung by the Gandharvas and dressed in wonderfully charming clothes, he enjoys life surrounded by heavenly goddesses.

TEXT 25

ñliBa: k(AmagAyaAnaena ik(iÆÿnaljaAlamaAilanaA
,(Lx"ªa vaed"AtmapaAtaM s$aur"A,(Lxe"Sau inava{Rta:

*strébhiù kāmaga-yānena kiì kiné-jāla-mālinā
kréòan na vedātma-pātaà surākrèdeñu nirvātaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

strébhiù—with heavenly women; kāma-ga—going wherever one desires; yānena—with such an airplane; kiì kiné-jāla-mālinā—decorated with circles of bells; kréòan—having a good time; na—not; veda—does consider; ātma—his own; pātam—falldown; sura—of the demigods; ākrèdeñu—in the pleasure gardens; nirvātaù—being comfortable, relaxed and happy.

TRANSLATION

Accompanied by heavenly women, the enjoyer of the fruits of sacrifice goes on pleasure rides in a wonderful airplane, which is decorated with circles of tinkling bells and which flies wherever he desires. Being relaxed, comfortable and happy in the heavenly pleasure gardens, he does not consider that he is exhausting the fruits of his piety and will soon fall down to the mortal world.

TEXT 26

taAvats$a maAed"tae svagAeR yaAvatpauNyaM s$amaApyatae °aINApunya: patatyavaARgA, @inacC$na, k(AlacaAilata:

*tävat sa modate svarge yävat puëyaà samäpyate
kñëëa-punyaù pataty arväg
anicchan käla-cälitaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tävat—that long; saù—he; modate—enjoys life; svarge—in the heavenly planets; yävat—until; puëyam—his pious results; samäpyate—are used up; kñëëa—exhausted; puëyaù—his piety; patati—he falls; arväk—down from heaven; anicchan—not desiring to fall; käla—by time; cälitaù—pushed down.

TRANSLATION

Until his pious results are used up, the performer of sacrifice enjoys life in the heavenly planets. When the pious results are exhausted, however, he falls down from the pleasure gardens of heaven, being moved against his desire by the force of eternal time.

TEXTS 27-29

yaâDamaRr"ta: s$äËyÄä," @s$ataAM vaAijataein%"ya:
k(AmaAtmaA k{(paNAAe laubDa: ñENAAe BaUtaivaihM"s$ak(:

pazAUnaivaiDanaAlaBya
'aetaBaUtagANAAana, yajana, nar"k(AnavazAAe jantaur," gAtvaA yaAtyaulbaNAM tama:

k(maARiNA äu":KaAed"k(ARiNA ku(vaRnde"he"na taE: pauna:
de"h"maABajatae taṭa ikM(s$auKaM matyaRDaimaRNA:

*yady adharma-rataù saì gäd asatäà väjitendriyaù kämätmä kâpaëo lubdhaù
straiëo bhüta-vihiàsakaù*

paçün avidhinälabhya preta-bhüta-gaëän yajan narakän avaço jantur gatvä yäty ulbaëaà tamaù

karmäëi duùkhodarkäëi kurvan dehena taiù punaù deham äbhajate tatra kià sukhaà martya-dharmiëaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadi—if; adharma—in irreligion; rataù—he is engaged; saì gät—due to association; asatäm—of materialistic people; vä—or; ajita—due to not conquering; indriyaù—the senses; käma—material lusty desires; ätmä—living for; kâpaëaù—miserly; lubdhaù—greedy; straiëaù—a woman-hunter; bhüta—against other living beings; vihiàsakaù—committing violence; paçün—animals; avidhinä—without the authority of Vedic injunctions; älabhya—killing; preta-bhüta—ghosts and spirits; gaëän—the groups of; yajan—worshiping; narakän—to hells; avaçaù—helplessly, being under the control of fruitive activities; jantuù—a living being; gatvä—having gone; yäti—approaches; ulbaëam—extreme; tamaù—darkness; karmäëi—activities; duùkha—great unhappiness; udarkäëi—bringing in the future; kurvan—performing; dehena—with such a body; taiù—by such activities; punaù—again; deham—a material body; äbhajate—accepts; tatra—therein; kim—what; sukham—happiness; martya—always leading to death; dharmiëaù—of one sworn to activities.

TRANSLATION

If a human being is engaged in sinful, irreligious activities, either because of bad association or because of his failure to control his senses, then such a person will certainly develop a personality full of material desires. He thus becomes miserly toward others, greedy and always anxious to exploit the bodies of women. When the mind is so polluted one becomes violent and aggressive and without the authority of Vedic injunctions slaughters innocent animals for sense gratification. Worshiping ghosts and spirits, the bewildered person falls fully into the grip of unauthorized activities and thus goes to hell, where he receives a material body infected by the darkest modes of nature. In such a degraded body, he unfortunately continues to perform inauspicious activities that greatly increase his future unhappiness, and therefore he again accepts a similar material body. What possible happiness can there be for one who engages in activities inevitably terminating in death?

PURPORT

In the Vedic analysis of civilized life there are two paths. One who takes to the path of nivātti-mārga immediately renounces material sense gratification and purifies his existence by performance of austerity and devotional activities. On the path of pravātti-mārga one furnishes a steady supply of sense objects to the senses, but one consumes such sense objects under strict regulations and through ritualistic ceremonies, thus gradually purifying the heart and satiating the material senses. Unfortunately, as explained in this and the previous verse, the path of pravātti-mārga is extremely volatile because rather than becoming detached, the living entity often becomes uncontrolled and fully addicted to further sense gratification. In the previous verse the path of regulated, authorized sense gratification was described, and in this verse the path of unauthorized, demoniac sense gratification is described.

In this verse, the words saṁ gād asatāṁ vājitendriyaṁ are very significant. One may fall down into sinful life by bad association, or even in good association one may fail to control his senses. Ultimately each living entity is responsible for his existential situation. The word adharmā-ratāu in this verse indicates those engaged in excessive sex life, meat-eating, drinking and other inauspicious activities that transgress the codes of civilized human life. Being in the mode of ignorance, these persons develop such a cruel mentality that they do not consider any festive occasion complete without the consumption of large quantities of meat obtained by slaughtering helpless animals. Eventually such persons become influenced by ghosts and spirits, who deprive them of all ability to discriminate between right and wrong. Losing all sense of decency, they become fit candidates for entrance into the darkest modes of material existence. Sometimes these lusty, intoxicated carnivores, considering themselves pious, pray to God in a useless way. Afflicted by innumerable material desires, they rotate from one material body to another without experiencing true happiness. Çrëla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatë Öhäkura has noted that material life is so disturbing that even if one is allowed to live for an entire day of Brahmā—approximately 8,640,000,000 years—one will eventually be afflicted by the fear of death. In fact, Brahmā himself is disturbed by fear of death, what to speak of tiny human beings who live a paltry seventy or eighty years at most. Thus, as stated here, kiā sukhaā martya-dharmiëaù: what possible happiness can one find within the painful grip of material illusion?

TEXT 30

laAek(AnaAM laAek(paAlaAnaAM maà"yaM k(lpajalivanaAma,
 "aöNAAe'ipa BayaM maÔaAe iã"par"ADaRpar"AyauSa:

*lokänäà loka-pälänäà
 mad bhayaà kalpa-jévinām brahmaëo 'pi bhayaà matto dvi-parärdha-paräyuiäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

lokānām—in all the planetary systems; loka-pālānām—and for all the planetary leaders, such as the demigods; mat—of Me; bhayam—there is fear; kalpa-jēvinām—for those who live for a kalpa, or a day of Brahmā; brahmaëaù—of Lord Brahmā; api—even; bhayam—there is fear; mattaù—from Me; dvi-parārdha—two parārdhas, totalling 311,040,000,000,000 years; para—supreme; āyurñāù—whose duration of life.

TRANSLATION

In all the planetary systems, from the heavenly to the hellish, and for all of the great demigods who live for one thousand yuga cycles, there is fear of Me in My form of time. Even Brahmā, who possesses the supreme life span of 311,040,000,000,000 years, is also afraid of Me.

PURPORT

There are many statements throughout Vedic literature proving that even the great demigods fear the time potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Even in the heavenly planets there is no relief from the miseries of material life. No conditioned soul can live eternally, as clearly demonstrated by the deaths of Hiraëyakaçipu and other demons. Since even the demigods fear the time potency of the Personality of Godhead, one may easily conclude that Kāñëa is the Absolute Truth and that He is eternally the supreme controller of everything and everyone. Lord Kāñëa is the only real shelter.

TEXT 31

gAuNAA: s$a{jañta k(maARiNA gAuNAAe'naus$a{jatae gAuNAAana, jalvastau gAuNAs$aMyau-(Ae BauĖeÿ k(maRP(laAnyas$aAE guëäù sâjanti karmäëi guëo 'nusâjate guëän

jévas tu guëa-saâyukto bhuì kte karma-phaläny asau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëäù—the material senses; sâjanti—create; karmäëi—pious and impious material activities; guëaù—the three modes of nature; anusâjate—set into motion; guëän—the material senses; jévaù—the minute living entity; tu—indeed; guëa—the material senses or the material modes of nature; saâyuktaù—fully engaged in; bhuì kte—experiences; karma—of activities; phaläni—the various results; asau—the spirit soul.

TRANSLATION

The material senses create material activities, either pious or sinful, and the modes of nature set the material senses into motion. The living entity, being fully engaged by the material senses and modes of nature, experiences the various results of fruitive work.

PURPORT

It has been explained in the previous verses that the living entity under the control of fruitive activities is pushed down into a hellish condition of life. In this verse the exact nature of the living entity's dependence on fruitive activities is described. One can observe that one's activities are performed by the material senses and that the living entity himself is merely conscious of such activities. One may be worshiping the demigods, enjoying sex or performing agricultural or intellectual activities, but in all cases the material senses are performing the work.

One may argue that the spirit soul initiates the activities of the senses and thus is the ultimate doer, but such false egotism is negated in this verse by the statement guëäù sâjanti karmäëi guëo 'nusâjate guëän. The three modes of nature—goodness, passion and ignorance—stimulate the functions of the material senses, and the living entity, coming under the control of a particular mode of nature, merely experiences the good and bad results of his work. This does not negate the concept of free will, since the living entity chooses to associate with different modes of nature. By one's eating, speaking, sexual activities, occupation, etc., one associates with various modes of nature and acquires a particular mentality. But in all cases the modes of nature themselves are acting, not the living entity. The word asau in this verse indicates that the living entity falsely considers himself to be the performer of work carried out by nature. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (3.27):

*prakâteù kriyamäëäni guëaiù karmäëi sarvaçaù ahaì kära-vimüòhätmä
kartâham iti manyate*

"The bewildered spirit soul, under the influence of the three modes of material nature, thinks himself to be the doer of activities, which are in actuality carried out by nature." The conditioned soul can be liberated simply by giving up this false egoistic conception of life and taking to the devotional service of the Lord, by which the living entity, or marginal potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, escapes the disturbing influence of the external potency called mâyä. In the devotional service of the Lord the liberated entity realizes his actual form of eternity, knowledge and bliss.

It is natural to perform activities with a desire to achieve a good result. The best results, however, can be attained by one who engages in the devotional service of the Lord with a desire to be reinstated in his constitutional position as the Lord's loving servant. In this way the tendency to exploit one's own activities for a particular result can be purified; then the modes of nature and the material senses will no longer engage the living entity in illusion. The living entity is by nature blissful, and when his illusion ceases, all suffering comes to an end. The liberated soul is then fit to reside in Vaikuṇṭha, the kingdom of God.

TEXT 32

yaAvatsyaAÖ"NAvaESamyaM taAva^aaAnaAtvamaAtmana:
naAnaAtvamaAtmanaAe yaAvata, paAr"tanṣyaM tadE"va ih"

yāvat syād guḍa-vaiñamyaḥ tāvan nānātvam ātmanaḥ nānātvam ātmano yāvat pāratantryaḥ tadaiva hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yāvat—as long as; syāt—there is; guḍa—of the modes of material nature; vaiñamyam—separate existences; tāvat—then there will be; nānātvam—different states of existence; ātmanaḥ—of the soul; nānātvam—different states of existence; ātmanaḥ—of the soul; yāvat—as long as there are; pāratantryam—dependence; tadā—then there will be; eva—certainly; hi—indeed.

TRANSLATION

As long as the living entity thinks that the modes of material nature have separate existences, he will be obliged to take birth in many different forms and will experience varieties of material existence. Therefore, the living entity remains completely dependent on fruitive activities under the modes of nature.

PURPORT

The word guḍa-vaiñamyam indicates forgetfulness of Lord Kṛṣṇa, which causes one to see material varieties as separate states of existence. The living entity, being attracted to material varieties and having faith in them, is forced to experience these varieties in different material bodies, such as those of demigods, pigs, businessmen, insects, and so on. According to the karma-mémäàsä philosophers, there is no transcendental living entity who is the background of all existence. They accept material variety as the final reality. However, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Kâñëa, is the actual basis of everything. Everything is within Him, and He is within everything. A pure devotee of the Lord sees Kâñëa everywhere and sees all of the variegated modes of nature as the potency of Lord Kâñëa. One who does not see Lord Kâñëa will certainly see material variegatedness as the supreme reality. Such vision is called mâyä, or gross illusion, and is similar to the vision of an animal. Pāratantryam means one will remain caught in the web of fruitive activities unless one gives up this superficial, separatist vision.

TEXT 33

yaAvad"syaAsvatanṭatvaM taAvad"lir"taAe Bayama, ya Wtats$amaupaAs$alrM"s$a, tae mau÷inta zAucaAipaRtaA:

yāvad asyāsvatantratvaà tāvad éçvarato bhayam
ya etat samupāséraàs
te muhyanti çucārpitāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yāvat—as long as; asya—of the living being; asvatantratvam—there is no freedom from dependence on the modes of nature; tāvat—then there will be; éçvaratau—from the supreme controller; bhayam—fear; ye—those who; etat—to this material concept of life; samupāséran—devote themselves; te—they; muhyanti—are bewildered; çucā—in lamentation; arpitāu—always absorbed.

TRANSLATION

The conditioned soul who remains dependent on fruitive activities under the material modes of nature will continue to fear Me, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, since I impose the results of one's fruitive activities. Those who accept the material concept of life, taking the variegatedness of the modes of nature to be factual, devote themselves to material enjoyment and are therefore always absorbed in lamentation and grief.

PURPORT

The living entity is bound in the network of illusion, but although he can understand that he is dependent upon superior powers, he does not want to serve the Supreme Lord. He thus becomes filled with fear of life itself. Desiring material sense gratification, the living entity, like the demon Kaṇṇasa, always fears destruction of his material arrangement. Remaining addicted to the flavors of material nature, one gradually sinks down into an irrational form of life.

Māyā has two potencies—the first covers the living entity, and the second throws him down into a hellish condition of life. When one is covered by māyā, one loses all power of discrimination, and māyā then throws such a fool into the darkness of ignorance. When one wrongly considers oneself to be independent of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāṇṇēa, one becomes a worshiper of temporary material objects, hoping to enjoy material sense gratification, and as one grows older, one's life becomes filled with fear and anxiety. A conditioned soul considers himself to be in control of his life, but since he does not have any actual controlling potency, his situation is contradictory and not at all pleasing. As all of one's material possessions are taken away by time, one becomes filled with lamentation. All in all, material life is truly abominable, and it is only because of dense illusion that we accept it as satisfactory.

TEXT 34

k(Ala @AtmaAgAmaAe laAek(: svaBaAvaAe DamaR Wva ca wita maAM baò"DaA 'aAò"r," gAuNAvyaitak(re" s$aita

*kāla ātmāgamo lokaù svabhāvo dharma eva ca
iti mām bahudhā prāhur
guḍa-vyatikare sati*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kālaù—time; ātmā—the self; āgamaù—Vedic knowledge; lokaù—the universe; svabhāvaù—different natures of different living entities; dharmaù—religious principles; eva—certainly; ca—also; iti—thus; mām—Me; bahudhā—in many ways; prāhuù—they call; guḍa—of the modes of nature; vyatikare—agitation; sati—when there is.

TRANSLATION

When there is agitation and interaction of the material modes of nature, the living entities then describe Me in various ways such as all-powerful time, the Self, Vedic knowledge, the universe, one's own nature, religious ceremonies and so on.

PURPORT

One can experience the potency of the Personality of Godhead by observing how different species of life—demigods, human beings, animals, fish, birds, insects, plants, etc.—gradually evolve their natures and activities. Each species of life executes a particular process of sense gratification, and this function is called the dharma of the species. Lacking knowledge of the Personality of Godhead, ordinary persons catch a glimpse of the Lord's potencies in the above-mentioned manifestations. Çrēla Madhvācārya has cited the following information from the Tantra-bhāgavata. The Lord is called kāla, or time, because He is the mover and controller of all material qualities. Because He is complete and perfect, He is called ātmā, or the Self; and He is the personification of all knowledge. The word svabhāva indicates that the Lord fully controls His own destiny; and as the maintainer of everyone He is called dharma. One on the liberated platform can achieve unlimited bliss by worshiping the Personality of Godhead, whereas those who are ignorant of the Lord try to find meaning by concocting other objects of worship. If one stubbornly imagines that anything is independent of the Lord, one will remain in the grip of the illusory network of the Lord's potency. Seeing the inevitability of the destruction of material things, one is constantly fearful and perpetually laments in the darkness of ignorance. In such darkness there is no question of happiness. Therefore, one should never think that anything is independent of the Personality of Godhead. As soon as one considers anything to be independent of the Lord, one is immediately gripped by the Lord's illusory network, called māyā. One should always remain humble and obedient to the Personality of Godhead, even when one is liberated, and thus one will achieve the supreme spiritual happiness.

TEXT 35

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
gAuNAeSau vataRmaAnaAe'ipa de"h"jaeSvanapaAva{ta:
gAuNAEnaR baDyatae de"h"l baDyatae vaA k(TaM ivaBaAe

çré-uddhava uvāca
guëëñu vartamāno 'pi
deha-jeñv anapāvātaù
guëair na badhyate dehé badhyate vä kathaà vibho

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; guëëñu—in the modes of material nature; vartamānaù—being situated; api—although; deha—from the material body; jeñu—born; anapāvātaù—being uncovered; guëaiù—by the modes of nature; na—not; badhyate—is bound; dehē—the living entity within the material body; badhyate—is bound; vā—or; katham—how does it happen; vibho—O my Lord.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: O my Lord, a living entity situated within the material body is surrounded by the modes of nature and the happiness and distress that are born of activities caused by these modes. How is it possible that he is not bound by this material encirclement? It may also be said that the living entity is ultimately transcendental and has nothing to do with the material world. Then how is he ever bound by material nature?

PURPORT

Due to the influence of the modes of nature the material body generates fruitive activities, which in turn generate material happiness and distress. This material chain reaction is indicated by the word deha-jeñu. The Personality of Godhead has shown Uddhava that the actual goal of life is liberation, not sense gratification. Although the Lord has indicated that the living entity is liberated by devotional service performed with knowledge and renunciation, Uddhava apparently does not understand the specific means of perfection. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, Uddhava's question implies that we observe even in the activities of liberated souls such external activities as eating, sleeping, walking, hearing, speaking, etc., which are functions of the gross and subtle bodies. Thus, if even liberated souls are situated within the gross and subtle material bodies, then how are they not bound by the material modes of nature? If it is argued that the living entity is like the sky, which never mixes with any other object and therefore is not bound, then one may ask how such a transcendental living entity can ever be bound by material nature. In other words, how would material existence be possible? In order to completely clarify the path of Kāñëa consciousness, Uddhava presents this question to the supreme spiritual authority, Lord Kāñëa.

In the kingdom of māyā there are innumerable speculations about the Supreme Lord, who is variously described as nonexistent, or as possessing material qualities, or as being devoid of all qualities, or as being a neuter object like a eunuch. But through mundane speculation it is not possible to understand the nature of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Therefore Uddhava wants to clear the path of spiritual liberation so that people can actually understand that Kāñëa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As long as one is affected by the modes of nature, perfect understanding is not possible. Lord Kāñëa will now describe to Uddhava further details of spiritual emancipation on the road back home, back to Kāñëa.

TEXTS 36-37

k(TaM vataeRta ivah"re"ta, kE(vaAR ÁaAyaeta la^oaNAE: ikM(BauÃaltaAeta ivas$a{jaeca,
C$yaltaAs$alta yaAita vaA

Wtad"cyauta mae "aUih"
'a' aM 'a' aivad"AM var" inatyabaÜ"Ae inatyamau·( Wk(Wvaeita mae "ama:

kathaà varteta viharet kair vä ji äyeta lakñaëaiù kià bhui jétota visâjec chayétäséta yâti vä

etad acyuta me brühi praçnaà praçna-vidäà vara

nitya-baddho nitya-mukta eka eveti me bhramaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

katham—in what way; varteta—he is situated; viharet—he enjoys; kaiù—by which; vä—or; jī äyeta—would be known; lakñäëaiù—by symptoms; kim—what; bhui jēta—he would eat; uta—and; visājet—would evacuate; çayēta—would lie down; äseta—would sit; yāti—goes; vä—or; etat—this; acyuta—O Acyuta; me—to me; brühi—explain; praçnam—the question; praçna-vidām—of all those who know how to answer questions; vara—O the best; nitya-baddhaù—eternally conditioned; nitya-muktaù—eternally liberated; ekaù—singular; eva—certainly; iti—thus; me—my; bhramaù—confusion.

TRANSLATION

O my Lord, Acyuta, the same living entity is sometimes described as eternally conditioned and at other times as eternally liberated. I am not able to understand, therefore, the actual situation of the living entity. You, my Lord, are the best of those who are expert in answering philosophical questions. Please explain to me the symptoms by which one can tell the difference between a living entity who is eternally liberated and one who is eternally conditioned. In what various ways would they remain situated, enjoy life, eat, evacuate, lie down, sit or move about?

PURPORT

In previous verses Lord Kāñëa has explained to Uddhava that an eternally liberated soul is beyond the three modes of material nature. Since a liberated soul is considered to be beyond even the superior mode of goodness, how can he be recognized? By false identification with the modes of nature, which produce one's own material body, one is bound by illusion. On the other hand, by transcending the modes of nature, one is liberated. However, in ordinary activities—such as eating, evacuating, relaxing, sitting and sleeping—a liberated soul and a conditioned soul appear to be the same. Therefore Uddhava is inquiring, "By what symptoms can I recognize that one living entity is performing such external activities without false ego, and by what symptoms can I recognize one who is working under the illusory bondage of material identification? This is difficult, because the ordinary bodily functions of liberated and conditioned personalities appear similar." Uddhava has approached the Supreme Personality of Godhead, taking Him as his personal spiritual master, and wants to be enlightened about how to understand the differences between material and spiritual life.

Since the living entity is sometimes called eternally conditioned, how could he ever be considered eternally liberated, or vice versa? This is an apparent contradiction, which will be cleared up by the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Tenth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Nature of Fruitive Activity."

11. The Symptoms of Conditioned and Liberated Living Entities

In this chapter, Lord Çré Kāñëa describes to Uddhava the difference between conditioned and liberated living entities, the characteristics of a saintly person and the different aspects of the practice of devotional service.

In the previous chapter Uddhava had presented questions regarding conditioned and liberated souls. In His replies, the almighty Lord Çré Kāñëa states that although the spirit soul is part and parcel of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, on account of his infinitesimal nature, he falls into contact with the material energy, which causes him to accept the covering designations of the modes of goodness, passion and ignorance. Thus the soul has been bound up since time immemorial. But when he achieves the shelter of pure devotional service, he becomes designated as eternally liberated. Transcendental knowledge is therefore the cause of the living entity's liberation, and ignorance is the cause of his bondage. Both knowledge and ignorance are produced by the māyā energy of Lord Çré Kâñëa and are His eternal potencies. The living entities who become attracted to the modes of nature are bewildered by false ego, which causes them to see themselves as the enjoyers of misery, confusion, happiness, distress, danger, and so on. In this way, they meditate upon such states of being, although in the real, or spiritual, world these things do not exist. Both the jéva (individual soul) and the Supersoul reside within the same body. The difference between them is that the almighty Supersoul, being fully cognizant, does not indulge in enjoying the fruits of material work but remains simply as a witness, whereas the infinitesimal conditioned jéva, being ignorant, suffers the consequences of his own work. The liberated jéva, in spite of being within a material body because of the remaining reactions of his past activities, does not become disturbed by the happiness and suffering of the body. He sees such bodily experiences in the same way that a person who has just awakened from a dream sees his dream experiences. On the other hand, although the conditioned living entity is by nature not the enjoyer of the happiness and misery of the body, he imagines himself to be the enjoyer of his bodily experiences, just as a person in a dream imagines his dream experiences to be real. Just as the sun reflected upon water is not actually bound up in the water, and just as the air is not confined to some particular segment of the sky, similarly a detached person takes advantage of his broad outlook on the world to cut off all his doubts with the sword of appropriate renunciation, yukta-vairāgya. Since his life force, senses, mind and intelligence have no tendency to fix themselves on sense objects, he remains liberated even while situated within the material body. Regardless of whether he is harassed or worshiped, he remains equipoised. He is therefore considered liberated even in this life. A liberated person has nothing to do with the piety and sin of this world, but rather sees everything equally. A self-satisfied sage does not praise or condemn anyone. He does not speak uselessly to anyone and does not fix his mind on material things. Rather, he is always merged in meditation upon the Supreme Personality of Godhead, so in the eyes of fools he seems to be a speechless, crazy person.

Even if someone has studied or even taught all the different Vedic literatures, if he has not developed pure attraction to the service of the Personality of Godhead, he has accomplished nothing beyond his own labor. One should study only those scriptures in which the nature of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, His enchanting pastimes and the nectarean topics of His various incarnations are scientifically discussed; thus one gains the highest good fortune. However, by studying scriptures other than these one simply acquires misfortune.

With full determination one should properly understand the identity of the soul and give up false identification with this material body. He may then offer his heart at the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord, Çré Kâñëa, the reservoir of all love, and attain real peace. When the mind is carried away by the three modes of nature, it can no longer meditate properly on the transcendental Supreme Truth. After many lifetimes, faithful persons who have performed Vedic sacrifices for acquiring religiosity, economic development and sense gratification finally engage in hearing, chanting and constantly thinking of the Supreme Lord's all-auspicious pastimes, which purify the entire universe. Such persons then achieve the association of a bona fide spiritual master and the saintly devotees. After that, by the mercy of the spiritual master they begin to follow the paths set out by the standard authorities of spiritual life, the mahājanas, and become actually perfect in realization of their own true identity.

Having heard these instructions from Lord Kâñëa, Uddhava further desired to understand the characteristics of a factually saintly person and the different aspects of devotional practice. Lord Kâñëa replied that a real sādhū, or Vaiñëava, is qualified with the following characteristics. He is merciful, nonenvious, always truthful, self-controlled, faultless, magnanimous, gentle, clean, nonpossessive, helpful to all, peaceful, dependent on Kâñëa alone, free from lust, devoid of material endeavor, steady, in control of the six enemies of the mind, moderate in eating, never bewildered, always respectful to others, never desirous of respect for himself, sober, compassionate, friendly, poetic, expert and silent. The principal characteristic of a sādhū is that he takes shelter of Kāñēa alone. One who engages exclusively in Kāñēa's service and understands Him as the limitless, indwelling Lord who comprises eternity, knowledge and bliss, is the topmost devotee. The practice of devotional service includes sixty-four kinds of activities. Among these are: (1-6) seeing, touching, worshiping, serving, glorifying and offering obeisances to the Deity of the Lord and His pure devotees; (7) developing attachment for hearing the chanting of the Lord's qualities, pastimes, and so on; (8) remaining always in meditation upon the Lord; (9) offering everything one acquires to the Lord; (10) accepting oneself to be the Lord's servant; (11) offering the Lord one's heart and soul; (12) engaging in glorification of the Lord's birth and activities; (13) observing holidays related to the Lord; (14) performing festivals in the Lord's temple in the company of other devotees, and with music, singing and dancing; (15) celebrating all varieties of yearly functions; (16) offering foodstuffs to the Lord; (17) taking initiation according to the Vedas and tantras; (18) taking vows related to the Lord; (19) being eager to establish Deities of the Lord; (20) endeavoring either alone or in association with others in constructing, for the service of the Lord, vegetable and flower gardens, temples, cities, and so on; (21) humbly cleansing the temple of the Lord; and (22) rendering service to the Lord's house by painting it, washing it with water and decorating it with auspicious designs.

After this, the process of worshiping the Deity of the Supreme Lord is described in brief.

TEXT 1

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca
 baÜ"Ae mau·(wita vyaAKyaA gAuNAtaAe mae na vastauta:
 gAuNAsya maAyaAmaUlatvaAna, na mae maAe⁰aAe na banDanama,

*çré-bhagavän uväca
baddho mukta iti vyäkhyä guëato me na vastutaù guëasya mäyā-mūlatvān
na me mokñō na bandhanam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; baddhaù—in bondage; muktaù—liberated; iti—thus; vyäkhyä—the explanation of the living entity; guëataù—due to the modes of material nature; me—which are My potency; na—not; vastutaù—in reality; guëasya—of the modes of material nature; mäyā—My illusory energy; mūlatvāt—because of being the cause; na—not; me—of Me; mokñāù—liberation; na—nor; bandhanam—bondage.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, due to the influence of the material modes of nature, which are under My control, the living entity is sometimes designated as conditioned and sometimes as liberated. In fact, however, the soul is never really bound up or liberated, and since I am the Supreme Lord of mäyā, which is the cause of the modes of nature, I also am never to be considered liberated or in bondage.

PURPORT

In this chapter the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, explains the different characteristics of conditioned and liberated life, the symptoms by which one can recognize saintly persons, and the various processes of devotional service to the Lord. In the previous chapter, Uddhava inquired from the Lord how conditioned and liberated life are possible. The Lord now replies that Uddhava's question is somewhat superficial, since the pure spirit soul is never entangled in the material energy of the Lord. The living entity imagines a false connection with the three modes of nature and accepts the material body as the self. The living entity therefore suffers the consequences of his own imagination, just as one suffers the illusory activities of a dream. This does not indicate that the material world is illusory in the sense that it is nonexistent. The material world is certainly real, being the potency of the Personality of Godhead, and the living entity, being the superior potency of God, is also real. But the living entity's dream of being part and parcel of the material world is an illusion that drags him into the contradictory state called material conditioned life. The living entity is never actually baddha, or bound up, since he merely imagines a false connection with the material world.

Because there is ultimately no permanent connection between the living entity and matter, there is no actual liberation. The living entity, being eternally transcendental to the inferior material energy of the Lord, is eternally liberated. Lord Kāñëa reveals that in one sense the living entity is factually not bound up and thus cannot be liberated. But in another sense, the terms bondage and liberation can be conveniently applied to indicate the particular situation of the individual soul, who is the marginal potency of the Lord. Although the individual soul is never actually bound to matter, he suffers the reactions of material nature because of false identification, and thus the term baddha, or "bound up," may be used to indicate the nature of a living entity's experience within the inferior energy of the Lord. Since baddha describes a false situation, freedom from such a false situation may also be described as mokñä, or liberation. Therefore the terms bondage and liberation are acceptable if one understands that such terms only refer to temporary situations created by illusion and do not refer to the ultimate nature of the living entity. In this verse Lord Kāñëa states, guëasya mäyä-mülatvãn na me mokñö na bandhanam: the terms liberation and bondage can never be applied to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, since He is the Absolute Truth and the supreme controller of everything. Lord Kāñëa is eternally the supreme transcendental entity, and He can never be bound by illusion. It is the duty of the illusory potency of the Personality of Godhead to attract the living entities to ignorance by creating the false impression of a blissful existence separate from Lord Kāñëa. The illusory conception of existence apart from the Personality of Godhead is called māyā, or material illusion. Since Lord Kāñëa is the supreme absolute controller of māyā, there is no possibility that māyā could have any influence over the Personality of Godhead. Thus the term bandhanam, or "bondage," cannot be applied to the eternal, blissful and omniscient Personality of Godhead. The term mokñā, or "liberation," indicating freedom from bandhana, is equally irrelevant to the Lord.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura has commented on this verse as follows. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is endowed with great spiritual potencies. Because of mundane concoction, the conditioned soul imagines that the Absolute Truth is devoid of variegated spiritual potencies by which He may enjoy blissful life. Although the living entity is the spiritual potency of the Lord, he is presently situated in the inferior, illusory potency, and by engaging in mental speculation he becomes bound in conditioned life. Liberation means that the living entity should transfer himself to the spiritual potency of the Lord, which can be divided into three categories—hlādiné, the potency of bliss; sandhiné, the potency of eternal existence; and saòvit, the potency of omniscience. Since the Personality of Godhead is eternally endowed with a pure existence of bliss and knowledge, He is never conditioned or liberated. The living entity, however, being entangled in the Lord's material potency, is sometimes conditioned and sometimes liberated.

The neutral, original state of the three modes of nature is called māyā. When the three modes of nature interact, one of them will become powerful, subordinating the other two modes until another mode becomes prominent. In this way, the three can be distinguished in their variety of manifestation. Although the threefold material potency expands from the Personality of Godhead, the Lord Himself in His personal form is the actual abode of the three spiritual potencies, namely eternality, bliss and knowledge. If one desires to become free from the entanglement of conditioned life within the material sky, called the kingdom of māyā, one must come to the spiritual sky, wherein the living entities are filled with bliss, possess eternal spiritual bodies and engage in the loving devotional service of the Lord. By developing one's eternal, spiritual form in the loving service of the Lord, one immediately transcends the duality of conditioned life and impersonal liberation and can directly experience the spiritual potencies of the Lord. At that time there is no possibility of false identification with the material world.

Realizing oneself to be eternal spirit soul, the living entity can understand that he is never truly connected to matter, because he is part of the superior energy of the Lord. Therefore, both material bondage and liberation are ultimately meaningless within the reality of the spiritual sky. The living entity is the marginal potency of the Lord and should exercise his free will to engage in the pure devotional service of the Lord. By reviving one's eternal, spiritual body one can understand oneself to be a minute particle of the spiritual potency of the Lord. In other words, the living entity is a minute particle of eternity, bliss and omniscience, and thus in full Kāñëa consciousness there is no possibility of his being carried away by the illusion of the three modes of nature. In conclusion, it may be stated that the individual living entity is never actually entangled in matter and is thus not liberated, although his illusory state may be accurately described as entangled and liberated. On the other hand, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is eternally situated in His own spiritual potencies and can never be described as being bound up, and thus there is no meaning to the concept of the Lord's freeing Himself from such a nonexistent condition.

TEXT 2

zAAek(maAeh"AE s$auKaM äü":KaM de"h"ApaiÔaê maAyayaA sva«aAe yaTaAtmana: KyaAita:
s$AMs$a{itanaR tau vaAstaval

çoka-mohau sukhaà duùkhaà dehâpattiç ca mâyayâ svapno yathâtmanaù khyâtiù saàsâtir na tu västavé

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çoka—lamentation; mohau—and illusion; sukham—happiness; duùkham—distress; deha-äpattiù—accepting a material body; ca—also; mäyayä—by the influence of mäyä; svapnaù—a dream; yathä—just as; ätmanaù—of the intelligence; khyätiù—merely an idea; saàsätiù—material existence; na—is not; tu—indeed; västave—real.

TRANSLATION

Just as a dream is merely a creation of one's intelligence but has no actual substance, similarly, material lamentation, illusion, happiness, distress and the acceptance of the material body under the influence of mayä are all creations of My illusory energy. In other words, material existence has no essential reality.

PURPORT

The word deha-äpattiù indicates that the living entity falsely identifies himself with the external material body and thus transmigrates from one body to another. Äpatti also indicates great suffering or misfortune. Because of such false identification under the influence of illusion, the living entity experiences the miserable symptoms described here. Mäyä means the false concept that anything can exist without Lord Kânëa or for any purpose other than the pleasure of the Supreme Lord. Although the conditioned living entities are trying to enjoy material sense gratification, the result is always painful, and such painful experiences turn the conditioned soul back toward the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In other words, the ultimate purpose of the material creation is to bring the living entity back to the loving devotional service of the Lord. Therefore, even the sufferings of the material world may be seen as the transcendental mercy of the Personality of Godhead. The conditioned soul, imagining that material objects are meant for his personal enjoyment, bitterly laments the loss of such objects. In this verse, the example is given of a dream in which the material intelligence creates many illusory objects. Similarly, our polluted material consciousness creates the false impression of material sense gratification, but this phantasmagoria, being devoid of Kāñëa consciousness, has no real existence. By surrendering to polluted material consciousness, the living entity is afflicted with innumerable troubles. The only solution is to see Lord Kāñëa within everything and everything within Lord Kāñëa. Thus, one understands that Lord Kāñëa is the supreme enjoyer, the proprietor of everything and the well-wishing friend of all living beings.

In material illusion there is no understanding of one's eternal, spiritual body, nor is there knowledge of the Absolute Truth. Therefore, material existence, even in its most sophisticated or pious form, is always foolishness. One should not misunderstand the example of the dream to mean that the material world has no real existence. Material nature is the manifestation of the Lord's external potency, just as the spiritual sky is the manifestation of the Lord's internal potency. Although material objects are subject to transformation and thus have no permanent existence, the material energy is real because it comes from the supreme reality, Lord Kāñëa. It is only our false acceptance of the material body as the factual self and our foolish dream that the material world is meant for our pleasure that have no real existence. They are merely mental concoctions. One should cleanse oneself of material designations and wake up to the all-pervading reality of the Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 3

ivaâAivaâe mama tanaU ivaÜ"YauÜ"va zAr"lir"NAAma, maAe°abanDak(r"I @Aâe
maAyayaA mae ivainaimaRtae

*vidyâvidye mama tanü viddhy uddhava çarëriëäm mokña-bandha-karë ädye
mäyayä me vinirmite*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vidyā—knowledge; avidyā—and ignorance; mama—My; tanü—manifested energies; viddhi—please understand; uddhava—O Uddhava; çarëriëäm—of the embodied living entities; mokñā—liberation; bandha—bondage; karë—causing; ädye—original, eternal; mäyayä—by the potency; me—My; vinirmite—produced.

TRANSLATION

O Uddhava, both knowledge and ignorance, being products of mäyā, are expansions of My potency. Both knowledge and ignorance are beginningless and perpetually award liberation and bondage to embodied living beings.

PURPORT

By the expansion of vidyā, or knowledge, a conditioned soul is liberated from the clutches of mäyā, and similarly, by the expansion of avidyā, or ignorance, the conditioned soul is driven further into illusion and bondage. Both knowledge and ignorance are products of the mighty potency of the Personality of Godhead. The living being is bound by illusion when he considers himself the proprietor of the subtle and gross material bodies. According to Çréla Jëva Gosvämé the living entity may be designated as jëva-mäyā, whereas matter is called guëa-mäyā. The living entity places his living potency (jëva-mäyā) in the grip of the mundane qualitative potency (guëa-mäyā) and falsely dreams that he is part and parcel of the material world. Such an artificial mixture is called illusion or ignorance. When all of the Lord's potencies are correctly perceived in their proper categories, the living entity is liberated from material bondage and returns to his blissful eternal residence in the spiritual sky.

The Supreme Personality of Godhead is not different from His potencies, yet He is always above them as the supreme controller. The Supreme Personality of Godhead may be designated as mukta, or liberated, only to indicate that He is eternally free from material contamination and never to indicate that the Lord has been freed from actual entanglement in a material situation. According to Çréla Madhvācārya, vidyā indicates the goddess of fortune, the internal potency of the Lord, whereas avidyā indicates Durgā, the external potency of the Lord. Ultimately, however, the Personality of Godhead can transform His potencies according to His own desire, as explained by Çréla Prabhupāda in his commentary on Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.3.34), "Because the Lord is the absolute Transcendence, all of His forms, names, pastimes, attributes, associates and energies are identical with Him. His transcendental energy acts according to His omnipotency. The same energy acts as His external, internal and marginal energies, and by His omnipotency He can perform anything and everything through the agency of any of the above energies. He can turn the external energy into internal by His will."

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé notes in this regard that although the Lord has explained in the first verse of this chapter that the living entity is never actually in bondage, and therefore never actually liberated, one may apply the terms bondage and liberation if one remembers that the living entity is eternally a transcendental fragment of the Personality of Godhead. Further, one should not misinterpret the words māyayā me vinirmite to indicate that both material bondage and liberation are temporary states, being creations of the potency of the Lord. Therefore, the term ädye, or "primeval and eternal" is used in this verse. The vidyā and avidyā potencies of the Lord are stated to be creations of māyā because they carry out the functions of the Lord's potencies. The vidyā potency engages the living entities in the Lord's pastimes, whereas the avidyā potency engages the living entities in forgetting the Lord and merging into darkness. Actually, both knowledge and ignorance are eternal alternatives of the marginal potency of the Lord, and in this sense it is not incorrect to state that the living entity is either eternally conditioned or eternally liberated. The term vinirmite, or "produced," in this case indicates that the Lord expands His own energy as knowledge and ignorance, which display the functions of the Lord's internal and external potencies. Such potential exhibitions may appear and disappear in different times, places and circumstances, but material bondage and spiritual freedom are eternal options of the marginal potency of the Lord.

TEXT 4

Wk(syaEva mamaAMzAsya jalvasyaEva mah"Amatae banDaAe'syaAivaâyaAnaAid"r," ivaâyaA ca taTaetar":

*ekasyaiva mamâṇṇasya jēvasyaiva mahā-mate
bandho 'syāvidyayānādir vidyayā ca tathetaraṇ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ekasya—of the one; eva—certainly; mama—My; aṇṇasya—part and parcel; jēvasya—of the living entity; eva—certainly; mahā-mate—O most intelligent one; bandhaṇ—bondage; asya—of him; avidyayā—by ignorance; anādiṇ—beginningless; vidyayā—by knowledge; ca—and; tathā—similarly; itaraṇ—the opposite of bondage, liberation.

TRANSLATION

O most intelligent Uddhava, the living entity, called jēva, is part and parcel of Me, but due to ignorance he has been suffering in material bondage since time immemorial. By knowledge, however, he can be liberated.

PURPORT

Just as the sun reveals itself through its own light or covers itself by creating clouds, the Personality of Godhead reveals and covers Himself by knowledge and ignorance, which are expansions of His potency. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (7.5):

apareyam itas tv anyāṇ

*prakâtià viddhi me paräm
jêva-bhütäà mahä-bäho
yayedäà dhäryate jagat*

"Besides this inferior nature, O mighty-armed Arjuna, there is a superior energy of Mine, consisting of all living entities who are struggling with material nature and are sustaining the universe." Çréla Prabhupäda states in connection with this verse: "The Supreme Lord Kânëa is the only controller, and all living entities are controlled by Him. These living entities are His superior energy because the quality of their existence is one and the same with the Supreme, but they are never equal to the Lord in quantity of power."

Because of quantitative inferiority of potency, the living entity becomes covered by mâyä and is again liberated by surrendering to the Lord. The word aâça, or "part and parcel" is also mentioned in Bhagavad-gëtä (15.7): mamaiväâço jêva-loke jêva-bhütaù sanätanaù. The living entity is aâça, or a minute particle, and therefore subject to liberation and bondage. As stated in the Viñëu Puräëa:

*viñëu-çaktiù parä proktä kñetra-jì äkhyä tathä parä avidyä-karma-saàjì änyä tâtéyä çaktir iñyate
[Cc. Madhya 6.154]*

"The Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, possesses His superior internal potency as well as the potency called kñetraji ä çakti. This kñetraji ä çakti is also spiritual potency, but it is sometimes covered by the third, or material, potency called ignorance. Thus because of the various stages of covering, the second, or marginal, potency is manifested in different evolutionary phases."

Çréla Bhaktivinoda Öhäkura has written that the living entity has been executing fruitive activities since time immemorial. Thus his conditioned life may be called beginningless. Such conditioned life, however, is not endless, since the living entity may achieve liberation through the loving devotional service of the Lord. Since the living entity may acquire liberation, Çréla Bhaktivinoda Öhäkura states that his liberated life begins at a certain point but is endless, because liberated life is understood to be eternal. In any case, one who has achieved the shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kåñëa, may be understood to be eternally liberated, since such a person has entered into the eternal atmosphere of the spiritual sky. Since there is no material time in the spiritual sky, one who has achieved his eternal spiritual body on Lord Kåñëa's planet is not subject to the influence of time. His eternal blissful life with Kåñëa is not designated in terms of material past, present and future and is therefore called eternal liberation. Material time is conspicuous by its absence in the spiritual sky, and every living entity there is eternally liberated, having attained the supreme situation. Such liberation can be achieved by vidyā, or perfect knowledge, which is understood in three phases called Brahman, Paramātmā and Bhagavān, as described in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam. The ultimate phase of vidyā, or knowledge, is to understand the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In Bhagavad-gītā such knowledge is called rāja-vidyā, or the king of all knowledge, and it awards the supreme liberation.

TEXT 5

@Ta baÜ"sya mau·(sya vaEla°aNyaM vad"Aima tae ivaç&Ü"DaimaRNAAestaAta isTatayaAere"k(DaimaRiNA

atha baddhasya muktasya vailakñāyā vadāmi te viruddha-dharmīṣo tāta sthitayoṣu eka-dharmīṣu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atha—thus; baddhasya—of the conditioned soul; muktasya—of the liberated

Personality of Godhead; vailakñāēyam—different characteristics; vadāmi—I will now speak; te—unto you; viruddha—opposing; dharmiëou—whose two natures; tāta—My dear Uddhava; sthitayou—of the two who are situated; eka-dharmiëi—in the one body which manifests their different characteristics.

TRANSLATION

Thus, My dear Uddhava, in the same material body we find opposing characteristics, such as great happiness and misery. That is because both the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is eternally liberated, as well as the conditioned soul are within the body. I shall now speak to you about their different characteristics.

PURPORT

In verse 36 of the previous chapter, Uddhava inquired about the different symptoms of liberated and conditioned life. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé explains that the characteristics of bondage and liberation may be understood in two divisions—as the difference between the ordinary conditioned soul and the eternally liberated Personality of Godhead, or as the difference between conditioned and liberated living entities in the jéva category. The Lord will first explain the difference between the ordinary living entity and the Supreme Personality of Godhead, which may be understood as the difference between the controlled and the controller.

TEXT 6

s$aupanaAR"vaetaAE s$aä{"zAAE s$aKaAyaAE yaä{"cC$yaEtaAE k{(tanalx"AE ca va{°ae Wk(stayaAe: KaAd"ita ipappalaA^aama, @nyaAe inar"^aaAe'ipa balaena BaUyaAna, suparëäv etau sadâçau sakhâyau yadâcchayaitau kâta-néòau ca vâkñe

ekas tayoù khādati pippalānnam anyo niranno 'pi balena bhüyān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

suparēau—two birds; etau—these; sadāçau—similar; sakhāyau—friends; yadācchayā—by chance; etau—these two; kāta—made; nēòau—a nest; ca—and; vākñe—in a tree; ekaù—one; tayoù—of the two; khādati—is eating; pippala—of the tree; annam—the fruits; anyaù—the other; nirannaù—not eating; api—although; balena—by strength; bhüyān—He is superior.

TRANSLATION

By chance, two birds have made a nest together in the same tree. The two birds are friends and are of a similar nature. One of them, however, is eating the fruits of the tree, whereas the other, who does not eat the fruits, is in a superior position due to His potency.

PURPORT

The example of two birds in the same tree is given to illustrate the presence within the heart of the material body of both the individual soul and the Supersoul, the Personality of Godhead. Just as a bird makes a nest in a tree, the living entity sits within the heart. The example is appropriate because the bird is always distinct from the tree. Similarly, both the individual soul and the Supersoul are distinct entities, separate from the temporary material body. The word balena indicates that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is satisfied by His own internal potency, which consists of eternality, omniscience and bliss. As indicated by the word bhüyān, or "having superior existence," the Supreme Lord is always in a superior position, whereas the living entity is sometimes in illusion and sometimes enlightened. The word balena indicates that the Lord is never in darkness or ignorance, but is always full in His perfect, blissful consciousness.

Thus, the Lord is niranna, or uninterested in the bitter fruits of material activities, whereas the ordinary conditioned soul busily consumes such bitter fruits, thinking them to be sweet. Ultimately, the fruit of all material endeavor is death, but the living entity foolishly thinks material things will bring him pleasure. The word sakhāyau, or "two friends," is also significant. Our real friend is Lord Kāñëa, who is situated within our heart. Only He knows our actual needs, and only He can give us real happiness.

Lord Kāñëa is so kind that He patiently sits in the heart, trying to guide the conditioned soul back home, back to Godhead. Certainly no material friend would remain with his foolish companion for millions of years, especially if his companion were to ignore him or even curse him. But Lord Kāñëa is such a faithful, loving friend that He accompanies even the most demoniac living entity and is also in the heart of the insect, pig and dog. That is because Lord Kāñëa is supremely Kāñëa conscious and sees every living entity as part and parcel of Himself. Every living being should give up the bitter fruits of the tree of material existence. One should turn one's face to the Lord within the heart and revive one's eternal loving relationship with one's real friend, Lord Kāñëa. The word sadāçau, or "of similar nature," indicates that both the living entity and the Personality of Godhead are conscious entities. As part and parcel of the Lord we share the Lord's nature, but in infinitesimal quantity. Thus the Lord and the living entity are sadāçau. A similar statement is found in the Çvetāçvatara Upaniñad (4.6):

dvā suparëä sayujä sakhäyā samānaà vākñāà pariñasvajāte tayor anyau pippalaà svādy atty anaçnann anyo 'bhicākaçēti

"There are two birds in one tree. One of them is eating the fruits of the tree, while the other is witnessing the actions. The witness is the Lord, and the fruit-eater is the living entity."

TEXT 7

@AtmaAnamanyaM ca s$ä vaed" ivaã"Ana,

@ipappalaAd"Ae na tau ipappalaAd":
yaAe'ivaâyaA yaufs$a tau inatyabaÜ"Ae ivaâAmayaAe ya: s$a tau inatyamaU.(:

ätmānam anyaà ca sa veda vidvān apippalādo na tu pippalādaù yo 'vidyayā yuk sa tu nitya-baddho vidyā-mayo yaù sa tu nitya-muktaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ätmānam—Himself; anyam—the other; ca—also; saù—He; veda—knows; vidvān—being omniscient; apippala-adaù—not eating the fruits of the tree; na—not; tu—but; pippala-adaù—the one who is eating the fruits of the tree; yaù—who; avidyayā—with ignorance; yuk—filled; saù—he; tu—indeed; nitya—eternally; baddhaù—conditioned; vidyā mayau—full of perfect knowledge; yaù—who; saù—he; tu—indeed; nitya—eternally; muktaù—liberated.

TRANSLATION

The bird who does not eat the fruits of the tree is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who by His omniscience perfectly understands His own position and that of the conditioned living entity, represented by the eating bird. That living entity, on the other hand, does not understand himself or the Lord. He is covered by ignorance and is thus called eternally conditioned, whereas the Personality of Godhead, being full of perfect knowledge, is eternally liberated.

PURPORT

The word vidyā-maya in this verse indicates the internal potency of the Lord and not the external potency, mahā-māyā. Within the material world there is vidyā, or material science, and avidyā, or material ignorance, but in this verse vidyā means the internal spiritual knowledge by which the Personality of Godhead is fixed in omniscience. The example of two birds in a tree, which is given in many Vedic literatures, demonstrates the statement nityo nityānām: there are two categories of eternal living entities, namely the Supreme Lord and the minute jéva soul. The conditioned jéva soul, forgetting his identity as an eternal servant of the Lord, tries to enjoy the fruits of his own activities and thus comes under the spell of ignorance. This bondage of ignorance has existed since time immemorial and can be rectified only by one's taking to the loving devotional service of the Lord, which is full of spiritual knowledge. In conditioned life the living entity is forced by the laws of nature to engage in pious and impious fruitive activities, but the liberated position of every living entity is to offer the fruits of his work to the Lord, the supreme enjoyer. It should be understood that even when the living entity is in a liberated condition, his knowledge is never equal in quantity to that of the Personality of Godhead. Even Lord Brahmā, the supreme living entity within this universe, acquires only partial knowledge of the Personality of Godhead and His potencies. In Bhagavad-gētā (4.5), the Lord explains His superior knowledge to Arjuna:

*bahūni me vyatētāni janmāni tava cārjuna tāny ahaṁ veda sarvāṇi
na tvaṁ vettha parantapa*

"The Blessed Lord said: Many, many births both you and I have passed. I can remember all of them, but you cannot, O subduer of the enemy!"

The term baddha, or "bound," is also understood to refer to the living entity's eternal dependence upon the Lord, either in the conditioned or liberated state. In the kingdom of māyā the living entity is bound to the cruel laws of birth and death, whereas in the spiritual sky the living entity is fixed in a bond of love to the Lord. Liberation means freedom from the miseries of life, but never freedom from one's loving relationship with Lord Kāṇēa, which is the essence of one's eternal existence. According to Çrēḷa Madhvācārya, the Lord is the only eternally free living entity, and all other living entities are eternally dependent and bound to the Lord, either through blissful loving service or through the bondage of māyā. The conditioned soul should give up tasting the bitter fruits of the tree of material existence and turn to his dearmost friend, Lord Kāñëa, who is sitting within his heart. There is no pleasure equal to or greater than the pleasure of pure devotional service to Lord Kāñëa, and by tasting the fruit of love of Kāñëa, the liberated living entity enters the ocean of happiness.

TEXT 8

de" h" sTaAe'ipa na de" h" sTaAe ivaã" Ana, sva«aAâTaAeitTata: @de" h" sTaAe'ipa de" h" sTa: ku(maita: sva«aä{"gyaTaA

deha-stho 'pi na deha-stho vidvān svapnād yathotthitaù adeha-stho 'pi deha-sthaù kumatiù svapna-dāg yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deha—in the material body; sthaù—situated; api—although; na—not;
deha—in the body; sthaù—situated; vidvān—an enlightened person; svapnāt—from a dream; yathā—just as; utthitaù—having risen; adeha—not in the body; sthaù—situated; api—although; deha—in the body; sthaù—situated; ku-matiù—a foolish person; svapna—a dream; dāk—seeing;
yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

One who is enlightened in self-realization, although living within the material body, sees himself as transcendental to the body, just as one who has arisen from a dream gives up identification with the dream body. A foolish person, however, although not identical with his material body but transcendental to it, thinks himself to be situated in the body, just as one who is dreaming sees himself as situated in an imaginary body.

PURPORT

In Lord Kāñëa's discussion of the different characteristics of liberated and conditioned souls, the Lord first clarified the distinction between the eternally liberated Personality of Godhead and the marginal potency, the innumerable jévas, who are sometimes conditioned and sometimes liberated. In this and the next nine verses, the Lord describes the different symptoms of liberated and conditioned jéva souls. In a dream one sees oneself in an imaginary body, but upon waking one gives up all identification with that body. Similarly, one who has awakened to Kāñëa consciousness no longer identifies with the gross or subtle material bodies, nor does he become affected by the happiness and distress of material life. On the other hand, a foolish person (kumati) does not awaken from the dream of material existence and is afflicted with innumerable problems due to false identification with the gross and subtle material bodies. One should become situated in one's eternal spiritual identity (nitya-svarüpa). By properly identifying oneself as the eternal servant of Kāñëa, one becomes relieved of his false material identity, and therefore the miseries of illusory existence immediately cease, just as the anxiety of a troublesome dream ceases as soon as one awakens to his normal, pleasant surroundings. It should be understood, however, that the analogy of awakening from a dream can never be applied to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is never in illusion. The Lord is eternally awake and enlightened in His own unique category called viñëu-tattva. Such knowledge is easily understood by one who is vidvân, or enlightened in Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 9

win%o"yaEir"in%o"yaATaeRSau gAuNAEr"ipa gAuNAeSau ca gA{÷maANAeSvahM" ku(yaARna, na ivaã"Ana, yastvaivai,(ya:

indriyair indriyärtheñu

guëair api guëëñu ca gâhyamäëëñv ahaà kuryän na vidvân yas tv avikriyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indriyaiù—by the senses; indriya—of the senses; artheñu—in the objects; guëaiù—by those generated from the modes of nature; api—even; guëëñu—in those generated by the same modes; ca—also; gâhyamäëëñu—as they are being accepted; aham—false ego; kuryät—should create; na—not; vidvân—one who is enlightened; yaù—who; tu—indeed; avikriyaù—is not affected by material desire.

TRANSLATION

An enlightened person who is free from the contamination of material desire does not consider himself to be the performer of bodily activities; rather, he knows that in all such activities it is only the senses, born of the modes of nature, that are contacting sense objects born of the same modes of nature.

PURPORT

Lord Kânëa makes a similar statement in Bhagavad-gétä (3.28):

*tattva-vit tu mahä-bäho guëa-karma-vibhägayòu
guëä guëëñu vartanta
iti matvä na sajjate*

"One who is in knowledge of the Absolute Truth, O mighty-armed, does not engage himself in the senses and sense gratification, knowing well the difference between work in devotion and work for fruitive results."

The material body always interacts with the sense objects, for in order to survive the body must eat, drink, speak, sleep, and so on, but an enlightened person who knows the science of Kāñëa consciousness never thinks, "I am accepting these sense objects as my property. They are meant for my pleasure." Similarly, if the body performs a wonderful activity, a Kāñëa conscious person does not become proud, nor is he depressed by the failure of the body to function in a particular way. In other words, Kāñëa consciousness means giving up identification with the gross and subtle material bodies. One should see them as the external energy of the Lord, working under the direction of the Lord's empowered representative māyā. One absorbed in fruitive activities works under the jurisdiction of mahā-māyā, or the external illusory potency, and experiences the miseries of material existence. On the other hand, a devotee works under the internal potency, called yoga-māyā, and remains satisfied by offering his loving service to the Lord. In either case, the Lord Himself, by His multifarious potencies, is the ultimate performer of action.

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, one who claims to be transcendental to the bodily concept of life, but at the same time remains under the influence of material desire and mental transformation, is understood to be a cheater and the lowest type of conditioned soul.

TEXT 10

dE"vaADalnae zAr"Ire""ismana, gAuNABaAvyaena k(maRNAA vataRmaAnaAe'bauDastaṭa k(taARsmalita inabaDyatae

daivādhéne çarére 'smin guëa-bhāvyena karmaëä vartamāno 'budhas tatra kartāsméti nibadhyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

daiva—of one's previous fruitive activities; adhéne—which is under the influence; çarére—in the material body; asmin—in this; guëa—by the modes of nature; bhāvya—which are produced; karma—by fruitive activities; vartamāna—being situated; abudha—one who is foolish; tatra—within the bodily functions; kartā—the doer; asmi—I am; iti—thus; nibadhyate—is bound up.

TRANSLATION

An unintelligent person situated within the body created by his previous fruitive activities thinks, "I am the performer of action." Bewildered by false ego, such a foolish person is therefore bound up by fruitive activities, which are in fact carried out by the modes of nature.

PURPORT

As stated in Bhagavad-gītā (3.27):

*prakāṣteṁ kriyamāṇāni guṇaiḥ karmaṇi sarvaṇi
ahaṁ kāra-vimūḍhātmā
kartāham iti manyate*

The living entity is dependent on the supreme entity, Lord Kāṇēa, but because of false pride he ignores the Supreme Personality of Godhead and considers himself to be the performer of action and enjoyer of everything. Ćréla Madhvācārya states that just as a king punishes a rebellious subject, the Supreme Lord punishes the sinful living entity by forcing him to transmigrate from one body to another in the network of the illusory energy.

TEXT 11

WvaM ivar"·(: zAyana
@As$anaAq%namaĀanae
d"zARnas$pazARna,,aANA-BaAejana™avaNAAid"Sau na taTaA baDyatae ivaã"Ana, taṭa taṭaAd"yana, gAuNAAna,

*evaà viraktaù çayana āsanāūana-majjane
darçana-sparçana-ghrāëabhojana-çravaëädiñu na tathā badhyate vidvān tatra tatrādayan guëän*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; viraktaù—detached from material enjoyment; çayane—in lying or sleeping; āsana—in sitting; aūana—walking; majjane—or in bathing; darçana—in seeing; sparçana—touching; ghrāëa—smelling; bhojana—eating; çravaëa—hearing; ädiñu—and so on; na—not; tathā—in that way; badhyate—is bound; vidvān—an intelligent person; tatra tatra—wherever he goes; ādayan—causing to experience; guëän—the senses, born of the modes of nature.

TRANSLATION

An enlightened person fixed in detachment engages his body in lying down, sitting, walking, bathing, seeing, touching, smelling, eating, hearing and so on, but is never entangled by such activities. Indeed, remaining as a witness to all bodily functions, he merely engages his bodily senses with their objects and does not become entangled like an unintelligent person.

PURPORT

In the previous chapter, Uddhava asked Lord Kāñëa why an enlightened person, just like a conditioned soul, engages in external bodily functions. Here is the Lord's answer. While engaged in bodily functions, an unintelligent person is attached to both the means and end of material life and therefore experiences intense lamentation and jubilation on the material platform. A self-realized soul, however, studies the inevitable defeat and suffering of ordinary persons and does not make the mistake of trying to enjoy the bodily functions even slightly. He instead remains a detached witness, merely engaging his senses in the normal functions of bodily maintenance. As indicated here by the word ādayan, he engages something other than his actual self in material experience.

TEXTS 12-13

‘ak{(itasTaAe'pyas$amS$a·(Ae yaTaA KaM s$aiyataAinala:
vaEzAAr"âe°ayaAs$aËÿizAtayaA iC$as$aMzAya: ‘aitabauÜ" wva sva«aAna, naAnaAtvaAiã"inaavataRtae

prakāti-stho 'py asaṅsakto yathā khaṇ savitānilau vaiçāradye kñāyāsaṁ gaçitayā chinna-saṅçayaṁ pratibuddha iva svapnān nānātvād vinivartate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

prakāti—in the material world; sthaṁ—situated; api—even though; asaṅsaktaṁ—completely detached from sense gratification; yathā—just as; kham—the sky; savitā—the sun; anilaṁ—the wind; vaiçāradya—by most expert; ekñāyā—vision; asaṁ ga—through detachment; çitayā—sharpened; chinna—cut to pieces; saṅçayaṁ—doubts; pratibuddhaṁ—awakened; iva—like; svapnāt—from a dream; nānātvāt—from the duality of variety of the material world; vinivartate—one turns away or renounces.

TRANSLATION

Although the sky, or space, is the resting place of everything, the sky does not mix with anything, nor is it entangled. Similarly, the sun is not at all attached to the water in which it is reflected within innumerable reservoirs, and the mighty wind blowing everywhere is not affected by the innumerable aromas and atmospheres through which it passes. In the same way, a self-realized soul is completely detached from the material body and the material world around it. He is like a person who has awakened and arisen from a dream. With expert vision sharpened by detachment, the self-realized soul cuts all doubts to pieces through knowledge of the self and completely withdraws his consciousness from the expansion of material variety.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura, a self-realized soul cuts all doubts to pieces by direct experience of his true spiritual identity. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is Lord Kāñëa, and there is no possibility of any existence separate from Lord Kāñëa. Such expert knowledge cuts all doubts to pieces. As stated here, prakāti-stho 'py asaàsaktau: like the sky, the sun or the wind, one who is self-realized is not entangled, though situated within the material creation of the Lord. Nānātva, or "material variety," refers to one's material body, the bodies of others and the unlimited paraphernalia for bodily sense gratification, both physical and mental. By awakening to Kāñëa consciousness, one completely retires from illusory sense gratification and becomes absorbed in the progressive realization of the soul situated within the body. As revealed in the example of the two birds in a tree, both the individual soul and the Personality of Godhead are completely separate from the gross and subtle material bodies. If one turns one's face to the Lord, recognizing one's eternal dependence on Him, there will be no further suffering or anxiety, even though one is still situated within the material world. The unlimited experiences of material objects only increase one's anxiety, whereas perception of the Absolute Truth, Çré Kāñëa, immediately brings one to the platform of peace. Thus one who is intelligent retires from the world of matter and becomes a fully self-realized Kāñëa conscious person.

TEXT 14

yasya syauval=taśa'ĀyīpaA:
'aANAEin%o"yamanaAeiDayaAma, va{Ōaya: śa ivainamauR·(Ae de"h"sTaAe'ipa ih" taÖ"NAE:

yasya syur vēta-saī kalpāu prāēendriya-mano-dhiyām vāttayaū sa vinirmukto deha-stho 'pi hi tad-guëaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yasya—of whom; syuù—they are; vēta—freed from; saī kalpāu—material desire; prāēa—of the vital energy; indriya—the senses; manaù—the mind; dhiyām—and of intelligence; vāttayaū—the functions; saù—such a person; vinirmuktaù—completely freed; deha—in the body; sthaù—situated; api—even though; hi—certainly; tat—of the body; guëaiù—from all of the qualities.

TRANSLATION

A person is considered to be completely liberated from the gross and subtle material bodies when all the functions of his vital energy, senses, mind and intelligence are performed without material desire. Such a person, although situated within the body, is not entangled.

PURPORT

The material body and mind are subject to lamentation, illusion, hunger, lust, greed, insanity, frustration, etc., but one who remains active in this world without attachment is considered vinirmukta, or completely liberated. The vital energy, senses, mind and intelligence are purified when engaged in the devotional service of Lord Kāñēa, as confirmed throughout yasyaAtmaA ihM"syatae ihM"ṽaEr," yaena ik(iĀaâä{"cC$yaA @cyaRtae vaA ,(icaÔaṭa na vyaitai,(yatae bauDa:

TEXT 15

yasyātmā hiāsyate hiāsrair yena kīi cid yadācchayā arcyate vā kvacit tatra na vyatikriyate budhaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yasya—of whom; ātmā—the body; hiāsyate—is attacked; hiāsraiù—by sinful people or violent animals; yena—by someone; kīi cid—somewhat; yadācchayā—somehow or other; arcyate—is worshiped; vā—or; kvacit—somewhere; tatra—therein; na—not; vyatikriyate—is transformed or affected; budhaù—one who is intelligent.

TRANSLATION

Sometimes for no apparent reason one's body is attacked by cruel people or violent animals. At other times and in other places, one will suddenly be offered great respect or worship. One who becomes neither angry when attacked nor satisfied when worshiped is actually intelligent.

PURPORT

If one does not become angry when attacked for no apparent reason, and if one does not become enlivened when glorified or worshiped, then one has passed the test of self-realization and is considered fixed in spiritual intelligence. Uddhava asked Lord Kāñëa, kair vā ji'äyeta lakñäëaiù: by what symptoms can a self-realized person be recognized? Just as Lord Kāñhëa enlightened Arjuna, He now explains the same subject matter to Uddhava. In this verse the Lord describes symptoms by which it is very easy to recognize a saintly person, for a normal person becomes furious when criticized or attacked and overwhelmed with joy when glorified by others. There is a similar statement by Yājñi avalkya to the effect that one who is actually intelligent does not become angry though pricked with thorns and does not become satisfied at heart merely by being worshiped with auspicious paraphernalia such as sandalwood.

TEXT 16

na stauvalta na inande"ta ku(vaRta: s$aADvas$aADau vaA vad"taAe gAuNAd"AeSaAByaAM vaijaRta: s$amaä{"x.~ mauina:

*na stuvéta na nindeta
kurvataù sādhu asādhu vā vadato guëa-doñābhyāà varjitaù sama-dâi muniù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na stuvéta—does not praise; na nindeta—does not criticize; kurvataù—those who are working; sādhu—very nicely; asādhu—very badly; vā—or; vadataù—those who are speaking; guëa-doñābhyām—from good and bad qualities; varjitaù—freed; sama-dâi—seeing things equally; muniù—a saintly sage.

TRANSLATION

A saintly sage sees with equal vision and therefore is not affected by that which is materially good or bad. Indeed, although he observes others performing good and bad work and speaking properly and improperly, the sage does not praise or criticize anyone.

TEXT 17

na ku(yaAR^a vade"itk(iÂana, na DyaAyaets$aADvas$aADau vaA @AtmaAr"AmaAe'nayaA va{ÔyaA ivacare"Àax"vanmauina:

na kuryän na vadet kii cin na dhyäyet sädhv asādhu vä ātmārāmo 'nayā vāṭṭyā vicarej jaòā-van muniù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na kuryät—should not do; na vadet—should not speak; kii cit—anything; na dhyäyet—should not contemplate; sādhv asādhu vä—either good or bad things; ātma-ārāmaù—one who is taking pleasure in self-realization; anayā—with this; vāṭṭyā—life-style; vicaret—he should wander; jaòā-vat—just like a stunted person; muniù—a saintly sage.

TRANSLATION

For the purpose of maintaining his body, a liberated sage should not act, speak or contemplate in terms of material good or bad. Rather, he should be detached in all material circumstances, and taking pleasure in self-realization, he should wander about engaged in this liberated life—style, appearing like a retarded person to outsiders.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, this verse describes a type of discipline recommended for the jī āna-yogés, who by intelligence try to understand that they are not their material bodies. One who is engaged in the devotional service of the Lord, however, accepts and rejects material things in terms of their usefulness in the loving service of Lord Kåñëa. One who is trying to preach Kåñëa consciousness should be seen as very intelligent and not jaòà-vat, or stunted, as described here. Although a devotee of the Lord does not act, speak or contemplate for his personal sense gratification, he remains very busy working, speaking and meditating in the devotional service of the Lord. The devotee makes elaborate plans to engage all the fallen souls in Lord Kåñëa's service so they can be purified and go back home, back to Godhead. Merely rejecting material things is not perfect consciousness. One must see everything as the property of the Lord and meant for the Lord's pleasure. One busily engaged in spreading the Kåñëa consciousness movement has no time to make material distinctions and thus automatically comes to the liberated platform.

TEXT 18

zAbd""aöiNA inaSNAAtaAe na inaSNAAyaAtpare" yaid" ™amastasya ™amaP(laAe ÷Daenuimava r"°ata:

çabda-brahmaëi niñëäto
na niñëäyät pare yadi çramas tasya çrama-phalo hy adhenum iva rakñataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çabda-brahmaëi—in the Vedic literature; niñëätaù—expert through complete study; na niñëäyät—does not absorb the mind; pare—in the Supreme; yadi—if; çramaù—labor; tasya—his; çrama—of great endeavor; phalaù—the fruit; hi—certainly; adhenum—a cow that gives no milk; iva—like; rakñataù—of one who is taking care of.

TRANSLATION

If through meticulous study one becomes expert in reading Vedic literature but makes no endeavor to fix one's mind on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, then one's endeavor is certainly like that of a man who works very hard to take care of a cow that gives no milk. In other words, the fruit of one's laborious study of Vedic knowledge will simply be the labor itself. There will be no other tangible result.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains that the word pare ("the Supreme") in this verse indicates the Supreme Personality of Godhead rather than the impersonal Brahman, because Lord Kāñëä, the speaker of these instructions, makes references in later verses to His personality as the Supreme. An impersonal interpretation in this case would be eka-deçānvaya uttara-çlokārtha-tätparya-virodhaù, or a contradictory interpretation that creates illogical conflict with other *çloka*s (verses) spoken in the same context.

It requires great endeavor to take care of a cow. One must either grow food grains to feed the cow or maintain suitable pastures. If the pasture is not properly maintained, poisonous weeds will grow, or snakes will multiply, and there will be danger. Cows are infected by many types of diseases and bugs and must be regularly cleaned and disinfected. Similarly, fences must be maintained around the cow pasture, and there is even more work to be done. If the cow gives no milk, however, then one certainly performs hard labor with no tangible result. Laborious effort is also required to learn the Sanskrit language well enough to discern the subtle and esoteric meaning of the Vedic mantras. If after such great labor one does not understand the spiritual body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, which is the source of all happiness in life, and if one does not surrender to the Lord as the supreme shelter of all things, then one has certainly labored hard with no tangible result other than his own labor. Even a liberated soul who has given up the bodily concept of life will fall down if he does not take shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The word nirñāta, or "expert," indicates that one must ultimately achieve the goal of life; otherwise one is not expert. As stated by Caitanya Mahāprabhu, premā pum-artho mahān: the actual goal of human life is love of Godhead, and no one can be considered expert without achieving this goal.

TEXT 19

gAAM äu"gDad"Aeh"Amas$atal%M ca BaAyaA< de"hM" par"ADalnamas$at'ajaAM ca ivaÔaM tvatalTal=k{(tamaËÿ vaAcaM h"lnaAM mayaA r"°aita äu":Kaäu":Kal

gäà dugdha-dohām asatēà ca bhāryāà dehaà parādhēnam asat-prajāà ca vittaà tv atēthē-kātam aī ga vācāà hēnāà mayā rakñati duḥkha-duḥkhē

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gām—a cow; dugdha—whose milk; dohām—already taken; asatēm—unchaste; ca—also; bhāryām—a wife; deham—a body; para—upon others; adhēnam—always dependent; asat—useless; prajām—children; ca—also; vittam—wealth; tu—but; atēthē-kātam—not given to the proper recipient; aī ga—O Uddhava; vācam—Vedic knowledge; hēnām—devoid; mayā—of knowledge of Me; rakñati—he takes care of; duḥkha-duḥkhē—he who suffers one misery after another.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, that man is certainly most miserable who takes care of a cow that gives no milk, an unchaste wife, a body totally dependent on others, useless children or wealth not utilized for the right purpose. Similarly, one who studies Vedic knowledge devoid of My glories is also most miserable.

PURPORT

A human being is actually learned or expert when he understands that all material objects perceived through the various senses are expansions of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and that nothing exists without the support of the Supreme Lord. In this verse, through various examples, it is concluded that the power of speech is useless if not engaged in the support of the Supreme Lord. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, this verse implies that all of the functions of the various senses are useless if they are not engaged in the glorification of God. Indeed, the avadhüta brähmaëa previously stated to King Yadu that if the tongue is not controlled, one's entire program of sense control is a failure. One cannot control the tongue unless he vibrates the glories of the Lord.

The example of the milkless cow is significant. A gentleman never kills a cow, and therefore when a cow becomes sterile and no longer gives milk, one must engage in the laborious task of protecting her, since no one will purchase a useless cow. For some time, the greedy owner of a sterile cow may continue thinking, "I have already invested so much money in taking care of this cow, and certainly in the near future she will again become pregnant and give milk." But when this hope is proven futile, he becomes neglectful and indifferent to the health and safety of the animal. Because of such sinful neglect, he must suffer in the next life, after having already suffered because of the sterile cow in the present life.

Similarly, although a man may discover that his wife is neither chaste nor affectionate, he may be so eager to get children that he goes on taking care of such a useless wife, thinking, "I will teach my wife the religious duties of a chaste woman. By hearing historical examples of great women surely her heart will change, and she will become a wonderful wife to me." Unfortunately, the unchaste wife in many cases does not change and also gives a man many useless children who are just as foolish and irreligious as she. Such children never give any happiness to the father, yet the father tediously labors to take care of them.

Also, one who has accumulated wealth by the mercy of God must be vigilant to give in charity to the right person and for the right cause. If such a right person or cause appears and one hesitates and selfishly does not give in charity, one loses his reputation, and in the next life he will be poverty-stricken. One who fails to give properly in charity spends his life anxiously protecting his wealth, which ultimately brings him no fame or happiness.

The previous examples are given to illustrate the uselessness of laboriously studying Vedic knowledge that does not glorify the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé comments that the spiritual vibration of the Vedas is meant to bring one to the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord, Kåñëa. Many processes for achieving the Supreme Truth are recommended in the Upaniñads and other Vedic literatures, but because of their innumerable and seemingly contradictory explanations, commentaries and injunctions, one cannot achieve the Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead, merely by reading such literature. If, however, one understands Çré Kåñëa to be the ultimate cause of all causes and reads the Upaniñads and other Vedic literature as glorification of the Supreme Lord, then one can actually become fixed at the Lord's lotus feet. For example, His Divine Grace Çréla Prabhupäda translated and commented upon Çré Éçopaniñad in such a way that it brings the reader closer to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Undoubtedly, the lotus feet of Lord Kåñëa are the only reliable boat by which to cross the turbulent ocean of material existence. Even Lord Brahmä has stated in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam that if one gives up the auspicious path of bhakti and takes to the fruitless labor of Vedic speculation, one is just like a fool who beats empty husks in hopes of getting rice. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé recommends that one completely ignore dry Vedic speculation because it does not bring one to the point of devotional service to the Absolute Truth, Lord Çré Kåñëa.

TEXT 20

yasyaAM na mae paAvanamaËy k(maR isTatyauà"va'aANAINar"AeDamasya lallaAvataAre"ips$atajanma vaA syaAä," vanDyaAM igArM" taAM ibaBa{yaA^aa Dalr":

yasyäà na me pävanam aì ga karma sthity-udbhava-präëa-nirodham asya lélävatärepsita-janma vä syäd vandhyäà giraà täà bibhâyän na dhérau

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yasyäm—in which (literature); na—not; me—My; pävanam—purifying; aì ga—O Uddhava; karma—activities; sthiti—maintenance; udbhava—creation; präëa-nirodham—and annihilation; asya—of the material world; lélä-avatära—among the pastime incarnations; épsita—desired; janma—appearance; vä—or; syät—is; vandhyäm—barren; giram—vibration; täm—this; bibhâyät—should support; na—not; dhérau—an intelligent person.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, an intelligent person should never take to literatures that do not contain descriptions of My activities, which purify the whole universe. Indeed, I create, maintain and annihilate the entire material manifestation. Among all My pastime incarnations, the most beloved are Kåñëa and Balaräma. Any so-called knowledge that does not recognize these activities of Mine is simply barren and is not acceptable to those who are actually intelligent.

PURPORT

The words lélävatärepsita-janma are very significant here. The Lord's incarnation for executing wonderful pastimes is called lélävatära, and such wonderful forms of Viñëu are glorified by the names Rāmacandra, Nāsiàha-deva, Kürma, Varāha, and so on. Among all such lélävatāras, however, the most beloved, even to this day, is Lord Kåñëa, the original source of the viñëu-tattva. The Lord appears in the prison house of Kaàsa and is immediately transferred to the rural setting of Våndāvana, where He exhibits unique childhood pastimes with His cowherd boyfriends, girl friends, parents and well-wishers. After some time, the Lord's pastimes are transferred to Mathurā and Dvārakā, and the extraordinary love of the inhabitants of Våndāvana is exhibited in their anguished separation from Lord Kāñēa. Such pastimes of the Lord are ēpsita, or the reservoir of all loving exchanges with the Absolute Truth. The pure devotees of the Lord are most intelligent and expert and do not pay any attention to useless, fruitless literatures that neglect the highest truth, Lord Kāñēa. Although such literatures are very popular among materialistic persons all over the world, they are completely neglected by the community of pure Vaiñēavas. In this verse the Lord explains that the literatures approved for the devotees are those that glorify the Lord's pastimes as the puruña-avatāra and the lélāvatāras, culminating in the personal appearance of Lord Kāñēa Himself, as confirmed in Brahma-saḥhitā (5.39):

rāmādi-mūrtiṇu kalā-niyamena tiñōhan nānāvatāram akarod bhuvaneṇu kintu kāñēau svayaḥ samabhavat paramau pumān yo govindam ādi-puruñaḥ tam ahaḥ bhajāmi

"I worship Govinda, the primeval Lord, who manifested Himself personally as Kāñēa and the different avatāras in the world in the forms of Rāma, Nāsiḥa, Vāmana, etc., as His subjective portions."

Even Vedic literatures that neglect the Supreme Personality of Godhead should be ignored. This fact was also explained by Nārada Muni to Çréla Vyāsadeva, the author of the Vedas, when the great Vedavyāsa felt dissatisfied with his work.

TEXT 21

WvaM ijaÁaAs$ayaApaAe÷ naAnaAtva"amamaAtmaina
opaAr"maeta ivar"jaM

manaAe mayyapyar s$avaRgAe

*evaà jijì äsayäpohya nänätva-bhramam ätmani upärameta virajaà
mano mayy arpya sarva-ge*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus (as I have now concluded); jijì äsayä—by analytic study; apohya—giving up; nänätva—of material variety; bhramam—the mistake of rotating; ätmani—in the self; upärameta—one should cease from material life; virajam—pure; manaù—the mind; mayi—in Me; arpya—fixing; sarva-ge—who am all-pervading.

TRANSLATION

Coming to this conclusion of all knowledge, one should give up the false conception of material variety that one imposes upon the soul and thus cease one's material existence. The mind should be fixed on Me, since I am all-pervading.

PURPORT

Although in previous verses Lord Kāñëa has described the life-style and approach of the impersonal philosophers who meditate on the distinction between matter and spirit, the Lord here rejects the path of jì äna, or speculation, and comes to the final conclusion, bhakti-yoga. The path of jì äna is interesting only to one who does not know that Lord Kāñëa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as stated in Bhagavad-gétä (7.19):

*bahünäà janmanäm ante
jì änavän mäm prapadyate väsudevaù sarvam iti
sa mahätmä su-durlabhaù*

The words väsudevaù sarvam iti, or "Väsudeva is everything," are similar to the words sarva-ge found in this verse. One should know why the Personality of Godhead is all-pervading. The first verse of Çrémad-Bhägavatam states, janmädy asya yataù: [SB 1.1.1] the Supreme Lord is the source of everything. And as stated in the previous verse of this chapter, He creates, maintains and annihilates everything. Thus the Lord is not all-pervading in the manner of air or sunlight; rather, the Lord is all-pervading as the absolute controller who holds in His hands the destiny of every living entity.

Everything is ultimately an expansion of Kânëa, and therefore there is really no other object of meditation besides Kânëa. Meditation upon any other object is also meditation on Kânëa but is imperfectly performed, as confirmed in Bhagavad-gétä by the word avidhi-pürvakam. The Lord also states in the Gétä that all living entities are on the path back home, back to Godhead. Because of ignorance, however, some of them go backward or stop along the way, foolishly thinking that their journey is finished, when in fact they are suspended in one of the minor potencies of the Supreme Lord. If one wants to intimately understand the nature of the Absolute Truth, one must take to the path of love of Godhead. As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (18.55):

*bhaktyä mäm abhijänäti
yävän yaç cäsmi tattvataù tato mäà tattvato ji ätvä viçate tad-anantaram*

"One can understand the Supreme Personality as He is only by devotional service. And when one is in full consciousness of the Supreme Lord by such devotion, he can enter into the kingdom of God."

The words nänätva-bhramam in this verse indicate false identification with the gross and subtle material bodies. The word bhramam indicates a mistake; it can also mean "wandering" or "rotating." The conditioned living entity, because of his mistake of falling into illusion, is wandering through a succession of material bodies, sometimes appearing as a demigod and sometimes as a worm in stool. The word upārameta means that one should stop such fruitless wandering and fix one's mind on the Absolute Truth, the Supreme Lord, who is the true object of everyone's love. Such a conclusion is not sentimental but is the result of keen analytic intelligence (jijī āsayā). Thus after elaborately explaining to Uddhava many aspects of analytic knowledge, the Lord now comes to the ultimate conclusion, Kāñëa consciousness, pure love of Godhead. Without such love there is no question of eternally fixing one's mind on the Lord.

Quoting from the Viveka, Çréla Madhvācārya states that nānātva-bhramam indicates the following illusions: considering the living entity to be the Supreme; considering all living entities to be ultimately one entity without separate individuality; considering that there are many Gods; thinking that Kāñëa is not God; and considering that the material universe is the ultimate reality. All of these illusions are called bhrama, or mistakes, but such ignorance can be eliminated at once by the chanting of the holy names of Kāñëa: Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare.

TEXT 22

yaânalzAAe DaAr"iyatauM manaAe "aöiNA inaêlama, maiya s$avaARiNA k(maARiNA inar"pae⁰a: s$amaAcar"

yady anēçau dhārayituà
mano brahmaëi niçcalam
mayi sarvāëi karmāëi nirapekñau samācara

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadi—if; anēçau—incapable; dhārayitum—to fix; manau—the mind; brahmaëi—on the spiritual platform; niçcalam—free from sense gratification; mayi—in Me; sarvāëi—all; karmāëi—activities;

nirapekṣā—without trying to enjoy the fruits; samācara—execute.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, if you are not able to free your mind from all material disturbance and thus absorb it completely on the spiritual platform, then perform all your activities as an offering to Me, without trying to enjoy the fruits.

PURPORT

If one offers one's activities to Lord Kāṇḍea without trying to enjoy the results, one's mind becomes purified. When the mind is purified, transcendental knowledge automatically manifests, since such knowledge is a by-product of pure consciousness. When the mind is absorbed in perfect knowledge, it can be raised to the spiritual platform, as described in Bhagavad-gītā (18.54):

*brahma-bhūtaḥ prasannātmā na ṣocati na kṅkṣati samaḥ sarveṇa bhūteṇa
mad-bhaktiā labhate parām*

"One who is thus transcendently situated at once realizes the Supreme Brahman. He never laments nor desires to have anything; he is equally disposed to every living entity. In that state he attains pure devotional service unto Me." By absorbing the mind in the transcendental form of Lord Kāṇḍea, one can surpass the stage of ordinary transcendental knowledge, by which one simply distinguishes oneself from the gross and subtle material bodies. Spiritually enriched by loving devotional service to the Lord, the mind is completely purified of all tinges of illusion. Through intense concentration on one's relationship with the Personality of Godhead one comes to the highest standard of knowledge and becomes an intimate associate of the Personality of Godhead.

By offering one's activities to the Personality of Godhead, one purifies one's mind to some extent and thus comes to the preliminary stage of spiritual awareness. Yet even then one may not be able to fix one's mind completely on the spiritual platform. At that point one should realistically assess one's position, noting the lingering material contamination within the mind. Then, as stated in this verse, one should intensify one's practical devotional work in the service of the Lord. If one artificially considers oneself to be supremely liberated or if one becomes casual on the path of spiritual advancement, there is serious danger of a falldown.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the Lord previously explained to Uddhava jī āna-miçrā bhakti, or devotional service mixed with the impure desire to enjoy transcendental knowledge. In this verse the Lord clearly reveals that transcendental knowledge is an automatic by-product of loving service to the Lord, and in the next verse the Lord begins His explanation of pure devotional service, which is completely sufficient for self-realization. The desire to enjoy spiritual knowledge is certainly a material desire, since the goal is one's personal satisfaction and not the pleasure of the Supreme Lord. Therefore Lord Kāñëa here warns Uddhava that if one is not able to fix one's mind in trance on the spiritual platform, then one should not go on simply theoretically discussing what is Brahman and what is not Brahman. Rather, one should engage in practical devotional service to the Supreme Lord, and then spiritual knowledge will automatically awaken in one's heart. As stated in Bhagavad-gétä (10.10):

teñäà satata-yuktänäà bhajatäà prëti-pürvakam dadämi buddhi-yogaà taà yena mäm upayänti te

"To those who are constantly devoted and worship Me with love, I give the understanding by which they can come to Me."

Similarly, in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam Lord Brahmä warns that one should not neglect the auspicious path of bhakti and instead take up the useless labor of mental speculation. By mere philosophical speculation one cannot fix one's mind on the spiritual platform. Many great philosophers throughout history had abominable personal habits, which proves that they could not fix themselves on the spiritual platform by mere speculation on philosophical categories. If one is not fortunate enough to have executed devotional service to the Lord in one's past life, and if one is therefore addicted to mere speculation on the differences between matter and spirit, one will not be able to fix one's mind on the spiritual platform. Such a person should give up useless speculation and engage in the practical work of Kāñëa consciousness, absorbing himself twenty-four hours a day in the mission of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In such missionary work for the Lord's sake, one should never try to enjoy the fruits of one's work. Even though the mind is not completely pure, if one offers the fruits of one's work to the Lord, the mind will quickly come to the standard of pure desirelessness, in which one's only desire is the Lord's satisfaction.

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé states that if one does not have faith in the personal form and activities of the Personality of Godhead, one will not have the spiritual strength to remain perpetually on the transcendental platform. In this verse the Lord is definitely bringing Uddhava, and all living entities, to the conclusion of all philosophy—pure devotional service to the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa.

In this regard, Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura points out that one who is bewildered by false ego may not want to offer his activities to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, even though this is the actual way of rising above the influence of the modes of material nature. Because of ignorance one does not know that he is the eternal servant of Kāñëa and instead is attracted by the duality of material illusion. One cannot become free from such illusion by theoretical speculation, but if one offers one's work to the Personality of Godhead, one will clearly understand his eternal, transcendental position as a servant of the Lord.

TEXTS 23-24

™aÜ"AlaumaRtk(TaA: Za{Nvana, s$auBa%"A laAek(paAvanal: gAAyaªanausmar"na, k(maR

janma caAiBanayanmauò":

mad"TaeR DamaRk(AmaATaARna, @Acar"nmad"paA™aya: laBatae inaêlaAM Bai·M( mayyauÜ"va s$anaAtanae

*çraddhālur mat-kathāu çāëvan su-bhadrā loka-pāvanēu
gāyann anusmaran karma
janma cābhinayan muhuu*

mad-arthe dharma-kāmārthān ācaran mad-apāçrayau labhate niçcalāà bhaktià mayy uddhava sanātane

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çraddhāluu—a faithful person; mat-kathāu—narrations about Me; çāëvan—hearing; su-bhadrāu—which are all-auspicious; loka—the entire world; pāvanēu—purifying; gāyan—singing; anusmaran—remembering constantly; karma—My activities; janma—My birth; ca—also; abhinayan—reliving through dramatical performances, etc.; muhuu—again and again; mat-arthe—for My pleasure; dharma—religious activities; kāma—sense activities; arthān—and commercial activities; ācaran—performing; mat—in Me; apāçrayau—having one's shelter; labhate—one obtains; niçcalām—without deviation; bhaktim—devotional service; mayi—to Me; uddhava—O Uddhava; sanātane—dedicated to My eternal form.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, narrations of My pastimes and qualities are all-auspicious and purify the entire universe. A faithful person who constantly hears, glorifies and remembers such transcendental activities, who through dramatic performances relives My pastimes, beginning with My appearance, and who takes full shelter of Me, dedicating his religious, sensual and occupational activities for My satisfaction, certainly obtains unflinching devotional service to Me, the eternal Personality of Godhead.

PURPORT

Those who have faith only in the impersonal effulgent aspect of the Supreme Lord and those who have faith only in the localized Supersoul, the perfect object of mystic meditation located in the heart of every living entity, are considered to be limited and imperfect in their transcendental realization. The process of mystic meditation and impersonal philosophical speculation are both devoid of actual love of God and therefore cannot be considered to be the perfection of human life. Only one who places full faith in the Supreme Personality of Godhead becomes qualified to go back home, back to Godhead.

Lord Kāñëa's pastimes of stealing butter from the elderly gopés, enjoying life with His cowherd boyfriends and the young gopés, playing His flute and engaging in the rāsa dance, etc., are all-auspicious spiritual activities, and they are fully described in the Tenth Canto of this work. There are many authorized songs and prayers glorifying these pastimes of the Lord, and by constantly chanting them one will automatically be fixed in smaraëam, or remembrance of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The Lord exhibited His opulences upon His birth in Kaàsa's prison and at the birth ceremony subsequently performed by Nanda Mahārāja in Gokula. The Lord further performed many adventurous activities, such as chastising the serpent Kāliya and many other irresponsible demons. One should regularly take part in the ceremonies commemorating Kāñëa's pastimes, such as the Janmāñōamé celebration glorifying the Lord's birth. On such days one should worship the Deity of Lord Kāñëa and the spiritual master and thus remember the Lord's pastimes.

The word dharma in this verse indicates that one's religious activities should always be in connection with Kāñëa. Therefore, one should give charity in the form of food grains, clothing, etc., to the Vaiñëavas and brāhmaëas, and whenever possible one should arrange for the protection of cows, who are very dear to the Lord. The word kāma indicates that one should satisfy one's desires with the transcendental paraphernalia of the Lord. One should eat mahā-prasādam, food offered to the Deity of Lord Kāñëa, and one should also decorate oneself with the Lord's flower garlands and sandalwood pulp and should place the remnants of the Deity's clothing on one's body. One who lives in a luxurious mansion or apartment should convert his residence into a temple of Lord Kāñëa and invite others to come, chant before the Deity, hear Bhagavad-gētā and Çrëmad-Bhāgavatam and taste the remnants of the Lord's food, or one may live in a beautiful temple building in the community of Vaiñëavas and engage in the same activities. The word artha in this verse indicates that one who is inclined toward business should accumulate money to promote the missionary work of the Lord's devotees and not for one's personal sense gratification. Thus one's business activities are also considered to be devotional service to Lord Kāñëa. The word niçcalām indicates that since Lord Kāñëa is eternally fixed in perfect knowledge and bliss, there is no possibility of disturbance for one who worships the Lord. If we worship anything except the Lord, our worship may be disturbed when our worshipable deity is placed in an awkward position. But because the Lord is supreme, our worship of Him is eternally free of disturbance.

One who engages in hearing, glorifying, remembering and dramatically recreating the pastimes of the Lord will soon be freed from all material desire. Çrëla Jëva Gosvāmë mentions in this connection that one who is advanced in Kāñëa consciousness may specifically be attracted to the pastimes of a devotee in the spiritual world who serves the Lord in a particular way. An advanced devotee in this world may desire to serve the Lord in the same way and thus may take pleasure in dramatically reliving the service of his worshipable devotee-master in the spiritual world. Also, one may take pleasure in spiritual festivals, performances of particular pastimes of Lord Kāñëa, or activities of other devotees of the Lord. In this way, one can continually increase one's faith in the Personality of Godhead. Those who have no desire to hear, glorify or remember the transcendental activities of the Lord are certainly materially polluted and never achieve the highest perfection. Such persons spoil the opportunity of human life by devoting themselves to fleeting mundane topics that produce no eternal benefit. The real meaning of religion is to constantly serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead, whose form is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge. One who has taken full shelter of the Lord is completely uninterested in impersonal speculations about the nature of God and uses his time to advance more and more in the unlimited bliss of pure devotional service.

TEXT 25

s$ats$aËyālabDayaA BaṭṭyaA maiya maAM s$a opaAis$aataA s$a vaE mae d"izARtaM s$aià"r," @Āas$aA ivand"tae pad"ma,

*sat-saṁ ga-labdhayā bhaktyā mayi mām sa upāsītā
sa vai me darśitaṁ sadbhir ai-jasā vindate padam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sat—of the devotees of the Lord; saṁ ga—by the association; labdhayā—obtained; bhaktyā—by devotion; mayi—to Me; mām—of Me; saṁ—he; upāsītā—worshiper; saṁ—that very person; vai—undoubtedly; me—My; darśitam—revealed; sadbhir—by My pure devotees; ai-jasā—very easily; vindate—achieves; padam—My lotus feet or My eternal abode.

TRANSLATION

One who has obtained pure devotional service by association with My devotees always engages in worshiping Me. Thus he very easily goes to My abode, which is revealed by My pure devotees.

PURPORT

In the previous verses Lord Kāñëa has emphasized the value of surrendering to Him in loving service. One may ask how such surrender or devotion is actually achieved. The Lord gives the answer in this verse. One must live in a society of devotees, and thus automatically one will be engaged twenty-four hours a day in the various processes of devotional service, beginning with çravaëam, kértanam and smaraëam (hearing, glorifying and remembering the Lord) [SB 7.5.23]. The pure devotees of the Lord can reveal the spiritual world by their transcendental sound vibration, making it possible for even a neophyte devotee to experience the Lord's abode. Being thus enlivened, the neophyte makes further progress and gradually becomes qualified to personally serve the Personality of Godhead in the spiritual world. By constantly associating with devotees and learning from them about devotional science, one quickly achieves a deep attachment for the Lord and the Lord's service, and such attachment gradually matures into pure love of Godhead.

Foolish persons say that the various mantras composed of names of God, as well as all other mantras, are merely material creations with no special value, and therefore any so-called mantra or mystical process will ultimately produce the same result. To refute such superficial thinking, the Lord here describes the science of going back home, back to Godhead. One should not accept the bad association of impersonalists, who state that the holy name, form, qualities and pastimes of the Lord are mäyā, or illusion. Mäyā is actually an insignificant potency of the almighty Personality of Godhead, and if one ignorantly tries to elevate illusion above the Absolute Truth, one will never experience love of Godhead and will be cast into deep forgetfulness of the Lord. One should not associate with those who are envious of the fortunate devotees who are going back to Godhead. Such envious persons deride the abode of the Lord, which is revealed by the pure devotees to those who have faith in the Lord's message. Envious persons create disturbances among the people in general, who should take shelter of the faithful devotees of the Lord. Unless people hear from pure devotees, it is impossible for them to understand that there is a Supreme Personality of Godhead eternally existing in His own abode, which is self-luminous, full of bliss and knowledge. In this verse, the importance of saṁga, association, is clearly explained.

TEXTS 26-27

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
s$ADaustavaAeÔamaëAek( mata: k(Lä{"igvaDa: 'aBaAe Bai·(stvayyaupayaujyaeta k(Lä{"zAI s$aià"r"Aä{"taA

Wtanmae pauç&SaADya°a laAek(ADya°a jagAt'aBaAe
'aNAtaAyaAnaur"·(Aya
'apa°aAya ca k(TyataAma,

çré-uddhava uvāca
sādhus tavottama-çloka
mataù kédâg-vidhaù prabho bhaktis tvayy upayujyeta kédâçé sadbhir ādātā

etan me puruñādhyakñā
lokādhyakñā jagat-prabho praëatäyānuraktāya
prapannāya ca kathyatām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; sādhau—a saintly person; tava—in Your; uttama-çloka—my dear Lord; mataù—opinion; kédâk-vidhaù—what kind would he be; prabho—my dear Personality of Godhead; bhaktiù—devotional service; tvayi—unto Your Lordship; upayujyeta—deserves to be executed; kédâçé—what type is it; sadbhiù—by

Your pure devotees such as Nārada; ādātā—honored; etaḥ—this; me—to me; puruṇa-adhyakṇa—O ruler of the universal controllers; loka-adhyakṇa—O Supreme Lord of Vaikuṇṭha; jagat-prabho—O God of the universe; praṇatāya—unto Your surrendered devotee; anuraktāya—who loves You; prapannāya—who has no other shelter than You; ca—also; kathyatām—let this be spoken.

TRANSLATION

Ṣṛé Uddhava said: My dear Lord, O Supreme Personality of Godhead, what type of person do You consider to be a true devotee, and what type of devotional service is approved by great devotees as worthy of being offered to Your Lordship? My dear ruler of the universal controllers, O Lord of Vaikuṇṭha and almighty God of the universe, I am Your devotee, and because I love You I have no other shelter than You. Therefore please explain this to me.

PURPORT

In the previous verse it was stated that one can achieve the Lord's supreme abode by associating with devotees. Therefore, Uddhava naturally inquires about the symptoms of a distinguished devotee whose association can promote one to the kingdom of God. Ṣṛéla Jéva Gosvāmé notes that the Personality of Godhead knows who is actually a sincere devotee because the Lord is always attached to His loving servitors. Similarly, pure devotees can expertly explain the proper methods of devotional service to Lord Kāṇṇéa because they are already absorbed in love of Kāṇṇéa. Uddhava herein requests Lord Kāṇṇéa to describe the qualities of a devotee and asks the Lord to explain the devotional service that the devotees themselves approve as worthy to be offered to the Lord.

Ṣṛéla Viṣṇvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura remarks that the word puruṇādhyakṇa indicates that Lord Kāṇṇéa is the supreme ruler of the universal controllers headed by Mahā-viñṇéu, and thus the Lord possesses infinite sovereignty. The term lokādhyakṇa indicates that Lord Kāṇṇéa is the ultimate supervising authority of all of the Vaikuëöha planets, and therefore the Lord is unlimitedly glorious and perfect. Uddhava further addresses Lord Kåñëa as jagat-prabhu, because even in the illusory material world the Lord exhibits His unlimited mercy by personally incarnating to uplift the conditioned souls. The word praëatäya ("Your surrendered devotee") indicates that Uddhava is not proud like ordinary fools who do not enjoy bowing down to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura, Uddhava mentions that he is anuraktäya, or completely bound in love to Lord Kåñëa, because unlike other great devotees such as Arjuna, who sometimes worshiped demigods in order to comply with social customs or to show respect for their positions in the scheme of planetary management, Uddhava never worshiped any demigods. Therefore, Uddhava is prapannäya, or completely surrendered to Lord Kåñëa, having no other shelter.

TEXT 28

tvaM "aö par"maM vyaAema pauç&Sa: 'ak{(tae: par": @vatalnaAeR'is$ä BagAvana, svaecC$AepaAÔapa{Tagvapau:

tvaà brahma paramaà vyoma puruñau prakâteu paraù avatérno 'si bhagavan svecchopätta-pâthag-vapuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tvam—You; brahma paramam—the Absolute Truth; vyoma—like the sky (You are detached from everything); puruñau—the Personality of Godhead; prakâteu—to material nature; paraù—transcendental; avatérëau—incarnated; asi—You are; bhagavan—the Lord; sva—of Your own (devotees); icchä—according to the desire; upätta—accepted;

pāthak—different; vapuù—bodies.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, as the Absolute Truth You are transcendental to material nature, and like the sky You are never entangled in any way. Still, being controlled by Your devotees' love, You accept many different forms, incarnating according to Your devotees' desires.

PURPORT

The pure devotees of the Lord propagate devotional service all over the world, and therefore, although separate from the personal form of the Lord, they are considered to be manifestations of God's mercy and potency. As stated in Caitanya-caritāmāta (Antya 7.11): kāñëa-çakti vinä nahe tära pravartana.

The Lord is like the sky (vyoma) because although expanded everywhere, He is not entangled in anything. He is prakāteù paraù, or completely transcendental to material nature. The Lord is fully self-satisfied and is therefore indifferent to the affairs of the material world. Still, because of His causeless mercy, the Lord desires to expand pure devotional service, and for this reason He incarnates within the material world to uplift the fallen conditioned souls.

The Lord descends in selected spiritual bodies to please His loving devotees. Sometimes He appears in His original form as Kāñëa. And even Kāñëa Himself appears in different forms to special devotees so that they may fully develop their loving sentiments for Him. Çréla Jéva Gosvämé gives several examples of the Lord's special mercy upon His devotees. Lord Kāñëa personally went to the home of Jāmbavān and there displayed a form with slightly angry glances. In that form, the Lord enjoyed a fight with His devotee. The Lord displayed His form as Dattātreya to Atri Muni and similarly bestowed special mercy upon Lord Brahmā, the demigods, Akrūra and innumerable other devotees. And in Vāndāvana the Lord displayed His most beautiful form as Govinda to the fortunate inhabitants.

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from the Prakāṣa-saṅhitā as follows. "The Lord accepts different spiritual bodies according to the desire of His devotees. For example, the Lord agreed to become the son of Vasudeva and Devakī. Thus, although Lord Kāṇḍa has an eternal, blissful spiritual form, He appears to enter within the body of His devotee who becomes His mother. Although we speak of the Lord's 'taking on a body,' the Lord does not change His form, as do the conditioned souls, who must change their material bodies. The Lord appears in His own eternally unchangeable forms. Lord Hari always appears in the forms that are especially desired by His loving devotees, and never in other forms. However, if one thinks that the Lord, in the manner of an ordinary person taking birth, becomes the physical son of Vasudeva or other devotees, then one is victimized by illusion. The Lord merely expands His spiritual potency, causing His pure devotees to think, 'Kāṇḍa is now my son.' One should understand that the Supreme Personality of Godhead never accepts or rejects a material body, nor does He ever give up His eternal spiritual forms; rather, the Lord eternally manifests His blissful bodies according to the loving sentiments of His eternal pure devotees."

Çréla Jéva Gosvāmī mentions that the word vyoma also indicates the Lord's name of Paravyoma, or the Lord of the spiritual sky. One should not misinterpret this verse to mean that Lord Kāṇḍa is impersonal, like the material sky, or that the form of Kāṇḍa is merely another selected incarnation equal to any other. Such casual and whimsical speculations cannot be accepted as actual spiritual knowledge. Çré Kāṇḍa is the original Personality of Godhead (kāṇḍas tu bhagavān svayam [SB 1.3.28]), and the Lord has explained elaborately in Bhagavad-gītā that He is the original source of everything. Therefore, the pure devotees of the Lord are eternally engaged, in full knowledge and bliss, in loving service to the Lord's original form as Kāṇḍa. The whole purpose of Çrīmad-Bhāgavatam is to arouse our love for Lord Kāṇḍa, and one should not foolishly misunderstand this great purpose.

TEXTS 29-32

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
k{(paAlaur"k{(ta%"Aeh"s$a, itaita°au: s$avaR$de"ih"naAma, s$atyas$aAr"Ae'navaâAtmaA s$ama: s$avaAeRpak(Ar"k(:

k(AmaEr"h"taDald"ARntaAe ma{äu": zAuicar"ik(Âana: @nalh"Ae imataBaufzAAnta:
isTar"Ae macC$r"NAAe mauina:

@'amaÔaAe gABalr"AtmaA
Da{itamaAiÃataSa"NA: @maAnal maAnad": k(lyAe maE‡a: k(Aç&iNAk(: k(iva:

@AÁaAyaEvaM gAuNAAnd"AeSaAna, mayaAid"í"Anaipa svak(Ana, DamaARna, s$antyajya ya: s$avaARna, maAM Bajaeta s$a tau s$aÔama:

*çré-bhagavän uväca
kâpälur akâta-drohas
titikñuù sarva-dehinäm
satya-sâro 'navadyätmä
samaù sarvopakârakaù

kämair ahata-dhër dānto māduù çucir akii canaù aného mita-bhuk çāntaù sthiro mac-charaëo muniù

apramatto gabhërätmä dhâtimäi jita-ñäò-guëaù amāné māna-daù kalyo maitraù käruëikaù kaviù

äji äyaivaà guëän doñän*

mayädiññān api svakān dharmān santyajya yaù sarvān māà bhajeta sa tu sattamaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; kāpāluù—unable to tolerate the suffering of others; akāta-drohaù—never injuring others; titikñuù—forgiving; sarva-dehinām—toward all living entities; satya-sāraù—one who lives by truth and whose strength and firmness come from truthfulness; anavadya-ātmā—a soul free from envy, jealousy, etc.; samaù—whose consciousness is equal both in happiness and in distress; sarva-upakārakaù—always endeavoring as far as possible for the welfare of all others; kāmaiù—by material desires; ahata—undisturbed; dhēu—whose intelligence; dāntaù—controlling the external senses; māduù—without a harsh mentality; çuciù—always well-behaved; akīīcanaù—without possessiveness; anēhaù—free from worldly activities; mita-bhuk—eating austerely; çāntaù—controlling the mind; sthiraù—remaining steady in one's prescribed duty; mat-çaraēaù—accepting Me as the only shelter; muniù—thoughtful; apramattaù—cautious and sober; gabhēra-ātmā—not superficial, and thus unchanging; dhāti-mān—not weak or miserable even in distressing circumstances; jīta—having conquered; ñāō-guēaù—the six material qualities, namely hunger, thirst, lamentation, illusion, old age and death; amānē—without desire for prestige; māna-daù—offering all respects to others; kalyaù—expert in reviving the Kāñēa consciousness of others; maitraù—never cheating anyone, and thus a true friend; kāruēikaù—acting always due to compassion, not personal ambition; kaviù—completely learned; ājī āya—knowing; evam—thus; guēān—good qualities; doñān—bad qualities; mayā—by Me; ādiññān—taught; api—even; svakān—one's own; dharmān—religious principles; santyajya—giving up; yaù—one who; sarvān—all; mām—Me; bhajeta—worships; saù—he; tu—indeed; sat-tamaù—the best among saintly persons.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: O Uddhava, a saintly person is merciful and never injures others. Even if others are aggressive he is tolerant and forgiving toward all living entities. His strength and meaning in life come from the truth itself, he is free from all envy and jealousy, and his mind is equal in material happiness and distress. Thus, he dedicates his time to work for the welfare of all others. His intelligence is never bewildered by material desires, and he has controlled his senses. His behavior is always pleasing, never harsh and always exemplary, and he is free from possessiveness. He never endeavors in ordinary, worldly activities, and he strictly controls his eating. He therefore always remains peaceful and steady. A saintly person is thoughtful and accepts Me as his only shelter. Such a person is very cautious in the execution of his duties and is never subject to superficial transformations, because he is steady and noble, even in a distressing situation. He has conquered over the six material qualities—namely hunger, thirst, lamentation, illusion, old age and death. He is free from all desire for prestige and offers honor to others. He is expert in reviving the Kāññā consciousness of others and therefore never cheats anyone. Rather, he is a well-wishing friend to all, being most merciful. Such a saintly person must be considered the most learned of men. He perfectly understands that the ordinary religious duties prescribed by Me in various Vedic scriptures possess favorable qualities that purify the performer, and he knows that neglect of such duties constitutes a discrepancy in one's life. Having taken complete shelter at My lotus feet, however, a saintly person ultimately renounces such ordinary religious duties and worships Me alone. He is thus considered to be the best among all living entities.

PURPORT

Verses 29-31 describe twenty-eight qualities of a saintly person, and verse 32 explains the highest perfection of life. According to Çrëla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, the seventeenth quality (mat-çaraëa, or taking complete shelter of Lord Kāññā) is the most important, and the other twenty-seven qualities automatically appear in one who has become a pure devotee of the Lord. As stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (5.18.12), yasyāsti bhaktir bhagavaty akiñcanā sarvair guëais tatra samāsate surāù. The twenty-eight saintly qualities may be described as follows.

(1) Kāpālu. A devotee cannot tolerate seeing the world merged in ignorance and suffering the whiplashes of māyā. Therefore he busily engages in distributing Kāñëa consciousness and is called kāpālu, or merciful.

(2) Akāta-droha. Even if someone is offensive toward a devotee, a devotee does not become offensive in return. Indeed, he never acts against the interest of any living entity. One may argue that great Vaiñëava kings, such as Mahārāja Yudhiñöhira and Parékñit Mahārāja, executed many criminals. However, when justice is properly administered by the state, sinful, destructive persons actually benefit from their punishment because they become freed from the severe karmic reactions to their illicit activities. A Vaiñëava ruler gives punishment not out of envy or malice, but in faithful obedience to the laws of God. The Māyāvādé philosophers who want to kill God by imagining that He does not exist are certainly kāta-droha, or most injurious to themselves and others. The impersonalist imagines that he himself is supreme and thus creates a most dangerous situation for himself and his followers. Similarly, the karmés, who are dedicated to material sense gratification, are also killers of the self, because by their absorption in material consciousness they lose all chance of experiencing the Absolute Truth and the truth of their own self. Therefore, all living entities who come under the control of materialistic regulations and duties are unnecessarily harassing themselves and others, and a pure Vaiñëava feels great compassion and concern for them. A devotee never uses his mind, body or words to perform any act harmful to the welfare of any living entity.

(3) Titikñu. A devotee forgives and forgets any offense against himself. A Vaiñëava is personally detached from his material body, which is made of pus, stool, blood, and so on. Therefore the devotee is able to overlook the obnoxious behavior he sometimes meets with in the course of preaching work and always deals with people as a perfect gentleman. A Vaiñëava loudly chants the holy name of the Lord and tolerates and forgives those fallen conditioned souls who are unable to reciprocate properly with a pure devotee.

(4) Satya-sära. A devotee always remembers that he is the eternal servant of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is omniscient, the reservoir of all pleasure and the ultimate enjoyer of all activities. By avoiding activities outside devotional service, a devotee remains fixed in the truth, does not uselessly waste time and thus becomes bold, powerful and steady.

(5) Anavadyätmä. A devotee knows that the material world is a temporary phantasmagoria and therefore does not envy anyone in any material situation. He never tries to agitate others or criticize them unnecessarily.

(6) Sama. A devotee remains steady and equal in material happiness or distress, fame or infamy. His actual wealth is his consciousness of Kåñëä, and he understands that his real self-interest lies outside the scope of material nature. He does not become excited or depressed by external events, but remains fixed in consciousness of the omnipotency of Lord Kåñëä.

(7) Sarvopakäraka. Neglecting one's selfish desires and working for the satisfaction of others is called paropakära, whereas causing trouble to others for one's personal gratification is called paräpakära. A devotee always works for the pleasure of Lord Kåñëä, who is the resting place of all living entities, and thus a devotee's activities are ultimately pleasing to everyone. Devotional service to Lord Kåñëä is the perfectional stage of welfare work, since Lord Kåñëä is the supreme controller of everyone's happiness and distress. Foolish persons under the influence of false egotism, considering themselves to be the ultimate well-wishers of others, execute superficial materialistic activities rather than attending to the eternal happiness of others. Because a devotee remains pure and engages in missionary activities, he is everyone's best friend.

(8) Kämair ahata-dhé. Ordinary persons see all material things as objects for their personal gratification and thus try to acquire or control them. Ultimately a man wants to possess a woman and enjoy sex gratification with her. The Supreme Lord supplies the desired fuel that causes the fire of lust to burn painfully in one's heart, but the Lord does not give self-realization to such a misguided person. Lord Kāñëa is transcendental and neutral, but if one is eager to exploit the Lord's creation, the Lord gives one facility through māyā, and one becomes cheated of real happiness by entangling himself in the false role of a great and lusty enjoyer of the world. On the other hand, one who has taken full shelter of Kāñëa is enriched with perfect knowledge and bliss and is not cheated by the seductive appearances of the material world. A pure devotee does not follow the path of the foolish deer, which is seduced by the hunter's horn and killed. A devotee is never attracted by the sensuous entreaties of a beautiful woman, and he avoids hearing from bewildered karmés about the so-called glories of material acquisition. Similarly, a pure devotee is not bewildered by aroma or taste. He does not become attached to sumptuous eating, nor does he spend the whole day making arrangements for bodily comfort. The only actual enjoyer of God's creation is the Lord Himself, and the living entities are secondary enjoyers who experience unlimited pleasure through the Lord's pleasure. This perfect process of experiencing pleasure is called bhakti-yoga, or pure devotional service, and a devotee never sacrifices his auspicious position of steady intelligence, even in the face of so-called material opportunity.

(9) Dānta. A devotee is naturally repelled by sinful activities and controls his senses by dedicating all his acts to Kāñëa. This requires steady concentration and a cautious mentality.

(10) Mādu. A materialistic person will always see people as friends or enemies and thus will sometimes justify cruel or small-minded behavior in order to subdue his opponents. Since a devotee has taken shelter of Lord Kāñëa, he does not consider anyone his enemy and is never disturbed by the tendency to desire or enjoy the suffering of others. Thus he is mādu, or gentle and sublime.

(11) Çuci. A devotee never touches that which is impure or improper, and simply by remembering such a pure devotee, one is freed from the tendency to sin. Because of his perfect behavior, a devotee is called çuci, or pure.

(12) Akii'cana. A devotee is free from possessiveness and is not eager to enjoy or renounce anything, since he considers everything to be Lord Kāñëa's property.

(13) Anéha. A devotee never acts on his own behalf, but rather for the service of Lord Kāñëa. He is therefore aloof from ordinary, worldly affairs.

(14) Mita-bhuk. A devotee accepts material sense objects only as far as necessary, to keep himself healthy and fit in Lord Kāñëa's service. He is therefore not entangled by his sense activities and never injures his self-realization. When necessary, a devotee can give up anything for Lord Kāñëa's service, but he does not accept or reject anything for his personal prestige.

(15) Çänta. Those trying to exploit the Lord's creation are always disturbed. A devotee, however, is detached from such pointless activities and understands sense gratification to be diametrically opposed to his self-interest. Being always engaged according to the Lord's desire, he remains peaceful.

(16) Sthira. Remembering that Lord Kāñëa is the basis of everything, a devotee does not become fearful or impatient.

(17) Mat-çaraëa. A devotee does not take pleasure in anything except serving Lord Kāñëa and is constantly attentive in the execution of his duties. A devotee knows that only Lord Kāñëa can protect him and engage him in useful work.

(18) Muni. A devotee is thoughtful and through intelligent contemplation avoids becoming distracted from his spiritual advancement. By intelligence he is freed from doubts about Lord Kāñëa and confronts all problems in life with steady Kāñëa consciousness.

(19) Apramatta. One who forgets the Supreme Lord is more or less crazy, but a devotee remains sane by offering his activities to Lord Kāñëa.

(20) Gabhërätmä. As a devotee merges into the ocean of Kāñëa consciousness, his own consciousness becomes deeper and deeper; ordinary, superficial persons hovering on the material platform cannot fathom the extent of a devotee's awareness.

(21) Dhâtimän. By controlling the urges of the tongue and genitals the devotee remains steady and patient and does not impulsively change his position.

(22) Jita-ñāò-guëa. By spiritual knowledge, a devotee is able to conquer the pushings of hunger, thirst, lamentation, illusion, old age and death.

(23) Amāñé. A devotee is not puffed up, and even if he is famous, he does not take such fame very seriously.

(24) Māna-da. A devotee offers all respects to others, since everyone is part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa.

(25) Kalya. A devotee is expert in making people understand the truth of Kāñëa consciousness.

(26) Maitra. A devotee does not cheat anyone by encouraging them in the bodily concept of life; rather, by his missionary work a devotee is the true friend of everyone.

(27) Kāruëika. A devotee tries to make people sane and thus is most merciful. He is para-duùkha-duùkhé, or one who is unhappy to see the unhappiness of others.

(28) Kavi. A devotee is expert in studying the transcendental qualities of Lord Kāñëa and is able to show the harmony and compatibility of the Lord's apparently contradictory qualities. This is possible through expert knowledge of the absolute nature of the Lord. Lord Caitanya is softer than a rose and harder than a thunderbolt, but these opposing qualities can easily be understood in terms of the Lord's transcendental nature and purpose. One who is always able to understand the truth of Kāñëa consciousness, without opposition or confusion, is called kavi, or most learned.

The position of those on the spiritual path can be understood in terms of their development of the qualities mentioned above. Ultimately, the most important quality is to take shelter of Lord Kāñëa, since the Lord can award all good qualities to His sincere devotee. In the lowest stage of devotional service one acts with a desire to enjoy sense gratification but at the same time tries to offer the fruits to the Lord. This stage is called karma-miçrā bhakti. As one gradually purifies himself in devotional service, he becomes detached through knowledge and gains relief from anxiety. In this stage he becomes attached to transcendental knowledge, and therefore this stage is called jī āna-miçrā bhakti, or devotional service to Lord Kāñëa with a desire to enjoy the fruits of transcendental knowledge. But because pure love for Kâñëa is actually the greatest happiness and the natural position of the living entity, a sincere devotee gradually overcomes his desire to enjoy sense gratification and knowledge and comes to the stage of pure devotional service, which is devoid of personal desire. Na karmäëi tyajed yogé karmabhis tyajyate hi saù: "The yogé should not give up his work, but rather should cultivate detachment by which his material activities will automatically vanish." In other words, one should continue to perform one's prescribed duties, even imperfectly. If one is sincere about advancing in Kâñëa consciousness, then by the strength of bhakti-yoga his activities will gradually be transformed into pure loving service.

There are innumerable examples of fruitive workers, mental speculators and materialistic devotees who became perfect by the strength of devotional service. By rendering loving service to Kâñëa, one automatically experiences the greatest pleasure of life and is endowed with perfect knowledge. There is nothing lacking in the process of pure devotional service, and there is no need for any extraneous endeavor to acquire sense pleasure or philosophical satisfaction. One must be completely convinced that simply by serving Kâñëa one will get all perfection in life. Even if one lacks some or all of the above-mentioned qualities, one should sincerely engage in Lord Kâñëa's service, and gradually one's character will become perfect. One who is a sincere devotee of Lord Kâñëa will develop all godly qualities by the mercy of the Lord, and one who is already serving the Lord with the above-mentioned qualities is to be understood as the greatest devotee. As indicated in verse 32, a pure devotee of the Lord is fully aware of the pious advantages of executing duties within the varëäçrama system, and he is similarly aware of the harmful mistake of neglecting such duties. Still, having full faith in the Supreme Personality of Godhead, a devotee gives up all ordinary social and religious activities and engages fully in devotional service. He knows that Lord Kâñëa is the ultimate source of everything and that all perfection comes from Lord Kâñëa alone. Because of his extraordinary faith, the devotee is called sattama, or the best among all living beings.

As explained by Çréla Rûpa Gosvämé in Upadeçämâta, a devotee who has not yet developed the good qualities mentioned above but is nevertheless sincerely endeavoring for Kâñëa consciousness should receive the mercy of superior Vaiñëavas. One should not necessarily accept intimate association with such an aspirant to pure devotional service, but one should be confident that by chanting the holy names of Kâñëa such a person will eventually attain all perfection. One can imagine the beauty of a society filled with saintly persons, as described in these verses. The wonderful Kâñëa conscious qualities mentioned above are the basis of a peaceful and prosperous society, and if everyone takes to the loving service of Lord Kâñëa, then certainly the present atmosphere of fear, violence, lust, greed and insanity can be replaced by a celestial situation in which all leaders and citizens will be happy. The essential points here are mat-çaraëa ("one should take full shelter of Lord Kâñëa") and mäà bhajeta ("one should worship the Lord through the authorized process"). In this way the entire world can become sattama, or most perfect.

TEXTS 33

ÁaAtvaAÁaAtvaATa yae vaE maAM yaAvaAna, yaêAisma yaAä{"zA: BajantyananyaBaAvaena
tae mae Ba·(tamaA mataA:

ji' ätväji' ätvätha ye vai mäà yävän yaç cäsmi yädâçaù bhajanty ananya-bhävena te me bhaktatamä matäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ji' ätvä—knowing; aji' ätvä—not knowing; atha—thus; ye—those who; vai—certainly; mäm—Me; yävän—as; yaù—who; ca—also; asmi—I am; yädâçaù—how I am; bhajanti—worship; ananya-bhävena—with exclusive devotion; te—they; me—by Me; bhakta-tamäù—the best devotees; matäù—are considered.

TRANSLATION

My devotees may or may not know exactly what I am, who I am and how I exist, but if they worship Me with unalloyed love, then I consider them to be the best of devotees.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura, although yāvān indicates that Lord Kāñēa cannot be limited by time or space, He becomes limited by the love of His pure devotees. For example, Lord Kāñēa never steps one foot out of Vāndāvana, because of the intense love of its inhabitants for Him. In this way, the Lord comes under the control of His devotees' love. The word yaù indicates that Kāñēa is the Absolute Truth who appears as the son of Vasudeva, or as Çyāmasundara. Yādāça indicates that the Lord is ātmārāma, or completely self-satisfied, and also āpta-kāma, or "one who automatically fulfills all of His desires." Still, being affected by the love of His devotees, the Lord sometimes appears to be anātmārāma, or dependent on the love of His devotees, and anāptakāma, unable to achieve His desire without the cooperation of His devotees. Actually, the Supreme Lord, Kāñēa, is always independent, but He reciprocates the intense love of His devotees and thus appears to be dependent on them, just as He apparently became dependent on Nanda Mahārāja and Yaçodā during His childhood pastimes in Vāndāvana. The word aji ātvā ("inexperienced, lacking knowledge") indicates that sometimes a devotee may not have a proper philosophical understanding of the Personality of Godhead or due to love may temporarily forget the Lord's position. In Bhagavad-gētā (11.41) Arjuna says, sakheti matvā prasabhaà yad uktaà he kāñēa he yādava he sakheti ajānatā mahimānaà tavedaà mayā pramādāt praēayena vāpi

"I have in the past addressed You as 'O Kāñēa,' 'O Yādava,' 'O my friend,' without knowing Your glories. Please forgive whatever I may have done in madness or in love." Arjuna's words ajānatā mahimānam have the same meaning as Kāṇḍa's words aji ātvā mām in this verse of the Bhāgavatam. Both indicate incomplete understanding of Kāṇḍa's glories. In Bhagavad-gētā Arjuna says, praēayena: his forgetfulness of Kāṇḍa's supreme position was caused by his love for Him. In this verse, Kāṇḍa excuses such lapses on the part of His devotees with the words aji ātvā mām, which indicate that even though devotees may not fully appreciate His exalted position, Kāṇḍa accepts their loving service. Thus this verse clearly reveals the supreme position of bhakti. Lord Kāṇḍa also states in Bhagavad-gētā (11.54):

bhaktyā tv ananyayā çakya aham evaà-vidho 'rjuna ji' ātum drañōuà ca tattvena praveñōuà ca parantapa

"My dear Arjuna, only by undivided devotional service can I be understood as I am, standing before you, and can thus be seen directly. Only in this way can you enter into the mysteries of My understanding."

Although one may develop innumerable saintly qualities, without love of Kāṇḍa one will not achieve complete success. One must understand the Personality of Godhead as He is and love Him. Even if one is not capable of analytically understanding the position of God, if one simply loves Kāṇḍa, then one is certainly perfect. Many of the residents of Vāndāvana had no idea that Kāṇḍa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, nor did they know of Kāṇḍa's potencies or incarnations. They simply loved Kāṇḍa with their hearts and souls, and therefore they are considered most perfect.

TEXTS 34-41

maiéaËÿmaà"·(jana-
d"zARnas$ pazARnaAcaRnama, pair"cayaAR stauita: 'aù"- gAuNAk(maARNauk(LtaRnama matk(TaA™avaNAe™aÜ"A mad"nauDyaAnamauÜ"va

s$avaRlaABaAepah"r"NAM
d"AsyaenaAtmainavaed"nama, maÀanmak(maRk(TanaM

mama pavaARnaumaAed"nama, gAltataANx"vavaAid"ṭagAAei"liBamaRä,"gA{h"Aets$ava:

yaAṭaA bailaivaDaAnaM ca s$avaRvaAiSaRk(pavaRs$au vaEid"k(L taAinṭak(L d"l°aA mad"lya~ataDaAr"NAma, mamaAcaARsTaApanae™aÜ"A svata: s$aMh"tya caAeâma: oâAnaAepavanaA,(Lx"- paur"maind"r"k(maRiNA

s$ammaAjaRnaAepalaepaAByaAM s$æk(maNx"lavataR$naE: gA{h"zAu™aUSaNAM ma÷M d"As$avaâd"maAyayaA

@maAinatvamad"imBatvaM k{(tasyaApair"k(LtaRnama, @ipa d"lpaAvalaAekM(mae naAepayauHjyaAiªavaeid"tama, yaâid"í"tamaM laAeke(

ya»aAitai'ayamaAtmana:
taÔaiªavaed"yaenma÷M tad"AnantyaAya k(lpatae

mal-liṅ ga-mad-bhakta-jana-darçana-sparçanārcanam

paricaryä stutiù prahva-guëa-karmänukértanam

mat-kathä-çravaëe çraddhä mad-anudhyänam uddhava sarva-läbhopaharaëaà
däsyenätma-nivedanam

maj-janma-karma-kathanaà mama parvānumodanam gēta-täëòava-vāditra-goñöhēbhir mad-gāhotsavaù

yātrā bali-vidhānaà ca
sarva-vārñika-parvasu vaidiké tñtriké dékñā madēya-vrata-dhāraëam

mamārcā-sthāpane çraddhä svataù saàhatya codyamaù udyānopavanākréò-
pura-mandira-karmaëi

sammārjanopalepābhyāà
seka-maëòala-vartanaiù
gāha-çuçrūñāëaà mahyaà
dāsa-vad yad amāyayā

amānitvam adambhitvaà kātasyāparikértanam
api dépāvalokaà me
nopayui jyān niveditam

yad yad iññatamaà loke
yac cāti-priyam ātmanaù tat tan nivedayen mahyaà tad ānantyāya kalpate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mat-liṅga—My appearance in this world as the Deity, etc.; mat-bhakta jana—My devotees; darçana—seeing; sparçana—touching; arcanam—and worshiping; paricaryä—rendering personal service; stutiù—offering prayers of glorification; prahva—obeisances; guëa—My qualities; karma—and activities; anukértanam—constantly glorifying; mat-kathä—topics about Me; çravaëe—in hearing; çraddhä—faith due to love; mat-anudhyānam—always meditating on Me; uddhava—O Uddhava; sarva-lābha—all that one acquires; upaharaëam—offering; dāsyena—by accepting oneself as My servant; ātma-nivedanam—self-surrender; mat-janma-karma-kathanam—glorifying My birth and activities; mama—My; parva—in festivals such as Janmāññamé; anumodanam—taking great pleasure; gēta—by songs; täëòava—dancing; vāditra—musical instruments; goñöhēbhiù—and discussions among devotees; mat-gāha—in My temple; utsavaù—festivals; yātrā—celebrations; bali-vidhānam—making offerings; ca—also; sarva—in all; vārñika—annual; parvasu—in the celebrations; vaidikē—mentioned in the Vedas; tāntrikē—mentioned in literatures such as the Pañcarātra; dēkñā—initiation; madēya—in relation to Me; vrata—vows; dhāraëam—observing; mama—My; arcā—of the Deity form; sthāpane—in the installation; çraddhä—being faithfully attached; svataù—by oneself; saàhatya—with others; ca—also; udyamaù—endeavor; udyāna—of flower gardens; upavana—orchards; ākrēòä—places of pastimes; pura—devotional cities; mandira—and temples; karmaëi—in the construction; sammārjana—by thoroughly sweeping and dusting; upalepābhyām—then by smearing water and cow dung; seka—by sprinkling scented water; maëòala-vartanaìù—by construction of maëòalas; gāha—of the temple, which is My home; çuçrūñāëam—service; mahyam—for My sake; dāsa-vat—being like a servant; yat—which; amāyayä—without duplicity; amānitvam—being without false prestige; adambhitvam—being prideless; kātasya—one's devotional activities; aparikértanam—not advertising; api—moreover; dēpa—of lamps; avalokam—the light; me—which belong to Me; na—not; upayuijyāt—one should engage; niveditam—things already offered to others; yat yat—anything; iñña-tamam—most desired; loke—in the material world; yat ca—and anything; ati-priyam—most dear; ātmanaù—of oneself; tat tat—that very thing; nivedayet—one should offer; mahyam—unto Me; tat—that offering; ānantyāya—for immortality; kalpate—qualifies one.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, one can give up false pride and prestige by engaging in the following devotional activities. One may purify oneself by seeing, touching, worshiping, serving, and offering prayers of glorification and obeisances to My form as the Deity and to My pure devotees. One should also glorify My transcendental qualities and activities, hear with love and faith the narrations of My glories and constantly meditate on Me. One should offer to Me whatever one acquires, and accepting oneself as My eternal servant, one should give oneself completely to Me. One should always discuss My birth and activities and enjoy life by participating in festivals, such as Janmāññamé, which glorify My pastimes. In My temple, one should also participate in festivals and ceremonies by singing, dancing, playing musical instruments and discussing Me with other Vaiññavas. One should observe all the regularly celebrated annual festivals by attending ceremonies, pilgrimages and making offerings. One should also observe religious vows such as Ekādaçé and take initiation by the procedures mentioned in the Vedas, Pāi carātra and other, similar literatures. One should faithfully and lovingly support the installation of My Deity, and individually or in cooperation with others one should work for the construction of Kāññea conscious temples and cities as well as flower gardens, fruit gardens and special areas to celebrate My pastimes. One should consider oneself to be My humble servant, without duplicity, and thus should help to clean the temple, which is My home. First one should sweep and dust thoroughly, and then one should further cleanse with water and cow dung. Having dried the temple, one should sprinkle scented water and decorate the temple with mandalas. One should thus act just like My servant. A devotee should never advertise his devotional activities; therefore his service will not be the cause of false pride. One should never use lamps that are offered to Me for other purposes simply because there is need of illumination, and similarly, one should never offer to Me anything that has been offered to or used by others. Whatever is most desired by one within this material world, and whatever is most dear to oneself—one should offer that very thing to Me. Such an offering qualifies one for eternal life.

PURPORT

In these eight verses Lord Kāñëa ends His discussion of saintly qualities in general and describes the specific characteristics of the devotees of the Lord. Lord Kāñëa has clearly described both here and in Bhagavad-gētā that the ultimate goal of life is to surrender fully to Him and become His pure devotee. Herein the Lord elaborately describes the process of devotional service. One should offer everything that one acquires to the Lord, thinking, "Lord Kāñëa has sent these things so that I may serve Him nicely." One ultimately should understand that the minute spirit soul is part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa, and thus one should surrender one's very self to the Lord. Just as an ordinary servant is meek and submissive to his master, similarly, a devotee should always be submissive to his spiritual master, who is a representative of Lord Kāñëa. He should realize how his body and mind are purified simply by his seeing the spiritual master or by accepting on his head the water offered to the spiritual master. It is emphasized in these verses that one should attend Vaiñëava festivals. As far as possible, large festivals should be held all over the world so that people can gradually learn how to perfect human life. The words mamārcā-sthāpane çraddhā are significant. Here Lord Kāñëa states that one should have faith in His Deity worship, since the Lord is personally present as the Deity. The words udyānopavanākrëòà-pura-mandira-karmaëi indicate that there should be a serious endeavor to construct beautiful temples and Vaiñëava cities with ample parks, orchards and flower gardens. An outstanding example of such endeavors can be presently seen in India at the Mäyāpur Candrodāya Mandira.

The words dépāvalokaà me nopayui jyān niveditam indicate that one may never use the Deity's paraphernalia for sense gratification. If there is a shortage of electricity or lights, one may not use the Deity's lamps, nor should one ever offer to Lord Kâñëa paraphernalia previously offered to or used by others. In these verses, the importance of Deity worship and Vaiñëava festivals is emphasized in many ways. Lord Kâñëa promises that whoever sincerely performs these activities will certainly go back home, back to Godhead (tad ānanyāya kalpate). One should offer his most dear possession to Lord Kâñëa, not that which is superfluous or unwanted. If one is most attached to his family, one should see that his family is engaged in Lord Kâñëa's service. If one is most attached to money, that should be given for propagating Kâñëa consciousness. And if one considers one's intelligence to be most valuable, he should preach Kâñëa consciousness with great logic and reason. If we offer our most valuable possessions to Lord Kâñëa, we will automatically become dear to the Lord and go back to Godhead.

TEXT 42

s$aUyaAeR'içā“aARöNAA gAAvaAe vaESNAva: KaM maç&Āalama, BaUr"AtmaA s$avaRBaUtaAina Ba%o" paUjaApad"Aina mae

sūryo 'gnir brāhmaëä gāvo vaiñëavaù khaà maruj jalam bhūr ātmā sarva-bhütāni bhadra pūjā-padāni me

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sūryaù—the sun; agniù—fire; brāhmaëäù—the brāhmaëas; gāvaù—the cows; vaiñëavaù—the devotee of the Lord; kham—the sky; marut—the wind; jalam—water; bhüù—the earth; ātmā—the individual soul; sarva-bhütāni—all living entities; bhadra—O saintly Uddhava; pūjā—of worship; padāni—the places; me—of Me.

TRANSLATION

O saintly Uddhava, please know that you may worship Me in the sun, fire, brāhmaëas, cows, Vaiñëavas, sky, wind, water, earth, individual soul and all living entities.

PURPORT

Unless one understands that Lord Kāñëa is all-pervading and that everything is resting within the Lord, one's Kāñëa consciousness is third class and materialistic. It is clearly stated in all Vedic literatures that the Supreme Absolute Truth is the source of everything. Everything is within Him, and He is within everything. To avoid a materialistic conception of Lord Kāñëa, one should not think that the Lord exists only in a particular time and place. Rather, one should understand that He exists at all times and in all places and that one may search for and find Lord Kāñëa within all things. The word pūjā-padāni indicates that Lord Kāñëa is all-pervading, but this does not mean that all things are Lord Kāñëa. Lord Kāñëa speaks this verse to clarify His supremacy as the all-pervading Personality of Godhead and to show the path of complete self-realization.

TEXTS 43-45

s$UyaeR tau ivaâyaA ‡ayyaA
h"ivaSaAçae yajaeta maAma, @AitaTyaena tau iva'aAfyae gAAeSvaËy yavas$Aid"naA vaESNAvae banDaus$atk{(tyaA ô$id" Kae DyaAnainai"yaA vaAyaAE mauKyaiDayaA taAeyae %"vyaEstaAeyapaur":s$arE":

sTaiNx"lae man‡aô$d"yaEr," BaAegAEr"AtmaAnamaAtmaina °ae‡aÁaM s$avaRBaUtaeSau s$amatvaena yajaeta maAma,

*sūrye tu vidyayā trayyā haviñāgnau yajeta mām ātithyena tu viprāgrye
goñv aī ga yavasādinā*

vaiñēave bandhu-sat-kātyā hādi khe dhyāna-niñōhayā vāyau mukhya-dhiyā toyē dravyais toya-puraūsaraiū

sthaëòile mantra-hādayair bhogair ātmānam ātmani kñetra-jī aā sarva-bhūteñu samatvena yajeta mām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sūrye—in the sun; tu—indeed; vidyayā trayyā—by offering selected Vedic hymns of praise, worship and obeisances; haviñā—with offerings of clarified butter; agnau—in the fire; yajeta—one should worship; mām—Me; ātithyena—by respectfully receiving them as guests even when uninvited; tu—indeed; vipra—of brāhmaēas; agrye—in the best; goñu—in the cows; aī ga—O Uddhava; yavasa-ādinā—by offering grass and other paraphernalia for their maintenance; vaiñēave—in the Vaiñēava; bandhu—with loving friendship; sat-kātyā—by honoring; hādi—within the heart; khe—within the inner space; dhyāna—in meditation; niñōhayā—by being fixed; vāyau—in the air; mukhya—the most important; dhiyā—considering by intelligence; toyē—in water; dravyaiū—by material elements; toya-puraū-saraiū—by water, etc.; sthaëòile—in the earth; mantra-hādayaiū—by application of confidential mantras; bhogaiū—by offering of materially enjoyable objects; ātmānam—the jēva soul; ātmani—within the body; kñetra-jī am—the Supersoul; sarva-bhūteñu—within all living beings; samatvena—seeing Him equally everywhere; yajeta—one should worship; mām—Me.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, one should worship Me within the sun by chanting selected Vedic mantras and by performing worship and offering obeisances. One may worship Me within fire by offering oblations of ghee, and one may worship Me among the brāhmaëas by respectfully receiving them as guests, even when uninvited. I can be worshiped within the cows by offerings of grass and other suitable grains and paraphernalia for the pleasure and health of the cows, and one may worship Me within the Vaiñëavas by offering loving friendship to them and honoring them in all respects. Through steady meditation I am worshiped within the inner space of the heart, and within the air I can be worshiped by knowledge that prāëa, the life air, is the chief among elements. I am worshiped within water by offerings of water itself, along with other elements such as flowers and tulasé leaves, and one may worship Me within the earth by proper application of confidential seed mantras. One may worship Me within the individual living entity by offering food and other enjoyable substances, and one may worship Me within all living entities by seeing the Supersoul within all of them, thus maintaining equal vision.

PURPORT

Significantly, the Lord emphasizes in these three verses that one should worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead who is expanded within all living beings. It is not recommended that one accept any material or spiritual object other than the Lord as supreme. By maintaining steady consciousness of the Lord in His all-pervading feature, one can remain in a worshipful mood twenty-four hours a day. Thus, one will naturally try to engage all material and spiritual elements in the loving service of Lord Kāñëa. If because of ignorance one forgets the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one may become inclined to worship powerful material phenomena independent of the Supreme Lord, or one may foolishly consider oneself to be supreme. One should remain sane and accept the worshipable presence of the Supreme Lord within everything.

TEXT 46

iDaSNyaeiSvatyaeSau maåU"paM zAÊÿca,(gAd"AmbaujaE:
yau·M(catauBauRjaM zAAntaM DyaAya^aacaeRts$amaAih"ta:

dhiñëyeñv ity eñu mad-rüpaà çaì kha-cakra-gadāmbujaiù yuktaà catur-bhujaà çāntaà dhyäyann arcet samāhitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhiñëyeñu—in the previously mentioned places of worship; iti—thus (by the previously mentioned processes); eñu—in them; *mat-rüpa*m—My transcendental form; çaì kha—with the conchshell; cakra—Sudarçana disc; gadā—club; ambujaiù—and lotus flower; *yukta*m—equipped; catuù-bhujam—with four arms; çāntam—peaceful; dhyäyan—meditating; arcet—one should worship; samāhitaù—with complete attention.

TRANSLATION

Thus, in the previously mentioned places of worship and according to the processes I have described, one should meditate on My peaceful, transcendental form with four arms holding a conchshell, Sudarçana disc, club and lotus flower. In this way, one should worship Me with fixed attention.

PURPORT

The Lord has previously explained that He appears in different transcendental forms to His pure devotees so that they may unlimitedly increase their love of Godhead. Here is given a general description of the four-armed Nārāyaëa form, which pervades the material world as Supersoul, or Paramātmā. The pure devotees, however, do not meditate upon the Lord within the heart but rather render active service to a specific form of the Lord, such as Rāma or Kāñḍā, and thus perfect their realization of Bhagavān, or the Supreme Lord, who engages in transcendental pastimes with His devotees in the spiritual world. Yet even within the material world one can spiritualize one's existence by seeing the Supreme Lord within everything and worshipping Him by constant meditation. As mentioned in the previous verses, one should also go to the temple and specifically worship the Deity and participate in spiritual festivals. One should not be puffed up and claim that because one is meditating on the Lord within nature there is no need to go to the temple. Temple worship has been repeatedly emphasized by the Lord Himself. The word samāhita in this verse indicates samādhi. If one very carefully worships the Deity or hears and chants about the pastimes of Lord Kāñḍā, one is certainly in samādhi. By worshipping and glorifying the Lord twenty-four hours a day one becomes a liberated soul and gradually rises completely beyond the influence of the material creation. The living entity is called ātmā, or eternal soul, because of his relationship with the Paramātmā, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. By worshipping the Lord, our eternal nature revives, and as we increase our enthusiasm and steadiness in devotional service, material existence fades away.

TEXT 47

wí"ApāUtaeRna maAmaevaM yaAe yajaeta s$amaAih"ta: laBatae maiya s$āà"i-M( matsma{ita: s$āADaus$aeṇayaA

*iñā-pūrtena mām evaà yo yajeta samāhitaù
labhate mayi sad-bhaktià mat-smātiù sādhu-seṇayā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iñöä—by sacrificial performances for one's own benefit; pürtena—and pious works for the benefit of others, such as digging wells; mäm—Me; evam—thus; yaù—one who; yajeta—worships; samāhitaù—with mind fixed in Me; labhate—such a person obtains; mayi—in Me; sat-bhaktim—unflinching devotional service; mat-smātiù—realized knowledge of Me; sādhu—with all superior qualities; sewayä—by service.

TRANSLATION

One who has executed sacrificial performances and pious works for My satisfaction, and who thus worships Me with fixed attention, obtains unflinching devotional service unto Me. By the excellent quality of his service such a worshiper obtains realized knowledge of Me.

PURPORT

The word iñöä-pürtena, which means "sacrificial performances and pious works," does not indicate deviation from the pure devotional service of the Lord. Lord Kāñëa, or Viñëu, is called Yajī a, or the Lord of sacrifice, and in Bhagavad-gētä (5.29) Lord Kāñëa says, bhoktāraà yajī a-tapasām: "I am the actual enjoyer of all sacrifice." The highest sacrifice is to chant the holy names of the Lord, and by taking shelter of the Lord's names, one will acquire unflinching devotion and realized knowledge of the Absolute Truth. A realized devotee is very attentive in his devotional service, taking it as his life and soul. He keeps himself fit for devotional service by constantly worshipping and glorifying the lotus feet of the spiritual master and the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Such hari-nāma-kértana and guru-pūjā are the only practical methods by which one can achieve pure devotional service. When hari-kértana is expanded, it is called kāñëa-saì kértana. One should not dry up by performing unauthorized austerities or sacrifices; rather, one should engage with all enthusiasm in the great sacrifice of çré-kāñëa-saì kértana, which enables one to easily achieve the highest perfection of human life.

TEXT 48

‘aAyaNA Bai·(yaAegAena
s$ats$aĒeĳna ivanaAeÜ"va naAepaAyaAe ivaâtae s$amyak,( ‘aAyaNAM ih" s$ataAmah"ma,

*prāyeëa bhakti-yogena
sat-saī gena vinoddhava nopāyo vidyate samyak
prāyaëaà hi satām aham*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

prāyeëa—for all practical purposes; bhakti-yogena—devotional service unto Me; sat-saī gena—which is made possible by association with My devotees; vinā—without; uddhava—O Uddhava; na—not; upāyaū—any means; vidyate—there is; samyak—that actually works; prāyaëam—the true path of life or actual shelter; hi—because; satām—of liberated souls; aham—I.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, I am personally the ultimate shelter and way of life for saintly liberated persons, and thus if one does not engage in My loving devotional service, which is made possible by associating with My devotees, then for all practical purposes, one possesses no effective means for escaping from material existence.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa has described to Uddhava the characteristics of jī āna-yoga and bhakti-yoga, both of which are considered to be spiritual processes. Now, however, Lord Kāñëa clearly indicates that bhakti-yoga is the only real means to totally free oneself from material existence, and that bhakti-yoga is not possible without sat-saī ga, or association with other Vaiñëavas. On the path of bhakti-miçra jī āna, or speculation on the Absolute Truth mixed with devotion, one is still affected by the three modes of material nature. The pure soul, liberated from all material qualities, has no tendency or desire to engage in philosophical speculation, severe austerities or impersonal meditation. The pure soul simply loves Kāñëa and wants to serve Him constantly. Jëvera 'svarüpa' haya-kāñëera 'nitya-däsa.' [Cc. Madhya 20.108]. Pure devotional service to the Lord is called kevala-bhakti, whereas devotional service mixed with speculative propensities is called guëa-bhüta-bhakti, or devotional service polluted by the material modes of nature. One who is actually intelligent does not make a show of philosophical wizardry but rather discerns the superiority of pure love of Godhead and takes to the path of kevala-bhakti. One who emphasizes so-called intellectual achievements is actually less intelligent, because such a person is more attracted to intelligence than to the pure soul, which is superior. It should be understood, however, that pure devotional service is not nonphilosophical or anti-intellectual. The Absolute Truth is far more extensive than partial truth. Therefore, one who is in full knowledge of Lord Kāñëa has the greatest facility to engage in philosophical analysis, since a pure devotee is working with the entire range of conceptual categories. Those who do not know Lord Kāñëa are attracted to the impersonal Brahman or the localized Paramätmä, but they are not aware of the ultimate category of understanding called Bhagavän, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Lacking knowledge of Bhagavän, such imperfect philosophers certainly do not understand the expansion, interaction and withdrawal of the Lord's innumerable potencies and thus cannot fully analyze them. By faithfully accepting everything Lord Kāñëa speaks as the absolute truth, one comes to the mature platform of philosophy and achieves perfect knowledge.

In addition to philosophical or intellectual understanding, pure devotional service also awards all other benefits in life, both material and spiritual; therefore one who for any purpose whatsoever accepts a process other than devotional service has unfortunately misunderstood the nature of pure devotional service to Lord Kāñëa. It is emphasized here that one must cultivate devotional service in the association of other devotees. On the other hand, the jï äna-yoga process is cultivated alone, because it is difficult for even two mental speculators to be in the same place without their association degenerating into constant quarrel. Other processes of self-realization are compared to the nipples on a goat's neck. They look just like breast nipples, but they will not give any milk whatsoever. In this regard Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has quoted the following verses, spoken by Çré Uddhava, Çukadeva Gosvāmé and Nārada Muni respectively.

tāpa-trayeëābhihitasya ghore santapyamānasya bhavādhvanéha paçyāmi nānyac charaëaà tavāi ghridvandvātapatrād amātābhivarñāt

"My dear Lord, for one who is being cruelly burned in the blazing fire of material miseries, having fallen into the network of material existence, I do not see any other possible shelter besides Your two lotus feet, which are a shower of nectar extinguishing the fire of suffering." (SB 11.19.9) saàsāra-sindhum ati-dustaram uttitérñor nānyaù plavo bhagavataù puruñottamasya lélā-kathā-rasa-niñevaëam antareëa puàso bhaved vividha-duùkha-davārditasya

"Material existence is like an ocean that is extremely difficult to cross. The conditioned souls have fallen into this ocean, which is not cool but rather burns them with the fire of misery. For one who has fallen into this sea and desires to get out, there is no other rescue boat except the constant relishing within oneself of the pastime narrations of the Supreme Personality of Godhead." (SB 12.4.40)

*kià vä yogena säi khyena nyāsa-svadhyāyayor api
kià vä çreyobhir anyaiç ca na yatrātma-prado hariù*

"What is the use of the yoga system, philosophical speculation, mere renunciation of the world, or Vedic studies? In fact, what is the use of any so-called auspicious process without Lord Kāñëa, who is the source of our very existence?" (SB 4.31.12)

If, as stated in this verse, it is generally (prāyeëa) impossible to escape material bondage without devotional service in the association of devotees, one can simply imagine the probabilities of liberation in Kali-yuga without the Kāñëa consciousness movement. The chances are certainly zero. One may concoct a type of liberation on the mental platform, or one may live in a so-called spiritual society of mutual flattery, but if one actually wants to go back home, back to Godhead, and see with spiritual eyes the beautiful kingdom of God called Kāñëaloka, one must take to Lord Caitanya's movement and worship Lord Kāñëa in the association of the bhakta-gaëa, the devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 49

@TaEtatpar"maM gAu÷M Za{NvataAe yaäu"nand"na s$augAAepyamaipa va°yaAima tvaM mae Ba{tya: s$auô$ts$aKaA

*athaitat paramaà guhyaà çäëvato yadu-nandana
su-gopyam api vakñyāmi
tvaà me bhātyaù suhāt sakhā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atha—thus; etat—this; paramam—supreme; guhyam—secret; çäëvataù—to you who are listening; yadu-nandana—O beloved of the Yadu dynasty; su-gopyam—most confidential; api—even; vakñyāmi—I will speak; tvam—you; me—of Me; bhātyaù—are the servant; su-hāt—well-wisher; sakhā—and friend.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, O beloved of the Yadu dynasty, because you are My servant, well-wisher and friend, I shall now speak to you the most confidential knowledge. Please hear as I explain these great mysteries to you.

PURPORT

It is stated in the First Chapter of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.1.8), brüyūñ snigdhasya çīñyasya guravo guhyam apy uta: a bona fide spiritual master naturally reveals all transcendental secrets to a sincere disciple. Çré Uddhava had completely surrendered to Lord Kāñëa, and then only could the Lord explain such mysteries to him, because without complete faith the transmission of spiritual knowledge is impossible. Other processes of self realization, such as philosophical speculation, are imperfect and unsteady because the performer has personal desires, and there is no definite procedure by which to obtain the full mercy of the Supreme Lord. On the other hand, association with the pure devotees of the Lord is a self-sufficient process that is guaranteed to award the desired result. One must only learn how to associate with the pure devotees and one's life will be perfect. That is the sum and substance of this chapter.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Eleventh Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Symptoms of Conditioned and Liberated Living Entities."

12. Beyond Renunciation and Knowledge

In this chapter the glories of holy association and the superexcellence of the pure love of the residents of Vāñdāvana are described.

The association of saintly devotees destroys the soul's attachment to material life and is capable of bringing even the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa, under one's control. Neither yoga, Sāi khya philosophy, ordinary religious duties, study of scriptures, austerities, renunciation, works of inñā and pūrtam, charity, vows of fasting, worship of the Deity, secret mantras, visiting of holy places, nor adherence to any major or minor regulative principles can effect the same result. In every age there are demons, monsters, birds and animals who are in the modes of passion and ignorance, and there are also human beings in the categories of businessmen, women, workers, outcastes, and so on, who cannot study the Vedic scriptures. Nevertheless, by the purifying effect of the association of devotees they may all achieve the supreme abode of the Personality of Godhead, whereas without such saintly association, even those very seriously endeavoring in yoga, Sāi khya study, charity, vows and practice of the renounced order of life may remain incapable of attaining the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

The young damsels of Vraja, ignorant of the true identity of Lord Kāñëacandra, considered Him to be their paramour who would give them pleasure. Yet by the power of their constant association with Çré Kāñëa, they attained to the supreme Absolute Truth, which even great demigods like Brahmā cannot achieve. The young women of Vāndāvana displayed such deep attachment to Lord Kāñëa that their minds, which were overflowing with the ecstasy of being with Him, perceived an entire night spent in His company as just a fraction of a second. However, when Akrūra took Çré Kāñëa along with Baladeva to Mathurā, the gopés then thought each night without Him to be equal in duration to a millennium of the demigods. Being tormented by separation from Lord Kāñëa, they could not imagine anything that could give them satisfaction other than His return. This is the incomparable excellence of the gopés' pure love of God.

The Supreme Lord, Çré Kāñëa, after imparting these instructions to Uddhava, advised that for the sake of attaining the Absolute Truth, Uddhava should give up all consideration of religion and irreligion as promulgated in the çrutis and smātis and instead take shelter of the example of the women of Vāndāvana.

TEXTS 1-2

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
na r"AeDayaita maAM yaAegAAe na s$AÊÿYaM DamaR Wva ca na svaADyaAyastapastyaAgAAe
naei"ApaUta< na d"i°aNAA

~ataAina yaÁazC$nd"AMis$A taITaARina inayamaA yamaA: yaTaAvaç&nDae s$ats$AËÿ:
s$avaRs$AËÿApah"Ae ih" maAma,

çré-bhagavān uvāca
na rodhayati māṇa yoga
na sāi khyāṇa dharma eva ca na svādhyāyas tapas tyāga neñā-pūrtaṇa dakṣiṇā vrataṇi yajī aṇ chandāṇsi térthāni niyamā yamāu yathāvarundhe sat-sai gaṇ sarva-sai gāpaho hi mām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; na rodhayati—does not control; mām—Me; yogaṇ—the aññāi ga-yoga system; na—neither; sāi khyam—the analytic study of the material elements; dharmaṇ—ordinary piety such as nonviolence; eva—indeed; ca—also; na—neither; svādhyāyaṇ—chanting the Vedas; tapaṇ—penances; tyāgaṇ—the renounced order of life; na—nor; iññā-pūrtam—the performance of sacrifice and public welfare activities such as digging wells or planting trees; na—neither; dakṣiṇā—charity; vrataṇi—taking vows such as fasting completely on Ekādaçé; yajī aṇ—worship of the demigods; chandāṇsi—chanting confidential mantras; térthāni—going to holy places of pilgrimage; niyamāṇ—following major instructions for spiritual discipline; yamāṇ—and also minor regulations; yathā—as; avarundhe—brings under control; sat-saṁ gaṁ—association with My devotees; sarva—all; saṁ ga—material association; apahaṁ—removing; hi—certainly; mām—Me.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, by associating with My pure devotees one can destroy one's attachment for all objects of material sense gratification. Such purifying association brings Me under the control of My devotee. One may perform the saṁ ga-yoga system, engage in philosophical analysis of the elements of material nature, practice nonviolence and other ordinary principles of piety, chant the Vedas, perform penances, take to the renounced order of life, execute sacrificial performances and dig wells, plant trees and perform other public welfare activities, give in charity, carry out severe vows, worship the demigods, chant confidential mantras, visit holy places or accept major and minor disciplinary injunctions, but even by performing such activities one does not bring Me under his control.

PURPORT

The commentary of Ṣṛéla Jéva Gosvāmé on these two verses can be summarized as follows. One may serve the devotees of the Lord through ceremonial worship or by actually associating with them. Association with pure devotees is sufficient for self-realization because one can learn everything about spiritual advancement from such devotees. With perfect knowledge one can achieve all that one desires, for the process of devotional service immediately brings the blessings of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Pure devotional service is transcendental to the modes of nature, and therefore it appears mysterious to the souls conditioned by those modes.

In the previous chapter Lord Kāñéa stated, haviñāgnau yajeta mām: "One may worship Me in fire by offering oblations of ghee." (SB 11.11.43) Also, in verse 38 of the previous chapter it was mentioned that one should construct parks, recreational places, orchards, vegetable gardens, and so on. These serve to attract people to the temples of Kāñéa, where they may directly engage in chanting the holy name of the Lord. Such construction projects may be understood as pūrtam, or public welfare activities. Although Lord Kāñëa mentions in these two verses that association with His pure devotees is far more powerful than processes such as yoga, philosophical speculation, sacrifices and public welfare activities, these secondary activities also please Lord Kāñëa, but to a lesser extent. Specifically, they please the Lord when performed by devotees rather than by ordinary materialistic persons. Therefore the comparative term yathā ("according to proportion") is used. In other words, such practices as sacrifice, austerity and philosophical study may help one become fit for rendering devotional service, and when such activities are performed by devotees aspiring for spiritual advancement, they become somewhat pleasing to the Lord.

One may study the example of vratāni, or vows. The injunction that one should fast on Ekādaçé is a permanent vow for all Vaiñëavas, and one should not conclude from these verses that one may neglect the Ekādaçé vow. The superiority of sat-saī ga, or association with pure devotees, in awarding the fruit of love of Godhead does not mean that one should give up other processes or that these secondary processes are not permanent factors in bhakti-yoga. There are many Vedic injunctions instructing one to execute the agnihotra sacrifice, and the modern-day followers of Caitanya Mahāprabhu also occasionally execute fire sacrifices. Such sacrifice is recommended by the Lord Himself in the previous chapter, and therefore it should not be given up by the devotees of the Lord. By performing Vedic ritualistic and purificatory processes, one is gradually elevated to the platform of devotional service, whereupon one is able to directly worship the Absolute Truth. One Vedic injunction states, "The result awarded for fasting continuously for one month on six different occasions can easily be achieved simply by accepting a handful of rice offered to Lord Viñëu. This facility is especially offered in the Kali-yuga." Nevertheless, regulated fasting on Ekādaçé is not an impediment to spiritual advancement. Rather, it is a perpetual aspect of devotional service and can be considered an auxiliary principle supporting the main principle of worshiping Lord Kāñëa and His devotees. Because such secondary principles help one become fit for executing the primary processes of devotional service, they are also greatly beneficial. Therefore, such secondary principles are widely mentioned throughout Vedic literature. It may be concluded that such secondary principles are essential for advancement in Kāñëa consciousness, and therefore one should never give up the principle of vrata, the execution of prescribed vows.

In the previous chapter Çréla Çrédhara Svämé mentioned that the words äjï äyaivaà guëän doñän (SB 11.11.32) indicate that a devotee should select Vedic principles that do not conflict with his service to the Lord. Many of the elaborate Vedic ceremonies and complicated procedures for fasting, demigod worship and yoga practice cause great disturbance to the supreme process of çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23], hearing and chanting about the Lord; therefore they are rejected by the Vaiñëavas. However, the processes helpful to devotional service should be accepted. The example can be given of Mahäräja Yudhiñöhira, who was instructed by the dying Bhëñmadeva. In Çrémad-Bhägavatam (1.9.27) Bhëñma instructs King Yudhiñöhira in däna-dharma, or public acts of charity, räja-dharma, or the duties of a king, mokñä-dharma, or duties for salvation, strë-dharma, or duties for women, and ultimately bhägavata-dharma, or pure devotional service to the Lord. Bhëñma did not limit his discussion to bhägavata-dharma, because Lord Kāñëa gave Mahäräja Yudhiñöhira the devotional service of acting as a king, and to execute his service Yudhiñöhira Mahäräja required extensive knowledge of civic affairs. However, one who is not rendering such prescribed devotional service in society should not unnecessarily involve himself in the material world, even by practice of Vedic rituals. Nothing should distract him from the ultimate goal of satisfying Lord Kāñëa.

The principle of not giving up prescribed vows may be further illustrated by the example of Mahäräja Ambarëña. In the Ninth Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam we find that although Mahäräja Ambarëña performed elaborate Vedic sacrifices, his goal was always the satisfaction of the Lord. The citizens in his kingdom did not desire to go to heaven, because they were always hearing about the glories of Vaikuëöha. Ambarëña Mahäräja, along with his queen, observed the vow of Ekädaçé and Dvädaçé for one year. Since Ambarëña Mahäräja is considered to be a great jewel among Vaiñëavas, and since his behavior was always exemplary, it is definitely concluded that such vows as fasting on Ekādaṣī are imperative for Vaiṣṇavas. It is further stated in Vedic literature, "If due to negligence a Vaiṣṇava does not fast on Ekādaṣī, then his worship of Lord Viṣṇu is useless, and he will go to hell." The members of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness fast from grains and beans on Ekādaṣī, and this vow should always be observed by all of its members.

If one falsely thinks that one may obtain the association of Lord Kāṇhā merely by great austerities, brilliant studies in Sanskrit literature, magnanimous acts of charity, etc., one's Kāṇhā consciousness will be distorted and weakened. One should remember the example of Lord Caitanya, who practiced Kāṇhā consciousness by constantly hearing and chanting about Lord Kāṇhā. If by fasting, study, austerity or sacrifice one becomes more fit to participate in the saṁkīrtana movement of Lord Caitanya, then such activities are also pleasing to Lord Kāṇhā. But the Lord clearly explains here that such activities can never become central in the practice of bhakti-yoga. They must remain in an auxiliary relationship to the supreme process of sat-saṁgā, or association with pure devotees who hear and chant the glories of the Lord. Ṣṛīla Madhvācārya has quoted from Vedic literature that if one offends the Lord's devotees and does not learn to associate with them, Lord Viṣṇu personally places barriers in the path of such a person so that he may not enter into the Lord's company.

TEXTS 3-6

s$ats$aĒeṃna ih" dE"taeyaA yaAtauDaAnaA ma{gAA: KagAA:
gAnDavaARps$ar"s$aAe naAgAA:
is$aÜ"AêAr"NAGAu÷k(A:

ivaâADar"A manauSyaeSau vaEzyaA: zAU#%"A: iñyaAe'ntyajaA:
r"jastama:‘ak{(tayas$a, taismaMstaismana, yaugAe yaugAe bah"vaAe matpadM" ‘aAæaAs$a, tvaAí)"k(AyaADavaAd"ya:

va{SapavaAR bailabaARNAAe mayaêATa ivaBaISaNA:

s$aufalvaAe h"naumaAna{°aAe gAjaAe gA{‘aAe vaiNAfpaTa: vyaADa: ku(bjaA ~ajae gAAepyaAe yaÁapatnyastaTApare"

*sat-saī gena hi daiteyā yātudhānā māgāu khagāu
gandharvāpsaraso nāgāu
siddhāç cāraëa-guhyakāu* vidyādharā manuñyeñu vaiçyāu çüdrāu striyo 'ntyā-jāu rajas-tamaù-prakātayas tasmiàs tasmin yuge yuge

*bhavo mat-padaè prāptās tvāñōra-kāyādhavādayaù vāñaparvā balir bāëo
mayaç cātha vibhēñaëaù*

sugrévo hanumān ākñō gajo gādhro vaëikpathaù vyādhaù kubjā vraje gopyo yaji' a-patnyas tathāpare

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sat-saī gena—by association with My devotees; hi—certainly; daiteyāu—the sons of Diti; yātudhānāu—demons; māgāu—animals; khagāu—birds; gandharva—Gandharvas; apsarasaù—the society girls of heaven; nāgāu—snakes; siddhāu—residents of Siddhaloka; cāraëa—the Cāraëas; guhyakāu—the Guhyakas; vidyādharāu—the residents of Vidyādharaloka; manuñyeñu—among the human beings; vaiçyāu—mercantile men;

çüdräù—laborers; striyaù—women; antya-jäù—uncivilized men; rajaù-tamaù-prakâtayaù—those bound in the modes of passion and ignorance; tasmin tasmin—in each and every; yuge yuge—age; bahavaù—many living entities; mat—My; padam—abode; prāptāù—achieved; tvāñōra—Vātrāsura; kāyādhava—Prahlaḍa Mahārāja; ādayaù—and others like them; vāñaparvā—named Vāñaparvā; baliù—Bali Mahārāja; bäëaù—Bäëāsura; mayaù—the demon Maya; ca—also; atha—thus; vibhēñāëaù—Vibhēñāëa, the brother of Rāvaëa; sugrévaù—the monkey king Sugréva; hanumän—the great devotee Hanumän; ākñāù—Jāmbavān; gajaù—the devotee-elephant Gajendra; gādhraù—Jaōäyu the vulture; vaëikpathaù—the merchant Tulādhāra; vyādhaù—Dharma-vyādha; kubjä—the former prostitute Kubjä, saved by Lord Kāñëa; vraje—in Vāndāvana; gopyaù—the gopés; yajī a-patnyaù—the wives of the brāhmaëas performing sacrifice; tathā—similarly; apare—others.

TRANSLATION

In every yuga many living entities entangled in the modes of passion and ignorance gained the association of My devotees. Thus, such living entities as the Daityas, Rākīśas, birds, beasts, Gandharvas, Apsarās, Nāgas, Siddhas, Cāraëas, Guhyakas and Vidyādhara, as well as such lower-class human beings as the vaiçyas, çüdras, women and others, were able to achieve My supreme abode. Vātrāsura, Prahlaḍa Mahārāja and others like them also achieved My abode by association with My devotees, as did personalities such as Vāñaparvā, Bali Mahārāja, Bäëāsura, Maya, Vibhēñāëa, Sugréva, Hanumän, Jāmbavān, Gajendra, Jaōäyu, Tulādhāra, Dharma-vyādha, Kubjä, the gopés in Vāndāvana and the wives of the brāhmaëas who were performing sacrifice.

PURPORT

The Lord has mentioned devotees such as the gopés in Vāndāvana and also demons like Bäëāsura to illustrate how He comes under the control of those who surrender to Him. It is understood that devotees like the gopés and others mentioned here obtained pure love of Kāñëa, whereas the demons generally obtained only salvation. Many demons were purified by association with devotees and came to accept devotional service to the Lord as the most important among the various activities in their lives, but the exalted devotees like Prahlāda and Bali Mahārāja know nothing except devotional service, which they accept as their very life. Still, the reformed demons are also mentioned so that readers of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam will understand the enormous benefits one may achieve by associating with devotees of the Lord.

The demon Vātrāsura was the pious King Citraketu in his previous life, during which he associated with Çré Nārada Muni, Çré Aṅgirā Muni and Lord Saṁkarṣaṇa. Prahlāda Mahārāja, being the son of Hiraṇyakaśipu, is considered a Daitya, or demon. Yet while still in the womb of his mother, Kayādhū, he associated with Nārada Muni by sound vibration. The demon Vāṇaparvā was abandoned by his mother at birth, but he was raised by a muni and became a devotee of Lord Viṣṇu. Bali Mahārāja associated with his grandfather Prahlāda and also with Lord Vāmanadeva. Bali Mahārāja's son, Bāḥāsura, was saved by association with his father and Lord Çiva. He also associated with Lord Kāṇḍa personally when the Lord cut off all but two of his one thousand arms, which had been awarded as a benediction by Lord Çiva. Understanding the glories of Lord Kāṇḍa, Bāḥāsura also became a great devotee. The demon Maya Dānava constructed an assembly house for the Pāṇḍavas and also associated with Lord Kāṇḍa Himself, eventually achieving the shelter of the Lord. Vibhīṣaṇa was a pious-natured demon, the brother of Rāvaṇa, and he associated with Hanumān and Rāmacandra.

Sugréva, Hanumān, Jāmbavān and Gajendra are examples of animals who achieved the mercy of the Lord. Jāmbavān, or Ākṣarāja, was a member of a race of monkeys. He personally associated with Lord Kāṇḍa, fighting with Him over the Syamantaka jewel. The elephant Gajendra in a previous life had association with devotees, and at the end of his life as Gajendra he was personally saved by the Lord. Jaḍāyu, the bird who at the cost of his own life assisted Lord Rāmacandra, associated with Çré Garuḍa and Mahārāja Daśaratha as well as other devotees in rāma-līlā. He also personally met with Śeṭā and Lord Rāma. According to Çréla Jēva Gosvāmī, the association that the Gandharvas, Apsarās, Nāgas, Siddhas, Cāraṇas, Guhyakas and Vidyādharaś had with the devotees is not very prominent and does not need to be mentioned. Vāëikpatha is a vaiçya, and his story is mentioned in the Mahābhārata in connection with the pride of Jājali Muni.

The importance of association with devotees is illustrated in the story of Dharma-vyādha, the nonviolent hunter, as described in the Varāha Purāëa. In a previous life he somehow became a brahma-rākñasa, or brāhmaëa ghost, but was eventually saved. In a previous Kali-yuga he had the association of a Vaiñëava king named Vāsu. The lady Kubjā associated directly with Lord Kāñëa, and in her previous birth she had associated with Çré Nārada Muni. The gopés of Vāndāvana rendered service to saintly persons in their previous births. Having had ample association with devotees, they became gopés in Vāndāvana in their next lives and associated with the eternally liberated gopés who had descended there. They also had association with Tulasé-devé, or Vāndā-devé. The wives of the brāhmaëas performing sacrifice had association with women sent by Lord Kāñëa to sell flower garlands and betel nuts and heard about the Lord from them.

TEXT 7

tae naADalta™auitagANAA naAepaAis$atamah"ÔamaA: @~ataAtaæatapasa:
mats$aËÿAnmaAmaupaAgAtaA:

te nādhēta-çruti-gaëä
nopāsita-mahattamāu
avratātapta-tapasaù
mat-saì gān mām upāgatāu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

te—they; na—not; adhēta—having studied; çruti-gaëä—the Vedic literatures; na—not; upāsita—having worshiped; mahat-tamāu—great saints; avrata—without vows; atapta—not having undergone; tapasaù—austerities; mat-saì gāt—simply by association with Me and My devotees; mām—Me; upāgatāu—they achieved.

TRANSLATION

The persons I have mentioned did not undergo serious studies of the Vedic literature, nor did they worship great saintly persons, nor did they execute severe vows or austerities. Simply by association with Me and My devotees, they achieved Me.

PURPORT

Study of the Vedic literature, worship of those who teach the ṛuti-mantras, acceptance of vows and austerities, etc., as mentioned previously, are helpful processes that please the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In this verse, however, the Lord again explains that all such processes are secondary to the essential process of associating with the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His pure devotees. By other processes one may gain the association of the Lord and His devotees, which will actually give the perfection of life. The word mat-saṁ gāt can also be read as sat-saṁ gāt, with the same meaning. In the reading mat-saṁ gāt ("from association with Me"), mat is also understood to indicate "those who are Mine," or the devotees. Çréla Çrédhara Svāmī mentions that a pure devotee can advance in Kāñḍā consciousness by his own association, since simply by associating with his own activities and consciousness, he associates with the Lord.

TEXT 8

ke(valaena ih" BaAvaena gAAepyaAe gAAvaAe nagAA ma{gAA: yae'nyae maUX#iDayaAe naAgAA:
is$aÜ"A maAmalyaur"Ãas$aA

kevalena hi bhāvena gopyo gāvo nagā māgāu

ye 'nye müòha-dhiyo nāgāu siddhā mām éyur ai'jasā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kevalena—by unalloyed; hi—indeed; bhāvena—by love; gopyaù—the gopés; gāvaù—the Vāndāvana cows; nagāu—the unmoving creatures of Vāndāvana such as the twin arjuna trees; māgāu—other animals; ye—those; anye—others; müòha-dhiyaù—with stunted intelligence; nāgāu—Vāndāvana snakes such as Kāliya; siddhāu—achieving the perfection of life; mām—to Me; éyuù—they went; ai'jasā—quite easily.

TRANSLATION

The inhabitants of Vāndāvana, including the gopés, cows, unmoving creatures such as the twin arjuna trees, animals, living entities with stunted consciousness such as bushes and thickets, and snakes such as Kāliya, all achieved the perfection of life by unalloyed love for Me and thus very easily achieved Me.

PURPORT

Although innumerable living entities achieved liberation by association with the Lord and His devotees, many such personalities also executed other processes such as austerity, charity, philosophical speculation, and so on. As we have already explained, such procedures are secondary. But the inhabitants of Vāndāvana such as the gopés did not know anything except Lord Kāñëa, and their whole purpose in life was simply to love Lord Kāñëa, as indicated here by the words kevalena hi bhāvena. Even the trees, bushes and hills such as Govardhana loved Lord Kāñëa. As the Lord explains to His brother, Çré Baladeva, in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (10.15.5):

aho amé deva-varāmarārcitaà pādāmbujaà te sumanaù-phalārhaëam namanty upādāya çikhābhir ātmanas tamo- 'pahatyai taru-janma yat-kātam

"My dear brother Baladeva, just see how these trees are bowing down with their branches and offering obeisances to Your lotus feet, which are worshipable even by the demigods. Indeed, My dear brother, You are the Supreme God, and thus these trees have produced fruits and flowers as an offering to You. Although a living entity takes birth as a tree due to the mode of ignorance, certainly by such a birth in Våndāvana these trees are destroying all darkness in their lives by serving Your lotus feet."

Although many living entities achieved the mercy of Lord Kāñëa by associating with the Lord and His devotees in various ways, those who take Lord Kāñëa as everything are situated in the highest process of spiritual realization. Therefore the Lord has not bothered to mention in this verse those who achieved perfection through mixed processes, but rather glorifies the unalloyed devotees of Våndāvana, headed by the gopés, who knew nothing but Lord Kāñëa. The residents of Våndāvana were so satisfied in their relationships with Lord Kāñëa that they did not pollute their loving service with mental speculation or fruitive desires. The gopés served Lord Kāñëa in the conjugal rasa, or relationship, whereas according to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura the cows loved Lord Kāñëa in vātsalya-rasa, or the love of parents for a child, because the cows were always supplying milk to child Kāñëa. Unmoving objects like Govardhana Hill and other hills and mountains loved Lord Kāñëa as a friend, and the ordinary animals, trees and bushes of Våndāvana loved Lord Kāñëa in dāsya-rasa, or with love of a servant for his master. Snakes like Kāliya also developed this love in servitude, and after relishing their loving service to Lord Kāñëa, all of them went back home, back to Godhead. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, all those inhabitants of Våndāvana should be considered eternally liberated souls, as expressed by the word siddhäu, which means "having achieved the perfection of life."

TEXT 9

yaM na yaAegAena s$aAËyYaena

d"Ana~atatapaAe'DvarE": vyaAKyaAsvaADyaAya$A^ayaAs$aE:
'aA«auyaAâ¥avaAnaipa

yaâ na yogena sâi khyena dâna-vrata-tapo-'dhvaraiù vyākhyā-svādhyāya-sannyāsaiù prāpnuyād yatnavān api

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yam—whom; na—not; yogena—by the mystic yoga systems; sâi khyena—by philosophical speculation; dâna—by charity; vrata—vows; tapaù—austerities; adhvaraiù—or Vedic ritualistic sacrifices; vyākhyā—by explaining Vedic knowledge to others; svādhyāya—personal study of the Veda; sannyāsaiù—or by taking the renounced order of life; prāpnuyāt—can one obtain; yatna-vān—with great endeavor; api—even.

TRANSLATION

Even though one engages with great endeavor in the mystic yoga system, philosophical speculation, charity, vows, penances, ritualistic sacrifices, teaching of Vedic mantras to others, personal study of the Vedas, or the renounced order of life, still one cannot achieve Me.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa here explains that it is very difficult to achieve His personal association, even for one who seriously endeavors to reach the Absolute Truth. The inhabitants of Vāndāvana, such as the gopés and cows, were always living with Lord Kāñëa, and thus their association is called sat-saì ga. Anyone who is favorably living with the Supreme Personality of Godhead becomes sat, or eternal, and thus the association of such a person can immediately award others pure devotional service to the Lord. There is an austerity called cāndrāyaëa, a fast in which one's intake of food is diminished by one mouthful each day as the moon wanes and increased in the same way as the moon waxes. Similarly, there are painstaking ritualistic sacrifices and grueling studies of the Sanskrit Vedic mantras, which one may also teach to others. All these tedious activities cannot award the highest perfection of life unless one gets the causeless mercy of the pure devotees of the Lord. As stated in the First Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.2.8):

*dharmaù sv-anuññhitaù puàsäà viñvaksena-kathäsu yaù notpādayed yadi ratià
çrama eva hi kevalam*

"The occupational activities a man performs according to his own position are only so much useless labor if they do not provoke attraction for the message of the Personality of Godhead."

TEXT 10

r"AmaeNA s$aADa< maTaur"AM 'aNAItae iAP(ilk(naA mayyanaur".(icaÔaA:
ivagAAX#BaAvaena na mae ivayaAegAtaĩ'aADayaAe'nyaM d"ä{"zAu: s$auKaAya rāmeëa sārdhaà mathurāà praëëte çvāphalkinā mayy anurakta-cittāu vigāòha-bhāvena na me viyoga-tévrādhayo 'nyaà dadâçuù sukhāya

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

rāmeëa—with Balarāma; sārdham—with; mathurām—to the city of Mathurā; praëëte—when brought; çvāphalkinā—by Akrūra; mayi—Myself; anurakta—constantly attached; cittāu—those whose consciousness was; vigāòha—extremely deep; bhāvena—by love; na—not; me—than Me; viyoga—of separation; tévra—intense; ādhayaù—who were experiencing mental distress, anxiety; anyam—other; dadāçuù—they saw; sukhäya—that could make them happy.

TRANSLATION

The residents of Våndävana, headed by the gopés, were always completely attached to Me with deepest love. Therefore, when My uncle Akrüra brought My brother Balaräma and Me to the city of Mathurä, the residents of Våndävana suffered extreme mental distress because of separation from Me and could not find any other source of happiness.

PURPORT

This verse especially describes the sentiments of the cowherd girls of Våndävana, the gopés, and Lord Kåñëa here reveals the incomparable love they felt for Him. As explained in the Tenth Canto, Lord Kåñëa's uncle Akrüra, sent by Kaàsa, came to Våndävana and took Kåñëa and Balaräma back to Mathurä for a wrestling event. The gopés loved Lord Kåñëa so much that in His absence their consciousness was completely absorbed in spiritual love. Thus their Kåñëa consciousness is considered the highest perfectional stage of life. They were always expecting that Lord Kåñëa would finish His business of killing demons and return to them, and therefore their anxiety was an extremely moving, heartrending display of love. Anyone desiring true happiness must take to the devotional service of the Lord in the spirit of the gopés, giving up everything for the pleasure of the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 11

taAstaA: °apaA: 'aei'"tamaena naltaA mayaEva va{nd"AvanagAAecare"NA °aNAADaRvaÔaA: paunar"Ëÿ taAs$aAM h"lnaA mayaA k(lpas$samaA baBaUvau:

täs täù kñapäu preñhatamena nētā mayaiva våndävana-gocareëa

kñāëärdha-vat täù punar aì ga täsäà hénä mayä kalpa-samä babhüvuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

täù täù—all those; kñapäù—nights; preñöha-tamena—with the most dearly beloved; nétäù—spent; mayä—with Me; eva—indeed; vändävana—in Vändävana; go-careëa—who can be known; kñäëa—a moment; ardha-vat—like half; täù—those very nights; punaù—again; aì ga—dear Uddhava; täsäm—for the gopés; hénäù—bereft; mayä—of Me; kalpa—a day of Brahmä (4,320,000,000 years); samäù—equal to; babhüvuù—became.

TRANSLATION

Dear Uddhava, all of those nights that the gopés spent with Me, their most dearly beloved, in the land of Vändävana seemed to them to pass in less than a moment. Bereft of My association, however, the gopés felt that those same nights dragged on forever, as if each night were equal to a day of Brahmä.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svämé comments as follows. "The gopés suffered extreme anxiety in the absence of Lord Kânëa, and though outwardly appearing bewildered, they actually achieved the highest perfectional stage of samädhí. Their consciousness was intensely and intimately attached to Lord Kânëa, and by such Kânëa consciousness their own bodies seemed very far away from them, even though people normally consider their body to be their closest possession. In fact, the gopés did not think about their own existence. Although a young woman normally considers her husband and children to be her dearest possessions, the gopés did not even consider the existence of their so-called families. Nor could they think of this world or life after death. Indeed, they were not at all aware of these things. Just like great sages who become detached from the names and forms of the material world, the gopés could not think of anything, because they were rapt in loving remembrance of Lord Kânëa. Just as rivers enter the ocean, similarly, the gopés completely merged into consciousness of Lord Kāñëa through intense love."

Thus a day of Brahmä seemed like a single moment for the gopés when Lord Kāñëa was present with them, and a single moment seemed like a day of Brahmä when Lord Kāñëa was absent. The Kāñëa consciousness of the gopés is the perfection of spiritual life, and the symptoms of such perfection are described here.

TEXT 12

taA naAivad"nmayyanauSaËÿbaÜ"- iDaya: svamaAtmaAnamad"staTaed"ma, yaTaA s$amaADaAE maunayaAe'ibDataAeyae naâ: 'aivaí"A wva naAmaè&pae

tā nāvidan mayy anuñai ga-baddha-dhiyaù svam ātmānam adas tathedam yathā samādhau munayo 'bdhi-toye nadyaù praviññā iva nāma-rūpe

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tāù—they (the gopés); na—not; avidan—were aware of; mayi—in Me; anuñai ga—by intimate contact; baddha—bound up; dhiyaù—their consciousness; svam—their own; ātmānam—body or self; adaù—something remote; tathā—thus considering; idam—this which is most near; yathā—just as; samādhau—in yoga-samādhi; munayaù—great sages; abdhi—of the ocean; toye—in the water; nadyaù—rivers; praviññāù—having entered; iva—like; nāma—names; rūpe—and forms.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, just as great sages in yoga trance merge into self-realization, like rivers merging into the ocean, and are thus not aware of material names and forms, similarly, the gopés of Våndāvana were so completely attached to Me within their minds that they could not think of their own bodies, or of this world, or of their future lives. Their entire consciousness was simply bound up in Me.

PURPORT

The words svam ātmānam adas tathedam indicate that while for ordinary persons one's personal body is the most near and dear thing, the gopés considered their own bodies to be distant and remote, just as a yogé in samādhi trance considers ordinary things around his physical body or his physical body itself to be most remote. When Kāñëa played on His flute late at night, the gopés immediately forgot everything about their so-called husbands and children and went to dance with Lord Kāñëa in the forest. These controversial points have been clearly explained in the book Kāñëa, by His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda. The basic explanation is that Lord Kāñëa is the source of everything, and the gopés are the Lord's own potency. Thus there is no discrepancy or immorality in the almighty Personality of Godhead's loving affairs with His own manifest potency, the gopés, who happen to be the most beautiful young girls in the creation of God.

There is no illusion on the part of the gopés, for they are so attracted to Lord Kāñëa that they do not care to think of anything else. Since all existence is situated within the body of Lord Kāñëa, there is no loss for the gopés when they concentrate on the Lord. It is the nature of very deep love to exclude all objects except the beloved. However, in the material world, where we try to love a limited temporary object such as our nation, family or personal body, our exclusion of other objects constitutes ignorance. But when our love is intensely concentrated on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the origin of everything, such concentration cannot be considered ignorance or small-mindedness.

The example of the sages in samādhi is given here only to illustrate exclusive concentration on a single object. Otherwise, there is no comparison between the ecstatic love of the gopés and the dry meditation of the yogés, who merely try to understand that they are not their material bodies. Since the gopés had no material bodies to become detached from and were personally dancing with and embracing the Absolute Truth, one can never compare the exalted position of the gopés to that of mere yogés. It is stated that the bliss of impersonal Brahman realization cannot be compared to even an atomic fragment of the blissful ocean of love of Kāñëa. Intimate attachment is like a strong rope that binds the mind and heart. In material life we are bound to that which is temporary and illusory, and therefore such binding of the heart causes great pain. However, if we bind our minds and hearts to the eternal Lord Kāñëa, the reservoir of all pleasure and beauty, then our hearts will expand unlimitedly in the ocean of transcendental bliss.

One should understand that the gopés were not in any way inclined toward impersonal meditation, in which one denies the reality of variegated creation. The gopés did not deny anything; they simply loved Kāñëa and could not think of anything else. They only rejected whatever impeded their concentration on Lord Kāñëa, cursing even their own eyelids, which blinked and thus removed Kāñëa from their sight for a split second. Çrëla Rûpa Gosvämé has stated that all sincere devotees of the Lord should have the courage to remove from their lives anything that impedes their progressive march back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 13

matk(AmaA r"maNAM jaAr"ma, @svaè&paivad"Ae'balaA:
"aö maAM par"maM 'aApau:
s$aËyAcC$tas$ah"›azA:

mat-kämä ramaëaà jëram
asvarüpa-vido 'baläù brahma mäà paramaà präpuù saì gäc chata-sahasraçaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mat—Me; kämäù—those who desired; ramaëam—a charming lover;

jāram—the lover of another's wife; asvarūpa-vidaù—not knowing My actual situation; abaläù—women; brahma—the Absolute; mām—Me; paramam—supreme; prāpuù—they achieved; saì gāt—by association; çata-sahasraçaù—by hundreds of thousands.

TRANSLATION

All those hundreds of thousands of gopés, understanding Me to be their most charming lover and ardently desiring Me in that way, were unaware of My actual position. Yet by intimately associating with Me, the gopés attained Me, the Supreme Absolute Truth.

PURPORT

The words asvarūpa-vidaù ("not understanding My actual position or form") indicate that the lovely gopés were so completely absorbed in conjugal love for Lord Kāñëa that they were not aware of the Lord's unlimited potencies as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains this and other meanings of the word asvarūpa-vidaù. In Sanskrit the word vid also means "to acquire." Thus, asvarūpa-vidaù indicates that the gopés, like other pure devotees of the Lord, were not interested in achieving sārūpya-mukti, the liberation of acquiring a bodily form similar to the Lord's. Were the gopés to obtain a bodily form like the Lord's, how could the Lord execute His conjugal pastimes of dancing with the gopés and embracing them? Since the gopés had realized their eternal spiritual forms as servitors of the Lord, the word svarūpa also may indicate their own spiritual bodies, and thus asvarūpa-vidaù means that the gopés never thought, as materialists do, of their own bodily beauty. Although the gopés are the most beautiful girls in the Lord's creation, they never thought of their own bodies but rather were always meditating on the transcendental body of Lord Kāñëa. Although we cannot imitate the gopé's exalted conjugal feelings, we can follow their superb example of practical Kāñëa consciousness. They naturally took shelter of Lord Kāñëa and achieved the highest perfection of life.

TEXTS 14-15

tasmaAÔvamaUÜ"vaAets$afjya caAed"naAM 'aitacaAed"naAma,
'ava{iÔaM ca inava{iÔaM ca ™aAetavyaM ™autamaeva ca maAmaek(maeva zAr"N Ama, @AtmaAnaM s$avaR$de"ih"naAma, yaAih" s$avaARtmaBaAvaena mayaA syaA ÷ku(taAeBaya:

*tasmät tvam uddhavotsâjya codanâà praticodanâm pravâttià ca nivâttià ca çrotavyaà çrutam eva ca mäm ekam eva çaraëam
âtmânaà sarva-dehinâm
yâhi sarvâtma-bhâvena
mayä syä hy akuto-bhayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmät—therefore; tvam—you; uddhava—O Uddhava; utsâjya—giving up; codanâm—the regulations of the Vedas; praticodanâm—the injunctions of supplementary Vedic literatures; pravâttim—injunctions; ca—and; nivâttim—prohibitions; ca—also; çrotavyam—that which is to be heard; çrutam—that which has been heard; eva—indeed; ca—also; mäm—to Me; ekam—alone; eva—actually; çaraëam—shelter; âtmânam—the Supersoul within the heart; sarva-dehinâm—of all conditioned souls; yâhi—you must go; sarva-âtma-bhâvena—with exclusive devotion; mayä—by My mercy; syäù—you should be; hi—certainly; akutaù-bhayaù—free from fear in all circumstances.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, My dear Uddhava, abandon the Vedic mantras as well as the procedures of supplementary Vedic literatures and their positive and negative injunctions. Disregard that which has been heard and that which is to be heard. Simply take shelter of Me alone, for I am the Supreme Personality of Godhead, situated within the heart of all conditioned souls. Take shelter of Me wholeheartedly, and by My grace be free from fear in all circumstances.

PURPORT

Çré Uddhava inquired from Lord Kâñëa about the symptoms of saintly persons and liberated souls, and the Lord has replied in terms of different levels of spiritual advancement, distinguishing between those who are able to understand Lord Kâñëa to be the principal goal of life and those loving devotees who accept Lord Kâñëa and devotional service to Him as the only goal of life. Lord Kâñëa also mentioned that He is captured by His loving devotees and even by those who sincerely associate with His loving devotees. Among all the devotees, the gopés of Vândävana were described by the Lord as having achieved such a rare state of pure devotional service that Lord Kâñëa personally feels constantly indebted to them. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, Lord Kâñëa previously kept the gopés' love for Him concealed in His heart because of its confidential nature and the Lord's own gravity. Finally, however, even Lord Kâñëa could not remain silent about the intense love of the gopés, and thus in these verses the Lord reveals to Uddhava how the gopés loved Him in Vândävana and brought Him fully under their control. The Lord would relax in secret places with the loving gopés, and by conjugal spontaneous affection the greatest love was exchanged between them.

As explained by the Lord in Bhagavad-gétä, one cannot achieve the perfection of life merely by renouncing the material world or by executing ordinary, sectarian religious principles. One must actually understand the identity of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and by associating with His pure devotees one must learn to love the Lord in His personal, original form.

This love may be expressed in either the conjugal, paternal, fraternal or serving rasa, or relationship. The Lord has elaborately explained to Uddhava the system of philosophical analysis of the material world, and now He clearly concludes that it is useless for Uddhava to waste time in fruitive activities or mental speculation. Actually, Lord Kāñëa is hinting that Uddhava should assimilate the example of the gopés and try to advance further in Kāñëa consciousness by following in the footsteps of the cowherd damsels of Vraja. Any conditioned soul who is unsatisfied with the cruel laws of nature, which impose disease, old age and death, should understand that Lord Kāñëa can deliver all living beings from the problems of material existence. There is no need to entangle oneself in unauthorized, sectarian rituals, injunctions or prohibitions. One should simply surrender to Lord Kāñëa, following the example of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is Lord Kāñëa Himself. By the authorized regulated process of bhakti-yoga, Kāñëa consciousness, one easily achieves spiritual perfection.

TEXT 16

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
s$aMzAya: Za{NvataAe vaAcaM tava yaAegAeire"ir"
na inavataRta @AtmasTaAe yaena "aAmyaita mae mana:

çré-uddhava uvāca
saàçayaù çāëvato vācaà
tava yogeçvareçvara
na nivartata ātma-stho
yena bhrāmyati me manaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; saàçayaù—doubt; çāëvataù—of the one who is hearing; vācam—the words; tava—Your; yoga-éçvara—of the lords of mystic power; éçvara—You who are the Lord; na nivartate—will not go away; ätma—in the heart; sthaù—situated; yena-by which; bhrämyati—is bewildered; me—my; manaù—mind.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: O Lord of all masters of mystic power, I have heard Your words, but the doubt in my heart does not go away; thus my mind is bewildered.

PURPORT

In the first verse of the Tenth Chapter of this canto, the Lord stated that one should take shelter of Him and execute one's duties within the varëäçrama system without material desire. Uddhava interpreted this statement as recommending karma-miçrä bhakti, or devotional service mixed with a tendency toward fruitive activities. It is a fact that until one understands Lord Kãñëa to be everything, it is not possible to retire from ordinary, worldly duties. Rather, one is encouraged to offer the fruits of such work to the Lord. In verse 4 of the Tenth Chapter, the Lord recommended that one retire from worldly duties and systematically cultivate knowledge, accepting Him as the Supreme. Uddhava understood this instruction to indicate jï äna-miçrä bhakti, or devotional service to the Lord mixed with the secondary desire to accumulate knowledge. Beginning with verse 35 of the Tenth Chapter, Uddhava inquired about the process of material conditioning and liberation from material life. The Lord replied elaborately, stating that without devotional service the process of philosophical speculation can never be perfected. In Chapter Eleven, verse 18, the Lord emphasized the importance of faith in the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and in verse 23 Kãñëa extensively widened His discussion of devotional service, emphasizing that one should be faithful and hear and chant the glories of the Lord. The Lord concluded that both the development and perfection of devotional service depend on association with the devotees. In verse 26 of the Eleventh Chapter, Uddhava inquired about the actual ways and means of devotional service and about the symptoms of devotional perfection. And in verse 48 Lord Kãñëa stated that unless one takes to the process of devotional service, one's attempt for liberation will be useless. One must associate with the devotees of the Lord and follow in their footsteps. Finally, in verse 14 of this chapter the Lord categorically rejected the paths of fruitive activities and mental speculation and in verse 15 recommended that one exclusively surrender unto Him with all one's heart.

Having received such elaborate and technical instructions on the perfection of life, Uddhava is bewildered, and his mind is afflicted with doubt about what he should actually do. Lord Kāñëa has described many procedures and the results of such procedures, all of which ultimately lead to the single goal of Lord Kāñëa Himself. Uddhava therefore desires that Lord Kāñëa state in simple terms what should be done. Arjuna makes a similar request of the Lord at the beginning of the Third Chapter of Bhagavad-gētā. According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, Uddhava is stating here, "My dear friend Kāñëa, first You recommended that I perform worldly activities within the varëäçrama system, and then You advised that I reject such activities and take to the path of philosophical research. Now rejecting the path of jì'āna, You recommend that I simply surrender unto You in bhakti-yoga. If I accept Your decision, in the future You may again go back to Your original point and recommend worldly activities." By his boldness in disclosing his mind, Uddhava reveals his intimate friendship with Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 17

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
s$a W$Sa jalvaAe ivavar"as$aUita:
'aANAena GaAeSaeNA gAuh"AM 'aivai": manaAemayaM s$aU°mamaupaetya è&paM maAḥaA svar"Ae vaNAR wita sTaivai":

çré-bhagavān uvāca
sa eña jévo vivara-prasūtiù prāëena ghoñëëa guhäà praviññau mano-mayaà sükñmam upetya rūpaà mātrā svarō varēa iti sthaviṇṇhaṁ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; saṁ eṇaṁ—He Himself; jēvaṁ—the Supreme Lord, who gives life to all; vivara—within the heart; prasūtiṁ—manifest; prāṇena—along with the life air; ghoṇēṇa—with the subtle manifestation of sound; guhām—the heart; praviṇṇhaṁ—who has entered; manaṁ-mayaṁ—perceived by the mind, or controlling the mind even of great demigods like Lord Çiva; sūkīṁsaṁ—subtle; upetya—being situated in; rūpaṁ—the form; mātrā—the different vocalic lengths; svaraṁ—the different intonations; varēaṁ—the different sounds of the alphabet; iti—thus; sthaviṇṇhaṁ—the gross form.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, the Supreme Lord gives life to every living being and is situated within the heart along with the life air and primal sound vibration. The Lord can be perceived in His subtle form within the heart by one's mind, since the Lord controls the minds of everyone, even great demigods like Lord Çiva. The Supreme Lord also assumes a gross form as the various sounds of the Vedas, composed of short and long vowels and consonants of different intonations.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura comments as follows on the dialogue between Lord Kāṇḍa and Uddhava. Uddhava was bewildered and doubtful because Lord Kāṇḍa explained many different processes such as devotional service, speculative knowledge, renunciation, mystic yoga, austerities, pious duties, and so on. However, all of these processes are meant to help the living entities obtain the shelter of Lord Kāṇḍa, and ultimately no Vedic process should be understood in any other way. Thus Lord Kāṇḍa explained the entire Vedic system, placing everything in proper order. In fact, Lord Kāṇḍa was surprised that Uddhava foolishly thought that he was meant to practice every process, as if each method were meant simply for him. Lord Kāñëa therefore wants to inform His devotee, "My dear Uddhava, when I told you that analytic knowledge is to be practiced, pious duties are to be performed, devotional service is obligatory, yoga procedures must be observed, austerities are to be executed, etc., I was instructing all living entities, using you as My immediate audience. That which I have spoken, am speaking now and will speak in the future should be understood as guidance for all living entities in different situations. How could you possibly think that you were meant to practice all of the different Vedic processes? I accept you as you are now, My pure devotee. You are not supposed to execute all of these processes." Thus according to Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura, the Lord, with lighthearted and encouraging words, reveals to Uddhava the deep purpose behind the variety of Vedic procedures.

Lord Kāñëa became manifest from the mouth of Lord Brahmä in the form of the Vedas. The word vivara-prasüti in this verse also indicates that the Lord is manifest within the ädhärädi-cakras situated within the body of Lord Brahmä. The word ghoñëëa means "subtle sound," and guhäâ praviñöaü also indicates that Lord Kāñëa enters within the ädhära-cakra. The Lord can further be perceived within other cakras such as the maëipüraka-cakra, located around the navel, and the viçuddhi-cakra. The Sanskrit alphabet is composed of short and long vowels, and consonants pronounced with high and low tones, and utilizing these vibrations the different branches of Vedic literatures are manifested as a gross form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. According to Bhagavad-gétä, such literatures deal mostly with the three modes of material nature: traiguëya-viñayä vedä nistrai-guëyo bhavärjuna. Çrëla Çrédhara Svämé explains that due to the control of the illusory energy, mäyä, the Personality of Godhead appears to the conditioned souls as part of the material universe. The imagined imposition of gross and subtle material qualities on the Personality of Godhead is called avidyä, or ignorance, and through such ignorance the living entity considers himself to be the doer of his own activities and becomes bound up in the network of karma. The Vedas therefore order an entangled soul to observe positive and negative injunctions to purify his existence. These procedures are called pravātti-mārga, or the path of regulated fruitive activities. When one has purified one's existence, one gives up this gross stage of fruitive activities because it is detrimental to the practice of pure devotional service. By firm faith one may then worship the Personality of Godhead. One who has developed perfect Kāñëa consciousness no longer has to perform ritualistic duties. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā, tasya kāryaà na vidyate.

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvāmé, this verse may be understood in another way. The word jéva indicates Lord Kāñëa, who gives life to the residents of Våndävana, and vivara-prasüti indicates that although Lord Kāñëa eternally performs His pastimes in the spiritual world, beyond the vision of the conditioned souls, He also enters within the material universe to display these same pastimes. The words guhäà praviññaù indicates that after displaying such pastimes, the Lord withdraws them and enters into His unmanifest pastimes, or those pastimes not manifest to the conditioned souls. In this case, mātrā indicates the transcendental senses of the Lord, svara indicates the Lord's transcendental sound vibration and singing, and the word varëa indicates the transcendental form of the Lord. The word sthaviñña, or "gross manifestation," means that the Lord becomes manifest in the material world even to those devotees who are not completely advanced in Kāñëa consciousness and whose vision is not completely purified. Mano-maya indicates that somehow or other Lord Kāñëa is to be kept within one's mind; and for the nondevotees Lord Kāñëa is sükñma, or most subtle, because He cannot be known. Thus different äcāryas have glorified Lord Kāñëa in different ways through the transcendental sound vibration of this verse.

TEXT 18

yaTaAnala: Kae'inalabanDauç&SmaA balaena d"Aç&NyaiDamaTyamaAna: @NAu: 'ajaAtaAe h"ivaSaA s$amaeDatae taTaEva mae vyai·(ir"yaM ih" vaANAI yathānalaù khe 'nila-bandhur uñmā balena dāruēy adhimathyamānaù aëuù prajāto haviñā samedhate tathaiva me vyaktir iyaà hi vāēē

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathā—just as; analaù—fire; khe—in the space within wood; anila—air; bandhuù—whose help; uñmā—heat; balena—strongly; dāruēi—within the wood; adhimathyamānaù—being kindled by friction; aëuù—very tiny; prajātaù—is born; haviñā—with ghee (clarified butter); samedhate—it increases; tathā—similarly; eva—indeed; me—My; vyaktiù—manifestation; iyam—this; hi—certainly; vāēē—the Vedic sounds.

TRANSLATION

When sticks of kindling wood are vigorously rubbed together, heat is produced by contact with air, and a spark of fire appears. Once the fire is kindled, ghee is added and the fire blazes. Similarly, I become manifest in the sound vibration of the Vedas.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñēa here explains the most confidential meaning of Vedic knowledge. The Vedas first regulate ordinary material work and channel the fruits into ritualistic sacrifices, which ostensibly reward the performer with future benefits. The real purpose of these sacrifices, however, is to accustom a materialistic worker to offering the fruits of his work to a superior Vedic authority. An expert fruitive worker gradually exhausts the possibilities of material enjoyment and naturally gravitates toward the superior stage of philosophical speculation on his existential situation. By increased knowledge, one becomes aware of the unlimited glories of the Supreme and gradually takes to the process of loving devotional service to the transcendental Absolute Truth. Lord Kāñēa is the goal of Vedic knowledge, as the Lord states in Bhagavad-gētā: vedaīç ca sarvair aham eva vedyau [Bg. 15.15]. The Lord gradually becomes manifest in the progression of Vedic rituals, just as fire is gradually manifest by the rubbing of firewood. The words haviñä samedhate ("the fire increases by addition of ghee") indicate that by the progressive advancement of Vedic sacrifice, the fire of spiritual knowledge gradually blazes, illuminating everything and destroying the chain of fruitive work.

Lord Kāñëa considered Uddhava to be the most qualified person to hear this elaborate transcendental knowledge; therefore the Lord mercifully instructs Uddhava so that he may enlighten the sages at Badarikäçrama, thus fulfilling the purpose of the sages' lives.

TEXT 19

WvaM gAid": k(maR gAitaivaRs$agAAeR „aANAAe r"s$aAe ä{"fs$pazAR: ™auitaê s$aÆÿlpaivaÁaAnamaTaAiBamaAna:
 s$aUṭaM r"ja:s$aÔvatamaAeivak(Ar":

evaà gadiù karma gatiṛ visargo ghräëo raso dāk sparçaù çrutiç ca saì kalpa-vijì änam athäbhimänaù sütraà rajaù-sattva-tamo-vikäraù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; gadiù—speech; karma—the function of the hands; gatiù—the function of the legs; visargaù—the functions of the genital and anus; ghräëaù—smell; rasaù—taste; dāk—sight; sparçaù—touch; çrutiù—hearing; ca—also; saì kalpa—the mind's function; vijì änam—the function of intelligence and consciousness; atha—moreover; abhimänaù—the function of false ego; sütram—the function of pradhāna, or the subtle cause of material nature; rajaù—of the mode of passion; sattva—goodness; tamaù—and of ignorance; vikäraù—the transformation.

TRANSLATION

The functions of the working senses—the organ of speech, the hands, the legs, the genital and the anus—and the functions of the knowledge-acquiring senses—the nose, tongue, eyes, skin and ears—along with the functions of the subtle senses of mind, intelligence, consciousness and false ego, as well as the function of the subtle pradhāna and the interaction of the three modes of material nature—all these should be understood as My materially manifest form.

PURPORT

By the word gadi, or "speech," the Lord concludes His discussion about His manifestation as Vedic vibrations and describes the functions of the other working senses, along with the knowledge-acquiring senses, the subtle functions of consciousness, pradhāna and the interaction of the three modes of material nature. A Kāñëa conscious person sees the entire material world as a manifestation of the Lord's potencies. There is therefore no legitimate scope for material sense gratification, because everything is an expansion from the Supreme Personality of Godhead and belongs to Him. One who can understand the expansion of the Lord within subtle and gross material manifestations gives up his desire to live in this world. In the spiritual world everything is eternal, full of bliss and knowledge. The exclusive feature of the material world is that here the living entity dreams that he is lord. A sane person, giving up this hallucination, finds no attractive features in the kingdom of māyā and therefore returns home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 20

@yaM ih" jalvaiñva{d"bjayaAeinar," @vya·(Wk(Ae vayas$aA s$a @Aâ: ivaiëi"zAi·(baRò"Daeva BaAita baljaAina yaAeinaM 'aitapaâ yaã"ta, ayaà hi jévas tri-vâd abja-yonir avyakta eko vayasä sa ädyaù viçliñöa-çaktir bahudheva bhäti bējāni yonià pratipadya yadvat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ayam—this; hi—certainly; jévaù—the supreme living entity who gives life to others; tri-vât—containing the three modes of material nature; abja—of the universal lotus flower; yoniù—the source; avyaktaù—unmanifest (materially); ekaù—alone; vayasä—in course of time; saù—He; ädyau—eternal; viçliñña—divided; çaktiù—potencies; bahudhä—in many divisions; iva—like; bhāti—He appears; bējāni—seeds; yonim—in an agricultural field; pratipadya—falling; yat-vat—just like.

TRANSLATION

When many seeds are placed in an agricultural field, innumerable manifestations of trees, bushes, vegetables and so on will arise from a single source, the soil. Similarly, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who gives life to all and is eternal, originally exists beyond the scope of the cosmic manifestation. In the course of time, however, the Lord, who is the resting place of the three modes of nature and the source of the universal lotus flower, in which the cosmic manifestation takes place, divides His material potencies and thus appears to be manifest in innumerable forms, although He is one.

PURPORT

Çréla Véaraġhaväcärya comments that one may question as to whom the cosmic manifestation, consisting of demigods, men, animals, plants, planets, space, etc., actually belongs. Lord Kāñëa now eradicates any doubt about the source of the cosmic manifestation. The word tri-vât indicates that the three modes of nature are not independent but are under superior control. The suffix vât means the vartanam, or "existence," of the three modes of material nature within the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Analyzing the term abja-yoni, ap indicates "water," and ja indicates "birth." Thus abja means the complex material universe, which sprouts from Garbhodakaçäyë Viñëu, who lies in the Garbhodaka Ocean. Yoni, or "source," indicates the Personality of Godhead, and thus abja-yoni means that the Lord is the source of all cosmic manifestations; indeed, all creation takes place within the Lord. Since the three modes of material nature are under the superior control of the Lord, material objects helplessly undergo creation and annihilation within the universal shell by the will of the Lord. The term avyakta indicates the Lord's subtle spiritual form, which exists alone before the material creation. The Lord's original form, being spiritual, does not undergo birth, transformation or death. It is eternal. In the course of time, the Lord's material potencies are divided and manifest as bodies, bodily paraphernalia, sense objects, bodily expansions, false ego and false proprietorship. Thus the Lord expands His conscious living potency called jēva-çakti, which is manifest in innumerable material forms such as those of men, demigods, animals, and so on. From the example of the seeds sown in an agricultural field, we can understand that innumerable manifestations may arise from a single source. Similarly, although the Lord is one, He becomes manifest in innumerable forms through the expansion of His different potencies.

TEXT 21

yaismai^aadM" 'aAetamazAeSamaAetaM paq%Ae yaTaA tantauivataAnas$AMsTa:
 ya WSa s$AMs$Ar"taç&: paup"ANA:
 k(maARtmak(: pauSpaP(lae 'as$aUtae yasminn idaà protam aṇṇam otaà paṇṇo yathā tantu-vitāna-saàsthaù ya eṇṇa saàsāra-taruù purāëaù karmātmakaù puṇpa-phale prasūte

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yasmin—in whom; idam—this universe; protam—woven crosswise; aṇṇam—the whole; otam—and lengthwise; paṇṇaù—a cloth; yathā—just like; tantu—of the threads; vitāna—in the expansion; saàsthaù—situated;

yaù—that which; eñaù—this; saàsära—of material existence; taruù—the tree; puräëaù—existing since time immemorial; karma—toward fruitive activities; ätmakaù—naturally inclined; puñpa—the first result, blossoming; phale—and the fruit; prasüte—being produced.

TRANSLATION

Just as woven cloth rests on the expansion of lengthwise and crosswise threads, similarly the entire universe is expanded on the lengthwise and crosswise potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and is situated within Him. The conditioned soul has been accepting material bodies since time immemorial, and these bodies are like great trees sustaining one's material existence. Just as a tree first blossoms and then produces fruit, similarly the tree of material existence, one's material body, produces the various results of material existence.

PURPORT

Before a tree produces fruit, blossoms appear. Similarly, the word puñpa-phale, according to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, indicates the happiness and distress of material existence. One's material life may appear to be blossoming, but ultimately there will appear the bitter fruits of old age, death and other catastrophes. Attachment to the material body, which is always inclined toward sense gratification, is the root cause of material existence, and it is therefore called saàsära-taru. The tendency to exploit the external energy of the Supreme Lord has existed since time immemorial, as expressed by the words puräëaù karmätmakaù. The material universe is an expansion of the illusory potency of the Supreme Lord and is always dependent on Him and nondifferent from Him. This simple understanding can relieve the conditioned souls from endless wandering in the unhappy kingdom of mäyä.

The word puñpa-phale may also be understood as meaning sense gratification and liberation. The tree of material existence will be further explained in the following verses.

TEXTS 22-23

ãe" @sya baljae zAtamaUlaiñnaAla:
paÂas$k(nDa: paÂar"s$a'as$aUita:
d"zAEk(zAAKaAe iã"s$auPaNARnaIx"s$a, iṭavalk(laAe iã"P(laAe'k<('aivaí":

@d"inta caEkM(P(lamasya gA{aA faAmaecar"A Wk(mar"NyavaAs$aA: hM"s$aA ya WkM(baò"è&paimajyaEr," maAyaAmayaM vaed" s$a vaed" vaed"ma, dve asya béje çata-mūlas tri-nālaù pai ca-skandhaù pai ca-rasa-prasūtiù daçaika-çākho dvi-superëa-néòas tri-valkalo dvi-phalo 'rkaà praviññaù adanti caikaà phalam asya gādhra grāme-carā ekam araëya-väsäù haàsä ya ekaà bahu-rüpam iyyair māyā-mayaà veda sa veda vedam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dve—two; asya—of this tree; béje—seeds; çata—hundreds; mūlaù—of roots; tri—three; nālaù—lower trunks; pai ca—five; skandhaù—upper trunks; pai ca—five; rasa—saps; prasūtiù—producing; daça—ten; eka—plus one; çākhaù—branches; dvi—two; superëa—of birds; néòau—a nest; tri—three; valkalaù—types of bark; dvi—two; phalaù—fruits; arkam—the sun; praviññaù—extending into; adanti—they eat or enjoy; ca—also; ekam—one; phalam—fruit; asya—of this tree; gādhraù—those who are lusty for material enjoyment; grāme—in householder life; carāù—living; ekam—another; araëya—in the forest; väsäù—those who live; haàsäù—swanlike men, saintly persons; yaù—one who; ekam—one only, the Supersoul; bahu-rüpam—appearing in many forms; iyyaiù—by the help of those who are worshipable, the spiritual masters; māyā-mayam—produced by the potency of the Supreme Lord; veda—knows; saù—such a person; veda—knows; vedam—the actual meaning of the Vedic literature.

TRANSLATION

This tree of material existence has two seeds, hundreds of roots, three lower trunks and five upper trunks. It produces five flavors and has eleven branches and a nest made by two birds. The tree is covered by three types of bark, gives two fruits and extends up to the sun. Those lusty after material enjoyment and dedicated to family life enjoy one of the tree's fruits, and swanlike men in the renounced order of life enjoy the other fruit. One who with the help of the bona fide spiritual masters can understand this tree to be a manifestation of the potency of the one Supreme Truth appearing in many forms actually knows the meaning of the Vedic literature.

PURPORT

The two seeds of this tree are sinful and pious activities, and the hundreds of roots are the living entities' innumerable material desires, which chain them to material existence. The three lower trunks represent the three modes of material nature, and the five upper trunks represent the five gross material elements. The tree produces five flavors—sound, form, touch, taste and aroma—and has eleven branches—the five working senses, the five knowledge-acquiring senses and the mind. Two birds, namely the individual soul and the Supersoul, have made their nest in this tree, and the three types of bark are air, bile and mucus, the constituent elements of the body. The two fruits of this tree are happiness and distress.

Those who are busy trying to enjoy the company of beautiful women, money and other luxurious aspects of illusion enjoy the fruit of unhappiness. One should remember that even in the heavenly planets there is anxiety and death. Those who have renounced material goals and taken to the path of spiritual enlightenment enjoy the fruit of happiness. One who takes the assistance of bona fide spiritual masters can understand that this elaborate tree is simply the manifestation of the external potency of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is ultimately one without a second. If one can see the Supreme Lord as the ultimate cause of everything, then his knowledge is perfect. Otherwise, if one is entangled in Vedic rituals or Vedic speculation without knowledge of the Supreme Lord, he has not achieved the perfection of life.

TEXT 24

WvaM gAuè&paAs$anayaEk(BaftyA ivaâAku(Q&Are"NA izAtaena Dalr": ivava{zcya jalvaAzAyama'amaÔa:
s$ampaâ caAtmaAnamaTa tyajaAñma,

evaâ gurüpāsanayaika-bhaktyā vidyā-kuōhāreēa çitena dhēraù vivāçcya jēvāçayam apramattaù sampadya cātmānam atha tyajāstram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus (with the knowledge I have given you); guru—of the spiritual master; upāsanayā—developed by worship; eka—unalloyed; bhaktyā—by loving devotional service; vidyā—of knowledge; kuōhāreēa—by the ax; çitena—sharp; dhēraù—one who is steady by knowledge; vivāçcya—cutting down; jēva—of the living entity; āçayam—the subtle body (filled with designations created by the three modes of material nature); apramattaù—being very careful in spiritual life; sampadya—achieving; ca—and; ātmānam—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; atha—then; tyaja—you should give up; astram—the means by which you achieved perfection.

TRANSLATION

With steady intelligence you should develop unalloyed devotional service by careful worship of the spiritual master, and with the sharpened ax of transcendental knowledge you should cut off the subtle material covering of the soul. Upon realizing the Supreme Personality of Godhead, you should then give up that ax of analytic knowledge.

PURPORT

Because Uddhava had achieved the perfection of personal association with Lord Kāñëa, there was no need for him to maintain the mentality of a conditioned soul, and thus, as described here by the words sampadya cātmānam, Uddhava could personally serve the lotus feet of the Lord in the spiritual world. Indeed, Uddhava requested this opportunity at the beginning of this great conversation. As stated here, gurüpāsanayaika-bhaktyā: one can achieve pure devotional service by worshipping a bona fide spiritual master. It is not recommended here that one give up pure devotional service or one's spiritual master. Rather, it is clearly stated by the words vidyā-kuñhāreëa that one should cultivate knowledge of the material world as described by Lord Kāñëa in this chapter. One should fully understand that each and every aspect of the material creation is the expansion of the illusory potency of the Lord. Such knowledge works as a sharpened ax to cut down the roots of material existence. In this way, even the stubborn subtle body, created by the three modes of nature, is cut to pieces, and one becomes apramatta, or sane and cautious in Kāñëa consciousness.

Lord Kāñëa has clearly explained in this chapter that the cowherd damsels of Vāndāvana were not interested in an analytical approach to life. They simply loved Lord Kāñëa and could not think of anything else. Lord Caitanya Mahāprabhu taught that all His devotees should follow in the footsteps of the cowherd damsels of Vraja in order to develop the highest intensity of selfless love of Godhead. Lord Kāñëa has elaborately analyzed the nature of the material world so that the conditioned souls, who are trying to enjoy it, can cut down the tree of material existence with this knowledge. The words sampadya cātmānam indicate that a person with such knowledge has no further material existence, because he has already achieved the Personality of Godhead. Such a person should not loiter in the kingdom of māyā, perpetually refining his understanding of the illusory creation. One who has accepted Lord Kāñëa as everything may enjoy eternal bliss in the Lord's service. Yet even though he remains in this world, he has no more business with it and gives up the analytical procedures for negating it. Lord Kāñëa therefore tells Uddhava, tyajāstram: "Give up the ax of analytic knowledge by which you have cut down your sense of proprietorship and residence in the material world."

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Twelfth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Beyond Renunciation and Knowledge."

13. The Haàsa-avatāra Answers the Questions of the Sons of Brahmā

In this chapter, Lord Çré Kāñëa explains to Uddhava how human beings, overwhelmed by sense gratification, become bound by the three modes of nature, and how to renounce these modes. The Lord then describes how He appeared in His form of Haàsa before Brahmā and the four sages headed by Sanaka and revealed to them various confidential truths.

The three modes-goodness, passion and ignorance-are related to material intelligence, not to the soul. One should conquer the lower modes of passion and ignorance by the mode of goodness, and then one must surpass the mode of goodness by acting in the transcendental mode of pure goodness. By associating with things in the mode of goodness, one becomes more fully situated in that mode. The three modes increase their different influences through various types of scripture, water, place, time, beneficiaries of activity, natures of activity, birth, meditation, mantras, purificatory rituals, and so on.

Lacking discrimination, one identifies with the material body, and consequently the mode of passion, which produces misery, takes over the mind, which is normally in the mode of goodness. As the mind evolves its function of decision and doubt, it creates intolerable hankerings for sense gratification. Unfortunate persons who are bewildered by the urges of the mode of passion become the slaves of their senses. Even though they know that the eventual result of their work will be suffering, they cannot avoid engaging in such fruitive work. A discriminating person, on the other hand, keeps himself detached from the objects of the senses and, by utilizing appropriate renunciation, takes shelter of unalloyed devotional service.

Lord Brahmä himself has no material cause. He is the cause of the creation of all living beings and is the greatest among all the demigods. Yet even Brahmä is always suffering agitation of the mind on account of the duties he has to perform; therefore, when he was questioned by his sons headed by Sanaka, who were born from his mind, about the means for driving away desires for sense gratification, he was incapable of giving them an answer. In order to receive some insight into this matter, he took shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, whereupon the Supreme Lord appeared before him in the form of the swan incarnation, Lord Haàsa. Lord Haàsa proceeded to give instructions about the categorical identity of the self, the different states of consciousness (wakeful awareness, sleep and deep sleep) and the means for conquering over material existence. The sages headed by Sanaka became freed from all their doubts by hearing the words of the Lord and worshiped Him with pure devotion in mature love of God.

TEXT 1

çré-bhagavän uväca
sattvaà rajas tama iti
guëä buddher na cätmanaù
sattvenänyatamau hanyät
sattvaà sattvena caiva hi

çré-bhagavän uväca
sattvaà rajas tama iti
guëä buddher na cätmanaù
sattvenänyatamau hanyät
sattvaà sattvena caiva hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; sattvam—goodness; rajaù—passion; tamaù—ignorance; iti—thus known; guëäù—the modes of material nature; buddheù—pertain to material intelligence; na—not; ca—also; ätmanaù—to the soul; sattvena—by the material mode of goodness; anyatamau—the other two (passion and ignorance); hanyät—may be destroyed; sattvam—the material mode of goodness; sattvena—by purified goodness; ca—also (may be destroyed); eva—certainly; hi—indeed.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: The three modes of material nature, namely goodness, passion and ignorance, pertain to material intelligence and not to the spirit soul. By development of material goodness one can conquer the modes of passion and ignorance, and by cultivation of transcendental goodness one may free oneself even from material goodness.

PURPORT

Goodness in the material world never exists in a pure form. Therefore, it is common knowledge that on the material platform no one is working without personal motivation. In the material world goodness is always mixed with some amount of passion and ignorance, whereas spiritual, or purified, goodness (viçuddha-sattva) represents the liberated platform of perfection. Materially, one is proud to be an honest, compassionate man, but unless one is fully Kãñëa conscious one will speak truths that are not ultimately significant, and one will give mercy that is ultimately useless. Because the onward march of material time removes all situations and persons from the material stage, our so-called mercy and truth apply to situations that shortly will not exist. Real truth is eternal, and real mercy means to situate people in eternal truth. Still, for an ordinary person, cultivation of material goodness may be a preliminary stage on the road to Kāñëa consciousness. For example, it is stated in the Tenth Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam that one who is addicted to meat-eating cannot understand the pastimes of Lord Kāñëa. By cultivation of the material mode of goodness, however, one may become a vegetarian and perhaps come to appreciate the sublime process of Kāñëa consciousness. Since it is clearly stated in Bhagavad-gétä that the material modes of nature constantly rotate, one must take advantage of an elevated position in material goodness to step onto the transcendental platform. Otherwise, as the wheel of time turns one will again go into the darkness of material ignorance.

TEXT 2

s$aÔvaAÜ"maAeR Bavaeä," va{Ü"Ata, pauMs$aAe maà"i·(la^oaNA:
 s$aAiÔvak(AepaAs$ayaA s$aÔvaM tataAe DamaR: 'avataRtae sattväd dharmo bhaved vâddhät puàso mad-bhakti-lakñaëaù sättvikopäsayä sattvaà tato dharmaù pravartate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sattvät—from the mode of goodness; dharmaù—religious principles; bhavel—arise; vâddhät—which are strengthened; puàsaù—of a person; mat-bhakti—by devotional service to Me; lakñaëaù—characterized; sättvika—of things in the mode of goodness; upäsayä—by serious cultivation; sattvam—the mode of goodness; tataù—from that mode;

dharmaù—religious principles; pravartate—arise.

TRANSLATION

When the living entity becomes strongly situated in the mode of goodness, then religious principles, characterized by devotional service to Me, become prominent. One can strengthen the mode of goodness by cultivation of those things that are already situated in goodness, and thus religious principles arise.

PURPORT

Since the three modes of material nature are constantly in conflict, vying for supremacy, how is it possible that the mode of goodness can subdue the modes of passion and ignorance? Lord Kāñëa here explains how one can be strongly fixed in the mode of goodness, which automatically gives rise to religious principles. In the Fourteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gétä, Lord Kāñëa elaborately explains the things that are in goodness, passion and ignorance. Thus, by choosing food, attitudes, work, recreation, etc., strictly in the mode of goodness, one will become situated in that mode. The usefulness of sattva-guëa, or the mode of goodness, is that it produces religious principles aimed at and characterized by devotional service to Lord Kāñëa. Without such devotional service to the Lord, the mode of goodness is considered useless and merely another aspect of material illusion. The word vâddhät, or "strengthened, increased," indicates clearly that one should come to the platform of viçuddha-sattva, or purified goodness. The word vâddhät indicates growth, and growth should not be stopped until full maturity is reached. The full maturity of goodness is called viçuddha-sattva, or the transcendental platform on which there is no trace of any other quality. In pure goodness all knowledge automatically manifests, and one can easily understand one's eternal loving relationship with Lord Kāñëa. That is the actual meaning and purpose of dharma, or religious principles.

Çréla Madhväcärya points out in this regard that an increase in the mode of goodness strengthens religious principles and the invigorated execution of religious principles strengthens the mode of goodness. In that way, one can advance higher and higher in the mode of spiritual happiness.

TEXT 3

DamaAeR r"jastamaAe h"nyaAta, s$aÔvava{iÜ"r"nauÔama:
@AzAu nazyaita tanmaUlaAe ÷DamaR oBayae h"tae

*dharmo rajas tamo hanyāt sattva-vâddhir anuttamaù āçu naçyati tan-mūlo
hy adharma ubhaye hate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmāù—religious principles based on devotional service; rajaù—the mode of passion; tamaù—the mode of ignorance; hanyāt—destroy; sattva—of goodness; vâddhiù—by the increase; anuttamaù—the greatest; āçu—quickly; naçyati—is destroyed; tan—of passion and ignorance; mūlaù—the root; hi—certainly; adharmaù—irreligion; ubhaye hate—when both are destroyed.

TRANSLATION

Religious principles, strengthened by the mode of goodness, destroy the influence of passion and ignorance. When passion and ignorance are overcome, their original cause, irreligion, is quickly vanquished.

TEXT 4

@AgAmaAe'pa: 'ajaA de"zA:
k(Ala: k(maR ca janma ca DyaAnaM manṭaAe'Ta s$aMs$k(Ar"Ae d"zAEtae gAuNAhe"tava:

ägamo 'paù prajā deçaù kālaù karma ca janma ca dhyānaà mantrō 'tha saàskāro daçaite guëa-hetavaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ägamaù—religious scriptures; apaù—water; prajāù—association with people in general or one's children; deçaù—place; kālaù—time; karma—activities; ca—also; janma—birth; ca—also; dhyānam—meditation; mantraù—chanting of mantras; atha—and; saàskāraù—rituals for purification; daça—ten; ete—these; guëa—of the modes of nature; hetavaù—causes.

TRANSLATION

According to the quality of religious scriptures, water, one's association with one's children or with people in general, the particular place, the time, activities, birth, meditation, chanting of mantras, and purificatory rituals, the modes of nature become differently prominent.

PURPORT

The ten items mentioned above possess superior and inferior qualities and are thus identified as being in goodness, passion or ignorance. One can increase the mode of goodness by selecting religious scriptures in goodness, pure water, friendship with other persons in goodness, and so on. One should scrupulously avoid any of these ten items that may be polluted by an inferior mode of nature.

TEXT 5

taÔats$aAiÔvak(maevaESaAM

yaâä," va{Ü"A: 'aca⁰atae inand"inta taAmas$aM taÔaä," r"Ajas$aM taäu"paei⁰atama, tat tat sāttvikam evaiñāà yad yad vāddhāu pracakñate nindanti tāmasaà tat tad rājasaà tad-upekñitam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat tat—those things; sāttvikam—in the mode of goodness; eva—indeed; ēñām—among the ten items; yat yat—whatever; vāddhāu—the sages of the past, such as Vyāsadeva, who are expert in Vedic knowledge; pracakñate—they praise; nindanti—they scorn; tāmasam—in the mode of ignorance; tat tat—those things; rājasam—in the mode of passion; tat—by the sages; upekñitam—left alone, neither praised nor criticized.

TRANSLATION

Among the ten items I have just mentioned, the great sages who understand Vedic knowledge have praised and recommended those that are in the mode of goodness, criticized and rejected those in the mode of ignorance, and shown indifference to those in the mode of passion.

TEXT 6

s$aAiÔvak(Anyaeva s$aevaeta paumaAna, s$aÔvaivava{Ü"yae tataAe DamaRstataAe ÁaAnaM yaAvatsma{itar"paAeh"nama,

*sāttvikāny eva seveta
pumān sattva-vivāddhaye tato dharmas tato jī ānaà*

yävat smâtir apohanam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sättvikäni—things in the mode of goodness; eva—indeed; seveta—he should cultivate; pumän—a person; sattva—the mode of goodness; vivâddhaye—in order to increase; tataù—from that (increase in goodness); dharmaù—one is fixed in religious principles; tataù—from that (religion); jì änam—knowledge is manifest; yävat—until; smâtiù—self-realization, remembering one's eternal identity; apohanam—driving away (the illusory identification with the material body and mind).

TRANSLATION

Until one revives one's direct knowledge of the spirit soul and drives away the illusory identification with the material body and mind caused by the three modes of nature, one must cultivate those things in the mode of goodness. By increasing the mode of goodness, one automatically can understand and practice religious principles, and by such practice transcendental knowledge is awakened.

PURPORT

One who desires to cultivate the mode of goodness must consider the following points. One should study religious scriptures that teach detachment from mental speculation and material sense gratification, not scriptures that provide rituals and mantras to increase material ignorance. Such materialistic scriptures do not give attention to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and thus are basically atheistic. One should accept pure water for quenching thirst and cleaning the body. There is no need for a devotee to use colognes, perfume, whiskey, beer, etc., which are all polluted manifestations of water. One should associate with persons who are cultivating detachment from the material world and not with those who are materially attached or sinful in their behavior. One should live in a solitary place where devotional service is practiced and discussed among Vaiñëavas.

One should not be spontaneously attracted to busy highways, shopping centers, sports stadiums, and so on. Concerning time, one should rise by four o'clock in the morning and utilize the auspicious brähma-muhūrta to advance in Kāñëa consciousness. Similarly, one should avoid the sinful influence of hours such as midnight when ghosts and demons are encouraged to become active. Concerning work, one should execute one's prescribed duties, follow the regulative principles of spiritual life and utilize all of one's energy for pious purposes. Time should not be wasted in frivolous or materialistic activities, of which there are now literally millions in modern society. One can cultivate birth in the mode of goodness by accepting the second birth of initiation from a bona fide spiritual master and learning to chant the Hare Kāñëa mantra. One should not accept initiation or so-called spiritual birth in unauthorized mystical or religious cults in the modes of passion and ignorance. One should meditate upon the Supreme Personality of Godhead as the enjoyer of all sacrifices, and similarly, one should meditate on the lives of great devotees and saintly persons. One should not meditate on lusty women and envious men. Concerning mantras, one should follow the example of Çré Caitanya Mahāprabhu by chanting the Hare Kāñëa mantra and not other songs, verses, poetry or mantras that glorify the kingdom of illusion. Purificatory rituals should be performed to purify the spirit soul and not to bring down material blessings on one's material household.

One who increases the mode of goodness will certainly become fixed in religious principles, and automatically knowledge will arise. As knowledge increases one is able to understand the eternal spirit soul and the Supreme Soul, Lord Kāñëa. Thus the soul becomes free from the artificial imposition of the gross and subtle material bodies caused by the modes of material nature. Spiritual knowledge burns to ashes the material designations that cover the living entity, and one's real, eternal life begins.

TEXT 7

vaeNAus$alÿSaRjaAe vai¶"r," d"gDvaA zAAMyaita taã"nama,

WvaM gAuNAvyatyayajaAe de"h": zAAmyaita tait,(ya:

veëu-saì gharña-jaù vahnir dagdhvā çämyati tad-vanam evaà guëa-vyatyaya-jo
dehaù çämyati tat-kriyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

veëu—of bamboo; saì gharña-jaù—generated by the friction; vahniù—fire; dagdhvā—having burned; çämyati—is pacified; tat—of bamboo; vanam—the forest; evam—thus; guëa—of the modes of nature; vyatyaya-jaù—generated by interaction; dehaù—the material body; çämyati—is pacified; tat—as the fire; kriyaù—performing the same action.

TRANSLATION

In a bamboo forest the wind sometimes rubs the bamboo stalks together, and such friction generates a blazing fire that consumes the very source of its birth, the bamboo forest. Thus, the fire is automatically calmed by its own action. Similarly, by the competition and interaction of the material modes of nature, the subtle and gross material bodies are generated. If one uses his mind and body to cultivate knowledge, then such enlightenment destroys the influence of the modes of nature that generated one's body. Thus, like the fire, the body and mind are pacified by their own actions in destroying the source of their birth.

PURPORT

The word guëa-vyatyaya-jaù is significant in this verse. Vyatyaya indicates change or inversion in the normal order of things. Çrëla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvatē Ōhākura has described the concept of vyatyaya by giving the Sanskrit synonym vaiñmya, which indicates inequality or disproportionate diversity. Thus, it is understood by the term guëa-vyatyaya-jaù that the body is generated by the unstable relationships of the three modes of material nature, which exist everywhere in constantly changing proportions. There is constant strife among the modes of nature. A good person is sometimes torn by passion, and a passionate person sometimes wants to give up everything and rest. An ignorant person may sometimes become disgusted with his depraved life, and a passionate person may sometimes indulge in bad habits in the mode of ignorance. Due to the interactive conflict of the modes of nature, one wanders throughout material nature creating one body after another by one's own work, karma. As it is said, variety is the mother of enjoyment, and the variety of material modes gives hope to the conditioned souls that by changing their material situation their unhappiness and frustration can be turned into happiness and satisfaction. But even if one acquires relative material happiness, that will soon be disturbed by the inevitable flux of the material modes.

TEXT 8

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
 ivad"inta matyaAR: 'aAyaena ivaSayaAna, pad"maApad"Ama, taTaAipa BauĀatae k{(SNA tatk(TaM iKar"Ajavata,

çré-uddhava uvāca
vidanti martyāu prāyeëa viñayān padam āpadām
tathāpi bhuī jate kñēa
tat kathaà çva-kharāja-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; vidanti—they know; martyāu—human beings; prāyeëa—generally; viñayān—sense gratification; padam—a situation; āpadām—of many miserable conditions; tathā api—even so; bhuī jate—they enjoy; kñēa—O Kñēa; tat—such sense gratification; katham—how is it possible; çva—dogs; khara—asses; aja—and goats; vat—just like.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Kâñëa, generally human beings know that material life brings great future unhappiness, and still they try to enjoy material life. My dear Lord, how can one in knowledge act just like a dog, an ass or a goat?

PURPORT

The standard methods of enjoyment in the material world are sex, money and false prestige, all of which are obtained with great suffering and eventually lost. One engaged in material life suffers in the present and has only a very bleak future to look forward to in the continuing cycle of birth and death. Thus, how can human beings who have seen these things and know them very well continue to enjoy life like dogs, asses and goats? Often a dog will approach a bitch for sex, but the lady dog may not be attracted and will show her teeth, snarl and threaten the poor dog with serious injury. Still he goes about his business trying to get a little sex pleasure. Similarly, many times a dog risks being beaten or shot while stealing some food in a place where he knows he should not go. The ass is very attracted to the she-ass, but the lady ass often kicks him in the legs. Similarly, the ass's master gives the ass a handful of grass, which the poor ass could get anywhere, and then burdens him with great loads. The goat is generally raised for slaughter, and even when the goat is brought into the slaughterhouse he shamelessly goes after the lady goat to get sex pleasure. In this way, even at the risk of being shot, bitten, beaten and slaughtered, animals persist in their foolish sense gratification. How can an educated human being commit himself to such a condemned way of life, wherein the result is practically the same as that of the animals? If by cultivating the mode of goodness one's life is filled with happiness, enlightenment and future rewards, why would anyone cultivate the modes of passion and ignorance? This is Uddhava's question.

TEXTS 9-10

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
@h"imatyanyaTaAbauiÜ":
'amaÔasya yaTaA ô$id"
ots$apaRita r"jaAe GaAerM" tataAe vaEk(Air"kM(mana:

r"jaAeyau·(sya manas$a:
s$aÆÿlpa: s$aivak(lpak(:
tata: k(AmaAe gAuNADyaAnaAä," äu":s$ah": syaAiÜ" äu"maRtae:

çré-bhagavān uvāca
aham ity anyathā-buddhiṁ pramattasya yathā hādi utsarpati rajo ghoraṁ
tato vaikārikaṁ manaḥ

rajo-yuktasya manasaḥ
saṁ kalpaḥ sa-vikalpakaḥ tataḥ kāmo guṇa-dhyānād duḥsahaḥ syād dhi durmateḥ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; aham—false identification with the material body and mind; iti—thus; anyathā-buddhiṁ—illusory knowledge; pramattasya—of one who is bereft of actual intelligence; yathā—accordingly; hādi—within the mind; utsarpati—arises; rajaḥ—passion; ghoraṁ—which brings terrible suffering; tataḥ—then; vaikārikaṁ—(originally) in the mode of goodness; manaḥ—the mind; rajaḥ—in passion; yuktasya—of that which is engaged; manasaḥ—of the mind; saṁ kalpaḥ—material determination; sa-vikalpakaù—along with variation and alternation; tataù—from that; kāmaù—full-fledged material desire; guëa—in the modes of nature; dhyānāt—from concentration; duùsahaù—unbearable; syāt—it must so be; hi—certainly; durmateù—of a foolish person.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, a person bereft of intelligence first falsely identifies himself with the material body and mind, and when such false knowledge arises within one's consciousness, material passion, the cause of great suffering, pervades the mind, which by nature is situated in goodness. Then the mind, contaminated by passion, becomes absorbed in making and changing many plans for material advancement. Thus, by constantly thinking of the modes of material nature, a foolish person is afflicted with unbearable material desires.

PURPORT

Those who are trying to enjoy material sense gratification are not actually intelligent, although they consider themselves most intelligent. Although such foolish persons themselves criticize the miseries of material life in innumerable books, songs, newspapers, television programs, civic committees, etc., they cannot desist from material life for a single moment. The process by which one is helplessly bound in illusion is clearly described here.

A materialistic person is always thinking, "Oh, what a beautiful house. I wish we could buy it" or "What a beautiful woman. I wish I could touch her" or "What a powerful position. I wish I could occupy it," and so on. The words saì kalpaù sa-vikalpakaù indicate that a materialist is always making new plans or modifying his old plans to increase his material enjoyment, although in his saner moments he admits that material life is full of suffering. The mind is created from the mode of goodness, as described in Sāi khyā philosophy, and the natural, peaceful situation of the mind is pure love of Kāñëa, in which there is no mental disturbance, disappointment or confusion. Artificially, the mind is dragged down to a lower platform in passion or ignorance, and thus one is never satisfied.

TEXT 11

k(r"Aeita k(AmavazAgA:
k(maARNyaivaijataein%"ya:
äu":KaAed"k(ARiNA s$ampazyana, r"jaAevaegAivamaAeih"ta:

karoti kâma-vaça-gaù
karmäëy avijitendriyaù duùkhodarkäëi sampaçyan rajo-vega-vimohitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

karoti—performs; kâma—of material desires; vaça—under the control; gaù—having gone; karmäëi—fruitive activities; avijita—uncontrolled; indriyaù—whose senses; duùkha—unhappiness; udarkäëi—bringing as a future result; sampaçyan—seeing clearly; rajaù—of the mode of passion; vega—by the force; vimohitaù—bewildered.

TRANSLATION

One who does not control the material senses comes under the control of material desires and is thus bewildered by the strong waves of the mode of passion. Such a person executes material activities, although clearly seeing that the result will be future unhappiness.

TEXT 12

r"jastamaAeByaAM yad"ipa ivaã"Ana, ivai^oaæaDal: pauna: @tain%"taAe manaAe yauÃana,

d"AeSaä{"í"naR s$Aatae

*rajas-tamobhyäà yad api vidvān vikñipta-dhéù punaù atandrito mano yui jan
doña-dāñōir na sajjate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

rajaù-tamobhyām—by the modes of passion and ignorance; yat api—even though; vidvān—a learned person; vikñipta—bewildered; dhéù—the intelligence; punaù—again; atandritaù—carefully; manaù—the mind; yui jan—engaging; doña—the contamination of material attachment; dāñōiù—seeing clearly; na—not; sajjate—becomes attached.

TRANSLATION

Although the intelligence of a learned person may be bewildered by the modes of passion and ignorance, he should again carefully bring the mind under control. By clearly seeing the contamination of the modes of nature, he does not become attached.

TEXT 13

@'amaÔaAe'nauyauÃalta manaAe mayyapaRyaHC$naE: @inaivaRNNAE yaTaAk(AlaM ijataiAs$aAe ijataAs$ana:

*apramatto 'nuyui jēta
mano mayy arpayai' chanaiù anirviëëo yathā-kālaà
jita-çvāso jītāsanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

apramattaù—attentive and grave; anuyui jēta—one should fix; manaù—the mind; mayi—in Me; arpayan—placing; ṇanaiù—gradually, step by step; anirviēēaù—without being lazy or morose; yathā-kālam—at least three times a day (dawn, noon and sunset); jīta—having conquered; ṇvāsaù—the breathing process; jīta—having conquered; āsanaù—the sitting postures.

TRANSLATION

A person should be attentive and grave and never lazy or morose. Mastering the yoga procedures of breathing and sitting properly, one should practice fixing the mind on Me at dawn, noon and sunset, and thus gradually the mind should be completely absorbed in Me.

TEXT 14

WtaAvaAna, yaAegA @Aid"i"Ae maicC$SyaE: s$anak(Aid"iBa:
s$avaRtaAe mana @Ak{(Sya mayyaÜ"Avaezyatae yaTaA etāvān yoga ādinōo

mat-ṇiṇyaiù sanakādibhiù sarvato mana ākāṇya
mayy addhāveṇyate yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

etāvān—actually this; yogaù—yoga system; ādinōaù—instructed; mat-ṇiṇyaiù—by My devotees; sanaka-ādibhiù—headed by Sanaka-kumāra; sarvataù—from all sides; manaù—the mind; ākāṇya—withdrawing; mayi—in Me; addhā—directly; āveṇyate—is absorbed; yathā—accordingly.

TRANSLATION

The actual yoga system as taught by My devotees, headed by Sanaka-kumära, is simply this: Having withdrawn the mind from all other objects, one should directly and appropriately absorb it in Me.

PURPORT

The word yathä ("accordingly" or "properly") indicates that like Uddhava one should hear directly from Lord Kânëa or His bona fide representative and directly (addhä) fix the mind in Lord Kânëa.

TEXT 15

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
yad"A tvaM s$anak(Aid"ByaAe yaena è&paeNA ke(zAva yaAegAmaAid"í"vaAnaetaä," è&paimacC$Aima vaeid"tauma,

çré-uddhava uväca
yadä tvaà sanakädibhyo
yena rüpeëa keçava
yogam ädiñöavän etad
rüpam icchämi veditum

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhava—Çré Uddhava said; yadä—when; tvam—You; sanaka-ädibhyaù—to Sanaka, etc.; yena—by which; rüpeëa—form; keçava—my dear Keçava; yogam—the process of fixing the mind in the Absolute Truth; ädiñöavän—You have instructed; etat—that; rüpam—form; icchämi—I desire; veditum—to know.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Keçava, at what time and in what form did You instruct the science of yoga to Sanaka and his brothers? I now desire to know about these things.

TEXT 16

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
pauṭaA ih"r"NyagABaRsya maAnas$aA: s$anak(Ad"ya:
pa‘acC]$: ipatarM" s$aU°maAM yaAegAsyaEk(Aintak(LmgAitama,

çré-bhagavän uväca
puträ hiraëyagarbhasya
mānasäù sanakādayaù
papracchuù pitaraà sūkñmāà yogasyaikāntikém gatim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; puträù—the sons; hiraëya-garbhasya—of Lord Brahmä; mānasäù—born of the mind; sanaka-ādayaù—headed by Sanaka Āñi; papracchuù—inquired; pitaram—from their father (Brahmä); sūkñmām—subtle and therefore difficult to understand; yogasya—of the science of yoga; ekāntikém—the supreme; gatim—destination.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: Once, the mental sons of Lord Brahmä, namely, the sages headed by Sanaka, inquired from their father about the difficult subject matter of the supreme goal of yoga.

TEXT 17

s$anak(Ad"ya Ocäu:
gAuNAeSvaAivazAtae caetaAe

gAuNAAêetais$a ca 'aBaAe k(TamanyaAenyas$antyaAgAAe maumau°aAer"itaitataISaAeR:

*sanakādaya ūcuù
guëëñv āviçate ceto
guëäç cetasi ca prabho
katham anyonya-santyägo mumukñor atititérñou*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sanaka-ādayaù ūcuù—the sages headed by Sanaka said; guëëñu—in the sense objects; āviçate—directly enters; cetaù—the mind; guëäù—the sense objects; cetasi—within the mind; ca—also (enter); prabho—O Lord; katham—what is the process; anyonya—of the mutual relationship between the sense objects and the mind; santyägaù—renunciation; mumukñou—of one desiring liberation; atititérñou—of one desiring to cross over sense gratification.

TRANSLATION

The sages headed by Sanaka said: O Lord, people's minds are naturally attracted to material sense objects, and similarly the sense objects in the form of desire enter within the mind. Therefore, how can a person who desires liberation, who desires to cross over activities of sense gratification, destroy this mutual relationship between the sense objects and the mind? Please explain this to us.

PURPORT

As described above, as long as one is a conditioned soul the modes of material nature, manifested in the form of sense objects, constantly disturb the mind, and by their harassment one is deprived of the actual perfection of life.

TEXT 18

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca WvaM pa{í"Ae mah"Ade"va:
svayamBaUBaURtaBaAvana: DyaAyamaAna: 'a'abaljaM naAByapaâta k(maRDal:

çré-bhagavän uväca
evaà pânôo mahä-devaù svayambhür bhüta-bhävanaù dhyäyamänaù praçna-béjaà näbhyapadyata karma-dhéù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; evam—thus; pânôaù—questioned; mahä-devaù—the great god Brahmä; svayam-bhüù—without material birth (born directly from the body of Garbhodakaçäyë Viñëu); bhüta—of all conditioned souls; bhävanaù—the creator (of their conditioned life); dhyäyamänaù—seriously considering; praçna—of the question; béjam—the essential truth; na abhyapadyata—did not reach; karma-dhéù—intelligence bewildered by his own activities of creation.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, Brahmä himself, who is born directly from the body of the Lord and who is the creator of all living entities within the material world, being the best of the demigods, seriously contemplated the question of his sons headed by Sanaka. The intelligence of Brahmä, however, was affected by his own activities of creation, and thus he could not discover the essential answer to this question.

PURPORT

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé has quoted three verses from the Second Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam as follows. In the Ninth Chapter, verse 32, Lord Kânëa blessed Brahmä with realized knowledge of the Lord's actual form, qualities and activities. In the Ninth Chapter, verse 37, the Lord ordered Brahmä to rigidly carry out the Lord's injunctions and affirmed that Brahmä would thus never be bewildered in his cosmic decision-making. In the Sixth Chapter, verse 34, Lord Brahmä assured his son Närada, "O Närada, because I have caught hold of the lotus feet of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Hari, with great zeal, whatever I say has never proved to have been false, nor is the progress of my mind ever deterred, nor are my senses ever degraded by temporary attachment to matter."

In the present verse in this Thirteenth Chapter of the Eleventh Canto, Lord Kânëa states that Brahmä unfortunately did become bewildered by his creative functions, thus providing a grave lesson to all of the Lord's empowered representatives. Although one may be elevated to an exalted position in the Lord's transcendental service, at any moment there is danger of false pride polluting one's devotional mentality.

TEXT 19

s$a maAmaicantayaÚe"va:
'a'apaAr"itatalSaRyaA
tasyaAhM" hM"s$aè&paeNA s$ak(AzAmagAmaM tad"A

*sa mäm acintayad devau praçna-pära-titéñayä tasyähaà haàsa-rüpeëa
sakäçam agamaà tadä*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saù—he (Lord Brahmä); mäm—Me; acintayat—remembered; devaù—the original demigod; praçna—of the question; pära—the end, conclusion (the answer); titérñayä—with a desire to attain, understand; tasya—unto him; aham—I; haàsa-rüpeëa—in My form of Haàsa; sakāçam—visible; agamam—became; tadä—at that time.

TRANSLATION

Lord Brahmä desired to attain the answer to the question that was puzzling him, and thus he fixed his mind on Me, the Supreme Lord. At that time, in My form of Haàsa, I became visible to Lord Brahmä.

PURPORT

Haàsa means "swan," and the specific ability of the swan is to separate a mixture of milk and water, extracting the rich, milky portion. Similarly, Lord Kâñëa appeared as Haàsa, or the swan, in order to separate the pure consciousness of Lord Brahmä from the modes of material nature.

TEXT 20

ä{"î"A maAmta opa~ajya
k{(tva paAd"AiBavand"nama, "aöANAmafata: k{(tvaA pa'acC]$: k(Ae BavaAinaita

dâñövä mäm ta upavrajya kâtvä pädäbhivandanam brahmäëam agrataù kâtvä papracchuù ko bhavän iti

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dâñövä—thus seeing; mäm—Me; te—they (the sages);
upavrajya—approaching; kâtvä—offering; päda—at the lotus feet;

abhivandanam—obeisances; brahmäëam—Lord Brahmä; agrataù—in front; kâtvä—keeping; papracchuù—they asked; kaù bhavän—"who are You, sir?"; iti—thus.

TRANSLATION

Thus seeing Me, the sages, placing Brahmä in the lead, came forward and worshiped My lotus feet. Then they frankly asked Me, "Who are You?"

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura comments, "When Brahmä was unable to answer the question placed by the sages, he fixed his mind in thought of the Supreme Lord. The Lord then assumed the form of Haàsa and appeared before Lord Brahmä and the sages, who proceeded to inquire about the specific identity of the Lord."

TEXT 21

wt yahM" mauinaiBa: pa{í"s$a, taÔvaijaÁaAs$au iBastad"A yad"vaAecamahM" taeByas$a, taäu"Ü"va inabaAeDa mae

ity ahaà munibhiù pãñöas tattva-jijì äsubhis tadä yad avocam ahaà tebhyas tad uddhava nibodha me

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; aham—I; munibhiù—by the sages; pãñöaù—questioned; tattva—the truth about the goal of yoga; jijì äsubhiù—by those desiring to know; tadä—at that time; yat—that which; avocam—spoke; aham—I; tebhyaù—unto them; tat—that; uddhava—My dear Uddhava;

nibodha—please learn; me—from Me.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, the sages, being eager to understand the ultimate truth of the yoga system, thus inquired from Me. Now please hear as I explain that which I spoke unto the sages.

TEXT 22

vastaunaAe yaânaAnaAtva @Atmana: ‘a’ a wRä{"zA: k(TaM Gage%ta vaAe iva’aA va·u(vaAR mae k(@A™aya:

*vastuno yady anänätva ätmanaù praçna édâçaù
kathaà ghaöeta vo viprä vaktur vä me ka äçrayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vastunaù—of the essential reality; yadi—if; anänätve—in the concept of nonindividuality; ätmanaù—of the jéva soul; praçnaù—question; édâçaù—such; katham—how; ghaöeta—is it possible or appropriate; vaù—of you who are asking; vipräù—O brähmaëas; vaktuù—of the speaker; vä—or; me—of Me; kaù—what is; äçrayaù—the real situation or resting place.

TRANSLATION

My dear brähmaëas, if, when asking Me who I am, you believe that I am also a jéva soul and that there is no ultimate difference between us—since all souls are ultimately one without individuality—then how is your question possible or appropriate? Ultimately, what is the real situation or resting place both of yourselves and of Me?

PURPORT

Ācāya means "the resting place" or "shelter." Lord Kāñëa's question "That is our actual resting place or shelter?" means "What is our ultimate nature or constitutional position?" This is because no one can come to rest or be satisfied unless one is in one's natural position. The example is given that one may travel all over the world, but ultimately one becomes satisfied by returning to one's own home. Similarly, a crying child is satisfied when embraced by its own mother. By inquiring about the shelter or resting place of Himself and the brāhmaëas, the Lord is indicating the eternal, constitutional position of every living entity

If Lord Kāñëa were also in the jéva category, and if all living entities including Him were thus equal, there would be no deep purpose in one living entity inquiring and another answering. Only one who is in a superior position can meaningfully answer important questions. It may be argued that the bona fide spiritual master answers all the questions of the disciple, and yet the guru is in the jéva category. The answer is that the bona fide spiritual master speaks not on his own behalf but as a representative of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is in the Viñëu category. A so-called guru speaking on his own behalf as a jéva soul is useless and is unable to meaningfully answer serious questions. Thus, the sages' question ko bhavān ("Who are You?") indicates that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is eternally an individual person. And because the sages headed by Lord Brahmā offered obeisances and worshiped the Lord, it is understood that He is the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Lord Brahmā, as the first created being in this universe, could not accept any other living entity except the Lord as worshipable.

Lord Kāñëa's actual purpose is to explain the ultimate perfection of yoga, which the sages were desiring to know. If one becomes fixed in transcendental knowledge, the mutual attraction between the material mind and the material sense objects automatically ceases. The spiritual mind is not attracted to material objects of gratification, and thus by spiritualizing the mind, material existence automatically slackens. By questioning the propriety of the sages' question, the Lord is assuming the position of the spiritual master and preparing to give valuable instructions. One should never be envious of a bona fide spiritual master, especially if, as in the case of Lord Haṇsa speaking to the sages headed by Brahmā and Sanaka-kumāra, the guru is the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself.

TEXT 23

paÂaAtmake(Sau BaUtaeSau
s$amaAnaeSau ca vastauta:
k(Ae BavaAinaita va: 'a'aAe vaAcaAr"mBaAe ÷naTaRk(:

paṇca-ātmakeṇu bhūteṇu samāneṇu ca vastutaḥ ko bhavān iti vaḥ praṇavācārambho hy anarthakaḥ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

paṇca—of five elements; ātmakeṇu—made of; bhūteṇu—thus existing; samāneṇu—being the same; ca—also; vastutaḥ—in essence; kaḥ—who; bhavān—are You; iti—thus; vaḥ—your; *praṇa-*question; vācā—merely with words; ārambhaḥ—such an endeavor; hi—certainly; anarthakaḥ—without real meaning or purpose.

TRANSLATION

If by asking Me "Who are You?" you were referring to the material body, then I must point out that all material bodies are constituted of five elements, namely earth, water, fire, air and ether. Thus, you should have asked, "Who are you five?" If you consider that all material bodies are ultimately one, being constituted essentially of the same elements, then your question is still meaningless, since there would be no deep purpose in distinguishing one body from another. Thus, it appears that in asking My identity, you are merely speaking words, without any real meaning or purpose.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura explains this verse as follows. "In the previous verse Lord Kāñëa demonstrated that if the sages accepted the impersonal philosophy that all living beings are ultimately one in all respects, their question 'Who are You?' was meaningless, since there would be no philosophical basis to distinguish one manifestation of spirit soul from another. In this verse the Lord refutes the false identification with the material body composed of five elements. If the sages accepted the body as the self, then their question was meaningless, since they would have to ask, 'Who are you five?' If the sages replied that although the body is composed basically of five elements and these elements combine and thus form one unique substance, then the Lord has already replied by the words samāneñu ca vastutaù. The bodies of human beings, demigods, animals, etc., are all composed of the same five elements and are essentially the same. Therefore the question 'Who are You?' is ultimately meaningless. Thus, if one accepts either the theory that all living entities are ultimately the same or the theory that all living entities are ultimately nondifferent from their material bodies, in both cases the question of the sages is meaningless.

"The sages might argue that even among learned persons it is common practice to ask questions and give answers on many subjects as a part of normal life. The sages could point out that Lord Kāñëa also distinguished among them, by His saying vipräù, 'O brähmaëas,' and vaù, or 'your [question],' as expressed in this verse. In this way it is seen that the Lord also accepts the ordinary customs of questions and answers. To answer this argument, Lord Kāñëa states, väcärambho hy anarthakaù. The Lord states, 'My addressing you as brähmaëas is merely an exhibition of words if we are ultimately not different. I merely reciprocated with your approach to Me. Therefore, if we are ultimately one, neither My statement nor your question has any real meaning. I can conclude therefore by your question to Me that you are all not actually very intelligent. Therefore, why are you inquiring after ultimate knowledge? Aren't you all embarrassed?'"

Çréla Madhvācārya points out in this regard that the question of the sages was not appropriate, since they had already seen their father, Lord Brahmā, worshiping the lotus feet of Lord Haṁsa. Since their spiritual master and father was worshiping Lord Haṁsa, they should have immediately understood the Lord's position, and their question is thus meaningless.

TEXT 24

manas$aA vacas$aA ä{"í"YaA gA{÷tae'nyaEr"palin%"yaE: @h"maeva na maÔaAe'nyaä," wita bauDyaDvamaÃas$aA

manasā vacasā dāñōyā gāhyate 'nyair apēndriyaiù aham eva na matto 'nyad iti budhyadhvam ai'jasā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

manasā—by the mind; vacasā—by speech; dāñōyā—by sight; gāhyate—is perceived and thus accepted; anyaiù—by others; api—even; indriyaiù—senses; aham—I; eva—indeed; na—not; mattaù—besides Me; anyat—anything else; iti—thus; budhyadhvam—you should all understand; ai'jasā—by straightforward analysis of the facts.

TRANSLATION

Within this world, whatever is perceived by the mind, speech, eyes or other senses is Me alone and nothing besides Me. All of you please understand this by a straightforward analysis of the facts.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñēa has already explained that if the sages consider all living entities to be the same, or if they consider the living entity to be the same as his body, then their question ("Who are You?") is inappropriate. Now the Lord refutes the conception that He is a Supreme God far beyond and different from everything within this world. Modern agnostic philosophers preach that God created the world and then retired or went away. According to them, God has no tangible connection with this world, nor does He interfere in human affairs. Ultimately, they claim, God is so great that He cannot be known; therefore no one should waste time trying to understand God. To refute such foolish ideas, the Lord here explains that since everything is the expansion of His potency, He is not different from anything. Nothing can exist separately from the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and thus everything shares in the Lord's nature, although some manifestations are superior and others inferior. The Lord is testing the intelligence of the sages by pointing out various contradictions in their questions. Even if the Lord is supreme, He is not different from His creation; therefore, what is the meaning of the question "Who are You?" We can clearly see that the Lord is paving the way for a deep discussion of spiritual knowledge.

TEXT 25

gAuNAeSvaAivazAtae caetaAe gAuNAAêetais$a ca 'ajaA:
 jalvasya de"h" oBayaM gAuNAAêetaAe mad"Atmana:

*guëeñv äviçate ceto
 guëäç cetasi ca prajāu
 jévasya deha ubhayaà
 guëäç ceto mad-ätmanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëeñu—in the sense objects; äviçate—enters; cetaù—the mind; guëäù—the sense objects; cetasi—in the mind; ca—also (enter); prajāu—My dear sons;

jévasya—of the living entity; dehaù—the outward body, existing as designation; ubhayam—both of these; guëäù—the sense objects; cetaù—the mind; mat-ätmanaù—having Me as the Supreme Soul.

TRANSLATION

My dear sons, the mind has a natural proclivity to enter into the material sense objects, and similarly the sense objects enter into the mind; but both this material mind and the sense objects are merely designations that cover the spirit soul, who is part and parcel of Me.

PURPORT

Lord Kânëa in the form of Haàsa-avatära, on the pretext of finding contradictions in the simple inquiry of the sons of Brahmä ("Who are You?"), is actually preparing to teach the sages perfect spiritual knowledge, but only after first rejecting two false concepts of life, namely that all living entities are the same in all respects and that the living entity is identical with his outward or subtle body. Lord Kânëa now answers the difficult question that puzzled even Lord Brahmä. According to Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura, the sons of Lord Brahmä were thinking as follows. "Our dear Lord, if it is indeed true that we are unintelligent, still Your Lordship has stated that You are actually everything because everything is the expansion of Your potency. Therefore, You are also the mind and the sense objects, which are the subject matter of our question. The material sense objects always enter into the functions of the mind, and similarly, the mind always enters into the material sense objects. Thus, it is proper that we inquire from Your Lordship about the process by which the sense objects will no longer enter the mind and the mind will no longer enter the sense objects. Please be merciful and give us the answer." The Lord answers as follows. "My dear sons, it is a fact that the mind enters into the material sense objects and the sense objects into the mind. Thus, although the living entity is actually part and parcel of Me, being, as I am also, eternally conscious, and although the eternal form of the living entity is spiritual, in conditioned life the living entity artificially imposes upon himself the mind and sense objects, which act as covering designations of the eternal soul. Since it is the natural function of the material mind and sense objects to mutually interact, how can you possibly endeavor to prevent such a mutual attraction? Since both the material mind and sense objects are useless, they both should be completely given up, and thus automatically you will be free from all material duality."

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé points out that the symptom of the material mind is the tendency to consider oneself to be the ultimate doer and enjoyer. Naturally, one with such a puffed-up mentality is helplessly attracted by the sense objects. One who considers himself to be the doer and enjoyer will be irresistibly attracted to the means for attaining sense gratification and false prestige, namely, exploitation of material objects. Above the material mind, however, is intelligence, which can perceive the existence of the eternal spirit soul. It is not possible to separate the material mind from the sense objects, because they naturally exist together. Therefore, by intelligence, one must realize one's eternal form as spirit soul, part and parcel of the Lord, and completely reject the bogus material mentality. One who revives his original spiritual mentality becomes automatically detached from material attraction. Therefore, one should cultivate knowledge of the falsity of sense gratification. When the mind or senses are attracted to material enjoyment, the superior intelligence must immediately detect such illusion. In this way, one should purify one's mentality. By devotional service to the Lord, such detachment and intelligence automatically awaken, and by full understanding of one's original spiritual form, one is properly situated in eternal consciousness.

TEXT 26

gAuNAeSau caAivazAi»aÔama, @BaI°NAM gAuNAs$aevayaA gAuNAAê icaÔa'aBavaA maâU"pa oBayaM tyajaeta,

guëëñu cäviçac cittam

abhékñëaà guëa-sevayä
guëäç ca citta-prabhavä mad-rüpa ubhayaà tyajet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëëñu—in the sense objects; ca—and; äviçat—entered; cittam—the mind; abhékñëam—again and again; guëa-sevayä—by sense gratification; guëäù—and the material sense objects; ca—also; citta—within the mind; prabhaväù—existing prominently; mat-rüpaù—one who has realized that he is not different from Me, and who is thus absorbed in My form, pastimes, etc.; ubhayam—both (the mind and sense objects); tyajet—should give up.

TRANSLATION

A person who has thus achieved Me by understanding that he is not different from Me realizes that the material mind is lodged within the sense objects because of constant sense gratification, and that the material objects are existing prominently within the material mind. Having understood My transcendental nature, he gives up both the material mind and its objects.

PURPORT

The Lord again states here that it is most difficult to separate the material mind from its objects because the material mind by definition considers itself to be the doer and enjoyer of everything. It must be understood that giving up the material mind does not mean giving up all mental activities, but instead means purifying the mind and engaging one's enlightened mentality in the devotional service of the Lord. Since time immemorial the material mind and senses have been in contact with the sense objects; therefore, how is it possible for the material mind to give up its objects, which are the basis of its existence? And not only does the mind reach out to material objects, but also, because of the mind's desires, the material objects cannot remain out of the mind, helplessly entering at every moment. Thus, separation between the mind and sense objects is not actually feasible, nor does it serve any purpose. If one retains a material mentality, considering oneself to be supreme, one may renounce sense gratification, considering it to be ultimately the cause of unhappiness, but one will not be able to remain on such an artificial platform, nor will such renunciation serve any real purpose. Without surrender to the lotus feet of the Lord, mere renunciation cannot take one out of this material world.

Just as the sun's rays are part of the sun, the living entities are part of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. When the living entity is completely absorbed in his identity as the part and parcel of the Personality of Godhead, he becomes actually wise and easily gives up the material mind and sense objects. The word mad-rūpaù in this verse indicates absorption of the mind in the form, qualities, pastimes and associates of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Immersed in such ecstatic meditation, one should render devotional service to the Lord, and this will automatically drive away the influence of sense gratification. By himself, the living entity does not have the potency to give up his false identification with the material mind and sense objects, but by worshiping the Lord in the mood of being His eternal part-and-parcel servant, one is infused with the Lord's potency, which easily drives away the darkness of ignorance.

TEXT 27

jaAƒatsva«a: s$auSauæaM ca gAuNAtaAe bauiÜ"va{Ôaya:
taAs$aAM ivala°aNAAe jalva:
s$aAi°atvaena ivainaiêta:

*jägrat svapnaù suñuptaà ca guëato buddhi-vättayaù täsäà vilakñäëo jëvaù
säkñitvena viniçcitaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jägrat—being awake; svapnaù—dreaming; su-suptam—deep sleep; ca—also;

guëatau—caused by the modes of nature; buddhi—of intelligence; våttayaù—the functions; tåsäm—from such functions; vilakñäëaù—possessing different characteristics; jëvaù—the living entity; säkñitvena—with the characteristic of being a witness; vinicçitaù—is ascertained.

TRANSLATION

Waking, sleeping and deep sleep are the three functions of the intelligence and are caused by the modes of material nature. The living entity within the body is ascertained to possess characteristics different from these three states and thus remains as a witness to them.

PURPORT

The spirit soul actually has nothing to do with the material world, having no permanent or natural relationship with it. Real renunciation means to give up the illusory identification with matter in its subtle and gross forms. Suñuptam, or deep sleep, indicates sleeping without any dreams or conscious activity. These three states are described by Lord Kåñëa as follows:

sattvåj jägaraëaà vidyäd rajasä svapnam ädiçet prasväpaà tamasä jantos turéyaà triñu santatam

"One should know that wakefulness is born of the mode of goodness, dreams from the mode of passion, and deep dreamless sleep from the mode of ignorance. The fourth element, pure consciousness, is different from these three and pervades them." (SB 11.25.20) Real freedom means säkñitvena, or to exist as a witness to the functions of illusion. Such an advantageous position is achieved by development of Kåñëa consciousness.

TEXT 28

yaiR" s$Ms$ā{itabanDaAe'yama, @AtmanaAe gAuNAva{iÔad": maiya tauyaeR isTataAe ja÷Ata, tyaAgAstaÖ"NACAetas$aAma,

yarhi saàsâti-bandho 'yam ātmano guëa-vâtti-daù mayi turye sthito jahyāt tyāgas tad guëa-cetasām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yarhi—whereas; saàsâti—of material intelligence or material existence; bandhaù—bondage; ayam—this is; ātmanaù—of the soul; guëa—in the modes of nature; vâtti-daù—that which gives occupations; mayi—in Me; turye—in the fourth element (beyond wakefulness, dreaming and deep sleep); sthitaù—being situated; jahyāt—one should give up; tyāgaù—renunciation; tat—at that time; guëa—of the material sense objects; cetasām—and of the material mind.

TRANSLATION

The spirit soul is trapped in the bondage of material intelligence, which awards him constant engagement in the illusory modes of nature. But I am the fourth stage of consciousness, beyond wakefulness, dreaming and deep sleep. Becoming situated in Me, the soul should give up the bondage of material consciousness. At that time, the living entity will automatically renounce the material sense objects and the material mind.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa now specifically answers the questions that the sages originally placed before Lord Brahmā. Ultimately, the spirit soul has nothing to do with the material sense objects and modes of nature. But because of one's false identification with the material body, the modes of nature are empowered to engage one in illusory occupations. By destroying this false identification with matter, the soul gives up the illusory occupations awarded by the modes of nature. It is clearly stated in this verse that the living entity is not empowered to independently free himself from illusion, but must situate himself in Kâñëa consciousness, in full awareness of the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 29

@h"ÆÿAr"k{(taM banDama, @AtmanaAe'TaRivapayaRyama, ivaã"AiªaivaRâ s$aMs$aAr"- icantaAM tauyaeR isTatastyajaeta,

ahaì kâra-kâtaà bandham ätmano 'rtha-viparyayam vidvân nirvidya saàsâracintäà turye sthitas tyajet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ahaì kâra—by false ego; kâtam—produced; bandham—bondage; ätmanaù—of the soul; artha—of that which is really valuable; viparyayam—being the opposite; vidvân—one who knows; nirvidya—being detached; saàsâra—in material existence; cintäm—constant thoughts; turye—in the fourth element, the Lord; sthitaù—being situated; tyajet—should give up.

TRANSLATION

The false ego of the living entity places him in bondage and awards him exactly the opposite of what he really desires. Therefore, an intelligent person should give up his constant anxiety to enjoy material life and remain situated in the Lord, who is beyond the functions of material consciousness.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé comments as follows. "How does material existence cause the bondage of the living entity, and how can such bondage be given up? The Lord explains this here by the word ahaṁ kāra-kātam. Because of false ego, one is bound up in the network of illusion. Artha-viparyayam indicates that although the living entity desires blissful life, eternity and knowledge, he adopts procedures that actually cover over his eternal, blissful nature and give him exactly the opposite result. The living entity does not want death and suffering, but these are actually the results of material existence, which is therefore useless for all practical purposes. An intelligent person should contemplate the unhappiness of material life and thus become situated in the transcendental Lord. The word saàsāra-cintām can be understood as follows. Saàsāra, or material existence, indicates material intelligence, because material existence only occurs because of the living entity's false intellectual identification with the material world. Because of this misidentification, one becomes overwhelmed with saàsāra-cintām, anxiety to enjoy the material world. One should become situated in the Lord and give up such useless anxiety."

TEXT 30

yaAva^aaAnaATaRDal: pauMs$aAe na inavataeRta yauī·(iBa:
jaAgAtyaRipa svapa^aaĀa:
sva«ae jaAgAr"NAM yaTaA

yāvan nānārtha-dhēu puàso na nivarteta yuktibhiu jāgarty api svapann aji' au svapne jāgaraëaà yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yāvat—as long as; nānā—of many; artha—values; dhēu—the conception;

puàsaù—of a person; na—does not; nivarteta—subside; yuktibhiù—by the appropriate methods (described by Me); jāgarti—being awake; api—although; svapan—sleeping, dreaming; aji' aù—one who does not see things as they are; svapne—in a dream; jāgaraëam—being awake; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

According to My instructions, one should fix the mind on Me alone. If, however, one continues to see many different values and goals in life rather than seeing everything within Me, then although apparently awake, one is actually dreaming due to incomplete knowledge, just as one may dream that one has wakened from a dream.

PURPORT

One who is not Kāñëa conscious cannot understand that everything is resting within Lord Kāñëa, and thus it is impossible for him to retire from material sense gratification. One may adopt a particular process of salvation and consider oneself to be "saved"; nevertheless, his material conditioning will remain and thus he will maintain his attachment to the material world. While one is dreaming he sometimes imagines that he has awakened from a dream and is experiencing normal consciousness. Similarly, one may consider oneself to be saved, but if he remains absorbed in making material value judgements between good and bad, without reference to devotional service to the Supreme Lord, he is understood to be a conditioned soul covered by the illusory identification with matter.

TEXT 31

@s$aÔvaAd"AtmanaAe'nyaeSaAM BaAvaAnaAM tat{k{(taA iBad"A gAtayaAe he"tavaêAsya ma{SaA sva«aä{"zAAe yaTaA

*asattvād ātmano 'nyeñāà bhävänäà tat-kâtā bhidā gatayo hetavaç cäsya
māñā svapna-dâço yathā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

asattvāt—because of lacking factual existence; ātmanaù—from the Supreme Personality of Godhead; anyeñām—of others; bhävänām—states of existence; tat—by them; kâtā—created; bhidā—difference or separation; gatayaù—destinations such as going to heaven; hetavaù—fruitive activities, which are the cause of future rewards; ca—also; asya—of the living entity; māñā—false; svapna—of a dream; dâçaù—of the seer; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

Those states of existence that are conceived of as separate from the Supreme Personality of Godhead have no actual existence, although they create a sense of separation from the Absolute Truth. Just as the seer of a dream imagines many different activities and rewards, similarly, because of the sense of an existence separate from the Lord's existence, the living entity falsely performs fruitive activities, thinking them to be the cause of future rewards and destinations.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura comments as follows: "Although Lord Kāñëa in His form of Haàsa-avatāra has condemned the intelligence that sees duality and separate values within the material world, the Vedas themselves institute the system of varëäçrama-dharma, by which the entire human society is divided into different castes, occupations and spiritual statuses. Therefore, how can the Lord recommend that one give up one's faith in this Vedic system? The answer is given in this verse as follows. The words anyeñāà bhävänām, or 'of other states of existence,' refer to the innumerable divisions of false identification with the material body, mind, occupation, and so on. Such identification is illusion, and the material divisions of the varëäçrama system are certainly based on this illusion. The Vedic literatures promise heavenly rewards such as residence in upper planetary systems and prescribe the means to acquire such rewards. However, both the rewards and the means for achieving them are ultimately illusion. Since this world is the Lord's creation, one cannot deny that its existence is also real; yet the living entity who identifies the creations of this world as belonging to himself is certainly in illusion. The example may be given that horns are real and rabbits are real, but if one imagines a rabbit's horns, that is certainly illusion, though a rabbit's horns may occur in a dream. Similarly, the living entity dreams of a permanent relationship within the material world. One may dream that one is feasting on sumptuous sweet rice prepared with milk and sugar, but there is no actual nutritional value in the dream of royal feasting."

Çréla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvaté Öhäkura remarks in this regard that just as one soon forgets the experience of a dream after awakening, similarly, a liberated soul in Kânëa consciousness does not see anything substantial in even the most exalted rewards offered by the Vedas, such as promotion to the heavenly planets. Therefore Lord Kânëa advised Arjuna in Bhagavad-gëtä to remain fixed in self-realization, without being deviated by fruitive rituals performed in the name of religion.

TEXT 32

yaAe jaAgAre" baih"r"nau°aNADaimaRNAAe'TaARna, BauËeÿ s$amastak(r"NAEôR$id" tats$aä{"°aAna, sva«ae s$auSauæa opas$aMh"r"tae s$a Wk(:
 sma{tyanvayaAit‡agAuNAva{iÔaä{"igAin%o"yaezA:

yo jägare bahir anukñäëa-dharmiëo 'rthän bhuì kte samasta-karaëair hâdi tat-sadâkñän svapne suñupta upasaàharate sa ekaù smâty-anvayât tri-guëa-vâtti-dâg indriyeçaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—the living entity who; jāgare—while awake; bahiù—external; anukñāëa—momentary; dharmiëaù—qualities; arthān—the body and mind and their experiences; bhuì kte—enjoys; samasta—with all; karaëaiù—the senses; hādi—within the mind; tat-sadākñān—experiences similar to those in wakefulness; svapne—in dreams; suñupte—in deep dreamless sleep; upasaàharate—merges into ignorance; saù—he; ekaù—one; smāti—of memory; anvayāt—by the succession; tri-guëa—of the three stages wakefulness, dream and dreamless sleep; vātti—functions; dāk—seeing; indriya—of the senses; éçaù—becomes the lord.

TRANSLATION

While awake the living entity enjoys with all of his senses the fleeting characteristics of the material body and mind; while dreaming he enjoys similar experiences within the mind; and in deep dreamless sleep all such experiences merge into ignorance. By remembering and contemplating the succession of wakefulness, dreaming and deep sleep, the living entity can understand that he is one throughout the three stages of consciousness and is transcendental. Thus, he becomes the lord of the senses.

PURPORT

In verse 30 of this chapter Lord Kāñëa stated that one must retire from material duality by the proper means, which the Lord now explains. One may first consider the three phases of consciousness mentioned above and then understand one's own transcendental position as spirit soul. One experiences childhood, boyhood, adolescence, adulthood, middle age and old age, and throughout these phases one is experiencing things while awake and while dreaming. Similarly, one may, by careful intelligence, understand one's lack of consciousness during deep sleep, and thus through intelligence one may have experience of lack of consciousness.

One may argue that it is actually the senses that experience during wakefulness and that it is the mind that experiences during dreams. However, the Lord here states, indriyeṣaù: the living entity is actually the lord of the senses and mind, although temporarily he has become a victim of their influence. By Kāñëa consciousness one may resume one's rightful position as master of the mental and sensory faculties. Also, since the living entity can remember his experiences in these three stages of consciousness, he is ultimately the experiencing agent or the seer of all phases of consciousness. He remembers, "I saw so many things in my dream, and then my dream ended and I didn't see anything. Now I'm waking up." This universal experience can be understood by everyone, and thus everyone can understand that one's actual identity is separate from the material body and mind.

TEXT 33

WvaM ivama{zya gAuNataAe manas$as$ṭyavasTaA manmaAyayaA maiya k{(taA wita inaiêtaATaAR:
 s$aiHC$â h"AdR"manaumaAnas$aâu"i·(ta¹NA ÁaAnaAis$anaA Bajata maAiKalas$aMzAyaAiDama, evaà vimâçya guëato manasas try-avasthâ man-mâyayâ mayi kâtâ iti niçcitârthâù sai chidya hârdam anumâna-sad-ukti-tékñëa jî ânâsinâ bhajata mâkhila-saàçayâdhim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; vimâçya—considering; guëataù—by the modes of nature; manasaù—of the mind; tri-avasthâù—the three states of consciousness; mat-mâyayâ—by the influence of My illusory potency; mayi—in Me; kâtâù—imposed; iti—thus; niçcita-arthâù—those who have ascertained the actual meaning of the soul; sai chidya—cutting off; hârdam—situated in the heart; anumâna—by logic; sat-ukti—and by the instructions of sages and the Vedic literatures; tékñëa—sharpened; jî âna—of knowledge; asinâ—by the sword; bhajata—all of you worship; mâ—Me; akhila—of all;

saàçaya—doubts; ädhim—the cause (false ego).

TRANSLATION

You should consider how, by the influence of My illusory energy, these three states of the mind, caused by the modes of nature, have been artificially imagined to exist in Me. Having definitely ascertained the truth of the soul, you should utilize the sharpened sword of knowledge, acquired by logical reflection and from the instructions of sages and Vedic literatures, to completely cut off the false ego, which is the breeding ground of all doubts. All of you should then worship Me, who am situated within the heart.

PURPORT

One who has obtained transcendental knowledge is no longer dependent on the three stages of ordinary consciousness, namely waking, dreaming and dreamless sleep. One thus rids one's material mind of the tendency to become the enjoyer of the inferior energy of the Lord, and one sees everything as part and parcel of the Lord's potency, meant only for the enjoyment of the Lord Himself. In such a state of consciousness, one naturally surrenders fully to the Lord's devotional service, which Lord Haàsa here advises the sons of Lord Brahmä to take up.

TEXT 34

wR°aeta iva"amaimadM" manas$aAe ivalaAs$aM ä{"íM" ivanaí"maitalaAelamalaAtaca,(ma, ivaÁaAnamaek(mauç&Daeva ivaBaAita maAyaA sva«aiñDaA gAuNAivas$agARk{(taAe ivak(lpa:

ékñeta vibhramam idaà manaso viläsaà dãññaà vinaññam ati-lolam aläta-cakram vijì änam ekam urudheva vibhätì mäyã svapnas tridhã guëa-visarga-kâto vikalpaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ékñeta—one should see; vibhramam—as illusion or mistake; idam—this (material world); manasaù—of the mind; vilāsam—appearance or jumping; dāññam—here today; vinaññam—gone tomorrow; ati-lolam—extremely flickering; alāta-cakram—just like the moving red line created by whirling a fiery stick; vijī ānam—the spirit soul, by nature fully conscious; ekam—is one; urudhā—in many divisions; iva—as if; vibhāti—appears; māyā—this is illusion; svapnaù—merely a dream; tridhā—in three divisions; guēa—of the modes of nature; visarga—by the transformation; kātaù—created; vikalpaù—variety of perception or imagination.

TRANSLATION

One should see that the material world is a distinct illusion appearing in the mind, because material objects have an extremely flickering existence and are here today and gone tomorrow. They can be compared to the streaking red line created by whirling a fiery stick. The spirit soul by nature exists in the single state of pure consciousness. However, in this world he appears in many different forms and stages of existence. The modes of nature divide the soul's consciousness into normal wakefulness, dreaming and dreamless sleep. All such varieties of perception, however, are actually māyā and exist only like a dream.

PURPORT

The Lord now describes an additional process for transcending the illusory interaction of the material mind and material sense objects. Lāsa means "jumping" or "dancing," and thus manaso vilāsam here indicates that the material mind is jumping superficially from one conception of life to another. Our original consciousness, however, is one (vijī ānam ekam). Therefore, one should carefully study the flickering "here today, gone tomorrow" nature of the material world and detach oneself from the illusory variety of māyā.

TEXT 35

ä{"í"mtata: 'aitainavatyaR inava{Ôata{SNAs$a, taUSNAI%M Bavaeiªajas$auKaAnauBavaAe inar"lh": s$anä{"zyatae ,(ca yad"ld"mavastaubauÜ"YaA tya-M("amaAya na Bavaetsma{itar"AinapaAtaAta, dāñōim tataù pratinivartya nivātta-tāñēas tūñēēà bhaven nija-sukhānubhavo nirēhaù sandāçyate kva ca yadēdam avastu-buddhyā tyaktaà bhramāya na bhavet smātir ā-nipātāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dāñōim—sight; tataù—from that illusion; pratinivartya—pulling away; nivātta—ceased; tāñēaù—material hankering; tūñēēm—silent; bhavet—one should become; nija—one's own (of the soul); sukha—happiness; anubhavaù—perceiving; nirēhaù—without material activities; sandāçyate—is observed; kva ca—sometimes; yadi—if; idam—this material world; avastu—of not being reality; buddhyā—by the consciousness; tyaktam—given up; bhramāya—further illusion; na—not; bhavet—may become; smātìù—remembrance; ā-nipātāt—until giving up the material body.

TRANSLATION

Having understood the temporary illusory nature of material things, and thus having pulled one's vision away from illusion, one should remain without material desires. By experiencing the happiness of the soul, one should give up material speaking and activities. If sometimes one must observe the material world, one should remember that it is not ultimate reality and therefore one has given it up. By such constant remembrance up till the time of death, one will not again fall into illusion.

PURPORT

To maintain the material body one cannot avoid eating and sleeping. In these and other ways, one will sometimes be forced to deal with the material world and the physical aspects of one's own body. At such times one should remember that the material world is not actual reality and that therefore one has given it up to become Kāñëa conscious. By such constant remembrance, by enjoying spiritual bliss within oneself and by retiring from any material activities of the mind, speech or body, one will not fall into material illusion.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura comments as follows. "The living entity, while living in the external energy of the Lord, should give up any anxiety for sense gratification and should not act for his personal enjoyment. Rather, one should search out spiritual bliss through devotional service to the Supreme Lord. By reviving one's relationship with Lord Kāñëa, one will understand that if one accepts any material object for one's personal enjoyment, attachment will inevitably develop, and thus one will be bewildered by illusion. By gradually developing one's spiritual body, one will no longer desire to enjoy anything within the material world."

TEXT 36

de"hm" ca naïr"mavaïsTatamauitTataM vaA is$aÜ"Ae na pazyaita yataAe'DyagAmatsvaè&pama, dE"vaAd"paetamaTa dE"vavazAAäu"paetaM vaAs$aAe yaTaA pair"k{(taM maid"r"Amad"AnDa:

dehaà ca naçvaram avasthitam utthitaà vä siddho na paçyati yato 'dhyagamat svarüpam daiväd apetam atha daiva-vaçäd upetaà väso yathä parikâtaà madirä-madändhaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

deham—the material body; ca—also; naçvaram—to be destroyed; avasthitam—seated; utthitam—risen; vā—or; siddhaù—one who is perfect; na paçyati—does not see; yataù—because; adhyagamat—he has achieved; sva-rüpam—his actual spiritual identity; daivāt—by destiny; apetam—departed; atha—or thus; daiva—of destiny; vaçāt—by the control; upetam—achieved; vāsaù—clothes; yathā—just as; parikātam—placed on the body; madirā—of liquor; mada—by the intoxication; andhaù—blinded.

TRANSLATION

Just as a drunken man does not notice if he is wearing his coat or shirt, similarly, one who is perfect in self-realization and who has thus achieved his eternal identity does not notice whether the temporary body is sitting or standing. Indeed, if by God's will the body is finished or if by God's will he obtains a new body, a self-realized soul does not notice, just as a drunken man does not notice the situation of his outward dress.

PURPORT

A Kāñëa conscious person who has achieved his spiritual identity does not accept sense gratification in the material world as the goal of his life. He is constantly engaged in the service of the Lord and knows that the temporary body and flickering mind are material. By superior intelligence in Kāñëa consciousness he remains engaged in the Lord's service. The example of a drunken man in this verse is very nice. It is common knowledge that at mundane social gatherings men become drunk and lose all awareness of their external situation. Similarly, a liberated soul has already achieved his spiritual body and therefore knows that his continued existence does not depend on the material body. A liberated soul does not, however, inflict punishment on the body but rather remains neutral, naturally accepting his destiny as the will of the Supreme.

TEXT 37

de" h" Ae' ipa dE" vavazAgA: Kalau k(maR yaAvata, svaAr" mBakM('aitas$amal°ata Wva s$aAs$au:
taM s$a'apaÂamaiDaè&X#s$amaAiDayaAegA:
svaA«aM paunanaR Bajatae 'aitabauÜ"vastau:

deho 'pi daiva-vaça-gaù khalu karma yävat svärambhakaà pratisamékñata eva säsuù taà sa-prapai'cam adhirüòha-samädhi-yogaù sväpnaà punar na bhajate pratibuddha-vastuù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dehaù—the body; api—even; daiva—of the Supreme; vaça-gaù—under the control; khalu—indeed; karma—the chain of fruitive activities; yävat—as long as; sva-ärambhakam—that which initiates or perpetuates itself; pratisamékñate—goes on living and waiting; eva—certainly; sa-asuù—along with the vital air and senses; taM—that (body); sa-prapai'cam—with its variety of manifestations; adhirüòha—highly situated; samädhi—the stage of perfection; yogaù—in the yoga system; sväpnam—just like a dream; punaù—again; na bhajate—does not worship or cultivate; pratibuddha—one who is enlightened; vastuù—in the supreme reality.

TRANSLATION

The material body certainly moves under the control of supreme destiny and therefore must continue to live along with the senses and vital air as long as one's karma is in effect. A self-realized soul, however, who is awakened to the absolute reality and who is thus highly situated in the perfect stage of yoga, will never again surrender to the material body and its manifold manifestations, knowing it to be just like a body visualized in a dream.

PURPORT

Although Lord Kåñëa recommended in the previous verse that a self-realized soul not give attention to the body, it is clear from the Lord's statement here that one should not foolishly starve or injure the body, but should patiently wait until the chain of one's previous fruitive work has completely exhausted itself. At that time the body will automatically die according to destiny. The following doubt may then arise: If a Kāñëa conscious person pays proper attention to the maintenance of the body, is there danger of again becoming attached to it? Lord Kāñëa here states that one who is highly elevated in Kāñëa consciousness, having understood Lord Kāñëa to be the actual vastu, or reality, never again surrenders to the illusory identification with the material body, which is just like the body seen in a dream.

TEXT 38

mayāEtaäu".M(vaAe iva'aA gAu÷M yats$AÊÿYayaAegAyaAe:
jaAnalta maAgAtaM yaÁaM yauSmaÜ"maRivava°ayaA

*mayaitad uktaà vo viprä guhyaà yat säi khya-yogayoù jänéta mägataà yaji aà
yuñmad-dharma-vivakñayä*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mayä—by Me; etat—this (knowledge); uktam—has been spoken; vaù—unto you; vipräù—O brähmaëas; guhyam—confidential; yat—which; säi khya—of the philosophical method of distinguishing matter from spirit; yogayoù—and the añöäi ga-yoga system; jänéta—please understand; mä—Me; ägatam—who have arrived; yaji am—as Viñëu, the Supreme Lord of sacrifice; yuñmat—your; dharma—religious duties; vivakñayä—with the desire to explain.

TRANSLATION

My dear brähmaëas, I have now explained to you the confidential knowledge of Sāi khya, by which one philosophically distinguishes matter from spirit, and of aññāi ga-yoga, by which one links up with the Supreme. Please understand that I am the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu, and that I have appeared before you desiring to explain your actual religious duties.

PURPORT

To increase the faith of Lord Brahmä's sons and establish the prestige of His teachings, Lord Kāñëa now formally identifies Himself as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Viñëu. As stated in Vedic literature, yajñ'o vai viñëuù. After explaining the sāi khya-and aññāi ga-yoga systems, the Lord clearly answers the original question of the sages, "Who are You, sir?" Thus, Lord Brahmä and his sons were enlightened by Lord Haàsa.

TEXT 39

@hM" yaAegAsya s$aAËÿYasya s$atyasyataRsyas taejas$a:
par"AyaNAM iã"ja™aeï"A:
i™aya: k(LtaeRdR"masya ca

ahaà yogasya sāi khyasya satyasyartasya tejasaù parāyaëaà dvija-çreñöhäù çriyaù kërter damasya ca

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I; yogasya—of the yoga system; sāi khyasya—of the system of analytic philosophy; satyasya—of virtuous action; âtasya—of truthful religious principles; tejasaù—of power; para-ayanam—the ultimate shelter; dvija-çreñöhäù—O best of the brähmaëas; çriyaù—of beauty; kërteù—of fame; damasya—of self-control; ca—also.

TRANSLATION

O best of the brähmaëas, please know that I am the supreme shelter of the yoga system, analytic philosophy, virtuous action, truthful religious principles, power, beauty, fame and self-control.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the synonymous words satyasya and âtasya refer to, respectively, the proper or virtuous execution of religious principles and a convincing presentation of religion. Çréla Viçvanätha Cakravarté Öhäkura points out that the sons of Brahmä were struck with wonder at the presentation of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and were thinking, "What wonderful knowledge we have just heard." The Lord, recognizing their astonishment, spoke this verse to confirm their understanding of Him.

TEXT 40

maAM Bajainta gAuNAA: s$avaeR inagAuRNAM inar"pae°ak(ma, s$auô$dM" i'ayamaAtmaAnaM s$aAmyaAs$aËyAd"yaAe'gAuNAA:

*māà bhajanti guëäù sarve nirguëaà nirapekñakam suhādaà priyam ātmānaà
sāmyāsaì gādayo 'guëäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mām—Me; bhajanti—serve and take shelter of; guëäù—qualities; sarve—all; nirguëam—free from the modes of nature; nirapekñakam—detached; su-hādam—the well-wisher; priyam—the most dear; ātmānam—the Supersoul; sāmya—being equally situated everywhere; asaì ga—detachment;

ādayau—and so on; aguëäü—free from the transformation of the material modes.

TRANSLATION

All superior transcendental qualities, such as being beyond the modes of nature, detached, the well-wisher, the most dear, the Supersoul, equally situated everywhere, and free from material entanglement—all such qualities, free from the transformations of material qualities, find their shelter and worshipable object in Me.

PURPORT

Because in the previous verse Lord Kāñëa explained His exalted nature, the sons of Brahmä might have slightly doubted the Lord's position, thinking that they had detected some pride within the Lord's mind. Therefore, they may have doubted the instructions they had just received from Lord Haäsa. Anticipating any such reluctance, the Lord immediately clarifies the situation in the present verse. The Lord explains that, unlike ordinary living entities even up to the standard of Brahmä, the Lord's transcendental body is not different from His eternal Self and has no material qualities such as false egotism. The Lord's transcendental form is eternal, full of knowledge and bliss, and is thus nirguëam, beyond the modes of nature. Because the Lord completely ignores the so-called enjoyment offered by the illusory energy, He is called nirapekñakam, and being the best well-wisher of His devotees, He is called suhädam. Priyam indicates that the Lord is the supreme lovable object and that He establishes wonderful affectionate relationships with His devotees. Sämya indicates that the Lord is neutral and detached in all material situations. These and other exalted qualities find their shelter and worshipable object in the Lord, who does not take material designations into consideration but awards His mercy to anyone who takes shelter of Him. In Çrémad-Bhägavatam (1.16.26-30) mother Bhümi, the predominating deity of the earth, gives a list of some of the Lord's transcendental qualities, and even more are found in The Nectar of Devotion. Actually, the Lord's qualities are unlimited, but a small sample is given here simply to establish the Lord's transcendental position.

Çréla Madhvācārya has quoted from the Kāla-saṅhitā as follows. "The demigods are not actually perfectly endowed with transcendental qualities. Indeed, their opulences are limited, and therefore they worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the Absolute Truth, who is simultaneously free of all material qualities and completely endowed with all transcendental qualities, which exist in His personal body."

TEXT 41

wita mae iC$^aas$ande" h" A maunaya: s$anak(Ad" ya:
s$BaAjaiyatvaA par" yaA BaftyaAgA{NAta s$AMstavaE:

*iti me chinna-sandehā
munayaù sanakādayaù sabhājayitvā parayā
bhaktyāgāṇātā saṅstavaiù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iti—thus; me—by Me; chinna—destroyed; sandehāù—all their doubts; munayaù—the sages; sanaka-ādayaù—headed by Sanaka-kumāra; sabhājayitvā—fully worshiping Me; parayā—characterized by transcendental love; bhaktyā—with devotion; agāṇātā—they chanted My glories; saṅstavaiù—with beautiful hymns.

TRANSLATION

[Lord Kāṇēa continued:] My dear Uddhava, thus all of the doubts of the sages headed by Sanaka were destroyed by My words. Fully worshiping Me with transcendental love and devotion, they chanted My glories with excellent hymns.

TEXT 42

taEr"hm" paUijata: s$amYak,( s$amstauta: par"maisaRibā:
'atyaeyaAya svakM(DaAma pazyata: par"maei'"na:

tair ahaà pūjitaù saàyak saàstutaù paramarībhiù pratyeyāya svakaà dhāma paçyataù parameñhinaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

taiù—by them; aham—I; pūjitaù—worshiped; saàyak—perfectly; saàstutaù—perfectly glorified; parama-āñibhiù—by the greatest of sages; pratyeyāya—I returned; svakam—to My own; dhāma—abode; paçyataù parameñhinaù—as Lord Brahmā looked on.

TRANSLATION

The greatest of sages, headed by Sanaka Āñi, thus perfectly worshiped and glorified Me, and as Lord Brahmā looked on, I returned to My own abode.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Thirteenth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "The Haàsa-avatāra Answers the Questions of the Sons of Brahmā."

14. Lord Kāñëa Explains the Yoga System to Çré Uddhava

In this chapter, Kāñëa explains that devotional service to the Supreme Lord is the most excellent method of spiritual practice. He also speaks about the process of meditation.

Çré Uddhava wanted to know which process of spiritual advancement is the best. He also desired to hear about the superexcellence of devotional service free from ulterior motives. The Supreme Personality of Godhead replied to him that the original process of religion revealed in the Vedas had become lost during the time of annihilation. At the beginning of the new creation, therefore, the Supreme Lord spoke it again to Brahmä. Brahmä repeated it to Manu, Manu spoke it to the sages headed by Bhāgu Muni, and these sages in turn instructed this eternal religion to the demigods and demons. Because of the living entities' multitude of diverse desires, this system of religion was elaborately explained in different ways. Thus different philosophies arose, including various atheistic doctrines. Because the living entity, bewildered by illusion, is incapable of ascertaining his eternal benefit, he mistakenly identifies ordinary vows of penance, austerity, etc., to be the topmost spiritual practice. But the only true means of achieving happiness is to meditate on offering everything to the Supreme Lord. In this way one becomes free from all desires for selfish gratification through enjoyment of mundane sense objects, and he becomes released from all hankering for either enjoyment or liberation.

The Lord then proceeded to describe the superior process of devotional service, which destroys countless sinful reactions and produces many symptoms of spiritual happiness, such as the standing of the hairs on end. Pure devotion, having the power to purify the heart, enables one to achieve the association of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and because the devotee is very dear to the Lord and is always close to Him, he is able in turn to purify the entire universe. By virtue of his unflinching devotion to the Lord, the devotee can never be completely diverted by the objects of sense enjoyment, even if he is not able to gain control over his senses in the beginning. One desiring to attain the perfection of life is advised to give up all material processes of elevation as well as the association of women. He should then merge his mind constantly in thought of Lord Kâñëa. Finally, the Lord instructed Çré Uddhava about the true object of meditation.

TEXT 1

™aloÜ"va ovaAca vad"inta k{(SNA ™aeyaAMis$a baó"ina "aövaAid"na:
taeSaAM ivak(lpa'aADaAnyama, otaAh"Ae Wk(mauKyataA

çré-uddhava uväca
vadanti kâñëa çreyäàsi bahüni brahma-vädinaù
teñäà vikalpa-prädhänyam utäho eka-mukhyatä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uväca—Çré Uddhava said; vadanti—they speak; kâñëa—my dear Kâñëa; çreyäàsi—processes for advancement in life; bahüni—many; brahma-vädinaù—the learned sages who have explained the Vedic literature; teñäm—of all such processes; vikalpa—of varieties of perception; prädhänyam—supremacy; uta—or; aho—indeed; eka—of one; mukhyatä—being most important.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Kâñëa, the learned sages who explain Vedic literature recommend various processes for perfecting one's life. Considering these varieties of viewpoint, my Lord, please tell me whether all these processes are equally important, or whether one of them is supreme.

PURPORT

In order to clearly establish the exalted position of bhakti-yoga, or pure devotional service to the Supreme Lord, Çré Uddhava requests Lord Kânëa to identify the supreme among all processes of self-realization. Not all Vedic processes lead directly to the ultimate goal, pure love of God; some only gradually elevate the consciousness of the living entity. For the purpose of giving a general outline of the process of self-realization, sages may discuss the various methods of elevation. But when the time comes to ascertain the most perfect process, the secondary methods must be cleared from the path.

TEXT 2

BavataAed"Aô$ta: svaAimana, Bai·(yaAegAAe'napaei^oata:
inar"sya s$avaRta: s$aEMy yaena tvayyaAivazAenmana:

*bhavatodāhātaù svāmin
bhakti-yogo 'napekñitaù nirasya sarvataù saì gaà yena tvayy äviçen manaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhavatä—by You; udāhātaù—clearly stated; svāmin—O my Lord; bhakti-yogaù—devotional service; anapekñitaù—without material desires; nirasya—removing; sarvataù—in all respects; saì gam—material association; yena—by which (devotional service); tvayi—in Your Lordship; äviçet—may enter; manaù—the mind.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, You have clearly explained the process of unalloyed devotional service, by which a devotee removes all material association from his life, enabling him to fix his mind on You.

PURPORT

It is now clearly established that pure devotional service is the supreme process for fixing the mind in the Supreme Truth, Lord Kāñëa. The next point to be clarified is this: Can everyone practice this process, or is it limited to an elite class of transcendentalists? In discussing the relative advantages of different spiritual processes, one must immediately ascertain the goal of spiritual life and then isolate the process that actually awards this goal. Processes must be defined in terms of primary and secondary functions. A method that gives one the highest perfection is primary, whereas processes that merely assist or enhance the primary function are considered secondary. The mind is most flickering and unsteady; therefore by clear intelligence one must fix oneself in a progressive mode of life, and thus one can achieve the Absolute Truth in this lifetime. This is the sober purpose of Lord Kāñëa's conversation with Çré Uddhava.

TEXT 3

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca
k(Alaena naí"A 'alayae vaANAlaM vaed"s$aMiÁataA mayaAd"AE "aöNAe 'aAe·(A DamaAeR yasyaAM mad"Atmak(:

*çré-bhagavān uvāca
kālena nāñā pralaye
vāēyaà veda-saàji itā
mayādau brahmaēe proktā*

dharmo yasyāṁ mad-ātmakaṁ

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; kālena—by the influence of time; naññā—lost; pralaye—at the time of annihilation; vāē—message; iyam—this; veda-saṁjī itā—consisting of the Vedas; mayā—by Me; ādau—at the time of creation; brahmaē—unto Lord Brahmā; proktā—spoken; dharmaṁ—religious principles; yasyām—in which; mat-ātmakaṁ—identical with Me.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: By the influence of time, the transcendental sound of Vedic knowledge was lost at the time of annihilation. Therefore, when the subsequent creation took place, I spoke the Vedic knowledge to Brahmā because I Myself am the religious principles enunciated in the Vedas.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñēa explains to Uddhava that although many processes and concepts of spiritual realization are described in the Vedas, the Vedas ultimately recommend devotional service to the Supreme Lord. Lord Kāñēa is the reservoir of all pleasure, and His devotees directly enter into the Lord's hlādiné, or pleasure-giving, potency. Somehow or other one must fix one's mind in Lord Kāñēa, and that is not possible without devotional service. One who has not developed his attraction to Lord Kāñēa cannot restrain the senses from inferior engagements. Since other Vedic processes do not actually award Lord Kāñēa to the practitioner, they cannot offer the highest benefit in life. The transcendental sound of the Vedas is itself the highest evidence, but one whose senses and mind are entangled in sense gratification and mental speculation, and whose heart is therefore covered by material dust, cannot directly receive the transcendental Vedic message. Thus one cannot appreciate the exalted position of devotional service to the Lord.

TEXT 4

taena 'aAe·(A svapauṭaAya manavae paUvaRjaAya s$aA tataAe Ba{gvaAd"yaAe'gA{õ"na, s$aæa "aömah"SaRya:

*tena proktā sva-putrāya manave pūrva-jāya sā
tato bhāgv-ādayo 'gāhēan sapta brahma-maharīayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tena—by Brahmā; proktā—spoken; sva-putrāya—to his son; manave—to Manu; pūrva-jāya—the oldest; sā—that Vedic knowledge; tataù—from Manu; bhāgu-ādayaù—those headed by Bhāgu Muni; agāhēan—accepted; sapta—seven; brahma—in Vedic literature; mahā-ārīayaù—most learned sages.

TRANSLATION

Lord Brahmā spoke this Vedic knowledge to his eldest son, Manu, and the seven great sages headed by Bhāgu Muni then accepted the same knowledge from Manu.

PURPORT

Everyone engages in a certain way of life based on one's own nature and propensities. Bhakti-yoga is the natural activity of one whose nature is completely purified by association with the Supreme Lord. Other processes are meant for those whose nature is still affected by the material modes, and thus such processes, along with their results, are themselves also materially contaminated. Devotional service to the Lord, however, is a pure spiritual process, and by executing it with a pure consciousness one comes directly in touch with the Personality of Godhead, who describes Himself in Bhagavad-gētā (9.2) as pavitram idam uttamam, the supreme pure. The system of paramparā, or disciplic succession, is illustrated in this and the previous verse. The spiritual masters in Caitanya Mahāprabhu's movement are part of such a disciplic succession, and through them the same Vedic knowledge spoken by Brahmā to Manu is still available.

TEXTS 5-7

taeBya: ipata{ByastatpauṭaA de"vad"AnavagAu÷k(A:
manauSyaA: is$aÜ"gAnDavaAR:
s$aivaâADar"caAr"NAA:

ik(nde"vaA: ik(°ar"A naAgAA
r"°a:ik(mpauç&SaAd"ya: baù"YastaeSaAM 'ak{(tayaAe
r"ja:s$aÔvatamaAeBauva:

yaAiBaBaURtaAina iBaântae BaUtaAnaAM patayastaTaA yaTaA'ak{(ita s$avaeRSaAM icaṭaA vaAca: ›avainta ih" tebhyaù pitābhyas tat-putrā deva-dānava-guhyakāù manuñyāù siddha-gandharvāù sa-vidyādhara-cāraëäù

kindevāù kinnarā nāgā rakñāù-kimpuruñādayāù bahvyas teñāà prakātayo rajaù-sattva-tamo-bhuvaù

*yābhir bhūtāni bhidyante bhūtānāṃ patayas tathā yathā-prakāṭi sarveṇāṃ
citrā vācāṃ sravanti hi*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tebhyaṃ—from them (Bhāgu Muni, etc.); pitābhyaṃ—from the forefathers; tat—their; putrāṃ—sons, descendants; deva—the demigods; dānava—demons; guhyakāṃ—the Guhyakas; manuṣyāṃ—human beings; siddha-gandharvāṃ—Siddhas and Gandharvas; sa-vidyādhara-cāraṇāṃ—along with Vidyādharas and Cāraṇas; kindevāṃ—a different human species; kinnaṛāṃ—half-humans; nāgāṃ—snakes; rākṣāṃ—demons; kimpuruṣāṃ—an advanced race of monkeys; ādayaṃ—and so on; bahvyaṃ—many different; teṇām—of such living entities; prakātayaṃ—desires or natures; rajaṃ-sattva-tamaṃ-bhuvaṃ—being generated from the three modes of material nature; yābhiḥ—by such material desires or tendencies; bhūtāni—all such living entities; bhidyante—appear divided in many material forms; bhūtānām—and their; patayaṃ—leaders; tathā—divided in the same way; yathā-prakāṭi—according to propensity or desire; sarveṇām—of all of them; citrāṃ—variegated; vācāṃ—Vedic rituals and mantras; sravanti—flow down; hi—certainly.

TRANSLATION

From the forefathers headed by Bhāgu Muni and other sons of Brahmā appeared many children and descendants, who assumed different forms as demigods, demons, human beings, Guhyakas, Siddhas, Gandharvas, Vidyādharas, Cāraṇas, Kindevas, Kinnaras, Nāgas, Kimpuruṣas, and so on. All of the many universal species, along with their respective leaders, appeared with different natures and desires generated from the three modes of material nature. Therefore, because of the different characteristics of the living entities within the universe, there are a great many Vedic rituals, mantras and rewards.

PURPORT

If one is curious why Vedic literatures recommend so many different methods of worship and advancement, the answer is given here. Bhāgu, Marīci, Atri, Aṅgirā, Pulastya, Pulaha and Kratu are the seven great brāhmaëa sages and forefathers of this universe. The Kindevas are a race of human beings who are, like the demigods, completely free from fatigue, sweat and body odor. Seeing them, one may thus ask, kià deväù: "Are they demigods?" Actually, they are human beings living on another planet within the universe. The Kinnaras are so called because they are kii cin naräù, or "a little like human beings." The Kinnaras have either a human head or human body (but not both) combined with a nonhuman form. The Kimpuruṅas are so called because they resemble human beings and thus prompt the question kià puruṅäù: "Are these human beings?" Actually, they are a race of monkeys who are almost like human beings.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura explains that this verse describes the varieties of forgetfulness of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The different Vedic mantras and rituals are especially meant for the different species of intelligent beings throughout the universe; but this proliferation of Vedic formulas indicates only the variety of material illusion and not a variety of ultimate purpose. The ultimate purpose of the many Vedic injunctions is one—to know and love the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The Lord Himself is emphatically explaining this to Çré Uddhava.

TEXT 8

WvaM 'ak{(itavaEicaḥyaAä," iBaântae matayaAe na{NA Ama, paAr"mpayaeRNA ke(SaAiÂata, paASaNx"matayaAe'pare"

*evaà prakâti-vaicitryäd bhidyante matayo nâëäm
päramparyeëa keñäi cit*

pāñāēḍa-matayo 'pare

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; prakāti—of nature or desires; vaicitryāt—due to the great variety; bhidyante—are divided; matayaṁ—philosophies of life; nāēām—among human beings; pāramparyēā—by tradition or disciplic succession; keñāi' cit—among some people; pāñāēḍa—atheistic; matayaṁ—philosophies; apare—others.

TRANSLATION

Thus, due to the great variety of desires and natures among human beings, there are many different theistic philosophies of life, which are handed down through tradition, custom and disciplic succession. There are other teachers who directly support atheistic viewpoints.

PURPORT

The word keñāi' cit refers to those persons in various parts of the world who are ignorant of the Vedic conclusion and thus concoct many unauthorized and ultimately fruitless philosophies of life. Pāñāēḍa-matayaṁ refers to those who directly oppose the Vedic conclusion. Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura has given a most interesting example, as follows. The water of the Ganges is always pure and very sweet. On the banks of that great river, however, there are several types of poisonous trees whose roots drink up the Ganges water from the soil and use it to produce poisonous fruits. Similarly, those who are atheistic or demoniac utilize their association with Vedic knowledge to produce the poisonous fruits of atheistic or materialistic philosophy.

TEXT 9

manmaAyaAmaAeih"taiDaya: pauç&SaA: pauç&SaSaRBa

™aeyaAe vad"ntyanaek(AntaM yaTaAk(maR yaTaAç&ica man-mäyā-mohita-dhiyaù puruñäù puruñarñabha

çreya vadanty anekāntaà yathā-karma yathā-ruci

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mat-mayā—by My illusory potency; mohita—bewildered; dhiyaù—those whose intelligence; puruñäù—people; puruñā-ñābha—O best among men; çreyaù—what is good for people; vadanti—they speak; aneka-antam—in innumerable ways; yathā-karma—according to their own activities; yathā-ruci—according to what pleases them.

TRANSLATION

O best among men, the intelligence of human beings is bewildered by My illusory potency, and thus, according to their own activities and whims, they speak in innumerable ways about what is actually good for people.

PURPORT

Unlike the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the individual living entity is not omniscient, therefore his activities and pleasures do not represent the whole truth. According to one's individual way of doing things (yathā-karma) and one's personal preference (yathā-ruci), one speaks to others about what is good for them. Everyone thinks, "What is good for me is good for everyone." Actually, the best thing for everyone is to surrender to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Kāñëa, and thus realize one's eternal nature of bliss and knowledge. Without knowledge of the Absolute Truth, many so-called learned people are whimsically advising other whimsical people who also lack perfect knowledge of the actual goal of life.

TEXT 10

DamaRmaeke(yazAêAnyae
k(AmaM s$atyaM d"maM zAmama, @nyae vad"inta svaATa< vaA Weiya< tyaAgABaAejanama, ke(icaâÁaM tapaAe d"AnaM ~ataAina inayamaAna, yamaAna,

dharmam eke yaçaç cānye kāmaà satyaà damaà çamam anye vadanti svārthaà vā aiçvaryaà tyāga-bhojanam kecid yajī aà tapo dānaà vratāni niyamān yamān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmam—pious activities; eke—some people; yaçaù—fame; ca—also; anye—others; kāmam—sense gratification; satyam—truthfulness; damam—self-control; çamam—peacefulness; anye—others; vadanti—propound; sva-artham—pursuing one's self-interest; vai—certainly; aiçvaryam—opulence or political influence; tyāga—renunciation; bhojanam—consumption; kecit—some people; yajī am—sacrifice; tapau—austerity; dānam—charity; vratāni—taking vows; niyamān—regular religious duties; yamān—strict regulative discipline.

TRANSLATION

Some say that people will be happy by performing pious religious activities. Others say that happiness is attained through fame, sense gratification, truthfulness, self-control, peace, self-interest, political influence, opulence, renunciation, consumption, sacrifice, penance, charity, vows, regulated duties or strict disciplinary regulation. Each process has its proponents.

PURPORT

Dharmam eke refers to those atheistic philosophers called karma-mémäàsakas, who state that one should not waste time worrying about a kingdom of God that no one has ever seen and from which no one has ever returned; rather, one should expertly utilize the laws of karma, performing fruitive activities in such a way that one will always be well situated. Concerning fame, it is said that as long as the fame of a human being is sung in the pious planets, he may live for thousands of years in material heaven. Kāmam refers to Vedic texts like the Kāma-sūtra as well as millions of modern books that advise one about sex pleasure. Some people state that the highest virtue in life is honesty; others say it is self-control, peace of mind and so on. Each viewpoint has proponents and "scriptures." Others say that law, order and morality are the highest good, whereas still others propose political influence as the real self-interest of human beings. Some state that one should give away one's material possessions to the needy; others state that one should try to enjoy this life as far as possible; and others recommend daily rituals, disciplinary vows, penances, and so on.

TEXT 11

@Aântavanta WvaESaAM laAek(A: k(maRivainaimaRtaA: äu":KaAed"k(ARstamaAeinaï"A: °au"%"A mand"A: zAucaAipaRtaA:

ädy-anta-vanta evaiñää
lokäu karma-vinirmitäu duùkhodarkäs tamo-niñöhäu kñudrä mandäu çucärpitäu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ädi-anta-vantaù—possessing a beginning and end; eva—undoubtedly; eñäm—of them (the materialistic); lokäù—achieved destinations; karma—by one's material work; vinirmitäù—produced; duùkha—misery; udarkäù—bringing as the future result; tamaù—ignorance; niñöhäù—situated in; kñudräù—meager; mandäù—wretched; çucä—with lamentation; arpitäù—filled.

TRANSLATION

All the persons I have just mentioned obtain temporary fruits from their material work. Indeed, the meager and miserable situations they achieve bring future unhappiness and are based on ignorance. Even while enjoying the fruits of their work, such persons are filled with lamentation.

PURPORT

Those who have grasped temporary material things, mistaking them to be ultimate reality, are not considered very intelligent by anyone except themselves. Such foolish persons are always in anxiety because by the laws of nature the very fruits of their work are constantly being transformed in ways neither desired nor expected. The performer of Vedic rituals can elevate himself to heavenly planets, whereas one who is atheistic has the privilege of transferring himself to hell. The entire panorama of material existence is actually uninteresting and dull (mandäù). One can make no real progress within the material world; therefore one should take to Kāñëa consciousness and prepare oneself to go back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 12

mayyaipaRtaAtmana: s$aBya inar"pae°asya s$avaRta:
mayaAtmanaA s$auKaM yaÔata, ku(ta: syaAiã" SayaAtmanaAma,

mayy arpitätmanaù sabhya

nirapekñasya sarvataù mayätmanä sukhaà yat tat kutaù syäd viñayätmanäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mayi—in Me; arpita—fixed; ätmanaù—of one whose consciousness; sabhya—O learned Uddhava; nirapekñasya—of one bereft of material desires; sarvataù—in all respects; mayä—with Me; ätmanä—with the Supreme Personality of Godhead or with one's own spiritual body; sukham—happiness; yat tat—such; kutaù—how; syät—could it be; viñaya—in material sense gratification; ätmanäm—of those who are attached.

TRANSLATION

O learned Uddhava, those who fix their consciousness on Me, giving up all material desires, share with Me a happiness that cannot possibly be experienced by those engaged in sense gratification.

PURPORT

The actual purport of Vedic knowledge is explained in this verse. The word viñayätmanäm includes those who are cultivating material peace of mind, self-control and speculative philosophy. But even if such persons rise to the platform of sattva-guëa, the mode of goodness, they do not attain perfection, because sattva-guëa, being material, is also part and parcel of mäyä, or illusion. As stated by Çré Nārada Muni,

*kià vä yogena säi khyena
nyäsa-svädhyäyayor api
kià vä çreyobhir anyaiç ca
na yaträtma-prado hariù*

"The Supreme Personality of Godhead is not inclined to award Himself even to one who executes the yoga system, speculative philosophy, the renounced order of life or Vedic studies. Indeed, no so-called materially auspicious process can induce the Lord to reveal Himself." (SB 4.31.12) According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, one enjoys the happiness spoken of in this verse while associating, in one's own spiritual body, with the supreme transcendental form of the Lord. The Lord's transcendental form is filled with infinite, wonderful qualities, and the happiness of being with the Lord is unlimited. Unfortunately, materialistic people cannot possibly imagine such happiness, since they are not at all inclined to love the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 13

@ik(Âanasya d"Antasya zAAntasya s$amacaetas$a:
mayaA s$antauí"manas$a:
s$avaAR: s$auKamayaA id"zA:

*akii canasya dântasya çântasya sama-cetasaù
mayä santuñña-manasaù
sarväu sukha-mayä diçaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

akii canasya—of one who does not desire anything; dântasya—whose senses are controlled; çântasya—peaceful; sama-cetasaù—whose consciousness is equal everywhere; mayä—with Me; santuñña—completely satisfied; manasaù—whose mind; sarväu—all; sukha-mayäù—full of happiness; diçaù—directions.

TRANSLATION

One who does not desire anything within this world, who has achieved peace by controlling his senses, whose consciousness is equal in all conditions and whose mind is completely satisfied in Me finds only happiness wherever he goes.

PURPORT

A devotee who is always meditating upon Lord Kāñëa experiences transcendental sound, touch, form, flavor and aroma in the pastimes of the Lord. These sublime perceptions are certainly due to the causeless mercy of Lord Kāñëa upon one whose mind and senses are completely satisfied in Him. Such a person finds only happiness wherever he goes. Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura gives the example that when a very wealthy man travels all over the world, at every place he stays he always enjoys the same luxurious standard of comfort. Similarly, one who has developed Kāñëa consciousness is never separated from happiness, because Lord Kāñëa is all-pervading. The word kii'cana indicates the so-called enjoyable things of this world. One who is akii'cana has correctly understood that material sense gratification is simply the glare of illusion, and therefore such a person is däntasya, or self-controlled, çäntasya, or peaceful, and mayä santuñña-manasaù, or completely satisfied with his transcendental experience of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 14

na paAr"maei"YaM na mahe"n%"iDaSNyaM na s$aAvaRBaAEmaM na r"s$aAiDapatyama, na yaAegAis$aÜ"lr"paunaBaRvaM vaA mayyaipaRtaAtmaecC$ita maiã"naAnyata,

na pärameñöhyaà na mahendra-dhiñëyaà
na särvabhaumaà na rasädhipatyam
na yoga-siddhër apunar-bhavaà vä mayy arpitätmecchatì mad vinänyat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; pärameñöhyam—the position or abode of Lord Brahmä; na—never;

mahā-indra-dhiñēyam—the position of Lord Indra; na—neither; sārvabhaumam—empire on the earth; na—nor; rasa-ādhipatyam—sovereignty in the lower planetary systems; na—never; yoga-siddhēu—the eightfold yoga perfections; apunaù-bhavam—liberation; vā—nor; mayi—in Me; arpita—fixed; ātmā—consciousness; icchatī—he desires; mat—Me; vinā—without; anyat—anything else.

TRANSLATION

One who has fixed his consciousness on Me desires neither the position or abode of Lord Brahmā or Lord Indra, nor an empire on the earth, nor sovereignty in the lower planetary systems, nor the eightfold perfection of yoga, nor liberation from birth and death. Such a person desires Me alone.

PURPORT

The position of the akīñcana pure devotee is described in this verse. Çré Priyavrata Mahārāja is an example of a great devotee who was not interested in universal sovereignty because his love was completely absorbed in the lotus feet of the Lord. Even the greatest material enjoyment appears most insignificant and useless to a pure devotee of the Lord.

TEXT 15

na taTaA mae i'ayatama @AtmayaAeinanaR zAÆÿr": na ca s$AÆÿSaRNAAe na TMalr," naEvaAtmaA ca yaTaA BavaAna, *na tathā me priyatama

ātma-yonir na çai karaù na ca saì karñāëo na çrér naivātmā ca yathā bhavān*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; tathā—in the same way; me—to Me; priya-tamaù—most dear; ātma-yoniù—Lord Brahmā, who is born from My body; na—nor; saì karaù—Lord Çiva; na—nor; ca—also; saì karñāëaù—My direct expansion Lord Saì karñāëa; na—nor; çréù—the goddess of fortune; na—nor; eva—certainly; ātmā—My own self as the Deity; ca—also; yathā—as much as; bhavān—you.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, neither Lord Brahmā, Lord Çiva, Lord Saì karñāëa, the goddess of fortune nor indeed My own self is as dear to Me as you are.

PURPORT

The Lord has described in the previous verses the unalloyed love of His pure devotees for Him, and now the Lord describes His love for His devotees. Ātma-yoni means Lord Brahmā, who is born directly from the Lord's body. Lord Çiva always gives great pleasure to Lord Kāñëa by his constant meditation upon Him, and Saì karñāëa, or Balarāma, is the Lord's brother in kāñëa-lélā. The goddess of fortune is the Lord's wife, and the word ātmā here indicates the Lord's own self as the Deity. None of these personalities—even the Lord's own self—are as dear to Him as His pure devotee Uddhava, an akīi cana devotee of the Lord. Çréla Madhvācārya cites from Vedic literature the example that a gentleman sometimes neglects his own interest and that of his children to give charity to a poor beggar. Similarly, the Lord gives preference to a helpless devotee who depends completely on His mercy. The only way to obtain the Lord's mercy is through His causeless love, and the Lord is most lovingly inclined toward those devotees who are most dependent on Him, just as ordinary mothers and fathers worry more about their helpless children than about those who are self-sufficient. Thus even if one lacks any material qualification, one should simply depend upon the Supreme Personality of Godhead, without any other interest, and surely one will achieve the highest perfection of life.

TEXT 16

inar"pae°aM mauinaM zAAntaM inavaE=rM" s$amad"zARnama, @nau~ajaAmyahM" inatyaM paUyaeyaetyax.~i,,are"NAuiBa:

nirapekñāà munià çāntaà nirvairaà sama-darçanam anuvrajāmy ahaà nityaà püyeyety aì ghri-reëubhiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nirapekñām—without personal desire; munim—always thinking of assisting Me in My pastimes; çāntam—peaceful; nirvairam—not inimical to anyone; sama-darçanam—equal consciousness everywhere; anuvrajāmi—follow; aham—I; nityam—always; püyeya—I may be purified (I will purify the universe within Me); iti—thus; aì ghri—of the lotus feet; reëubhiù—by the dust.

TRANSLATION

With the dust of My devotees' lotus feet I desire to purify the material worlds, which are situated within Me. Thus, I always follow the footsteps of My pure devotees, who are free from all personal desire, rapt in thought of My pastimes, peaceful, without any feelings of enmity, and of equal disposition everywhere.

PURPORT

Just as the devotees always follow the footsteps of Lord Kāñëa, similarly Lord Kāñëa, being a devotee of His devotees, follows the footsteps of His devotees. A pure servitor of the Lord is always meditating on the pastimes of the Lord and considering how to assist the Lord in His mission. All the material universes are situated in Çré Kâñëa's body, as demonstrated to Arjuna, mother Yaçodä and others. Lord Kâñëa is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and therefore there is no question of impurity in the Lord. Still, the Lord desires to purify the universes situated within Him by taking the dust of the lotus feet of His pure devotees. Without the dust of the lotus feet of the devotees, it is not possible to engage in pure devotional service, without which one cannot directly experience transcendental bliss. Lord Kâñëa thought, "I have established this strict rule that one can enjoy My transcendental bliss only through devotional service obtained from the dust of the lotus feet of My devotees. Since I also desire to experience My own bliss, I will observe the standard procedure and accept the dust of My devotees' feet." Çréla Madhväcärya points out that Lord Kâñëa follows the footsteps of His devotees in order to purify them. As the Lord walks along behind His pure devotees, the wind blows the dust of the Lord's feet in the front of His devotees, who then become purified by contact with such transcendental dust. One should not foolishly look for material logic in these transcendental pastimes of the Lord. It is simply a question of love between the Lord and His devotees.

TEXT 17

inaiSk(ÂanaA mayyanaur"-(caetas$a:
zAAntaA mah"AntaAe'iKalajalvavats$alaA:
k(AmaEr"naAlabDaiDayaAe jauSainta tae ya^aaEr"pae^oyaM na ivaäu": s$auKaM mama ninikī canā mayy anurakta-cetasau çāntā mahānto 'khila-jēva-vatsalāu kāmair anālabdha-dhiyo juñanti te yan nairapekñyān na viduḥ sukhaṇ mama

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

niñkii canäù—without any desire for sense gratification; mayi—in Me, the Supreme Lord; anurakta-cetasaù—mind constantly attached; çäntäù—peaceful; mahäntaù—great souls without false ego; akhila—to all; jéva—living entities; vatsaläù—affectionate well-wishers; kämaiù—by opportunities for sense gratification; anälabdha—untouched and unaffected; dhiyaù—whose consciousness; juñanti—experience; te—they; yat—which; nairapekñyam—achieved only by complete detachment; na viduù—they do not know; sukham—happiness; mama—My.

TRANSLATION

Those who are without any desire for personal gratification, whose minds are always attached to Me, who are peaceful, without false ego and merciful to all living entities, and whose consciousness is never affected by opportunities for sense gratification—such persons enjoy in Me a happiness that cannot be known or achieved by those lacking such detachment from the material world.

PURPORT

The pure devotees always experience transcendental bliss in their service to Çré Kāñëa, the reservoir of pleasure; thus they are completely detached from material pleasure and do not desire even liberation. Since all others have some personal desire, they cannot experience such happiness. Pure devotees always desire to give Kāñëa conscious happiness to all others, and therefore they are called mahäntaù, or great souls. In the course of a devotee's service, many opportunities for sense gratification arise, but a pure devotee is not tempted or attracted and does not fall down from his exalted transcendental position.

TEXT 18

baADyamaAnaAe'ipa maà".(Ae ivaSayaEr"ijataein%"ya:
'aAya: 'agAlBayaA BaftyaA

ivaSayaEnaARiBaBaUyatae

bādhyamāno 'pi mad-bhakto viñayair ajitendriyaù prāyaù pragalbhayā bhaktyā viñayair nābhibhūyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bādhyamānaù—being harassed; api—even though; mat-bhaktaù—My devotee; viñayaiù—by the sense objects; ajita—without having conquered; indriyaù—the senses; prāyaù—generally; pragalbhayā—effective and strong; bhaktyā—by devotion; viñayaiù—by sense gratification; na—not; abhibhūyate—is defeated.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, if My devotee has not fully conquered his senses, he may be harassed by material desires, but because of his unflinching devotion for Me, he will not be defeated by sense gratification.

PURPORT

Abhibhūyate indicates falling down into the material world and being defeated by māyā. But even though one's senses are not fully conquered, one who has unflinching devotion for Lord Kāñëa does not run the risk of being separated from Him. The words pragalbhayā bhaktyā indicate a person who has great devotion for Lord Kāñëa, and not one who desires to commit sinful activities and chant Hare Kāñëa to avoid the reaction. Because of previous bad habits and immaturity, even a sincere devotee may be harassed by lingering attraction to the bodily concept of life; but his unflinching devotion for Lord Kāñëa will act. Çrëla Viçvanātha Cakravartë Öhākura gives the following two examples. A great warrior may be struck by the weapon of his enemy, but because of his courage and strength he is not killed or defeated. He accepts the blow and goes on to victory. Similarly, one may contract a serious disease, but if he takes the proper medicine he is quickly cured.

If those who follow the impersonal system of speculation and austerity deviate even slightly from their path, they fall down. A devotee, however, even though immature, never falls from the path of devotional service. Even if he displays occasional weakness, he is still considered a devotee if his devotion to Lord Kāñëa is very strong. As the Lord states in Bhagavad-gētā (9.30):

api cet su-duräcäro bhajate mäm ananya-bhäk sädhur eva sa mantavyau samyag vyavasito hi sau

"Even if one commits the most abominable actions, if he is engaged in devotional service he is to be considered saintly because he is properly situated."

TEXT 19

yaTaAiçä: s$aus$ama{Ü"AicaR:
k(r"AetyaeDaAMis$a Basmass$aAta, taTaA maiã"SayA Bai·(r," oÜ"vaEnaAMis$a k{(tpazA:

yathägniù su-samäddhärciù karoty edhäàsi bhasmasät tathä mad-viñayä bhaktir uddhavainäàsi kätsnaçaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathä—just as; agniù—fire; su-samäddha—blazing; arciù—whose flames; karoti—turns; edhäàsi—firewood; bhasma-sät—into ashes; tathä—similarly; mat-viñayä—with Me as the object; bhaktiù—devotion; uddhava—O

Uddhava; enā̀asi—sins; kātsnaçau—completely.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, just as a blazing fire turns firewood into ashes, similarly, devotion unto Me completely burns to ashes sins committed by My devotees.

PURPORT

One should carefully note that the Lord refers to devotion that is like a blazing fire. To commit sinful activity on the strength of chanting the holy name is the greatest offense, and the devotion of one who commits this offense cannot be compared to a blazing fire of love for Kāñëa. As stated in the previous verse, a sincere loving devotee, because of immaturity or previous bad habits, may be disturbed by his senses even though he has accepted Lord Kāñëa as the only goal in his life. But if even by chance the devotee accidentally falls down without premeditation or indifference, the Lord immediately burns to ashes his sinful reactions, just as a blazing fire immediately consumes an insignificant piece of wood. Lord Kāñëa is glorious, and one who takes exclusive shelter of the Lord receives the unique benefits of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 20

na s$aADaya^{ita} maAM yaAegAAe na s$aAÊÿYaM DamaR oÜ"va na svaADyaAyastapastyaAgAAe
yaTaA Bai·(maRmaAeijaRtaA

na sādhayatī mā̀a yogo na sāi khyā̀a dharma uddhava na svādhyāyas tapas tyāgo yathā bhaktir mamorjitā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; sādhayati—brings under control; mām—Me; yogaù—the yoga system; na—nor; sāi khyam—the system of Sāi khya philosophy; dharmaù—pious activities within the varëāçrama system; uddhava—My dear Uddhava; na—not; svādhyāyaù—Vedic study; tapaù—austerity; tyāgaù—renunciation; yathā—as; bhaktiù—devotional service; mama—unto Me; ürjitā—strongly developed.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, the unalloyed devotional service rendered to Me by My devotees brings Me under their control. I cannot be thus controlled by those engaged in mystic yoga, Sāi khya philosophy, pious work, Vedic study, austerity or renunciation.

PURPORT

One may make Kāñëa the goal of mystic yoga, Sāi khya philosophy, etc.; yet such activities do not please the Lord as much as direct loving service, which one practices by hearing and chanting about the Lord and executing His mission. Çréla Rūpa Gosvāmë states, jī'āna-karmādy-anāvātam: [Cc. Madhya 19.167] a devotee should simply depend on Kāñëa and should not unnecessarily complicate his loving service with tendencies toward fruitive work or mental speculation. The residents of Våndāvana simply depend on Lord Kāñëa. When the great serpent Aghāsura appeared in the precincts of Vraja, the cowherd boys, completely confident in their friendship with Lord Kāñëa, fearlessly marched into the serpent's gigantic mouth. Such pure love for Kāñëa brings the Lord under the control of the devotee.

TEXT 21

BaftyAh"maek(yaA faA÷:
™aÜ"yaAtmaA i'aya: s$ataAma, Bai·(: paunaAita mai^aai["]A ipaAk(Anaipa s$amBavaAta, bhaktyāham ekayā grāhyaù çraddhayātmā priyaù satām bhaktiù punāti man-niñöhä çva-päkän api sambhavät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhaktyā—by devotional service; aham—I; ekayā—unalloyed; grāhyaù—am to be obtained; çraddhayā—by faith; ātmā—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; priyaù—the object of love; satām—of the devotees; bhaktiù—pure devotional service; punāti—purifies; mat-niñöhä—fixing Me as the only goal; çva-päkän—dog-eaters; api—even; sambhavät—from the contamination of low birth.

TRANSLATION

Only by practicing unalloyed devotional service with full faith in Me can one obtain Me, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. I am naturally dear to My devotees, who take Me as the only goal of their loving service. By engaging in such pure devotional service, even the dog-eaters can purify themselves from the contamination of their low birth.

PURPORT

Sambhavät indicates jāti-doñät, or the pollution of low birth. Jāti-doña does not refer to mundane social, economic or professional status, but rather to one's degree of spiritual enlightenment. All around the world, many people are born into rich and powerful families, but they often acquire abominable habits that are part of their so-called family tradition. However, even unfortunate persons who are taught from birth to engage in sinful activities can at once be purified by the potency of pure devotional service. Such service must have Lord Kåñëa as the only goal (man-niñöhä), must be rendered with full faith (çraddhayä), and must be unalloyed, or without any selfish motivation (ekayä).

TEXT 22

DamaR: s$atyad"yaAepaetaAe ivaâA vaA tapas$aAinvataA maà"ftyaApaetamaAtmaAnaM na s$amyaf'apaunaAita ih"

dharmaù satya-dayopeto vidyâ vä tapasänvitä mad-bhaktyäpetam ätmänaà na samyak prapunäti hi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmaù—religious principles; satya—with truthfulness; dayä—and mercy; upetaù—endowed; vidyâ—knowledge; vä—or; tapasä—with austerity; anvitä—endowed; mat-bhaktyä—devotional service to Me; apetam—bereft of; ätmänam—consciousness; na—not; samyak—completely; prapunäti—purifies; hi—certainly.

TRANSLATION

Neither religious activities endowed with honesty and mercy nor knowledge obtained with great penance can completely purify one's consciousness if they are bereft of loving service to Me.

PURPORT

Although pious religious work, truthfulness, mercy, penances and knowledge partially purify one's existence, they do not take out the root of material desires. Thus the same desires will reappear at a later time. After an extensive program of material gratification, one becomes eager to perform austerities, acquire knowledge, perform selfless work and in general purify one's existence. After sufficient piety and purification, however, one again becomes eager for material enjoyment. When clearing an agricultural field one must uproot the unwanted plants, otherwise with the coming of rain everything will grow back as it was. Pure devotional service to the Lord uproots one's material desires, so that there is no danger of relapsing into a degraded life of material gratification. In the eternal kingdom of God, loving reciprocation between the Lord and His devotees is manifest. One who has not come to this stage of enlightenment must remain on the material platform, which is always full of discrepancies and contradictions. Thus everything is incomplete and imperfect without loving service to the Lord.

TEXT 23

k(TaM ivanaA r"Aemah"Sa< %"vataA caetas$aA ivanaA ivanaAnand"A™auk(layaA
zAuDyaeà"ftyaA ivanaAzAya:

*kathaà vinā roma-harīaà dravatā cetasā vinā vinānandāçru-kalayā
çudhyed bhaktyā vināçayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

katham—how; vinā—without; roma-harīam—standing of the hairs on end; dravatā—melted; cetasā—heart; vinā—without; vinā—without; ānanda—of bliss; açru-kalayā—the flowing of tears; çudhyet—can be purified; bhaktyā—loving service; vinā—without; āçayaù—the consciousness.

TRANSLATION

If one's hairs do not stand on end, how can the heart melt? And if the heart does not melt, how can tears of love flow from the eyes? If one does not cry in spiritual happiness, how can one render loving service to the Lord?

And without such service, how can the consciousness be purified?

PURPORT

Loving service to the Lord is the only process that can completely purify one's consciousness; such service produces waves of ecstatic love that completely cleanse the soul. As mentioned earlier by Lord Kāñëa to Çré Uddhava, other processes such as self-control, pious activities, mystic yoga, penances, etc., certainly purify the mind, as stated in many authorized literatures. Such processes, however, do not completely remove the desire to perform forbidden activities. But pure devotional service rendered in love of Godhead is so powerful that it burns to ashes any obstacle encountered on the path of progress. The Lord has stated in this chapter that loving service to Him is a blazing fire that burns to ashes all impediments. In contrast, the small fires of mental speculation or mystic yoga can be extinguished by sinful desires at any moment. Thus, by hearing Çrémad-Bhāgavatam one should ignite the blazing fire of loving service to the Lord and burn to ashes the network of material illusion.

TEXT 24

vaAggAÕ"d"A %o"vatae yasya icaÔaM ç&d"tyaBaI°NAM h"s$aita ,(ica»a ivalaÀa oÕ"Ayaita na{tyatae ca maà"i-(yau-(Ae BauvanaM paunaAita

väg gadgadä dravate yasya cittaà rudaty abhékñëaà hasati kvacic ca vilajja udgäyati nātyate ca mad-bhakti-yukto bhuvanaà punāti

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vāk—speech; gadgadä—choked up; dravate—melts; yasya—of whom;

cittam—the heart; rudati—cries; abhékñëam—again and again; hasati—laughs; kvacit—sometimes; ca—also; vilajjaù—ashamed; udgäyati—sings out loudly; nätyate—dances; ca—also; mat-bhakti-yuktaù—one fixed in devotional service to Me; bhuvanam—the universe; punäti—purifies.

TRANSLATION

A devotee whose speech is sometimes choked up, whose heart melts, who cries continually and sometimes laughs, who feels ashamed and cries out loudly and then dances—a devotee thus fixed in loving service to Me purifies the entire universe.

PURPORT

Väg gadgadä refers to a highly emotional state in which the throat is choked up and one cannot express oneself. Vilajjaù indicates that a devotee sometimes feels embarrassment due to bodily functions and memories of past sinful activities. In this condition, a devotee loudly cries out the holy name of Kãñëa and sometimes dances in ecstasy. As stated here, such a devotee purifies the three worlds.

By melting of the heart, one becomes very steady in spiritual life. Normally, one whose heart easily melts is thought to be unsteady; but because Lord Kãñëa is the stable foundation of all existence, one whose heart melts in love of Kãñëa becomes most stable and cannot be disturbed by opposing arguments, bodily suffering, mental problems, supernatural disasters or the interference of envious persons. Because such a devotee is fixed in loving service to the Lord, he becomes the very heart of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 25

yaTaAiçanaA he"ma malaM jah"Aita DmaAtaM pauna: svaM Bajatae ca è&pama, @AtmaA ca k(maARnauzAyaM ivaDaUya maà"i·(yaAegAena BajatyaTaAe maAma, yathāgninā hema malaà jahāti dhmātaà punaù svaà bhajate ca rūpam ātmā ca karmānuçayaà vidhüya mad-bhakti-yogena bhajaty atho mām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathā—just as; agninā—by fire; hema—gold; malam—impurities; jahāti—gives up; dhmātam—smelted; punaù—again; svam—its own; bhajate—enters; ca—also; rūpam—form; ātmā—the spirit soul or consciousness; ca—also; karma—of fruitive activities; anuçayam—the resultant contamination; vidhüya—removing; mat-bhakti-yogena—by loving service to Me; bhajati—worships; atho—thus; mām—Me.

TRANSLATION

Just as gold, when smelted in fire, gives up its impurities and returns to its pure brilliant state, similarly, the spirit soul, absorbed in the fire of bhakti-yoga, is purified of all contamination caused by previous fruitive activities and returns to its original position of serving Me in the spiritual world.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Öhäkura, this verse indicates that the devotee goes back home, back to Godhead, and there worships Lord Kāñëa in his original spiritual body, which is compared to the original pure form of smelted gold. Gold alloyed with inferior metals cannot be purified by water and soap; similarly, the heart's impurities cannot be removed by superficial processes. Only the fire of love of Godhead can cleanse one's soul and send one back home, back to Godhead, to engage in eternal loving service to the Lord.

TEXT 26

yaTaA yaTaAtmaA pair"ma{jyatae's$aAE matpauNyagAATaA™avaNAAiBaDaAnaE:
taTaA taTaA pazyaita vastau s$aU°maM ca°auyaRTaEvaAãanas$am'ayau·(ma, yathā yathātmā parimājyate 'sau mat-puēya-gāthā-ṣravaëābhidhānaiù tathā tathā paçyati vastu sūkīmaà cakñur yathaivāi jana-samprayuktam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathā yathā—as much as; ātmā—the spirit soul, the conscious entity; parimājyate—is cleansed of material contamination; asau—he; mat-puēya-gāthā—the pious narrations of My glories; ṣravaëā—by hearing; abhidhānaiù—and by chanting; tathā tathā—exactly in that proportion; paçyati—he sees; vastu—the Absolute Truth; sūkīmam—subtle, being nonmaterial; cakñuù—the eye; yathā—just as; eva—certainly; ai jana—with medicinal ointment; samprayuktam—treated.

TRANSLATION

When a diseased eye is treated with medicinal ointment it gradually recovers its power to see. Similarly, as a conscious living entity cleanses himself of material contamination by hearing and chanting the pious narrations of My glories, he regains his ability to see Me, the Absolute Truth, in My subtle spiritual form.

PURPORT

The Lord is called sūkīmam because He is pure spiritual consciousness, without any tinge of material energy. If one chants and hears the holy name and glories of Kāñëa with great sincerity, there is immediately a transcendental effect. We can immediately see the spiritual world and pastimes of the Lord if we fully surrender to the process mentioned here. A blind person feels perpetual gratitude to a doctor who restores his sight. Similarly, we sing cakñu-dāna dila ye, janme janme prabhu sei: the bona fide spiritual master, the representative of Lord Kāñëa, restores our spiritual sight, and thus he is our eternal lord and master.

TEXT 27

ivaSayaAnDyaAyataiêÔaM ivaSayaeSau ivaSaÀatae maAmanausmar"taiêÔaM
mayyaeva 'aivalalyatae

*viñayān dhyāyataç cittaà viñayeñu viñajjate
mām anusmarataç cittaà
mayy eva pravilēyate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viñayān—objects of sense gratification; dhyāyatau—of one who is meditating on; cittam—the consciousness; viñayeñu—in the objects of gratification; viñajjate—becomes attached; mām—Me; anusmaratau—of one remembering constantly; cittam—the consciousness; mayi—in Me; eva—certainly; pravilēyate—is absorbed.

TRANSLATION

The mind of one meditating upon the objects of sense gratification is certainly entangled in such objects, but if one constantly remembers Me, then the mind is absorbed in Me.

PURPORT

One should not think that one can attain complete transcendental knowledge of Kåñëa by mechanically engaging in worship of the Lord. Lord Kåñëa states here that one must endeavor constantly to keep the Lord within one's mind. Anusmarataù, or constant remembrance, is possible for one who always chants and hears the glories of Lord Kåñëa. It is therefore stated, çravaëam, kértanam [SB 7.5.23], smaraëam: the process of devotional service begins with hearing (çravaëam) and chanting (kértanam), from which remembrance (smaraëam) develops. One who constantly thinks of the objects of material gratification becomes attached to them; similarly, one who constantly keeps Lord Kåñëa within his mind becomes absorbed in the Lord's transcendental nature and thus becomes qualified to render personal service to the Lord in His own abode.

TEXT 28

tasmaAd"s$ad"iBaDyaAnaM yaTaA sva«amanaAer"Tama, ih"tvaA maiya s$amaADatsva manaAe maà"AvaBaAivatama, tasmäd asad-abhidhyänaà yathä svapna-manoratham hitvä mayi samädhatsva mano mad-bhäva-bhävitam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmät—therefore; asad—material; abhidhyänam—processes of elevation which absorb one's attention; yathä—just as; svapna—in a dream; manaù-ratham—mental concoction; hitvä—giving up; mayi—in Me; samädhatsva—completely absorb; manaù—the mind; mat-bhäva—by consciousness of Me; bhävitam—purified.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, one should reject all material processes of elevation, which are like the mental creations of a dream, and should completely absorb one's mind in Me. By constantly thinking of Me, one becomes purified.

PURPORT

The word bhāvitam means "caused to be." As explained in Bhagavad-gītā, material existence is an unstable platform subject to the constant disturbances of creation and annihilation. One who absorbs his consciousness in Kāñēa, however, attains to Kāñēa's nature and is therefore described as mad-bhāva-bhāvitam, or one situated in real existence because of Kāñēa consciousness. The Lord here concludes His analysis of different processes of human perfection.

TEXT 29

ñINAAM ñIs$aiĒyṇaAM s$aĒMṃ tyaktvaA äU"r"ta @AtmavaAna, °aemae ivaiva-(@As$alnazA, icantayaenmaAmatain%o"ta:

*strēēām strē-sai ginām sai ga tyaktvā dūrata ātmavān kñeme vivikta āsēnaç
cintayen mām atandritaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

strēēām—of women; strē—to women; sai ginām—of those who are attached or intimately associated; sai gam—association; tyaktvā—giving up; dūrataù—far away; ātma-vān—being conscious of the self; kñeme—fearless; vivikte—in a separated or isolated place; āsēnaù—sitting; cintayet—one should concentrate; mām—on Me; atandritaù—with great care.

TRANSLATION

Being conscious of the eternal self, one should give up association with women and those intimately associated with women. Sitting fearlessly in a solitary place, one should concentrate the mind on Me with great attention.

PURPORT

One who has intimate contact with women and becomes attached to them will gradually lose his determination to go back home, back to Godhead. Association with lusty men gives exactly the same result. Therefore, one is advised to be fearless and to sit down in a solitary place, or a place where there are no lusty men and women committing spiritual suicide. Without fear of failure or of unhappiness in life, one should remain with sincere devotees of the Lord. Atandrita means that one should not compromise this principle but should be rigid and cautious. All this is possible only for one who is ātmavān, or fixed in practical understanding of the eternal soul.

TEXT 30

na taTaAsya BavaetflaezAAe banDaêAnyas$as$Eÿta:
yaAeiSats$EÿAâTaA pauMs$aAe yaTaA tats$aiEÿs$Eÿta:

na tathāsya bhavet kleṣa bandhaḥ cānya-prasāi gatai yōñit-sai gād yathā puāso yathā tat-sai gi-sai gatai

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—not; tathā—like that; asya—of him; bhavet—could be; kleṣa—suffering; bandha—bondage; ca—and; anya-prasāi gatai—from any other attachment; yoñit—of women; saṅgāt—from attachment; yathā—just as; puṇaḥ—of a man; yathā—similarly; tat—to women; saṅgi—of those attached; saṅgataḥ—from the association.

TRANSLATION

Of all kinds of suffering and bondage arising from various attachments, none is greater than the suffering and bondage arising from attachment to women and intimate contact with those attached to women.

PURPORT

One should make a great endeavor to give up intimate contact with women and those fond of women. A learned gentleman will automatically be on guard if placed in intimate contact with lusty women. In the company of lusty men, however, the same man may engage in all kinds of social dealings and thus be contaminated by their polluted mentality. Association with lusty men is often more dangerous than association with women and should be avoided by all means. There are innumerable verses in the Bhāgavatam describing the intoxication of material lust. Suffice it to say that a lusty man becomes exactly like a dancing dog and, by the influence of Cupid, loses all gravity, intelligence and direction in life. The Lord warns here that one who surrenders to the illusory form of a woman suffers unbearably in this life and the next.

TEXT 31

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
yaTaA tvaAmar"ivand"A^oa yaAä{"zAM vaA yad"Atmak(ma, DyaAyaenmaumau^oaure"tanmae DyaAnaM tvaM va·u(mahR"is$ā

çré-uddhava uvāca
yathā tvām aravindākā

yādāṣaà vā yad-ātmakam dhyāyen mumukīur etan me dhyānaà tvaà vaktum arhasi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; yathā—in what way; tvām—You; aravinda-akñā—O my dear lotus-eyed Kāñēa; yādācam—of what specific nature; vā—or; yat-ātmakam—in what specific form; dhyāyet—should meditate; mumukīuù—one who desires liberation; etat—this; me—to me; dhyānam—meditation; tvam—You; vaktum—to speak or explain; arhasi—ought.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear lotus-eyed Kāñēa, by what process should one who desires liberation meditate upon You, of what specific nature should his meditation be, and upon which form should he meditate? Kindly explain to me this topic of meditation.

PURPORT

It has already been elaborately explained by the Supreme Lord that without loving devotional service rendered to Him in the association of devotees, no other process of self-realization will work. Therefore it may be asked why Uddhava is again referring to the system of meditation, dhyāna. The ācāryas explain that one cannot fully appreciate the beauty and perfection of bhakti-yoga unless one sees its superiority to all other processes. Through comparative analysis, the devotees become fully ecstatic in their appreciation of bhakti-yoga. It should also be understood that although Uddhava asks about those who aspire for liberation, he is not actually a mumukīu, or salvationist; rather, he is asking questions for the benefit of those who are not on the platform of love of Godhead. Uddhava wants to hear this knowledge for his personal appreciation and so that those who pursue salvation, or liberation, can be protected and redirected to the path of pure devotional service to the Supreme Lord.

TEXTS 32-33

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
s$ama @As$ana @As$alna:
s$amak(AyaAe yaTaAs$auKama, h"staAvauts$aËÿ @ADaAya svanaAs$aAfak{(tae°aNA:

‘aANAsya zAAeDayaenmaAgA< paUr"ku(mBak(re"cakE(:
ivapayaRyaeNAAipa zAnaEr," @Byas$aei°aijaRtaein%"ya:

çré-bhagavān uvāca
sama āsana āsēnaù
sama-kāyo yathā-sukham
hastāv utsaì ga ādhāya
sva-nāsāgra-kātekñāēaù

prāēasya çodhayen mārگاà pūra-kumbhaka-recakaiù viparyayeēāpi çanair
abhyasen nirjitendriyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said;
sama—having a level surface; āsane—on the seat; āsēnaù—sitting;
sama-kāyaù—sitting with the body straight and erect;
yathā-sukham—sitting comfortably; hastau—the two hands; utsaì ge—in the lap; ādhāya—placing; sva-nāsa-agra—on the tip of one's own nose; kāta—focusing; ēkñāēaù—the glance; prāēasya—of the breath;
çodhayet—should purify; mārgam—the pathway;
pūra-kumbhaka-recakaiù—by the mechanical breathing exercises, or prāëäyāma; viparyayeëa-by reversing the processes, namely recaka, kumbhaka and püraka; api—also; çanaiù—following the process step by step; abhyaset—one should practice prāëäyāma; nirjita-having controlled; indriyaù—the senses.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: Sitting on a level seat that is not too high or too low, keeping the body straight and erect yet comfortable, placing the two hands on one's lap and focusing the eyes on the tip of one's nose, one should purify the pathways of breathing by practicing the mechanical exercises of püraka, kumbhaka and recaka, and then one should reverse the procedure (recaka, kumbhaka, püraka). Having fully controlled the senses, one may thus practice prāëäyāma step by step.

PURPORT

According to this procedure, the hands are to be placed palms upward, one on top of the other. Thus, one may practice prāëäyāma through mechanical breath control in order to achieve steadiness of the mind. As stated in the yoga-çästra, antar-lakñyo bahir-dāññiù sthira-cittaù susai gataù: "The eyes, which generally see externally, must be turned inward, and thus the mind is steadied and fully controlled."

TEXT 34

ô$âivaicC$namaAe"Mk(ArM" GaNq%AnaAdM" ibas$aAeNARvata,
'aANAenaAed"lyaR taṭaATa pauna: s$aMvaezAyaetsvar"ma, hâdy avicchinam oàkâraà ghaëöä-nâdaà bisorëa-vat präëenodérya tatrâtha

punaù saàveçayet svaram

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

hâdi—in the heart; avicchinna—uninterrupted, continuous; oàkâram—the sacred vibration oà; ghaëä—like a bell; nâdam—sound; bisa-ürëa-vat—like the fiber running up the lotus stalk; prâëena—by the wind of prâëa; udërya—pushing upward; tatra—therein (at a distance of twelve thumb-breadths); atha—thus; punaù—again; saàveçayet—one should join together; svaram—the fifteen vibrations produced with anusvâra.

TRANSLATION

Beginning from the mülâdhâra-cakra, one should move the life air continuously upward like the fibers in the lotus stalk until one reaches the heart, where the sacred syllable oà is situated like the sound of a bell. One should thus continue raising the sacred syllable upward the distance of twelve aî gulas, and there the oàkâra should be joined together with the fifteen vibrations produced with anusvâra.

PURPORT

It appears that the yoga system is somewhat technical and difficult to perform. Anusvâra refers to a nasal vibration pronounced after the fifteen Sanskrit vowels. The complete explanation of this process is extremely complicated and obviously unsuitable for this age. From this description we can appreciate the sophisticated achievements of those who in former ages practiced mystic meditation. Despite such appreciation, however, we should stick firmly to the simple, foolproof method of meditation prescribed for the present age, the chanting of Hare Kâñëa, Hare Kâñëa, Kâñëa Kâñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare R ama, Hare Râma, Râma Râma, Hare Hare.

TEXT 35

WvaM 'aNAvas$aMyau·M(

‘aANamaeva s$amaByas$aeta, d"zAk{(tvaiñSavaNAM
maAs$aAd"vaARigjataAinala:

*evaà praëava-saàyuktaà präëam eva samabhyaset
daça-kâtvas tri-ñavaëaà mäsäd arväg jitānilaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; praëava—with the syllable oà; saàyuktam—joined;
präëam—the präëäyāma system of controlling the bodily airs; eva—indeed;
samabhyaset—one should carefully practice; daça-kâtvaù—ten times;
tri-savanam—at sunrise, noon and sunset; mäsät—one month; arvāk—after;
jita—one will conquer; anilaù—the life air.

TRANSLATION

Being fixed in the oàkāra, one should carefully practice the präëäyāma system ten times at each sunrise, noon and sunset. Thus, after one month one will have conquered the life air.

TEXTS 36-42

ô$tpauNx"r"lk(manta:sTama, ODvaRnaAlamaDaAemauKama, DyaAtvaAeDvaRmauKamaui"ä%"ma, @í"paṭaM s$ak(iNARk(ma, k(iNARk(AyaAM nyas$aets$aUyaR-s$aAemaAçalnauÔar"AeÔar"ma, vai¶"maDyae smare"åU"paM mamaEtaÜ"YaAnamaËylama, s$amaM 'azAAntaM s$aumauKaM

d"IGaRcaAç&catauBauRjama,

s$aucaAç&s$aund"r"falvaM
s$auk(paAelaM zAuicaismatama, s$amaAnak(NARivanyastas$Pu(r"nmak(r"ku(Nx"lama,

he"maAmbarM" GanazyaAmaM ™alvats$a™alinake(tanama, zAËÿca,(gAd"Apaá-vanamaAlaAivaBaUiSatama, naUpaurE"ivaRlas$atpaAdM" k(AEtauBa'aBayaA yautama, âumaitk(r"lq%k(q%k(-

k(iq%$aU‡aAËÿd"Ayautama,

s$avaARËÿs$aund"rM" ô$âM
'as$aAd"s$aumauKae°anama, s$auku(maAr"maiBaDyaAyaeta,
s$avaAR"ËÿSau manaAe d"Data, win%"yaANAlin%"yaATaeRByaAe manas$aAk{(Sya tanmana: bauÜ"YaA s$aAr"iTanaA Dalr":

'aNayaenmaiya s$avaRta:

hât-puëòarëkam antaû-stham ürdhva-nālam adho-mukham dhyātvordhva-mukham unnidram añña-patraà sa-karëikam karëikäyāà nyaset süryasomägnén uttarottaram

vahni-madhye smared rūpaà mamaitad dhyāna-maì galam samaà praçäntaà su-mukhaà

dérgha-cäru-catur-bhujam

*su-cäru-sundara-grévaà su-kapolaà çuci-smitam samäna-karëa-vinyasta-
sphuran-makara-kuëòalam*

hemämbaraà ghana-çyāmaà çrévatsa-çré-niketanam çaì kha-cakra-gadä-padmavanamälä-vibhüñitam

*nüpurair vilasat-pädaà kaustubha-prabhayä yutam dyumat-kirëöa-kaöaka-
kaöi-süträì gadäyutam*

sarvāì ga-sundaraà hādyāà prasāda-sumukheknānam su-kumāram abhidhyāyet sarvāì geñu mano dadhat

indriyāëëndriyārthebhyo manasākāñya tan manaù buddhyä sārathinā dhēraù praëayen mayi sarvataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

hāt—in the heart; puëòarékam—lotus flower; antaù-stham—situated within the body; ürdhva-nālam—having erected the lotus stalk; adhaù-mukham—with eyes half closed, staring at the tip of the nose; dhyätvä—having fixed the mind in meditation; ürdhva-mukham—enlivened; unnidram—alert without dozing off; añña-patram—with eight petals; sa-karëikam—with the whorl of the lotus; karëikāyām—within the whorl; nyaset—one should place by concentration; sūrya—the sun; soma—moon; agnén—and fire; uttara-uttaram—in order, one after the other; vahni-madhye—within the fire; smaret—one should meditate; rūpam—upon the form; mama—My; etat—this; dhyāna-maī galam—the auspicious object of meditation; samam—balanced, all the parts of the body proportionate; praçāntam—gentle; su-mukham—cheerful; dérgha-cāru-catuù-bhujam—having four beautiful long arms; su-cāru—charming; sundara—beautiful; grēvam—neck; su-kapolam—beautiful forehead; çuci-smitam—having a pure smile; samāna—alike; karēa—in the two ears; vinyasta—situated; sphurat—glowing; makara—shaped like sharks; kuëòalam—earrings; hema—golden colored; ambaram—dress; ghana-çyāmam—the color of a dark rain cloud; çré-vatsa—the unique curl of hair on the Lord's chest; çré-niketanam—the abode of the goddess of fortune; çaì kha—with the conchshell; cakra—Sudarçana disc; gadā—club; padma—lotus; vana-mālā—and a garland of forest flowers; vibhūñitam—decorated; nūpuraiù—with ankle bells and bracelets; vilasat—shining; pādam—the lotus feet; kaustubha—of the Kaustubha gem; prabhayā—with the effulgence; yutam—enriched; dyumat—shining; kirēōa—crown or helmet; kaōaka—gold bracelets; kaōi-sūtra—a band for the waist or upper hip; aì gada—bracelets; āyutam—equipped with; sarva-aì ga—all the parts of the body; sundaram—beautiful; hādyam—charming; prasāda—with mercy; sumukha—smiling; ékñāëam—His glance; su-kumāram—most delicate; abhidhyāyet—one should meditate; sarva-aì geñu—in all the parts of the body; manaù—the mind; dadhat—placing; indriyāëi—the material senses; indriya-arthebhyaù—from the object of the senses; manasā—by the mind; ākāñya—pulling back; tat—that; manaù—mind; buddhyā—by intelligence; sārathinā—which is like the driver of a chariot; dhéraù—being grave and self-controlled; praëayet—one should strongly lead; mayi—unto Me; sarvataù—in all limbs of the body.

TRANSLATION

Keeping the eyes half closed and fixed on the tip of one's nose, being enlivened and alert, one should meditate on the lotus flower situated within the heart. This lotus has eight petals and is situated on an erect lotus stalk.

One should meditate on the sun, moon and fire, placing them one after the other within the whorl of that lotus flower. Placing My transcendental form within the fire, one should meditate upon it as the auspicious goal of all meditation. That form is perfectly proportioned, gentle and cheerful. It possesses four beautiful long arms, a charming, beautiful neck, a handsome forehead, a pure smile and glowing, shark-shaped earrings suspended from two identical ears. That spiritual form is the color of a dark rain cloud and is garbed in golden-yellowish silk. The chest of that form is the abode of Çrévatsa and the goddess of fortune, and that form is also decorated with a conchshell, disc, club, lotus flower and garland of forest flowers. The two brilliant lotus feet are decorated with ankle bells and bracelets, and that form exhibits the Kaustubha gem along with an effulgent crown. The upper hips are beautified by a golden belt, and the arms are decorated with valuable bracelets. All of the limbs of that beautiful form capture the heart, and the face is beautified by merciful glancing. Pulling the senses back from the sense objects, one should be grave and self-controlled and should use the intelligence to strongly fix the mind upon all of the limbs of My transcendental body. Thus one should meditate upon that most delicate transcendental form of Mine.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa here answers Uddhava's question concerning the correct procedure, nature and object of meditation for those desiring liberation.

TEXT 43

tats$avaRvyaApakM(icaÔama, @Ak{(SyaEk(†a DaAr"yaeta, naAnyAina icantayaeàU"ya:
s$auismataM BaAvayaenmauKama,

tat sarva-vyāpakaà cittam ākāñyaikatra dhārayet nānyāni cintayed bhūyaù

su-smitaà bhāvayen mukham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—therefore; sarva—in all the parts of the body; vyāpakam—spread; cittam—consciousness; ākāñya—pulling back; ekatra—in one place; dhārayet—one should concentrate; na—not; anyāni—other limbs of the body; cintayet—one should meditate on; bhūyaù—again; su-smitam—wonderfully smiling or laughing; bhāvayet—one should concentrate on; mukham—the face.

TRANSLATION

One should then pull the consciousness back from all the limbs of that transcendental body. At that time, one should meditate only on the wonderfully smiling face of the Lord.

TEXT 44

taṭa labDapadM" icaÔama, @Ak{(Sya vyaAei°a DaAr"yaeta, ta»a tyaftvaA mad"Ar"Aeh"Ae na ik(iÂad"ipa icantayaeta, tatra labdha-padaà cittam ākāñya vyomni dhārayet tac ca tyaktvā mad-āroho na kii cid api cintayet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tatra—in such meditation on the Lord's face; labdha-padam—being established; cittam—consciousness; ākāñya—withdrawing; vyomni—in the sky; dhārayet—one should meditate; tat—such meditation in the sky as the cause of material manifestation; ca—also; tyaktvā—giving up; mat—to Me; ārohaù—having ascended; na—not; kii cit—anything; api—at all;

cintayet—one should think of.

TRANSLATION

Being established in meditation on the Lord's face, one should then withdraw the consciousness and fix it in the sky. Then giving up such meditation, one should become established in Me and give up the process of meditation altogether.

PURPORT

As one becomes established in pure consciousness, the duality of "I am meditating and this is the object of my meditation" vanishes, and one comes to the stage of spontaneous relationship with the Personality of Godhead. Every living entity is originally part and parcel of the Supreme Lord, and when that forgotten eternal relationship is revived one experiences remembrance of the Absolute Truth. In that stage, described here as mad-ārohaù, one no longer sees oneself as a meditator nor the Lord as a mere object of meditation, but rather one enters the spiritual sky for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge in direct loving relationship with the Lord.

Uddhava originally inquired about the procedure of meditation for those desiring liberation. The word labdha-padam indicates that when one fixes the mind upon the Lord's face, one achieves full liberation. In the postliberation phase one then proceeds to render service to the original Personality of Godhead. By giving up the concept of being a meditator, one casts off the last small remnant of illusory energy and sees the Lord as He actually is.

TEXT 45

WvaM s$amaAih"tamaitar," maAmaevaAtmaAnamaAtmaina ivacaíe" maiya s$avaARtmana, jyaAeitajyaAeRitaiSa s$aMyautama,

*evaà samāhita-matir
mām evātmānam ātmani
vicaññe mayi sarvātman
jyotir jyotiñi saàyutam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; samāhita—completely fixed; matir—consciousness; mām—Me; eva—indeed; ātmānam—the individual soul; ātmani—within the individual soul; vicaññe—sees; mayi—in Me; sarva-ātman—in the Supreme Personality of Godhead; jyotiḥ—the sunrays; jyotiñi—within the sun; saàyutam—united.

TRANSLATION

One who has completely fixed his mind on Me should see Me within his own soul and should see the individual soul within Me, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Thus, he sees the individual souls united with the Supreme Soul, just as one sees the sun's rays completely united with the sun.

PURPORT

In the spiritual world everything is naturally effulgent because that is the nature of spirit. Thus when one sees the individual soul as part and parcel of the Supreme Lord, the experience can be compared to seeing the sun's rays emanating from the sun. The Supreme Lord is within the living entity, and simultaneously the living entity is within the Lord. But in both cases the Supreme Lord, and not the living entity, is the maintainer and controller. How happy everyone could be by taking to Kāññā consciousness and finding the Supreme Lord, Kāññā, within everything and everything within Kāññā. Liberated life in Kāññā consciousness is so pleasurable that the greatest misfortune is to be without such consciousness. Çré Kāññā is kindly explaining in many different ways the supremacy of Kāññā consciousness, and fortunate persons will understand the sincere message of the Lord.

TEXT 46

DyaAnaenaetTaM s$autal~aeNA yauÃataAe yaAeigAnaAe mana:
s$AMyaAsyatyaAzAu inavaARNAM %"vya ÁaAnai,(yaA"ama:

dhyānenetthaà su-tévreëa yui jato yogino manaù saàyāsyaty āçu nirvāëaà dravya jī āna-kriyā-bhramaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhyānena—by meditation; ittham—as thus mentioned;
su-tévreëa—extremely concentrated; yui jataù—of one practicing;
yoginaù—of the yogé; manaù—the mind; saàyāsyati—will go together; āçu—quickly; nirvāëam—to extinction; dravya-jī āna-kriyā—based on perception of material objects, knowledge and activities; bhramaù—the illusory identification.

TRANSLATION

When the yogé thus controls his mind by intensely concentrated meditation, his illusory identification with material objects, knowledge and activities is very quickly extinguished.

PURPORT

Because of false material identification, we accept our own body and mind, the bodies and minds of others, and supernatural material control to be ultimate realities. Supernatural control refers to the bodies and minds of the demigods, who ultimately are humble servitors of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Even the mighty sun, which displays immense potencies, obediently treads its universal path by the order of Lord Kāñëa.

It is clearly seen in this chapter that haöha-yoga, karma-yoga, rāja-yoga, etc., are part and parcel of bhakti-yoga and do not actually exist separately. The goal of life is Lord Kāñëa, and one must eventually come to the stage of pure devotion if one desires to perfect one's meditation or yoga practice. In the mature stage of devotion, as described in this chapter, one becomes free from the artificial duality of meditator and object of meditation, and one spontaneously engages in hearing about and glorifying the Supreme Absolute Truth. Such activities of bhakti-yoga are natural because they spring from spontaneous love. When one revives one's original nature as the loving servitor of Lord Kāñëa, other yoga processes cease to be interesting. Uddhava was a pure devotee even before the Lord began His instruction; therefore it was not expected that Uddhava would give up the supreme platform of being a personal associate of the Lord to take up the mechanical exercises of the yoga system. Bhakti-yoga, or devotional service, is so elevated that even in the beginning stages of practice one is considered liberated, because all of one's activities are executed under proper guidance for the pleasure of the Lord. In the haöha-yoga system one is concerned with bodily control, and in jì äna-yoga one is concerned with speculative knowledge. In both systems one endeavors selfishly, desiring to become a great yogé or a philosopher. Such egoistic activity is described in this verse as kriyä. One must give up the illusory designations of dravya, jì äna and kriyä and come to the prideless stage of loving service to the Lord.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda to the Eleventh Canto, Fourteenth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhägavatam, entitled "Lord Kāñëa Explains the Yoga System to Çré Uddhava."

15. Lord Kāñëa's Description of Mystic Yoga Perfections

This chapter describes the eight primary and ten minor mystic perfections. They are developed by fixing one's mind in yoga, but they are ultimately obstructions to achieving the spiritual abode of Lord Viñëu.

Being questioned by Uddhava, Lord Çré Kâñëa describes the characteristics of the eighteen mystic perfections and the particular kind of meditation by which each is achieved. In conclusion, Kâñëa states that for one who desires to perform pure devotional service to the Personality of Godhead, the achievement of these mystic perfections is a waste of time, because they distract one from proper worship. All these perfections are automatically offered to a pure devotee, but he does not accept them. Unless used in the yoga of devotional service, these perfections are valueless. A devotee simply sees that the Personality of Godhead is always present everywhere, both externally and internally, and depends completely upon Him.

TEXT 1

™aIBagAvaAnauvaAca
ijataein%o"yasya yau·(sya ijataiAs$asya yaAeigAna:
maiya DaAr"yataêeta
opaitai"inta is$aÜ"ya:

çré-bhagavän uväca
jitendriyasya yuktasya jita-çväsasya yoginaù
mayi dhärayataç ceta
upatiñöhanti siddhayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; jita-indriyasya—of one who has conquered his senses; yuktasya—who has steadied the mind; jita-çväsasya—and conquered his breathing system; yoginaù—of such a yogé; mayi—in Me; dhärayataù—fixing; cetaù—his consciousness; upatiñöhanti—appear; siddhayaù—the mystic perfections of yoga.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, the mystic perfections of yoga are acquired by a yogé who has conquered his senses, steadied his mind, conquered the breathing process and fixed his mind on Me.

PURPORT

There are eight primary mystic perfections, such as aëimä-siddhi, and ten secondary perfections. In this Fifteenth Chapter Lord Kâñëa will explain that such mystic perfections are actually impediments to the development of Kâñëa consciousness, and that therefore one should not desire them.

TEXT 2

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
k(yaA DaAr"NayaA k(A isvata, k(TaM vaA is$aiÜ"r"cyauta k(ita vaA is$aÜ"yaAe "aUih" yaAeigAnaAM is$aiÜ"d"Ae BavaAna,

çré-uddhava uvāca
kayā dhāraëayā kā svit
kathaà vā siddhir acyuta kati vā siddhaya brühi
yoginäà siddhi-do bhavān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; kayā—by what; dhāraëayā—process of meditation; kā svit—which indeed; katham—in what manner; vā—or; siddhiù—mystic perfection; acyuta—My dear Lord; kati—how many;

vä—or; siddhayaù—perfections; brühi—please speak; yoginäm—of all yogés; siddhi-daù—the giver of mystic perfections; bhavän—You.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Lord Acyuta, by what process can mystic perfection be achieved, and what is the nature of such perfection? How many mystic perfections are there? Please explain these things to me. Indeed, You are the bestower of all mystic perfections.

TEXT 3

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca is$aÜ"yaAe'í"Ad"zA 'aAe·(A DaAr"NAA yaAegApaAr"gAE:
taAs$aAmaí"AE mat'aDaAnaA d"zAEva gAuNAhe"tava:

çré-bhagavän uväca
siddhayaù 'ñöädaça proktä dhäraëä yoga-pära-gaiù täsäm añöau mat-pradhänä daçaiva guëa-hetavaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavän uväca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; siddhayaù—mystic perfections; añöädaça—eighteen; proktäù—are declared; dhäraëäù—meditations; yoga—of yoga; pära-gaiù—by the masters; täsäm—of the eighteen; añöau—eight; mat-pradhänäù—have their shelter in Me; daça—ten; eva—indeed; guëa-hetavaù—are manifested from the material mode of goodness.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: The masters of the yoga system have declared that there are eighteen types of mystic perfection and meditation, of which eight are primary, having their shelter in Me, and ten are secondary, appearing from the material mode of goodness.

PURPORT

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura explains the word mat pradhānāu as follows. Lord Kāñēa is naturally the shelter of the eight primary mystic potencies and meditations because such perfections emanate from the Lord's personal potency, and thus they are fully developed only within the Lord Himself and the Lord's personal associates. When materialistic persons mechanically acquire such potencies, the perfections awarded are of an inferior degree and are considered to be manifestations of māyā, illusion. A pure devotee of the Lord automatically receives from the Lord wonderful potencies to execute his devotional service. If for sense gratification one mechanically endeavors to acquire mystic perfections, then these perfections are certainly considered to be inferior expansions of the Lord's external potency.

TEXTS 4-5

@iNAmaA maih"maA maUtaeRr," laiGamaA 'aAiæair"in%"yaE:
'aAk(AmyaM™autaä{"ie"Sau zAi-(‘aer"NAmalizAtaA

gAuNAeSvas$aĒyAe vaizAtaA yatk(Amastad"vasyaita WtaA mae is$aÜ"ya: s$aAEmya @í"AvaAEtpaiŌak(A mataA:

aëimā mahimā mūrter laghimā prāptir indriyaiù prākāmyaà çruta-dāñōeñu

çakti-preraëam èçitā guëëñv asaì go vaçitā yat-kāmas tad avasyati
etā me siddhayaù saumya añöäv autpattikā mataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aëimā—the perfection of becoming smaller than the smallest; mahimā—becoming greater than the greatest; mürteù—of the body; laghimā—becoming lighter than the lightest; prāptiù—acquisition; indriyaiù—by the senses; prākāmyam—obtaining or performing whatever one desires; çruta—things invisible, about which one only hears; dāñöeñu—and things visible; çakti-preraëam—manipulating the subpotencies of māyā; èçitā—the perfection of controlling; guëëñu—in the modes of material nature; asaì gaù—being unobstructed; vaçitā—the power to bring others under control; yat—whatever; kāmaù—desire (there may be); tat—that; avasyati—one can obtain; etāù—these; me—My (potencies); siddhayaù—mystic perfections; saumya—O gentle Uddhava; añöau—eight; autpattikāù—natural and unexcelled; mataù—understood to be.

TRANSLATION

Among the eight primary mystic perfections, the three by which one transforms one's own body are aëimā, becoming smaller than the smallest; mahimā, becoming greater than the greatest; and laghimā, becoming lighter than the lightest. Through the perfection of prāpti one acquires whatever one desires, and through prākāmya-siddhi one experiences any enjoyable object, either in this world or the next. Through içitā-siddhi one can manipulate the subpotencies of māyā, and through the controlling potency called vaçitā-siddhi one is unimpeded by the three modes of nature. One who has acquired kāmavasāyitā-siddhi can obtain anything from anywhere, to the highest possible limit. My dear gentle Uddhava, these eight mystic perfections are considered to be naturally existing and unexcelled within this world.

PURPORT

Through aëimā-siddhi one can become so small that one can enter a stone or pass through any obstacle. Through mahimā-siddhi one becomes so great that one covers everything, and through laghimā one becomes so light that one can ride on the sun's rays into the sun planet. Through prāpti-siddhi one can acquire anything from anywhere and can even touch the moon with one's finger. By this mystic perfection one can also enter into the senses of any other living entity through the predominating deities of the particular senses; and by thus utilizing the senses of others, one can acquire anything. Through prākāmya one can experience any enjoyable object, either in this world or the next, and through ēcitā, or the controlling potency, one can manipulate the subpotencies of māyā, which are material. In other words, even by acquiring mystic powers one cannot pass beyond the control of illusion; however, one may manipulate the subpotencies of illusion. Through vaçitā, or the power to control, one can bring others under one's dominion or keep oneself beyond the control of the three modes of nature. Ultimately, one acquires through kāmāvasāyitā the maximum powers of control, acquisition and enjoyment. The word autpattikāu in this verse indicates being original, natural and unexcelled. These eight mystic potencies originally exist in the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Kāñëa, in the superlative degree. Lord Kāñëa becomes so small that He enters within the atomic particles, and He becomes so large that as Mahā-viñëu He breathes out millions of universes. The Lord can become so light or subtle that even great mystic yogés cannot perceive Him, and the Lord's acquisitive power is perfect, because He keeps the total existence eternally within His body. The Lord certainly can enjoy whatever He likes, control all energies, dominate all other persons and exhibit complete omnipotency. Therefore it is to be understood that these eight mystic perfections are insignificant expansions of the mystic potency of the Lord, who in Bhagavad-gētā is called Yogeçvara, the Supreme Lord of all mystic potencies. These eight perfections are not artificial, but are natural and unexcelled because they originally exist in the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXTS 6-7

@naUimaRmaÔvaM de"he""ismana, äU"r"™avaNAd"zARnama, manaAejava: k(Amaè&paM par"k(Aya'avaezAnama,

svacC$nd"ma{tyaudeR"vaAnaAM s$ah", (Lx"Anaud"zARnama, yaTaAs$aÆÿlpas$aMis$aïÜ"r," @AÁaA'aitah"taA gAita:

anürmimattvaà dehe 'smin düra-çravaëa-darçanam mano-javaù käma-rüpaà para-käya-praveçanam

svacchanda-mâtyur devänäà saha-krèòänudarçanam yathä-saì kalpa-saàsiddhir äji äpratihatä gatiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

anürmi-mattvam—being undisturbed by hunger, thirst, etc.; dehe asmin—in this body; düra—things very far away; çravaëa—hearing; darçanam—and seeing; manaù-javaù—moving the body at the speed of the mind; käma-rüpam—assuming any body that one desires; para-käya—the bodies of others; praveçanam—entering; sva-chanda—according to one's own desire; mâtyuù—dying; devänäm—of the demigods; saha—together with (the celestial girls); krèòä—the sporting pastimes; anudarçanam—witnessing; yathä—according to; saì kalpa—one's determination; saàsiddhiù—perfect accomplishment; äji ä—order; apratihatä—unimpeded; gatiù—whose progress.

TRANSLATION

The ten secondary mystic perfections arising from the modes of nature are the powers of freeing oneself from hunger and thirst and other bodily disturbances, hearing and seeing things far away, moving the body at the speed of the mind, assuming any form one desires, entering the bodies of others, dying when one desires, witnessing the pastimes between the demigods and the celestial girls called Apsarās, completely executing one's determination and giving orders whose fulfillment is unimpeded.

TEXTS 8-9

iṭak(AlaÁatvamaã"nāM"
par"icaÔaAâiBaÁataA @gnyak(ARmbauivaSaAd"lnaAM
'aitaí"mBaAe'par"Ajaya:

WtaAêAeÚe"zAta: 'aAe·(A yaAegADaAr"NAis$aÜ"ya: yayaA DaAr"NayaA yaA syaAä," yaTaA vaA syaAi³abaAeDa mae tri-kāla-ji atvam advandvaà para-cittādy-abhijī atā agny-arkāmbu-viñādēnāà pratiññāmbho 'parājayaù *etāç coddeçataù proktā yoga-dhāraëa-siddhayaù yayā dhāraëayā yā syād

yathā vā syān nibodha me*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tri-kāla-jī atvam—the perfection of knowing past, present and future; advandvam—being unaffected by dualities such as heat and cold; para—of others; citta—the mind; ādi—and so on; abhijī atā—knowing; agni—of fire; arka—the sun; ambu—water; viñā—of poison; ādénām—and so on; pratiññambhaù—checking the potency; aparājayaù—not being conquered by others; etāù—these; ca—also; uddeçataù—merely by mentioning their names and characteristics; proktāù—are described; yoga—of the yoga system; dhāraëa—of meditation; siddhayaù—perfections; yayā—by which; dhāraëayā—meditation; yā—which (perfection); syāt—may occur; yathā—by which means; vā—or; syāt—may occur; nibodha—please learn; me—from Me.

TRANSLATION

The power to know past, present and future; tolerance of heat, cold and other dualities; knowing the minds of others; checking the influence of fire, sun, water, poison, and so on; and remaining unconquered by others—these constitute five perfections of the mystic process of yoga and meditation. I am simply listing these here according to their names and characteristics. Now please learn from Me how specific mystic perfections arise from specific meditations and also of the particular processes involved.

PURPORT

According to the ācāryas these five perfections are considered to be quite inferior to the others already mentioned, since they involve more or less ordinary physical and mental manipulations. According to Çréla Madhvācārya, in the perfection called agny-arkāmbu-viñādénā à pratiññambhaù, or checking the influence of fire, sun, water, poison, and so on, the term "and so on" refers to one's remaining invulnerable to all types of weapons as well as attacks by nails, teeth, beating, curses and other such sources.

TEXT 10

BaUtas$aU^omaAtmaina maiya tanmaAḥaM DaAr"yaenmana: @iNAmaAnamavaA«aAeita tanmaAḥaAepaAs$ak(Ae mama

*bhūta-sūkīmtmani mayi tat-mātraḥ dhārayen manaḥ aīmanam avāpnoti
tat-mātropāsako mama*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhūta-sūkīma—of the subtle elements; ātmani—in the soul; mayi—in Me; tat-mātram—on the subtle, elemental forms of perception; dhārayet—one should concentrate; manaḥ—the mind; aīmanam—the mystic perfection called aīmā; avāpnoti—obtains; tat-mātra—in the subtle elements; upāsakaḥ—the worshiper; mama—My.

TRANSLATION

One who worships Me in My atomic form pervading all subtle elements, fixing his mind on that alone, obtains the mystic perfection called aīmā.

PURPORT

Aīmā refers to the mystic ability to make oneself smaller than the smallest and thus able to enter within anything. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is within the atoms and atomic particles, and one who perfectly fixes his mind in that subtle atomic form of the Lord acquires the mystic potency called aīmā, by which one can enter within even the most dense matter such as stone.

TEXT 11

mah"ÔaÔvaAtmaina maiya yaTaAs$aMsTaM manaAe d"Data, maih"maAnamavaA«aAeita BaUtaAnaAM ca pa{Tafpa{Tak,( *mahat-tattvātmani mayi yathā-saàsthaà mano dadhat mahimānam avāpnoti

bhūtānāà ca pāthak pāthak*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mahat-tattva—of the total material energy; ātmani—in the Soul; mayi—in Me; yathā—according to; saàstham—the particular situation; manaù—the mind; dadhat—fixing; mahimānam—the mystic perfection called mahimā; avāpnoti—one achieves; bhūtānām—of the material elements; ca—also; pāthak pāthak—each one individually.

TRANSLATION

One who absorbs his mind in the particular form of the mahat-tattva and thus meditates upon Me as the Supreme Soul of the total material existence achieves the mystic perfection called mahimā. By further absorbing the mind in the situation of each individual element such as the sky, air, fire, and so on, one progressively acquires the greatness of each material element.

PURPORT

There are innumerable verses in Vedic literatures explaining that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is qualitatively not different from His creation and thus a yogē may meditate upon the total material existence as a manifestation of the external potency of the Lord. Once the yogē has established his realization that the material creation is not different from the Lord, he obtains the perfection called mahimā-siddhi. By realizing the Lord's presence in each individual element the yogē also acquires the greatness of each element. However, the pure devotees are not very interested in such perfections because they are surrendered to the Personality of Godhead, who exhibits such perfections to the infinite degree. Being always protected by the Lord, the pure devotees save their precious time to chant Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare. Thus they achieve for themselves and others sañsiddhi, or the supreme perfection, pure love of Godhead, Kāñëa consciousness, by which one expands one's existence beyond the total material creation to the spiritual planets called Vaikuëöha.

TEXT 12

par"maANaumayae icaÔaM BaUtaAnaAM maiya r"Ãayana, k(Alas$aU°maATaRtaAM yaAegAl laiGamaAnamavaA«auyaAta,

paramäëu-maye cittaà bhütänäà mayi rai jayan kāla-sūkīmarthatāà yogē laghimānam avāpnuyāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

parama-aëu-maye—in the form of atoms; cittam—his consciousness; bhütänām—of the material elements; mayi—in Me; rai jayan—attaching; kāla—of time; sūkīma—subtle; arthatām—being the substance; yogē—the yogē; laghimānam—the mystic perfection laghimā; avāpnuyāt—may obtain.

TRANSLATION

I exist within everything, and I am therefore the essence of the atomic constituents of material elements. By attaching his mind to Me in this form, the yogē may achieve the perfection called laghimā, by which he realizes the subtle atomic substance of time.

PURPORT

Çrémad-Bhāgavatam elaborately explains that kāla, or time, is the transcendental form of the Lord that moves the material world. Since the five gross elements are composed of atoms, the atomic particles are the subtle substance or manifestation of the movements of time. More subtle than time is the Personality of Godhead Himself, who expands His potency as the time factor. By understanding all these things clearly the yogé obtains laghimā-siddhi, or the power to make himself lighter than the lightest.

TEXT 13

DaAr"yanmayyahM"taÔvae manaAe vaEk(Air"ke('iKalama,
s$avaeRin%"yaANAAmaAtmatvaM
'aAiæaM 'aA«aAeita manmanaA:

dhārayan mayy ahaà-tattve mano vaikārike 'khilam sarvendriyäääm ätmatvaà prāptià prāpnoti man-manäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhārayan—concentrating; mayi—in Me; aham-tattve—within the element of false ego; manaù—the mind; vaikārike—in that which is produced from the mode of goodness; akhilam—completely; sarva—of all living entities; indriyäääm—of the senses; ätmatvam—proprietorship; prāptim—the mystic perfection of acquisition; prāpnoti—obtains; mat-manäù—the yogé whose mind is fixed in Me.

TRANSLATION

Fixing his mind completely in Me within the element of false ego generated from the mode of goodness, the yogé obtains the power of mystic acquisition, by which he becomes the proprietor of the senses of all living entities. He obtains such perfection because his mind is absorbed in Me.

PURPORT

It is significant that in order to acquire each mystic perfection one must fix one's mind on the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Çrëla Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvatë Öhäkura states that those who pursue such perfections without fixing the mind in the Supreme Lord acquire a gross and inferior reflection of each mystic potency. Those who are not conscious of the Lord cannot actually synchronize their minds perfectly with the universal functions and therefore cannot elevate their mystic opulences to the universal platform.

TEXT 14

mah"tyaAtmaina ya: s$aUṭae DaAr"yaenmaiya maAnas$ama,
'aAk(AmyaM paAr"maei"YaM mae ivand"tae'vya·(janmana:

mahaty ätmani yaù sùtre dhārayen mayi mānasam prākāmyaà pārameñōhyaà me vindate 'vyakta-janmanaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mahati—in the mahat-tattva; ätmani—in the Supersoul; yaù—one who; sùtre—characterized by the chain of fruitive activities; dhārayet—should concentrate; mayi—in Me; mānasam—the mental activities; prākāmyam—the mystic perfection called prākāmya; pārameñōhyam—most excellent; me—from Me; vindate—obtains or enjoys; avyakta-janmanaù—from Him whose appearance in this world cannot be materially perceived.

TRANSLATION

One who concentrates all mental activities in Me as the Supersoul of that phase of the mahat-tattva which manifests the chain of fruitive activities obtains from Me, whose appearance is beyond material perception, the most excellent mystic perfection called prākāmya.

PURPORT

Çréla Véaraṛāghava Ācārya explains that the word sūtra, or "thread," is used to indicate that the mahat-tattva sustains one's fruitive activities just as a thread sustains a row of jewels. Thus by fixed meditation on the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is the soul of the mahat-tattva, one can achieve the most excellent perfection called prākāmya. Avyakta-janmanaù indicates that the Supreme Personality of Godhead appears from the avyakta, or the spiritual sky, or that His birth is avyakta, beyond the perception of material senses. Unless one accepts the transcendental form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, there is no possibility of obtaining prākāmya or any other genuine mystic perfection.

TEXT 15

ivaSNAAE ‡yaDalire" icaÔaM DaAr"yaetk(Alaivafahe"
s$a wRizAtvamavaA«aAeita °ae‡aÁa°ae‡acaAed"naAma, *viñëau try-adhēçvare cittaà dhārayet kāla-vigrahe sa ēçitvam avāpnoti

kñetrajī a-kñetra-codanām*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viñëau—in Lord Viñëu, the Supersoul; tri-adhēçvare—the supreme controller of māyā, which consists of three modes of nature; cittam—the consciousness; dhārayet—one concentrates; kāla—of time, the prime mover; vigrahe—in the form; saù—he, the yogé; éçitvam—the mystic perfection of controlling; avāpnoti—obtains; kñetra-jīa—the conscious living entity; kñetra—and the body with its designations; codanām—impelling.

TRANSLATION

One who places his consciousness on Viñëu, the Supersoul, the prime mover and Supreme Lord of the external energy consisting of three modes, obtains the mystic perfection of controlling other conditioned souls, their material bodies and their bodily designations.

PURPORT

We should remember that mystic perfection never enables a living entity to challenge the supremacy of the Personality of Godhead. In fact, one cannot obtain such perfections without the mercy of the Supreme Lord; thus one's controlling power can never disturb the plan of Lord Kāñëa. One is allowed to exhibit mystic control only within the confines of the law of God, and even a great yogé who transgresses the law of God by his so-called mystic opulences will be severely punished, as revealed in the story of Durväsä Muni cursing Ambarëña Mahäräja.

TEXT 16

naAr"AyaNAe taur"lyaAKyae BagAvacC$bd"zAibd"tae manaAe mayyaAd"DaâAegAl maÜ"maAR vaizAtaAimayaAta,

*näräyaëe turéyäkhye
bhagavac-chabda-çabdite mano mayy ädadhah yogé
mad-dharmä vaçitäm iyät*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nārāyaëe—in the Supreme Lord, Nārāyaëa; turéya-ākhye—known as the fourth, beyond the three modes of material nature; bhagavat—full of all opulences; çabda-çabdite—known by the word; manaù—the mind; mayi—in Me; ädadhat—placing; yogé—the yogé; mat-dharmä—being endowed with My nature; vaçitäm—the mystic opulence called vaçitä; iyät—may obtain.

TRANSLATION

The yogé who places his mind in My form of Nārāyaëa, known as the fourth factor, full of all opulences, becomes endowed with My nature and thus obtains the mystic perfection called vaçitä.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gétä (7.13) Lord Kāñëa states, *tribhir guëa-mayair bhävair ebhiù sarvam idaà jagat mohitaà nābhijānāti

mām ebhyaù param avyayam*

"Deluded by the three modes [goodness, passion and ignorance], the whole world does not know Me, who am above the modes and inexhaustible." Thus the Lord is called turéya, or the fourth factor beyond the three modes of nature. According to Çréla Vërarāghava Äcärya, turéya also indicates that the Lord is beyond the three ordinary phases of consciousness, namely wakefulness, dreaming and dreamless sleep. Bhaga-vac-chabda-çabdite indicates that the Lord is known as Bhagavän, or the possessor of unlimited opulences, principally beauty, fame, wealth, knowledge, renunciation and intelligence.

In conclusion, one can obtain the mystic opulence vaçitä, or freedom from the modes of nature, by meditating upon the Lord as turéya, the fourth factor beyond those modes. Everything depends upon the favor of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 17

inagAuRNAe "aöiNA maiya DaAr"yana, ivazAdM" mana:
par"maAnand"maA«aAeita yaṭa k(AmaAe'vas$alyatae

*nirguëe brahmaëi mayi dhārayan viçadaà manaù paramānandam āpnoti
yatra kāmo 'vaséyate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

nirguëe—without qualities; brahmaëi—in Brahman; mayi—in Me;
dhārayan—concentrating; viçadam—pure; manaù—the mind;
parama-ānandam—the greatest happiness; āpnoti—obtains;
yatra—wherein; kāmaù—desire; avaséyate—is completely fulfilled.

TRANSLATION

One who fixes his pure mind on Me in My manifestation as the impersonal Brahman obtains the greatest happiness, wherein all his desires are completely fulfilled.

PURPORT

Paramānanda, or "the greatest happiness," here indicates the greatest material happiness, since it is clearly stated in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam that a devotee has no personal desire, or kāma. One who has personal desire is certainly within the material world, and on the material platform the greatest happiness is kāmavasāyitā-siddhi, or the perfection of completely obtaining anything that one desires.

TEXT 18

ìetaã"lpapataAE icaÔaM
zAuÜe" DamaRmayae maiya DaAr"yaHC.$vaetataAM yaAita Sax"^imaRr"ih"taAe nar":

çvetadvépa-patau cittaà çuddhe dharma-maye mayi dhārayaī chvetatāà yāti ñāō-ürmi-rahito naraù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çveta-dvépa—of the white island, the abode of Kñérodakaçäyé Viñëu; patau—in the Lord; cittam—consciousness; çuddhe—in the personification of goodness; dharma-maye—in He who is always situated in piety; mayi—in Me; dhārayan—concentrating; çvetatām—pure existence; yāti—obtains; ñāō-ürmi—the six waves of material disturbance; rahitaù—freed from;
naraù—a person.

TRANSLATION

A human being who concentrates on Me as the upholder of religious principles, the personification of purity and the Lord of Çvetadvépa obtains the pure existence in which he is freed from the six waves of material disturbance, namely hunger, thirst, decay, death, grief and illusion.

PURPORT

The Lord now begins to explain the processes for obtaining the ten secondary mystic perfections derived from the modes of nature. Within the material world Lord Viñëu, addressed here as çvetadvépa-pati, the Lord of Çvetadvépa, governs the material mode of goodness and is thus called çuddha and dharma-maya, or the personification of purity and piety. By worshiping Lord Viñëu as the personification of material goodness one obtains the material benediction of freedom from bodily disturbance.

TEXT 19

mayyaAk(AzAAatmaina 'aANAe manas$aA GaAeSamauã"h"na, taḥaAepalabDaA BaUtaAnaAM hM"s$aAe vaAca: Za{NAAetyas$aAE

*mayy ākāçātmani prāëe manasā ghoñam udvahan tatropalabdhā bhütänäà
haàso vācaù çãëoty asau*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mayi—in Me; ākāça-ātmani—in the personification of the sky; prāëe—in the life air; manasā—with the mind; ghoñam—the transcendental sound; udvahan—concentrating on; tatra—there in the sky; upalabdhāù—perceived; bhütänām—of all living entities; haàsaù—the purified living entity; vācaù—words or speaking; çãëoti—hears; asau—he.

TRANSLATION

That purified living entity who fixes his mind on the extraordinary sound vibrations occurring within Me as the personified sky and total life air is then able to perceive within the sky the speaking of all living entities.

PURPORT

Speech occurs by vibrating air within the sky. One who meditates on the Supreme Lord as the personified sky and air thereby acquires the ability to hear that which is vibrated at great distance. The word prāëa indicates that the Lord is the personified life air of the individual living entities and for the total aggregate of life forms. Ultimately, the pure devotees meditate on the supreme vibration—Hare Kāñëa, Hare Kāñëa, Kāñëa Kāñëa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare—and are thus able to hear the speech originating from liberated living entities far beyond the material universe. Any living entity can hear such discussions by reading Çrémad-Bhāgavatam, Bhagavad-gétā and other such literatures. One who has properly understood the opulences of the Supreme Personality of Godhead finds all perfection, mystic and otherwise, in Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 20

ca^oaustvaí"ir" s$aMyaAejya tvaí"Ar"maipa ca^oauíSa maAM taḥa manas$aA DyaAyana, ivaíM pazyaita äU"r"ta:

cakñus tvaññari saàyojya tvaññāram api cakñuñi māà tatra manasā dhyāyan viçvaà paçyati dūrataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

cakñuù—the eyes; tvaññari—in the sun; saàyojya—merging; tvaññāram—the sun; api—also; cakñuñi—in one's eyes; mām—Me; tatra—there, in the mutual merging of sun and eye; manasā—with the mind; dhyāyan—meditating; viçvam—everything; paçyati—he sees; dūrataù—far away.

TRANSLATION

Merging one's sight into the sun planet and then the sun planet into one's eyes, one should meditate on Me as existing within the combination of sun and vision; thus one acquires the power to see any distant thing.

TEXT 21

manaAe maiya s$aus$aMyaAejya de"hM" tad"nauvaAyaunaA maÜ"Ar"NAAnauBaAvaena
taṭaAtmaA yaṭa vaE mana:

*mano mayi su-saàyojya
dehaà tad-anuväyunä
mad-dhāraëänubhāvena
tatrātmā yatra vai manaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

manaù—the mind; mayi—in Me; su-saàyojya—completely absorbing; deham—the material body; tat—the mind; anu-väyunä—by the wind that follows; mat-dhāraëä—of meditation in Me; anubhāvena—by the potency; tatra—there; ātmā—the material body (goes); yatra—wherever;
vai—certainly; manaù—the mind (goes).

TRANSLATION

The yogë who completely absorbs his mind in Me, and who then makes use of the wind that follows the mind to absorb the material body in Me, obtains through the potency of meditation on Me the mystic perfection by which his body immediately follows his mind wherever it goes.

PURPORT

Tad-anuväyunä indicates the particular subtle air that follows the mind. When the yogë merges this air together with the body and mind in Kāñëa by the potency of meditation on the Lord, his gross material body, like the subtle air, can follow the mind anywhere. This perfection is called mano-javaù.

TEXT 22

yad"A mana opaAd"Aya
yaââU"paM bauBaUSaita taÔaà"vaenmanaAeè&paM maâAegAbalamaA™aya:

*yadä mana upädäya
yad yad rūpaà bubhūñati tat tad bhaven mano-rūpaà mad-yoga-balam āçrayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadä—when; manaù—the mind; upädäya—applying; yat yat—whatever; rūpam—form; bubhūñati—one desires to assume; tat tat—that very form; bhavet—may appear; manaù-rūpam—the form desired by the mind; mat-yoga-balam—My inconceivable mystic potency, by which I manifest innumerable forms; āçrayaù—being the shelter.

TRANSLATION

When the yogé, applying his mind in a certain way, desires to assume a particular form, that very form immediately appears. Such perfection is possible by absorbing the mind in the shelter of My inconceivable mystic potency, by which I assume innumerable forms.

PURPORT

This perfection is called kāma-rūpa, or the ability to assume any form that one desires, even the form of a demigod. The pure devotees absorb their minds in a particular type of service to Lord Kāñëa and thus gradually assume a spiritual body for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. Thus anyone who takes to the process of chanting the holy names of Kāñëa and follows the regulative principles of human life can acquire the ultimate perfection of kāma-rūpa, assuming an eternal, spiritual body in the kingdom of God.

TEXT 23

par" k(AyaM ivazAna, is$aÜ" @AtmaAnaM taṭa BaAvayaeta, ipaNxM" ih"tvaA ivazAet'aANAAe vaAyauBaUta: Sax"x.~i,,avata, para-kāyaà viçan siddha ātmānaà tatra bhāvayet piëòaaà hitvā viçet prāëo vāyu-bhūtaù ñaòai ghri-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

para—of another; kāyam—the body; viçan—desiring to enter; siddhaù—one perfected in yoga practice; ātmānam—oneself; tatra—in that body; bhāvayet—imagines; piëòam—one's own gross body; hitvā—giving up; viçet—one should enter; prāëaù—in the subtle body; vāyu-bhūtaù—becoming just like the wind; ñaòai ghri-vat—like the bee, who easily moves from one flower to another.

TRANSLATION

When a perfect yogë desires to enter another's body, he should meditate upon himself within the other body, and then, giving up his own gross body, he should enter the other's body through the pathways of air, as easily as a bee leaves one flower and flies into another.

PURPORT

As air is inhaled into the body through the nostrils and mouth, similarly, the life air of the yogé's subtle body travels through the pathways of external air and easily enters into the body of another person, just as the bee easily flies from flower to flower. One may admire a heroic man or beautiful woman and desire to experience life within their extraordinary material body. Such opportunities are available through the mystic perfection called para-kāya-praveṣanam. Pure devotees, being absorbed in meditation upon the spiritual form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, are not actually attracted to any material body. Thus the devotees remain transcendental and satisfied on the platform of eternal life.

TEXT 24

paASNyaARpalx"Ya gAudM" 'aANAM ô$äu"r":k(NQ&maUDaRs$au @Ar"Aepya "aör"n'aeNA
"aö naltvaAets$a{jaeÔanauma, pārīṇyāpēṇya gudaṁ prāṇam hāt-urāṁ-kaēṇha-mūrdhasu āropya brahma-randhreṇa brahma nētvotsājet tanum

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pārīṇyā—with the heel of the foot; āpēṇya—blocking; gudam—the anus; prāṇam—the vital air carrying the living entity; hāt—from the heart; urāṁ—to the chest; kaēṇha—to the neck; mūrdhasu—and to the head; āropya—placing; brahma-randhreṇa—by the spiritual seat at the top of the head; brahma—to the spiritual world or impersonal Brahman (or any other destination one has selected); nētvā—leading (the soul); utsājet—one should give up; tanum—the material body.

TRANSLATION

The yogé who has achieved the mystic perfection called svacchanda-mātyu blocks the anus with the heel of the foot and then lifts the soul from the heart to the chest, to the neck and finally to the head. Situated within the brahma-randhra, the yogé then gives up his material body and guides the spirit soul to the selected destination.

PURPORT

This mystic opulence of svacchandu-mātyu, or dying at will, was wonderfully exhibited by Bhéñmadeva at the end of the Battle of Kurukīetra. According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, the term brahma, as used in this verse, is an example of upalakñāëa, or the use of a general term to indicate various concepts. Brahma here indicates the particular destination selected by the yogé, namely the spiritual sky, the impersonal brahma-jyotir or any other destination that has attracted the yogé's mind.

TEXT 25

ivah"ir"Syana, s$aur"A,(Lxe" matsTaM s$aÔvaM ivaBaAvayaeta, ivamaAnaenaAepaitaï"inta s$aÔvava{Ôal: s$aur"iñya:

vihariñyan suräkréòe mat-sthaà sattvaà vibhävayet vimānenopatiñöhanti
sattva-våttéù sura-striyaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vihariñyan—desiring to enjoy; sura—of the demigods; äkréòe—in the pleasure gardens; mat—in Me; stham—situated; sattvam—the mode of goodness; vibhävayet—one should meditate on; vimānena—by airplane; upatiñöhanti—they arrive; sattva—in the mode of goodness; våttéù—appearing; sura—of the demigods; striyaù—the women.

TRANSLATION

The yogi who desires to enjoy in the pleasure gardens of the demigods should meditate on the purified mode of goodness, which is situated within Me, and then the heavenly women, generated from the mode of goodness, will approach him in airplanes.

TEXT 26

yaTaA s$aÆy|payaeä," bauÜ"YaA
yad"A vaA matpar": paumaAna, maiya s$atyae manaAe yauÃaMs$a, taTaA tats$amaupaA´autae

yathä saì kalpayed buddhyä yadä vä mat-paraù pumän mayi satye mano yui'jaàs tathä tat samupäçnute

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yathä—by which means; saì kalpayet—one may determine or resolve; buddhyä—by the mind; yadä—when; vä—or; mat-paraù—having faith in Me; pumän—the yogé; mayi—in Me; satye—whose desire always becomes truth; manaù—the mind; yui'jan—absorbing; tathä—by that means; tat—that very purpose; samupäçnute—he obtains.

TRANSLATION

A yogi who has faith in Me, absorbing his mind in Me and knowing that My purpose is always fulfilled, will always achieve his purpose by the very means he has determined to follow.

PURPORT

In this verse the word yadä ("whenever") indicates that by the mystic power called yathä-sai kalpa-saäsiddhi one will achieve one's objective even if one pursues it at an inauspicious time. Lord Kāñëa is called satya-sai kalpa, or He whose desire, intention, purpose or resolve always comes to pass.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura mentions that one should determine to revive one's lost relationship with the Supreme Lord Kāñëa through the infallible means of devotional service, which can be executed at any time or in any place. There are many books giving proper guidance for achieving Lord Kāñëa, and the following are mentioned: Çréla Jēva Gosvāmé's Sai kalpa-kalpavākñā, Çréla Kāñëadāsa Kavirāja's Çré Govinda-lélāmāta, Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté's Çré Kāñëa-bhāvanāmāta and Sai kalpa-kalpadruma, and Çréla Bhaktivinoda Öhākura's Çré Gaurāi ga-smaraëa-mai gala. In the modern age, His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swami Prabhupāda has given us over sixty large volumes of transcendental literature, which can fix us firmly on the path back home, back to Godhead. Our sai kalpa, or determination, should be practical and not useless. We should resolve to make a permanent solution to the problems of life by going back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 27

yaAe vaE maà"AvamaApa^a wRizAtauvaRizAtau: paumaAna, ku(taiê^a ivah"nyaeta
tasya caAÁaA yaTaA mama *yo vai mad-bhāvam āpanna éçitur vaçituù pumän kutaçcin na vihanjeta

tasya cāji ä yathä mama*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who (a yogé); vai—indeed; mat—from Me; bhāvam—nature; āpannaù—achieved; éçituù—from the supreme ruler; vaçituù—the supreme controller; pumän—a person (yogè); kutaçcit—in any way; na vihanyeta—cannot be frustrated; tasya—his; ca—also; äji'ä—order, command; yathä—just as; mama—Mine.

TRANSLATION

A person who perfectly meditates on Me acquires My nature of being the supreme ruler and controller. His order, like Mine, can never be frustrated by any means.

PURPORT

By the command of the Supreme Personality of Godhead the entire creation is moving. As stated in Bhagavad-gētä (9.10), *mayädhyakñeëa prakätiù süyate sa-caräcaram hetunäna kaunteya

jagad viparivartate*

"This material nature is working under My direction, O son of Kunté, and it is producing all moving and unmoving beings. By its rule this manifestation is created and annihilated again and again." Similarly, Caitanya Mahäprabhu has given His command that people all over the world should take to Kânëa consciousness. The sincere devotees of the Lord should go all over the world repeating the Lord's command. In this way, they can share in His mystic opulence of giving orders that cannot be counteracted.

TEXT 28

maà"ftyaA zAuÜ"s$aÔvasya yaAeigAnaAe DaAr"NAAivad": tasya ‡aEk(Ailak(L bauiÜ"r," janmama{tyaUpaba{Mih"taA

*mad-bhaktyä çuddha-sattvasya yogino dhāraëä-vidaù
tasya trai-kāliké buddhir janma-mātyüpabâhitā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mat-bhaktyä—by devotion to Me; çuddha-sattvasya—of one whose existence is purified; yoginaù—of a yogé; dhāraëä-vidaù—who knows the process of meditation; tasya—of him; trai-kāliké—functioning in three phases of time, namely past, present and future; buddhiù—intelligence; janma-mātyu—birth and death; upabâhitā—including.

TRANSLATION

A yogé who has purified his existence by devotion to Me and who thus expertly knows the process of meditation obtains knowledge of past, present and future. He can therefore see the birth and death of himself and others.

PURPORT

After having explained the eight primary and ten secondary mystic perfections of yoga, the Lord now explains the five inferior potencies.

TEXT 29

@gnyaAid"iBanaR h"nyaeta maunaeyaAeRgAmayaM vapau:
maâAegAzAAntaicaÔasya yaAd"s$aAmaud"kM(yaTaA

agny-ädibhir na hanyeta muner yoga-mayaà vapuù mad-yoga-çänta-cittasya yādasām udakaà yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agni—by fire; ādibhiù—and so on (sun, water, poison, etc.); na—not; hanyeta—can be injured; muneù—of a wise yogé; yoga-mayam—fully cultivated in yoga science; vapuù—the body; mat-yoga—by devotional connection with Me; çänta—pacified; cittasya—whose consciousness; yādasām—of the aquatics; udakam—water; yathä—just as.

TRANSLATION

Just as the bodies of aquatics cannot be injured by water, similarly, the body of a yogi whose consciousness is pacified by devotion to Me and who is fully developed in yoga science cannot be injured by fire, sun, water, poison, and so forth.

PURPORT

The creatures dwelling in the ocean are never injured by water; rather, they enjoy life within the watery medium. Similarly, for one skilled in the techniques of yoga, fending off attacks by weapons, fire, poison, and so on, is a recreational activity. Prahläda Mahārāja was attacked by his father in all these ways, but because of his perfect Kāñëa consciousness he was not injured. The pure devotees of the Lord depend fully on the mercy of Lord Kāñëa, who possesses mystic opulences to an infinite degree and is therefore known as Yogeçvara, the master of all mystic power. Because devotees are always connected to Lord Kāñëa, they do not feel any need to separately develop powers already possessed unlimitedly by their Lord, master and protector.

If a human being falls into the middle of the ocean he quickly drowns, whereas the fish enjoy happiness sporting in the same waves. Similarly, the conditioned souls have fallen into the ocean of material existence and are drowning in the reactions to their sinful activities, whereas the devotees recognize this world to be the potency of the Lord and enjoy pleasurable pastimes within it by fully engaging in the loving service of Lord Kāñëa.

TEXT 30

maiã"BaUtalr"iBaDyaAyana, ™alvats$aAñivaBaUiSataA: DvajaAtapaḥavyajanaE:
s$a Bavaed"par"Aijata:

mad-vibhütér abhidhyāyan çrévatsāstra-vibhūñitāu dhvajātapatra-vyajanañi sa bhaved aparājita

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mat—My; vibhütéu—opulent incarnations; abhidhyāyan—meditating upon; çrévatsa—with the Lord's Çrévatsa opulence; astra—and weapons; vibhūñitāu—decorated; dhvaja—with flags; ātapatra—with ceremonial umbrellas; vyajanañi—and different types of fans; sa—he, the devotee-yogé; bhaved—becomes; aparājita—unconquerable by others.

TRANSLATION

My devotee becomes unconquerable by meditating on My opulent incarnations, which are decorated with Çrévatsa and various weapons and are endowed with imperial paraphernalia such as flags, ornamental umbrellas and fans.

PURPORT

The imperial paraphernalia of the Lord's opulent incarnations indicates His omnipotency, and the devotees become unconquerable by meditating on the Lord's powerful, royally equipped incarnations. As stated by Bilvamañi gala Öhākura in Kāñëa-karëämāta, verse 107, bhaktis tvayi sthīratarā bhagavan yadi syād daivena naù phalati divya-kiçora-mürtiù muktiù svayaà mukulitai'jaliù sevate 'smän dharmärtha-käma-gatayaù samaya-pratéknäù

"My dear Lord, if we develop unflinching devotional service unto You, then automatically Your transcendental, youthful form is revealed to us. Thus liberation herself waits with folded hands to serve us, and the ultimate goals of religiosity, economic development and sense gratification patiently wait to render service to us."

TEXT 31

opaAs$ak(sya maAmaevaM yaAegADaAr"NayaA maunae: is$aÜ"ya: paUvaRk(iTataA opaitai'"ntyazAeSata:

*upäsakasya mäm evaà yoga-dhāraëayä muneù
siddhayaù pūrva-kathitā upatīñöhanty açeñataù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

upäsakasya—of one who is worshiping; mäm—Me; evam—thus; yoga-dhāraëayä—by the process of mystic meditation; muneù—of a learned person; siddhayaù—the mystic perfections; pūrva—previously; kathitāù—described; upatīñöhanti—approach; açeñataù—in all respects.

TRANSLATION

A learned devotee who worships Me through yoga meditation certainly obtains in all respects the mystic perfections that I have described.

PURPORT

The word yoga-dhāraëyā indicates that each devotee obtains the particular perfection for which he has qualified himself. The Lord thus concludes His discussion of yoga-siddhis.

TEXT 32

ijataein%o"yasya d"Antasya ijataiAs$aAtmanaAe maunae:
maÜ"Ar"NAAM DaAr"yata:
k(A s$aA is$aiÜ": s$auäu"laRBaA

jīṭendriyasya dāntasya jīta-ṣvāsātmano muneu
mad-dhāraëā dhārayatau
kā sā siddhiu su-durlabhā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jīta-indriyasya—of one who has conquered his senses; dāntasya—who is disciplined and self-controlled; jīta-ṣvāsa—who has conquered his breathing; ātmanaù—and conquered the mind; muneu—of such a sage; mat—in Me; dhāraëām—meditation; dhārayatau—who is conducting; kā—what is; sā—that; siddhiu—perfection; su-durlabhā—which is very difficult to achieve.

TRANSLATION

For a sage who has conquered his senses, breathing and mind, who is self-controlled and always absorbed in meditation on Me, what mystic perfection could possibly be difficult to achieve?

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé comments as follows. "Lord Kāñëa here expresses that there is no need to practice many different processes, for by completely carrying out even one of the above-mentioned procedures one controls one's senses, becomes absorbed in Him and thus achieves all mystic perfections."

Çréla Jéva Gosvämé notes that one must meditate on the transcendental form of the Lord, which is free from any material designation. This is the essence of advancing in the yoga system; thus one acquires all mystic perfections very easily from the personal body of the Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 33

@ntar"AyaAna, vad"ntyaetaA yauÄataAe yaAegAmauÖamama, mayaA s$ampaâmaAnasya
k(Ala°apaNAhe"tava:

*antaräyän vadanty etä
yui jato yogam uttamam
mayä sampadyamānasya
kāla-kñapaëa-hetavaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

antaräyän—impediments; vadanti—they say; etäù—these mystic perfections; yui jataù—of one engaging in; yogam—connection with the Absolute; uttamam—the supreme stage; mayä—with Me; sampadyamānasya—of one who is becoming completely opulent; kāla—of time; kñapaëa—of the interruption, waste; hetavaù—causes.

TRANSLATION

Learned experts in devotional service state that the mystic perfections of yoga that I have mentioned are actually impediments and are a waste of time for one who is practicing the supreme yoga, by which one achieves all perfection in life directly from Me.

PURPORT

It is common sense that whatever is a useless waste of time should be given up; therefore one should not pray to God for mystic yoga perfections. For a pure devotee, who has no material desire, even impersonal liberation is a useless disturbance in his life, and what to speak of the material perfections of yoga, which cannot even be compared to impersonal liberation. Such mystic perfections may be wonderful for an immature and inexperienced person, but they are not impressive for a learned man who has understood the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Simply by obtaining Lord Kāñëa one dwells within an infinite ocean of mystic opulences; therefore he should not waste precious time pursuing separate mystic perfections.

TEXT 34

janmaAESaiDatapaAemanṭaEr," yaAvatalir"h" is$aÜ"ya:
yaAegAenaA«aAeita taA: s$avaAR naAnyaEyaAeRgAgAitaM ~ajaeta, janmauñadhi-tapo-mantrair yävatér iha siddhayaù yogenäpnoti täù sarvä

nänyair yoga-gatià vrajet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

janma—by birth; auñadhi—herbs; tapau—austerities; mantraiù—and by mantras; yävatéù—as many as there are; iha—in this world; siddhayaù—perfections; yogena—by devotional service to Me; äpnoti—one obtains; täù—those; sarväù—all of them; na—not; anyaiù—by other methods; yoga-gatim—the actual perfection of yoga; vrajet—one can achieve.

TRANSLATION

Whatever mystic perfections can be achieved by good birth, herbs, austerities and mantras can all be achieved by devotional service to Me; indeed, one cannot achieve the actual perfection of yoga by any other means.

PURPORT

By taking birth as a demigod one is automatically endowed with many mystic perfections. Simply by birth on Siddhaloka one automatically acquires all of the eight principal perfections of yoga. Similarly, by birth as a fish one becomes invulnerable to water, by birth as a bird one gets the mystic perfection of flying, and by birth as a ghost one gets the mystic perfection of disappearing and entering into the bodies of others. Patañjali Muni states that the mystic perfections of yoga can be achieved by birth, herbs, austerities and mantras. The Lord states, however, that such perfections are ultimately a waste of time and an impediment to achieving the actual perfection of yoga, Kāñëa consciousness.

Those who give up the process of bhakti-yoga and shop around for other objects of meditation besides Kāñëa are certainly not very intelligent. Those who claim to be yogés but pursue the satisfaction of their own senses are certainly kuyogés, or bhogi-yogés. Such kuyogés cannot understand that just as they have tiny senses, the Absolute Truth has absolute senses, nor can they understand that yoga is actually meant to satisfy the absolute senses of the Lord. Therefore, persons who give up the lotus feet of Lord Kāñëa in order to pursue so-called happiness in mystic perfection will undoubtedly be frustrated in their attempt. By meditating exclusively on the Supreme Personality of Godhead one can achieve yoga-gati, the ultimate goal of yoga, which means living on Lord Kāñëa's planet and there enjoying spiritual opulences.

TEXT 35

s$avaARs$aAmaipa is$aÜ"lnaAM

he"tau: paitar"hM" 'aBau: @hM" yaAegAsya s$aAÊÿYasya DamaRsya "aövaAid"naAma,

sarväsäm api siddhénäà hetuù patir ahaà prabhuù ahaà yogasya säi khyasya dharmasya brahma-vädinäm

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarväsäm—of all of them; api—indeed; siddhénäm—of the mystic perfections; hetuù—the cause; patiù—the protector; aham—I am; prabhuù—the Lord; aham—I; yogasya—of unalloyed meditation on Me; säi khyasya—of analytic knowledge; dharmasya—of work executed without personal desire; brahma-vädinäm—of the learned community of Vedic teachers.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, I am the cause, the protector and the Lord of all mystic perfections, of the yoga system, of analytic knowledge, of pure activity and of the community of learned Vedic teachers.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svämé, the word yoga here indicates liberation from material life, and säi khyä indicates the means of obtaining liberation. Thus Lord Kåñëa is not merely the Lord of material yoga perfections, but of the highest liberated perfections as well. One can obtain säi khyä, or knowledge leading to liberation, by performing pious activities, and Lord Kåñëa is also the cause, protector and Lord of such activities as well as of the learned teachers who instruct ordinary people in the means of piety. In many different ways Lord Kåñëa is the real object of meditation and worship for every living entity. Lord Kåñëa through the expansion of His potencies is everything, and this simple understanding, called Kāñëa consciousness, is the supreme perfection of the yoga system.

TEXT 36

@h"maAtmaAntar"Ae baA÷Ae
'naAva{ta: s$avaR$de"ih"naAma, yaTaA BaUtaAina BaUtaeSau
baih"r"nta: svayaM taTaA

*aham ätmäntaro bāhyo
'nāvātaù sarva-dehinām
yathā bhūtāni bhūteṇu
bahir antaù svayaà tathā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I; ätmä—the Supreme Lord; äntaraù—existing within as the Supersoul; bāhyaù—existing externally in My all-pervading feature; anāvātaù—uncovered; sarva-dehinām—of all living entities; yathā—just as; bhūtāni—the material elements; bhūteṇu—among living entities; bahiù—externally; antaù—internally; svayam—Myself; tathā—in the same way.

TRANSLATION

Just as the same material elements exist within and outside of all material bodies, similarly, I cannot be covered by anything else. I exist within everything as the Supersoul and outside of everything in My all-pervading feature.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa is the entire basis of meditation for all yogés and philosophers, and here the Lord clarifies His absolute position. Since the Lord is within everything, one might think that the Lord is divided into pieces. However, the word anāvāta, or "completely uncovered," indicates that nothing can interrupt, disturb or in any way infringe upon the supreme existence of the Absolute Truth, the Personality of Godhead. There is no actual separation between the internal and external existence of the material elements, which continuously exist everywhere. Similarly, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is all-pervading and is the ultimate perfection of everything.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda to the Eleventh Canto, Fifteenth Chapter, of the Çrēmad-Bhāgavatam, entitled "Lord Kāñēa's Description of Mystic Yoga Perfections."

16. The Lord's Opulence

In this chapter the Personality of Godhead, Lord Çré Kāñēa, describes His manifest opulences in terms of His specific potencies of knowledge, strength, influence, and so on.

Çré Uddhava offered glorification to Lord Çré Kāñēa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead and ultimate shelter of all holy places, saying, "The Supreme Lord has no beginning and no end. He is the cause of the birth, maintenance and destruction of all living entities. He is the soul of all beings, and by secretly taking up residence within all living bodies He sees everything. The conditioned souls, on the other hand, are bewildered by His external energy and thus are unable to see Him." After offering such prayers at the lotus feet of Lord Kāñēa, Çré Uddhava revealed his desire to know about the Lord's various opulences in heaven, on earth, in hell and in all directions. Lord Çré Kāñēa then described all these opulences, after which He commented that all power, beauty, fame, opulence, humility, charity, charm, good fortune, valor, tolerance and wisdom-wherever they are manifest-are simply expansions from Himself. It therefore cannot be truthfully said that a material object actually possesses these opulences. Such conceptions are the results of mentally combining two ideas to produce an object that exists only in the imagination, such as a sky flower. Material opulences are not substantially true, and therefore one should not become too involved in meditating upon them. The pure devotees of the Supreme Lord utilize their intelligence to properly regulate the activities of their speech, mind and vital force and thus perfect their existence in Kâñëa consciousness.

TEXT 1

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
tvaM "aö par"maM s$aA°aAä," @naAântamapaAva{tama,
s$avaeRSaAmaipa BaAvaAnaAM ‡aANAisTatyapyayaAeà"va:

çré-uddhava uväca
tvaà brahma paramaà säkñäd anädy-antam apävâtam
sarveñäm api bhävänäà
träëa-sthity-apyayodbhavaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uväca—Çré Uddhava said; tvam—You are; brahma—the greatest; paramam—the supreme; säkñät—Himself; anädi—without beginning; antam—without end; apävâtam—unlimited by anything else; sarveñäm—of all; api—indeed; bhävänäm—things which exist; träëa—the protector; sthiti—the life-giver; apyaya—the destruction; udbhavaù—and the creation.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Lord, You are beginningless and endless, the Absolute Truth Himself, unlimited by anything else. You are the protector and life-giver, the destruction and creation of all things that exist.

PURPORT

Brahma means the greatest of all and the cause of everything. Uddhava here addresses the Lord as the paramam, or supreme brahma, because in His feature as Bhagavān the Lord is the highest feature of the Absolute Truth and the shelter of unlimited spiritual opulences. Unlike those of ordinary living entities, the Lord's opulences cannot be restricted by time, and thus the Lord is anādy-antam, without beginning or end, and apāvātam, unhindered by any superior or equal potency. The opulence of the material world is also resting within the Lord, who alone can protect, maintain, create and destroy the material world. In this chapter, Çré Uddhava inquires from the Lord about His spiritual and material opulences in order to refine his appreciation of the Lord's position as the Absolute Truth. Even Lord Viñëu, the ultimate creator of the material world, is an expansion of Lord Kāñëa, and thus Çré Uddhava wishes to fully appreciate the unique status of his personal friend.

TEXT 2

o»aAvacaeSau BaUtaeSau äu"ÁaeRyamak{(taAtmaiBa:
opaAs$atae tvaAM BagAvana, yaATaAtaTyaena "aAöNAA:

*uccāvaceñu bhüteñu
durji eyam akātātmabhiù upāsate tvāè bhagavan
yāthā-tathyena brāhmaëäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ucca—in the superior; avaceñu—and the inferior; bhüteñu—created objects and entities; durjīeyam—hard to understand; akāta-ātmabhiù—by the impious; upāsate—they worship; tvām—You; bhagavan—my dear Lord; yathā-tathyena—in truth; brāhmaëäù—those dedicated to the Vedic conclusion.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, although it is difficult for the impious to understand that You are situated in all superior and inferior creations, those brāhmaëas who are actual knowers of the Vedic conclusion worship You in truth.

PURPORT

The behavior of saintly persons is also to be taken as evidence, and therefore it is here stated that although ignorant, impious persons are bewildered before the Lord's all-pervading feature, those with purified, clear consciousness worship the Lord as He is. In this chapter Çré Uddhava inquires about the Lord's opulences, and here the words uccāvaceñu bhüteñu ("within superior and inferior creations") clearly refer to the Lord's external opulences, those manifested in the material world. The saintly brāhmaëas, or Vaiñëavas, worship Lord Kāñëa within all things and yet recognize the variety in the Lord's creation. For example, in worshiping the Deity, the devotees will select the nicest flowers, fruits and ornaments for decorating the transcendental form of the Lord. Similarly, although the Lord is present in the heart of every conditioned soul, the devotee will give more attention to a conditioned soul interested in the message of Lord Kāñëa. Although the Lord is everywhere, the devotees make distinctions, for the sake of the Lord's service, between His presence in superior (ucca) and inferior (avaceñu) creations.

TEXT 3

yaeSau yaeSau ca BaUtaeSau BaftyaA tvaAM par"maSaRya:
opaAs$alnaA: 'apaântae
s$aMis$saiÜM" taã"d"sva mae yeñu yeñu ca bhüteñu bhaktyä tväà paramarñayaù upäsénäù prapadyante saàsiddhià tad vadasva me

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yeñu yeñu—in which various; ca—also; bhüteñu—forms; bhaktyä—with devotion; tväm—You; parama-ãñayaù—the great sages; upäsénäù—worshiping; prapadyante—achieve; saàsiddhim—perfection; tat—that; vadasva—please speak; me—to me.

TRANSLATION

Please tell me of the perfections that great sages achieve by worshipping You with devotion. Also, kindly explain which of Your different forms they worship.

PURPORT

Çré Uddhava here inquires about the spiritual opulences of the Lord, which consist primarily of His viñëu-tattva expansions such as Väsudeva, Saì karñäëa, Pradyumna and Aniruddha. By worshipping different plenary expansions of the Lord one achieves particular perfections, and Çré Uddhava wants to know about this.

TEXT 4

gAUX#êr"is$a BaUtaAtmaA BaUtaAnaAM BaUtaBaAvana

na tvaAM pazyainta BaUtaAina pazyantaM maAeih"taAina tae

*güòhaç carasi bhütätmä bhütänäà bhüta-bhävana
na tväà paçyanti bhütäni paçyantaà mohitäni te*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

güòhaù—hidden; carasi—You are engaged; bhüta-ätmä—the Supersoul; bhütänäm—of the living entities; bhüta-bhävana—O maintainer of all living beings; na—not; tväm—You; paçyanti—they see; bhütäni—living entities; paçyantam—who are seeing; mohitäni—bewildered; te—by You.

TRANSLATION

O my Lord, maintainer of all, although You are the Supersoul of the living entities, You remain hidden. Thus being bewildered by You, the living entities cannot see You, although You are seeing them.

PURPORT

The Lord exists as the Supersoul within everything. He also appears in various incarnations or sometimes empowers a devotee to act as an incarnation. All such forms of the Lord are unknown to the nondevotees. The bewildered conditioned souls think that the supreme enjoyer, Çré Kãñëa, is actually meant to be enjoyed by them for their sense gratification. Praying to God for specific material benedictions and assuming God's creation to be their personal property, the nondevotees cannot understand the actual form of the Lord. They therefore remain foolish and bewildered. Within the universe everything is subject to creation, maintenance and destruction, and thus the Supersoul is the only actual controller in the material world. Unfortunately, when the Supersoul appears in various incarnations to clarify His position, ignorant persons think that the Supersoul is merely another creation of the modes of material nature. As stated in this verse, they cannot see that person who is actually seeing them, and simply remain bewildered.

TEXT 5

yaA: k(Aê BaUmaAE id"iva vaE r"s$AyaAM ivaBaUtayaAe id"°au mah"AivaBaUtae taA ma÷maAKyaA÷nauBaAivataAstae namaAima tae taITaRpad"Ax.~i,,apaáma, yāu kâṣ ca bhūmau divi vai rasāyāṇa vibhūtayo dikṇu mahā-vibhūte tā mahyam ākhyāhy anubhāvitās te namāmi te tērtha-padāi ghri-padmam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yāu kâṣ—whatever; ca—also; bhūmau—on the earth; divi—in heaven; vai—indeed; rasāyāṇa—in hell; vibhūtayaū—potencies; dikṇu—in all directions; mahā-vibhūte—O supremely potent; tāū—those; mahyam—unto me; ākhyāhi—please explain; anubhāvitāū—manifested; te—by You; namāmi—I offer my humble obeisances; te—Your; tērtha-pada—the abode of all holy places; aī ghri-padmam—at the lotus feet.

TRANSLATION

O supremely potent Lord, please explain to me Your innumerable potencies, which You manifest on the earth, in heaven, in hell and indeed in all directions. I offer my humble obeisances at Your lotus feet, which are the shelter of all holy places.

PURPORT

Uddhava here inquires about the Lord's material and spiritual potencies, as manifested within our universe. Just as ordinary animals or insects living in human cities cannot appreciate the scientific, cultural or military achievements of man, similarly, foolish materialists cannot appreciate the mighty opulences of the Personality of Godhead, even those manifested within our universe. For the appreciation of ordinary human beings Uddhava requests the Lord to reveal exactly how and in what forms He expands His potencies. As already explained, the Lord is the essential ingredient of all that exists, and thus any mighty or opulent manifestation must ultimately rest on the Lord Himself.

TEXT 6

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
Wvamaetad"hM" pa{í":
'a'aM 'a'aivad"AM var"
yauyauts$ainaA ivanazAnaē
s$apaYaEr"jauR"naena vaE

çré-bhagavān uvāca
evam etad ahaà pāñōaù
praçnaà praçna-vidāà vara yuyutsunā vinaçane
sapatnair arjunena vai

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; evam—thus; etat—this; aham—I; pāñōaù—was asked; praçnam—the question or topic; praçna-vidām—of those who know how to inquire; vara—you who are the best; yuyutsunā—by him who desired to fight; vinaçane—in the Battle of Kurukñetra; sapatnaiù—with his rivals or enemies; arjunena—by Arjuna; vai—indeed.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: O best of those who know how to inquire, on the Battlefield of Kurukñetra, Arjuna, desiring to fight with his rivals, asked Me the same question that you are now posing.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa was pleased that His two friends, Arjuna and Uddhava, had posed the same question regarding the opulences of the Personality of Godhead. Lord Kāñëa considered it wonderful that His two dear friends had asked exactly the same question.

TEXT 7

ÁaAtvaA ÁaAitavaDaM gA÷Rma, @Dama< r"Ajyahe"tauk(ma, tataAe inava{ÔaAe h"ntaAhM"
h"taAe'yaimaita laAEik(k(:

*jī ätvā jī äti-vadhaà garhyam adharmāà rājya-hetukam tato nivātto hantāhaà
hato 'yam iti laukikau*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

jī ätvā—being aware; jī äti—of his relatives; vadham—the killing; garhyam—abominable; adharmam—irreligion; rājya—to acquire a kingdom; hetukam—having as the motive; tatau—from such activity; nivāttau—retired; hantā—the killer; aham—I am; hatau—killed; ayam—this group of relatives; iti—thus; laukikau—mundane.

TRANSLATION

On the Battlefield of Kurukñetra Arjuna thought that killing his relatives would be an abominable, irreligious activity, motivated only by his desire to acquire a kingdom. He therefore desisted from the battle, thinking, "I would be the killer of my relatives. They would be destroyed." Thus Arjuna was afflicted with mundane consciousness.

PURPORT

Lord Kāṇhā here explains to Uddhava the circumstances in which Çré Arjuna posed his questions.

TEXT 8

s$A tad"A pauç&SavyaA,,aAe yauftyA mae 'aitabaAeiData: @ByaBaASata maAmaevaM yaTaA tvaM r"NAmUDaRina

sa tadā puruṇa-vyāghro yuktyā me pratibodhitaū abhyabhāñata mām eva yathā tvaṁ raēa-mūrdhani

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saū—he; tadā—at that time; puruṇa-vyāghraū—the tiger among men; yuktyā—by logical argument; me—by Me; pratibodhitaū—enlightened in real knowledge; abhyabhāñata—addressed questions; mām—to Me; evam—thus; yathā—just as; tvam—you; raēa—of the battle; mūrdhani—in the front.

TRANSLATION

At that time I enlightened Arjuna, the tiger among men, with logical arguments, and thus in the front of the battle Arjuna addressed Me with questions in the same way that you are now inquiring.

TEXT 9

@h"maAtmaAeÜ"vaAmaISaAM BaUtaAnaAM s$auô$d"lîr": @hM" s$avaARiNA BaUtaAina taeSaAM isTatyauà"vaApyaya:

aham âtmoddhaväméñāà
bhütänāà suhâd éçvaraù
ahaà sarvāëi bhütāni
teñāà sthity-udbhavāpyayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I am; ātmā—the Supersoul; uddhava—O Uddhava; améñām—of these; bhütänām—living entities; su-hât—the well-wisher; éçvaraù—the supreme controller; aham—I am; sarvāëi bhütāni—all entities; teñām—of them; sthiti—the maintenance; udbhava—creation; apyayaù—and annihilation.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, I am the Supersoul of all living entities, and therefore I am naturally their well-wisher and supreme controller. Being the creator, maintainer and annihilator of all entities, I am not different from them.

PURPORT

Çréla Çrédhara Svämé points out that the Personality of Godhead maintains an ablative and genitive relationship with His opulences. In other words, the Lord is not different from all living entities, because they are coming from Him and they belong to Him. The Lord gave a similar explanation to Arjuna in the Tenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gétā (10.20), beginning with the same words, aham âtmā. Although the Lord describes His external, or material, opulences, the Lord's position is always transcendental and nonmaterial. Just as the living soul within the body gives life to the body, similarly, the Lord, by His supreme potency, gives life to all universal opulences.

TEXT 10

@hM" gAitagARitamataAM k(Ala: k(layataAmah"ma, gAunaANAAM caApyahM" s$aAmyaM gAuiNAnyAEtpaiÔak(Ae gAuNA:

*ahaà gatiṛ gatimatāà
kālaù kalayatām aham
gunääā cāpy ahaà sāmyaà guëiny autpattiko guëaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I am; gatiù—the ultimate goal; gati-matām—of those who seek progress; kālaù—time; kalayatām—of those who exert control; aham—I am; gunääām—of the modes of material nature; ca—also; api—even; aham—I am; sāmyam—material equilibrium; guëini—in the pious; autpattikaù—natural; guëaù—virtue.

TRANSLATION

I am the ultimate goal of all those seeking progress, and I am time among those who exert control. I am the equilibrium of the modes of material nature, and I am natural virtue among the pious.

TEXT 11

gAuiNAnaAmapyahM" s$aUṭaM mah"taAM ca mah"Anah"ma, s$aU°maANAAmapyahM" jalvaAe äü"jaRyaAnaAmahM" mana:

guëinäm apy ahaà sūtraà mahatäà ca mahän aham sükñmäëäm apy ahaà jévo durjayänäm ahaà manaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

guëinäm—among things possessing qualities; api—indeed; aham—I am; sūtram—the primary sūtra-tattva; mahatām—among great things; ca—also; mahän—the total material manifestation; aham—I am; sükñmäëäm—among subtle things; api—indeed; aham—I am; jévaù—the spirit soul; durjayänäm—among things difficult to conquer; aham—I am; manaù—the mind.

TRANSLATION

Among things possessing qualities I am the primary manifestation of nature, and among great things I am the total material creation. Among subtle things I am the spirit soul, and of things that are difficult to conquer I am the mind.

TEXT 12

ih"r"NyagABaAeR vaed"AnaAM manṭaANAAM 'aNAvaiñva{ta, @°ar"ANAAmak(Ar"Ae'isma pad"Aina cC$näu"s$aAmah"ma,

*hiraëyagarbho vedänäà manträëäà praëavas tri-vât akñaräëäm a-käro 'smi
padäni cchandusäm aham*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

hiraëya-garbhaù—Lord Brahmä; vedänäm—of the Vedas; manträëäm—of mantras; praëavaù—the oàkära; tri-vât—consisting of three letters; akīaräëäm—of letters; a-käraù—the first letter, a; asmi—I am; padāni—the three-line Gäyatrē mantra; chandasām—among sacred meters; aham—I am.

TRANSLATION

Among the Vedas I am their original teacher, Lord Brahmä, and of all mantras I am the three-lettered oàkära. Among letters I am the first letter, "a," and among sacred meters I am the Gäyatrē mantra.

TEXT 13

wn% "Ae'hM" s$avaR$de"vaAnaAM vas$aUnaAmaisma h"vyavaAq%.
@Aid"tyaAnaAmahM" ivaSNAU ç&% "ANAAM nallalaAeih"ta:

indro 'haà sarva-devänäà vasünäm asmi havya-väö ädityänäm ahaà viñëü
rudräëäà néla-lohitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

indraù—Lord Indra; aham—I am; sarva-devänäm—among the demigods; vasünäm—among the Vasus; asmi—I am; havya-väö—the carrier of oblations, the fire-god Agni; ädityänäm—among the sons of Aditi; aham—I am; viñëuù—Viñëu; rudräëäm—among the Rudras; néla-lohitaù—Lord Çiva.

TRANSLATION

Among the demigods I am Indra, and among the Vasus I am Agni, the god of fire. I am Viñëu among the sons of Aditi, and among the Rudras I am Lord Çiva.

PURPORT

Lord Viñëu appeared among the sons of Aditi as Vāmanadeva.

TEXT 14

“aöSal=NAAM Ba{gAur" hM" r" AjaSal=NAAmahM" manau:
de"vaSal=NAAM naAr"d" Ae'hM"
h"ivaDaARnyaisma DaenauSau

brahmañëëääà bhāgur ahaà rājanñëëääm ahaà manuù devañëëääà nārado 'haà havirdhāny asmi dhenuñu

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

brahma-ñëëääm—among the saintly brāhmaëas; bhāguù—Bhāgu Muni; aham—I am; rāja-ñëëääm—among the saintly kings; aham—I am; manuù—Manu; deva-ñëëääm—among the saintly demigods; nāradaù—Nārada Muni; aham—I am; havirdhānë—Kāmadhenu; asmi—I am; dhenuñu—among cows.

TRANSLATION

Among saintly brāhmaëas I am Bhāgu Muni, and I am Manu among saintly kings. I am Nārada Muni among saintly demigods, and I am Kāmadhenu among cows.

TEXT 15

is$aÜe"ir"ANAAM k(ipala: s$aupaNA AeR'hM" pataiṭaNA Ama, 'ajaApatalnaAM d"°aAe'hM"
ipata|NA Amah"mayaRmaA

siddheçvaräëäà kapilaù suparëo 'haà patatriëäm prajāpaténäà dakña 'haà pitëëäm aham aryamä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

siddha-éçvaräëäm—among perfected beings; kapilaù—I am Lord Kapila; suparëaù—Garuða; aham—I am; patatriëäm—among birds;
prajāpaténäm—among the progenitors of mankind; dakñaù—Dakña;
aham—I am; pitëëäm—among the forefathers; aham—I am;
aryamä—Aryamä.

TRANSLATION

I am Lord Kapila among perfected beings and Garuða among birds. I am Dakña among the progenitors of mankind, and I am Aryamä among the forefathers.

TEXT 16

maAM ivaÜ"YauÜ"va dE"tyaAnaAM
'aø"Ad"mas$aure"ir"ma, s$aAemaM na°aṭaAESaDalnaAM DanaezAM ya°ar"°as$aAma, mäà viddhy uddhava daityänäà prahlādam asureçvaram somaà nakñatrauñadhénäà dhaneçaà yakña-rakñasām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mām—Me; viddhi—you should know; uddhava—My dear Uddhava; daityānām—among the sons of Diti, the demons; prahlādam—Prahāda Mahārāja; asura-ēçvaram—the lord of the asuras; somam—the moon; nakṣatra-oṇadhénām—among the stars and herbs; dhana-ēçam—the lord of wealth, Kuvera; yakṇa-rakṇasām—among the Yakṇas and Rākṇasas.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, among the demoniac sons of Diti know Me to be Prahāda Mahārāja, the saintly lord of the asuras. Among the stars and herbs I am their lord, Candra (the moon), and among Yakṇas and Rākṇasas I am the lord of wealth, Kuvera.

TEXT 17

Wer"AvataM gAjaen%"ANAAM yaAd"s$aAM vaç&NAM 'aBauma, tapataAM âumataAM s$aUya< manauSyaANAAM ca BaUpaitama, airāvataà gajendrääà

yādasää varuëää prabhum tapatää dyumatää sūryaà manuñyääää ca bhū-patim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

airāvatam—the elephant Airāvata; gaja-indrääm—among lordly elephants; yādasām—among aquatics; varuëam—Varuëa; prabhum—the lord of seas; tapatām—among things that heat; dyu-matām—among things that illuminate; sūryam—I am the sun; manuñyääm—among human beings; ca—also; bhū-patim—the king.

TRANSLATION

I am Airāvata among lordly elephants, and among aquatics I am Varuna, the lord of the seas. Among all things that heat and illuminate I am the sun, and among human beings I am the king.

PURPORT

It is significant to know that Lord Kāñëa is represented within this universe by the lord or supreme in all categories. No one can be as aristocratic and perfect as Çré Kāñëa, nor can anyone estimate the glories of Çré Kāñëa. Lord Kāñëa is without doubt the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

TEXT 18

o»aE:™avaAstaur"ËÿANAAM DaAtaUnaAmaisma k(AÂanama, yama: s$aMyamataAM caAh"ma, s$apaARNAAmaisma vaAs$auik(:

*uccaiùçraväs turaì gäëää dhätünäm asmi kâi canam yamaù saàyamataä cāham
sarpäëäm asmi vāsukiù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

uccaiùçraväù—the horse Uccaiùçravä; turaì gäëäm—among horses;
dhätünäm—among metals; asmi—I am; kâi canam—gold;
yamaù—Yamarāja; saàyamataä—among those who punish and suppress;
ca—also; aham—I; sarpäëäm—among serpents; asmi—am;
vāsukiù—Vāsuki.

TRANSLATION

Among horses I am Uccaiùçravä, and I am gold among metals. I am Yamaräja among those who suppress and punish, and among serpents I am Väsuki.

TEXT 19

naAgAen%o"ANAAmanantaAe'hM" ma{gAen%o": Za{iËÿdM"iï)"NAAma, @A™amaANAAmahM" tauyaAeR vaNAARnaAM 'aTamaAe'naGa

nägendrääm ananto 'haà mâgendraù çâi gi-daàññoriäm âçramääm ahaà turyo varëänäà prathamo 'nagha

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

näga-indrääm—among the best of many-hooded snakes;
anantaù—Anantadeva; aham—I am; mâga-indraù—the lion;
çâi gi-daàññoriäm—among animals with sharp horns and teeth;
âçramääm—among the four social orders of life; aham—I am; turyaù—the fourth, sannyäsa; varëänäm—among the four occupational orders;
prathamaù—the first, the brähmaëas; anagha—O sinless one.

TRANSLATION

O sinless Uddhava, among the best of snakes I am Anantadeva, and among those animals with sharp horns, I am the black deer. Among animals with teeth, I am the lion. Among the social orders I am the fourth, or the renounced order of life, and among the occupational divisions I am the first, the brähmaëas.

TEXT 20

taITaARnaAM ›aAetas$aAM gAËÿA
s$amau"%o": s$ar"s$aAmah"ma, @AyouDaAnaAM Danaur"hM" iṭapaur"£aAe DanauSmataAma, *térthānāà srotasāà gaī gā samudraù sarasām aham āyudhānāà dhanur ahaà

tripura-ghno dhanuñmatām*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tirthānām—among holy places; srotasām—among flowing things; gaī gā—the sacred Ganges; samudraù—the ocean; sarasām—among steady bodies of water; aham—I am; āyudhānām—among weapons; dhanuù—the bow; aha—I am; tri-pura-ghnaù—Lord Çiva; dhanuù-matām—among those who wield the bow.

TRANSLATION

Among sacred and flowing things I am the holy Ganges, and among steady bodies of water I am the ocean. Among weapons I am the bow, and of the wielders of weapons I am Lord Çiva.

PURPORT

Lord Çiva used his bow to completely cover with arrows the three demoniac cities built by Maya Dānava.

TEXT 21

iDaSNyaAnaAmasmyahM" maeç&r," gAh"naAnaAM ih"maAlaya:

vanas$patalnaAmaìTa @AeSaDalnaAmahM" yava:

*dhiñëyänäm asmy ahaà merur gahanänäà himālayaù vanaspaténäm açvattha
oñadhénäm ahaà yavaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dhiñëyänäm—residences; asmi—am; aham—I; meruù—Mount Sumeru; gahanänäm—of impervious places; himālayaù—the Himalayas; vanaspaténäm—among trees; açvatthaù—banyan tree; oñadhénäm—among plants; aham—I; yavaù—barley.

TRANSLATION

Among residences I am Mount Sumeru, and of impervious places I am the Himalayas. Among trees I am the holy fig tree, and among plants I am those that bear grains.

PURPORT

Oñadhénäm here indicates those plants that fructify once and then die. Among them, those that give grains, which sustain human life, represent Kāñëa. Without grains it is not possible to produce milk products, nor can one properly perform Vedic fire sacrifices without offerings of grains.

TEXT 22

paur"AeDas$aAM vais$aï"Ae'hM" “aiöi”AnaAM ba{h"s$paita: s$k(nd"Ae'hM" s$avaRs$aenaAnyAma, @faNyaAM BagAvaAnaja:

purodhasäà vasiñöho 'haà

brahmiñöhänäà bāhaspatiù skando 'haà sarva-senānyām agraëyāà bhagavān ajaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

purodhasām—among priests; vasiñōhaù—Vasiñōha Muni; aham—I am; brahmiñöhānām—among those fixed in the Vedic conclusion and purpose; bāhaspatiù—Bāhaspati, the spiritual master of the demigods; skandaù—Kārtikeya; aham—I am; sarva-senānyām—among all military leaders; agraëyām—among those advancing in pious life; bhagavān—the great personality; ajaù—Lord Brahmā.

TRANSLATION

Among priests I am Vasiñōha Muni, and among those highly situated in Vedic culture I am Bāhaspati. I am Kārtikeya among great military leaders, and among those advancing in superior ways of life I am the great personality Lord Brahmā.

TEXT 23

yaÁaAnaAM “aöyaÁaAe'hM” ~ataAnaAmaivaihM”s$anama, vaAyvagnyak(ARmbauvaAgAAatmaA zAucalnaAmapyahM” zAuica:

yajī ānāà brahma-yajī o 'haà vratānām avihiàsanam vāyv-agny-arkāmbu-vāg-ātmā çucénām apy ahaà çuciù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yajī ānām—of sacrifices; brahma-yajī aù—study of the Veda; aham—I am; vratānām—of vows; avihiàsanam—nonviolence; vāyu—wind; agni—fire;

arka—the sun; ambu—water; vāk—and speech; ātmā—personified; çucénām—of all purifiers; api—indeed; aham—I am; çuciù—pure.

TRANSLATION

Among sacrifices I am study of the Veda, and I am nonviolence among vows. Among all things that purify I am the wind, fire, the sun, water and speech.

TEXT 24

yaAegAAAnaAmaAtmas$aMr"AeDaAe manṭaAe'isma ivaijagAlSataAma, @Anvali°ak(L k(AEzAlaAnaAM ivak(lpa: KyaAitavaAid"naAma, yogānām ātma-saàrodho

mantra 'smi vijigēñatām ānvékñiké kauçalānāà
vikalpaù khyāti-vādinām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yogānām—among the eight stages of yoga practice (aññāi ga); ātma-saàrodhaù—the ultimate stage, samādhi, in which the soul is completely separated from illusion; mantraù—prudent political counsel; asmi—I am; vijigēñatām—among those desiring victory; ānvékñiké—spiritual science, by which one can distinguish between matter and spirit; kauçalānām—among all processes of expert discrimination; vikalpaù—diversity of perception; khyāti-vādinām—among the speculative philosophers.

TRANSLATION

Among the eight progressive states of yoga I am the final stage, samādhi, in which the soul is completely separated from illusion. Among those desiring victory I am prudent political counsel, and among processes of expert discrimination I am the science of the soul, by which one distinguishes spirit from matter. Among all speculative philosophers I am diversity of perception.

PURPORT

Any science is based on the faculty of expert discrimination. By skillful definition of isolated and interactive components one becomes expert in any field. Ultimately the most intelligent person can isolate the spirit soul from matter and describe the properties of matter and spirit as both isolated and interactive components of reality. The proliferation of innumerable philosophical speculations is due to differing modes of perception within the material world. As stated in Bhagavad-gētā (15.15), sarvasya cāhaà hādi sanniviñño mattaù smātir jī ānam apohanaà ca: the Supreme Personality of Godhead is situated in everyone's heart and awards a particular degree of knowledge or ignorance according to one's desire and merit. Thus the Lord Himself is the basis of the mundane process of philosophical speculation, for He creates differing and alternating modes of perception within the conditioned souls. It is to be understood that one can acquire perfect knowledge only by hearing directly from Lord Kāñēa and not by hearing from conditioned philosophers who imperfectly perceive the creation of the Lord through the screen of their personal desires.

TEXT 25

ñINAAM tau zAtaè&paAhM" pauMs$aAM svaAyamBauvaAe manau:
naAr"AyaNA Ae maunaInaAM ca ku(maAr"Ae "aöcaAir"NA Ama,

*stréää tu çatarüpāhaà puàsää svāyambhuvo manuù nārāyaëo munénää ca
kumāro brahmacāriëäm*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

strēëām—among ladies; tu—indeed; çatarüpä—Çatarüpä; aham—I am; puàsäm—among male personalities; svâyambhuvaù manuù—the great prajāpati Svâyambhuva Manu; nārāyaëaù—the sage Nārāyaëa; munénām—among saintly sages; ca—also; kumäraù—Sanat-kumära; brahmacäriëām—among brahmacārés.

TRANSLATION

Among ladies I am Çatarüpä, and among male personalities I am her husband, Svâyambhuva Manu. I am Nārāyaëa among the sages and Sanat-kumära among brahmacārés.

TEXT 26

DamaARNAAmaisma s$a^ayaAs$a: °aemaANAAmabaih"maRita: gAu÷AnaAM s$auna{taM maAE^anaM imaTaunaAnaAmajastvah"ma, dharmäëäm asmi sannyäsaù kñemäëäm abahir-matiù guhyänäà su-nâtaà maunaà mithunänäm ajas tv aham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dharmäëäm—among religious principles; asmi—I am; sannyäsaù—renunciation; kñemäëäm—among all types of security; abahiù-matiù—awareness within (of the eternal soul); guhyänäm—of secrets; sunâtam—pleasant speech; maunam—silence; mithunänäm—of sexual pairs; ajaù—Brahmä, the original prajāpati; tu—indeed; aham—I am.

TRANSLATION

Among religious principles I am renunciation, and of all types of security I am consciousness of the eternal soul within. Of secrets I am pleasant speech and silence, and among sexual pairs I am Brahmä.

PURPORT

One who realizes the eternal soul within no longer fears any material situation and thus is qualified to accept the renounced order of life, sannyäsa. Certainly fear is one of the great miseries of material life; therefore the gift of fearlessness is very valuable and represents Lord Kânëa. Both in ordinary pleasant speech and silence, very few confidential things are revealed, and thus diplomacy and silence are both aids to secrecy. Lord Brahmä is prominent among sexual pairs because the original beautiful couple, Svâyambhuva Manu and Çatarüpä, emerged from Lord Brahmä's body, as explained in Chapter Twelve of the Third Canto of Çrémad-Bhägavatam.

TEXT 27

s$amvats$ar"Ae'smyainaimaSaAma, [%taUnaAM maDaumaADavaAE maAs$aAnaAM maAgARzAISaAeR'hM" na°aṭaANAAM taTaAiBaijata, saàvatsaro 'smy animiñām âtünäà madhu-mādhavau mäsänäà mārگاçérño 'haà nakñaträëää tathābhijit

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saàvatsaraù—the year; asmi—I am; animiñām—among the vigilant cycles of time; âtünām—among seasons; madhu-mādhavau—spring;

māsānām—among months; mārgaçérñau—Mārgaçérñā (November-December); aham—I am; nakñātrāëäm—among asterisms; tathā—similarly; abhijit—Abhijit.

TRANSLATION

Among the vigilant cycles of time I am the year, and among seasons I am spring. Among months I am Mārgaçérñā, and among lunar houses I am the auspicious Abhijit.

TEXT 28

@hM" yaugAAnaAM ca k{(taM
Dalr"ANAAM de"valaAe'is$ata:
ãE"paAyanaAe'isma vyaAs$aAnaAM k(valnaAM k(Avya @AtmavaAna, ahaà yugänäà ca kâtaà

dhéräëäà devalo 'sitaù dvaipäyano 'smi vyäsänäà kavénäà kāvya ātmavān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aham—I am; yugänām—among ages; ca—also; kātam—Satya-yuga; dhéräëäm—among steady sages; devalaù—Devala; asitaù—Asita; dvaipāyanaù—Kāñëa Dvaipāyana; asmi—I am; vyäsänām—among the editors of the Vedas; kavénām—among learned scholars; kāvyaù—Çukrācārya; ātma-vān—learned in spiritual science.

TRANSLATION

Among ages I am the Satya-yuga, the age of truth, and among steady sages I am Devala and Asita. Among those who have divided the Vedas I am Kāñëa Dvaipāyana Vedavyāsa, and among learned scholars I am Çukrācārya, the knower of spiritual science.

TEXT 29

vaAs$auDe"vaAe BagAvataAM tvaM tau BaAgAvataeSvah"ma, ik(mpauç&SaAnaAM h"naumaAna, ivaâAaANAAM s$aud"zARna:

*väsudevo bhagavatäà
tvaà tu bhāgavateñv aham kimpuruñänäà hanumän
vidyādh räëääà sudarçanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

väsudevaù—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; bhagavatäm—of those entitled to the name Bhagavän; tvam—you; tu—indeed; bhāgavateñu—among My devotees; aham—I am; kimpuruñäëäm—among the Kimpuruñas; hanumän—Hanumän; vidyādh räëäm—among the Vidyādharas; sudarçanaù—Sudarçana.

TRANSLATION

Among those entitled to the name Bhagavän I am Väsudeva, and indeed, you, Uddhava, represent Me among the devotees. I am Hanumän among the Kimpuruñas, and among the Vidyādharas I am Sudarçana.

PURPORT

The Vedic literatures state that one who possesses perfect knowledge of the creation and destruction of all entities and who is completely situated in omniscience is to be known as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Bhagavän. Although many great personalities are sometimes called Bhagavän, ultimately Bhagavän is the one supreme entity who possesses unlimited opulences. Throughout history, many important personalities have been addressed as "lord," but ultimately there is only one Supreme Lord. In the Lord's catur-vyūha, or quadruple expansion, the first manifestation is Vāsudeva, who here represents all of the Lord's expansions in the viñēu-tattva category.

TEXT 30

r"¥aAnaAM paár"AgAAe'isma paák(AezA: s$aupaezAs$aAma, ku(zAAe'isma d"BaRjaAtalnaAM gAvyamaAjyaM h"iva:Svah"ma, ratnānāà padma-rāgo 'smi padma-koṣaù su-peçasām kuṣo 'smi darbha-jātnāà gavyam ājyaà haviñv aham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ratnānām—of jewels; padma-rāgaù—the ruby; asmi—I am; padma-koṣaù—the lotus cup; su-peçasām—among beautiful things; kuṣaù—the sacred kuṣa grass; asmi—I am; darbha-jātnām—among all types of grass; gavyam—cow products; ājyam—offering of ghee; haviñu—among oblations; aham—I am.

TRANSLATION

Among jewels I am the ruby, and among beautiful things I am the lotus cup. Among all types of grass I am the sacred kuṣa, and of oblations I am ghee and other ingredients obtained from the cow.

PURPORT

Pai ca-gavya refers to five sacrificial ingredients obtained from the cow, namely milk, ghee, yogurt, dung and urine. The cow is so valuable that even its dung and urine are antiseptic and fit for sacrificial offering. Kuça grass is also used for religious occasions. Mahārāja Parékñit constructed a sitting place from kuça grass during the last week of his life. Among beautiful things the lotus cup formed by lotus petals represents Lord Kāñëa, and among jewels the ruby, which is similar to Lord Kāñëa's own Kaustubha gem, symbolizes the potency of the Lord.

TEXT 31

vyavas$aAiyanaAmahM" la°mal: ik(tavaAnaAM C$lafah":
itaita°aAisma itaita°aUNAAM
s$aÔvaM s$aÔvavataAmah"ma, vyavasäyinäm ahaà lakñméù kitavänääà chala-grahau titikñäsmi titikñüëääà

sattvaà sattvavatäm aham

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vyavasäyinäm—of the enterprising; aham—I am; lakñméù—fortune; kitavänäm—of cheaters; chala-grahau—the gambling; titikñä—the forgiveness; asmi—I am; titikñüëäm—among the tolerant; sattvam—the goodness; sattva-vatäm—among those in the mode of goodness; aham—I am.

TRANSLATION

Among the enterprising I am fortune, and among the cheaters I am gambling. I am the forgiveness of the tolerant and the good qualities of those in the mode of goodness.

TEXT 32

@Aeja: s$ah"Ae balavataAM k(maARhM" ivaiÜ" s$aAtvataAma, s$aAtvataAM navamaUtal=naAma, @Aid"maUitaRr"hM" par"A

*ojaù saho balavatäà karmähaà viddhi sätvatäm sätvatäà nava-mürténäm
ädi-mürtir ahaà parä*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ojaù—the sensory strength; sahaù—and mental strength; balavatäm—of the strong; karma—the devotional activities; aham—I am; viddhi—please know; sätvatäm—among the devotees; sätvatäm—among those devotees; nava-mürténäm—who worship Me in nine forms; ädi-mürtiù—the original form, Väsudeva; aham—I am; parä—the Supreme.

TRANSLATION

Of the powerful I am bodily and mental strength, and I am the devotional activities of My devotees. My devotees worship Me in nine different forms, among which I am the original and primary Väsudeva.

PURPORT

Generally, the Vaiñëavas worship the Personality of Godhead as Väsudeva, Saì karñaëa, Pradyumna, Aniruddha, Näräyaëa, Hayagrëva, Varäha, Näsiàha and Brahmä. It is understood that when a suitable living entity is not available to fill the post of Brahmä, the Lord Himself assumes the position; therefore Lord Brahmä is mentioned in the list. Lord Viñëu sometimes appears as Indra and sometimes as Brahmä, and it is Viñëu appearing as Brahmä who is indicated in this connection.

TEXT 33

ivaìAvas$au: paUvaRicaiÔar," gAnDavaARps$ar"s$aAmah"ma, BaUDar"ANAAmahM" sTaEya< gAnDamaAṭamahM" Bauva:

viçvāvasuù pūrvacittir gandharvāpsarasām aham bhūdharāëäm ahaà sthairyāà gandha-mātram ahaà bhuvaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viçvāvasuù—Viçvāvasu; pūrvacittiù—Pūrvacitti; gandharva-apsarasām—among the Gandharvas and Apsarās; aham—I am;
bhūdharāëäm—of the mountains; aham—I am; sthairyam—the steadiness; gandha-mātram—the perception of aroma; aham—I am; bhuvaù—of the earth.

TRANSLATION

Among the Gandharvas I am Viçvāvasu, and I am Pūrvacitti among the heavenly Apsaras. I am the steadiness of mountains and the fragrant aroma of the earth.

PURPORT

In Bhagavad-gētā (7.9) Lord Kāñëa says, puëyo gandhaù pāthivyāà ca: "I am the fragrance of the earth." The original fragrance of the earth is very pleasing and represents Lord Kāñëa. Although unpleasant aromas may be artificially produced, they do not represent the Lord.

TEXT 34

@paAM r"s$aê par"mas$a, taeijai"AnaAM ivaBaAvas$au:

‘aBaA s$UyaeRnäu"taAr"ANAAM zAbd"Ae'hM" naBas$a: par":

*apāḥ rasaḥ ca paramas tejīñhānāḥ vibhāvasuḥ
prabhā sūryendu-tārāḥ
ṣabda 'haḥ nabhasaḥ paraḥ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

apām—of water; rasaḥ—the taste; ca—also; paramaḥ—excellent; tejīñhānām—among most brilliant things; vibhāvasuḥ—the sun; prabhā—the effulgence; sūrya—of the sun; indu—the moon; tārāḥ—and the stars; ṣabdaḥ—the sound vibration; aham—I am; nabhasaḥ—of the sky; paraḥ—transcendental.

TRANSLATION

I am the sweet taste of water, and among brilliant things I am the sun. I am the effulgence of the sun, moon and stars, and I am the transcendental sound that vibrates in the sky.

TEXT 35

“aöNyaAnaAM bailar"hM" valr"ANAAmah"majauRna: BaUtaAnaAM isTaitaḥ&tpaiÔar," @hM" vaE ‘aitas$ax.~,(ma:

*brahmaëyānāḥ balir ahaḥ véṛāḥ aham arjunaḥ
bhūtānāḥ sthitir utpattir ahaḥ vai pratisaḥ kramaḥ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

brahmaëyānām—of those dedicated to brahminical culture; baliù—Bali Mahārāja, the son of Virocana; aham—I am; véṛäëām—of heroes; aham—I am; arjunaù—Arjuna; bhütānām—of all living beings; sthitiù—the maintenance; utpattiù—the creation; aham—I am; vai—indeed; pratisaì kramaù—the annihilation.

TRANSLATION

Among those dedicated to brahminical culture I am Bali Mahārāja, the son of Virocana, and I am Arjuna among heroes. Indeed, I am the creation, maintenance and annihilation of all living entities.

TEXT 36

gAtyauftyauts$agAAeRpaAd"Anama, @Anand"s$ pazARla°anama, @AsvaAd"™autyava,,aANama, @hM" s$avaeRin%o"yaein%o"yama,

gaty-ukty-utsargopādānam ānanda-sparṇa-lakṣānam āsvāda-ṣṛuty-avaghrāëam ahaà sarvendriyendriyam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gati—movement of the legs (walking, running, etc.); ukti—speech; utsarga—evacuation; upādānam—accepting with the hands; ānanda—the material pleasure of the sex organs; sparṇa—touch; lakṣāëam—sight; āsvāda—taste; ṣṛuti—hearing; avaghrāëam—smell; aham—I am; sarva-indriya—of all the senses; indriyam—the potency to experience their objects.

TRANSLATION

I am the functions of the five working senses—the legs, speech, anus, hands and sex organs—as well as those of the five knowledge-acquiring senses—touch, sight, taste, hearing and smell. I am also the potency by which each of the senses experiences its particular sense object.

TEXT 37

paṭiṭaval vaAyaaur"Ak(AzA @ApaAe jyaAeitar"hM" mah"Ana, ivak(Ar": pauç&SaAe'vya-M( r"ja: s$AÔvaM tama: par"ma, @h"maetat'as$AÊÿYaAnaM ÁaAnaM taÔvaivainaêya:

*pāthivé vāyur ākāṣa
āpo jyotir ahaà mahān vikāraù puruṇo 'vyaktaà rajaù sattvaà tamaù param
aham etat prasaì khyānaà jī ānaà tattva-viniṣcayaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pāthivé—the subtle form of earth, aroma; vāyuù—the subtle form of air, touch; ākāṣaù—the subtle form of sky, sound; āpaù—the subtle form of water, taste; jyotiù—the subtle form of fire, form; aham—false ego; mahān—the mahat-tattva; vikāraù—the sixteen elements (earth, water, fire, air and sky, the five working senses, the five knowledge-acquiring senses and the mind); puruṇaù—the living entity; avyaktam—material nature, prakāti; rajaù—the mode of passion; sattvam—the mode of goodness; tamaù—the mode of ignorance; param—the Supreme Lord; aham—I am; etat—this; prasaì khyānam—all that has been enumerated; jī ānam—knowledge of the above-mentioned elements by individual symptoms; tattva-viniṣcayaù—steady conviction, which is the fruit of knowledge.

TRANSLATION

I am form, taste, aroma, touch and sound; false ego; the mahat-tattva; earth, water, fire, air and sky; the living entity; material nature; the modes of goodness, passion and ignorance; and the transcendental Lord. All these items, along with knowledge of their individual symptoms and the steady conviction that results from this knowledge, represent Me.

PURPORT

Having given a brief but detailed synopsis of His personal opulences within this world, the Lord now briefly summarizes the opulences that expand from His bodily effulgence. It is stated in Brahma-saṅhitā that all of the material universes with their infinite varieties, transformations and opulences rest on the bodily effulgence of the Lord. Çrëla Jëva Gosvämé has elaborately explained this point in his commentary on this verse.

TEXT 38

mayaeìre"NA jalvaena
gAuNAena gAuiNAnaA ivanaA
s$avaARtmanaAipa s$avaeRNA na BaAvaAe ivaâtae ,(icata, mayeçvareëa jëvena

guëena guëinä vinä
sarvätmanäpi sarveëa
na bhävo vidyate kvacit

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mayä—Me; éçvareëa—the Supreme Lord; jëvena—the living entity; guëena—the modes of nature; guëinä—the mahat-tattva; vinä—without; sarva-ätmanä—the soul of all that exists; api—indeed; sarveëa—everything;

na—not; bhāvaù—existence; vidyate—there is; kvacit—whatsoever.

TRANSLATION

As the Supreme Lord I am the basis of the living entity, of the modes of nature and of the mahat-tattva. Thus I am everything, and nothing whatsoever can exist without Me.

PURPORT

Without the manifestation of the mahat-tattva, or total material existence, and the jéva, or living entity, nothing can exist within the material world. Everything we experience is a combination of the living entity and matter, in its various subtle and gross categories. The Supreme Personality of Godhead is the entire basis of the existence of both the living entity and matter. Nothing can possibly exist even for a moment without the mercy of the Supreme Lord. One should not foolishly conclude that the Lord is therefore material. As has been clearly explained in this canto of the Bhāgavatam, both the living entity and the Supreme Lord are completely transcendental to material nature. The living entity, however, has the propensity to dream that he is material, whereas the Lord constantly remembers the transcendental position of both Himself and the conditioned dreaming entity. As the Lord is transcendental, His abode is also far beyond the reach of the modes of nature. The actual purpose of life is to understand by mature conviction the transcendental Lord, His transcendental abode, our own transcendental position and the process by which we may go back home, back to Godhead.

TEXT 39

s$âÿYaAnaM par"maANaUnaAM k(Alaena i,(yatae mayaA na taTaA mae ivaBaUtalnaAM s$a{jataAe'Nx"Aina k(Aeiq%zA:

*saì khyānaà paramäëünäà kälēna kriyate mayä
na tathä me vibhütēnāà
sājato 'ëöäni koõïçau*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

saì khyānam—counting; parama-aëünām—of the atoms; kälēna—after some time; kriyate—is done; mayä—by Me; na—not; tathä—in the same way; me—of Me; vibhütēnām—of the opulences; sājatau—who am creating; aëöäni—universes; koõïçau—by the innumerable millions.

TRANSLATION

Even though over a period of time I might count all the atoms of the universe, I could not count all of My opulences which I manifest within innumerable universes.

PURPORT

The Lord here explains that Uddhava should not expect a complete catalog of the Lord's opulences, since even the Lord Himself finds no limit to such opulences. According to Çrēla Jēva Gosvāmē, kälēna indicates that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is within every atom and can therefore easily calculate the total number of atoms. However, although the Lord is certainly omniscient, even He Himself cannot supply a finite number for His opulences, because they are infinite.

TEXT 40

*taeja: ™al: k(LitaR(rE"iya< œ"IstyaAgA: s$AEBagAM BagA:
valya< itaita°aA ivaÁaAnaM yaṭa yaṭa s$A mae"M'zAk(:*

tejaù çréù kértir aiçvaryaà hrés tyägaù saubhagaà bhagaù véryaà titikñä vijji änaà yatra yatra sa me 'àçakaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tejaù—power; çréù—beautiful, valuable things; kétiù—fame;
aiçvaryam—opulence; hréù—humility; tyägaù—renunciation; saubhagam—that which pleases the mind and senses; bhagaù—good fortune; véryam—strength; titikñä—tolerance; vijji änam—spiritual knowledge; yatra yatra—wherever; saù—this; me—My;
aàçakaù—expansion.

TRANSLATION

Whatever power, beauty, fame, opulence, humility, renunciation, mental pleasure, fortune, strength, tolerance or spiritual knowledge there may be is simply an expansion of My opulence.

PURPORT

Although the Lord stated in the previous verse that His opulences are innumerable, the Lord here gives a specific resume and demonstration of His opulences.

TEXT 41

WtaAstae k(LitaRtaA: s$avaAR: s$aÉeÿpaeNA ivaBaUtaya: manaAeivak(Ar"A WvaEtae yaTaA vaAcaAiBaDalyatae

etäs te kértitäu sarväu saì kñepeeä vibhütayaù

*mano-vikārā evaite
yathā vācābhidhēyate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

etāu—these; te—to you; kértitāu—described; sarvāu—all; saī kñepeēa—briefly; vibhūtayaū—spiritual opulences; manaū—of the mind; vikārāu—transformations; eva—indeed; ete—these; yathā—accordingly; vācā—by words; abhidhēyate—each is described.

TRANSLATION

I have briefly described to you all My spiritual opulences and also the extraordinary material features of My creation, which are perceived by the mind and defined in different ways according to circumstances.

PURPORT

According to Sanskrit grammar, and as confirmed by Ṣṛēla Ṣṛēdhara Svāmē, the words etāu and ete describe two distinct sets of the Lord's opulences. The Lord has described His opulent plenary expansions, such as Vāsudeva, Nārāyaēa, the Supersoul, etc., and further the Lord has described the outstanding features of the material creation, which are also included among the glories of the Personality of Godhead. The plenary manifestations of the Lord, such as Vāsudeva, Nārāyaēa, etc., are all eternal, unchanging transcendental features of the Lord and are indicated by the term etāu. The extraordinary aspects of material creation, however, are circumstantial and dependent on individual perception, and they are therefore described here by the words mano-vikārā evaite yathā vācābhidhēyate. Ṣṛēla Jēva Gosvāmē explains that by consistent logical application of synonyms, etāu refers to the Lord's eternal spiritual manifestations, beyond the perception of the material senses, whereas ete refers to those opulences that can be perceived by conditioned souls. He gives the example that the paraphernalia and intimate associates of a king are all considered to be part and parcel of the king and are therefore granted royal status. Similarly, the opulent features of material creation are reflected expansions of the Lord's personal opulences and thus may be considered nondifferent from Him. One should not, however, wrongly assume that such insignificant material opulences occupy the same status as the Lord's plenary features as the Personality of Godhead, which are qualitatively and quantitatively equal to the Lord.

Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura comments as follows on this verse. "The Lord's external opulences are called mano-vikārāu, or 'related to mental transformation,' because ordinary people perceive extraordinary features of the material world according to their personal state of mind. Thus the word vācābhidhēyate indicates that conditioned souls describe the Lord's material creation according to specific material circumstances. Because of the circumstantial relative definitions of material opulence, such opulence is never to be considered a direct plenary manifestation of the Lord's personal form. When one's state of mind is transformed into a favorable or affectionate state, one defines a manifestation of the Lord's energy as 'my son,' 'my father,' 'my husband,' 'my uncle,' 'the son of my brother,' 'my friend,' and so on. One forgets that every living entity is actually part and parcel of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and that whatever opulences, talents or outstanding features one may exhibit are actually the potencies of the Lord. Similarly, when the mind is transformed into a negative or inimical state, one thinks, 'This person will be the ruin of me,' 'This person must be finished by me,' 'He is my enemy' or 'I am his enemy,' 'He is a killer, or 'He should be killed.' The negative state of mind is also expressed when one is attracted to the extraordinary material aspects of particular persons or objects but forgets that they are manifestations of the potency of the Personality of Godhead. Even the demigod Indra, who is quite obviously a manifestation of the Lord's material opulences, is misunderstood by others. For example, Indra's wife, Çacé, thinks that Indra is 'my husband,' whereas Aditi thinks that he is 'my son.' Jayanta thinks that he is 'my father,' Bāhaspati thinks that he is 'my disciple,' whereas the demons feel that Indra is their personal enemy. Thus different personalities define him according to their mental state. The Lord's material opulences, being relatively perceived, are therefore called mano-vikāra, which means they are dependent on mental states. This relative perception is material because it does not recognize the Supreme Personality of Godhead as the actual source of the particular opulence. If one sees Lord Kâñëa as the source of all opulences and gives up all desires to enjoy or possess the Lord's opulences, then one can see the spiritual nature of these opulences. At that time, even though one may continue to perceive the variety and distinctions of the material world, one will become perfect in Kâñëa consciousness. One should not conclude, as do the voidist philosophers, that the Lord's spiritual manifestations in the viñëu-tattva and liberated jéva categories are also products of relative perception and mental states. This useless idea is contrary to the entire body of the Supreme Personality of Godhead's teachings to Çré Uddhava."

According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the word väcä also indicates the various Vedic literatures that describe the particular processes by which the Lord manifests His spiritual and material opulences, and in this context yathä indicates the specific procedures of manifestation and creation.

TEXT 42

vaAcaM yacC$ manaAe yacC$
 'aANAAna, yacCe$i%"yaAiNA ca @AtmaAnamaAtmanaA yacC$ na BaUya: k(lpas$ae'Dvanae

*väcä à yaccha mano yaccha präëän yacchedriyäëi ca ätmānam ātmanā yaccha
 na bhüyaù kalpase 'dhvane*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

väcam—speech; yaccha—control; manaù—the mind; yaccha—control; präëän—your breathing; yaccha—control; indriyäëi—the senses; ca—also; ätmānam—the intelligence; ātmanā—by purified intelligence; yaccha—control; na—never; bhüyaù—again; kalpase—you will fall;

adhvane—on the path of material existence.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, control your speaking, subdue the mind, conquer the life air, regulate the senses and through purified intelligence bring your rational faculties under control. In this way you will never again fall onto the path of material existence.

PURPORT

One should see all things as expansions of the Supreme Lord's potency, and thus with speech, mind and senses one should offer respect to all things, without minimizing any living entity or material object. Since everything belongs to the Lord, everything ultimately should be engaged in the Lord's service with great care. A self-realized devotee tolerates personal insult and does not become envious of any living entity, nor does he see anyone as his enemy. This is practical enlightenment. Although a pure devotee may criticize those who obstruct the Lord's mission, such criticism is never personally motivated nor is it ever based on enviousness. An advanced devotee of the Lord may chastise his followers or criticize the demoniac, but only to carry out the mission of the Supreme Lord and never out of personal enmity or enviousness. For one who completely gives up the material concept of life there is no possibility of entering again onto the path of birth and death.

TEXT 43

yaAe vaE vaAx.~manas$al s$aMyagA, @s$aMyacC$inDayaA yaita:
tasya ~ataM tapaAe d"AnaM ṛavatyaAmaGaq%Ambauvata, yo vai vāi -manasé saàyaḡ asaàyacchan dhiyā yatiù

tasya vrataà tapo dānaà sravaty āma-ghaāmbu-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who; vai—certainly; vāk-manas—the speech and mind; saàyak—completely; asaàyacchan—not controlling; dhiyā—by intelligence; yatiù—a transcendentalist; tasya—his; vrata—vows; tapau—austerities; dānam—charity; sravati—run out; āma—unbaked; ghaā—in a pot; ambu-vat—like water.

TRANSLATION

A transcendentalist who does not completely control his words and mind by superior intelligence will find that his spiritual vows, austerities and charity flow away just as water flows out of an unbaked clay pot.

PURPORT

When a clay pot is properly baked it holds any liquid substance without leakage. If a clay pot is not properly baked, however, water or any other liquid within it will seep out and be lost. Similarly, a transcendentalist who does not control his speech and mind will find that his spiritual discipline and austerity gradually seep away and are lost. Dāna, or "charity," refers to work performed for the welfare of others. Those who are trying to give the highest charity by preaching Kāñēa consciousness should not engage in speaking cleverly for the satisfaction of beautiful women, nor should they attempt to become artificially intellectual simply for the sake of mundane academic prestige. One should not even think of intimate sexual relationships, nor should one daydream of acquiring a prestigious position. Otherwise, one's determination to strictly practice Kāñēa consciousness will be lost, as described here. One must control the mind, senses and speech by higher intelligence so that one's life will be successful.

TEXT 44

tasmaAã"caAe mana: 'aANAAna, inayacCe$matpar"AyaNA: maà"i·(yau·(yaA bauÜ"YaA tata: pair"s$amaApyatae

tasmäd vaco manaù präëän niyacchen mat-paräyaëaù mad-bhakti-yuktayä buddhyä tataù parisamäpyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmät—therefore; vacaù—words; manaù—the mind; präëän—the life airs; niyacchet—one should control; mat-paräyaëaù—who is devoted to Me; mat—unto Me; bhakti—with devotion; yuktayä—endowed; buddhyä—by such intelligence; tataù—thus; parisamäpyate—one fulfills the mission of life.

TRANSLATION

Being surrendered to Me, one should control the speech, mind and life air, and then through loving devotional intelligence one will completely fulfill the mission of life.

PURPORT

One can develop loving devotional intelligence by perfectly chanting the Brahma-gäyatrë mantra awarded at the moment of brähmaëa initiation. By clear intelligence, one becomes naturally and spontaneously disinterested in the rewards offered by mental speculation and fruitive activities and takes full shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda to the Eleventh Canto, Sixteenth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhägavatam, entitled "The Lord's Opulence."

17. Lord Kāñëa's Description of the Varëäçrama System

Previously, the Supreme Lord, Çré Kāñëa, had assumed the form of Haàsa and glorified the duties of the brahmacäri and gāhashta orders. In this present chapter Lord Kāñëa further describes these matters to Uddhava.

After Uddhava inquires from Çré Kāñëa about the duties of the social and religious orders of the varëäçrama society, the Lord replies that in the first age, Satya-yuga, there was only one social order, called haàsa. In that age men were automatically dedicated to pure devotional service from their very birth, and since everyone was perfect in-all respects, the age was called Kāta-yuga. The Vedas were then manifest in the form of the sacred syllable oà, and the Supreme Lord was perceived within the mind in the form of the four-legged bull of religion. There were no formalized processes of sacrifice, and the sinless people, who were naturally inclined to austerity, simply engaged in meditation on the personal form of the Lord. In the following age, Tretä-yuga, there became manifest from the heart of the Supreme Personality of Godhead the three Vedas, and from them the three forms of the sacrificial fire. At that time the system of four varëas and four äçramas, which prescribes material and spiritual duties for the different members of society, appeared from the bodily limbs of the Lord. According to how the social divisions took birth from higher and lower features of the Lord's body, they became endowed with higher and lower qualities. After this description, Lord Kāñëa explains the natures of persons in each of the four varëas and of those who are outside the limits of the varëas. He also describes those qualities that pertain to humanity in general.

Members of the higher orders are qualified to accept second birth. After receiving the sacred thread initiation, they should go to live in the guru-kula, the home of the spiritual master. With a pacified mind, the student (brahmacāre) should absorb himself in study of the Vedas. He should keep matted hair and is forbidden to wash his teeth, prepare a nice seat for himself, talk when bathing or evacuating, cut his hair and nails or at any time pass semen. He must regularly perform worship at the three junctures of the day and must render devotional service to his spiritual master in a spirit free from envy. The brahmacāre must offer to the guru whatever food and other things he obtains by begging. He accepts for his maintenance whatever remnants of the Lord he is granted. He should render menial service to the spiritual master by massaging his feet and worshipping him and should avoid all sense gratification and strictly maintain the vow of celibacy. With his mind, body and words, he should worship the Supreme Lord in the form of the Supersoul in the way prescribed for him. For brahmacārīs, seeing or touching women, and conversations or sports in the company of women, are absolutely disallowed. Cleanliness and ritual purification by water should be observed by members of all the spiritual orders of society. Everyone is also advised to always remember that the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the Supreme Soul dwelling within the hearts of all.

After studying all the different aspects of the Vedas, a brāhmaëa who has material desires may take permission from his spiritual master and enter family life. Otherwise, if he has no material desire, he may become a vānaprastha or sannyāsē. The proper order of succession should be followed in changing from one spiritual order to the next. One who wishes to enter the household order should accept a wife who is of the same social class, who is not objectionable, and who is somewhat younger in age than he.

The obligatory duties of the three classes who are twice-born—the brāhmaëas, kñātriyas and vaiçyas—are worship of the Lord, study of the Vedas and giving charity. The occupational duties of accepting charity, teaching others and performing sacrifice for others are the privilege of the brāhmaëas alone. If a brāhmaëa considers that his consciousness is contaminated by engaging in these occupations, he may sustain his existence by collecting grains from the fields. If he is disturbed by poverty, the brāhmaëa may out of necessity accept the business of a kñātriya or vaiçya, but he should never take the occupation of a çüdra. In a similar situation, a kñātriya may take the occupation of a vaiçya, and a vaiçya that of a çüdra. But when the emergency has passed, it is not fitting to continue earning one's living by a lower occupation. A brähmaëa who is properly fixed in his personal duty rejects all insignificant material desires, always serves the Vaiñëavas and is under the protection of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. The householder should study the Vedas every day and maintain his wards with money honestly earned by his own occupation. As far as possible, he should execute worship of the Lord by ritual sacrifices. Remaining unattached to material life and fixed in devotion to the Supreme Lord, the householder may finally take the order of vänaprastha, so that he can fully involve himself in the Lord's worship. If he has a grown son, he may directly take the renounced order of sannyäsa. But persons who are excessively lusty after women, who have no proper discrimination, and who are extremely attached to wealth and possessions remain perpetually in anxiety over the welfare of their family members and are doomed to take their next birth in a lower species of life.

TEXTS 1-2

™aloÜ"va ovaAca
yastvayaAiBaih"ta: paUva< DamaRstvaà"i·(la°aNA:
vaNAARzAmaAcaAr"vataAM
s$avaeRSaAM iã"pad"Amaipa yaTaAnauï"lyamaAnaena tvaiya Bai·(na{RNAAM Bavaeta, svaDamaeRNAAr"ivand"A°a tanmamaAKyaAtaumahR"is$a

çré-uddhava uväca
yas tvayäbhihitaù pürvaà dharmaś tvad-bhakti-lakñāëaù varëäçramäcāravatäà
sarveñäà dvi-padām api

*yathānuñōhēyamānena
tvayi bhaktir nāēāà bhavet sva-dharmeēāravindākñā
tan mamākhyātum arhasi*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-uddhavaù uvāca—Çré Uddhava said; yaù—which; tvayā—by You; abhihitaù—described; pūrvam—previously; dharmaù—religious principles; tvat-bhakti-lakñāēāù—characterized by devotional service to Your Lordship; varēa-āçrama—of the varēāçrama system; ācāratām—of the faithful followers; sarveñām—of all; dvi-padām—of ordinary human beings (who do not follow the varēāçrama system); api—even; yathā—according to; anuñōhēyamānena—the process being executed; tvayi—in You; bhaktiù—loving service; nāēām—of human beings; bhavet—may be; sva-dharmeēā—by one's own occupational duty; aravinda-akñā—O lotus-eyed one; tat—that; mama—to me; ākhyātum—to explain; arhasi—You ought.

TRANSLATION

Çré Uddhava said: My dear Lord, previously You described the principles of devotional service that are to be practiced by followers of the varēāçrama system and even ordinary, unregulated human beings. My dear lotus-eyed Lord, now please explain to me how all human beings can achieve loving service unto You by the execution of their prescribed duties.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñēa has already elaborately explained the process of jī'āna-yoga, bhakti-yoga and añōāi ga-yoga. Now Uddhava inquires how those inclined toward karma-yoga can achieve the perfection of life, Kāñēa consciousness. In Bhagavad-gētā (4.13) Lord Kāñēa describes that He is personally the creator of the varēāçrama system. Cātur-varēyaà mayā sññōaà guēa-karma-vibhāgaçaù. Therefore the ultimate goal of the varēāçrama system is to please the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In other words, one should become a devotee of the Lord and learn the process of pure devotional service. The easiest method of achieving pure devotional service is by the association of pure devotees of the Lord. If one submissively and faithfully associates with pure devotees, one can immediately achieve the perfection of life. A Kāñëa conscious person is not required to execute all the formalities of the varëäçrama system, because a Kāñëa conscious person, absorbed in love of Godhead, automatically gives up all sense gratification and mental speculation. Those human beings who do not follow the varëäçrama system are here referred to as dvi-padām, or two-legged. In other words, one who does not follow the religious path of life is known to be human only by the possession of two legs. Even ordinary animals and insects are eagerly engaged in eating, sleeping, mating and defending; the human being, however, is distinguished from such lower forms of life by his capacity to become religious and, ultimately, to love God in pure Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXTS 3-4

paur"A ik(la mah"AbaAh"Ae Dama< par"makM('aBaAe yaÔaena hM"s$ae&paeNA
"aöNAe'ByaAtTa maADava

s$a wd"Anal%M s$aumah"taA k(AlaenaAima†ak(zARna na 'aAyaAe BaivataA matyaR-laAeke('aAgAnauzAAis$ata:

purä kila mahä-bäho
dharmaà paramakaà prabho yat tena haàsa-rüpeëa brahmaëe 'bhyättha mädhava sa idänéà su-mahatä

kälenāmitra-karṣana na prāyo bhavitā martyaloke prāg anuṣṣitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

purā—previously; kila—indeed; mahā-bāho—O mighty-armed one; dharmam—religious principles; paramakam—bringing the greatest happiness; prabho—my Lord; yat—which; tena—by that; haṁsa-rūpeṇa—in the form of Lord Haṁsa; brahmaṇe—unto Lord Brahmā; abhyāttha—You spoke; mādhava—my dear Mādhava; saù—that (knowledge of religious principles); idānīm—presently; su-mahatā—after very long; kālena—time; amitra-karṣana—O subduer of the enemy; na—not; prāyaù—generally; bhavitā—will exist; martya-loke—in human society; prāk—previously; anuṣṣitaù—instructed.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord, O mighty-armed one, previously in Your form of Lord Haṁsa You spoke to Lord Brahmā those religious principles that bring supreme happiness to the practitioner. My dear Mādhava, now much time has passed, and that which You previously instructed will soon practically cease to exist, O subduer of the enemy.

TEXTS 5-6

va·(A k(ṭaARivataA naAnyAe DamaRsyaAcyauta tae Bauiva s$BaBaAyaAmaipa vaEir"HcyaAM yaṭa maUitaRDar"A: k(laA:

k(ṭaARivaṭaA 'avaṭaA ca BavataA maDaus$aUd"na tya·e(mah"ltae de"va ivanaíM" k(: 'ava^oyaita

vaktä kartävitä nānyo dharmasyācyuta te bhuvi sabhāyām api vairīi cyāà yatra mūrti-dharāu kalāu

*kartrāvitṛa pravaktrā ca bhavatā madhusūdana tyakte mahē-tale deva
vinaññaà kaù pravakñyati*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vaktä—speaker; kartä—creator; avitä—protector; na—not; anyaù—any other; dharmasya—of supreme religious principles; acyuta—my dear Acyuta; te—than You; bhuvi—on the earth; sabhāyām—in the assembly; api—even; vairīi cyām—of Lord Brahmā; yatra—wherein; mūrti-dharāu—in the personified form; kalāu—the Vedas; kartrā—by the creator; avitṛa—by the protector; pravaktrā—by the speaker; ca—also; bhavatā—by Your Lordship; madhusūdana—my dear Madhusūdana; tyakte—when it is abandoned; mahē-tale—the earth; deva—my dear Lord; vinaññaam—those lost principles of religion; kaù—who; pravakñyati—will speak.

TRANSLATION

My dear Lord Acyuta, there is no speaker, creator and protector of supreme religious principles other than Your Lordship, either on the earth or even in the assembly of Lord Brahmā, where the personified Vedas reside. Thus, my dear Lord Madhusūdana, when You, who are the very creator, protector and speaker of spiritual knowledge, abandon the earth, who will again speak this lost knowledge?

TEXT 7

taÔvaM na: s$avaRDamaRÁa DamaRstvaà"i·(la°aNA:
yaTaA yasya ivaDalyaeta
taTaA vaNARya mae 'aBaAe tat tvaà naù sarva-dharma-jì a dharmaś tvad-bhakti-lakñāēaù yathā yasya vidhéyeta tathā varēaya me prabho

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tat—therefore; tvam—You; naù—among us (human beings); sarva-dharma-jì a—O supreme knower of religious principles; dharmaù—the spiritual path; tvad-bhakti—by loving service to You; lakñāēaù—characterized; yathā—in which way; yasya—of whom; vidhéyeta—may be executed; tathā—in that way; varēaya—please describe; me—unto me; prabho—my Lord.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, my Lord, since You are the knower of all religious principles, please describe to me the human beings who may execute the path of loving service to You and how such service is to be rendered.

TEXT 8

™alzAuk(ovaAca
wtTaM svaBa{tyamauKyaena pa{í": s$a BagAvaAna, h"ir":
'alta: °aemaAya matyaARnaAM DamaARnaAh" s$anaAtanaAna,

*çré-çuka uvāca
itthaà sva-bhātya-mukhyena pāññaù sa bhagavān hariù*

prētaù kñemāya martyānāà dharmān āha sanātanān

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-çukaù uvāca—Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said; ittham—thus; sva-bhātya-mukhyena—by the best of His devotees; pāññaù—questioned; saù—He; bhagavān—the Supreme Personality of Godhead; hariù—Çré Kāñēa; prētaù—being pleased; kñemāya—for the highest welfare; martyānām—of all conditioned souls; dharmān—religious principles; āha—spoke; sanātanān—eternal.

TRANSLATION

Çré Çukadeva Gosvāmé said: Çré Uddhava, the best of devotees, thus inquired from the Lord. Hearing his question, the Personality of Godhead, çré Kāñēa, was pleased and for the welfare of all conditioned souls spoke those religious principles that are eternal.

TEXT 9

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
Damyar W Sa tava 'a'aAe naE:™aeyas$ak(r"Ae na{NAAma, vaNAAR™amaAcaAr"vataAM
tatauÜ"va inabaAeDa mae

çré-bhagavān uvāca
dharmya eña tava praçno naiùçreyasa-karo nāëām varëäçramäcāravatāà
tam uddhava nibodha me

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said;

dharmyaù—faithful to religious principles; eñaù—this; tava—your; praçnaù—question; naiùçreyasa-karaù—the cause of pure devotional service; nâëäm—for ordinary human beings; varëa-äçrama—the varëäçrama system; äcära-vatäm—for those who faithfully follow; tam—those highest religious principles; uddhava—My dear Uddhava; nibodha—please learn; me—from Me.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Uddhava, your question is faithful to religious principles and thus gives rise to the highest perfection in life, pure devotional service, for both ordinary human beings and the followers of the varëäçrama system. Now please learn from Me those supreme religious principles.

PURPORT

The word naiùçreyasa-kara indicates that which awards the highest perfection of life, Kânëa consciousness, which the Lord is explaining to Çré Uddhava. When considering religious principles, ordinary human beings remain bogged down in sectarian mundane considerations. The process that awards the highest perfection of life should be considered the most auspicious for human beings. The varëäçrama system is the most scientific presentation of religiosity on the earth, and those who are most perfect in that system come to the point of Kânëa consciousness, or dedicating everything for the satisfaction of the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 10

@Ad"AE k{(tayaugAe vaNAAeR na{NAAM hM"s$a wita sma{ta:
k{(tak{(tyaA: 'ajaA jaAtyaA tasmaAtk{(tayaugAM ivaäu":

ädau kâta-yuge varëo

nâëää haàsa iti smâtaù kâta-kâtyäù prajā jâtyä tasmât kâta-yugaà viduù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ädau—in the beginning (of the millennium); kâta-yuge—in the Satya-yuga, or age of truth; varëaù—the social class; nâëäm—of human beings; haàsaù—named haàsa; iti—thus; smâtaù—well known; kâta-kâtyäù—perfect in the execution of duties by complete surrender to the Supreme Lord; prajāù—the citizens; jâtyä—automatically by birth; tasmât—therefore; kâta-yugam—Kâta-yuga, or the age in which all duties are fulfilled; viduù—was thus known by the learned.

TRANSLATION

In the beginning, in Satya-yuga, there is only one social class, called haàsa, to which all human beings belong. In that age all people are unalloyed devotees of the Lord from birth, and thus learned scholars call this first age Kâta-yuga, or the age in which all religious duties are perfectly fulfilled.

PURPORT

It is understood from this verse that the supreme religious principle is unalloyed surrender to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In Satya-yuga there is no influence of the lower modes of nature, and therefore all human beings belong to the highest social order, called haàsa, in which one comes under the direct supervision of the Personality of Godhead. In the modern age people are crying out for social equality, but unless all human beings are situated in the mode of goodness, which is the position of purity and unalloyed devotion, social equality is not possible. As the lower modes of nature become prominent, secondary religious principles arise, by which people may be gradually elevated to the pure stage of unalloyed surrender to God. In Satya-yuga there are no inferior human beings, and thus there is no need of secondary religious principles. Everyone directly takes to the unalloyed service of the Lord, fulfilling perfectly all religious obligations. In Sanskrit, one who perfectly executes all duties is called kâta-kâtya, as mentioned in this verse. Therefore Satya-yuga is called Kâta-yuga, or the age of perfect religious action. According to Çréla Jéva Gosvämé, the word âdau ("in the beginning") refers to the moment of universal creation. In other words, the varëäçrama system is not a recent concoction but naturally arises at the time of creation and should therefore be accepted by all intelligent human beings.

TEXT 11

vaed": 'aNAva WvaAfae DamaAeR'hM" va{Saè&paDa{k,( opaAs$atae tapaAeinaï"A hM"s$aM maAM mau·(ik(ilbaSaA:

*vedaù praëava evagre dharma 'haà vâña-rüpa-dhâk upäsate tapo-niñöhä
haàsaà mäà mukta-kilbiñäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vedaù—the Veda; praëavaù—the sacred syllable oà; eva—indeed; agre—in Satya-yuga; dharmaù—the object of mental activities; aham—I; vâña-rüpa-dhâk—bearing the form of the bull of religion; upäsate—they worship; tapaù-niñöhäù—fixed in austerity; haàsam—Lord Haàsa; mäm—Me; mukta—freed from; kilbiñäù—all sins.

TRANSLATION

In Satya-yuga the undivided Veda is expressed by the syllable oà, and I am the only object of mental activities. I become manifest as the four-legged bull of religion, and thus the inhabitants of Satya-yuga, fixed in austerity and free from all sins, worship Me as Lord Haàsa.

PURPORT

The bull of religion is described in Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (1.17.24): tapaù çaucam dayā satyam iti pādāu kâte kâtāu. "In the age of Satya [truthfulness], your four legs were established by the four principles of austerity, cleanliness, mercy and truthfulness." Çré Vyāsadeva divided the one Veda into four—the Āg, Yajur, Sāma and Atharva Vedas—at the end of Dvāpara-yuga, but in Satya-yuga the whole of Vedic knowledge is easily understood by everyone simply by vibrating the syllable oā. In this age there are no ritualistic or pious activities such as sacrifice, since everyone is sinless, austere and fully engaged in worshiping the Personality of Godhead, Lord Haāsa, through the process of meditation.

TEXT 12

‡aetaAmauKae mah"ABaAgA
'aANAAanmae ô$d"yaAt‡ayaI ivaâA 'aAäu"r"BaUÔasyaA @h"maAs$aM i‡ava{nmaKa:

tretā-mukhe mahā-bhāga prāēān me hādayāt trayē vidyā prādurabhūt tasyā aham āsāē tri-vān makhaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tretā-mukhe—at the beginning of Tretā-yuga; mahā-bhāga—O greatly fortunate one; prāēāt—from the abode of prāēa, or the life air; me—My; hādayāt—from the heart; trayē—the threefold; vidyā—Vedic knowledge; prādurabhūt—appeared; tasyāu—from that knowledge; aham—I; āsam—appeared; tri-vāt—in three divisions; makhaù—sacrifice.

TRANSLATION

O greatly fortunate one, at the beginning of Tretā-yuga Vedic knowledge appeared from My heart, which is the abode of the air of life, in three divisions—as Āg, Sāma and Yajur. Then from that knowledge I appeared as threefold sacrifice.

PURPORT

In Tretā-yuga, the bull of religion loses one leg, and only seventy-five percent of religious principles are manifested, represented by the three principal Vedas—Āg, Sāma and Yajur. The Lord appears in the process of threefold Vedic sacrifice. The three divisions are understood as follows. The hotā priest offers oblations into the fire and chants the Āg Veda; the udgātā priest chants the Sāma Veda; and the adhvaryu priest, who arranges the sacrificial ground, altar, etc., chants the Yajur Veda. In Tretā-yuga such sacrifice is the authorized process for spiritual perfection. The word prāēāt in this verse refers to the universal form of the Personality of Godhead. This form is further described in the following verses.

TEXT 13

iva'a⁰aiṭayaivaq%.zAU#%"A mauKabaAó"ç&paAd"jaA:
vaEr"AjaAtpauç&SaAÄaAtaA
ya @AtmaAcaAr"la⁰aNAA:

vipra-kñatriya-viö-çüdrä mukha-bähüru-päda-jäù vairäjät puruñäj jätä
ya ätmäcära-lakñäëäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vipra—brähmaëas; kñatriya—kñatriyas, the martial class; viö—vaiçyas, mercantile men; çüdräù—çüdras, workers; mukha—from the mouth; bähu—arms; üru—thighs; päda—and legs; jäù—born; vairäjät—from the universal form; puruñāt—from the Personality of Godhead; jätäù—generated; ye-who; ätma—personal; äcära—by activities; lakñäëäù—recognized.

TRANSLATION

In Tretä-yuga the four social orders were manifested from the universal form of the Personality of Godhead. The brähmaëas appeared from the Lord's face, the kñätriyas from the Lord's arms, the vaiçyas from the Lord's thighs and the çüdras from the legs of that mighty form. Each social division was recognized by its particular duties and behavior.

TEXT 14

gA{h"A™amaAe jaGanataAe “aöcaya< ô$d"Ae mama va°a:sTalaAã"naevaAs$a:
s$a^yaAs$a: izAr"is$a isTata:

gâhäçramo jaghanato
brahmacaryaà hâdo mama vakñäù-sthaläd vane-väsaù sannyäsaù çirasi sthitaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gâha-äçramaù—married life; jaghanataù—from the loins; brahmacaryam—celibate student life; hâdaù—from the heart; mama—My; vakñäù-sthalät—from the chest; vane—in the forest; väsaù—dwelling; sannyäsaù—the renounced order of life; çirasi—in the head; sthitaù—situated.

TRANSLATION

The married order of life appeared from the loins of My universal form, and the celibate students came from My heart. The forest-dwelling retired order of life appeared from My chest, and the renounced order of life was situated within the head of My universal form.

PURPORT

There are two classes of brahmacārē life. The naiñöhiki-brahmacārē remains celibate throughout life, whereas the upakurväëa-brahmacārē marries upon finishing his student life. One who remains perpetually celibate is situated within the heart of Lord Kāñëa, but those brahmacārēs who eventually marry are situated within the loins of the universal form of the Lord. The word vane-väsaù refers to vānaprastha, or the retired order of life, which is situated on the chest of the Lord.

TEXT 15

vaNAARnaAmaA™amaANAAM ca janmaBaUmyanaus$aAir"NAl:
@As$ana, 'ak{(tayaAe na|naAM nalcaEnal=caAeÔamaAeÔamaA:

varëänäm açramäëää ca
janma-bhümy-anusäriëëù
äsan prakâtayo nèëää
nécair nécottamottamäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

varëänäm—of the occupational divisions; açramäëäm—of the social divisions; ca—also; janma—of birth; bhümi—the situation; anusäriëëù—according to; äsan—appeared; prakâtayaù—the natures; nèëäm—of human beings; nécäiù—by inferior background; néca—inferior nature; uttama—by superior background; uttamäù—superior natures.

TRANSLATION

The various occupational and social divisions of human society appeared according to inferior and superior natures manifest in the situation of the individual's birth.

PURPORT

According to Çrëla Viçvanätha Cakravartë Öhäkura, the brähmaëas and sannyäsés, being situated on the head of the universal form of the Lord, are considered to be the most qualified, whereas the çüdras and gâhasthas, being on the legs or loins of the Personality of Godhead, are considered to be in the lowest position. A living entity is born with a certain amount of intelligence, beauty and social opportunity, and he is therefore situated in a particular occupational and social position within the varëäçrama system. Ultimately, such positions are external designations, but since the majority of human beings are conditioned by the external energy of the Lord, they should act according to the scientific varëäçrama divisions until they reach the stage of jévan-mukta, or liberated life.

TEXT 16

zAmaAe d"mastapa: zAAEcaM s$antaAeSa: °aAintar"AjaRvama, maà"i·(ê d"yaA s$atyaM “aö‘ak{(tayaistvamaA:

çamo damas tapaù çaucaà santoñaù kñāntir ārjavam mad-bhaktiç ca dayā satyaà brahma-prakāṭayas tv imäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çamaù—peacefulness; damaù—sense control; tapaù—austerity;

çaucam—cleanliness; santoñau—full satisfaction; kñantiu—forgiveness; ärjavam—simplicity and straightforwardness; mat-bhaktiù—devotional service unto Me; ca—also; dayä—mercy; satyam—truth; brahma—of the brähmaëas; prakätayaù—the natural qualities; tu—indeed; imäù—these.

TRANSLATION

Peacefulness, self-control, austerity, cleanliness, satisfaction, tolerance, simple straightforwardness, devotion to Me, mercy and truthfulness are the natural qualities of the brähmaëas.

TEXT 17

taejaAe balaM Da{ita: zAAEya< itaita°aAEd"AyaRmauâma: sTaEya< "aönyamaEiya< °aṭa'ak{(tayaistvamaA:

tejo balaà dhâtiù çauryaà titikñaudäryam udyamaù sthairyaà brahmaëyam aiçvaryaà kñatra-prakätayas tv imäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tejaù—dynamic power; balam—bodily strength; dhâtiù—determination; çauryam—heroism; titikñä—tolerance; audäryam—generosity; udyamaù—endeavor; sthairyam—steadiness; brahmaëyam—being always eager to serve the brähmaëas; aiçvaryam—leadership; kñatra—of the kñatriyas; prakätayaù—the natural qualities; tu—indeed; imäù—these.

TRANSLATION

Dynamic power, bodily strength, determination, heroism, tolerance, generosity, great endeavor, steadiness, devotion to the brähmaëas and leadership are the natural qualities of the kñatriyas.

TEXT 18

@AistafyaM d"Anainai"A ca
@d"mBaAe "aös$aevanama, @tauii"r"TaAeRpacayaEr," vaEzya'ak{(tayaistvamaA:

*ästikya à dāna-niñöhä ca adambho brahma-sevanam atuñöir arthopacayair
vaiçya-prakâtayas tv imäù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ästikyam—faith in Vedic civilization; dāna-niñöhä—dedicated to charity; ca—also; adambhaù—being without hypocrisy; brahma-sevanam—service to the brähmaëas; atuñöiù—remaining dissatisfied; artha—of money; upacayaiù—by the accumulation; vaiçya—of the vaiçyas; prakâtayaù—the natural qualities; tu—indeed; imäù—these.

TRANSLATION

Faith in Vedic civilization, dedication to charity, freedom from hypocrisy, service to the brähmaëas and perpetually desiring to accumulate more money are the natural qualities of the vaiçyas.

PURPORT

Atuñöir arthopacayaiù indicates that a vaiçya is never satisfied with any amount of wealth and always wants to accumulate more. On the other hand, he is dāna-niñöhä, or dedicated to charitable work; brahmasevé, always engaged in assisting the brähmaëas; and adambha, free from hypocrisy. This is due to ästikyam, or complete faith in the Vedic way of life, and confidence that one will be rewarded or punished in the next life for one's present activities. The fervent desire of the vaiçyas to accumulate wealth is not the same as ordinary material greed, because it is purified and tempered by the superior qualities mentioned in this verse.

TEXT 19

zAu™aUSaNAM iã"jagAvaAM de"vaAnaAM caApyamaAyayaA taṭa labDaena s$antaAeSa: zAU#%"ak{(tayaistvamaA:

çuçrũñäëaà dvija-gaväà devänäà cäpy amäyayä tatra labdhena santoñaù çüdra-prakätayas tv imäù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çuçrũñäëam—service; dvija—of the brähmaëas; gaväm—of the cows; devänäm—of worshipable personalities such as the demigods and the spiritual master; ca—also; api—indeed; amäyayä—without duplicity; tatra—in such service; labdhena—with that which is obtained; santoñaù—complete satisfaction; çüdra—of the çüdras; prakätayaù—the natural qualities; tu—indeed; imäù—these.

TRANSLATION

Service without duplicity to the brähmaëas, cows, demigods and other worshipable personalities, and complete satisfaction with whatever income is obtained in such service, are the natural qualities of çüdras.

PURPORT

When the entire social order is functioning properly according to Vedic standards, everyone is happy and satisfied. Although the çüdras are to be satisfied with whatever income they obtain through their service, they never lack the necessities of life, because the other orders of society, such as kñatriyas and vaiçyas, are required to be abundantly generous, and the brähmaëas are well known for being the most merciful of all. Therefore, if all social classes obey the Vedic injunctions there will be a new and blissful life for the entire human society under the guidance of Kânëa consciousness.

TEXT 20

@zAAEcamana{taM staeyaM naAistafyaM zAuSk(iva fah":
k(Ama: ,(AeDaê taSaRê
s$a BaAvaAe'ntyaAvas$aAiyanaAma,

*açaucam anâtaà steyaà
nâstikyaà çuñka-vigrahaù kāmaù krodhaç ca tarñaç ca sa bhävo 'ntyävasäyinām*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

açaucam—dirtiness; anâtam—dishonesty; steyam—thievery;
nâstikyam—faithlessness; çuñka-vigrahaù—useless quarreling; kāmaù—lust;
krodhaù—anger; ca—also; tarñaç—hankering; ca—also; saù—this;
bhāvaù—the nature; antya—in the lowest position; avasäyinām—of those residing.

TRANSLATION

Dirtiness, dishonesty, thievery, faithlessness, useless quarrel, lust, anger and hankering constitute the nature of those in the lowest position outside the varëäçrama system.

PURPORT

Here the Lord describes those who reside outside the scientific social system called varëäçrama. In Europe and America, we have practically observed that the standards of cleanliness are abominable even among so-called educated persons. Going without bathing and the use of indecent language are common. In the modern age people whimsically speak whatever they like, dispensing with all authority, and there is therefore very little truthfulness or true wisdom. Similarly, in both the capitalistic and communistic countries, everyone is busily engaged in stealing and robbing from everyone else in the name of business, taxation or outright crime. People are not confident of the kingdom of God nor of their own eternal nature, and thus their faith is very weak. Moreover, since modern human beings are not very interested in Kânëa consciousness they constantly quarrel, bicker and fight over completely insignificant issues relating to the material body. Thus at the slightest provocation there are huge wars and massacres. Lust, anger and hankering have become practically unlimited in Kali-yuga. The symptoms and characteristics mentioned here can be abundantly observed throughout the world, wherever people have fallen away from the varëäçrama system. Because of sinful habits such as animal killing, illicit sex, intoxication and gambling, the great majority of human beings have become caëöälas, or untouchables.

TEXT 21

@ihM"s$aA s$atyamastaeyama, @k(Ama,(AeDalaAeBataA
BaUtai'ayaih"taeh"A ca DamaAeR'yaM s$aAvaRvaiNARk(:

*ahiàsä satyam asteyam
akäma-krodha-lobhatä
bhüta-priya-hitehä ca
dharma 'yaà sārva-varëikaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ahiàsä—nonviolence; satyam—truthfulness; asteyam—honesty; a-kāma-krodha-lobhatā—being free from lust, anger and greed; bhūta—of all living entities; priya—the happiness; hita—and welfare; éhä—desiring; ca—also; dharmaù—duty; ayam—this; sārva-varëikaù—for all members of society.

TRANSLATION

Nonviolence, truthfulness, honesty, desire for the happiness and welfare of all others and freedom from lust, anger and greed constitute duties for all members of society.

PURPORT

The word sārva-varëika indicates that the above-mentioned principles constitute general piety, which should be observed by all members of society, even those outside the varëäçrama system. We practically find that even in societies that have fallen away from the varëäçrama system, the above-mentioned principles are honored and encouraged. Such principles do not constitute a specific path of liberation but are perennial virtues in human society.

TEXT 22

iã"talyaM 'aApyaAnaupaUvyaARja, janmaAepanayanaM iã"ja: vas$ana, gAuç&ku(lae d"AntaAe
"aöADalyalta caAó"ta:

dvitéyaà prāpyānupūrvyāj janmopanayanaà dvijaù vasan guru-kule dānto

brahmādhéyeta cāhūtaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dvitéyam—second; prāpya—achieving; ānupūrvyāt—by the gradual process of purificatory ceremonies; janma—birth; upanayanam—Gāyatrī initiation; dvijaù—a twice-born member of society; vasan—residing; guru-kule—in the āçrama of the spiritual master; dāntaù—self-controlled; brahma—the Vedic literatures; adhéyeta—should study; ca—and also understand; āhūtaù—being summoned by the spiritual master.

TRANSLATION

The twice-born member of society achieves second birth through the sequence of purificatory ceremonies culminating in Gāyatrī initiation. Being summoned by the spiritual master, he should reside within the guru's āçrama and with a self-controlled mind carefully study the Vedic literature.

PURPORT

The term dvija, or "twice-born," here indicates the three superior classes, namely brāhmaëas, kñatriyas and vaiçyas, who all receive the Gāyatrī mantra, which signifies their second birth through spiritual initiation. One's first birth is biological, or seminal, and does not necessarily indicate that one is intelligent or enlightened. A young brāhmaëa boy, if qualified, may be initiated with Gāyatrī mantra at the age of twelve, and kñatriyas and vaiçyas a few years later. In order to become enlightened with spiritual knowledge, the boy resides within the guru-kula, or āçrama of the spiritual master. The International Society for Krishna Consciousness has established similar guru-kulas all over the world and is issuing a great call to civilized human beings to arrange for the proper education of their children. Every young boy and girl should learn to be self-controlled and should become enlightened through study of authorized Vedic literatures. In this way, unlike ordinary animals, insects, fish and birds, etc., an enlightened human being may take birth twice and thus become perfect in the knowledge that leads to ultimate liberation. The word ānupūrvyāt in this verse indicates the system of saṅskāras, or purificatory rites, beginning with garbhādhāna-saṅskāra, or the purification of the sexual act. Generally, çūdras and those who do not follow the Vedic system are not attracted to such purificatory ceremonies; therefore they remain ignorant of spiritual life and envious of the bona fide spiritual master. Those whose character has been civilized by a systematic cleansing process give up the tendency to be argumentative and whimsical and instead become submissive and eager to learn in the presence of a bona fide spiritual master.

TEXT 23

maeKalaAijanad"Nx"A°a“aös$aUṭak(maNx"laUna, jaiq%laAe'DaAEtad"ã"As$aAe
 'r"-(palQ&: ku(zAAnd"Data, mekhalājina-daēòākñā-

brahma-sūtra-kamaēòalün jañilo 'dhauta-dad-vāso
'rakta-pēōhaù kuçān dadhat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mekhalā—belt; ajina—deerskin; daēòā—staff; akñā—bead necklace; brahma-sūtra—brāhmaēa thread; kamaēòalün—and waterpot; jañilaù—with matted, unruly hair; adhauta—without polishing, bleaching or ironing; dat-vāsaù—the teeth and clothes; arakta-pēōhaù—without accepting a luxurious or sensuous seat; kuçān—kuça grass; dadhat—carrying in his hand.

TRANSLATION

The brahmacaré should regularly dress with a belt of straw and deerskin garments. He should wear matted hair, carry a rod and waterpot and be decorated with akñā beads and a sacred thread. Carrying pure kuça grass in his hand, he should never accept a luxurious or sensuous sitting place. He should not unnecessarily polish his teeth, nor should he bleach and iron his clothes.

PURPORT

The word adhauta-dad-vasa indicates that a renounced brahmacārē is not concerned with a glistening smile to attract the opposite sex, nor does he pay much attention to his outer garments. Brahmacārē life is meant for austerity and obedience to the spiritual master so that later in life, when one becomes a businessman, politician or intellectual brāhmaëa, one will be able to call upon resources of character, discipline, self-control, austerity and humility. Student life, as described here, is far different from the mindless hedonism known as modern education. Of course, in the modern age, Kāñëa conscious brahmacārēs cannot artificially adopt the ancient dress and ritualistic duties described here; but the essential values of self-control, purity and obedience to a bona fide spiritual master are just as necessary today as they were in Vedic times.

TEXT 24

µaAnaBaAejanah"AemaeSau japaAe»aAre" ca vaAgyata:
na icC$ñâAªaKar"AemaAiNA k(°aAepasTagAtaAnyaiPa

snāna-bhojana-homeñu japoccāre ca vāg-yatau na cchindyān nakha-romäëi kakñopastha-gatāny api

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

snāna—while bathing; bhojana—while eating; homeñu—and while attending sacrificial performances; japa—while chanting mantras to oneself;

uccāre—while passing stool or urine; ca—also; vāk-yatau—remaining silent; na—not; chindyāt—should cut; nakha—the nails; romāēi—or hairs; kakñā—in the armpits; upastha—pubic; gatāni—including; api—even.

TRANSLATION

A brahmacāre should always remain silent while bathing, eating, attending sacrificial performances, chanting japa or passing stool and urine. He should not cut his nails and hair, including the armpit and pubic hair.

PURPORT

Nārada Muni gives a similar technical description of Vedic brahmacāre life in Canto Seven, Chapter Twelve of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam.

TEXT 25

re"taAe naAvaik(re"ÀaAtau “aö~ataDar”: svayama, @vak(LNAeR'vagAA÷Aps$au
yataAs$auinpad"AM japaeta, reto nāvakirej jātu

brahma-vrata-dharaù svayam avakérēe 'vagāhyāpsu yatāsus tri-padāè japet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

retaù—semen; na—not; avakiret—should spill out; jātu—ever; brahma-vrata-dharaù—one who is maintaining the vow of celibacy, or brahmacarya; svayam—by itself; avakérēe—having flowed out; avagāhya—bathing; apsu—in water; yata-asuù—controlling the breathing by prāëyāma; tri-padām—the Gāyatrī mantra; japet—he should chant.

TRANSLATION

One observing the vow of celibate brahmacäre life should never pass semen. If the semen by chance spills out by itself, the brahmacäre should immediately take bath in water, control his breath by präëyāma and chant the Gäyatrē mantra.

TEXT 26

@gnyak(ARcaAyaRgAAeiva'agAuç&va{Ü"s$aur"AHzAuica:
s$amaAih"ta opaAs$alta
s$anDyae ãe" yatavaAgjapana,

*agny-arkäcärya-go-vipra-guru-vâddha-suräi çuciù samāhita upāsēta
sandhye dve yata-väg japan*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agni—the fire-god; arka—the sun; äcärya—the äcärya; go—the cows; vipra—the brähmaëas; guru—the spiritual master; vâddha—elder respectable persons; surän—the demigods; çuciù—purified; samāhitaù—with fixed consciousness; upāsēta—he should worship; sandhye—in the junctions of time; dve—two; yata-väk—observing silence; japan—silently chanting or murmuring the proper mantras.

TRANSLATION

Purified and fixed in consciousness, the brahmacäre should worship the fire-god, sun, äcärya, cows, brähmaëas, guru, elderly respectable persons and demigods. He should perform such worship at sunrise and sunset, without speaking but by silently chanting or murmuring the appropriate mantras.

TEXT 27

@AcaAya< maAM ivajaAnalyaAna, naAvanmanyaeta k(ihR"icata, na matyaRbauÜ"YaAs$aUyaeta s$avaR$de"vamayaAe gAuç&:

*ācāryaà mām vijānēyān navamanyeta karhicit
na martya-buddhyāsüyeta sarva-deva-mayo guruu*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ācāryam—the spiritual master; mām—Myself; vijānēyāt—one should know; na avamanyeta—one should never disrespect; karhicit—at any time; na—never; martya-buddhyā—with the idea of his being an ordinary man; asüyeta—one should be envious; sarva-deva—of all demigods; mayau—representative; guruu—the spiritual master.

TRANSLATION

One should know the ācārya as Myself and never disrespect him in any way. One should not envy him, thinking him an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods.

PURPORT

This verse appears in Caitanya-caritāmāta (Ādi 1.46). His Divine Grace Oā Viñēupāda Paramahaàsa Parivrājakācārya Aññottara-çata Çré Çrémad A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupāda has commented on this verse as follows.

"This is a verse from Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (11.17.27) spoken by Lord Çré Kāñēa when He was questioned by Uddhava regarding the four social and spiritual orders of society. He was specifically instructing how a brahmacāre should behave under the care of a spiritual master. A spiritual master is not an enjoyer of facilities offered by his disciples. He is like a parent. Without the attentive service of his parents, a child cannot grow to manhood; similarly, without the care of the spiritual master one cannot rise to the plane of transcendental service.

"The spiritual master is also called ācārya, or a transcendental professor of spiritual science. Manu-saṅhitā (2.140) explains the duties of an ācārya, describing that a bona fide spiritual master accepts charge of disciples, teaches them the Vedic knowledge with all its intricacies, and gives them their second birth. The ceremony performed to initiate a disciple into the study of spiritual science is called upanéti, or the function that brings one nearer to the spiritual master. One who cannot be brought nearer to a spiritual master cannot have a sacred thread, and thus he is indicated to be a çūdra. The sacred thread worn on the body of a brāhmaëa, kṣatriya or vaiçya is a symbol of initiation by the spiritual master; it is worth nothing if worn merely to boast of high parentage. The duty of the spiritual master is to initiate a disciple with the sacred thread ceremony, and after this saṅskāra, or purificatory process, the spiritual master actually begins to teach the disciple about the Vedas. A person born a çūdra is not barred from such spiritual initiation, provided he is approved by the spiritual master, who is duly authorized to award a disciple the right to be a brāhmaëa if he finds him perfectly qualified. In the Vāyu Purāṇa an ācārya is defined as one who knows the import of all the Vedic literatures, abides by their rules and regulations, and teaches his disciples to act in the same way.

"Only out of His immense compassion does the Personality of Godhead reveal Himself as the spiritual master. Therefore in the dealings of an ācārya there are no activities but those of transcendental loving service to the Lord. He is the Supreme Personality of Servitor Godhead. It is worthwhile to take shelter of such a steady devotee, who is called āçraya-vigraha, or the manifestation or form of the Lord of whom one must take shelter.

"If one poses himself as an ācārya but does not have an attitude of servitorship to the Lord, he must be considered an offender, and this offensive attitude disqualifies him from being an ācārya. The bona fide spiritual master always engages in unalloyed devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. By this test he is known to be a direct manifestation of the Lord and a genuine representative of Ṣré Nityānanda Prabhu. Such a spiritual master is known as ācāryadeva. Influenced by an envious temperament and dissatisfied because of an attitude of sense gratification, mundaners criticize a real ācārya. In fact, however, a bona fide ācārya is nondifferent from the Personality of Godhead, and therefore to envy such an ācārya is to envy the Personality of Godhead Himself. This will produce an effect subversive to transcendental realization.

"As mentioned previously, a disciple should always respect the spiritual master as a manifestation of Ṣré Kāñēa, but at the same time one should always remember that a spiritual master is never authorized to imitate the transcendental pastimes of the Lord. False spiritual masters pose themselves as identical with Ṣré Kāñēa in every respect, to exploit the sentiments of their disciples, but such impersonalists can only mislead their disciples, for their ultimate aim is to become one with the Lord. This is against the principles of the devotional cult.

"The real Vedic philosophy is acintya-bhedābheda-tattva, which establishes everything to be simultaneously one with and different from the Personality of Godhead. Ṣréla Raghunātha dāsa Gosvāmē confirms that this is the real position of a bona fide spiritual master and says that one should always think of the spiritual master in terms of his intimate relationship with Mukunda (Ṣré Kāñēa). Ṣréla Jēva Gosvāmē, in his Bhakti-sandarbha (213), has clearly defined that a pure devotee's observation of the spiritual master and Lord Ṣiva as one with the Personality of Godhead exists in terms of their being very dear to the Lord, not identical with Him in all respects. Following in the footsteps of Ṣréla Raghunātha dāsa Gosvāmē and Ṣréla Jēva Gosvāmē, later ācāryas like Ṣréla Viṣvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura have confirmed the same truths. In his prayers to the spiritual master, Ṣréla Viṣvanātha Cakravartē Ōhākura confirms that all the revealed scriptures accept the spiritual master to be identical with the Personality of Godhead because he is a very dear and confidential servant of the Lord. Gauḍēya Vaiñēavas therefore worship Ṣréla Gurudeva (the spiritual master) in the light of his being the servitor of the Personality of Godhead. In all the ancient literatures of devotional service and in the more recent songs of Çréla Narottama dāsa Öhäkura, Çréla Bhaktivinoda Öhäkura and other unalloyed Vaiñëavas, the spiritual master is always considered to be either one of the confidential associates of Çrématé Rādhārāëé or a manifested representation of Çréla Nityānanda Prabhu."

TEXT 28

s$aAyaM 'aAtaça&paAnalya BaE°yaM tasmaE inavaed"yaeta, ya»aAnyad"pyanauÁaAtama, opayauÃalta s$aMyata:

*sāyaà prātar upānéya
bhaikñyaà tasmai nivedayet yac cānyad apy anuji ātam upayui jēta saàyataù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sāyam—in the evening; prātaù—in the morning; upānéya—bringing; bhaikñyam—food that is collected by begging; tasmai—unto him (the ācārya); nivedayet—one should deliver; yat—that which; ca—also; anyat—other things; api—indeed; anuji ātam—that which is permitted; upayui jēta—one should accept; saàyataù—being fully controlled.

TRANSLATION

In the morning and evening one should collect foodstuffs and other articles and deliver them to the spiritual master. Then, being self-controlled, one should accept for oneself that which is allotted by the ācārya.

PURPORT

One who desires to receive the mercy of a bona fide spiritual master should not be eager to accumulate the paraphernalia of sense gratification; rather, whatever one is able to collect one should offer at the lotus feet of the ācārya. Being self-controlled, one should humbly accept that which is allotted by the bona fide spiritual master. Every living entity must ultimately be trained to serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead, but until one has become expert in the techniques of spiritual service one should offer everything to the spiritual master, who is completely realized in the process of worshiping the Lord. When the spiritual master sees that the disciple is advanced in Kāññea consciousness, he then engages the disciple in directly worshiping the Personality of Godhead. A bona fide spiritual master does not use anything for his personal sense gratification and entrusts to his disciple only as much material opulence as the disciple can properly offer to the lotus feet of the Lord. The example may be given that when an ordinary father tries to train his son in business and other material activities, he entrusts to the son only as much wealth as the son can intelligently engage in profitable enterprises without foolishly wasting the father's hard-earned money.

Similarly, the bona fide spiritual master teaches his disciple to worship the Lord, and an immature disciple must simply deliver everything to the lotus feet of the guru, just as an immature child does not keep a personal bank account but rather receives his maintenance from the father, who trains the son to be responsible. If one cheats oneself by defying the order of a bona fide spiritual master or Kāññea, one certainly becomes a nondevotee, or sense enjoyer, and falls from the spiritual path. Therefore, one should be trained to serve a bona fide spiritual master and thus become mature in Kāññea consciousness.

TEXT 29

zAu™aUSamaANA @AcaAya<
s$ad"AepaAs$alta nalcavata, yaAnazAyyaAs$anasTaAnaEr," naAitaäU"re" k{(taAÃaila:

*çuçrũñamäëa äcäryaà sadopäsêta néca-vat
yäna-çayyäsana-sthänair näti-düre kâtäi jaliù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çuçrũñamäëaù—engaged in serving; äcäryam—the bona fide spiritual master; sadä—always; upäsêta—one should worship; néca-vat—as a humble servant; yäna—by humbly following behind the guru when he is walking; çayyä—by taking rest with the spiritual master; äsana—sitting near the guru to render service; sthänaiù—by standing and humbly waiting upon the guru; na—not; ati—very; düre—far away; kâta-ai jaliù—with folded hands.

TRANSLATION

While engaged in serving the spiritual master one should remain as a humble servant, and thus when the guru is walking the servant should humbly walk behind. When the guru lies down to sleep, the servant should also lie down nearby, and when the guru has awakened, the servant should sit near him, massaging his lotus feet and rendering other, similar services. When the guru is sitting down on his äsana, the servant should stand nearby with folded hands, awaiting the guru's order. In this way one should always worship the spiritual master.

TEXT 30

WvaMva{ÔaAe gAuç&ku(lae vas$aeà"AegAivavaijaRta:
ivaâA s$amaApyatae yaAvaä," iba"aä," ~atamaKaiNx"tama, evaà-vâtto guru-kule

vased bhoga-vivarjitaù
vidyā samāpyate yāvad
bibhrat vratam akhaëòitam

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; vāṭṭaù—engaged; guru-kule—in the āçrama of the spiritual master; vaset—he should live; bhoga—sense gratification; vivarjitaù—freed from; vidyā—Vedic education; samāpyate—is completed; yāvat—until; bibhrat—maintaining; vratam—the vow (of brahmacarya); akhaëòitam—unbroken.

TRANSLATION

Until the student has completed his Vedic education he should remain engaged in the āçrama of the spiritual master, should remain completely free of material sense gratification and should not break his vow of celibacy [brahmacarya].

PURPORT

This verse describes the upakurväëa-brahmacäre, who enters gāhastha-āçrama, or family life, after completing his Vedic education. The word evaà-vāṭṭaù indicates that although one may eventually marry and become prominent in society as an intellectual, politician or businessman, during student life one must remain without false prestige as a humble servant of the bona fide spiritual master. The naiñöhiki-brahmacäre, who never marries, is described in the following verse.

TEXT 31

yaâs$âAE C$nd"s$aAM laAek(ma, @Ar"Ae°yana, "aöivaí"pama, gAur"vae ivanyas$aeÚe"hM" svaADyaAyaATa< ba{h"ä,"~ata:

yady asau chandasäà lokam ärokīyan brahma-viññāpam gurave vinyased dehaà svādhyäyārthaà bāhad-vrataù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadi—if; asau—that student; chandasām lokam—the Maharloka planet; ärokīyan—desiring to ascend to; brahma-viññāpam—Brahmaloka; gurave—unto the guru; vinyaset—he should offer; deham—his body; sva-adhyāya—of superior Vedic studies; artham—for the purpose; bāhat-vrataù—observing the powerful vow of perpetual celibacy.

TRANSLATION

If the brahmacāri student desires to ascend to the Maharloka or Brahmaloka planets, then he should completely surrender his activities to the spiritual master and, observing the powerful vow of perpetual celibacy, dedicate himself to superior Vedic studies.

PURPORT

One who desires the supreme perfection of life must engage his body, mind and words in the service of a bona fide spiritual master. One desiring elevation to superior planets such as Brahmaloka and Maharloka must fully engage in the spiritual master's service. We can thus imagine the sincerity of purpose and service required to achieve the Kāññāloka planet, which lies far beyond the material universe.

TEXT 32

@çAaE gAur"AvaAtmaina ca s$avaRBaUtaeSau maAM par"ma,

@pa{TagDalç&pas$alta “aövacaRsvyak(lmaSa:

*agnau guräv ätmani ca
sarva-bhüteñu mäm param
apâthag-dhér upasêta
brahma-varcasvy akalmañaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agnau—in fire; guru—in the spiritual master; ätmani—in oneself; ca—also; sarva-bhüteñu—in all living entities; mäm—Me; param—the Supreme; apâthag-dhéu—without any concept of duality; upasêta—one should worship; brahma-varcasvë—possessing Vedic enlightenment; akalmañaù—sinless.

TRANSLATION

Thus enlightened in Vedic knowledge by service to the spiritual master, freed from all sins and duality, one should worship Me as the Supersoul, as I appear within fire, the spiritual master, one's own self and all living entities.

PURPORT

One becomes glorious and enlightened by faithfully serving a bona fide spiritual master, who is expert in the Vedic way of life. Thus purified, one never engages in sinful activities, which immediately extinguish the fire of spiritual enlightenment; nor does one become foolish and small-minded, trying to exploit material nature for personal sense gratification. A purified human being is apâthag-dhé, or without consciousness of duality, because he has been trained to observe the Supreme Personality of Godhead within all things. Such sublime consciousness should be systematically taught throughout the world so that human society will become peaceful and sublime.

TEXT 33

ñINAAM inar"l°aNAs$ pazARs$aMlaApa° vaelanaAid" k(ma,
'aAiNAnaAe imaTaunaIBaUtaAna, @gA{h"sTaAe'fatastyajaeta,

*stréëää nīrékñāëa-sparçasaèläpa-kīvelanādikam präëino mithuné-bhütän
agāhastho 'gratas tyajet*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

stréëäm—in relation to women; nirékñāëa—glancing; sparça—touching; saèläpa—conversing; kīvelana—joking or sporting; ādikam—and so on; präëinau—living entities; mithuné-bhütän—engaged in sex; agāha-sthaù—a sannyāsé, vānaprastha or brahmacārē; agratau—first of all; tyajet—should give up.

TRANSLATION

Those who are not married—sannyāsés, vānaprasthas and brahmacārés—should never associate with women by glancing, touching, conversing, joking or sporting. Neither should they ever associate with any living entity engaged in sexual activities.

PURPORT

Präëinau indicates all living entities, whether birds, bees or human beings. Among most species of life, sexual intercourse is preceded by diverse mating rituals. In human society, all types of entertainment (books, music, films) and all places of amusement (restaurants, shopping centers, resorts) are designed to stimulate the sexual urge and create an aura of "romance." One who is not married—a sannyāsé, brahmacārē or vānaprastha—should rigidly avoid anything related to sex and of course should never see any living entity, whether bird, insect or human, engaging in the various phases of sexual intercourse. When a man jokes with a woman, an intimate, sexually-charged atmosphere is immediately created, and this should also be avoided for those aspiring to practice celibacy. Even a householder who becomes attached to such activities will also fall down into the darkness of ignorance.

TEXTS 34-35

zAAEcamaAcamanaM µaAnaM s$anDyaAepaAistamaRmaAcaRnama, taITaRs$aevaA japaAe's$pa{zyaA-Ba°yaAs$amBaASyavajaRnama,

s$avaAR™ama'ayau·(Ae'yaM inayama: ku(lanand"na maà"Ava: s$avaRBaUtaeSau manaAevaAfk(Ayas$aMyama:

çaucam ācamanaà snānaà sandhyopāstir mamārcanam tértha-sevā japo 'spāçyā-bhakñyāsambhāñya-varjanam

sarvāçrama-prayukto 'yaà niyamaù kula-nandana mad-bhāvaù sarva-bhüteñu mano-vāk-kāya-saàyamaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çaucam—cleanliness; ācamanam—purifying the hands with water; snānam—bathing; sandhyā—at sunrise, noon and sunset; upāstiù—religious services; mama—of Me; arcanam—worship; tértha-sevā—going to holy places; japaù—chanting the holy names of the Lord; aspāçya—which are untouchable; abhakñya—uneatable; asambhāñya—or not to be discussed;

varjanam—avoidance of things; sarva—for all; āçrama—orders of life; prayuktaù—enjoined; ayam—this; niyamaù—rule; kula-nandana—My dear Uddhava; mat-bhavaù—perceiving My existence; sarva-bhüteñu—in all living entities; manaù—of the mind; vāk—of words; kāya—of the body; saàyamaù—regulation.

TRANSLATION

My dear Uddhava, general cleanliness, washing the hands, bathing, performing religious services at sunrise, noon and sunset, worshipping Me, visiting holy places, chanting japa, avoiding that which is untouchable, uneatable or not to be discussed, and remembering My existence within all living entities as the Supersoul—these principles should be followed by all members of society through regulation of the mind, words and body.

TEXT 36

WvaM ba{h"ä,"~ataDar"Ae “aAöNAAe'içair"va jvalana, maà"·(staI~atapas$aA
d"gDak(maARzAyaAe'mala:

evaà bāhad-vrata-dharo brāhmaëo 'gnir iva jvalan mad-bhaktas tēvra-tapasā dagdha-karmāçayo 'malaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; bāhat-vrata—that great vow of perpetual celibacy; dharaù—maintaining; brāhmaëaù—a brāhmaëa; agniù—fire; iva—like; jvalan—becoming bright; mat-bhaktaù—My devotee; tēvra-tapasā—by intense austerities; dagdha—burned; karma—of fruitive activities; āçayaù—the propensity or mentality; amalaù—without contamination of material desire.

TRANSLATION

A brähmaëa observing the great vow of celibacy becomes brilliant like fire and by serious austerity burns to ashes the propensity to perform material activities. Free from the contamination of material desire, he becomes My devotee.

PURPORT

The process of liberation is described in this verse. Once when Çrëla Prabhupäda was traveling by airplane, a fellow passenger, who happened to be a priest, told him that he had seen his disciples and found them "bright-faced." Çrëla Prabhupäda was fond of relating this incident. The spirit soul is more brilliant than the sun, and as the process of spiritual purification gradually takes effect, even the external form of a devotee becomes effulgent. The glowing fire of spiritual knowledge burns to ashes the mentality of sense gratification, and one naturally becomes austere and disinterested in mundane enjoyment. Among all austerities, the best is celibacy, by which the shackles of material life immediately become slackened. One who is amala, free from material desire, is known as a pure devotee of the Lord. On the paths of jñāna, karma and yoga the mind retains the concept of personal interest, but on the path of pure devotion the mind is trained to see only the interests of the Personality of Godhead. Thus a pure devotee of the Lord is amala, completely pure.

TEXT 37

@TaAnantar"maAvae^oyana, yaTaAijaÁaAis$ataAgAma:
gAur"vae d"i^oaNAAM d"ÔvaA µaAyaAÖ"vaRnaumaAeid"ta:

*athānantaram āvekāyan
yathā-jijī āsitāgamaù*

gurave dakñiëää dattvä snäyäd gurv-anumoditaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

atha—thus; anantaram—after that; ävekn̐yan—desiring to enter family life; yathä—properly; jijī äsita—having studied; ägamaù—the Vedic literature; gurave—to the spiritual master; dakñiëäm—remuneration; dattvä—giving; snäyät—the brahmacäri should cleanse himself, comb his hair, put on nice clothes, etc.; guru—by the spiritual master; anumoditaù—permitted.

TRANSLATION

A brahmacäri who has completed his Vedic education and desires to enter household life should offer proper remuneration to the spiritual master, bathe, cut his hair, put on proper clothes, and so on. Then, taking permission from the guru, he should go back to his home.

PURPORT

This verse describes the process called samägartana, or returning to one's home after finishing Vedic education in the äçrama of the spiritual master. One who cannot concentrate all of his desires in the devotional service of the Lord is attracted to householder life, and if this attraction is not regulated, one will fall down. Being covered by the ignorance of fruitive activities and mental speculation, a living entity seeks enjoyment outside the devotional service of the Supreme Lord and becomes a nondevotee. One who takes to family life must rigidly follow the Vedic rules and regulations in order to avoid the collapse of his spiritual determination. One who enjoys intimate sense gratification with women must become duplicitous in his dealings with others and consequently falls down from the platform of simple, pure life. When the mind is disturbed by lust, one begins to resent the principle of submission to the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His pure devotee, and the dark clouds of one's offensive mentality completely cover the light of spiritual knowledge. One should dovetail his propensity to love someone by serving the lotus feet of a pure devotee. As stated in Vedic literature, "One who worships Govinda, Lord Kåñëa, but does not worship His devotees is not to be considered an advanced Vaiñëava; rather, he is to be considered a proud hypocrite."

TEXT 38

gA{hM" vanaM vaAepaivazAeta,
'a~ajaeã"A iã"jaAeÔama: @A™amaAd"A™amaM gAcCe$na, naAnyataAmatpar"êre"ta,

gâhaà vanaà vopaviçet pravrajed vä dvijottamaù äçramäd äçramaà gacchen nānyathāmat-paraç caret

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gâham—the family home; vanam—the forest; vä—either; upaviçet—one should enter; pravrajed—one should renounce; vä—or; dvija-uttamaù—a brähmaëa; äçramät—from one authorized status of life; äçramam—to another authorized status; gacchet—one should go; na—not; anyathä—otherwise; amat-paraù—one who is not surrendered to Me; caret—should act.

TRANSLATION

A brahmacäre desiring to fulfill his material desires should live at home with his family, and a householder who is eager to purify his consciousness should enter the forest, whereas a purified brähmaëa should accept the renounced order of life. One who is not surrendered to Me should move progressively from one äçrama to another, never acting otherwise.

PURPORT

Those who are not surrendered devotees of the Lord must rigidly observe the regulations governing one's authorized social status. There are four social divisions of life, namely brahmacarya, gāhastha, vānaprastha and sannyāsa. One who wants to fulfill material desires should become an ordinary householder (gāhastha), establish a comfortable residence and maintain his family. One desiring to accelerate the process of purification may give up his home and business and live in a sacred place with his wife, as indicated here by the word vanam, or "forest." There are many sacred forests in India meant for this purpose, such as Vāndāvana and Māyāpur. The word dvijottama indicates the brāhmaëas. Brāhmaëas, kñātriyas and vaiçyas are all dvija, or initiated in the Gāyatrī mantra, but the brāhmaëa is dvijottama, or the highest among those who have received second birth by spiritual initiation. It is recommended that a purified brāhmaëa take to the renounced order of life (sannyāsa), giving up further contact with his so-called wife. The brāhmaëa is specifically mentioned here, since kñātriyas and vaiçyas are not to take the renounced order of life. Even so, there are many stories in the Bhāgavatam wherein great kings retire with their aristocratic wives to the forest to practice the austerities of vānaprastha and thus accelerate the process of purification. The brāhmaëas, however, may directly accept the renounced order of life.

The words āçramād āçramaṁ gacchet indicate that one may progressively move from brahmacārī life to gāhastha life to vānaprastha life and then to sannyāsa. The words āçramād āçramam emphasize that one should never remain without an authorized social status, nor should one go backward, falling down from a higher position. Those who are not surrendered devotees of the Lord must rigidly observe such injunctions, for otherwise they will quickly become degraded, and their sins will place them outside the bounds of authorized human civilization.

Lord Kāṇhëa emphasizes here that a nondevotee must rigidly observe the rituals and regulations of Vedic social divisions, whereas the Lord's pure devotee, engaged twenty-four hours a day in Lord Kāṇhëa's mission, is transcendental to such divisions. If, however, one performs illicit activities on the strength of being transcendental to Vedic social divisions, one is revealed to be a materialistic neophyte and not an advanced devotee of the Lord. An advanced devotee, who remains aloof from material sense gratification, is not bound by the Vedic social divisions; thus even a householder may live very austerely, traveling and preaching Kāñëa consciousness away from home, and even a sannyāsë may sometimes engage women in the devotional service of Lord Kāñëa. The most advanced devotees cannot be restricted by the rituals and regulations of the varëäçrama system, and they move freely around the world distributing love of Godhead. Mat-para indicates a pure devotee of the Lord who always keeps the Lord fixed in his heart and consciousness. One who falls down to become a victim of sense gratification is not fully established on the platform of mat-para and should rigidly observe the social divisions and regulations to remain steady on the platform of pious human life.

TEXT 39

gA{h"ATal= s$ä{"zAl%M BaAyaARma, oã"he"d"jaugAuips$ataAma, yavalyas$al%M tau vayas$aA yaM s$avaNAARmanau ,(maAta, gāhārthë sadâçëà bhäryäm udvahed ajugupsitäm yavéyasëà tu vayasä

yaà sa-varëäm anu kramät

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gāha—household; arthë—one who desires; sadâçëm—possessing similar characteristics; bhäryäm—a wife; udvahet—one should marry; ajugupsitäm—beyond reproach; yavéyasëm—younger; tu—indeed; vayasä—by age; yäm—another wife; sa-varëäm—the first wife who is of the same caste; anu—after; kramāt—in succession.

TRANSLATION

One who desires to establish family life should marry a wife of his own caste, who is beyond reproach and younger in age. If one desires to accept many wives he must marry them after the first marriage, and each wife should be of a successively lower caste.

PURPORT

As stated in the Vedic literature,

tisro varëänupürvyeëa dve tathaikā yathā-kramam brāhmaëa-kñatriya-viçāà bhäryäù sväù çüdra-janmanaù

The purport of this verse is that one's first wife must always be sadâçém, or similar to oneself. In other words, an intellectual man should marry an intellectual wife, a heroic man should marry a heroic wife, a business minded man should marry a woman who can encourage him in such activities, and a çüdra should marry a less intelligent woman. The wife must be beyond reproach in terms of her background and character and should always be younger than oneself, ideally five to ten years younger. If one desires to marry a second wife, then, as stated in this verse by the word varëänupürvyeëa and in the verse spoken by Lord Kāñëa by the word anukramāt, one must wait until the first marriage is established and then select a second wife from the next-lower caste. If one marries a third time the wife must be, again, from the next-lower caste. For example, a brāhmaëa's first wife will be a brāhmaëë, his second wife will be from the kñatriya community, his third wife from the vaiçya community and fourth wife from the çüdra community. A kñatriya may first marry a kñatriya lady and then vaiçya and çüdra ladies. A vaiçya can accept wives from two classes, and a çüdra will accept a wife only from the çüdra class. By this progression of marriages there will be relative peace in the family. These Vedic marriage injunctions, as mentioned in the previous verse, are especially for those who are not pure devotees of the Lord.

TEXT 40

wjyaADyayanad"AnaAina
s$avaeRSaAM ca iã"janmanaAma,
'aitafah"Ae'DyaApanaM ca
"aAöNAsyaEva yaAjanama, *ijyādhyayana-dānāni

sarveṇāḥ ca dvi-janmanām pratigraho 'dhyāpanaḥ ca brāhmaṇasyaiva yajanam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ijyā—sacrifice; adhyayana—Vedic study; dānāni—charity; sarveṇām—of all; ca—also; dvi-janmanām—those who are twice-born; pratigrahaḥ—acceptance of charity; adhyāpanam—teaching Vedic knowledge; ca—also; brāhmaṇasya—of the brāhmaṇa; eva—only; yajanam—performing sacrifices for others.

TRANSLATION

All twice-born men—brāhmaṇas, kṣātriyas and vaiśyas—must perform sacrifice, study the Vedic literature and give charity. Only the brāhmaṇas, however, accept charity, teach the Vedic knowledge and perform sacrifice on behalf of others.

PURPORT

All civilized men must participate in sacrificial performances, give charity and study the Vedic literature. The best of the twice-born, namely the brāhmaëas, are specifically empowered to lead sacrificial performances on behalf of all members of society, teach everyone Vedic knowledge and receive everyone's charity. Without the assistance or participation of qualified brāhmaëas, the lower classes cannot properly study the Vedic literature, perform sacrifices or give in charity, because they do not have the required intelligence to perfectly execute such functions. When kñatriyas and vaiçyas take shelter of bona fide brāhmaëas, they are able to properly execute their respective duties, and society functions smoothly and efficiently.

TEXT 41

'aitafahM" manyamaAnas$a, tapastaejaAeyazAAenaud"ma, @nyaAByaAmaeva jalvaeta izAlaEvaAR d"AeSaä{".(yaAe:

pratigrahaà manyamānas
tapas-tejo-yaço-nudam anyābhyām eva jēveta
çilair vā doña-dāk tayoù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pratigraham—accepting charity; manyamānaù—considering; tapau—of one's austerity; tejaù—spiritual influence; yaçaù—and fame; nudam—destruction; anyābhyām—by the other two (teaching Vedic knowledge and performing sacrifice); eva—indeed; jēveta—a brāhmaëa should live; çilaiù—by collecting rejected grains in the field; vā—or; doña—the discrepancy; dāk—seeing; tayoù—of those two.

TRANSLATION

A brāhmaëa who considers that accepting charity from others will destroy his austerity, spiritual influence and fame should maintain himself by the other two brahminical occupations, namely teaching Vedic knowledge and performing sacrifice. If the brāhmaëa considers that those two occupations also compromise his spiritual position, then he should collect rejected grains in agricultural fields and live without any dependence on others.

PURPORT

A pure devotee of the Lord should always remember that the Supreme Personality of Godhead will personally take care of him. As the Lord states in Bhagavad-gētā (9.22):

*ananyāç cintayanto mää ye janäù paryupäsate teñää nityäbhiyuktänää
yoga-kñemaäh vahämy aham*

"But those who worship Me with devotion, meditating on My transcendental form—to them I carry what they lack and preserve what they have."

A brāhmaëa should not become a professional beggar for his personal maintenance. In India there are many so-called brāhmaëas who sit at the gates of important temples and beg from everyone who comes and goes. If someone does not give a donation they become angry and chase that person. Similarly, in America there are many big preachers who collect huge amounts of money by begging on television and radio. If a brāhmaëa or Vaiñëava considers that being a professional beggar is weakening his austerity, destroying his spiritual influence and giving him a bad reputation, then he should give up that process. One may beg everyone to contribute to the cause of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, but one will be diminished in austerity, influence and reputation by begging for one's personal livelihood. A brāhmaëa may then take up the task of teaching Vedic knowledge and performing sacrifice. But even such occupations do not bring one to the highest platform of trust in God. A brāhmaëa who teaches as a means of livelihood may often be curbed in his teaching, and one who performs sacrifice may be manipulated by materialistic worshipers.

In this way, a brāhmaëa may be placed in an embarrassing and compromised position. Therefore a high-class brāhmaëa or Vaiñëava ultimately will depend completely on the mercy of the Lord for his maintenance. The Lord promises to maintain His devotee, and an advanced Vaiñëava never doubts the word of the Lord.

TEXT 42

“aAöNAsya ih" de"h"Ae'yaM °au"%o"k(AmaAya naeSyatae k{(cC)$Aya tapas$ae caeh"
'aetyaAnantas$auKaAya ca *brāhmaëasya hi deho 'yaà kñudra-kāmāya neīyate kācchrāya tapase ceha

pretyānanta-sukhāya ca*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

brāhmaëasya—of a brāhmaëa; hi—certainly; dehaù—body; ayam—this; kñudra—insignificant; kāmāya—for sense gratification; na—not; īñyate—is meant; kācchrāya—for difficult; tapase—austerities; ca—also; iha—in this world; pretya—after death; ananta—unlimited; sukhāya—happiness; ca—also.

TRANSLATION

The body of a brāhmaëa is not intended to enjoy insignificant material sense gratification; rather, by accepting difficult austerities in his life, a brāhmaëa will enjoy unlimited happiness after death.

PURPORT

One may ask why a brāhmaëa should voluntarily accept inconvenience in keeping his body and soul together. In this verse the Lord explains that advanced human life is meant for serious austerity and not for insignificant sense gratification. By spiritual advancement one is fixed in transcendental bliss on the spiritual platform and gives up useless absorption in the temporary material body. One should remain detached from the material body, accepting only the bare necessities of life. The brāhmaëas, by accepting a troublesome form of livelihood, never forget that the material body is destined to grow old, become diseased and die in misery. Thus remaining alert and transcendental, an advanced brāhmaëa, at the end of this life, goes back home, back to Godhead, where he enjoys unlimited spiritual bliss. Without such higher awareness, how can one be considered a qualified brāhmaëa?

Those devotees engaged twenty-four hours a day in spreading the mission of Lord Kāñëa are beyond the platform of renunciation or sense gratification because they engage everything in Lord Kāñëa's service. A pure devotee of the Lord eats only to get strength for serving the Lord and does not accept either sumptuous or meager food simply for the body's sake. However, everything may be accepted for the Lord, even sumptuous meals. A brāhmaëa who is not working day and night to spread the glories of the Lord should feel embarrassed to eat sumptuously for his personal sense gratification, but a renounced Vaiñëava preacher may accept invitations from all classes of pious people, and just to bless their homes he will eat the opulent foods they offer to him. Similarly, he sometimes eats sumptuously to get strength for defeating atheists and impersonalists. As stated in Vedic literature, one cannot be a highly qualified brāhmaëa unless one becomes a devotee of the Lord. And among the devotees, those who are preaching Kāñëa consciousness are the best, as confirmed by the Lord Himself in the Eighteenth Chapter of Bhagavad-gētä.

TEXT 43

izAlaAeHC$va{ÔyaA pair"tauí"icaÔaAe Dama< mah"AntaM ivar"jaM jauSaANA:
mayyaipaRtaAtmaA gA{h" Wva itai"na, naAita'as$a-(: s$amaupaEita zAAintama, çiloĩ cha-våttyä parituñña-citto dharmaà mahāntaà virajaà juñāëaù mayy arpitātmā gāha eva tiññhan nāti-prasaktaù samupaiti çāntim

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çila-ui'cha—of gleaning grains; våttyä—by the occupation; parituñña—fully satisfied; cittaù—whose consciousness; dharmam—religious principles; mahāntam—magnanimous and hospitable; virajam—purified of material desire; juñāëaù—cultivating; mayi—in Me; arpita—dedicated; ātmā—whose mind; gāhe—at home; eva—even; tiññhan—remaining; na—not; atī—very; prasaktaù—attached; samupaiti—achieves; çāntim—liberation.

TRANSLATION

A brāhmaëa householder should remain satisfied in mind by gleaning rejected grains from agricultural fields and marketplaces. Keeping himself free of personal desire, he should practice magnanimous religious principles, with consciousness absorbed in Me. In this way a brāhmaëa may stay at home as a householder without very much attachment and thus achieve liberation.

PURPORT

Mahāntam refers to magnanimous religious principles such as very hospitably receiving guests, even those who are uninvited and unexpected. Householders must always be magnanimous and charitable to others, being alert to curb unnecessary affection and attachment in family life. In the past, very renounced brāhmaëa householders would collect grains that had fallen on the ground in the marketplace or those that had been left behind in the fields after harvesting. The most important item here is mayy arpitātmā, or fixing the mind in Lord Kāñëa. Despite his material situation, anyone who constantly meditates upon the Lord can become a liberated soul. As stated in Bhakti-rasāmāta-sindhu (1.2.187), *ēhā yasya harer dāsyē karmāḥ manasā girā

nikhilāsv api avasthāsu jēvan-muktaù sa ucyate*

"A person acting in Kāñḥa consciousness [or, in other words, in the service of Kāñḥa] with his body, mind, intelligence and words is a liberated person, even within the material world, although he may be engaged in many so-called material activities."

TEXT 44

s$amauÜ"r"inta yae iva'aM s$ald"ntaM matpar"AyaNAma, taAnauÜ"ir"Syae na icar"Aä," @Apaà"YaAe naAEir"vaANARvaAta,

samuddharanti ye vipraà sédantaà mat-parāyaëam tān uddhariṇye na cirād āpadbhyo naur ivärëavāt

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

samuddharanti—uplift; ye—those who; vipram—a brāhmaëa or devotee; sédantam—suffering (from poverty); mat-parāyaëam—surrendered to Me; tān—those who have uplifted; uddhariṇye—I will uplift; na cirāt—in the near future; āpadbhyau—from all miseries; nauu—a boat; iva—like; arëavāt—from the ocean.

TRANSLATION

Just as a ship rescues those who have fallen into the ocean, similarly, I very quickly rescue from all calamities those persons who uplift brāhmaëas and devotees suffering in a poverty-stricken condition.

PURPORT

The Lord has described how brāhmaëas and devotees achieve the perfection of life, and now a similar perfection is offered to those who utilize their materialistic wealth to relieve the poverty-stricken condition of devotees and brāhmaëas. Although one may neglect the devotional service of the Lord to pursue a material life of sense gratification, one can rectify one's position by dedicating one's hard-earned money to the service of the Lord. Seeing the difficult austerities accepted by saintly persons, a pious person should make arrangements for their comfort. Just as a boat saves hopeless people who have fallen into the ocean, similarly, the Lord uplifts persons who have hopelessly fallen into the ocean of material attachment if they have been charitable to the brāhmaëas and devotees.

TEXT 45

s$avaAR: s$amauÜ"re"%AjaA ipataeva vyas$anaAt'ajaA: @AtmaAnamaAtmanaA Dalr"Ae yaTaA gAjapaitagARjaAna,

*sarvāu samuddhared rājā pīteva vyasanāt prajāu ātmānam ātmanā dhēro
yathā gaja-patir gajān*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sarvāu—all; samuddharet—must uplift; rājā—the king; pītā—a father; iva—like; vyasanāt—from difficulties; prajāu—the citizens; ātmānam—himself; ātmana—by himself; dhērau—fearless; yathā—just as; gaja-patīu—a bull elephant; gajān—the other elephants.

TRANSLATION

Just as the chief bull elephant protects all other elephants in his herd and defends himself as well, similarly, a fearless king, just like a father, must save all of the citizens from difficulty and also protect himself.

PURPORT

Lord Kāñëa, having concluded His discussion of brahminical duties, now describes the character and activities of a king. Protecting all of the citizens from difficulty is an essential duty for the king.

TEXT 46

WvaMivaDaAe nar"paitar," ivamaAnaenaAkR(vacaRs$aA ivaDaUyaeh"AzAuBaM k{(tṣama, wn%oe"NA s$ah" maAed"tae

*evaà-vidho nara-patir vimānenārka-varcasā
vidhüyehaçubhaà kâtsnam indreëa saha modate*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam-vidhaù—thus (protecting himself and the citizens); nara-patiù—the king; vimānena—with an airplane; arka-varcasā—as brilliant as the sun; vidhüya—removing; iha—on the earth; açubham—sins; kâtsnam—all; indreëa—Lord Indra; saha—with; modate—he enjoys.

TRANSLATION

An earthly king who protects himself and all citizens by removing all sins from his kingdom will certainly enjoy with Lord Indra in airplanes as brilliant as the sun.

TEXT 47

s$ald"na, iva'aAe vaiNAgva{ÔyaA paNyaEre"vaApadM" tare"ta, KaËë"na vaApad"A,(AntaAe na ìva{ÔyaA k(TaÂana

*sédan vipro vaëig-vâttyä paëyair eväpadaà taret khaògena väpadäkränto
na çva-vâttyä kathai' cana*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

sédan—suffering; viprau—a brähmaëa; vaëik—of a merchant; vâttyä—by the occupation; paëyaiù—by doing business; eva—indeed; äpadam—suffering; taret—should overcome; khaògena—with sword; vä—or; äpadä—by suffering; äkräntaù—afflicted; na—not; çva—of the dog; vâttyä—by the occupation; kathai' cana—by any means.

TRANSLATION

If a brähmaëa cannot support himself through his regular duties and is thus suffering, he may adopt the occupation of a merchant and overcome his destitute condition by buying and selling material things. If he continues to suffer extreme poverty even as a merchant, then he may adopt the occupation of a kñatriya, taking sword in hand. But he cannot in any circumstances become like a dog, accepting an ordinary master.

PURPORT

Çva-vâttyä, or "a dog's profession," refers to the çüdras, who cannot live without accepting a master. A destitute brähmaëa who is suffering intolerably may become a merchant and then a kñatriya but may never take the position of a çüdra by working in a company or accepting a master. Although a kñatriya is ordinarily considered more elevated than a vaiçya, the Lord here recommends that distressed brähmaëas first accept the vaiçya occupation, since it is not violent.

TEXT 48

vaEzyava{ÔyaA tau r"AjanyaAe jalvaenma{gAyayaApaid" care"ã"A iva'aè&paeNA
na ìva{ÔyaA k(TaÂana

vaiçya-vâttyä tu räjanya jéven mângayayäpadi cared vä vipra-rüpeëa
na çva-vâttyä kathai' cana

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vaiçya—of the mercantile class; vâttyä—by the occupation; tu—indeed; räjanya—a king; jévet—may maintain himself; mângayayä—by hunting; äpadi—in an emergency or disastrous situation; caret—may act; vä—or; vipra-rüpeëa—in the form of a brähmaëa; na—never; çva—of the dog; vâttyä—by the profession; kathai' cana—in any circumstance.

TRANSLATION

A king or other member of the royal order who cannot maintain himself by his normal occupation may act as a vaiçya, may live by hunting or may act as a brähmaëa by teaching others Vedic knowledge. But he may not under any circumstances adopt the profession of a çüdra.

TEXT 49

zAU#%"va{iÔaM BajaeãE"zya: zAU#%": k(Aç&k(q%i,(yaAma, k{(cC)$Anmau·(Ae na gA÷eRNA va{iÔaM ilaps$aeta k(maRNAA çüdra-våttià bhajed vaiçyaù çüdraù kâru-kaôa-kriyäm kâcchrän mukto na garhyeëa våttià lipseta karmaëä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çüdra—of the çüdras; våttim—occupation; bhajet—may accept; vaiçyaù—a vaiçya; çüdraù—a çüdra; kâru—of the artisan; kaôa—straw baskets and mats; kriyäm—making; kâcchrät—from the difficult situation; muktaù—freed; na—not; garhyeëa—by that which is inferior; våttim—livelihood; lipseta—one should desire; karmaëä—by work.

TRANSLATION

A vaiçya, or mercantile man, who cannot maintain himself may adopt the occupation of a çüdra, and a çüdra who cannot find a master can engage in simple activities like making baskets and mats of straw. However, all members of society who have adopted inferior occupations in emergency situations must give up those substitute occupations when the difficulties have passed.

TEXT 50

vaed"ADyaAyasvaDaAsvaAh"Abalya^aaAâEyaRTaAed"yama, de"vaiSaRipata{BaUtaAina maâU"paANyanvahM" yajaeta,

vedädhyäya-svadhä-svähä-baly-annädyaair yathodayam

devarñi-pitā-bhūtāni
mad-rüpāëy anv-ahaà yajet

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

veda-adhyāya—by study of Vedic knowledge; svadhā—by offering the mantra svadhā; svāhā—by offering the mantra svāhā; bali—by token offerings of food; anna-ādyaiù—by offering grains, water, etc.; yathā—according to; udayam—one's prosperity; deva—the demigods; āñi—sages; pitā—the forefathers; bhūtāni—and all living entities; mat-rüpāëi—manifestations of My potency; anu-aham—daily; yajet—one should worship.

TRANSLATION

One in the gāhastha order of life should daily worship the sages by Vedic study, the forefathers by offering the mantra svadhā, the demigods by chanting svāhā, all living entities by offering shares of one's meals, and human beings by offering grains and water. Thus considering the demigods, sages, forefathers, living entities and human beings to be manifestations of My potency, one should daily perform these five sacrifices.

PURPORT

The Lord again discusses the duties of those in the household order of life. Obviously, the five ritualistic daily sacrifices mentioned here are meant for those who are not pure devotees of the Lord and who thus have to counteract their exploitation of material nature by the abovementioned sacrifices. The International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) is training householders, sannyāsés, brahmacārés and vānaprasthas to engage twenty-four hours a day in the loving service of the Lord. Those who are full-time missionary workers in ISKCON have no further obligations or sacrifices to perform, as confirmed in the Eleventh Canto of Çrémad-Bhāgavatam (11.5.41):

devarñi-bhūtāpta-nāëäà pitëëäà

na kiṁ karo nāyam āē ca rājan sarvātmanā yaù çaraēaà çaraēyaà gato mukundaà parihātya kartam

"Anyone who has taken shelter at the lotus feet of Mukunda, the giver of liberation, giving up all kinds of obligation, and has taken to the path in all seriousness, owes neither duties nor obligations to the demigods, sages, general living entities, family members, humankind or forefathers."

TEXT 51

yaä{"cC$yaAepapa^aaena zAuflaenaAepaAijaRtaena vaA DanaenaApalx"yana, Ba{tyaAna, nyaAyaenaEvaAh"re"t,(taUna,

*yadâcchayopapannena
çuklenopârjitenā vā dhanenâpēòayan bhâtyān nyâyenaivâharet kratün*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadâcchayâ—without endeavor; upapannena—which is acquired; çuklena—by one's honest occupation; upârjitenā—acquired; vā—or; dhanena—with money; apēòayan—not subjecting to discomfort; bhâtyān—dependents; nyâyena—properly; eva—indeed; âharet—one should perform; kratün—sacrifices and other religious ceremonies.

TRANSLATION

A householder should comfortably maintain his dependents either with money that comes of its own accord or with that gathered by honest execution of one's duties. According to one's means, one should perform sacrifices and other religious ceremonies.

PURPORT

The Lord here describes the religious duties that are to be performed as far as possible, according to one's means, and when there is opportunity.

TEXT 52

ku(q%]mbaeSau na s$aÀaeta na 'amaAâetku(q%]mbyaipa ivapaiê^aairM" pazyaeä," @ä{"í"maipa ä{"í"vata,

kuūumbeñu na sajjeta na pramādyet kuūumby api vipaṇṇin naṇvaraṇ paṇyed adāññam api dāñña-vat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kuūumbeñu—to the family members; na—not; sajjeta—one should be attached; na—not; pramādyet—should become crazy; kuūumbē—having many dependent family members; api—although; vipaṇṇit—a wise person; naṇvaram—temporary; paṇyet—should see; adāññam—future rewards such as residence in heaven; api—indeed; dāñña-vat—just like that which is already experienced.

TRANSLATION

A householder taking care of many dependent family members should not become materially attached to them, nor should he become mentally unbalanced, considering himself to be the lord. An intelligent householder should see that all possible future happiness, just like that which he has already experienced, is temporary.

PURPORT

A family man often acts like a lord, protecting his wife, ordering his children, maintaining servants, grandchildren, domestic animals, and so forth. The words na pramādyet kuñumby api indicate that although one acts like a little lord, surrounded by his family, servants and friends, one should not, through false pride, become mentally unbalanced, considering oneself to be the actual lord. The word vipaścīt indicates that one should remain sober and intelligent, never forgetting oneself to be the eternal servant of the Supreme Lord.

Householders of the upper, middle and lower classes become attached to different types of sense gratification. In any economic or social class, however, one should remember that all material enjoyment, either here or in the next life, is temporary and ultimately useless. A responsible householder should guide his family members and other dependents back home, back to Godhead, for an eternal life of bliss and knowledge. One should not become a false and puffed-up lord for a brief span of time, for then one will remain bound up, along with his family members, in the cycle of repeated birth and death.

TEXT 53

pauṭad"Ar"AæabanDaUnaAM
s$aĒyṁa: paAnTas$aĒyṁa: @naude"hM" ivayantyaetae sva«aAe ina%o"AnaugAAe yaTaA putra-dārāpta-bandhünāà saì gamaù pāntha-saì gamaù anu-dehaà viyanty ete svapno nidrānugo yathā

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

putra—of children; dāra—wife; āpta—relatives; bandhünām—and friends; saṁgamaḥ—the association, living together; pāṇtha—of travelers; saṁgamaḥ—association; anu-deham—with each change of body; viyanti—they are separated; ete—all these; svapnaḥ—a dream; nidrā—in sleep; anugaḥ—occurring; yathā—just as.

TRANSLATION

The association of children, wife, relatives and friends is just like the brief meeting of travelers. With each change of body one is separated from all such associates, just as one loses the objects one possesses in a dream when the dream is over.

PURPORT

Pāṇtha-saṁgama indicates the momentary association of travelers at hotels, restaurants, tourist spots or, in more traditional cultures, freshwater wells and walking paths. We are now associated with many relatives, friends and well-wishers, but as soon as we change our material body we will immediately be separated from all these associates, just as upon awakening we are immediately separated from the imaginary situation of a dream. One becomes attached to the sense gratification of one's dream, and similarly, under the spell of the illusory concepts of "I" and "mine," we become attached to so-called relatives and friends who gratify our sense of false ego. Unfortunately, such fleeting egoistic association covers our real knowledge of the self and the Supreme, and we remain hovering in material illusion, futilely endeavoring for permanent sense gratification. One who remains attached to the bodily concept of family and friends cannot possibly give up the false egoism of "I" and "mine," or "I am everything and everything is mine."

Without giving up material sense gratification we cannot become steady on the transcendental platform of devotional service, and therefore we cannot relish the actual flavor of eternal happiness. Unless one becomes a pure devotee of the Lord, accepting Lord Kāṇḍa as one's only friend, one cannot give up the hankering for temporary and superficial material relationships. A traveler far away from his home and loved ones may strike up superficial conversations with other travelers, but such relationships have no ultimate meaning. One should therefore revive one's lost relationship with Lord Kāñëa. We are constitutionally part and parcel of Lord Kāñëa, who is the reservoir of all spiritual pleasure, and our original relationship with Him is full of love and happiness. But because of our desire to enjoy independently from Him, we fall down into the confusing, meaningless network of material relationships created by māyā. An intelligent person realizes there is no actual pleasure or satisfaction for the soul on either this planet or any other material planet. Therefore, like a weary traveler exhausted from his journey, he should go back home, back to Godhead, for eternal peace as the faithful servant of Lord Çré Kāñëa.

TEXT 54

wtTaM pair"ma{zAnmau·(Ae gA{he"SvaitaiTavaã"s$ana, na gA{hE"r"naubaDyaeta inamaRmaAe inar"h"x.~k{(ta:

*itthaà parimâçan mukto gâheñv atithi-vad vasan na gâhair anubadhyeta
nirmamo nirahaì kâtaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ittham—thus; parimâçan—deeply considering; muktaù—a liberated soul; gâheñu—at home; atithi-vat—just like a guest; vasan—living; na—not; gâhaiù—by the domestic situation; anubadhyeta—should become bound; nirmamaù—without any sense of personal proprietorship; nirahaì kâtaù—without false ego.

TRANSLATION

Deeply considering the actual situation, a liberated soul should live at home just like a guest, without any sense of proprietorship or false ego. In this way he will not be bound or entangled by domestic affairs.

PURPORT

The word mukta, or "liberated," refers to one freed from all material attachment. In this status, called mukta-saiga, one no longer identifies oneself as a permanent resident of the material world. This liberated status may be attained even by one situated in family life. The only requirement is that one should take up a serious program of kāñëa-saì kértana, which includes constant chanting of the holy names of the Lord, worship of the Deity and participation in the Kāñëa consciousness movement. Without a serious program of kāñëa-saì kértana it is very difficult to give up the iron shackles of attachment to women and the byproducts of such attachment.

TEXT 55

k(maRiBagA{Rh"maeDalyaEr," wî"A maAmaeva Bai·(maAna, itaïe"ã"naM vaAepaivazAeta,
'ajaAvaAna, vaA pair"~ajaeta,

karmabhir gāha-medhēyair iñōvā mām eva bhaktimān tiñōhet vanaà vopaviçet prajāvān vā parivrajat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

karmabhiù—by activities; gāha-medhēyaiù—suitable for family life;
iñōvā—worshiping; mām—Me; eva—indeed; bhakti-mān—being a devotee; tiñōhet—one may remain at home; vanam—the forest; vā—or;

upaviṣet—may enter; prajā-vān—having responsible children; vā—or; parivrajat—may take sannyāsa.

TRANSLATION

A householder devotee who worships Me by execution of his family duties may remain at home, go to a holy place or, if he has a responsible son, take sannyāsa.

PURPORT

This verse describes the three alternatives for a householder. He may continue at home, or he may take vānaprastha, which involves going to a sacred place with one's wife. Or if he has a responsible son to take over his family duties, he may take sannyāsa, the renounced order, for a definitive solution to the problems of life. In all three ācramas, ultimate success depends on sincere surrender to the Supreme Lord; therefore, the most important qualification one can have is Kāñēa consciousness.

TEXT 56

yastvaAs$a-(maitagAeR$he"
pauṭaivaŌaESaNAAtaur": ñENA: k{(paNADalmaURX#Ae mamaAh"imaita baDyatae

yas tv āsakta-matir gehe putra-vittaiñāēāturaù straiēaù kāpāēa-dhēr müòho mamāham iti badhyate

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who; tu—however; āsakta—attached; matiù—whose consciousness; gehe—to his home; putra—for children; vitta—and money;

eñāëa—by ardent desire; äturaù—disturbed; straiëaù—lusty to enjoy women; kāpaëa—miserly; dhéù—whose mentality; müòhaù—unintelligent; mama—everything is mine; aham—I am everything; iti—thus thinking; badhyate—is bound.

TRANSLATION

But a householder whose mind is attached to his home and who is thus disturbed by ardent desires to enjoy his money and children, who is lusty after women, who is possessed of a miserly mentality and who unintelligently thinks, "Everything is mine and I am everything," is certainly bound in illusion.

PURPORT

Although one may try by various analytical or psychological processes to detach the mind from illusory family attachment, one will inevitably be drawn back into the network of material attachment unless the heart is purified by Kāñëa consciousness. A miserly householder thinks only of his own family or community, without mercy for outsiders. Being egoistic, lusty, attached and always disturbed by ardent desires to enjoy money and children, a materialistic householder is hopelessly bound in a web of anxiety.

TEXT 57

@h"Ae mae ipatar"AE va{Ü"AE BaAyaAR baAlaAtmajaAtmajaA: @naATaA maAma{tae d"lnaA:
k(TaM jalvainta äü":iKataA:

aho me pitarau våddhau
bhāryā bālātmajātmajāù anāthā mām āte dēnāù
kathāà jēvanti duùkhitāù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

aho—alas; me—my; pitarau—parents; vāddhau—elderly; bhāryā—wife; bāla-ātma-jā—having a mere infant in her arms; ātmā-jāu—and my other young children; anāthāu—with no one to protect them; mām—me; āte—without; dēnāu—wretched; katham—how in the world; jēvanti—can they live; duḥkhitāu—suffering greatly.

TRANSLATION

"O my poor elderly parents, and my wife with a mere infant in her arms, and my other young children! Without me they have absolutely no one to protect them and will suffer unbearably. How can my poor relatives possibly live without me?"

TEXT 58

WvaM gA{h"AzAyaAi°aæa-ô$d"yaAe maUX#DaIr"yama, @ta{æastaAnanauDyaAyana, ma{taAe'nDaM ivazAtae tama:

*eva*à gāhāçayākñipta- hādayo müòha-dhēr ayam
atāptas tām anudhyāyan
*māto 'ndha*à viçate tamaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; gāha—in his domestic situation; āçaya—by intense desire; ākñipta—overwhelmed; hādayaù—his heart; müòha—unintelligent; dhēu—whose point of view; ayam—this person; atāptaù—unsatisfied; tām—them (family members); anudhyāyan—constantly thinking of; mātaù—he dies; andham—blindness; viçate—enters; tamaù—darkness.

TRANSLATION

Thus, because of his foolish mentality, a householder whose heart is overwhelmed by family attachment is never satisfied. Constantly meditating on his relatives, he dies and enters into the darkness of ignorance.

PURPORT

Andhaà viçate tamaù indicates that in his next life an attached householder will certainly be degraded because of his primitive mentality of bodily attachment, which is called müòha-dhé. In other words, after enjoying the sense gratification of considering oneself the center of everything, one enters into a lower species of life. Somehow or other, we must fix our minds on Lord Kâñëa and come out of the darkness of ignorance to our real life in Kâñëa consciousness.

Thus end the purports of the humble servants of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupäda to the Eleventh Canto, Seventeenth Chapter, of the Çrémad-Bhägavatam, entitled "Lord Kâñëa's Description of the Varëäçrama System."

18. Description of Varëäçrama-dharma

As related in this chapter, Lord Çré Kâñëa explained to Uddhava the duties of the vänaprastha and sannyäsa orders and the religious practices proper to each of these levels of advancement.

One who is taking to the vänaprastha stage of life should leave his wife at home in the care of his sons, or else take her along, and with a peaceful mind spend the third quarter of his life in the forest. He should accept as his food whatever bulbs, fruits, roots and so on that grow in the forest, taking sometimes grains cooked by fire and sometimes fruits ripened by time. Furthermore, he should take as his garments tree bark, grass, leaves or the skin of a deer. It is prescribed that he should perform austerities by not cutting his hair, beard, or nails. Nor should he make any special attempt to remove dirt from his limbs. He should bathe three times daily in cold water and sleep upon the ground. During the hot season he should stand beneath the fearsome heat of the sun with fires blazing on four sides. During the rainy season he should stand in the midst of the downpour of rain, and during the cold winter he should submerge himself in water up to his neck. He is absolutely forbidden to clean his teeth, to store food that he has collected at one time to eat at another time, and to worship the Supreme Lord with the flesh of animals. If he can maintain those severe practices for the remainder of his life, the vānaprastha will achieve the Tapoloka planet.

The fourth quarter of life is meant for sannyāsa. One should develop complete detachment from attaining residence on different planets, up to even Brahmaloḥa. Such wishes for material elevation are due to desire for the fruits of material activity. When one recognizes that endeavors to achieve residence on the higher planets ultimately award only suffering, then it is enjoined that one should take to sannyāsa in a spirit of renunciation. The process of accepting sannyāsa involves worshipping the Lord with sacrifice, giving everything one possesses in charity to the priests and establishing within one's own heart the various sacrificial fires. For a sannyāsī, association with women or even the sight of women is more undesirable than taking poison. Except in emergencies, the sannyāsī should never wear more clothing than a loincloth or some simple covering over his loincloth. He should carry no more than his staff and waterpot. Giving up all violence to living creatures, he should become subdued in the functions of his body, mind and speech. He should remain detached and fixed on the self and travel alone to such pure places as the mountains, rivers and forests. Thus engaged, he should remember the Supreme Personality of Godhead and dwell in a place that is fearless and not heavily populated. He should take his alms each day at seven homes chosen at random from those of the members of the four social classes, avoiding only the homes of those who are cursed or fallen. With a pure heart he should offer to the Supreme Personality of Godhead whatever food he has collected and take the mahā-prasādam remnants. In this way he should always be mindful that hankering for sense gratification is bondage and that engaging the objects of the senses in the service of Lord Mādhava is liberation. If one lacks knowledge and renunciation, or continues to be troubled by the unconquered six enemies headed by lust and the all-powerful senses, or if one accepts the tri-daśā renounced order simply for the purpose of carrying out a livelihood, then he will achieve as his result only the killing of his own soul.

A paramahansa is not under the control of injunctions and prohibitions. He is a devotee of the Supreme Lord, detached from external sense gratification and completely free from desire for even such subtle gratificatory goals as liberation. He is expert in discrimination and, just like a simple child, is free from concepts of pride and insult. Although actually competent, he wanders about like a dull person, and although most learned, he engages himself like an insane fool in incoherent speech. Although actually fixed in the Vedas, he behaves in an unordered fashion. He tolerates the evil words of others and never shows contempt for anyone else. He avoids acting as an enemy or vainly indulging in argument. He sees the Supreme Personality of Godhead in all creatures and also all living beings within the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In order to keep his body alive for performing worship of the Lord, he accepts whatever excellent or inferior food, clothing and bedding he can obtain without endeavor. Although he has to make some effort to find food for maintaining his body, he does not become joyful when he finds something, nor does he become depressed when not finding anything. The Supreme Lord Himself, although not at all subject to the Vedic orders and prohibitions, by His own free will executes various prescribed duties; similarly the paramahansa, even while on the platform of freedom from subjugation to Vedic rules and prohibitions, carries out various duties. Because his perception of dualities has become completely eradicated by transcendental knowledge, which is focused on the Supreme Lord, he obtains upon the demise of his material body the liberation known as sārṅgī, in which one becomes equal in opulence with the Lord.

The person who desires his own best interest should take shelter of a bona fide spiritual master. Filling his mind with faith, keeping free from enviousness and remaining fixed in devotion, the disciple should serve the spiritual master, whom he should regard as nondifferent from the Supreme Lord. For a brahmacäre, the primary duty is service to the spiritual master. The main duties for a householder are protection of living beings and sacrifice, for a vänaprastha austerities, and for a sannyäse self-control and nonviolence. Celibacy (practiced by householders at all times except once a month when the wife is fertile), penance, cleanliness, self-satisfaction, friendship with all living beings and above all worship of the Supreme Personality of Godhead are duties meant for every jéva soul. One acquires firm devotion for the Supreme Lord by always rendering service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead through one's own particular prescribed duty, by not engaging in the worship of any other personalities, and also by thinking of all creatures as the place of residence of the Supreme Personality of Godhead in His form as the Supersoul. The followers of the karma-käëòa section of the Vedas can attain the planets of the forefathers and so on by their ritualistic activities, but if they become endowed with devotion for the Supreme Lord, then by these same activities they can achieve the supreme stage of liberation.

TEXT 1

™alBagAvaAnauvaAca
vanaM ivaiva°au: pauṭaeSau BaAyaA< nyasya s$ahE"va vaA vana Wva vas$aecC$Antas$a, ta{talyaM BaAgAmaAyauSa:

çré-bhagavän uväca
vanaà vivikñuù putreñu bhäryäà nyasya sahaiva vä vana eva vasesc chäntas

tâtéyaà bhāgam āyunaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

çré-bhagavān uvāca—the Supreme Personality of Godhead said; vanam—the forest; vivikñuù—desiring to enter; putreñu—among the sons; bhāryām—wife; nyasya—entrusting; saha—together with; eva—indeed; vā—or; vane—in the forest; eva—certainly; vaset—one should dwell; çāntaù—with a peaceful mind; tâtéyam—the third; bhāgam—division; āyunaù—of life.

TRANSLATION

The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: One who desires to adopt the third order of life, vānaprastha, should enter the forest with a peaceful mind, leaving his wife with his mature sons, or else taking her along with him.

PURPORT

In Kali-yuga a human being generally cannot live more than one hundred years, and even this is becoming most unusual. A man who has a reasonable expectation of living for one hundred years may adopt the vānaprastha order at the age of fifty, and then at the age of seventy-five he may take sannyāsa for complete renunciation. Since in Kali-yuga very few people live for one hundred years, one should adjust the schedule accordingly. Vānaprastha is intended as a gradual transition from materialistic family life to the stage of complete renunciation.

TEXT 2

k(nd"maUlaP(laEvaRnyaEr," maeDyaEva{RiÔaM 'ak(lpayaeta, vas$alta valk(laM vaAs$as$a, ta{NApaNAARijanaAina vaA

kanda-mūla-phalair vanyair medhyair vāttià prakalpayet vasēta valkalaà vāsas tāëa-parëäjinäni vä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

kanda—with bulbs; mūla—roots; phalaiu—and fruits; vanyaiu—growing in the forest; medhyaiu—pure; vāttim—sustenance; prakalpayet—one should arrange; vasēta—one should put on; valkalam—tree bark; vāsaù—as clothes; tāëa—grass; parëa—leaves; ajinäni—animal skins; vä—or.

TRANSLATION

Having adopted the vānaprastha order of life, one should arrange one's sustenance by eating uncontaminated bulbs, roots and fruits that grow in the forest. One may dress oneself with tree bark, grass, leaves or animal skins.

PURPORT

A renounced sage in the forest does not kill animals, but rather acquires skins from animals who have suffered natural death. According to a passage from Manu-saàhitä, quoted by Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhākura, the word medhyaiu, or "pure," indicates that while residing in the forest a sage may not accept honey-based liquors, animal flesh, fungus, mushrooms, horseradish or any hallucinogenic or intoxicating herbs, even those taken as so-called medicine.

TEXT 3

ke(zAr"AemanaKazma™aumalaAina ibaBa{yaAÚ"ta: na DaAvaed"ps$au maÀaeta iṭa k(AlaM sTaiNx"laezAya:

keça-roma-nakha-çmaçrumaläni bibhâyäd dataù na dhäved apsu majjeta tri kâlaà sthaëòile-çayaù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

keça—hair on the head; roma—bodily hair; nakha—fingernails and toenails; çmaçru—facial hair; maläni—bodily waste products; bibhâyät—one should tolerate; dataù—the teeth; na dhävet—should not clean; apsu—in water; majjeta—should bathe; tri-kâlam—three times a day; sthaëòile—on the earth; çayaù—lying down.

TRANSLATION

The vānaprastha should not groom the hair on his head, body or face, should not manicure his nails, should not pass stool and urine at irregular times and should not make a special endeavor for dental hygiene. He should be content to take bath in water three times daily and should sleep on the ground.

TEXT 4

falSmae tapyeta paÂaAçalna, vaSaARsvaAs$Ar"SaAx". jalae @Ak(NTamaça: izAizAr" WvaM va{Ôastapaêre"ta, *gréñme tapyeta pa'i cāgnén varñäsv äsâra-ñäò jale äkaëtha-magnaù çiçira

evaà vâttas tapaç caret*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

gréñme—in the summer; tapyeta—one should accept as austerity;

pai'ca-agnén—five fires (the overhead sun and fires burning on four sides); varñäsu—during the rainy season; äsära—torrents of rain; ñäö—tolerating; jale—in water; ä-kaëöha—up to the neck; magnaù—submerged; çiçire—in the coldest part of winter; evam—thus; vättaù—engaged; tapaù—penance; caret—one should execute.

TRANSLATION

Thus engaged as a vānaprastha, one should execute penance during the hottest summer days by subjecting oneself to burning fires on four sides and the blazing sun overhead; during the rainy season one should remain outside, subjecting oneself to torrents of rain; and in the freezing winter one should remain submerged in water up to one's neck.

PURPORT

One who engages in sense gratification must perform severe penances at the end of life to counteract his sinful, hedonistic activities. A devotee of the Lord, however, naturally develops Kāñëa consciousness and need not subject himself to such radical penances. As stated in the Pai carätra, ärädhito yadi haris tapasä tataù kià närädhito yadi haris tapasä tataù kim antar bahir yadi haris tapasä tataù kià nāntar bahir yadi haris tapasä tataù kim

"If one is worshiping the Lord properly, what is the use of severe penances? And if one is not properly worshiping the Lord, what is the use of severe penances? If Çré Kāñëa is realized within and without everything that exists, what is the use of severe penances? And if Çré Kāñëa is not seen within and without everything, then what is the use of severe penances?"

TEXT 5

@içapa,M(s$ama´alyaAta, k(Alapa,(maTaAipa vaA olaUKalaAzmaku(Ä%Ae vaA d"ntaAelaUKala Wva vaA

*agni-pakvaà samaçnéyāt kāla-pakvam athāpi vā ulūkhalaçma-kuōōo vā
dantolūkhala eva vā*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agni—by fire; pakvam—made ready to eat; samaçnéyāt—one should eat; kāla—by time; pakvam—right for eating; atha—else; api—indeed; vā—or; ulūkhala—with grinding mortar; açma—and stone; kuōōaù—pulverized, ground up; vā—or; danta—using the teeth; ulūkhalaù—as a grinding mortar; eva—indeed; vā—or, alternatively.

TRANSLATION

One may eat foodstuffs prepared with fire, such as grains, or fruits ripened by time. One may grind one's food with mortar and stone or with one's own teeth.

PURPORT

In Vedic civilization it is recommended that at the end of one's life one should go to a holy place or forest for spiritual perfection. In sacred forests one does not find restaurants, supermarkets, fast-food chains and so on, and thus one must eat simply, reducing sense gratification.

Although in the Western countries people eat processed food, one living simply must himself separate and pulverize grains and other foods before eating. This is referred to here.

TEXT 6

svayaM s$aiÂanauyaAts$avaRma, @AtmanaAe va{iÔak(Ar"N Ama, de"zAk(AlabalaAiBaÁaAe
naAd"d"ltaAnyad"Aô$tama,

*svayaà sai cinuyät sarvam ätmano vätti-käraëam deça-kāla-balābhijī o
nādadētānyadāhātam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

svayam—himself; sai cinuyät—should gather; sarvam—everything; ätmanaù—his own; vätti—sustenance; käraëam—facilitating; deça—the particular place; kāla—the time; bala—and one's strength; abhijī aù—understanding pragmatically; na ādadēta—should not take; anyadā—for another time; āhātam—provisions.

TRANSLATION

The vānaprastha should personally collect whatever he requires for his bodily maintenance, carefully considering the time, place and his own capacity. He should never collect provisions for the future.

PURPORT

According to Vedic regulations, one practicing austerity should collect only what he requires for immediate use, and upon receiving gifts of foodstuff he should immediately give up that which he has previously collected, so that there will be no surplus. This regulation is meant to keep one fixed in faithful dependence on the Supreme Lord. One should never stock food or other bodily necessities for future use. The term deça-kāla-balābhijī a indicates that in a particularly difficult place, or in time of emergency or personal incapacity, this strict rule need not be followed, as confirmed by Çréla Viçvanātha Cakravarté Ōhākura.

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura points out that unless one is completely incapacitated, one should not depend on others for one's personal maintenance, as this will create a debt that can only be repaid by taking another birth in the material world. This applies only to those endeavoring for personal purification and not to those engaged full time in devotional service to Lord Kāñëa. A pure devotee eats, dresses and speaks only for the service of the Lord, and thus whatever assistance he accepts from others is not for himself. He is fully surrendered to the mission of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. However, one not so surrendered will certainly have to take birth again in the material world to repay all of his debts to others.

TEXT 7

vanyaEêç&paur"Aex"AzAEr," inavaR"paetk(AlacaAeid"taAna, na tau TMaAEtaena pazAunaA maAM yajaeta vanaATMamal vanyaiç caru-puroðäçair nirvapet kâla-coditân na tu çrautena paçunä

mäà yajeta vanäçramë

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vanyaiù—obtained in the forest; caru—with oblations of rice, barley and däl beans; puroðäçaiù—and sacrificial cakes prepared with wild rice; nirvapet—one should offer; kâla-coditân—ritualistic sacrifices, such as ägrayaëa, offered according to seasons (ägrayaëa is the offering of the first fruits that appear after the rainy season); na—never; tu—indeed; çrautena—mentioned in the Vedas; paçunä—with animal sacrifice; mäm—Me; yajeta—may worship; vana-äçramë—one who has gone to the forest, taking the vänaprastha order of life.

TRANSLATION

One who has accepted the vānaprastha order of life should perform seasonal sacrifices by offering oblations of caru and sacrificial cakes prepared from rice and other grains found in the forest. The vānaprastha, however, may never offer animal sacrifices to Me, even those sacrifices mentioned in the Vedas.

PURPORT

One who has taken the vānaprastha order of life should never perform animal sacrifices or eat meat.

TEXT 8

@içah"AeṭaM ca d"zARê paAENARmaAs$aê paUvaRvata, caAtaumaARsyaAina ca maunaer," @A°aAtaAina ca naEgAmaE:

*agnihotra*à ca darçaç ca paurëamäsaç ca pürva-vat cäturmäsyäni ca muner ämnätäni ca naigamaiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

agni-hotram—the fire sacrifice; ca—also; darçaù—the sacrifice performed on the new moon day; ca—also; paurëa-mäsaù—full moon sacrifice; ca—also; pürva-vat—as previously, in the gāhastha-āçrama; cātuù-mäsyäni—the vows and sacrifices of cäturmäsyä; ca—also; muneù—of the vānaprastha; ämnätäni—enjoined; ca—also; naigamaiù—by expert knowers of the Vedas.

TRANSLATION

The vānaprastha should perform the agnihotra, darṣa and paurāṃśa sacrifices, as he did while in the gāhastha-āçrama. He should also perform the vows and sacrifices of cāturmāsya, since all of these rituals are enjoined for the vānaprastha-āçrama by expert knowers of the Vedas.

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Ōhākura has given a detailed explanation of the four rituals mentioned here, namely agnihotra, darṣa, paurāṃśa and cāturmāsya. The conclusion is that everyone should simply chant Hare Kāñēa, Hare Kāñēa, Kāñēa Kāñēa, Hare Hare/ Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare and avoid the difficult entanglement of Vedic ritualistic ceremonies. If one neither chants Hare Kāñēa nor performs such rituals, one certainly becomes a pāñāēōē, an atheistic fool.

TEXT 9

WvaM caINaE Rna tapas$aA mauinaDaRmainas$antata:
maAM tapaAemayamaAr"ADya [%iSalaAek(Aäu"paEita maAma, evaà cérēena tapasā

munir dhamani-santataù
māà tapo-mayam ārādhya
āñi-lokād upaiti mām

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

evam—thus; cérēena—by the practice; tapasā—of austerity; muniù—the saintly vānaprastha; dhamani-santataù—emaciated so much that the veins are visible throughout his body; mām—Me; tapaù-mayam—the goal of all penance; ārādhya—worshiping; rñi-lokāt—beyond Maharloka;

upaiti—achieves; mām—Me.

TRANSLATION

The saintly vānaprastha, practicing severe penances and accepting only the bare necessities of life, becomes so emaciated that he appears to be mere skin and bones. Thus worshiping Me through severe penances, he goes to the Maharloka planet and then directly achieves Me.

PURPORT

A vānaprastha who develops pure devotional service achieves the Supreme Lord, Kāñëa, while in the vānaprastha stage of life. One who does not become completely Kāñëa conscious, however, first goes to the planet Maharloka, or Āñiloka, and from there directly achieves Lord Kāñëa.

One achieves Maharloka, or Āñiloka, through strict observance of positive and negative regulations. However, without developing a taste for chanting and hearing the glories of the Lord (çravaëaà kértanaà viñëoù [SB 7.5.23]), it is not possible to achieve the perfect liberation of going back home, back to Godhead. Therefore, on the Maharloka planet the unsuccessful sage gives more attention to chanting and hearing, and thus he gradually develops pure love of Godhead.

TEXT 10

yastvaetatk{(cC)$taêINA< tapaAe ina:™aeyas$aM mah"ta, k(AmaAyaAlpalyas$ae yauHjyaAä," baAilazA: k(Ae'par"stata:

*yas tv etat kâcchrataç cérëaà tapo niùçreyasaà mahat kāmâyālpéyase yui jyād
bāliçaù ko 'paras tataù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yaù—one who; tu—indeed; etat—this; kácchrataù—with great penance; cérëam—for a long time; tapaù—austerity; niùçreyasam—awarding ultimate liberation; mahat—glorious; kämäya—for sense gratification; alpéyase—insignificant; yui jyät—practices; bäliçaù—such a fool; kaù—who; aparaù—else; tataù—besides him.

TRANSLATION

One who with long endeavor executes this painful but exalted penance, which awards ultimate liberation, simply to achieve insignificant sense gratification must be considered the greatest fool.

PURPORT

Although the process of vänaprastha described by Lord Kânëa is so glorious that even the consolation prize is promotion to Maharloka, one who consciously performs this process for such promotion to heaven is certainly the greatest fool. The Lord does not want this process to be abused or exploited by materialistic rascals, for the ultimate goal is love of Godhead.

TEXT 11

yad" As$ aAE inayamae'k(lpaAe
jar" yaA jaAtavaepaTau: @Atmanyacalna, s$amaAr" Aepya mai»aÔaAe'içaM s$amaAivazAeta,

*yadäsau niyame 'kalpo jarayä jäta-vepathuù
ätmany agnén samäropya
mac-citto 'gnià samäviçet*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadä—when; asau—the saintly vānaprastha; niyame—in his prescribed duties; akalpaù—unable to carry on; jarayä—due to old age; jäta—arisen; vepathuù—trembling of the body; ätmani—within his heart; agnén—the sacrificial fires; samäropyä—placing; mat-cittaù—his mind fixed in Me; agnim—the fire; samäviçet—should enter.

TRANSLATION

If the vānaprastha is overtaken by old age and because of his trembling body is no longer able to execute his prescribed duties, he should place the sacrificial fire within his heart by meditation. Then, fixing his mind on Me, he should enter into the fire and give up his body.

PURPORT

Since the process of vānaprastha is recommended for those nearing the end of life, there is always the likelihood that one will prematurely succumb to the symptoms of old age and be unable to reach the final stage of sannyäsa. If one simply cannot carry on his religious duties due to old age, it is here advised that he fix the mind in Lord Kāñëa and enter into the sacrificial fire. Although this may not be possible in the modern age, we can appreciate the absolute seriousness of going back home, back to Godhead, as evidenced in this verse.

TEXT 12

yad"A k(maRivapaAke(Sau laAeke(Sau inar"yaAtmas$au ivar"AgAAe jaAyatae s$amyax.~ nyastaAiçä: 'a~ajaeÔata:

yadä karma-vipäkeñu

*lokeṇu nirayātmasu
virāgo jāyate samyaḥ nyastāgniṁ pravrajat tataḥ*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

yadā—when; karma—by fruitive activities; vipākeṇu—in all that which is obtained; lokeṇu—including promotion to all the planets of the universe up to Brahmaloḥka; niraya-ātmasu—planets that are actually hellish, being material; virāgaḥ—detachment; jāyate—is born; samyak—completely; nyasta—giving up; agniṁ—the sacrificial fire of vānaprastha; pravrajat—one should take sannyāsa; tataḥ—at that point.

TRANSLATION

If the vānaprastha, understanding that even promotion to Brahmaloḥka is a miserable situation, develops complete detachment from all possible results of fruitive activities, then he may take the sannyāsa order of life.

TEXT 13

wī" A yaTaAepade"zAM maAM
d"ÔvaA s$avaRsvama{itvajae @çalna, sva'aANA @Avaezya inar"pae^oa: pair"~ajaeta,

iṅṁvā yathopadeṣāṁ mām dattvā sarva-svam ātvije agnēn sva-prāṇā āveṣya nirapekṣāṁ parivrajat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

iṅṁvā—having worshiped; yathā—according to; upadeṣam—scriptural injunctions; mām—Me; dattvā—having given; sarva-svam—all one possesses; ātvije—to the priest; agnēn—the sacrificial fire; sva-prāṇā—within oneself; āveçya—placing; nirapekñāu—without attachment; parivrajat—one should take sannyāsa and set off.

TRANSLATION

Having worshiped Me according to scriptural injunctions and having given all one's property to the sacrificial priest, one should place the fire sacrifice within oneself. Thus, with the mind completely detached, one should enter the sannyāsa order of life.

PURPORT

One cannot maintain the sannyāsa order of life unless one gives up all materialistic association and engages exclusively in devotional service to the Supreme Lord. Any material desire will gradually prove to be a stumbling block in the prosecution of renounced life. Therefore, a liberated sannyāsē must vigilantly keep himself free from the weeds of material desires, which surface principally in the form of attachment to women, money and reputation. One may possess a beautiful garden filled with fruits and flowers, but without vigilant maintenance the garden will be overrun by weeds. Similarly, one who achieves a beautiful state of Kāñēa consciousness takes the sannyāsa order of life, but if he does not vigilantly and painstakingly keep his heart clean, there is always the danger of a relapse into illusion.

TEXT 14

iva'asya vaE s$a^yas$ataAe de"vaA d"Ar"Aid"è&ipaNA:
iva£aAna, ku(vaRntyayaM ÷smaAna, @A,(mya s$aimayaAtpar"ma,

*viprasya vai sannyasato devā dārādi-rūpiēau
vighnān kurvanty ayaà hy asmān ākramya samiyāt param*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

viprasya—of the saintly person; vai—indeed; sannyasatau—taking sannyāsa; devāu—the demigods; dāra-ādi-rūpiëau—appearing in the form of his wife or other women and attractive objects; vighnān—stumbling blocks; kurvanti—create; ayam—the sannyāsē; hi—indeed; asmān—them, the demigods; ākramya—surpassing; samiyāt—should go; param—back home, back to Godhead.

TRANSLATION

"This man taking sannyāsa is going to surpass us and go back home, back to Godhead." Thus thinking, the demigods create stumbling blocks on the path of the sannyāsē by appearing before him in the shape of his former wife or other women and attractive objects. But the sannyāsē should pay the demigods and their manifestations no heed.

PURPORT

The demigods are empowered with universal administration and by their potency may appear as the former wife of a sannyāsē or as other women, so that the sannyāsē gives up his strict vows and becomes entangled in sense gratification. Lord Kāñëa here encourages all sannyāsés by telling them, "Pay no attention to such illusory manifestations. Continue your duties and go back home, back to Godhead."

TEXT 15

ibaBa{yaA»aenmauinavaARs$a: k(AEpalnaAcC$Ad"naM par"ma, tya·M(na d"Nx"paAṭaAByaAma, @nyaitk(iÂad"naApaid"

bibhāyāc cen munir vāsau

kaupénäcchädanaà param tyaktaà na daëòà-päträbhyäm anyat kii cid anäpadi

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bibhâyät—would wear; cet—if; muniù—the sannyäse; väsaù—clothes; kaupéna—the thick belt and underwear worn by saintly persons; äcchädanam—covering; param—other; tyaktam—given up; na—never; daëòà—besides his staff; päträbhyäm—and waterpot; anyat—else; kii cit—anything; anäpadi—when there is no emergency.

TRANSLATION

If the sannyäse desires to wear something besides a mere kaupéna, he may use another cloth around his waist and hips to cover the kaupéna. Otherwise, if there is no emergency, he should not accept anything besides his daëòà and waterpot.

PURPORT

A sannyäse attracted to material possessions will spoil his worship of Lord Kåñëa.

TEXT 16

ä{"i"paUtaM nyas$aetpaAdM" vañpaUtaM ipabaeÀalama, s$atyapaUtaAM vade"ã"AcaM mana:paUtaM s$amaAcare"ta,

dāñōi-pūtaà nyaset pādaà vastra-pūtaà pibej jalam satya-pūtāà vaded vācaà manaù-pūtaà samācaret

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

dāñi—by the sight; pūtam—ascertained as pure; nyaset—he should place; pādam—his foot; vastra—by his cloth; pūtam—filtered; pibet—he should drink; jalam—water; satya—by truthfulness; pūtām—pure; vadet—he should speak; vācam—words; manaù—ascertained by the mind; pūtam—to be pure; samācaret—he should perform.

TRANSLATION

A saintly person should step or place his foot on the ground only after verifying with his eyes that there are no living creatures, such as insects, who might be injured by his foot. He should drink water only after filtering it through a portion of his cloth, and he should speak only words that possess the purity of truth. Similarly, he should perform only those activities his mind has carefully ascertained to be pure.

PURPORT

While walking, a saintly person is careful not to kill any tiny creatures on the ground. Similarly, he filters his drinking water through cloth to avoid swallowing small creatures living within the water. Speaking untruths simply for sense gratification is detrimental to devotional service and should be avoided. Speaking impersonal philosophy and glorifying the sense gratification of the material world, even that found in heavenly planets, contaminates the heart and must be avoided by those desiring perfection in the loving service of the Lord. By serious consideration one can understand that any activity other than devotional service to Lord Kāñëa has no ultimate value; therefore one should exclusively engage in the purified activities of Kāñëa consciousness.

TEXT 17

maAEnaAnalh"AinalaAyaAmaA

d"Nx"A vaAgde"h"caetas$aAma, na ÷etae yasya s$antyaĒy vaeNAuiBanaR Bavaeâita:

maunânêhânilâyâmā
daëòā vāg-deha-cetasām na hy ete yasya santi aī ga veëubhir na bhaved yatiù

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

mauna—avoiding useless speech; anêha—giving up fruitive activities; anila-âyâmāu—controlling the breathing process; daëòāu—strict disciplines; vāk—of the voice; deha—of the body; cetasām—of the mind; na—not; hi—indeed; ete—these disciplines; yasya—of whom; santi—exist; aī ga—My dear Uddhava; veëubhiù—by bamboo rods; na—never; bhaved—is; yatiù—a real sannyāsē.

TRANSLATION

One who has not accepted the three internal disciplines of avoiding useless speech, avoiding useless activities and controlling the life air can never be considered a sannyāsē merely because of his carrying bamboo rods.

PURPORT

The word daëòā indicates the staff carried by those in the renounced order of life, and daëòā also indicates severe discipline. The Vaiñëava sannyāsēs accept a staff made of three bamboo rods, signifying dedication of the body, mind and words to the service of the Supreme Lord. Here Lord Kâñëa says that one must first accept these three daëòās, or disciplines (namely control of the voice, body and mind), within oneself. The practice of anilâyāma (or präëâyāma, regulating the life air) is meant to control the mind, and one who always thinks of service to Lord Kâñëa has certainly achieved the perfection of präëâyāma. Merely carrying the three external daëòas without assimilating the internal daëòas of bodily, mental and vocal discipline can never make one an actual Vaiñëava sannyäsé, as explained here by Lord Kåñëa.

In the Haàsa-gétä section of Mahäbhärata and in Çréla Rüpa Gosvämé's Upadeçämäta, there are instructions regarding the sannyäsa order of life. A conditioned soul who adopts only the external ornaments of tridaëòé-sannyäsa will not actually be able to control the senses. One who takes sannyäsa for false prestige, making a show of saintliness without actual advancement in kåñëa-kértana, will soon be vanquished by the external energy of the Lord.

TEXT 18

iBa^oaAM catauSauR vaNAeRSau ivagA÷ARna, vajaRyaMêre"ta, s$aæaAgAAr"Anas$ax.~k}(æaAMs$a, tauSyaeéabDaena taAvataA

bhikñäà caturñu varëëñu vigarhyän varjayaàç caret saptägarän asaì kyptäàs tuñyel labdhena tävatä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bhikñäm—charity obtained by begging; caturñu—among the four; varëëñu—occupational divisions of society; vigarhyän—abominable, impure; varjayan—rejecting; caret—one should approach; sapta—seven; ägarän—houses; asaì kyptän—without calculation or desire; tuñyet—one should be satisfied; labdhena—with that obtained; tävatä—with just that amount.

TRANSLATION

Rejecting those houses that are polluted and untouchable, one should approach without previous calculation seven houses and be satisfied with that which is obtained there by begging. According to necessity, one may approach each of the four occupational orders of society.

PURPORT

Saintly persons in the renounced order of life may beg from strict followers of Vedic culture to obtain foodstuffs and other bodily necessities. According to Vedic injunction, a renounced saint should beg from the brāhmaëa community, but if there is danger of his starving, he may beg from kāatriyas, then vaiçyas, and even çüdras if they are not sinful, as expressed here by the word vigarhyän. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura explains that asañ kjptän indicates that one should not approach certain houses, calculating, "In that place I can get first-class food. That house has a big reputation among beggars." Without discriminating, one should go to seven houses and be satisfied with whatever may be obtained there. One should beg for one's personal maintenance only from houses where the inhabitants, being sincere followers of the varëäçrama culture, have earned their livelihood by honest means and are free from sinful activities. One may beg alms from such householders. One must not beg alms for one's personal maintenance from those who oppose the Supreme Lord's devotional service, for such service is the whole purpose of varëäçrama culture.

Those who oppose Vedic culture pass laws to make begging by saintly persons a criminal act. They thus insult and persecute saintly beggars, considering them to be ordinary vagrants. A lazy person begging to avoid work is certainly abominable, but a saintly person dedicated to the service of the Lord and practicing the discipline of begging to develop full dependence on the Lord's mercy should be given all facility in human society. Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura explains that there are three forms of collecting alms. Mādhukara is the process of imitating the bee, who collects a tiny amount of nectar from each flower. In this way, the saintly person accepts a very small amount from each person, avoiding social conflict. The process mentioned here is asañ kjpta, by which one indiscriminately approaches seven houses, being satisfied with whatever may be obtained. Präk-praëëta is that process by which one establishes regular donors and collects one's maintenance from them. In this regard Çréla Véaräghava Äcärya has described the initial stage of sannyäsa, called kuöëcaka, as follows. A man accepting the initial stage of sannyäsa arranges for his children or other relatives and well-wishers to build him a kuöë, or meditation cottage. He gives up worldly affairs and sits within the cottage, trying to remain free from lust, anger, greed, illusion and so on. According to the prescribed injunctions of regulated life, he accepts a tri-daëöa, purifies himself with a waterpot, shaves his head (leaving a çikhä, or tuft), chants Gäyatrë mantra on the sacred thread and wears saffron garments. Bathing regularly, cleansing, performing äcamana, chanting japa, studying the Vedas, remaining celibate and meditating on the Lord, he receives regular supplies of food from his children, friends and relatives. Accepting only the bare necessities of life, he remains fixed in his cottage up to the moment of liberation.

TEXT 19

baih"jaRlaAzAyaM gAtvaA taṭaAepas$pa{zya vaAgyata:
ivaBajya paAivataM zAeSaM BauÄaltaAzAeSamaAô$ama,

*bahir jaläçayaà gatvä
tatropaspäçya väg-yataù vibhajya pävitaà çeñaà
bhui jëtäçeñam ähâtam*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

bahiù—outside of urban areas, in a secluded place; jala—of water; äçayam—to a reservoir; gatvä—going; tatra—there; upaspäçya—being purified by contact with water; väk-yataù—without speaking; vibhajya—duly distributing; pävitam—purified; çeñam—remnants;

bhuijêta—one should eat; açeñam—completely; ähâtam—gathered by begging.

TRANSLATION

Taking the food gathered through begging, one should leave the populated areas and go to a reservoir of water in a secluded place. There, having taken a bath and washed one's hands thoroughly, one should distribute portions of the food to others who may request it. One should do this without speaking. Then, having thoroughly cleansed the remnants, one should eat everything on one's plate, leaving nothing for future consumption.

PURPORT

Çréla Bhaktisiddhānta Sarasvaté Öhäkura explains that a saintly person should not argue or quarrel with materialistic persons who may request or demand part of his foodstuff. The word vibhajya indicates that one should give something to such persons to avoid disturbance, and then, offering the remnants to Lord Viñëu, one should eat everything on one's plate, without saving food for the future. The word bahiù indicates that one should not eat in a public place, and väg-yata indicates that one should eat silently, meditating upon the Lord's mercy.

TEXT 20

Wk(êre"nmah"ImaetaAM
ina:s$aËÿ: s$aMyataein%"ya: @Atma,(Lx" @Atmar"ta @AtmavaAna, s$amad"zARna:

*ekaç caren mahém etäà niüsai gaù saàyatendriyaù ätma-krèòà ätma-rata
ätma-vän sama-darçanaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

ekaù—alone; caret—one should move about; mahém—the earth; etām—this; niùsaì gaù—without any material attachment; saàyata-indriyaù—completely controlling the senses; ätma-kreòau—enthusiastic by realization of the Supersoul; ätma-rataù—completely satisfied in spiritual understanding; ätma-vän—steady on the spiritual platform; sama-darçanaù—with equal vision everywhere.

TRANSLATION

Without any material attachment, with senses fully controlled, remaining enthusiastic, and satisfied in realization of the Supreme Lord and his own self, the saintly person should travel about the earth alone. Having equal vision everywhere, he should be steady on the spiritual platform.

PURPORT

One who remains attached to material sense gratification cannot be steady in the process of chanting Hare Kåñëa. Being shackled by illusory desires, he is not able to fully control the senses. Actually, one should take shelter of devotional service to Lord Kåñëa twenty-four hours a day, for by such service one remains within the scope of spiritual reality. By chanting and hearing the holy names of the Lord along with the Lord's glories and pastimes, one naturally drifts away from the field of material sense gratification. Good association with Lord Kåñëa and His devotees automatically vanquishes useless material association, and one is able to carry out the Vedic injunctions meant to lift the conditioned soul out of the material field and onto the liberated platform of Kåñëa consciousness. In this regard, Çréla Rûpa Gosvämé states in his Upadeçämâta (4), dadäti pratigåhëäti

guhyam äkhyäti pácchati

bhūṁ kte bhojayate caiva ñāḍ-vidhāṁ prēti-lakṣṇāḥ

"Offering gifts in charity, accepting charitable gifts, revealing one's mind in confidence, inquiring confidentially, accepting prasādam and offering prasādam are the six symptoms of love shared by one devotee and another."

One who thus learns to associate with the Lord's devotees actually remains insulated from the contamination of material life. By pure association one gradually understands the name, form, qualities, associates, pastimes and devotional service of Lord Ṣṛē Kāñḇā, and thus even in this lifetime one can become a resident of the spiritual world. In the association of pure devotees there is no material contamination and no useless discussion, since all pure devotees are fully engaged twenty-four hours a day in the loving service of the Lord. By the influence of such devotees, one develops equal vision (sama-darṣana) and sees the realized knowledge of Kāñḇā consciousness everywhere. As one begins to understand his eternal relationship with Lord Kāñḇā, he becomes ātma-vān, situated in his constitutional position. An advanced Vaiñḇava, constantly enjoying the mellows of loving devotional service and carrying out the mission of the Lord on the earth, is ātma-kṛḇḇā, one who enjoys life within the internal potency of the Supreme Lord. The advanced devotee remains constantly attracted to the Supreme Lord and His devotees and is therefore ātma-rata, fully satisfied by constant engagement in devotional service. One cannot possibly develop the exalted qualities mentioned here without becoming an unalloyed devotee of Lord Kāñḇā. One who is envious of the Lord and His devotees becomes attracted to bad association, gradually loses control of the senses and falls down into the network of impious life. The innumerable varieties of nondevotees are like branches sprouting from the single tree of enviousness of the Supreme Lord, Kāñḇā, and their association should be given up by all means.

Without unalloyed devotional service to the Lord, one loses touch with the desire and mission of the Personality of Godhead and becomes attracted to worshiping the wonderful male and female creations of the Lord's illusory energy—demigods, demigoddesses, celebrities, politicians, prostitutes, etc.

In this way, one foolishly considers something besides Lord Kāñëa to be supremely wonderful. Actually, Lord Kāñëa is the only true object of worship for those desiring to experience unlimited beauty and pleasure. By seriously taking to Kāñëa consciousness one can realize the transcendental position of Lord Kāñëa and gradually develop all of the qualities mentioned in this verse.

TEXT 21

ivaiva·(°aemazAr"NAAe maà"AvaivamalaAzAya: @AtmaAnaM icantayaede"k(ma, @Baede"na mayaA mauina:

*vivikta-kñema-çaraëo mad-bhäva-vimaläçayaù
ätmänaà cintayed ekam
abhedena mayä muniù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vivikta—solitary; kñema—safe; çaraëaù—his dwelling; mat—in Me; bhäva—by constant thought; vimala—purified; äçayaù—his consciousness; ätmänam—on the soul; cintayet—he should concentrate; ekam—alone; abhedena—not different; mayä—from Me; muniù—the sage.

TRANSLATION

Dwelling in a safe and solitary place, his mind purified by constant thought of Me, the sage should concentrate on the soul alone, realizing it to be nondifferent from Me.

PURPORT

One who is engaged exclusively in the devotional service of the Lord in one of the five principal relationships is to be known as a pure Vaiñëava. Because of his advanced stage of love of Godhead, a pure devotee is able to constantly chant the glories of the Lord without material hindrance. He is not interested in anything except Lord Kâñëa and never considers himself to be qualitatively different from the Lord. One who is still attracted by the gross material body and subtle material mind, which cover the eternal soul, continues to see himself as different from the Supreme Personality of Godhead. This misconception is due to false identification with matter. With senses purified of material contamination, one must serve the Lord, who is the master of all senses, and thus one's devotional service is considered free from discrepancy.

One who ignores the injunctions of Vedic literature uselessly wastes his sense activity in illusory material activities. He falsely considers himself to be different from Lord Kâñëa and therefore imagines that he possesses an interest independent of the Lord's interest. There is no possibility that such a person can achieve steadiness in life, because the material field of action is constantly being shifted and transformed by the disturbing influence of time. If a devotee begins to cultivate an interest apart from the loving service of the Lord, his meditation on his oneness with the Lord will be disturbed and overturned. When the mind deviates from the lotus feet of the Lord, the duality of material nature again becomes prominent within the mind, and one resumes a work program based on the three modes of material nature. One who is not fixed in one's own relationship with the Supreme Lord cannot be fearless or steady and is deprived of the shelter of Lord Çré Kâñëa. Therefore one should seriously contemplate, as described in this verse, one's identity as a small particle of consciousness not different from the supreme consciousness, Lord Kâñëa. Thus one should remain steady in Kâñëa consciousness.

TEXT 22

@nval^oaetaAtmanaAe banDaM maAe^oaM ca ÁaAnainai"yaA banDa win%^o"yaiva^oae paAe maAe°a W SaAM ca s$ aMyama:

*anvékñetātmano bandhaà mokñāà ca ji āna-niññohayā bandha indriya-vikñepo
mokñā eññāà ca saàyamaù*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

anvékñeta—one should see by careful study; ātmanaù—of the soul; bandham—the bondage; mokñām—the liberation; ca—also; ji āna—in knowledge; niññohayā—by steadiness; bandhaù—bondage; indriya—of the senses; vikñepaù—deviation to sense gratification; mokñāù—liberation; eññām—of these senses; ca—and; saàyamaù—complete control.

TRANSLATION

By steady knowledge a sage should clearly ascertain the nature of the soul's bondage and liberation. Bondage occurs when the senses are deviated to sense gratification, and complete control of the senses constitutes liberation.

PURPORT

By carefully understanding one's eternal nature, one will not again be bound up in the shackles of material energy, and by constant engagement in the service of the Absolute Truth, one is liberated. Then the flickering material senses can no longer drag one into the false consciousness of being a material enjoyer. Such steady sense control gives one relief from the harassment of material sense gratification.

TEXT 23

tasmaAi°ayamya SaÒ" gA<
maà" Avaena care" nmauina:

ivar"·(: °au"%o"k(AmaeByaAe labDvaAtmaina s$auKaM mah"ta, tasmän niyamyā ñaò-vargaà mad-bhāvena caren muniù viraktaù kñudra-kāmebhyo labdhvātmani sukhaà mahat

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

tasmät—therefore; niyamyā—completely controlling; ñaò-vargam—the six senses (sight, hearing, smell, touch, taste and the mind); mat-bhāvena—by consciousness of Me; caret—should live; muniù—the sage; viraktaù—detached; kñudra—insignificant; kāmebhyaù—from sense gratification; labdhvā—having experienced; ātmani—in the self; sukham—happiness; mahat—great.

TRANSLATION

Therefore, completely controlling the five senses and the mind by Kāñëa consciousness, a sage, having experienced spiritual bliss within the self, should live detached from insignificant material sense gratification.

TEXT 24

paur"faAma~ajaAna, s$aATaARna, iBa°aATa< 'aivazAMêre"ta, pauNyade"zAs$air"cCE$lavanaA™amavatal%M mah"lma,

pura-grāma-vrajän sārthän bhikñārthaà praviṣaàç caret puëya-deça-saric-chailavanāçrama-vatēà mahém

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

pura—cities; grāma—towns; vrajān—and pasturing grounds; sa-arthān—those working for bodily maintenance; bhikṣā-artham—for begging alms; praviṣan—entering; caret—he should travel; puṣya—pure; deṣa—places; sarit—with rivers; çaila—mountains; vana—and forests; āçrama-vatēm—possessing such residential places; mahēm—the earth.

TRANSLATION

The sage should travel in sanctified places, by flowing rivers and within the solitude of mountains and forests. He should enter the cities, towns and pasturing grounds and approach ordinary working men only to beg his bare sustenance.

PURPORT

According to Çréla Çrédhara Svāmé, the word pura refers to cities and towns with shopping centers, markets and other commercial enterprises, whereas grāma refers to smaller towns, lacking such facilities. The vānaprastha or sannyāse trying to become free from material attachment should avoid those who are working day and night for sense gratification, approaching them only to engage them in necessary acts of charity. Those who are preaching Kāñëa consciousness all over the world are understood to be liberated souls, and therefore they constantly approach the materialistic living entities to engage them in the devotional service of Lord Kāñëa. However, even such preachers should strictly avoid contact with the materialistic world when not actually necessary for advancing the mission of Kāñëa consciousness. The injunction is that one should not deal unnecessarily with the materialistic world.

TEXT 25

vaAna'asTaA™amapade"Sva, @BaI°NAM BaE°yamaAcare"ta, s$aMis$aDyatyaAis$ammaAeh":

zAuÜ"s$aÔva: izAlaAnDas$aA vānaprasthāçrama-padeñv abhékñëaà bhaikñyam ācaret saàsidhyaty āçv asammohaù çuddha-sattvaù çilāndhasä

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

vānaprastha-āçrama—of the vānaprastha order of life; padeñu—in the position; abhékñëam—always; bhaikñyam—begging; ācaret—one should perform; saàsidhyati—one becomes spiritually perfect; āçu—quickly; asammohaù—free from illusion; çuddha—purified; sattvaù—existence; çëla—obtained by begging or gleaning; andhasä—by food.

TRANSLATION

One in the vānaprastha order of life should always practice taking charity from others, for one is thereby freed from illusion and quickly becomes perfect in spiritual life. Indeed, one who subsists on food grains obtained in such a humble manner purifies his existence.

PURPORT

In the Western countries people are generally so dull that they cannot distinguish between a saintly beggar and an ordinary hobo or hippie. A saintly beggar is constantly engaged in authorized devotional service to the Supreme Lord and accepts only what he requires for his bare maintenance. The author of this book remembers entering the Kñëa consciousness society as an arrogant university student and being quickly humbled by the process of begging on the street on behalf of Kñëa. This process is not theoretical but actually purifies one's existence by forcing one to offer respect to all others. Unless one offers respect to others, one's begging will be fruitless. Also, by begging one will not often eat very sumptuously. This is good because when the tongue is controlled the other senses are quickly pacified. A vānaprastha should never give up the purifying process of begging for his food, and ordinary people should not foolishly equate a lazy bum living at the cost of others with a saintly beggar engaged in higher duties for the Supreme Lord.

TEXT 26

naEtaã"stautayaA paɣyaeä," ä{"zyamaAnaM ivanazyaita @s$a·(icaÔaAe ivar"maeä," wh"Amauṭaica(LiSaRtaAta,

*naitad vastutayā paçyed dâçyamānaà vinaçyati asakta-citto viramed
ihāmutra-cikérñitāt*

WORD-FOR-WORD MEANINGS

na—never; etat—this; vastutayā—as ultimate reality; paçyet—one should see; dâçyamānam—being observed by direct experience; vinaçyati—is destroyed; asakta—without attachment; cittaù—whose consciousness; viramet—one should be detached; iha—in this world; amutra—and in one's future life; cikérñitāt—from activities performed for material advancement.

TRANSLATION

